The billionaire casino mogul who has breathed new life into Newt Gingrich's presidential campaign with millions of dollars in donations is facing a federal investigation over whether his company violated the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, which prohibits bribing foreign officials. The investigation stems from a lawsuit filed by a former executive at the Sands Macau in China, the company has said. Steven C. Jacobs claims he was told the keep quiet about investigations of local officials and the possible presence of the triads - Chinese organized crime - in the casino....

Sheldon Adelson bought out the Las Vegas Sands Hotel, pioneered by Lansky, Moe Dalitz and Bugsy Siegel. Adelson developed the massive Venetian Hotel/casino, its themes carefully modeled on the historical center of oligarchy, tyranny and corruption, Venice. He has fought a long, bitter battle against the workers and labor unions in Las Vegas, and is a central player in the casino domination of politics—ownership of politicians—in Nevada. Sheldon Adelson has poured huge sums into Israeli politics. He has sought approval to build casinos in Israel itself—as did Meyer Lansky—but has so far not succeeded. Adelson finances the Lubavitcher cult, which operates a right-wing political and dirty-money empire from Russia to New York's diamond district, to Israel. The Lubavitchers, who agitated against the Oslo peace accords, are emerging as the dominant force in the Jewish community in Las Vegas

—despite mainstream Jewish revulsion at their tactics and politics. Adelson was granted one of three gambling licenses (Steve Wynn also got one) in Macao, China, the former Portuguese colony near Hong Kong. Adelson says what Macao needs is a Vegas-style Strip, which he envisions building

Dec 13, 2009 The Zionist Organization of America is proud to announce that Mr. Sheldon G. Adelson was the recipient of its supreme, rarely bestowed, historic Zionist award “the Theodor Herzl Gold Medallion.” Mr. Adelson is the Chairman and CEO of Las Vegas Sands Corporation with Resort Hotels in Las Vegas, Macau, China, Singapore and Pennsylvania. This award is given to individuals who have made a unique, lasting and historic contribution to the cause of Zionism and the Jewish people. Some have referred to this award as “the Nobel Prize for Zionism.” Speakers included Israeli Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu (by video), Israeli Vice-Prime Minister and former Israel Defense Forces Chief-of-Staff Lt.-Gen. Moshe Yaalon, and U.S. House Minority Whip, Congressman Eric Cantor (R-VA), the second most powerful Republican position in the U.S. House of Representatives.....

2.3.3 The Ten Planks of Communism

To understand these objective here is a quick review of the ten planks of communism. How many we see now in the United States?

- <http://www.criminalgovernment.com/docs/planks.html>
- 1. Abolition of Private Ownership of Property and assignment of rents to public purposes – Eminent Domain for developers
- 2. A Heavy Progressive Income Tax – IRS in 1913
- 3. Abolition of All Rights of Inheritance – IRS 55% Tax on Inheritance
- 4. Confiscation of all properties of Rebels and Emigrates – Oppose or Leave the US and lose all assets
- 5. Centralization of All Credit controlled by the state – Federal Bank in 1913
- 6. Centralization of Means of Transportation – Control of Cost of Gas and public transportation
- 7. Control of Means of Production by the State – Outsourcing of Manufacturing controlled by the elite
- 8. Equality of All Labor –Minority Contracting Laws, Anti-Discrimination Laws, Equal Rights
- 9. Consolidation of Agriculture and Manufacturing equal distribution of population to both cities and rural areas – Agenda 21
- 10. Free education of all children (those not aborted by the demands of the state) – Public Education

2.3.4 Communist Take Over of America – 45 Declared Goals

In 1963 Congress identified the objectives of plans to take over the United States.

- <http://www.rense.com/general32/america.htm>
- 1. U.S. acceptance of coexistence as the only alternative to atomic war.
- 2. U.S. willingness to capitulate in preference to engaging in atomic war.
- 3. Develop the illusion that total disarmament [by] the United States would be a demonstration of moral strength.
- 4. Permit free trade between all nations regardless of Communist affiliation and regardless of whether or not items could be used for war.
- 5. Extension of long-term loans to Russia and Soviet satellites.
- 6. Provide American aid to all nations regardless of Communist domination.
- 7. Grant recognition of Red China. Admission of Red China to the U.N.
- 8. Set up East and West Germany as separate states in spite of Khrushchev's promise in 1955 to settle the German question by free elections under supervision of the U.N.
- 9. Prolong the conferences to ban atomic tests because the United States has agreed to suspend tests as long as negotiations are in progress.
- 10. Allow all Soviet satellites individual representation in the U.N.
- 11. Promote the U.N. as the only hope for mankind. If its charter is rewritten, demand that it be set up as a one-world government with its own independent armed forces. (Some Communist leaders believe the world can be taken over as easily by the U.N. as by Moscow. Sometimes these two centers compete with each other as they are now doing in the Congo.)
- 12. Resist any attempt to outlaw the Communist Party.
- 13. Do away with all loyalty oaths.
- 14. Continue giving Russia access to the U.S. Patent Office.
- 15. Capture one or both of the political parties in the United States.
- 16. Use technical decisions of the courts to weaken basic American institutions by claiming their activities violate civil rights.
- 17. Get control of the schools. Use them as transmission belts for socialism and current Communist propaganda. Soften the curriculum. Get control of teachers' associations. Put the party line in textbooks.
- 18. Gain control of all student newspapers.
- 19. Use student riots to foment public protests against programs or organizations which are under Communist attack.
- 20. Infiltrate the press. Get control of book-review assignments, editorial writing, policy-making positions.
- 21. Gain control of key positions in radio, TV, and motion pictures.
- 22. Continue discrediting American culture by degrading all forms of artistic expression. An American Communist cell was told to "eliminate all good sculpture from parks and buildings, substitute shapeless, awkward and meaningless forms."
- 23. Control art critics and directors of art museums. "Our plan is to promote ugliness, repulsive, meaningless art."
- 24. Eliminate all laws governing obscenity by calling them "censorship" and a violation of free speech and free press.
- 25. Break down cultural standards of morality by promoting pornography and obscenity in books, magazines, motion pictures, radio, and TV.
- 26. Present homosexuality, degeneracy and promiscuity as "normal, natural, healthy."
- 27. Infiltrate the churches and replace revealed religion with "social" religion. Discredit the Bible and emphasize the need for intellectual maturity, which does not need a "religious crutch."
- 28. Eliminate prayer or any phase of religious expression in the schools on the ground that it violates the principle of "separation of church and state."

29. Discredit the American Constitution by calling it inadequate, old-fashioned, out of step with modern needs, a hindrance to cooperation between nations on a worldwide basis.
30. Discredit the American Founding Fathers. Present them as selfish aristocrats who had no concern for the "common man."
31. Belittle all forms of American culture and discourage the teaching of American history on the ground that it was only a minor part of the "big picture." Give more emphasis to Russian history since the Communists took over.
32. Support any socialist movement to give centralized control over any part of the culture-- education, social agencies, welfare programs, mental health clinics, etc.
33. Eliminate all laws or procedures which interfere with the operation of the Communist apparatus.
34. Eliminate the House Committee on Un-American Activities.
35. Discredit and eventually dismantle the FBI.
36. Infiltrate and gain control of more unions.
37. Infiltrate and gain control of big business.
38. Transfer some of the powers of arrest from the police to social agencies. Treat all behavioral problems as psychiatric disorders which no one but psychiatrists can understand [or treat].
39. Dominate the psychiatric profession and use mental health laws as a means of gaining coercive control over those who oppose Communist goals.
40. Discredit the family as an institution. Encourage promiscuity and easy divorce.
41. Emphasize the need to raise children away from the negative influence of parents. Attribute prejudices, mental blocks and retarding of children to suppressive influence of parents.
42. Create the impression that violence and insurrection are legitimate aspects of the American tradition; that students and special-interest groups should rise up and use [""]united force[""] to solve economic, political or social problems.
43. Overthrow all colonial governments before native populations are ready for self-government.
44. Internationalize the Panama Canal.
45. Repeal the Connally reservation so the United States cannot prevent the World Court from seizing jurisdiction [over domestic problems. Give the World Court jurisdiction] over nations and individuals alike.

2.3.5.1 Protocols of Zion Summary

Goyim are mentally inferior to Jews and can't run their nations properly. For their sake and ours, we need to abolish their governments and replace them with a single government. This will take a long time and involve much bloodshed, but it's for a good cause. Here's what we'll need to do:

- <http://iamthewitness.com/books/Protocols.in.Modern.English.htm>
- 1) Place our agents and helpers everywhere
- 2) Take control of the media and use it in propaganda for our plans
- 3) Start fights between different races, classes and religions
- 4) Use bribery, threats and blackmail to get our way
- 5) Use Freemasonic Lodges to attract potential public officials
- 6) Appeal to successful people's egos
- 7) Appoint puppet leaders who can be controlled by blackmail
- 8) Replace royal rule with socialist rule, then communism, then despotism
- 9) Abolish all rights and freedoms, except the right of force by us
- 10) Sacrifice people (including Jews sometimes) when necessary
- 11) Eliminate religion; replace it with science and materialism
- 12) Control the education system to spread deception and destroy intellect
- 13) Rewrite history to our benefit
- 14) Create entertaining distractions
- 15) Corrupt minds with filth and perversion
- 16) Encourage people to spy on one another
- 17) Keep the masses in poverty and perpetual labor
- 18) Take possession of all wealth, property and (especially) gold
- 19) Use gold to manipulate the markets, cause depressions etc.
- 20) Introduce a progressive tax on wealth
- 21) Replace sound investment with speculation
- 22) Make long-term interest-bearing loans to governments
- 23) Give bad advice to governments and everyone else

Eventually the Goyim will be so angry with their governments (because we'll blame them for the resulting mess) that they'll gladly have us take over. We will then appoint a descendant of David to be king of the world, and the remaining Goyim will bow down and sing his praises. Everyone will live in peace and obedient order under his glorious rule.

One of the first Causalities of War is the Truth, Perhaps the former CIA's director's finding on the protocols as a Hoax is one of those causalities. By disinformation we shall wage war – Mossad Motto.

May 26, 2014 A day after he threw his moral weight behind the establishment of a Palestinian state, Pope Francis paid tribute Monday at the grave of Theodor Herzl, the man whose dream of a Jewish homeland led to the creation of modern-day Israel. It was a finely balanced gesture on the last day of the pontiff's visit to the Holy Land, where even the smallest acts are fraught with political symbolism. The wreath-laying here in Jerusalem also sought to wipe away bitter memories of a previous pope's rejection of Zionism more than a century ago.

- <http://www.vcn.bc.ca/citizens-handbook/rules.html>

Saul David Alinsky was born in Chicago, Illinois in 1909 to Russian Jewish immigrant parents, the only surviving son of Benjamin Alinsky's marriage to his second wife, Sarah Tannenbaum Alinsky.^[6] Alinsky stated during an interview that his parents never became involved in the "new socialist movement." He added that they were "strict Orthodox, their whole life revolved around work and synagogue ... I remember as a kid being told how important it was to study... He is generally considered to be the founder of modern community organizing. He is often noted for his book Rules for Radicals

2.3.6.1 Alinsky's Rules to Create Social Control

There are 8 levels of control that must be obtained before you are able to create a socialist state. The first is the most important.

- 1) Healthcare – Control healthcare and you control the people.
- 2) Poverty – Increase the Poverty level as high as possible. Poor people are easier to control and will not fight back if you are providing everything for them to live.
- 3) Debt – Increase the debt to an unsustainable level. That way you are able to increase taxes, and this will produce more poverty.
- 4) Gun Control – Remove the ability to defend themselves from the Government. That way you are able to create a police state.
- 5) Welfare – Take control of every aspect of their lives (Food, Housing, and Income)
- 6) Education – Take control of what people read and listen to – take control of what children learn in school.
- 7) Religion – Remove the belief in the God from the Government and schools.
- 8) Class Warfare – Divide the people into the wealthy and the poor. This will cause more discontent and it will be easier to take from (Tax) the wealthy with the support of the poor.

Does any of this sound like what is happening to the United States?

2.3.6.2 Alinsky's Rule for Radicals

- Rule 1: Power is not only what you have, but what an opponent thinks you have. If your organization is small, hide your numbers in the dark and raise a din that will make everyone think you have many more people than you do.
- Rule 2: Never go outside the experience of your people. The result is confusion, fear, and retreat.
- Rule 3: Whenever possible, go outside the experience of an opponent. Here you want to cause confusion, fear, and retreat.
- Rule 4: Make opponents live up to their own book of rules. “You can kill them with this, for they can no more obey their own rules than the Christian church can live up to Christianity.”
- Rule 5: Ridicule is man's most potent weapon. It's hard to counterattack ridicule, and it infuriates the opposition, which then reacts to your advantage.
- Rule 6: A good tactic is one your people enjoy. “If your people aren't having a ball doing it, there is something very wrong with the tactic.”
- Rule 7: A tactic that drags on for too long becomes a drag. Commitment may become ritualistic as people turn to other issues.
- Rule 8: Keep the pressure on. Use different tactics and actions and use all events of the period for your purpose. “The major premise for tactics is the development of operations that will maintain a constant pressure upon the opposition. It is this that will cause the opposition to react to your advantage.”
- Rule 9: The threat is more terrifying than the thing itself. When Alinsky leaked word that large numbers of poor people were going to tie up the washrooms of O'Hare Airport, Chicago city authorities quickly agreed to act on a longstanding commitment to a ghetto organization. They imagined the mayhem as thousands of passengers poured off airplanes to discover every washroom occupied. Then they imagined the international embarrassment and the damage to the city's reputation.
- Rule 10: The price of a successful attack is a constructive alternative. Avoid being trapped by an opponent or an interviewer who says, “Okay, what would you do?”
- Rule 11: Pick the target, freeze it, personalize it, polarize it. Don't try to attack abstract corporations or bureaucracies. Identify a responsible individual. Ignore attempts to shift or spread the blame.

Recently we heard the Mayor of Chicago state that the values stated by Chick-fil-A over the LGBT do not reflect the values of Chicago. Mayer Emanuel said this from the podium with very large Lubavitch sign that he has no regrets. The same Lubavitch identified to be closely associated with Sheldon Adelson. Some much for Emanuel's values. Rahm is the same mayor that as one of his first agendas for the city of Chicago was to permit Casinos within the city that the citizens of Chicago were fighting for the past 50 years to keep out. Rahm Emanuel tolerates Gay and Decay with Chicago's out of control murder rate.

3.2.2 Rahm Emanuel: No regrets on my Chick fil-A comments

- <http://www.suntimes.com/news/cityhall/14102489-418/rahm-emanuel-no-regrets-on-my-chick-fil-a-comments.html>

Mayor Rahm Emanuel said Monday he has no regrets about saying that “Chick-fil-A’s values are not Chicago’s values” because the company president opposes gay marriage. “No. I don’t” regret it, the mayor said under questioning at an unrelated jobs announcement. “And the simple reason is, when it comes to values, there’s a policy as it relates to gay marriage. The values of our city are ones that welcome and recognize that, and I will continue to fight for that.” Last week, Emanuel hinted strongly that he was prepared to join Ald. Joe Moreno (1st) in blocking Chick-fil-A from opening its first free-standing Chicago store in Logan Square. Both men cited Chick-fil-A President Dan Cathy’s public opposition to gay marriage. Cathy was quoted earlier this month as saying he was “guilty as charged” for supporting what he called the “biblical definition” of marriage as between a man and a woman. His comments infuriated gay rights activists across the nation, prompting their political allies to take a stand against the company. Asked last week whether the chain that specializes in chicken sandwiches should be allowed to expand in Chicago, Emanuel said, “Chick-fil-A’s values are not Chicago values. They’re not respectful of our residents, our neighbors and our family members. And if you’re going to be part of the Chicago community, you should reflect Chicago values.” Conservatives promptly accused Emanuel, the former White House chief of staff now serving as co-chairman of President Barack Obama’s re-election campaign, of using a political litmus test to determine public policy. That prompted the mayor to soften his earlier opposition. “The Mayor simply said that Chick-fil-a’s CEO does not share Chicago’s values. He did not say that he would block or play any role in the company opening a new restaurant here,” mayoral press secretary Tarrah Cooper said the following day. “If they meet all the usual requirements, then they can open their restaurant, but he does not believe the CEO’s values are reflective of our city.” Chick-fil-A tried to put out the political fire with a statement that said its restaurants “treat every person with honor, dignity and respect — regardless of their belief, race, creed, sexual orientation or gender.” Obviously referring to the political minefield that Cathy stepped into, the statement said, “Going forward, our intent is to leave the policy debate over same-sex marriage to the government and political arena.” The Chick-fil-A controversy marked the second time in recent months that Emanuel had threatened to use his vast governmental powers to block political dissent.

3.2.3 Rahm Emanuel links to Gangster Sheldon Adelson Lubavitcher Cult

From the podium in which Chicago Mayor Rahm Emanuel spoke out against Chick-fil-a, the sign clearly showed Lubavitch at the backdrop to his position of moral decay.

...Adelson (Sheldon) finances the Lubavitcher cult, which operates a right-wing political and dirty-money empire from Russia to New York's diamond district, to Israel. The Lubvitchers, who agitated against the Oslo peace accords, are emerging as the dominant force in the Jewish community in Las Vegas—despite mainstream Jewish revulsion at their tactics and politics.

Chicago Mayor Rahm Emanuel offered his best wishes to downtown Chabad-Lubavitch emissary Rabbi Meir Chai Benhiyoun and his family prior to the celebration of the public celebration of the first night of Chanukah, the Jewish Festival of Lights, but skipped attending the lighting of the first candle of the public menorah that always takes place at Daley Plaza, the city's central square.

3.2.3.1 Rahm Emanuel's Chicago Casino Bill Gives City Unrestricted Control

- <http://republicbroadcasting.org/index.php?cmd=news.article&articleID=5305>

Mayor Rahm Emanuel is pushing lawmakers to pass a gambling bill that would allow the city to weigh its choice of a casino operator in secret and forbid state regulators from taking away its license. The legislation also would grant the mayor authority to seize land for a casino and keep not only the gambling profits but also two local taxes and a cut of an upfront fee paid for the right to run the gambling emporium. It's a mix of power and privileges that gambling experts say has never been bestowed upon any city or casino owner in the country. They also say the measure raises concerns about whether the state would have ample oversight of the nation's first city-owned casino. "The traditional model is the state and city collect tax revenue, the state regulates and then there is a clear line with the owner-operators running the casino with no connection other than the collection of taxes," said Mark Clayton, a Las Vegas casino regulation expert and former member of the Nevada Gaming Control Board. "In this case, that line is more blurred ... and raises legitimate questions about oversight." Beyond regulatory issues looms the question of who would get to spend the hundreds of millions in gambling money reeled in from slot machines, blackjack tables and roulette wheels. The measure requires all proceeds from a Chicago casino to go toward school construction and modernization. But the 524-page bill says only that the money would be "transferred to the city" by the new Chicago casino authority. It does not specify whether gambling proceeds would flow through the elected City Council, the

Emanuel-appointed Chicago Board of Education or some other arm of the city. Mayoral spokeswoman Sarah Hamilton said Emanuel would work with Chicago Public Schools to spend the money. She would not guarantee that aldermen would get a vote but did say City Council approval would "likely be necessary." Secrecy concerns

The legislation, which has passed the Senate and is pending in the House, is drawing scrutiny from Gov. Pat Quinn, who twice has vetoed gambling expansion bills he insisted were short on ethical safeguards, education funding and regulatory oversight. As with the previous two bills, the latest version would add five casinos and allow slot machines at horse racing tracks. The new measure includes provisions aimed at easing the Democratic governor's concerns, including a ban on political contributions from gambling interests and required state approval of the Chicago authority's members. But the proposal still would allow Chicago's casino to dodge areas of oversight all other Illinois casinos face. For example, when the Chicago Casino Development Authority sits down to consider the bids from private companies competing to run the casino, it can do so behind closed doors. The measure calls for Chicago's authority to accept sealed bids, which the city could keep secret under the state's Freedom of Information Act until after it selects a casino operator. By contrast, when the Illinois Gaming Board considers the other new casinos, it will be required to open bids, discuss those proposals, listen to presentations from bidders and make a decision during public meetings. "The process set up for Chicago definitely is unusual, and I think for something like this where you've got a lot of money at stake, the more transparency, the better," said David Schwartz, director of the Center for Gaming Research at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas. "It raises a lot of concerns, and if this is how it was going to be selected in my state, I would want some more transparency." Hamilton noted that the closed-door bidding language was contained in prior gambling bills, including one that predated Emanuel taking office. Asked whether it should stay in the bill, Hamilton did not respond. Hamilton insisted the mayor is "committed to a robust and transparent procurement process" and pointed to a provision that requires the city to tell state regulators of its bidding procedures ahead of time. The bill, however, would not give the Illinois Gaming Board power to approve or change the city's bid process. The state regulator's only recourse would be to reject the license for Chicago's operator. Rep. Lou Lang, D-Skokie, said that's good enough, waving aside concerns that the public could be shut out of the decision on who runs a casino responsible for generating millions of dollars in city and state revenue. "I don't think it's a breach of any ethical code or need for transparency to say that the private bids the city of Chicago gets for their operator might be kept out of public view," said Lang, the bill's House sponsor. "But I would not say that if the Gaming Board didn't have final say on the license." Quinn spokeswoman Brooke Anderson said the governor believes the Gaming Board should have power to approve Chicago's bidding procedures to help state regulators identify any problems early on.

3.2.4.1 Chabad-Lubavitch Mafia

- <http://www.chabad-mafia.com/>

The Jewish People have a big problem. This problem is an organization known as Chabad, Chabad-Lubavitch, or Lubavitch. This website describes this problem, and tries to prevent additional Jews from becoming "Victims of Chabad." This website was created by Jews for Jews. If you are not Jewish you may not understand what is being presented. If you are Jewish and you do not understand, then you should consult with your local Orthodox (non-Chabad) Rabbi, and do your own research about these issues. What is Chabad? Chabad is a religious cult and a criminal organization. Why is this a problem for the Jews? Chabad poses as an Orthodox Jewish group. They say they are more religious, more strict in their religion, than regular Orthodox Jews. In reality, Chabad's ideology is NOT Jewish. In Israel, Chabad is considered by the most important Rabbis as a religion different from Judaism. Chabad is a different religion. Chabadism is NOT Judaism. So, why is this bad for the Jews? Chabad is a criminal organization. Chabad is mostly involved in white collar criminal activities such as financial fraud, tax evasion, and money laundering. When these criminal activities are discovered and exposed to the public, and because Chabad poses as a Jewish organization, anti-Jewish hatred is created. That is, Chabad creates anti-semitism in the world. Also, many of Chabad victims are Jewish. Mostly, Jewish children. Chabad runs several schools around the world. The objective of these schools is NOT to provide a good Jewish education for their students. The objective of these schools is to MAKE A PROFIT at the expense of the Jewish children. In fact, everything and anything Chabad does, they do to MAKE A PROFIT. Chabad Rabbis are known to have millions of dollars in their offshore bank accounts resulting from, among other things, donations. This facts explain the advice that many important Rabbis have been giving us for the past few decades:DO NOT PUT YOUR CHILDREN IN A CHABAD SCHOOL,EVEN IF THEY OFFER YOU FREE TUITION. IF YOUR CHILDREN ARE NOW IN A CHABAD SCHOOL, REMOVE THEM IMMEDIATELY. NEVER GIVE ANY MONEY TO CHABAD, NEVER GIVE ANY DONATIONS TO CHABAD BOYCOTT ALL CHABAD PROJECTS, AND AVOID PRAYING IN A CHABAD TEMPLE Chabad-Lubavitch is a religious cult from Crown Heights, Brooklyn, New York. Chabad-Lubavitch thrives in areas with large numbers of assimilated Jews, who are ignorant about Judaism, so they can teach them their ideology. Chabad-Lubavitch is also an international organized crime syndicate that strangles free enterprise and raises the level of violence, fraud, and corruption in various cities in the USA, and across the world. What to do? First, DO NOT SEND YOUR CHILDREN TO A CHABAD SCHOOL. NEVER! If your children are now attending a Chabad-Lubavitch school, remove them IMMEDIATELY and send them to a regular Jewish school, a non-Chabad school. Also, NEVER GIVE ANY MONEY TO CHABAD. If you want to give charity, give to a Jewish organization, not to Chabad. Advice from the Rabbis for those living outside of Israel, "A Jewish child should always be sent to a private Jewish school. A family living in a place where there are no Jewish schools, should move to a Jewish community with good Jewish schools. A family that has no money to send their children to a private Jewish school should move to Israel, where all schools are free, and send their children to a religious school there. A Jewish child should NEVER be sent to a Chabad school because a Chabad school is NOT Jewish. In the USA it's better to send a child to a public school rather than a Chabad school." CHABAD-LUBAVITCH IS NOT A JEWISH ORGANIZATION, KEEP YOURSELF, YOUR CHILDREN, AND YOUR MONEY, AWAY FROM IT! In this website we try to provide a simple explanation as to why Chabad is bad for the Jews. At the same time, we call on all Chabad Rabbis to abandon their Chabad ways and come back to the Jewish People. Make no mistake, Chabad is a religious cult and a criminal organization. Chabad is bad for the Jews.

3.2.4.1.1 Rabbi GDOLEI HADOR Message on Chabad-Lubavitch

WE CALL UPON EVERY RABBI IN EVERY JEWISH COMMUNITY IN THE WORLD TO EDUCATE AND TELL THEIR COMMUNITY THAT CHABAD IS NOT JEWISH. WE CALL UPON EVERY PRINCIPAL IN EVERY JEWISH SCHOOL IN THE WORLD TO EDUCATE AND TELL THEIR STUDENTS THAT CHABAD IS NOT JEWISH. WE CALL UPON EVERY JEWISH FATHER AND JEWISH MOTHER IN THE WORLD TO EDUCATE AND TELL THEIR CHILDREN THAT CHABAD IS NOT JEWISH. THIS IS ALREADY BEING DONE IN ISRAEL AND MANY OTHER PLACES. CHABAD HAS GONE TOO FAR. EXPEL CHABAD FROM YOUR COMMUNITY NOW, BEFORE THEY CAUSE ADDITIONAL HARM.

Lubavitch of Center City Philadelphia PA is located at 537 Lombard St. Philadelphia PA 19147. Lubavitch of Center City Philadelphia is Co-Directed by Rabbi Yochonon Goldman . Chabad-Lubavitch is a philosophy, a movement, and an organization. It is considered to be the most dynamic force in Jewish life today. Lubavitch appropriately means the “city of brotherly love” The word “Chabad” is a Hebrew acronym for the three intellectual faculties of chochmah—wisdom, binah—comprehension and da’at—knowledge. The movement’s system of Jewish religious philosophy, the deepest dimension of G-d’s Torah, teaches understanding and recognition of the Creator, the role and purpose of creation, and the importance and unique mission of each creature. This philosophy guides a person to refine and govern his or her every act and feeling through wisdom, comprehension and knowledge. The word “Lubavitch” is the name of the town in White Russia where the movement was based for more than a century. Appropriately, the word Lubavitch in Russian means the “city of brotherly love.” The name Lubavitch conveys the essence of the responsibility and love engendered by the Chabad philosophy toward every single Jew. The Movement Following its inception 250 years ago, the Chabad-Lubavitch movement—a branch of Hasidism—swept through Russia and spread in surrounding countries as well. It provided scholars with answers that eluded them, and simple farmers with a love that had been denied them. Eventually the philosophy of Chabad-Lubavitch and its adherents reached almost every corner of the world and affected almost every facet of Jewish . Lubavitch of Center City offers a large selection of classes, from beginner to advanced levels. 4 Legacy of Rothschild Banking - John Torrio and Bronfman Gangsters

The beginning of this era starts with the efforts of the Rothschild Bankers of Europe. During the Napoleonic Wars. they became very wealthy over the news of the Waterloo Battle. With this wealth they became powerful enough to control the British Empire. Their legacy lies within the China Opium War identified with the reports of Dope Inc showing the links to the Bronfman Dynasty that now controls Canada. The Rothschild's back in the 1880's financed the Bronfman in Canada. They rose to power to become Capone's bootleggers and much further in time. In addition, the Rothschild Bankers supported John Torrio. Torrio is known as the organizer of the National Crime Syndicate. His understudies were Al Capone, Lucky Luciano and Meyer Lansky. Under the wing of Capone was a Moses Annenberg whose son Walter Annenberg become one of the most powerful political bosses in America. The Bronfman Crime Family has also become very powerful here. This document examines the history of these events which up to today impact the economic and political climate of the United States of America and global events.

4.1.2 King of the Jews is Dead – Edgar Bronfman

- <http://americanfreepress.net/?p=14550>

Edgar Bronfman—one of the world's most powerful Zionists—finally dies By Michael Collins Piper - The patriarch of a crime syndicate-connected empire that has operated in the sphere of the Rothschild dynasty is dead. On December 22, Edgar M. Bronfman—longtime head of the World Jewish Congress (WJC)—died at age 84. New York magazine once described him a “sometimes coarse, bullying businessman” but noted “there are some people who would simply call him king of the Jews.” Rabbi Mishael Zion has hailed Bronfman as “a modern Talmudic Jew,” noting Bronfman’s favorite book was the Babylonian Talmud, the hero of which, the rabbi admitted, is not God but the “cunning human scholar.” Praising Bronfman’s work funding scholarships for Jewish youth, the rabbi said Bronfman was “the person who invited us to live Talmudically in the modern world.” This recalls Meyer Rothschild, founder of the dynasty with whom Bronfman’s family has had a long association. An admiring biographer once said Rothschild was “a zealous believer in the Talmud and chose it alone as the guiding principle of all his actions.” It is thus fitting that Bronfman biographer Peter C. Newman said the Bronfmans were “the Rothschilds of the New World,” estimating in 1978 that Bronfman assets totaled some $7B. In fact, Edgar Bronfman had a level of clout few could claim, precisely because of his front-line positioning in the Zionist movement and his family’s pivotal historic role in the crime syndicate.

Edgar was son of Sam Bronfman who immigrated to Canada from Russia and made his fortune in liquor, gambling, prostitution and drugs. Going “legitimate” when he assumed control of the Montreal-based Seagram distillery, Sam forged links with the New York crime syndicate headed by another Russian Jew, Meyer Lansky, and during Prohibition supplied—and thus controlled—the “spigot” of liquor funneled into the United States and distributed by the Lansky mob.

In many border towns in the northern U.S there are family fortunes accumulated by locals who were part of the Bronfman network. And in the big cities, a connection with this syndicate was a “must.” In Detroit, the “little Jewish navy” of Morris Dalitz—later Lansky’s top man in Las Vegas—ferried Bronfman booze into the U.S. Even Chicago’s celebrated Italian-American gangster, Al Capone, owed his rise to his own Bronfman connection. It was Lansky who sent Capone to Chicago from N.Y. in the first place, assigned to work for Johnny Torrio (Bronfman’s Chicago contact) who was moving to unseat “Big Jim” Colosimo, as Italian-American Mafia chief in the Windy City. Colosimo had alienated Lansky and Bronfman—whom he called “dirty Jews”—by asserting there was “no future in bootlegging,” showing little interest in patronizing Bronfman liquor, preferring to focus on drugs, prostitution and loan-sharking. So a Jewish hitman from N.Y. “retired” Big Jim and soon enough, Bronfman liquor flowed into Chicago. The media lionized Capone, but the Chicago mob, thenceforward, was dominated by behind-the-scenes Jewish bosses. In any case, Bronfman plowed his ill-gotten gains into legitimate enterprises, establishing his family as major patrons of Israel and expanding their power on American shores. When Sam died, Edgar assumed family leadership and—though little known to the public—was one of the most powerful figures on the planet. Today, his legacy lives on. Aside from wheeler-dealer son, Edgar Jr., son Matthew chairs the board of the WJC and is a controlling shareholder of one of Israel’s largest banks, Israel Discount Bank, and other Israeli enterprises. Son Adam directs a family foundation and lives off family wealth. Daughter Holly—interestingly—shares the same high-powered Texas lawyer as media icon and blowhard Alex Jones.

Bronfman bankrolled Mort Zuckerman, now a billionaire, who in turn bankrolled Dan Snyder, now billionaire owner of the Washington Redskins football team. They, too, are Bronfman heirs in their own respect.

Bronfman’s War on the U.S. Military A longtime Bronfman henchman at Seagrams, Stephen Herbits, was recruited by then-Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld to make “heads roll” in the military, screening Pentagon promotions and appointments, enforcing Zionist control of the U.S. war machine. This move on the military came in 2006 when top retired American military leaders publicly slammed the Bush administration for waging the war against Iraq, making it clear they spoke for many colleagues still in the Pentagon who opposed the war from the start. Herbits urged the media to investigate military leaders who dared to take on the administration. Saying it would be “a service to this country when the media digs a bit below these attacks to examine the generals,” Herbits was sending a warning: Military leaders who stood up against civilian warmongers promoting the interests of Israel were subject to investigation by spy agencies such as the Anti-Defamation League, which could come up with “data” on the dissidents to destroy them. After doing his dirty work, Herbits returned to the Bronfman fold, serving as secretary-general of the WJC and thus Bronfman’s subservient minion

Murder Discussed at High-Level Bronfman Meeting The New York magazine article mentioned above noted Edgar Bronfman “belongs to one of the world’s most exclusive clubs, an impossibly elite gathering known as the ‘Mega Group.’ It consists of about a dozen inconceivably rich Jews who get together several times a year, often in either Bronfman’s or [CBS owner] Larry Tisch’s apartment” In 1990, an unexpected source advised Andrew St. George—chief correspondent for The Spotlight (forerunner of AMERICAN FREE PRESS)—there had been a high-level meeting at Bronfman’s N.Y. apartment attended by top financial patrons and leaders of the Zionist movement. (This was the “Mega Group,” although its name was not then known.) Devoted to combating the purported “rise of anti-Semitism,” the meeting’s participants included financier Felix G. Rohatyn and Jacques Torczyner, president of the Zionist Organization of America. Andrew’s source told him Torczyner said, in words to these effect: “It’s time that we put a stop to Willis Carto and his newspaper, The Spotlight.” Torczyner said specifically that Carto and his associates should be “hunted and shot like quail.” Torczyner’s candor disturbed at least some of his fellow power brokers who responded, “We can’t use the tactics of our enemies.” In fact, it was the aforementioned Rohatyn who told St. George about the meeting. A longtime newsman, St. George knew many people, Rohatyn among them. St. George took the story to Carto and Mark Lane, The Spotlight’s anti-Zionist Jewish attorney, who wrote a letter to Torczyner warning him against making further threats. Still, a continuing campaign to destroy The Spotlight culminated with the populist weekly driven out of business in 2001. But AFP picked up The Spotlight’s fallen torch. Carto had reason to be concerned: Bronfman fingerprints were all over the JFK assassination conspiracy. For the tip of that iceberg, read “Rothschild-Israeli Ties to JFK” in the December 9 & 16, 2013 issue of AFP.

Bronfman’s Empire Bronfman holdings have been immense, including such famed companies as Campbell Soup, Schlitz Brewing, Colgate-Palmolive, Kellogg, Nabisco, Norton Simon, Quaker Oats, Paramount Pictures, Kodiak boots and Hush Puppies shoes. The Bronfmans held an interest in the Ernest W. Hahn Co. (which operated 27 shopping centers in California and had plans for another 29); and the Trizec Corp., one of North America’s biggest property development companies. They controlled the Shannon Mall in Atlanta and the Galleria in Westchester, N.Y. and a shopping center in Hickory, N.C. Bronfman controlled industrial parks in and near Los Angeles, office towers in Denver and San Francisco, and housing developments in Nevada, California and Florida, as well as Houston-based General Homes Consolidated, building houses in Mississippi and Alabama. And they owned vast tracts of land in Virginia outside Washington, D.C. And although the famous “Du Pont” name appeared on company products, the real power behind the scenes was Bronfman who—not content with owning 20% of the distinguished institution—took complete control in 1981, ultimately divesting his holdings.

Bronfman’s Stranglehold on the Media It was inevitable Bronfman’s Seagram Co. would purchase a controlling interest in Time-Warner in 1993. Mob-connected Bronfman associates had already moved on this media empire, going back to a 1967 merger between Warner Brothers Studios and Seven Arts Productions, run by a frontman for Bronfman partner Meyer Lansky. The new operation—soon merged with Time publishing—became Time-Warner. A sampling of holdings in the Time Warner octopus over the years: • Time-Life Video; HBO Video; Warner Home Video; • Cable franchises reaching 11.7 million subscribers; • Turner Broadcasting, including all the CNN holdings; • Magazines: Time, People, Sports Illustrated, Life, Fortune, Money, Vibe, In Style, Parenting, Martha Stewart Living, Sunset, Health, Entertainment Weekly, Cooking Light, Southern Living, DC Comics, and American Lawyer; and, • Book Publishing: Little, Brown & Co., Time-Life Books, Warner Books, Book-of-the-Month Club. Edgar Bronfman Jr. operated Seagram as his personal plaything after Seagram bought Hollywood giant, MCA, bringing MCA subsidiaries—Universal Studios and Universal Music—and TV channels in Europe and Latin America into Bronfman hands. Last but far from least: With the Rothschilds, the Oppenheimers of South Africa and the late Armand Hammer, Bronfman money bankrolled the move into the U.S. by Australian media tycoon Rupert Murdoch, now a major influence over the American “conservative” movement. –

Bronfman’s Connections to John McCain The Bronfmans were the “godfathers” behind the career of Arizona Senator John McCain (R), Israel’s most outspoken advocate in Congress. McCain’s $150M fortune comes from his marriage to Cindy Hensley, who inherited one of the nation’s largest beer distribution companies from her father, Jim Hensley. Hensley made his money as a henchman of Kemper Marley who, for 40 years, was political boss of Arizona and the Lansky syndicate’s front man in The Grand Canyon State. The Bronfmans set Marley up in business and after Hensley took the rap for Marley in a criminal case, Hensley's reward was the beer business now in McCain family hands. - See more at: <http://americanfreepress.net/?p=14550#sthash.m7nDrc11.dpuf>

There were two major periods of organized Jewish criminal activity in America. At the end of the 19th century, Jews in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston, and Detroit controlled more than 90% of all prostitution in the United States. This period of crime, however, left few names that we can remember. It was the period between the World Wars---the eras of Prohibition and the Great Depression---that saw the rise of the American Jewish gangster as a force. In 1919 the United States government attempted to regulate morality by outlawing the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages. Prohibition offered an enormous opportunity for the mobster to provide what society still wanted, namely booze.

Another contributing factor to the rise of gangsterism was the morality of the age. At all levels of society this was a time when "anything goes," when an honest man was considered a "sucker," and when flaunting the rules was the norm. It has been said that If one were to compute the number of Americans who violated the Eighteenth Amendment whether as producers, conveyers, or peddlers of intoxicants or as "protectors" of the trade, or as consumers, the total would probably be an overwhelming majority of the population. It was in this milieu that the Jewish gangster rose to prominence. Contrary to modern Jewish criminals who are involved mostly in white-collar crime such as fraud, insider-trading, or embezzlement, these men engaged in extortion, gambling, narcotics peddling, boot-legging, and murder. For a time they dominated the rackets in Boston, Cleveland, Detroit, Newark, Philadelphia, and New York.

A composite portrait of the "typical" Jewish gangster of this period would show him to be a second generation American male of Eastern European parentage, city bred, and in his early twenties. His parents would be working class and traditional, rather than Orthodox, Jews; that is, they would observe a number of the Jewish traditions and holidays but would not comply with all the religious injunctions that an Orthodox Jew is required to perform. This typical Jewish gangster would not have finished high school and would remain strongly attached to his family throughout his life. Generally speaking, he was the only person in his immediate family to turn to a life of crime, his brothers and sisters following more respectable routes to economic advancement and social mobility. Moreover, the most famous group of Jewish gangsters did not do so out of necessity; unlike the Jewish criminals of the late 19th century, they did not grow up or live in abject poverty. The typical Jewish gangster of the 20's and 30's chose crime because it was the quickest way for him to achieve material success, power, recognition, and status. It was a means to become "a somebody" and move up and out of the middle-class "ghetto." Legitimate work was hard, dull, and offered only slow economic and social mobility. Crime was exciting and provided a challenge for men of ability, aggressiveness, and daring. The ever-present element of danger-- -being caught by the police or killed by rivals--- added to the excitement. Jewish gangsters saw what they were doing in the same way that many of their non-Jewish colleagues saw themselves: They were providing a service. People wanted liquor, narcotics, gambling, and women; the gangster furnished them. Physical violence was accepted as a tool of the trade; It was a way to eliminate competition and protect one's interest. The American Jewish community at large entertained ambivalent feelings about the Jewish gangster.

The Jewish leaders were, of course, repelled by him because he epitomized the "bad Jew," the evil man who provided ammunition for the anti-Semite. They feared that publicized criminal activity by Jews would bring onus and hatred upon the entire community. In the 1920's and 1930's these were not idle concerns; the American atmosphere was charged with the anti-Semitic fulminations and activities of Henry Ford, the Ku Klux Klan, Gerald L. K. Smith, Father Charles Coughlin, and the German-American Bund. In addition, Jewish parents were in a perpetual state of anxiety lest their children be attracted to the lifestyle of the gangster and emulate him. Nevertheless, many people in the community harbored a grudging admiration for the Jewish mobster because he competed physically with the non-Jew and gave as good as he got. The Jewish gangster had "made it" in America by beating the violent and physical Gentile at his own game. At a time when Jews in Europe were at the mercy of hostile governments and under constant threat of violence and pogroms, the gangster provided American Jews with secret vicarious satisfaction and pride. A number of Jewish gangsters acquired respect because they assumed the role of protector and defender of their people. In Chicago the funeral of the Jewish gangster Samuel "Nails" Morton was attended by five thousand Jews who felt they owed him their thanks for protecting their neighborhood from Jew-baiters. Jewish mobsters in Detroit protected Jewish peddlers and grocery store owners from having to pay protection money to Polish and Italian hoodlums. And in the 1930's New York Jewish thugs broke up German-American Bund rallies in New York and New Jersey. Despite their aversion to the gangster, even Jewish leaders were not above using his services on behalf of the community.

Arnold Rothstein was asked to help end the New York garment district strike of 1926, and Jewish gangsters were asked to help secure arms during Israel's War of Independence. In spite of their own success in crime, most Jewish gangsters kept their families separate and unimplicated in their criminal enterprises.

West Coast mobster Mickey Cohen summarized this attitude when he said, "We had a code of ethics like the ones among bankers, other people in other walks of life, that one never involved his wife or family in his work. " These men wanted their children to marry well and achieve respectability and acceptance in the legitimate world. Thus, they sent their children to the best schools and encouraged them to enter the professions such as law and medicine. In this, they were very much like other Jewish parents of their generation.

The following are some of the more prominent Jewish figures in organized crime before World War II: MOSES L. "MOE" ANNENBERG (1878-1942) was born in East Prussia and came to the United States in 1884. He was the circulation manager of all the Hearst newspapers and magazines in America when, in the 1920's, he conceived the idea of establishing a telegraphic news service for bookie joints that would carry fast and accurate information from race tracks across the country. According to the Internal Revenue Service, which collected evidence of his income tax evasion, Annenberg operated a racket that was a monopoly of the telegraph service from almost all the race tracks in the United States, Canada, Mexico, and Cuba. His wire service was the American Telephone and Telegraph Company's fifth largest customer. So extensive was this operation that one insider equated it with the British Empire. During the Depression Annenberg's income from his racetrack wire service was conservatively estimated to be six million dollars a year. In 1939, while under investigation by the Justice Department, Annenberg divested himself of all his interest in the racing wire service. He did not attempt to sell it to anyone or to realize any salvage from it ' he simply walked out. Nevertheless, he was convicted of income tax evasion, fined eight million dollars. and sentenced to three years in prison. Shortly after his release. he died.

LOUIS LEPKE BUCHALTER (1897-1944) was nicknamed "Lepke" (little Louis) by his mother. J. Edgar Hoover called him "the most dangerous criminal in the United States." Born on the Lower East Side of New York, where his family lived in a crowded flat over a small hardware store owned by his father, Louis was the only one of eleven children to embark on a life of crime. One brother became a rabbi, another a dentist, and a third a pharmacist. Little Louis got better-than-average marks in school and seems to have behaved himself, but he quit school at the age of fifteen after completing the eighth grade and went to work as a delivery boy. By the time Lepke was eighteen his family, except Louis, had moved out West. He turned down an older brother's offer to put him through high school and college and, instead, moved into a furnished room on the East Side. It was in this brawling neighborhood, that Buchalter embarked on his criminal career. He joined a group of local hoods, who rolled drunks, picked pockets, and robbed from pushcarts.

His close associate at this time and for the next thirty years, was Jacob "Gurrah" Shapiro, a surly, coarse young man. Just after his twenty-first birthday, Lepke was sent to jail for stealing a salesman's sample case. Paroled in 1917, he was back in prison the next year on a larceny charge and was sent up again for two years in 1920. Upon his release he turned his talent to labor racketeering. Lepke commanded an army of gangsters who extorted millions of dollars from his victims. Their weapons were destructive acids, bludgeons, blackjacks, knives, fire, icepicks, and guns. For a fee Lepke protected manufacturers from strikers and unionization of their shops by intimidating workers and using strong-arm tactics. He also forced unions to do his bidding by installing his own business agents or by creating rival unions. Lepke explained that the trick was a captive union and a captive trade association. "That way you got both management and labor in your pocket." Lucky Luciano once commented that "with the rest of us it was booze, gambling, whores, like that. But Lepke took the bread out of the workers' mouths." Lepke's system worked and he became a legend. The few men who failed to heed the gang's orders or who dared to go to the police with their stories suffered "destruction, acid throwing, mayhem and murder." In the same way that he gained control over the unions through terror, Buchalter moved into legitimate business. Those who tried to fight him found their plants wrecked or their stocks ruined by a special Lepke task force, expert in the art of acid throwing. When a manufacturer surrendered, Lepke would place his men in the factory as managers, foremen, and bookkeepers. In his private life Lepke was a devoted family man who rarely drank or gambled, and he never raised his voice. By 1932 Buchalter dominated a wide assortment of industries in New York, including the bakery and pastry drivers, the milliners, the garment workers, the shoe trade, the poultry market, the taxicab business, the motion picture operators, and the fur truckers. At the pinnacle of his power Buchalter was the feudal lord of New York's underworld. His reputation through gangland was that he never lost his temper but his own men feared him. They called him "The Judge," sometimes "Judge Louie." One associate, Sholem Bernstein, summed it up for all when he said, "I don't ask questions, I just obey. It would be more healthier."

In 1934 Buchalter helped to organize the Syndicate. Its creation converted the scattered, unconnected mobs in New York, Chicago, Kansas City, and other cities into a smooth-working, tightly-bound business. On the early board of directors of this confederation of crime bosses were Lepke, Johnny Torrio, Frank Costello, Lucky Luciano, Joe Adonis, "Bugsy" Siegel, and Abner Zwillman. They decided that this would be a loose working confederation, with each boss having his own territory and with the regional chiefs sifting together on a board of directors. The board would dictate policy and handle all negotiations on the inter-mob level. It was Lepke who campaigned for a special enforcement group to keep the peace and insure that the Syndicate's decisions were carried out. Sometimes referred to as Murder Inc, this crack corps of killers was made up primarily of Jews from Brownsville, East New York, and Ocean Hill. They became the "official" execution squad for the Syndicate.

When Dutch Schultz boasted that he would do things his way, he was killed. And it was Charley "The Bug" Workman and Mendy Weiss, two Murder Incorporated killers, who did the job on orders from Lepke. In 1941 Lepke was indicted for the killing of Joseph Rosen, a garment trucker whom Lepke had driven out of business. Buchalter was the only top underworld figure of his generation to be tried, convicted, and executed for murder. He did at Sing Sing Prison on March 4, 1944.

JACOB "GREASY THUMB" GUZIK (1887-1956) was an exception to the generalization that Jewish gangsters were the only ones in their families to pursue a life of crime. Jake and his brothers all began their working careers in the rackets. Jake, however, rose to become the most famous of the Guzik brothers through his association with Al Capone. Jake became the Capone organization's treasurer and acquired the nickname "Greasy Thumb" from the green stain earned from counting Capone's money. Later in life Guzik brought numerous lawsuits against newspapers for portraying him as a gangster. He brushed aside queries as to the wisdom of this by saying, "I'm paying these judges, so why shouldn't I use them." At his death he received an Orthodox Jewish funeral and was eulogized as a man "who never lost faith in his God. Hundreds benefitted by his kindness and generosity. His charities were performed quietly.

"ARTHUR "DUTCH SCHULTZ" FLEGENHEIMER (1901-1935) converted to Catholicism on his death bed. However, he grew up as a Jew. His mother was a pious, patient woman whose great grief was that the son she adored turned out as he did. Arthur's playmates nicknamed him "Dutch Schultz" after an early twentieth century hoodlum. Starting out as a bootlegger, Flegenheimer moved into slot machines, the Harlem numbers racket, and the restaurant protection racket. By 1932 he was clearing two million dollars a year just from the restaurant racket. Dutch was killed in the men's room of a Newark chophouse by Charlie "The Bug" Workman and Mendy Weiss when he defied a New York syndicate decision not to kill Thomas E. Dewey, then investigating organized crime in Manhattan.

MEYER LANSKY (SUCHOWJANSKY) (1902-1983) was frequently mentioned by law enforcement officials as being one of the kingpins of organized crime in the United States. Since the 1920's he was linked with names like Bugsy Siegel, Longie Zwillman, Lucky Luciano, Johnny Torrio, and Frank Costello. His alleged gambling empire was at one time said to encompass Florida, the Caribbean Islands, and Las Vegas. Although he had been indicted numerous times, Lansky was only convicted once in 1953 on a gambling charge, and he served three months in jail. In 1971 Lansky applied for Israeli citizenship. His application was rejected on the grounds that "he was a person with a criminal past, likely to endanger the public welfare." Lansky had long been associated with Jewish causes and despite this rebuff, he remained a strong supporter of Israel and of Jewish philanthropies.

ABE "KID TWIST" RELES (1907-1941) was a New York-born hoodlum and killer about whom it was said, "he committed just about every act of violence against which there is a law." Reles was one of Murder Incorporated's top gunmen, and it was his turning state's evidence in 1940 that provided lawmen with their first inside look at the New York crime syndicate. His testimony assisted in the conviction and execution of seven major crime figures; Lepke Buchalter was one of them. Reles died in 1941 when, while under police guard, he fell or was thrown from the Half Moon Hotel in Coney Island.

ARNOLD "THE BRAIN" ROTHSTEIN (1882-1928) was the pioneer big businessman of crime in the United States. Rothstein was born in New York City, the son of a respected, middle-class Jewish merchant. The elder Rothstein was versed in religious and Hebrew classical literature, was something of a philanthropist, and was chairman of the board of New York's Beth Israel Hospital. Arnold never achieved the kind of respectability his family hoped he would, but he did exceed their expectations in another area: By the time he died he had amassed a fortune estimated to be in the millions of dollars. Rothstein understood the logic of coordination and the potential of organized crime. He most-remembered as the man allegedly responsible for the "Black Sox" scandal, the attempt to fix the 1919 baseball World Series between the Chicago White Sox and the Cincinnati Reds. However, that was really small potatoes for him. It was Rothstein who, during the 1920's, put together the largest gambling empire in the United States and controlled most of the gangs in New York, as well as that city's traffic in bootlegging, narcotics, and gambling. Rothstein attempted to bring order to the extreme competition prevailing in the bootlegging business. He supplied money, manpower, and protection; and if things went wrong, he was ready to provide bail and attorneys. Rothstein moved freely in all circles, from politicians and statesmen to bankers and bums. On his payroll at one time or another were gangsters such as Waxey Gordon, Jack "Legs" Diamond, Lepke Buchalter, Albert Anastasia, and Frank Costello (who later rose to become a "boss" of the mob and the star attraction of the Kefauver Crime Committee Hearings), as well as a goodly number of public officials. So successful was Rothstein in organizing criminal enterprises and staying out of jail, that Damon Runyon dubbed him "The Brain." And his fame was such that he was immortalized during his lifetime by F. Scott Fitzgerald in The Great Gatsby as Meyer Wolfsheim. Despite this notoriety, Jewish community leaders in New York asked for (and received) his help in settling a strike in the garment district in 1926. Rothstein's life of crime, for which he never spent a day in jail, ended when he was shot to death in New York's Park Central Hotel. True to his underworld creed, he refused to divulge the name of his assailant before he died. The final irony was that Arnold received an Orthodox Jewish funeral.

BENJAMIN "BUGSY" SIEGEL (1905-1947) was the archetypal movie mobster: handsome, hotheaded, ambitious, and ruthless. A petty thief and muscleman who rose to become a crime lord, he played an important role in New York City's underworld activities during the 1920's and 1930's. He became a member of the East Coast crime syndicate's board of directors at the age of twenty-eight. Siegel established the beachhead of organized crime in California and opened Las Vegas for the mob. He recognized the tremendous opportunities for profit from legalized casino gambling in Nevada and with syndicate help built the Flamingo Hotel. After it was built, however, he tried to keep most of the profits for himself. This defiance of the Syndicate was to cost him his life. On a June evening in 1947 someone pointed a rifle at Siegel's face as he sat in the apartment of his girl friend, Virginia Hill, and pumped three bullets into his head. Siegel thus had the distinction of being the first member of the Syndicate's board of directors to be executed by his own.

ABNER "LONGIE" ZWILLMAN (1904- 1959) was called the "Al Capone of New Jersey." He was one of the biggest bootleggers of the Prohibition era. By the 1930's he was the acknowledged leader of the New Jersey underworld and an associate of Dutch Schultz, Lepke Buchalter, Lucky Luciano, and Frank Costello. In 1934 Zwillman played an important role in the formation of the East Coast crime syndicate, and he sat on its board of directors. Following the murder of Dutch Schultz in 1935, Zwillman was designated as "Public Enemy Number One of New Jersey." Despite his reputed criminal activities, Zwillman and his wife were respected by their neighbors and the Jewish community of Newark for their charitable work. Over a thousand people attended his funeral with the service being conducted by Dr. Joachim Prinz, rabbi of Temple B'nai Abraham of Newark and president of the American Jewish Congress.

DETROIT'S PURPLE GANG was a local Jewish gang. The "Purple Gang," which operated during the 1920's and 1930's, had its beginnings in the Jewish section of Detroit's East Side. Originally formed around Samuel "Sammie Purple" Cohen, the leadership of this group of petty criminals was initially assumed by the three Bernstein brothers--Abe, Isadore, and Ray---who had emigrated to Detroit from New York. Beginning with shoplifting and extortion, the gang moved up into the distilling and brewing business. At the same time, another gang was also emerging on the East Side, known as the "Oakland Sugar House Gang." Several of this gang's members had gone to the same school and had begun associating together as adolescents. After school they would engage in petty crimes that often included stealing fruit, candy, and other small items from Jewish merchants. Later they graduated to rolling drunks and shaking down Jewish shopkeepers for money. Eventually the boys went into business for themselves, manufacturing alcohol for bootleg liquor out of their base of operation, the Oakland Sugar House located on Oakland St. The original members of this gang were Harry Fleisher. Henry Shore. Eddie Fletcher, Irving Milberg. Harry Altman, Harry Keywell, and Morris and Phil Raider. In time, instead of competing, the two groups joined forces as "The Purple Gang" under the leadership of Abe Bernstein. They branched out into the business of importing liquor across the Detroit River from Canada. The Purple Gang was loosely organized, and instead of concentrating on a single racket, the individual members of the gang were generally for hire, going wherever the price was highest. As a result, they were often overextended. They were also careless in selecting jobs, slipshod in carrying out the work, and indiscreet in whom they double-crossed. This negligence in the end contributed to their disappearance. For several years, however, the Purples managed the prosperous business of supplying Canadian whisky---Old Log Cabin---to the Capone organization in Chicago. Despite its relatively high price, this brand could be sold easily because of its well-known quality. It was the hijacking of a shipment of Purple Gang Old Log Cabin whisky by the Bugs Moran gang of Chicago that led to the St. Valentine's Day Massacre of seven Moran gangsters in 1929. Although their major source of income was bootlegging whisky, the Purples branched out into other fields in order to earn additional money. They hijacked prizefight films and forced movie theaters to show them for a high fee; they defrauded insurance companies by staging fake accidents; they kidnaped people; and they accepted contracts for killing the enemies of various hoods who did not want to do the job themselves. Because they were flamboyant and well-known in the city's night spots, and because many of them liked to dress well, be seen in public, and live in fine houses; a romantic aura surrounded the Purples that distinguished them from other gangs in Detroit. The gang was destroyed from two directions: The police moved against them when gang members left behind too much evidence of their crimes, and a rival Sicilian gang, tired of competing with the Purples, decided to eliminate them. One by one, the Purples were murdered until most of them were either dead or afraid to remain in the Detroit area. So stealthy was the Sicilian move that neither the Purples nor the public realized what was going on. In July 1929 four members of the Purple Gang---Eddie Fletcher, Harry Sutton, Abe Axler, and Irving Milberg---were sentenced to twenty-two months in Leavenworth Penitentiary for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws. In 1930 Morris Raider was sentenced to twelve-to-fifteen years in Jackson State Prison for shooting a boy he suspected of spying on members of the gang who were cutting whisky. And in 1931 Ray Bernstein, Irving Milberg, and Harry Keywell were found guilty of first degree murder and sentenced to life imprisonment for the ambush-slaying of three members of a rival gang. Remaining leaders of the Purple Gang were systematically and mysteriously executed. In July 1929 Irving Shapiro was taken for a ride and slain. In November 1933 the bodies of Abe Axler and Eddie Fletcher were found in a car on an isolated country road. Each man had been shot numerous times in the face from close range. The murder of Harry Millman in November 1937 signaled the end of the Purple Gang in organized crime in Detroit

- http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Joseph_Stacher

In 1931, Stacher helped Meyer Lansky organize a conference of Jewish organized crime leaders at the Franconia Hotel, which later would see the alleged merging of the Jewish and Italian Mafia into a national crime syndicate. Running West Coast and Caribbean gambling operations for Lansky during the 1930s, as well as becoming a silent partner of movie studio Columbia Pictures in the late 1930s, Stacher would later supervise gambling in Las Vegas, Nevada, particularly the Sands and Fremont Casinos.

By IRVING LIEBERMAN and STAN OPOWSON

Bigshot gambler Meyer Lansky admits that he was in New York at the time a gangland council allegedly ordered the execution of Albert Anastasia, police said today.

But beyond that Lansky will say nothing.

So after more than three hours of questioning, Lansky was booked as a vagrant—early today—even though he had $1,085 stuffed in his pocket at the time.

Police believe that Anastasia was murdered because he was attempting to muscle in on the flourishing Havana casinos. Lansky is the kingpin of the Cuban gambling industry, reportedly by appointment by dictator Fulgencio Batista.

The police believe that Anastasia's murder was ordered and planned in a W. 49th St. hotel just a few days before the execution. The star was gunned to death in the Park Sheraton's barber shop, Oct. 25.

Lansky admitted being in town at the time of the meeting, but denied that he attended it. He admitted being in the U. S. the day Anastasia was killed.

Waiting for Lansky

Lansky flew into New York last night on a mysterious visit, and the cops were waiting. They had been tipped off that he was flying here from Miami, and so detectives were ready at Idlewild Airport and also at hotels Lansky frequents.

The airport detectives spotted him immediately. They gave him a little rope. Instead of picking him up right away, they trailed him for three hours.

Finally they picked him up at Broadway and 53d St. at 10:30 p.m. and took him to the W. 54th St. station, headquarters for the investigation of Anastasia's murder.

Questioned 3 Hours

The high police brass was called in, and Inspector Frederick Luson directed the questioning for three hours. It was not very fruitful. At the end, Luson told reporters:

"He gave us no information. He doesn't even give an occupation. He says that he is a former machinist, but that dates back to his childhood days. He does admit to being a gambler. That is not a legal occupation in this state, so he is being booked for vagrancy."

"In relation to the Anastasia shooting, he did say that he was in the country, in Florida, the day Anastasia was killed—and that he was in New York City a few days prior to the killing."

It was that "few days prior to the killing" that interested the police; those were the days when Anastasia was doomed. But Lan-sky would not expand on the subject.

Police were amazed that Lansky would dare come to New York in view of the investigations of the Anastasia killing.

Lansky appeared to be wearing what he would consider a disguise when he was picked up last night. There was one of the flashy jewelry and elegantly tailored togs normally sported by the hoods.

Instead, he wore a cheap-looking grey suit, a battered hat and a plain white shirt. He was cheerful about the inconvenience, and seemed even amused at photographers' flashbulbs popped as he was booked at 1:55 a.m.

He kept a cigaret riveted to his lips and his hands plunged into his pockets. He talked in a low, calm voice. When the desk lieutenant droned out, "Occupation?" Lansky was ready with a drone of his own:

"Business."

Reported Batista's Boy

Lansky gives every indication of being a varietable czar of Cuban gambling operations. The Havana story is that he was picked by Batista to run the casinos, and that Batista and Lansky are partners in the operation.

Lansky quietly glides through the gambling room of the recently opened Hotel Riviera each night, and even received a nationwide TV plug when Steve Allen originated his NBC show from the hotel last month.

Lansky's brother is strategically placed as pit boss in the casino of the rival Hotel Nacional de Cuba.

Havana gambling, new and enticing, is considered the hottest property of the underworld right now. It is just one hour from Miami (planes every hour) and just seven hours from New York.

Anastasia wanted to cut himself into this lush field, police think, and ignored warnings that he was moving out of his assigned territory. District Attorney Hagan has sought to question gamblers Santo Trafficante and Joseph Silesi, both members of the Lansky organization in Cuba, but they will have no part of it.

and the Appalachian gang-vention.

Lansky said he was her "medical treatment," but refused to reveal the ailment.

One high police official today that only "urgent" business could lure Lansky to New York, own life.

This authoritative police official said that Las Vegas gambling interests have been denying a cut of the Havana Nevada's take has been hit recession, and The Mob bl this partially on the fact that Eastern trade now passes up Vegas for Havana.

Once Costello Partner

Lansky, once a partner of F Costello in Las Vegas and Orleans operations, probably to confer with his old boss, police official said.

Lansky has been in the hierarchy for decades. He was scribed by former Mayor Wil O'Dwyer as one of the six members of the Murder, Inc., board directors, serving with such notorious compatriots as Bugs Siegel, Jacob Shapiro, I Lepke, Lucky Luciano, and Adonis.

Lansky is the only survivor. The others are either dead or deported.

Yet despite this long his in crime's higher circles, Lansky has served only one jail term—a three-month stretch in Saratoga County Jail in 1953 for gambling operations at Sara Springs. He spent his cell reading the Bible and a dictionary.

10 Other Arrests

He has 10 other arrests for homicide, but none are stuck.

He was about to testify against Lepke Buchalter and took a dive out of high story window under guard by the NYC police. In 1941, while Abe Reles and three other key informants were under round-the-clock NYPD protection, the ruthless and powerful thug took a deadly plunge from the window of a Coney Island hotel. The first criminal of his stature to break the underworld's code of silence, he had begun "singing" for the courts—giving devastating testimony that implicated former cronies—with more to come. Note1: Prior to the US entering WWII, the US Navy was supplying Britain with war materials. The primary port for this effort was the New York Harbor. The US Navy was losing 80 ships per month to the German U-Boats during this phase. It was apparent to the office of Naval Intelligence that dealing with the issues of the Mafia control of the New York Harbor was key to the success of the North Atlantic war effort. It was clear to them the U-Boats were obtaining information on the shipping activities at New York Harbor via informants within the New York Docks. Subsequently just after Pearl Harbor, the SS Normandie was sunk. The official story was due to a fire caused by a Welder. However, at the time the NY docks were controlled by the Mafia. Luciano was quoted as stating that Albert Anastasia was responsible for the sinking of the Normandie. Via Luciano's lawyer Moses Pollack, Navy Intelligence met with Luciano to ask for his cooperation in the WWII effort. Afterwards the issues with the New York Docks for the duration of WWII were resolved.

The impacts of Operation Underworld are apparent even in the present time. One was is the Mafia working with the Navy and Department of Defense in winning government contracts. Eg. The Brooklyn Navy Yard government contracting awards to Mafia vendors was apparent. When the Navy Yard shutdown and moved a major portion of the operations to Warminster Pennsylvania as Navy Air Development Center (NADC). It was apparent the Mafia moved down with them for decades winning many of the Navy Defense Contracts for Decades (up thru base closing in 2000). Here the Jewish Mafia Segment moved into Bucks County PA and eventually corrupted the local county then the State and National Government via the Political power of www.bucksgop.org.

Another important aspect of this corruption was in the Navy contracts to General Dynamics in areas such as Groton CT with the Navy's General Dynamics Electric Boat contracts that have in the past shown extensive fraud, waste and abuse of Government Defense Contracts in this area. The legacy here is that General Dynamics ownership is via the Crown Family segment of organized crime within the Chicago Syndicate. Presently Les Crown is now a major power broker behind President Obama.

...In the first three months after the Attack on Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941, the U.S. lost 120 merchant ships to German U-boats and surface raiders in the Battle of the North Atlantic and in February 1942 the cruise ship SS Normandie – a captured French ship that was being refitted as a troop ship in New York harbor – was allegedly sabotaged and sunk by arson in the Port of New York. The Mafia boss Albert Anastasia claimed responsibility for the sabotage.[1] After the war, Axis records showed no sabotage operation had existed and no evidence has ever been produced on the Allied side to indicate there had been underworld sabotage. The loss of the Normandie was almost certainly an accident.[2]

Nevertheless, fears about possible sabotage or disruption of the waterfront led Commander Charles R. Haffenden of the U.S. Navy Office of Naval Intelligence (ONI) Third Naval District in New York set up a special security unit and sought the help of Joseph Lanza, who ran the Fulton Fish Market, to get intelligence about the New York waterfront, control the labor unions and identify possible refuelling and resupply operations for German submarines with the help fishing industry along the Atlantic Coast. To cover Lanza's activities, he suggested to approach Charles Luciano who was an important boss of the five New York Mafia crime families.

Luciano agreed to cooperate with authorities in hopes of consideration for early release from prison.[3] Murder Inc. was involved with Sinking Normandie in WWII in NYC via Albert Anastasia see

8.2 Battle of Sicily Restoration of the Mafia in WWII – Operation Underworld, Husky

... Luciano received a 30- to 50-year sentence. During World War II, Anastasia reportedly originated the plan to win a pardon for Luciano by helping the war effort. With America needing allies in Sicily to advance the invasion of Italy, and the desire of the Navy to dedicate its resources to the war, Anastasia orchestrated a deal to obtain lighter treatment for Luciano while he was in prison, and after the war, a parole in exchange for the Mafia protecting the waterfront and Luciano's assistance with his associates in Sicily.

- <http://www.drugtext.org/library/books/McCoy/book/08.htm>

The Mafia Restored: Fighters for Democracy in World War II World War II gave the Mafia a new lease on life. In the United States, the Office of Naval Intelligence (ONI) became increasingly concerned over a series of sabotage incidents on the New York waterfront, which culminated with the burning of the French liner Normandie on the eve of its christening as an Allied troop ship.

Powerless to infiltrate the waterfront itself, the ONI very practically decided to fight fire with fire, and contacted Joseph Lanza, Mafia boss of the East Side docks, who agreed to organize effective antisabotage surveillance throughout his waterfront territory. When ONI decided to expand "Operation Underworld" to the West Side docks in 1943 they discovered they would have to deal with the man who controlled them: Lucky Luciano, unhappily languishing in the harsh Dannemora prison. After he promised full cooperation to naval intelligence officers, Luciano was rewarded by being transferred to a less austere state penitentiary near Albany, where he was regularly visited by military officers and underworld leaders such as Meyer Lansky (who had emerged as Luciano's chief assistant). (14)

While ONI enabled Luciano to resume active leadership of American organized crime, the Allied invasion of Italy returned the Sicilian Mafia to power. On the night of July 9, 1943, 160,000 Allied troops landed on the extreme southwestern shore of Sicily.(15) After securing a beachhead, Gen. George Patton's U.S. Seventh Army launched an offensive into the island's western hills, Italy's Mafialand, and headed for the city of Palermo. (16) Although there were over sixty thousand Italian troops and a hundred miles of boobytrapped roads between Patton and Palermo, his troops covered the distance in a remarkable four days.(17)

The Defense Department has never offered any explanation for the remarkable lack of resistance in Patton's race through western Sicily and pointedly refused to provide any information to Sen. Estes Kefauver's Organized Crime Subcommittee in 1951.

Locked in prison, reading daily newspaper reports of Allied victories, Charlie Luciano got impatient. He wanted to be part of the action. If the U.S. government were grateful to him for his help against enemy agents at home, then they'd be knocked out if he got his hands really dirty and stepped forward for active duty. According to Meyer Lansky, he had it all worked out. He would volunteer to act as a scout or liaison officer for frontline troops. He'd put his neck on the line by being parachuted into action—behind enemy lines—and use his considerable influence to win the war for America. Lansky laughed, picturing him landing on top of a church spire. But Luciano couldn't see the funny side—he was deadly serious...

8.4 Legacy of Operation Underworld Herland Report

In the TV Series the Secrets of World War II series they presented the details of the cooperation of the US Navy with the Mafia. This occurred shortly after Pearl Harbor when the German U-Boats had already sunk 120 US ships of the coast of the US within a few months. During this time, The Mafia sunk the Normandie in New York Harbor. The Navy representatives met with Lucky to ask for his cooperation to win the WWII war effort. At the time Gangster Joe Soxs Lanza controlled the NY Harbor. Lanza said to the Navy they would need to ask Luciano to manage the NY Harbors. Meyer Lansky's lawyer Moses Polakoff, Lansky and Navy representative Lt. Cmdr Haffenden met with Luciano to cooperation with the Navy to stop any sabotage on the American East Coast Docks and Harbors. The Navy won the trust of Luciano via Meyer Lansky and his lawyer Polakoff. In the investigation of the sinking of the Normandie, William B. Herlands Commissioner of Investigation made the case for the US to work with the Mafia...Some time between May 15th to June 4th 1942. Navy Intelligence met with Luciano. In the 1943 invasion of Sicily (Operation Husky) Luciano asked Joe Addianos to work with the Allies. Armed with the intelligence provided Patton was able to win the battle for Sicily. Here Gen Patton worked with Alferia and Luciano associate who worked with Patton to take over the Western side of Sicily within two weeks. The US let the Mafia regain control of Sicily.

One of the greatest conspiracy theories of WWII is that American struck a deal with the Mafia to conquer Sicily. During 1920's in Italy, Mussolini successfully purged the Mafia in Sicily. In the TV series show. They indicated at the end of WWII Luciano was sent back to Italy. The United States restored control of the Mafia both in Sicily and Italy to prevent communism from expanding here. One of the paybacks was the Pizza Connection in which the Italian Mafia via an investigation of Rudolf Guliano and Michael Chertoff found out that Nino's Pizza was used to distribute Heroin in the US.

Note: One obvious fact not mentioned is these details was the Jewish Mafia Boss Meyer Lansky was in control of the interface between Luciano and the US Government. The result of this indicates the Jewish Mafia Segment was powerful enough to influence US policy to restore the Mafia to regain control of Italy and Sicily. The question is how much further does their power extend?. Lansky stated he “Financed the State of Israel”. This was also identified as the “Promised Land of Organized Crime”.

“[Very] soon, every American will be required to register their biological property in a National system designed to keep track of the people and that will operate under the ancient system of pledging. By such methodology, we can compel people to submit to our agenda, which will affect our security as a chargeback for our fiat paper currency. Every American will be forced to register or suffer not being able to work and earn a living. They will be our chattel, and we will hold the security interest over them forever, by operation of the law merchant under the scheme of secured transactions. Americans, by unknowingly or unwittingly delivering the bills of lading to us will be rendered bankrupt and insolvent, forever to remain economic slaves through taxation, secured by their pledges. They will be stripped of their rights and given a commercial value designed to make us a profit and they will be none the wiser, for not one man in a million could ever figure our plans and, if by accident one or two would figure it out, we have in our arsenal plausible deniability. After all, this is the only logical way to fund government, by floating liens and debt to the registrants in the form of benefits and privileges. This will inevitably reap to us huge profits beyond our wildest expectations and leave every American a contributor or to this fraud which we will call “Social Insurance.” Without realizing it, every American will insure us for any loss we may incur and in this manner; every American will unknowingly be our servant, however begrudgingly. The people will become helpless and without any hope for their redemption and, we will employ the high office of the President of our dummy corporation to foment this plot against America.”

Woodbury Soap Company. He broke with organized Jewry after the Judeo-Communist victory of 1945, and spent the remainder of his life and the great preponderance of his considerable fortune, at least 2.5 million dollars, exposing the Jewish tyranny which has enveloped the United States. Mr. Freedman knew what he was talking about because he had been an insider at the highest levels of Jewish organizations and Jewish machinations to gain power over our nation. Mr. Freedman was personally acquainted with Bernard Baruch, Samuel Untermyer, Woodrow Wilson, Franklin Roosevelt, Joseph Kennedy, John F. Kennedy, and many more movers and shakers of our times.

This speech was given before a patriotic audience in 1961 at the Willard Hotel, Washington, D.C., on behalf of Conde McGinley's patriotic newspaper of that time, Common Sense. Though in some minor ways this wide-ranging and extemporaneous speech has become dated, Mr. Freedman's essential message to us -- his warning to the West -- is more urgent than ever before.

Here in the United States, the Zionists and their co-religionists have complete control of our government. For many reasons, too many and too complex to go into here at this time, the Zionists and their co-religionists rule these United States as though they were the absolute monarchs of this country. Now you may say that is a very broad statement, but let me show you what happened while we were all asleep. What happened? World War I broke out in the summer of 1914. There are few people here my age who remember that. Now that war was waged on one side by Great Britain, France, and Russia; and on the other side by Germany, Austria-Hungary, and Turkey. Within two years Germany had won that war: not only won it nominally, but won it actually. The German submarines, which were a surprise to the world, had swept all the convoys from the Atlantic Ocean. Great Britain stood there without ammunition for her soldiers, with one week's food supply -- and after that, starvation. At that time, the French army had mutinied. They had lost 600,000 of the flower of French youth in the defense of Verdun on the Somme. The Russian army was defecting, they were picking up their toys and going home, they didn't want to play war anymore, they didn't like the Czar. And the Italian army had collapsed. Not a shot had been fired on German soil. Not one enemy soldier had crossed the border into Germany. And yet, Germany was offering England peace terms. They offered England a negotiated peace on what the lawyers call a status quo ante basis. That means: "Let's call the war off, and let everything be as it was before the war started." England, in the summer of 1916 was considering that -- seriously. They had no choice. It was either accepting this negotiated peace that Germany was magnanimously offering them, or going on with the war and being totally defeated. While that was going on, the Zionists in Germany, who represented the Zionists from Eastern Europe, went to the British War Cabinet and -- I am going to be brief because it's a long story, but I have all the documents to prove any statement that I make -- they said: "Look here. You can yet win this war. You don't have to give up. You don't have to accept the negotiated peace offered to you now by Germany. You can win this war if the United States will come in as your ally." The United States was not in the war at that time. We were fresh; we were young; we were rich; we were powerful. They told England: "We will guarantee to bring the United States into the war as your ally, to fight with you on your side, if you will promise us Palestine after you win the war." In other words, they made this deal: "We will get the United States into this war as your ally. The price you must pay is Palestine after you have won the war and defeated Germany, Austria-Hungary, and Turkey." Now England had as much right to promise Palestine to anybody, as the United States would have to promise Japan to Ireland for any reason whatsoever. It's absolutely absurd that Great Britain, that never had any connection or any interest or any right in what is known as Palestine should offer it as coin of the realm to pay the Zionists for bringing the United States into the war. However, they did make that promise, in October of 1916. And shortly after that -- I don't know how many here remember it -- the United States, which was almost totally pro-German, entered the war as Britain's ally. I say that the United States was almost totally pro-German because the newspapers here were controlled by Jews, the bankers were Jews, all the media of mass communications in this country were controlled by Jews; and they, the Jews, were pro-German. They were pro-German because many of them had come from Germany, and also they wanted to see Germany lick the Czar. The Jews didn't like the Czar, and they didn't want Russia to win this war. These German-Jew bankers, like Kuhn Loeb and the other big banking firms in the United States refused to finance France or England to the extent of one dollar. They stood aside and they said: "As long as France and England are tied up with Russia, not one cent!" But they poured money into Germany, they fought beside Germany against Russia, trying to lick the Czarist regime. Now those same Jews, when they saw the possibility of getting Palestine, went to England and they made this deal. At that time, everything changed, like a traffic light that changes from red to green. Where the newspapers had been all pro-German, where they'd been telling the people of the difficulties that Germany was having fighting Great Britain commercially and in other respects, all of a sudden the Germans were no good. They were villains. They were Huns. They were shooting Red Cross nurses. They were cutting off babies' hands. They were no good. Shortly after that, Mr. Wilson declared war on Germany. The Zionists in London had sent cables to the United States, to Justice Brandeis, saying "Go to work on President Wilson. We're getting from England what we want. Now you go to work on President Wilson and get the United States into the war." That's how the United States got into the war. We had no more interest in it; we had no more right to be in it than we have to be on the moon tonight instead of in this room. There was absolutely no reason for World War I to be our war. We were railroaded into -- if I can be vulgar, we were suckered into -- that war merely so that the Zionists of the world could obtain Palestine. That is something that the people of the United States have never been told. They never knew why we went into World War I. After we got into the war, the Zionists went to Great Britain and they said: "Well, we performed our part of the agreement. Let's have something in writing that shows that you are going to keep your bargain and give us Palestine after you win the war." They didn't know whether the war would last another year or another ten years. So they started to work out a receipt. The receipt took the form of a letter, which was worded in very cryptic language so that the world at large wouldn't know what it was all about. And that was called the Balfour Declaration.

The Balfour Declaration was merely Great Britain's promise to pay the Zionists what they had agreed upon as a consideration for getting the United States into the war. So this great Balfour Declaration, that you hear so much about, is just as phony as a three dollar bill. I don't think I could make it more emphatic than that. That is where all the trouble started. The United States got in the war. The United States crushed Germany. You know what happened. When the war ended, and the Germans went to Paris for the Paris Peace Conference in 1919 there were 117 Jews there, as a delegation representing the Jews, headed by Bernard Baruch. I was there: I ought to know. Now what happened? The Jews at that peace conference, when they were cutting up Germany and parceling out Europe to all these nations who claimed a right to a certain part of European territory, said, "How about Palestine for us?" And they produced, for the first time to the knowledge of the Germans, this Balfour Declaration. So the Germans, for the first time realized, "Oh, so that was the game! That's why the United States came into the war." The Germans for the first time realized that they were defeated, they suffered the terrific reparations that were slapped onto them, because the Zionists wanted Palestine and were determined to get it at any cost. That brings us to another very interesting point. When the Germans realized this, they naturally resented it. Up to that time, the Jews had never been better off in any country in the world than they had been in Germany. You had Mr. Rathenau there, who was maybe 100 times as important in industry and finance as is Bernard Baruch in this country. You had Mr. Balin, who owned the two big steamship lines, the North German Lloyd's and the Hamburg-American Lines. You had Mr. Bleichroder, who was the banker for the Hohenzollern family. You had the Warburgs in Hamburg, who were the big merchant bankers -- the biggest in the world. The Jews were doing very well in Germany. No question about that. The Germans felt: "Well, that was quite a sellout." It was a sellout that might be compared to this hypothetical situation: Suppose the United States was at war with the Soviet Union. And we were winning. And we told the Soviet Union: "Well, let's quit. We offer you peace terms. Let's forget the whole thing." And all of a sudden Red China came into the war as an ally of the Soviet Union. And throwing them into the war brought about our defeat. A crushing defeat, with reparations the likes of which man's imagination cannot encompass. Imagine, then, after that defeat, if we found out that it was the Chinese in this country, our Chinese citizens, who all the time we had thought were loyal citizens working with us, were selling us out to the Soviet Union and that it was through them that Red China was brought into the war against us. How would we feel, then, in the United States against Chinese? I don't think that one of them would dare show his face on any street. There wouldn't be enough convenient lampposts to take care of them. Imagine how we would feel. Well, that's how the Germans felt towards these Jews. They'd been so nice to them: from 1905 on, when the first Communist revolution in Russia failed, and the Jews had to scramble out of Russia, they all went to Germany. And Germany gave them refuge. And they were treated very nicely. And here they had sold Germany down the river for no reason at all other than the fact that they wanted Palestine as a so-called "Jewish commonwealth." Now Nahum Sokolow, and all the great leaders and great names that you read about in connection with Zionism today, in 1919, 1920, 1921, 1922, and 1923 wrote in all their papers -- and the press was filled with their statements -- that the feeling against the Jews in Germany is due to the fact that they realized that this great defeat was brought about by Jewish intercession in bringing the United States into the war. The Jews themselves admitted that. It wasn't that the Germans in 1919 discovered that a glass of Jewish blood tasted better than Coca-Cola or Muenschner Beer. There was no religious feeling. There was no sentiment against those people merely on account of their religious belief. It was all political. It was economic. It was anything but religious. Nobody cared in Germany whether a Jew went home and pulled down the shades and said "Shema 'Yisroel" or "Our Father." Nobody cared in Germany any more than they do in the United States. Now this feeling that developed later in Germany was due to one thing: the Germans held the Jews responsible for their crushing defeat. And World War I had been started against Germany for no reason for which Germany was responsible. They were guilty of nothing. Only of being successful. They built up a big navy. They built up world trade. You must remember that Germany at the time of the French Revolution consisted of 300 small city-states, principalities, dukedoms, and so forth. Three hundred separate little political entities. And between that time, between the times of Napoleon and Bismarck, they were consolidated into one state. And within 50 years they became one of the world's great powers. Their navy was rivaling Great Britain's, they were doing business all over the world, they could undersell anybody, they could make better products. What happened as a result of that? There was a conspiracy between England, France, and Russia to slap down Germany. There isn't one historian in the world who can find a valid reason why those three countries decided to wipe Germany off the map politically. When Germany realized that the Jews were responsible for her defeat, they naturally resented it. But not a hair on the head of any Jew was harmed. Not a single hair. Professor Tansill, of Georgetown University, who had access to all the secret papers of the State Department, wrote in his book, and quoted from a State Department document written by Hugo Schoenfeldt, a Jew whom Cordell Hull sent to Europe in 1933 to investigate the so-called camps of political prisoners, who wrote back that he found them in very fine condition. They were in excellent shape, with everybody treated well. And they were filled with Communists. Well, a lot of them were Jews, because the Jews happened to comprise about 98 per cent of the Communists in Europe at that time. And there were some priests there, and ministers, and labor leaders, and Masons, and others who had international affiliations. Some background is in order: In 1918-1919 the Communists took over Bavaria for a few days. Rosa Luxemburg and Karl Liebknecht and a group of other Jews took over the government for three days. In fact, when the Kaiser ended the war he fled to Holland because he thought the Communists were going to take over Germany as they did Russia and that he was going to meet the same fate as the Czar. So he fled to Holland for safety, for security. After the Communist threat in Germany was quashed, the Jews were still working, trying to get back into their former status, and the Germans fought them in every way they could without hurting a single hair on anyone's head. They fought them the same way that, in this country, the Prohibitionists fought anyone who was interested in liquor. They didn't fight one another with pistols. Well, that's the way they were fighting the Jews in Germany. And at that time, mind you, there were 80 to 90 million Germans, and there were only 460,000 Jews. About one half of one per cent of the population of Germany were Jews. And yet they controlled all the press, and they controlled most of the economy because they had come in with cheap money when the mark was devalued and bought up practically everything.

The Jews tried to keep a lid on this fact. They didn't want the world to really understand that they had sold out Germany, and that the Germans resented that. The Germans took appropriate action against the Jews. They, shall I say, discriminated against them wherever they could. They shunned them. The same way that we would shun the Chinese, or the Negroes, or the Catholics, or anyone in this country who had sold us out to an enemy and brought about our defeat. After a while, the Jews of the world called a meeting in Amsterdam. Jews from every country in the world attended this meeting in July 1933. And they said to Germany: "You fire Hitler, and you put every Jew back into his former position, whether he was a Communist or no matter what he was. You can't treat us that way. And we, the Jews of the world, are serving an ultimatum upon you." You can imagine what the Germans told them. So what did the Jews do? In 1933, when Germany refused to surrender to the world conference of Jews in Amsterdam, the conference broke up, and Mr. Samuel Untermyer, who was the head of the American delegation and the president of the whole conference, came to the United States and went from the steamer to the studios of the Columbia Broadcasting System and made a radio broadcast throughout the United States in which he in effect said, "The Jews of the world now declare a Holy War against Germany. We are now engaged in a sacred conflict against the Germans. And we are going to starve them into surrender. We are going to use a world-wide boycott against them. That will destroy them because they are dependent upon their export business." And it is a fact that two thirds of Germany's food supply had to be imported, and it could only be imported with the proceeds of what they exported. So if Germany could not export, two thirds of Germany's population would have to starve. There was just not enough food for more than one third of the population. Now in this declaration, which I have here, and which was printed in the New York Times on August 7, 1933, Mr. Samuel Untermyer boldly stated that "this economic boycott is our means of self-defense. President Roosevelt has advocated its use in the National Recovery Administration," which some of you may remember, where everybody was to be boycotted unless he followed the rules laid down by the New Deal, and which was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of that time. Nevertheless, the Jews of the world declared a boycott against Germany, and it was so effective that you couldn't find one thing in any store anywhere in the world with the words "Made in Germany" on it. In fact, an executive of the Woolworth Company told me that they had to dump millions of dollars worth of crockery and dishes into the river; that their stores were boycotted if anyone came in and found a dish marked "made in Germany," they were picketed with signs saying "Hitler," "murderer," and so forth, something like these sit-ins that are taking place in the South. At a store belonging to the R. H. Macy chain, which was controlled by a family called Strauss who also happen to be Jews, a woman found stockings there which came from Chemnitz, marked "Made in Germany." Well, they were cotton stockings and they may have been there 20 years, since I've been observing women's legs for many years and it's been a long time since I've seen any cotton stockings on them. I saw Macy's boycotted, with hundreds of people walking around with signs saying "murderers," "Hitlerites," and so forth. Now up to that time, not one hair on the head of any Jew had been hurt in Germany. There was no suffering, there was no starvation, there was no murder, there was nothing. Naturally, the Germans said, "Who are these people to declare a boycott against us and throw all our people out of work, and make our industries come to a standstill? Who are they to do that to us?" They naturally resented it. Certainly they painted swastikas on stores owned by Jews. Why should a German go in and give his money to a storekeeper who was part of a boycott that was going to starve Germany into surrendering to the Jews of the world, who were going to dictate who their premier or chancellor was to be? Well, it was ridiculous. The boycott continued for some time, but it wasn't until 1938, when a young Jew from Poland walked into the German embassy in Paris and shot a German official, that the Germans really started to get rough with the Jews in Germany. And you found them then breaking windows and having street fights and so forth. Now I don't like to use the word "anti-Semitism" because it's meaningless, but it means something to you still, so I'll have to use it. The only reason that there was any feeling in Germany against Jews was that they were responsible for World War I and for this world-wide boycott. Ultimately they were also responsible for World War II, because after this thing got out of hand, it was absolutely necessary for the Jews and Germany to lock horns in a war to see which one was going to survive. In the meanwhile, I had lived in Germany, and I knew that the Germans had decided that Europe is going to be Christian or Communist: there is no in between. And the Germans decided they were going to keep it Christian if possible. And they started to re-arm. In November 1933 the United States recognized the Soviet Union. The Soviet Union was becoming very powerful, and Germany realized that "Our turn was going to come soon, unless we are strong." The same as we in this country are saying today, "Our turn is going to come soon, unless we are strong." Our government is spending 83 or 84 billion dollars for defense. Defense against whom? Defense against 40,000 little Jews in Moscow that took over Russia, and then, in their devious ways, took over control of many other countries of the world. For this country now to be on the verge of a Third World War, from which we cannot emerge a victor, is something that staggers my imagination. I know that nuclear bombs are measured in terms of megatons. A megaton is a term used to describe one million tons of TNT. Our nuclear bombs had a capacity of 10 megatons, or 10 million tons of TNT, when they were first developed. Now, the nuclear bombs that are being developed have a capacity of 200 megatons, and God knows how many megatons the nuclear bombs of the Soviet Union have. What do we face now? If we trigger a world war that may develop into a nuclear war, humanity is finished. Why might such a war take place? It will take place as the curtain goes up on Act 3: Act 1 was World War I, Act 2 was World War II, Act 3 is going to be World War III. The Jews of the world, the Zionists and their co-religionists everywhere, are determined that they are going to again use the United States to help them permanently retain Palestine as their foothold for their world government. That is just as true as I am standing here. Not alone have I read it, but many here have also read it, and it is known all over the world. What are we going to do? The life you save may be your son's. Your boys may be on their way to that war tonight; and you don't know it any more than you knew that in 1916 in London the Zionists made a deal with the British War Cabinet to send your sons to war in Europe. Did you know it at that time? Not a person in the United States knew it. You weren't permitted to know it. Who knew it? President Wilson knew it. Colonel House knew it. Other insiders knew it.

Did I know it? I had a pretty good idea of what was going on: I was liaison to Henry Morgenthau, Sr., in the 1912 campaign when President Wilson was elected, and there was talk around the office there. I was "confidential man" to Henry Morgenthau, Sr., who was chairman of the Finance Committee, and I was liaison between him and Rollo Wells, the treasurer. So I sat in these meetings with President Wilson at the head of the table, and all the others, and I heard them drum into President Wilson's brain the graduated income tax and what has become the Federal Reserve, and I heard them indoctrinate him with the Zionist movement. Justice Brandeis and President Wilson were just as close as the two fingers on this hand. President Woodrow Wilson was just as incompetent when it came to determining what was going on as a newborn baby. That is how they got us into World War I, while we all slept. They sent our boys over there to be slaughtered. For what? So the Jews can have Palestine as their "commonwealth." They've fooled you so much that you don't know whether you're coming or going. Now any judge, when he charges a jury, says, "Gentlemen, any witness who you find has told a single lie, you can disregard all his testimony." I don't know what state you come from, but in New York state that is the way a judge addresses a jury. If that witness told one lie, disregard his testimony. What are the facts about the Jews? (I call them Jews to you, because they are known as "Jews". I don't call them Jews myself. I refer to them as "so-called Jews", because I know what they are). The eastern European Jews, who form 92 per cent of the world's population of those people who call themselves "Jews", were originally Khazars. They were a warlike tribe who lived deep in the heart of Asia. And they were so warlike that even the Asiatics drove them out of Asia into eastern Europe. They set up a large Khazar kingdom of 800,000 square miles. At the time, Russia did not exist, nor did many other European countries. The Khazar kingdom was the biggest country in all Europe -- so big and so powerful that when the other monarchs wanted to go to war, the Khazars would lend them 40,000 soldiers. That's how big and powerful they were.

They were phallic worshippers, which is filthy and I do not want to go into the details of that now. But that was their religion, as it was also the religion of many other pagans and barbarians elsewhere in the world. The Khazar king became so disgusted with the degeneracy of his kingdom that he decided to adopt a so-called monotheistic faith -- either Christianity, Islam, or what is known today as Judaism, which is really Talmudism. By spinning a top, and calling out "eeny, meeny, miney, moe," he picked out so-called Judaism. And that became the state religion. He sent down to the Talmudic schools of Pumbedita and Sura and brought up thousands of rabbis, and opened up synagogues and schools, and his people became what we call "Jews". There wasn't one of them who had an ancestor who ever put a toe in the Holy Land. Not only in Old Testament history, but back to the beginning of time. Not one of them! And yet they come to the Christians and ask us to support their armed insurrections in Palestine by saying, "You want to help repatriate God's Chosen People to their Promised Land, their ancestral home, don't you? It's your Christian duty. We gave you one of our boys as your Lord and Savior. You now go to church on Sunday, and you kneel and you worship a Jew, and we're Jews." But they are pagan Khazars who were converted just the same as the Irish were converted. It is as ridiculous to call them "people of the Holy Land," as it would be to call the 54 million Chinese Moslems "Arabs." Mohammed only died in 620 A.D., and since then 54 million Chinese have accepted Islam as their religious belief. Now imagine, in China, 2,000 miles away from Arabia, from Mecca and Mohammed's birthplace. Imagine if the 54 million Chinese decided to call themselves "Arabs." You would say they were lunatics. Anyone who believes that those 54 million Chinese are Arabs must be crazy. All they did was adopt as a religious faith a belief that had its origin in Mecca, in Arabia. The same as the Irish. When the Irish became Christians, nobody dumped them in the ocean and imported to the Holy Land a new crop of inhabitants. They hadn't become a different people. They were the same people, but they had accepted Christianity as a religious faith.

These Khazars, these pagans, these Asiatics, these Turko-Finns, were a Mongoloid race who were forced out of Asia into eastern Europe. Because their king took the Talmudic faith, they had no choice in the matter. Just the same as in Spain: If the king was Catholic, everybody had to be a Catholic. If not, you had to get out of Spain. So the Khazars became what we call today "Jews". Now imagine how silly it was for the great Christian countries of the world to say, "We're going to use our power and prestige to repatriate God's Chosen People to their ancestral homeland, their Promised Land." Could there be a bigger lie than that? Because they control the newspapers, the magazines, the radio, the television, the book publishing business, and because they have the ministers in the pulpit and the politicians on the soapboxes talking the same language, it is not too surprising that you believe that lie. You'd believe black is white if you heard it often enough. You wouldn't call black black anymore -- you'd start to call black white. And nobody could blame you. That is one of the great lies of history. It is the foundation of all the misery that has befallen the world. Do you know what Jews do on the Day of Atonement, that you think is so sacred to them? I was one of them.

This is not hearsay. I'm not here to be a rabble-rouser. I'm here to give you facts. When, on the Day of Atonement, you walk into a synagogue, you stand up for the very first prayer that you recite. It is the only prayer for which you stand. You repeat three times a short prayer called the Kol Nidre. In that prayer, you enter into an agreement with God Almighty that any oath, vow, or pledge that you may make during the next twelve months shall be null and void. The oath shall not be an oath; the vow shall not be a vow; the pledge shall not be a pledge. They shall have no force or effect. And further, the Talmud teaches that whenever you take an oath, vow, or pledge, you are to remember the Kol Nidre prayer that you recited on the Day of Atonement, and you are exempted from fulfilling them. How much can you depend on their loyalty? You can depend upon their loyalty as much as the Germans depended upon it in 1916. We are going to suffer the same fate as Germany suffered, and for the same reason.

10.1 FDR Nexus with Bernard Baruch and the Great Depression

During FDR's terms as President he maintained a close relationship with Bernard Baruch. Baruch was a powerful Wall Street Investor. Bernard Baruch [was] one of the most politically influential of the Wall Street Money Trust. Baruch was a financier, a political "contributor" of Wall Street money to influence Congress, and an adviser to Presidents from Wilson to Hoover to Roosevelt and even a British Prime Minister, Winston Churchill. Throughout the Republican presidencies of the 1920's, [Bernard] Baruch had built up his influence, mainly by making large financial contributions to influential Congressional Democrats. He was a power broker without rival in that day, widely known to control the votes of at least 60 Senators and Representatives in Congress, through his money and influence. [Bernard] Baruch ... had gained a fortune in the stock market by selling all his stocks at peak prices some weeks before the October 1929 crash... He didn't say that his close friend, Winston Churchill, had done the same on Baruch's advice. Both Baruch and Churchill, curiously managed to get out at the stock market peak, just before the Bank of England triggered the events leading to the London market crash in September 1929. Suspicions in certain quarters held that Churchill and Baruch both benefited from their respective insider positions. Baruch held an unequalled position of power and influence over Washington economic policy during those critical first few years of the depression. Baruch's unique influence blocked any genuine Democratic alternative to the disastrous Hoover laissez faire policy in those critical months. That lack of initiatives or solutions from the Democrats in the 1930s was not unlike the deafening silence of Congressional Democrats more than eight decades later during the 2008 Congressional debate over an unprecedented $700 billion Republican bailout bill for Wall Street. Shortly after his reelection to a second term in 1937, [Franklin] Roosevelt, notorious for lack of understanding of economics, accepted the opinion of his Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau that the depression was ending, and that the greatest danger was potential inflation from too much government spending. As a consequence, FDR slashed Federal spending and dramatically reduced the budgets of New Deal agencies such as the Works Progress Administration. The Federal Reserve duly tightened the money supply, slamming the brakes on consumer spending. The stock market underwent its most severe drop in US history as two million Americans were thrown out of work. The press called it “Roosevelt’s Depression.” Rockefeller’s Wall Street interests, Bernard Baruch, and a powerful circle of big business leaders [in the 1930s] were determined to reorganize the US economy along the centralized corporatist model of Mussolini’s fascist Italy. Contrary to carefully planted propaganda in the media portraying FDR as the “hero of the little man” who was ready to “chase the moneylenders from the temple,” Roosevelt was the scion of a wealthy East Coast family, a distant relative of Teddy Roosevelt, and every bit The Man of Wall Street-especially of Baruch, Rockefeller and their group. In May 1933, during his first weeks in office, FDR proposed to Congress the creation of a National Recovery Administration (NRA). It passed with a minimum of debate amid the depression crisis. Its first head was Hugh S Johnson associate of and advisor to Bernard Baruch. The concept of the NRA was largely drawn from the national military emergency mobilization of industry that Baruch and Johnson had administered during the First World War. Ever since then, Big Business and Wall Street had been salivating over the possibility of getting such power over the economy into their hands once again. The Great Depression would be their cancer. Johnson would be their man. Within Roosevelt’s Administration, Johnson was open about the fact that he saw Mussolini’s Italian Fascist corporatism – the merger of government and corporate power to the one-sided gain of business – as a model for America. In 1930 as most banks were struggling to survive, Rockefeller’s Chase National Bank was thriving... Chase Bank’s most significant acquisition during the first months of the financial crisis in 1930 was the Equitable Trust Company of New York, the largest stockholder of which was John D. Rockefeller Jr. This made the Chase Bank the largest bank in America and indeed the world . As a result of their dominant position following the decline of the House of Morgan during the depression, the Rockefeller group, in addition to controlling Chase Bank and First City Bank of New York, controlled the largest US oil companies. The Rockefeller group also consolidated a commanding control over the major chemical and defense-related industries. [John D.] Rockefeller’s principal business adviser, Frederick T. Gates, suggested that he organize his wealth into a tax-exempt foundation after 1913, using tax-free funds, to extend the power and influence of the family. The Rockefeller Foundation was incorporated in New York State in 1913, under the direction of Gates, whom Rockefeller called the greatest businessman he ever encountered. Gates would focus the new foundation’s activities on programs that would dramatically leverage Rockefeller wealth, but above all, the family’s political and social power. Under this mantle of philanthropy, the Rockefeller Foundation would reshape the map of the entire world, beginning in the late 1930s. The programs and mechanisms through which it operated were phenomenally important and little understood, as they were extremely well disguised. In 1939, with a major funding grant from the Rockefeller Foundation, the New York Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) began what would be a series of long-term studies in collaboration with the US State Department.

10.2 How FDR Extended WWII for Stalin

Suppose the United States had been presented with the opportunity to end World War II in 1943 on far more favorable terms than it was able to get after the sacrifice of so many lives in the subsequent two years. The countries of Eastern Europe, Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Romania, Yugoslavia, and Albania would have been kept out of the hands of the Communists. Perhaps even the Baltic states of Latvia, Lithuania, and Estonia would have regained their independence from the Soviet Union. Adolf Hitler would have been deposed and either killed or turned over to allied authorities, and a united, non-Communist, anti-Nazi Germany would have peacefully given up its European conquests. That we would have passed up such an opportunity is next to inconceivable to anyone who has received the standard education in American history. It would not be at all shocking, though, to anyone familiar with what has been revealed about the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration on this web site. The fact is that we were given just such an opportunity, but the president didn't so much as give it a second look. The conveyor of the message from the German power brokers to FDR, his friend and special envoy to neutral Turkey, former Pennsylvania governor George Earle, was as dumbfounded and disappointed as most Americans would have been. He didn't know what we now know—but most Americans still don't—about Roosevelt and his administration. Governor Earle had no way of knowing, for instance, that FDR had been told on good authority in 1939 that his government was laced with Stalin's agents, throughout the State and Treasury Departments and right up to the White House, and he did absolutely nothing about it. He even allowed the named agents to rise to positions of greater power and influence. Governor Earle would not have known that when Rep. Martin Dies had similarly presented the president with evidence of wholesale Communist infiltration of the government in 1940, Roosevelt had responded: I do not regard the Communists as any present or future threat to our country, in fact I look upon Russia as our strongest ally in the years to come. As I told you when you began your investigation, you should confine yourself to Nazis and Fascists. While I do not believe in Communism, Russia is far better off and the world is safer with Russia under Communism than under the Czars. Stalin is a great leader, and although I deplore some of his methods, it is the only way he can safeguard his government. Governor Earle would not have known that FDR had also told Dies, "I do not believe in Communism any more than you do, but there is nothing wrong with the Communists in this country. Several of the best friends I have are Communists." Neither would Earle have known that FDR had confided to then Archbishop Francis Spellman that when the war was concluded he thought that the Communists would control about 40 percent of the world and that was pretty much as it should be. Most importantly, Governor Earle would not have known that Roosevelt's closest adviser on both foreign and domestic matters, Harry Hopkins, was, in all likelihood, an espionage agent for Joseph Stalin.

... Here is a truthful account by former Governor Earl of Pennsylvania, a friend and supporter of FDR, as to how he conveyed to President Roosevelt, eighteen months before the end of the war, a direct offer from the German army to surrender to the American army and kill Hitler or turn him over to American control. In return the German army offered to fight to prevent Stalin and the Communists from taking over the free and independent eastern European nations and bringing communism [sic] into central Europe. What a tragedy!

"Genrikh Yagoda was the greatest Jewish murderer of the 20th Century, the GPU's deputy commander and the founder and commander of the NKVD. Yagoda diligently implemented Stalin's collectivization orders and is responsible for the deaths of at least 10 million people. His Jewish deputies established and managed the Gulag system."³

Genrikh Yagoda, murdered twice the number of people alleged against Adolf Hitler. Although Jewish scholars realize this fact, not 1 of 1000 gentiles even know his name.

To understand the incredible level of deception about the enormous Jewish crimes against humanity, just consider how the globalist Jewish-dominated media hides Yagoda's role in a genocide of at least 10 million human beings.

Jewish writers and a major Jewish Israeli website casually report to their Jewish readers that the Jewish Bolshevik, Yagoda, murdered twice the number of the alleged 5.1 million victims counted by the pre-eminent Holocaust historian, Raul Hilberg.

Walter Duranty (1884 – October 3, 1957) was a Liverpool-born, Anglo-American journalist who served as the Moscow Bureau Chief of The New York Times (1922–36). Duranty won a Pulitzer Prize in 1932 for a series of stories on the Soviet Union. Duranty has been criticized for his denial of widespread famine, most particularly the Ukraine mass starvation (1932–33). Years later, there were calls to revoke his Pulitzer; even The New York Times acknowledged his articles constituted "some of the worst reporting to appear in this newspaper."^[1] His reporting and motivations have been hotly debated, leading to calls to revoke his Pulitzer (which was for reporting unrelated to the later famine controversy). Duranty's reporting is faulted for being too uncritical of the Soviet regime, including having presented Soviet propaganda as legitimate reporting.^[2] Duranty's name has become for some synonymous with thinly veiled propaganda masquerading as news, in this case in support of Soviet communism. This has resulted in the ironic use of his name to satirize writing that apologizes for dishonesty and crimes committed by left-wing advocates and journalists.^[3]

...In 1932, representatives of New York's newly re-organized crime attended the Democrats' Presidential Convention in the city most infamous for corruption, Chicago, Illinois. They had made untold millions as a result of Prohibition that they'd used to put law enforcers, judges, and politicians in their pocket. Now, they were going for the biggest prize of all. They would own the next President of the United States. The three main contenders for the office were Governor of New York, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Speaker of the House of Representatives, Texan John Nance Garner, and Al Smith, a former Governor of New York and failed Presidential candidate four years earlier, in 1928. It was supposed to be an easy win for FDR, but it didn't work out that way. He wasn't able to muster the two-thirds he needed on the first and second votes, and back room deals went full force. One of those deals was with the mob. A number of years ago, I got a message from Vincent "Jimmy Blue Eyes" Alo. As a lifelong mobster myself, Jimmy Blue Eyes was one of my early heroes. What he wanted to possibly do was write a book strictly about the 1920s and 1930s, when he, Frank Costello, Lucky Luciano, and Meyer Lansky controlled the Democrat machine in New York, known as "Tammany Hall." They were able to make mayors, judges, and councilmen, and had their way with any legal question, from criminal charges to licenses. One of those was the Presidency, in 1932. We never did the book because Jimmy, ever the loyal soldier, asked the boss of his family, the Genovese Family, for permission...and was denied. That denial came directly from Vincent Gigante. Though I was disappointed (I would have given anything just to hear the details), I was impressed that Chin had stuck to the letter of the law...mob law...without exceptions or excuses. That being said, it didn't change the fact that those who controlled Tammany were at the Convention, and that they had a hand in electing the President. In true Machiavellian fashion, the New York contingent of organized crime split up and infiltrated the camps of both FDR and Al Smith. They never really had any confidence that Garner would be anything more than a spoiler, and, in true Texas Congressional manner, would cut a deal with one of the other two (he wound up as FDR's Vice President). The mob had an earth shaking decision to make, and they wanted to make it right. Luciano assigned himself to Al Smith, while Costello, a big fan of FDR's, kept close to the candidate and actually got a brief audience with him to discuss support. Both offered the candidates not only money, but votes in key areas around the country. All Lucky and his guys had to do was send a message to Santo Trafficante in Tampa, Nig Rosen in Philadelphia, Waxey Gordon in Jersey, Nick Civella in Kansas City, or any of the bosses of major cities from coast to coast to get their troops out to pile up votes for their candidate. They negotiated directly with the candidates and finally decided, with no doubt swayed by Costello's admiration, to throw their full and unified weight behind Franklin Delano Roosevelt. The news shattered Al Smith. He practically cried when he was told of their decision. He also told them that they'd made a huge mistake; that he came from the same kind of background they did, including being part of the Tammany machine, and could be trusted to keep any word he gave them, while the patrician Roosevelt would promise them anything but betray them in the end. The decision had been made. FDR won, and immediately empowered Samuel Seabury to investigate organized crime and its political connections, especially Tammany Hall, which had spawned his former rival, Al Smith. For all their dreams, efforts, and thoughtfulness, Lucky Luciano, Meyer Lansky, and Frank Costello had made a mistake; they'd picked the wrong horse and would be trampled by their choice. Oddly enough, mobsters repeated their error in 1960, when their support helped their fellow bootlegger's son, John F. Kennedy, attain the Presidency. He also turned on them once in office, and had his brother, Robert, as Attorney General, go after organized crime with a vengeance. In fact, the R.I.C.O. Act, so effective in recent mob prosecutions, was written during RFK's reign as A.G.

In the FDR administration, Harry Hopkins was one of FDR's closest advisors and an architect of the New Deal. In the New Deal Era Hopkins quoted "We shall Tax,Tax and Tax, Spend, Spend and Spend, Elect, Elect and Elect". FDR made it illegal to own gold priced at $20/ounce. Once they got most of the gold from the people it was repriced at $35/ounce. The Federal Reserve Bank used the gold as the asset to collateralize the US Debt.

On April 5 1945 FDR writes to Saudi King Ibn Saud stating;- “Your Majesty will recall that on previous occasions I communicated to you the attitude of the American Government toward Palestine and made clear our desire that no decision be taken with respect to the basic situation in that country without full consultation with both Arabs and Jews. Your Majesty will also doubtless recall that during our recent conversation I assured you that I would take no action, in my capacity as Chief of the Executive Branch of this Government, which might prove hostile to the Arab people”. Strangely exactly a week after FDR wrote the above letter, President Franklin D. Roosevelt is found dead on April 12th 1945. Normally FDR always stayed at the house of Jew Bernard Baruch, but this year he did not. His suicide or assassination cleared the final hurdle for creation and recognition of Israel.

11 President Truman Legacy

Truman’s Power Brokers were tied into the corruption of the Saint Louis Mafia and Bernard Baruch from the FDR Administration. Within weeks of becoming President. Truman agreed to recognize the State of Israel. In this period, this influence resulted in the US Support of the State of Israel. It is noted that Meyer Lansky stated he financed the state of Israel. General Patton worked closely with the Mafia during the World War II efforts for the battle of Sicily. The legacy led into the drug smuggling that was discovered in the Pizza Connection Investigation. The leadership of the Office of Strategic Services (OSS) was involved with Patton’s assassination. The OSS and the Office of Naval Intelligence (ONI) established ties to the mafia via Operation Underworld.

In 1917 Chaim Weizmann, scientist, statesman, and Zionist, persuaded the British government to issue a statement favoring the establishment of a Jewish national home in Palestine. The statement which became known as the Balfour Declaration, was, in part, payment to the Jews for their support of the British against the Turks during World War I. After the war, the League of Nations ratified the declaration and in 1922 appointed Britain to rule in Palestine. This course of events caused Jews to be optimistic about the eventual establishment of a homeland. Their optimism inspired the immigration to Palestine of Jews from many countries, particularly from Germany when Nazi persecution of Jews began. The arrival of many Jewish immigrants in the 1930s awakened Arab fears that Palestine would become a national homeland for Jews. By 1936 guerilla fighting had broken out between the Jews and Arabs. Unable to maintain peace, Britain issued a white paper in 1939 that restricted Jewish immigration into Palestine. The Jews, feeling betrayed, bitterly opposed the policy and looked to the United States for support. While President Franklin D. Roosevelt appeared to be sympathetic to the Jewish cause, his assurances to the Arabs that the United States would not intervene without consulting both parties caused public uncertainty about his position.

When President Harry S. Truman took office, he made clear that his sympathies were with the Jews and accepted the Balfour Declaration, explaining that it was in keeping with former President Woodrow Wilson's principle of "self determination."

Truman initiated several studies of the Palestine situation that supported his belief that, as a result of the Holocaust, Jews were oppressed and also in need of a homeland. Throughout the Roosevelt and Truman administrations, the Departments of War and State, recognizing the possibility of a Soviet-Arab connection and the potential Arab restriction on Oil supplies to the United States, advised against U.S. intervention on behalf of the Jews. Britain and the United States, in a joint effort to examine the dilemma, established the "Anglo-American Committee of Inquiry." In April 1946, the committee submitted recommendations that Palestine not be dominated by either Arabs or Jews. It concluded that attempts to establish nationhood or independence would result in civil strife; that a trusteeship agreement aimed at bringing Jews and Arabs together should be established by the United Nations; that full Jewish immigration be allowed into Palestine; and that two autonomous states be established with a strong central government to control Jerusalem, Bethlehem, and the Negev, the southernmost section of Palestine. British, Arab, and Jewish reactions to the recommendations were not favorable. Jewish terrorism in Palestine antagonized the British, and by February 1947 Arab-Jewish communications had collapsed. Britain, anxious to rid itself of the problem, set the United Nations in motion, formally requesting on April 2, 1947, that the U.N. General Assembly set up the Special Committee on Palestine (UNSCOP). This committee recommended that the British mandate over Palestine be ended and that the territory be partitioned into two states. Jewish reaction was mixed -- some wanted control of all of Palestine; others realized that partition spelled hope for their dream of a homeland. The Arabs were not at all agreeable to the UNSCOP plan. In October the Arab League Council directed the governments of its member states to move troops to the Palestine border. Meanwhile, President Truman instructed the State Department to support the U.N. plan, and, reluctantly, it did so. On November 29, 1947, the partition plan was passed in the U.N. General Assembly. UN Resolution 181, defined the outline of a settlement in Palestine creating both a Jewish and a Palestinian homeland. The 1947 UN Partition divided the area into three entities: a Jewish state, an Arab state, and an international zone around Jerusalem.

At midnight on May 14, 1948, the Provisional Government of Israel proclaimed the new State of Israel. On that same date the United States, in the person of President Truman, recognized the provisional Jewish government as de facto authority of the new Jewish state (de jure recognition was extended on January 31). The U.S. delegates to the U.N. and top ranking State Department officials were angered that Truman released his recognition statement to the press without notifying them first. On May 15, 1948, the Arab states issued their response statement and Arab armies invaded Israel and the first Arab-Israeli war began.

Other buildings built with Pendergast concrete were the Municipal Auditorium and Police Headquarters. Paving Brush Creek began November 1935 at a cost originally estimated at $1,395,000 and employing at one time 1,647 WPA workers. Concrete was laid eight to 10 inches thick and 70 feet wide. Pendergast also owned the Monroe Hotel at 1904 Main Street which he bought in 1924. A couple years later he built a building next door as headquarters for his Jackson Democratic Club. It was here in the second-floor office at 1908 Main Street where Pendergast “held court and dispensed patronage” and controlled county and state politics.

GENERAL GEORGE PATTON'S MURDER on 21 December 1945 is one of the most concealed events in military history. Although Patton's military file at the National Archives in St Louis has over 1300 pages of documents, only a handful of pages are devoted to the car crash. Strangely, the 5 on-the-scene military reports of the incident disappeared shortly after archived. Why? Patton's end began on 9 December 1945 when after setting out on a pheasant hunting trip near Mannheim, Germany, a two-ton US Army truck collided into his Cadillac staff car. Patton suffered neck injuries either from a bullet or less likely from impact but was not seriously hurt. Yet his driver, Horace Woodring and his chief of staff, General Hap Gay, walked away with barely a scratch. On the way to the hospital, Patton's rescue vehicle was struck again by another two-ton Army truck. This time he was injured more severely, but still clung to his life. Neither of the truck drivers were arrested nor had their names disclosed although Patton's driver stated that the first truck was waiting for them on the side of the road as they'd started up from a railroad track stop. It was later reported by former intelligence agent Ladislav Farago, that the driver of the first truck, Robert L Thompson, (who was whisked away to London before he could be questioned), was not authorized to drive the vehicle and had two mysterious passengers with him "in violation of rules." Ladislav also pointed out that although the crash occurred on a remote road on a quiet, no-work Sunday morning, a large crowd of mostly military personnel quickly descended on the scene. Once at the hospital, Patton was able to contact his wife in America urging her to remove him from the hospital because, "They're going to kill me here." And that they did. On 21 December 1945, Patton was pronounced dead due to an "embolism," that is, a bubble of blood which is fatal when it reaches a vital organ. It can be introduced into the bloodstream with a syringe by anyone with brief medical training. Not only did the US army make no investigation into the "accident" - but no questions were raised about his "embolism." The remains of this American hero were never brought to the United States and no autopsy was ever performed.

WHEN PATTON ASSUMED COMMAND of occupied Germany in October 1945, he came to a new understanding of the European conflagration. The war hero expressed grave misgivings regarding the harsh treatment of Germans by the Allies and urged creating a strong Germany to counter the advance of Soviet Russia into Eastern Europe. The more Patton saw of the Soviets, the stronger his conviction grew that the right course of action was to stifle communism while the opportunity was ripe. But Patton was thwarted by Roosevelt's Jewish advisers, Henry Morgenthau and Bernard Baruch, who pursued a post-war bond with Jewish-Soviets. The conflict between Jewry and Patton grew when he refused to remove German civilians from their homes so as to house "Displaced Persons." Most of these were Jews who were never "displaced" but rather had swarmed into Germany from Poland and Russia. Patton's diary entry for 17 September 1945 reads:

"The virus started by Morgenthau and Baruch against all Germans is semitic revenge. Now I'm being ordered to remove German civilians from their homes for the purpose of housing Displaced Persons. It appears that this order is to punish the German race and not individual Germans. It's against my Anglo-Saxon conscience to remove a person from his house without due process of the law. Those issuing these orders believe that the Displaced Person is a human being, which he is not. This applies particularly to the Jews, who are lost to all decency, relieving themselves on the floors, showing themselves to be lower than animals." View Entire Story Here.

When Patton later linked Communists with Jews, his fate was sealed. The Jewish-owned press in America began a smear campaign describing Patton as "soft on Nazis." General Patton had always carried with him a special notebook. It disappeared from his pocket upon his arrival at the hospital after the collisions. "I have a little black book in my pocket," Patton once said, "and when I get back home I'm going to blow the hell out of everything." But Jewry made sure Patton would never see America again. IN HIS BOOK, "Target Patton," author Robert Wilcox describes his interviews with WWII sharpshooter, Douglas Bazata, a Lebanese Jew, who died in 1999. Based on these interviews, (Bazata, with declining health, was tormented by qualms of conscience), Wilcox details how the marksman staged the car crash by getting a troop truck to plough into Patton's Cadillac. He then arranged for the General to be shot with a low-velocity projectile which entered Patton's neck while his fellow passengers escaped without a scratch.

(The impact theory is less likely since the vehicles were advancing at only 20 miles per hour, both being hardly damaged.) Bazata said that the order “to silence Patton” was given by the head of the OSS, (forerunner to the CIA), General “Wild Bill” Donovan, who was pursuing close ties with Communist intelligence officers. Donovan told Bazata, “We’ve got a terrible situation with this great patriot, he’s out of control and we must save him from himself and from ruining everything the allies have done.” The marksman gave similar testimony to a group of 450 ex-members of the OSS at the Hilton Hotel in Washington on 25 September 1979. Bazata said, “Many high-ranking military persons hated Patton. I know who killed him because I was hired to set up the accident by General William Donovan for $10,000. But since Patton didn’t die in the accident, he was kept in isolation in the hospital where he was killed with an injection.” General Bill Donovan is alleged to have been a crypto Jew, as his mother, Anna Letitia Donovan, was likely a Jewess. Her name, “Anna Letitia,” is typically Jewish but uncommon as an Irish name. Donovan’s rise as a Wall Street lawyer, his intimacy with FDR’s Jewish inner circle, and his role as adjunct to Jewish Judge Samuel Rosenman at the Nuremberg trials, strengthens the premise of Donovan’s Jewish identity, or at least, his Jewish sympathies. And those “sympathies” felled a great American hero through the intrigues of the dark forces of international Jewry now pervasive in our post WWII world.

12 President Eisenhower Legacy

In his early career Eisenhower rose to Power via the Support of Bernard Baruch. Baruch was influential sign the President Wilson Administration and the establishment of the Federal Reserve Bank. Subsequently in Eisenhower's presidential career, Gangster Max Fisher was able to work within the Eisenhower administration and the CIA to setup the "Bay of Pigs" Military affair in an attempt to regain control of Cuba and re-establish the Mafia Havana Casinos. Media resources have indicated that FDR's power brokers like Baruch were opposed to a political career for General Patton and may have a nexus to the General Patton Assassination. Eisenhower's warnings to American with respect to the Military Industrial Complex came true with the JFK Assassination.

Eisenhower's military promotions on the eve of WWII and during the war are curious to say the least. Zionists found an Army officer who had been a military failure until Bernard Baruch promoted Eisenhower (over 365 more qualified) to General. His actions and responsibilities during and after the war: direct, personal negotiations with Stalin on the placements of the armies (and the surrender of territory won by Americans, with the ceding of that territory to the Russians).

In the final days of the Second World War, as the Allies advanced deep into Germany and the German Army was on the verge of defeat, the U.S. Army captured approximately 3 million German prisoners of war. Under the direction of Jewish General Dwight Eisenhower, most of these German POWs were taken to open fields in the area of the Rhine River valley in Western Germany and given no access to food, water, or shelter -- and simply left to die. This was a blatant war crime and violation of international treaty requiring humane treatment of prisoners of war, and release of POWs after the cease of hostilities. The American military attempted to justify this war crime by simply relabeling the German POWs as "disarmed enemy forces", therefore alleging that the prisoners were still "hostile enemy forces". These were the real death camps of World War Two, not the slave labor and internment camps run by the Germans in the alleged Jewish "holocaust", which is a Jewish fraud and lie. Over one million German POWs were deliberately murdered in the captivity of the American-run camps.

12.3 Operation PBSuccess - War In Guatemala

In the Eisenhower administration one of his notable power brokers was the Purple Gangster Max Fisher. Fisher was powerful enough during this administration to get the US into the war in Central America in Guatemala about 1954. This was to protect the interests of United Fruit, a firm controlled by Max Fisher. A consequence of this was the formation of the gangs that have migrated to the US known as MS-13. Max Fisher was also able to influence the Eisenhower administration to start the plans to invade Cuba known as Operation Zapata under George Bush between 1958 to 1961. The reason was to protect the Mafia casino interests in Havana in particular on behalf of Meyer Lansky. In this period Defense Secretary opposed these activities and support of the state of Israel. The circumstances of his death parallel that of Murder Incorporated Abe Relles (The Canary that could not fly). Afterwards, the US promised support for the state of Israel.

...In 1975, Lindner's AFC allied with Detroit financier Max Fisher, formerly of the murderous Purple Gang; Detroit real estate developer Alfred Taubman (a Fisher associate); and Paul and Seymour Milstein, to grab a 50% controlling interest in the United Fruit Company. Drug Enforcement Administration officials had confirmed to the authors of EIR's bestselling book Dope, Inc.: Britain's Opium War Against America, that United Fruit was a major force in the Latin American cocaine trade—a business that skyrocketed following the Lindner-Fisher, et al. takeover. The Lindner group's takeover of United Fruit was only made possible by the mysterious death of the company's chairman and largest stockholder, Eli Black, on Feb. 3, 1975. Black fell to his death from the 44th floor of the Pan Am Building in New York City, in what was officially declared a suicide. At the same time that Lindner, Fisher et. al. were grabbing United Fruit, Lindner's AFC simultaneously allied with a group of other Lansky-linked entities to establish a formidable pool of interlocking companies that would collectively form the core of the junk-bond raiders.

According to Deborah Davis, Meyer became Mockingbird's 'principal operative'

In the Eisenhower era, Max Fisher worked with the Administration and the CIA to setup the covert Bay of Pigs operation to restore to the Chicago Mafia ownership of the Havana Casinos to his ally Meyer Lansky. President Bush Senior was the party who was involved with setting up Operation Zapata.

The CIA established the program Operation Mockingbird in the 50's to promote the views of the CIA in the national Media in the United States. The CIA owned respected members of the media (New York Times, NewsWeek, CBS, Time and Life Magazines, Washington Post, Miami Times, Christian Science Monitor, TV Guide etc.). CIA Director Allen Dulles hired Cord Meyer to join the CIA. Meyer efforts involved work on Operation Mockingbird. Joseph McCarthy accused senior CIA members as national security risks. McCarthy claimed the CIA was a “sinkhole of communists”. One of McCarthy's first targets in the CIA was Cord Meyer who was working on Operation Mockingbird. The CIA unleashed the Mockingbird against McCarthy. The two biggest financiers to work with the CIA program were Gangsters Moses and his son Walter Annenberg. They owned the media Philadelphia Inquirer and TV Guide. The Annenbergs led a double life, Moses was directly link to the Chicago Syndicate. Both Annenbergs were indicted in 1939 for tax evasion. Moses pled guilty and was sentenced. Moses died in Lewisburg Penitentiary. Walter Annenberg's influence increased to the point he selected the President Nixon entire Cabinet as his Note: Frank Sinatra lived next to Walter Annenberg and the Betty Ford Clinic was setup in the Annenberg Estate. President Ford and Betty were loyal to the Annenberg Political interests to the end.

13.3 Mob Involvement with Control of Media – Operation Mockingbird

13.3.1 Legacy of Crime Boss Walter Annenberg - Clear Channel and Fox Media

Figure 75 Walter Annenberg Media Ties and nexus to CIA via Cord Meyer - Operation Mockingbird

The Wikipedia article shows some details of Capone Mafia Gangster Walter Annenberg. One point is inaccurate however. The fact that Walter Annenberg controlled the Philadelphia Inquirer and the rampant political corruption in Philadelphia is true. Walter Annenberg did not clean up the corruption he was part of. He controlled the Politics of the entire state of Pennsylvania Republican Party that exists up to the present time via the Bucks County Republican Party (www.bucksgroup.org) . He was directly involved with the cover up of the JFK Assassination via the Warren Commission single bullet theory. The authors of the JFK single bullet theory were from the Philadelphia District Attorney office. This is a place that has been overrun by Jewish Organized Crime up to recently with the former DA Lynn Abraham an executive director of the Anti-Defamation League.

Walter Annenberg's father Moses Annenberg setup the race wire for the Capone syndicate. This allowed the mob to gain an advantage on the horse track betting activities. Moses attended the meeting to setup the national crime syndicate in Atlantic City New Jersey with Capone. Moses influence in Pennsylvania politics enabled him to protect Capone during his time at Eastern State Penitentiary in plush circumstances.

- http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Walter_Annenberg

Walter Annenberg worked with the CIA's Operation Mockingbird program using his media for their purposes. One of his media outlets is Clear Channel. This was subsequently bought out by Bain Capital which is controlled by Mitt Romney. Walter Annenberg setup the Annenberg Foundation which is responsible for the "No Child Left Behind" program located at Brown University in Providence Rhode Islands. This program is the legacy of President Obama rise to national politics. In the 70's Walter Annenberg setup the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB). This is a taxpayer funding television under the influence of Jewish Mafia. Walter Annenberg also established within major colleges and universities schools for the study of media communications eg USC – Annenberg School of Communications and at the University of Pennsylvania. After his death part of his media was sold off to Rupert Murdoch's Fox Media and Mitt Romney's Bain Capital.

These videos identify the activities of a Hollywood Gangster Mickey Cohen. One point noted, in the conflict with Jack Dragna. Mr. Dragna owned and operated the Ambassador Hotel. It was here at this hotel under control the Mafia where Robert Kennedy was assassinated June 6, 1968. The supposed Assassin was a Palestinian. This was during the Middle East Tensions, one obvious motive was to incite the US into supporting Israel's position in the Middle East conflict.

message, Governor Brown wrote: "The science is clear that vaccines dramatically protect children against a number of infectious and dangerous diseases. While it's true that no medical intervention is without risk, the evidence shows that immunization powerfully benefits and protects the community." Senate Bill 277 strikes California's personal belief exemption for immunizations, applies to public and private school students and children enrolling in day care. It's among the strictest vaccination guidelines in the country. While medical exemptions would still be granted to children with serious health issues, other unvaccinated children would need to be homeschooled.

Dr. Wakefield talked about his work on the MMR vaccine and bowel disease/autism, including the retribution he personally experienced. He explained the legal issues he became involved in when parents made claims against the vaccine maker whose vaccine injured their children. He came to the conclusion that "these [official] safety studies are totally inadequate." He urged the use of single vaccines instead of the combined MMR vaccine, and in response, vaccine makers stopped making the separate shots.

A recent report published by Health Impact News has reported that the Gates Foundation has found itself facing a pending lawsuit, due to an investigation that is being carried out by the Supreme Courts of India. Health Impact News stated: “While fraud and corruption are revealed on almost a daily basis now in the vaccine industry, the U.S. mainstream media continues to largely ignore such stories. Outside the U.S., however, the vaccine empires are beginning to crumble, and English versions of the news in mainstream media outlets are available via the Internet. One such country is India, where the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation and their vaccine empire are under fire, including a pending lawsuit currently being investigated by the India Supreme Court.” [1]

Nov 16th 2015 – US Senate passed bill S.1203 to mandate that the US Department of Veteran Affairs ensures that all veterans receive immizations per a draconian schedule. At this point active military must receive over a dozen vaccines. This bill is an effort to extend the vaccine mandate to those who previously served. Section 101 of Senate Bill 1203 named the 21st Century Veterans Benefits Delivery Act states the Department of Veterans Affairs will be tasked with the mandate to “ensure tht veterans receiving medical services under chapter 17 of title 39 United States Code, receive each immunization on the recommended adult immunization schedule at the time such immunization is indicated on the schedule. The schedule lists over ninety vaccines. The concern is an entire group of individuals who at one time served will lose their inherent right to opt out of receiving what is considered prophylactic treatment. This can include experimental vaccines not previously tested.

..Ragen would soon become involved in the gang's usual activities including political intimidation, labor slugging and particularly bootlegging during Prohibition. A veteran of Chicago's "circulation wars" during the 1910s, Ragen would work under Moses Annenberg with other future Chicago mobsters such as Maurice Enright, Walter Stevens and Peter Gentleman in "bootjacking" or forcing downtown newspaper stands to sell Chicago American ...Faced with pressure from the Chicago Outfit and the Roosevelt administration, who sought to charge Annenberg with antitrust and income tax evasion charges Annenberg was eventually forced by Democratic political opponents to sell the National News Service to Ragen on November 15, 1939. Ragen however, continued to fend off strong arm tactics of Tony Accardo, Murray Humphreys and Jake Guzik in their attempts to pressure Ragen to sell to the Chicago Outfit. After initial attempts to intimidate Ragen failed, the syndicate began a rival news service based in California, Trans-American Publishing, under the control of Benjamin "Bugsy" Siegel (where bookies were forced to pay up to a daily $100 subscription fee). Another competing syndicate news service, Dan Serritella's Blue Scratch Sheet, was also established in Chicago, however, it soon went out of business. The failure of these news services convinced syndicate leaders to take the National News Service by force. Fearing for his life, Ragen confided in the spring of 1946 in his friend, newspaper reporter and syndicated columnist, Drew Pearson. Pearson took the information he received from Ragen related to the activities and the structure of organized crime in Chicago to his friend, U.S. Attorney General Tom C. Clark and asked Clark for FBI protection for Ragen. In the years that followed, Pearson reported several times on the events leading to Ragen's death and in Pearson's October 26, 1963 column titled, "'Songbird' Was Murdered" ^{[1][2]} he reports that Tom C. Clark had assigned twelve FBI agents provide protection to Ragen in 1946 while they interrogated him in Chicago. After the FBI fact checked Ragen's statements to them, Tom Clark confirmed to Pearson that the facts learned from Ragen were true and the top echelon of the Chicago mob "led to very high places." The names of seemingly respected politicians and businessmen revealed by Ragen to the FBI were words familiar to every Chicago household and some believed they had reformed, but Pearson wrote, "Yet they still controlled the mob." Pearson added that Tom C. Clark's Justice Department had no federal jurisdiction to prosecute the suspects Ragen named and after completing their questioning of Ragen and verifying his claims, the FBI withdrew their protection of him. In the book titled, "The Drew Pearson Diaries" published five years after Pearson died in 1969, his stepson compiled and edited information contained in Pearson's investigative files. Included in the book is the additional details Pearson said Tom C. Clark and J. Edgar Hoover had learned from Ragen.: "...it led to very high places. J. Edgar Hoover intimated the same thing. He said the people Ragen pointed to had now reformed. I learned later that it pointed to the Hilton hotel chain, Henry Crown, the big Jewish financier in Chicago [involved in Cook County real estate deals with Jake Arvey, the local democratic political boss], and Walter Annenberg son of the prewar wire service owner [Moses Annenberg.]"

Warner Music Group chairman receives €5m fine for insider trading, while Jean-Marie Messier is convicted of another offence The Warner Music Group chairman, Edgar Bronfman Jr, was convicted today of insider trading and fined €5m (£4.2m) over his conduct as vice-chairman of French company Vivendi nearly a decade ago. Jean-Marie Messier, the former Vivendi chief executive, was convicted on charges of misleading investors by the same Paris court. Bronfman Jr, who was vice-chairman of Vivendi until 2003, received a 15-month suspended sentence and a €5m fine. Messier, the former high-flying chief executive who from the mid-1990s to 2002 built Vivendi from a French water utility company into a global media giant, received a three-year suspended sentence and a €150,000 fine. The convictions relate to the period from 2000 to 2002, at the tail end of a $77bn (£48bn) acquisition spree masterminded by Messier, which turned Vivendi into a multimedia giant spanning music, film, video games and TV. Vivendi acquired Seagram, which owned companies including Universal Studios and Canal Plus, in 2000 in a deal that made the Bronfman family Vivendi's largest shareholder, with Bronfman Jr becoming a vice-chairman of the French company. The purchase of more than 20 businesses saddled Vivendi with massive debt and brought the company close to bankruptcy, forcing an asset sell-off following Messier's departure. Both men said they would appeal against the decision. Former Vivendi chief financial officer Guillaume Hannezo, also a defendant, was fined €850,000 and received a 15-month suspended sentence. Bronfman Jr said he was "disappointed" with the decision, pointing out that the Paris public prosecutor last year recommended that the criminal charges be dropped for a lack of evidence that investors were misled. "I will appeal today's decision to the Paris court of appeal and continue to vigorously defend myself against this charge," he said in a statement. "As I have consistently stated, my trades were proper." Warner Music Group said that it had been "thoroughly briefed on the underlying facts" and continued to back Bronfman Jr. "The board of directors is disappointed with the decision in this matter, and fully supports Mr Bronfman as he appeals this verdict," said Scott Sperling, chair of the music company's executive governance and nominating committee.

13.4.3 Walt Disney

13.6 Crucifixion of Michael Jackson via Lansky’s Alvin Malnik

The story of Michael Jackson has one interesting point. Jackson acquired ownership of the media for the Beatles and Elvis Presley. Afterwards Alvin Malnik connected with Jackson socially. On Malnik’s Web site he states his ties to Meyer Lansky and Sinatra both of which have underworld ties to media concerns. Louis Farrakhan spoke up about how Hollywood went after Jackson in his story “The Crucifixion of Michael Jackson”. The apparent objective was to obtain control of the Media of the Beatles and Elvis Presley from Michael Jackson.

"Contrary to popular belief, I (Al Malnik) never worked for Meyer Lansky. I knew him, and he was a good friend who I spent a lot of time with, but I never represented him in legal matters. To me, Meyer was quite the grandfather type. If you knew him and talked to him, you could never imagine that any of the stories you heard about him had any veracity. You could never imagine that he was responsible for doing the things people said he did. He was not a person to give into rage."

14 The Jews Behind the Internet - Freedom Research, June 2009

- http://radioislam.org/islam/english/jewishp/internet/jews_behind_internet.htm

In the following document we will give an insight into the Jewish penetration of the Internet and also show the level of cooperation between leading Jewish Internet entrepreneurs and the racist Jewish Apartheid state of Israel. The Jews - contrary to the "liberal" views they officially say they profess - in their suppressive acts practically demonstrate that they always seek to dominate the information flow, they don't tolerate any dissent. It is just as when Israel says "Shalom" while Israel's military at the very same time pounds its Arab neighbour states with bombs and missiles. The Arabs have learnt the hard way the falsehood of these Jewish statements, it is now time for the rest of the non-Jewish world to get this right, and to see that the freedom of information on the Net is seriously threatened. This document will not cover the entire field. Also, as it is time bound to an analysis that is from a 2009 perspective - things will change. Companies will change names, new actors will appear. But still this piece of work is unique and will give a guide into the mechanisms behind the Net, mechanisms that will continue to act even in the future. And as many of these Jewish entrepreneurs are rather young and the Internet seems to be here to stay, we will hear from them for a long time onward.

WARNING: Please note that the contents of some of the sites with revealing Jewish material we have linked to below, may be altered by the Jews in the future. Perhaps even information contrary to this document and Radio Islam will replace the original material we had linked to. This has happened before and for our part just illustrates the level of Jewish dishonesty.

The Jewish site SomethingJewish.co.uk writes in a review by Marcus J. Freed of the book "Richistan", 05/09/2007 on "the Jewish boys from Google": The global economy is vastly different to 40 years ago and today's new billionaires include the Jewish boys from Google, Sergey Brin and Larry Page, along with thousands of other 'instapreneurs'. Larry Page - who shares the title of Google President even has an Israeli family connection. B'nai B'rith Magazine, paper of one of the mightiest Jewish organizations, writes in their article "The Searchmasters", spring 2006, on "...Larry Page, whose mother Gloria is Jewish". The Magazine continues: Larry's maternal grandfather, however, followed a much different path. He was an early settler in Israel, making aliyah in the spartan desert town of Arad.

SomethingJewish.co.uk writes 24/05/2007:

The world's wealthiest Jewish bachelor is no more. Sergey Brin, co-founder of search giant Google and worth over $16bn got hitched to his long-time love Anne Wojcicki earlier this month in the Bahamas, but so secret was the wedding, that it has only recently been confirmed. According to a report in the San Jose Mercury News, the wedding took place under a chuppah with both Brin and Wojcicki confirming their commitment to the Jewish faith, though no rabbi is said to have officiated at the ceremony. Wojcicki, is the sister of Susan Wojcicki who gave Google office space to start the business. In 2001, Brin's mother Eugenia commented she hoped he would find a Jewish bride. "I hope he would keep that in mind," she said. Wojcicki, who has a background in biotechnology, has been active in Jewish projects and currently sits on the board of Reboot, a venture that engages Jews to explore their culture. Recently, Wojcicki launched a biotech company 23andMe which has seen Google itself invest several million dollars into it.

14.1.2 Google's Justin Rosenstein and Dustin Moskowitz

Justin Rosenstein was a top engineer at Google serving three years as Google's Product Manager for Page Creator. Rosenstein was one of the first employees that Facebook's Jewish boss Mark Zuckerberg poached from Google as Facebook began its rise in 2007. In 2008 Rosenstein left Facebook with Facebook's likewise Jewish co-founder, Dustin Moskowitz, to form a new company.

14.1.3 Google's Sheryl Sandberg

- o http://www.paloaltojcc.org/index.php?src=gendocs&ref=Rambam's%20Ladder%20Award%20Dinner%20and%20Auction%202009&category=Special%20Events&submenu=Special_Events

Another Jewish profile who has been important in the shaping of Google is Sheryl Sandberg. Sandberg was Google Vice President of Global Online Sales & Operations, a position from where she built and managed the online sales channels for advertising and publishing and operations for consumer products globally. Sandberg was behind Google's AdWords, and sat in the board of Google's philanthropic arm Google.org. Before Google, Sandberg worked for the Jew Lawrence Summers, first when he was Chief Economist of the World Bank, then as his Chief of Staff when Summers was Treasury Secretary in the Clinton Administration. The Jewish Chronicle (December 4, 2008) ran an article on the book "Jewish Wisdom for Business Success" - a book by Rabbi Levi Brackman and Jewish journalist Sam Jaffe - where they argue that the Torah and ancient rabbinic texts are not simply guides for holy living, they can also provide helpful career advice. The Jewish Chronicle writes: Their book combines tips on good business practice gleaned from the Bible, Midrash and Kabbalah with examples of success stories such as Andy Klein, who quit corporate law to start a brewery and ended up with an investment bank, or Sheryl Sandberg, who rose to become vice president for global sales for Google. And while there are role models to emulate, there are also ones to avoid: Pharaoh the gas ruach (man of coarse spirit) or Korah, the ba'al ga'avah, the arrogant egotist. As Vice President of Google's Global Sales Sandberg was behind the AdWords project which links paid advertisements to search results, a gadget that allowed Google to turn their search engine into "extremely profitable business", as Rabbi Levi Brackman and journalist Sam Jaffe write in their book "Jewish Wisdom for Business Success", p. 2. They have the case of Sheryl Sandberg in the first chapter in their book as an example of Jewish business success. In the same p. 2 of their book: Early in 2008, she left Google to become the second-in-command of Facebook, the emerging social-networking company. Sheryl Sandberg - Jewish "second-in-command of Facebook" - is presently Chief Operating Officer at Facebook. As COO, Sandberg is responsible for helping Facebook scale its operations and expand its presence globally. Sandberg manages sales, marketing, business development, human resources, public policy, privacy and communications and reports directly to Facebook's Jewish CEO Mark Zuckerberg.

Sheryl Sandberg is well connected to the Jewish community and the "philanthropy" business, a favourite Jewish pastime where they can take a small part of their enormous wealth gained from the "goyim" and put it in small projects completely after their taste, to show how humane, generous and openminded they are. Sandberg was thus with Daniel Sokatch, CEO of the Jewish Community Federation of San Francisco, on a joint venture "addressing global poverty and social justice issues through philanthropy", December 10, 2008. She also sponsors Jewish activities at for instance the Joshman Family Jewish Community Center, a center that not so surprisingly also has an "Israel connection", as their website says. The Joshman Center writes on this "Israel connection": Our mission is to strengthen relationships between American Jews and the Israeli émigré community and to build a deeper connection to Israel. Sandberg was included in Fortune's 50 Most Powerful Women of 2007. She is married to former Yahoo! music head David Goldberg with whom she has two children.

14.1.4 More Google Jews - Elliot Schrage and Ethan Beard

The Jew Elliot Schrage was since 2005 Google's Vice President of Communications and Public Affairs, the man who ran Google's PR. He had this important position until May 2008 when he left for Facebook to work under the same role. At Google, he broadened the company's messaging from a focus on only product PR to include all aspects of corporate, financial, policy, philanthropic and internal communications. Before Google Schrage served as a Senior Fellow at the Council on Foreign Relations, the Zionist infested "public policy think tank". Schrage together with the Jewish US Holocaust Museum launched the Darfur tool to Google Earth (see article U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum and Google Join in Online Darfur Mapping Initiative http://www.google.com/intl/en/press/pressrel/darfur_mapping.html): The United States Holocaust Memorial Museum today joined with Google (NASDAQ: GOOG) to unveil an unprecedented online mapping initiative aimed at furthering awareness and action in the Darfur region of Sudan. Crisis in Darfur, enables more than 200 million Google Earth™ mapping service users worldwide to visualize and better understand the genocide currently unfolding in Darfur. The Museum has assembled content—photographs, data and eyewitness testimony—from a number of sources that are brought together for the first time in Google Earth. This information will appear as a Global Awareness layer in Google Earth starting today. Google Earth's Elliot Schrage, Vice President, Global Communications and Public Affairs, joined Museum Director Sara J. Bloomfield and Darfurian Daowd Salih at the launch. Crisis in Darfur is the first project of the Museum's Genocide Prevention Mapping Initiative that will over time include information on potential genocides allowing citizens, governments and institutions to access information on atrocities in their nascent stages and respond. "Educating today's generation about the atrocities of the past and present can be enhanced by technologies such as Google Earth," says Bloomfield. "When it comes to responding to genocide, the world's record is terrible. We hope this important initiative with Google will make it that much harder for the world to ignore those who need us the most." "At Google, we believe technology can be a catalyst for education and action," said Elliot Schrage, Google Vice President, Global Communications and Public Affairs. "Crisis in Darfur will enable Google Earth users to visualize and learn about the destruction in Darfur as never before and join the Museum's efforts in responding to this continuing international catastrophe." Of course spreading the knowledge of Israel's genocidal destruction of Palestinian infrastructure in Gaza in the 2009 assault is not part of this education

Another actor is Ethan Beard who was Google's Director of Social Media. He has since left for Facebook to become Director of Facebook's Business Development and then Facebook's Director of Platform marketing. There are indications that he is Jewish

14.1.5 Google's Israeli Vice President of Engineering

Google's Vice President of Engineering, Udi Manber, is Israeli and a graduate from the Israel's Technion Institute in Haifa. He has a long record of top jobs in Internet related positions. Manber became the chief scientist at Yahoo! in 1998. In 2002, he joined Amazon.com, where he became "chief algorithms officer" and a Vice President. He was later appointed CEO of the Amazon subsidiary company A9.com, where he led the company's A9 search engine work. (Please see an article on Amazon's support for Israel.) In 2006, Manber was hired by Google as one of Google's Vice Presidents of Engineering. In December 2007, he announced Knol, Google's new project to create a knowledge repository. Manber as a senior Google operative, interacts with the Judeo-Zionist community. Here is an advertisement which discloses how Google's Manber will sit with a Rabbi and discuss Talmud and the Web

This will be followed by a discussion with Dan Schiffrin, the Museum's director of public programs and writer in residence. Advertisement for the event was also made in the Jewish Weekly:

14.1.6 Google's Jewish guru of giving

- <http://www.financialexpress.com/news/googles-guru-of-giving/265113/0>

In the article "Google's guru of giving" January 24, 2008, The Financial Express details Larry Brilliant. Dr Brilliant led the Internet giant's philanthropic arm Google.org, where he ruled over a 40-strong team: As well as adopting the informal company motto, "Don't be evil", the internet search firm's co-founders, Sergey Brin and Larry Page, decided to commit Google to engage in serious philanthropy. Innovative as ever, they created a new sort of philanthropic entity, a division of the company that could pursue its mission through both for-profit investing and making charitable grants. This, they hoped, would one day "eclipse Google itself in overall world impact by ambitiously applying innovation and significant resources to the largest of the world's problems." It would be funded with 1% of the firm's equity, annual profits and employees' time. In February 2006, after a lengthy search, Dr Brilliant was appointed to run Google.org. Media reports focused on the old hippy's colourful past, not least his spell as a doctor with the Grateful Dead, a legendary 1960s rock band. What attracted his new employers was his unique record of success both in running Silicon Valley tech firms and in implementing large-scale solutions to big social problems...

Though he has taken nearly two years to produce a strategy for Google.org, Dr Brilliant has not been taking things easy. He may have added a taste for Hindu meditation to his Detroit Jewish roots (he once shared a guru with Apple's boss, Steve Jobs), but he is a driven man, travelling widely and seeking advice from hundreds of people, pushing himself harder than friends say is wise for a sexagenarian. When he arrived at Google.org he found extraordinarily high expectations, a blank sheet of paper to fill with a strategy, and "microscopic attention" from outside on what it was doing. During his time as Google's philanthropic boss Brilliant combined his work with his dedication for Jews and Judaism. For instance Brilliant, as Executive Director of Google.org, appeared as a speaker at the Jewish Community Federation in San Francisco's Business Leadership Council Breakfast meeting. February 28, 2007. According to the organization's homepage

- <http://www.sjcf.org/aboutjcf/press/2007/brilliant.asp>

Larry Brilliant, Executive Director of Google.org, will share his vision for "Healing a Broken World" with attendees at the second annual Business Leadership Council Breakfast on Wednesday, February 28, 2007...

Dr. Larry Brilliant is the Executive Director of Google.org, the umbrella organization which includes the Google Foundation as well as partnerships with and contributions to for-profit and nonprofit entities...

Sponsored by AT&T and Levisohn Venture Partners, this special BLC event is open to all donors who contribute $1,000 or more to the 2007 San Francisco-based Jewish Community Federation's Annual Campaign. Donors under the age of 40 who contribute $500 are also welcome. The Jewish Community Federation is the central organization for fundraising, planning, outreach and leadership development for Jewish communities in San Francisco, the Peninsula, and Marin and Sonoma counties. In fiscal year 2006, the Federation's annual campaign allocated $18.3 million to some 60 agencies providing social services, educational and cultural programs in the Bay Area, in the U.S., Israel and elsewhere in the world. In fiscal year 2006, the Federation's Endowment Fund, with assets exceeding $1.8 billion, provided more than $203 million for a variety of grants, seed projects and emergency needs. For more information, call (415)777-0411 or visit

- www.sjcf.org

So here we can see how the Google boss fraternizes with an organization that is interrelated to the Zionist state. In April 2009 Larry Brilliant, after 3 years at Google, said he was parting ways with the Internet giant, leaving Google.org to join a new organization set up by former eBay President and Jew, Jeff Skoll. But Dr Brilliant also said he would remain as an advisor to

14.1.7 Google's Israel connections

Here follows a most revealing article on how Google's Sergey Brin, Facebook's Mark Zuckerberg and Yahoo's President Susan Decker, are invited by the Israeli leadership to Israel, during Israel's 60th anniversary celebrations: Facebook, Google founders to attend Jerusalem conference in May By Guy Grimland, Ha'aretz Correspondent Ha'aretz 01/04/2008 Co-founder of internet giant Google, Sergey Brin, will join Facebook founder Mark Zuckerberg, and Yahoo president Susan Decker at a presidential panel on technology to be held at the Jerusalem International Convention Center May 13-15. The convention, which was formed at the initiative of President Shimon Peres, will also be attended by a number of Israeli political, religious and financial leaders, as well as academics and cultural figures. The panel will discuss issues facing technology in today's age and the future, in particular in regard to how it will affect Israel and the Jewish world. Former UK prime minister Tony Blair will also take part in the conference, as will French Foreign Minister Bernard Kouchner, former U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, former prime minister of the Czech Republic Václav Havel, Nobel Prize Laureate Eli Wiesel, and Georgia President Michael Saakashvili The Israel News Agency also writes

In attendance, in addition to many national presidents and heads of state will be dignitaries from the worlds of business and academia. Among them are Sergey Brin, founder of Google and Susan Decker of Yahoo. Dr. Miriam and Sheldon Adelson will be serving as the honorary chairpersons for the Israel 60th Birthday Presidential Conference which has enthusiastically attracted the attention of Jewish leaders and others worldwide. And B'nei B'rith Magazine are also happy with the representation:

I was particularly impressed with the large numbers of young people in attendance, representing Israeli universities and aliyah organizations like MASA. At the conclusion of the panel discussion moderated by Israeli entrepreneur Yossi Vardi and featuring, among others, Brin, the co-founder of Google; Susan Decker of Yahoo; and Rupert Murdoch, several dozen young adults crowded on stage to meet the speakers—and more than one business card was exchanged. We write more on the Zionists attending this conference in our section on Yahoo!.

14.1.8 Israel's Shimon Peres receives 3D Tour of His Life at Google

Israeli site YNet News writes in an article 8th March 2012: Google founder provides president with virtual tour of important milestones in his life during his visit to Silicon Valley. Peres asks Brin to 'deepen cooperation with Israel's R&D centers. President Shimon Peres met with Google founder Sergey Brin on Thursday, during a tour of Google Headquarters in California. Peres is on a four-day trip through Silicon Valley, where he will promote Israel's hi-tech industry. During his visit, Peres received a virtual tour of his childhood neighborhood in Poland with the help of Google Earth's 3D satellite software. The virtual tour, which was displayed on five 3D screens, began in Peres' place of birth – Vishneva (known today as Belarus). Brin continued the tour with a virtual glimpse of the moon, where the two were able to look at a computerized model of the "Apollo 11" spacecraft. A statement by the President's Office said that during the tour, Peres requested to look over Israel and Jerusalem, the Western Wall and the Church of Mary Magdalene, all in 3D. Following the tour, Brin and Peres held a meeting in which Brin showed Peres some other technological developments. Peres reportedly asked his host to expand the cooperation with Israel's R&D centers. Throughout his four-day visit to Silicone Valley, President Peres also met with Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg on Tuesday, who helped him launch a personal page on Facebook. In addition, Peres also answered questions from the site's users and launched a YouTube video clip meant to promote his Facebook page. See also a revealing Youtube clip of the event:

14.1.9 Google's Business Cooperation with Israel

Ha'aretz online edition 15/05/2008, writes: Google co-founder lauds Israeli innovation in tech, environment By Lior Kodner, Haaretz Correspondent and Haaretz Service. Google co-founder Sergey Brin on Thursday lauded Israeli innovations in technology and environmental efforts, saying Israel "takes our climate challenges very seriously." Brin, visiting as a delegate to President Shimon Peres' Presidential Conference, told Haaretz that these challenges have "great geopolitical ramifications on this country, in addition to environmental ones." He noted that Israel's leading efforts in the field of sustainable energy, saying: "Obviously in Israel they need to innovate with water and things like that. I was really intrigued to see drip irrigation. I just realized that came out of Israel." Brin gave particular attention to Israel's work in environmentally friendly transportation. A prototype of the world's first fully electric car was demonstrated for the first time on Sunday in Tel Aviv, by Israeli entrepreneur Shai Agassi. Developers hope the car will revolutionize transportation in the country and serve as a pilot for the rest of the world. If all goes as planned, Israel will be the first country to have electric cars on its highways in large numbers in the next few years. Brin also spoke about new projects ongoing at Google, including the "huge range of efforts" being made on mobile technology and the patience needed in the field. "I think it takes a while to develop the technology, to develop, to educate advertisers about it," he said. "We have to bootstrap everything. our search based targeted ads took a number of years and people are expecting overnight that you work a miracle. It is a combination of technology, advertising networks, and user expectations. All those things have to come together and that takes time," he said. During his visit, Brin toured Jewish sites, including the Western Wall in the Old City of Jerusalem. Google co-founder Sergey Brin, attending the World Economic Forum in Davos, announced the establishment of an R&D center in Israel. Ha'aretz 30/01/2006 writes:

14.1.10 Google founder plans R&D center in Israel

By Guy Rolnik DAVOS, Switzerland – Google "is in the process of establishing an R&D center in Israel," Sergey Brin, a founder of the Internet search titan, told Haaretz during the World Economic Forum here. Brin and co-founder Larry Page were among the more visible participants at the economic conference. Both have a solid connection with Israeli entrepreneurs in the Internet field. A Google executive told Haaretz that the company had recently recruited a large number of academics, engineers, mathematicians, statisticians and economists for additional development of the company's search engine algorithm and its smart ad systems on the Net. There is still a shortage of quality personnel for developing analytic tools and predicting the massive volume of information accumulated on the search engine...Last summer, Google decided to establish a local marketing and sales branch in Israel to bolster its advertising revenues in the Israel market. Google hired Meir Brand to head its Israel office, choosing a former Microsoft executive just as it had done in China...Ha'aretz interview with Sergey Brin in Israel, May 29, 2008.. This is Brin's third visit to Israel. The first time was with his parents, when he was still a teenager, and the second was in September 2003, when Google was still a relatively small, privately owned company. Last week, however, Brin arrived here as the head of one of the largest and most influential companies in the world. How has Israel changed since your previous visits? "It's pretty impressive just to see how the tech industry has continued to grow. The development, kind of just looking at the city of Tel Aviv. I mean, there are a bunch of buildings. Maybe I'm crazy, but I feel like there are lots of buildings that weren't here when I was here last. And I've just seen some of the companies and their state of development, the levels developed here - it's just incredible."... Did your family ever consider immigrating to Israel? "Boy, I need to ask them that. In fact, my great-grandmother lived in the U.S. for a period of time, so we did have some ties to the U.S. I think my dad actually had a colleague who had moved to the U.S., who had given him greater certainty [with respect to] the job market. And those were the big factors. But I can ask. My parents are here with me - I mean, not in the office, but in Israel." In hindsight, considering what you see now in the U.S. and Israel, if your parents had come here, do you think we would have Google today? [Laughs] "Look, I've been very lucky in my life, and I'm sure there've been lots of random circumstances that have contributed to that, so I probably would not be the first to change it. But looking at the kinds of innovation and development that I see here now, I certainly think it's possible to enjoy great success coming to Israel."

14.1.11 Google's cooperation with Jewish censors

Below are some articles illustrating how Google assists Jewish Internet censorship. The articles show that Google follows dictates from ADL and the Zionist Organization of America, that Google "robots" censor pro-Palestinian bloggers, and that sites like Radio Islam are censored.

Here we will give attention to one extra article to show how the Zionist organization ADL cooperates with Google. In 2007 a conference was held in Israel with ADL, the International Network Against Cyberhate, and Google's Israel Director Meir Brand.Ha'aretz, 12/11/2007, writes: Organizers of the conference representing the Anti-Defamation League, a Jewish group that counters anti-Semitism, brought examples of anti-Jewish hate material freely available on the Internet, and participants called for more action to stop it... He [Meir Brand] said Google removes results from its search index only when required to by law, for example, when copyright infringement is an issue. In Germany and Austria, he said, Google removes Nazi content, which is against the law there. Recognizing the problem, however, Google has instituted a warning system for hate entries, taking viewers to a page warning that some of the search results may be offensive, and noting that opinions expressed do not necessarily reflect Google's views. Just as a small reminder ADL's Director Abraham Foxman was one of many top Jewish dignitaries in Israel celebrating Israel's 60th Anniversary back in 2008.

14.1.12 Google Addendum Updates

Excerpts from the article "Sergey Brin: the Google revolutionary", by Mark Malseed, The Jewish Chronicle, April 6, 2007 the complete article can be read [here]:

"This intensity emerges during weekly strategy meetings, where he and Page — who share the title of Google president — command the last word on approving new products, reviewing new hires and funding long-term research. Brin also holds sway over the unscientific but all-important realms of people, policy and politics." "Brin's Jewish sensibility is, likewise, grounded in his family's experience of life in the Soviet Union, and their eventual emigration to the United States. "I do somewhat feel like a minority," he says. "Being Jewish, especially in Russia, is one aspect of that. Then, being an immigrant in the US. And then, since I was significantly ahead in maths in school, being the youngest one in a class. I never felt like a part of the majority. So I think that is part of the Jewish heritage in a way." "As a young boy, though, he had only a vague awareness of why his family wanted to leave their native Russia. He picked up the ugly details of the antisemitism they faced bit by bit years later, he says. Nevertheless, he sensed, early on, all of the things that he wasn't - he wasn't Russian; he wasn't welcome in his own country; he wasn't going to get a fair shake in advancing through its schools. Further complicating his understanding of his Jewish identity was the fact that, under the atheist Soviet regime, there were few religious or cultural models of what being Jewish was. The negatives were all he had." "For many Soviet Jews, exit visas never came. But, in May 1979, the Brins were granted papers to leave the USSR. "We hoped it would happen," Genia says, "but we were completely surprised by how quickly it did." The timing was fortuitous - they were among the last Jews allowed to leave until the Gorbachev era. Sergey Brin, who turned six that summer, remembers what followed as simply unsettling" - literally so. "We were in different places from day to day," he says. The journey was a blur. First Vienna, where the family was met by representatives of the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society, which helped thousands of Eastern European Jews establish new lives in the West. Then, on to the suburbs of Paris, where Michael's "unofficial" Jewish PhD adviser, Anatole Katok, had arranged a temporary research position for him. "One thing the Brins shared with thousands of other families emigrating to the West from the Soviet Union was the discovery that, suddenly, they were free to be Jews. "Russian Jews lacked the vocabulary to even articulate what they were feeling," says Lenny Gusel, the founder of a San Francisco-based network of Russian-Jewish immigrants. "They were considered Jews back home. Here, they were considered Russians. Many longed just to assimilate as Americans." Gusel's group, which he calls the "79ers", after the peak year of immigration in the 1970s, and its New York cousin, RJeneration, have attracted hundreds of 20- and 30-something immigrants who grapple with their Jewish identity. "Sergey is the absolute emblem of our group, the number one Russian-Jewish immigrant success story," he says. The Brins were no different from their fellow immigrants in that being Jewish was an ethnic, not a religious, experience. "We felt our Jewishness in different ways, not by keeping kosher or going to synagogue. It is genetic," explains Sergey's father Michael. "We were not very religious. My wife doesn't eat on Yom Kippur; I do." Genia interjects: "We always have a Passover dinner. We have a Seder. I have the recipe for gefilte fish from my grandmother." Religious or not, on arriving in the suburbs of Washington, the Brins were adopted by a synagogue, Mishkan Torah of Greenbelt, Maryland, which helped them acquire furnishings for their home. "We didn't need that much, but we saw how much the community helped other families," Genia says. Sergey attended Hebrew school at Mishkan Torah for almost three years but hated the language instruction - and everything else, too. "He was teased there by other kids and he begged us not to send him any more," his other remembers. "Eventually, it worked." the Conservative congregation turned out to be too religious for the Brins and they drifted. When a three-week trip to Israel awakened 11-year-old Sergey's interest in all things Jewish, the family inquired at another synagogue about restarting studies to prepare for a barmitzvah. But the rabbi said it would take more than a year to catch up and Sergey abandoned the pursuit. If there was one Jewish value the Brin family upheld without reservation, Michael says, it was scholarship." "What came next is Google legend. In the spring of 1995, Sergey met an opinionated computer-science student from the University of Michigan named Larry Page. They argued over the course of two days, each finding the other cocky and obnoxious. They also formed an instant bond, relishing the intellectual combat. Like Sergey, Larry is the son of high-powered intellects steeped in computer science. The two young graduate students also share a Jewish background. Larry's maternal grandfather made aliyah, and his mother was raised Jewish. Larry, however, brought up in the mould of his father, a computer-science professor whose religion was technology, does not readily identify as a Jew. He, too, never had a barmitzvah. Larry and Sergey soon began working on ways to harness information on the web, spending so much time together that they took on a joint identity, LarryandSergey." "Their venture quickly bore fruit. After viewing a quick demo, Sun Microsystems co-founder Andy Bechtolsheim (himself a Jewish immigrant from Germany) wrote a $100,000 cheque to "Google, Inc". "They are without a doubt two of the most eligible bachelors on Google Earth, but both are reported to be in serious relationships - Sergey is reportedly engaged to Anne Wojcicki, a healthcare investor and the sister of Google executive Susan Wojcicki, who owned the garage where Google got started. In a 2001 interview, Genia said she hoped Sergey would find "somebody exciting who could be really interesting to him... [who] had a sense of humour that could match his". As one might expect, she also prefers that Sergey marry a Jewish girl. "I hope that he would keep it in mind," she confided. "The Ten Commandments it is not, but Google does operate with a moral code of sorts. "Don't be evil" is the maxim supposed to guide behaviour at all levels of the company. When pressed for clarification, Google chief executive officer Eric Schmidt has famously said: "Evil is whatever Sergey says is evil." One malevolent practice, in Google's view, is tampering with or otherwise censoring the list of results produced by a Google search. An early test of the Google founders' commitment to providing unfiltered information struck very close to home. The antisemitic website Jew Watch appeared prominently in Google results for searches on the term "Jew", prompting Jewish groups to demand that Google remove the site from the top of its listings. Google refused. Sergey said at the time: "I certainly am very offended by the site, but the objectivity of our rankings is one of our very important principles." As a compromise, Google displays a warning at the top of questionable pages. "Viewed against the backdrop of Sergey's distaste for authority, the decision to cave in to China's totalitarian leadership seems out of character. Sergey's public comments on the matter have evolved to reflect this contradiction. While defending the decision at first, he later acknowledged that Google had "compromised" its principles. "Perhaps now the principled approach makes more sense," he has said, but adding: "It's not where we chose to go right now." Does a company founded by two Jews, no matter how assimilated, necessarily retain some defining Jewish characteristics? The Google masterminds' penchant for pushing boundaries - without asking permission - might as well be called chutzpah. However you label it, it is an attitude that runs deeply through Google and may help explain why the company is embroiled in lawsuits over many of its new projects: the aggressive scanning of library books it does not own; display of copyrighted material; and copyright issues connected to its acquisition of YouTube, the online video site whose popularity rests in part on the availability of pirated television and movie clips. Google's first employee and several other early hires were Jewish and, when the initial winter-holiday season rolled around, a menorah rather than a Christmas tree graced the lobby. Google's former chef, Charlie Ayers, cooked up latkes, brisket, tzimmes and matzah-ball soup for Chanukah meals and turned the Passover Seder into a Google tradition. To some, Google's emphasis on academic achievement - hiring only the best and the brightest and employing hundreds of PhDs - could be considered Jewish. So, perhaps, could "Don't be evil". With its hint of tikkun olam, the Kabbalistic concept of "repairing the world", it reflects the company's commitment to aggressive philanthropy. "Nevertheless, he and his parents do support a few charities. "There are people who helped me and my family out. I do feel responsible to those organizations," he says. One of them is Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society, the group that helped the Brins come to the United States. Genia serves on its board and heads its project to create a digital record of Jewish-immigrant archives. Has Sergey been a target of antisemitism since he left the Soviet Union? "I've experienced it," he says. "Usually, it is fairly subtle. People arp on about all the media companies being run by Jewish executives, with the implication of a conspiracy... I think I'm fortunate that it doesn't really affect me personally, but there are hints of it all around. That's why I think it is worth noting." "Several years ago, Sergey and Larry visited a school for gifted maths students near Tel Aviv. When they took to the stage, the audience roared, as if they were rock stars. Every student there, many of them, like Sergey, immigrants, from the former Soviet Union, knew of Google. Sergey began, to the crowd's delight, with a few words in Russian, which he still speaks at home with his parents. "I have standard Russian-Jewish parents," he then continued in English. "My dad is a maths professor. They have a certain attitude about studies. And I think I can relate that here, because I was told that your school recently got seven out of the top 10 places in a maths competition throughout all Israel." The students applauded their achievement and the recognition from Sergey, unaware that he was setting up a joke. "What I have to say," he continued, "is in the words of my father: 'What about the other three?'" The students laughed. They knew where he was coming from. That Sergey has parlayed his skills into unimaginable business success does not mean those "standard Russian-Jewish parents" are ready to let him off the academic hook."

14.2 Facebook

He met Mark Zuckerberg in 2002 after they had joined the same fraternity which primarily concentrated on activities within the Jewish community. 'We ate Shabbat dinner together,' Hasit said. 'Every year we raised money for charities in Israel. Mark was one of the members of the fraternity, like many other Jewish students at Harvard.' Hasit, who wears a skullcap, says the 25-year-old Zuckerberg feels an affinity with Judaism. 'He fasts on Yom Kippur,' Hasit says of Zuckerberg. 'Sometimes he would come to the Hillel House, a Jewish organization that ran various activities.' ". The Jew Ariel Hasit, who now has joined the Israeli Defense Forces, on his personal experience of the Jewish Facebook founder and CEO, Mark Zuckerberg, Ha'aretz, 10/05/2009.

The popular social networking site Facebook, launched in February 2004, has a 100% Jewish founder and CEO, Mark Zuckerberg. Jews readily boast about this fact. The Jewish ethnocentrist site Jew or Not Jew: Choosing the Chosen People, see logo below, have a special entry for Zuckerberg (as they have for Google's Sergey Brin and Larry Page), where Zuckerberg gets their "Jew Score" total of 12 (4 + 4 + 4).

- <http://www.jewornotjew.com/profile.jsp?ID=369>.

The site, which should be regarded as some case of internal Jewish humour, explains the meaning of this score: We evaluate how Jewish a person is based on three factors. How Jewish they are internally, how Jewish they are externally and how much we want that person to be a Jew in the first place. In practice, the I Score tends to refer to birth history with some adjustments for how we imagine they see/saw themselves. The O Score is for how Jewish they look and act. The K Score stands for Kvell (pride) and is subject to the whims of the creators of this website. The Jew Score refers to our opinion only and is affected by but not definitive of one's actual Jewishness. The site of the World Jewish Digest, as another example, also counts Mark Zuckerberg as one of their examples of Jewish influentials in their list "10 to watch in 2008 - WJS's shortlist to Jewish standouts". Zuckerberg, "born into a well-to-do Jewish-American family in Dobbs Ferry, N.Y", gets the ranking place of 3 in their list of 10 influential Jews.

14.2.1.1 Zuckerberg's Jewish entourage at Facebook

The New York Times, May 13, 2009, reported: The Israeli newspaper Haaretz noted that "Facebook was founded by Mark Zuckerberg, a Jewish former Harvard University student." Mr. Schnitt [a Facebook spokesman] told ABC that while some employees of the social-networking service came from families marked by the Holocaust, that was not influencing their decision: Many of us at Facebook have direct personal connection to the Holocaust, through parents who were forced to flee Europe or relatives who could not escape. We believe in Facebook's mission that giving people tools to make the world more open is a better way to combat ignorance or deception than censorship, though we recognize that others, including those at the company, disagree. So here we learn from the Facebook spokesman Mr. Schnitt that "many of us at Facebook have direct personal connection to the Holocaust", which of course means nothing else than that they are Jewish. So who are these Jewish actors? To begin with, in the absolute beginning, when Zuckerberg decided to spread his new Facebook project to other schools than Harvard, he enlisted help from his Jewish friend Dustin Moskovitz. Moskovitz then became the Vice President of Engineering of Facebook. They got their first funding from another Jew, German-born technology entrepreneur Peter Thiel, one of the founders of PayPal. We here recommend reading an article from the The Guardian \(14 Jan, 2008\) on the people behind Facebook which has more information on Thiel. The Guardian concludes:

- "... the real face behind Facebook is the 40-year-old Silicon Valley venture capitalist and futurist philosopher Peter Thiel."

As a typical Jewish ethnocentrist Thiel prefers to deal with other Jews. His business partner with whom he who founded PayPal is the Ukrainian-born now-American Jew Max Rafael Levchin. Other Jews Thiel is interacting with are David Sacks, PayPal's former chief operating officer, and George Zachary, "a friend of Max and Peter's" and partner of the Jew Ed Skoll from eBay. Below follows an excerpt from "Once You're Lucky, Twice You're Good: The Rebirth of Silicon Valley and the Rise of Web 2.0", by Sarah Lacy. on Thiel's "PayPal mafia"

- <http://www.metroactive.com/metro/06.11.08/cover-supermen-0824.html>

The PayPal mafia even had Hollywood success. Jeff Skoll was one of the first eBay executives who became friends with the PayPal crew when eBay bought the company in 2002. He started up Participant Productions on a lark, and it has been one of the most profitable productions companies in Hollywood. Among its first four films were Syriana, Good Night, and Good Luck, North Country, and An Inconvenient Truth. Skoll's success convinced Max and Peter to start dabbling in Hollywood, bankrolling the 2006 indie flick Thank You for Smoking, along with David Sacks, PayPal's former chief operating officer. While Sacks continued to play the Hollywood game, he also launched a new social networking site for families, called Geni.com. It allows people to fill out their family trees and link them to the family trees of spouses and in-laws. Anyone on the tree can add to the tree, the idea being that over time you discover people you're related to that you didn't know. It's a bold idea, one of the first Web 2.0 start-ups aimed squarely at families. Peter Thiel, naturally, backed it early on. And in Geni's first venture capital round with Charles River Ventures, it got nosebleed $100 million valuation. The CRV partner who wrote the check was George Zachary, Skoll's early partner in Participant Productions and a friend of Max and Peter's. By 2006, the PayPal mafia was an incestuous world where, for now, everyone seemed to be making lots of money. Thiel makes up one fourth of the Board members of Facebook. Thus apart from providing the money, he really has a lot of influence - just as The Guardian had noted.

14.2.2 Thiel - "the real face behind Facebook" - is a Zionist

What The Guardian failed to tell is that Thiel also has an Israel agenda. The Israeli-based Adelson Institute for Strategic Studies writes:

- o <http://www.adelsoninstitute.org.il/OnAgenda.aspx?id=62&from=a>

On Tuesday, May 12, 2009, The Adelson Institute hosted Richard Perle, former assistant to the Secretary of Defense and Chairman of the Defense Policy Board Advisory Committee during the Reagan administration, and Peter Thiel, Co-Founder of PayPal and President of Clarium Capital Management. The topic of discussion was: "The first 100 days of the Obama administration". Perle briefed the Adelson Institute's staff and faculty and said that the outcome of Obama's new approach towards adversaries will be tested in a few months time. Thiel, who participated in Perle's briefing, said that there is an incredible gap between Israel's reality and its potential. People talk about China, India and Brazil as emerging market countries, he added, while Israel is underrated. According to Thiel, all it takes is a short visit to Israel in order to appreciate the incredible talent, intensity and drive of the Israelis. It should here be reminded that Richard Perle that Thiel met in a briefing, is the infamous Neo-con from the Bush era who was one of the main Jewish architects behind the Iraq invasion and war in 2003. Facebook sponsor Peter Thiel reveals his Israel agenda in a video speech he made for the Adelson Institute and which can be seen through the following link:

- o <http://www.adelsoninstitute.org.il/MediaViewer.aspx?id=57>

The Adelson Institute gives the following description of Thiel's video message: Israel is Truly the Country of the Future, May 17, 2009. There is an incredible gap between Israel's reality and its potential, says Peter Thiel, Co-Founder of PayPal and President of Clarium Capital Management. Thiel, a guest of the Adelson Institute for Strategic studies, participated in Richard Perle's briefing at the Adelson Institute. People talk about China, India and Brazil as emerging market countries, says Thiel, while Israel is underrated. All it takes is a short visit in order to appreciate the incredible talent, intensity and drive of the Israelis. In the video Peter Thiel - economic sponsor and Facebook Board member - hails the Jewish state of Israel. Here follows a transcript of some of his statements in the video: "I believe that Israel is a truly extraordinary place." "... an incredible potential..." "Just visiting here [in Israel] for a few days one is always struck by the incredible talent and intensity and drive of the people." "I think that if Israel is able to resolve some of these issues, that surround it over the next few years, it will probably be the best place in the world." "I believe the future is not in cheap labour or cheap capital or in real estate. I believe the future is in technology and in that sense perhaps Israel is truly the country of the future." The Adelson Institute for Strategic Studies at the Shalem Center in Jerusalem is a 100 % Zionist institution. We here reproduce the Mission Statement of the institute Thiel cooperates with: The Adelson Institute for Strategic Studies at the Shalem Center in Jerusalem is an academic and research institute founded by its chairman, Natan Sharansky, in 2007. The Adelson Institute for Strategic Studies develops, articulates and builds support for the strategic principles needed to address the challenges currently facing Israel and the West. Israel, as the only democracy in this region surrounded by totalitarian governments, is on the cutting edge of the challenges and dangers confronting Western civilization everywhere. As part of this overall effort, the Adelson Institute for Strategic Studies seeks to explore how the advancement of freedom, democracy, and human rights can be marshaled as an effective measure to secure and strengthen international stability and security. The Adelson Institute for Strategic Studies also seeks to examine international law in light of the new forms of asymmetric warfare and terror; the establishment of credible deterrence against guerilla and terror organizations and the states that sponsor them; the appropriate response to weapons of mass destruction; and the strengthening of Israel's relations with its strategic allies.

Natan Sharansky, founder and chairman of the institute, is a racist Russian Jew and Israeli politician (former deputy Prime Minister) famous for his "tough" stance on the Palestinians. Palestinian resistance to Zionist domination is branded as "terrorism". Sharansky writes in Jan. 15, 2009 (Bloomberg.com) on the ongoing Israeli slaughter in Gaza: Terrorism is a cancer that can't be cured through "proportional" treatments. It requires invasive surgery. Here follows another article on Peter Thiel and Israel from vc/caffe

14.2.2.1 Peter Thiel gambles on the next internet hit – Israel's Hooja

Peter Thiel knows a thing or two about consumer internet. After all, he's a PayPal cofounder, one of Facebook's board members and its first investor ($500,000) way before its $15 billion valuation, giving him a hefty return of a billion. Thiel is known as a savvy investor with a 'golden touch' that tends to invest small amounts early on taking a 'hands-off' approach with management (learn more about his investment strategy in Thiel's recent WSJ profile). Apart from Facebook, Thiel invested in some of the internet's biggest brand names early on, including: Yelp, Slide, LinkedIn and Friendster. These days, Peter Thiel is managing the hedge fund Clarium Capital, which manages $2 billion under management and he's also a partner in the Founders Fund, that recently raised $220 million for its second fund. Now, for the first time, Thiel is betting an Israeli tech startup, to be the next winner. Globes reports that Thiel, along with a group of private investors, raised $1.5 million for Hooja, an Israel-based startup founded in April of 2006 by Naama Moran, a former Greylock Partners associate. Hooja is still operating in stealth mode (landing page only) but its known to be developing a unique search technology that enables content providers to search for personal and social information in the deep web, including social networks. One of Hooja's investors describes the technology as 'social search' – basically providing higher ranking to information that a user's friends are likely to click on.

14.2.3 Other Facebook Board members

The other Board members of Facebook apart from Thiel are Mark Zuckerberg himself, the Jewish venture capitalist Jim Breyer, and finally Marc Andreessen. Jim Breyer also sits in the Board of Directors of Dell, Walmart and Marvel. Marc Andreessen is the founder of Netscape (non-Jewish?), but a man who works closely with the Jew Ben Horowitz with whom he founded Opsware. Andreessen has also invested in the Israeli Israel Seed Partners thus becoming a partner of and cooperating with Jonathan Medved, one of Israel's leading venture capitalists. So Andreessen - Jew or not - is well entangled in the Jewish-Israeli Internet establishment. In the section on Google, Sheryl Sandberg, a Jewish woman who was Google's Vice President of Global Online Sales & Operations. As Rabbi Levi Brackman and journalist Sam Jaffew write in their book "Jewish Wisdom for Business Success", p. 2: Early in 2008, she left Google to become the second-in-command of Facebook, the emerging social-networking company. The Jewish "second-in-command of Facebook" Sheryl Sandberg is presently Chief Operating Officer. As COO, Sandberg is responsible for helping Facebook scale its operations and expand its presence globally. Sandberg in this position manages sales, marketing, business development, human resources, public policy, privacy and communications and reports directly to Facebook's CEO Mark Zuckerberg. It can here be repeated that Sandberg is married to another Jew, David Goldberg, former music head at Yahoo!.

14.2.4 Facebook Addendum

The Jew David Fischer - son of Israel's Bank of Israel Governor Stanley Fischer - is the VP of Advertising and Global Operations at Facebook and oversees sales, advertiser marketing, and customer operations throughout the world. David Fischer joined Facebook after over seven years at Google, where he was VP of Global Online Sales and Operations and was responsible for Google's online sales channel, which represented the majority of Google's customers worldwide. In that role, he helped build Google's online advertising network into the largest in the world. For more on Sheryl Sandberg, David Fischer and Facebook's cooperation with Israel, see important addendum just below under the headline "Facebook and Israel".

Another recruit from Google is the Jew Elliot Schrage, now Vice President of Communications, Public Policy and Platform Marketing at Facebook. In this position he is responsible for developing and coordinating key messages about products, corporate business and partnerships. He also oversees the company's public policy strategy worldwide. At Google Schrage was Vice President of Communications and Public Affairs and in our special section on Google we documented how he worked to promote propaganda together with the Jewish "US Holocaust Memorial". Another Jew who has had positions of influence in Facebook was Justin Rosenstein, a top engineer who was one of the first employees Facebook poached from Google, where he was a Product Manager, as Facebook began its rise in 2007. Both Dusty Moskovitz and Rosenstein have since left Facebook (2008) to jointly start Internet ventures of their own. Ethan Beard is head of Platform at Facebook. Earlier he was Director of Business Development. Prior to joining Facebook, he was a Director of Social Media at Google.

14.2.5 Facebook and Israel

The Jewish state sees the importance in Internet Jews such as Mark Zuckerberg. In 2008 the Israeli paper Ha'aretz reported: Facebook, Google founders to attend Jerusalem conference in May By Guy Grimland, Ha'aretz Correspondent Ha'aretz 01/04/2008.

Co-founder of internet giant Google, Sergey Brin, will join Facebook founder Mark Zuckerberg, and Yahoo president Susan Decker at a presidential panel on technology to be held at the Jerusalem International Convention Center May 13-15. The convention, which was formed at the initiative of President Shimon Peres, will also be attended by a number of Israeli political, religious and financial leaders, as well as academics and cultural figures. The panel will discuss issues facing technology in today's age and the future, in particular in regard to how it will affect Israel and the Jewish world. Former UK prime minister Tony Blair will also take part in the conference, as will French Foreign Minister Bernard Kouchner, former U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, former prime minister of the Czech Republic Vaclav Havel, Nobel Prize Laureate Eli Wiesel, and Georgia President Michael Saakashvili. Here we see how the young Jewish entrepreneur Zuckerberg, with fellow Internet-Jew Sergey Brin, is invited down to the Jewish state to participate in the celebrations of Israel's 60th anniversary (which was the reason the meeting was held) and to meet with the top Zionist echelons. It should here be noted that Shimon Peres is a war criminal. In 1996 he was responsible, as the leader of the Jewish state, of Israel's massacre of over 100 Lebanese civilians in Qana. On March 11th, 2008, Nick O'Neill posted an interview with Mark Zuckerberg where they touched on the subject of "anti-Semitism" and Internet. Recently Shimon Peres suggested that Israelis and Jews worldwide use Facebook to fight anti-semitism in addition to inviting Mark Zuckerberg to Israel. I asked him about his thoughts on Facebook as a tool to fight anti-semitism and if Facebook would take proactive measures to fight against it. Mark believes that Facebook need to focus on building useful communication tools and that the users can use these tools to connect and generate more worldly perspectives. As such Facebook does not need to be proactive about it. When asked about whether he will visit Israel next year, he said maybe.

14.2.6 Israel President Shimon Peres Visits Facebook

In March 2012 the Israeli President Shimon Peres - the arch-Zionist and the man behind the Qana No 1 massacre in Lebanon visited the Facebook headquarters in the US where he was happily greeted by Facebook's Jewish boss Mark Zuckerberg. There Zuckerberg helped the elderly Zionist chief create a personal Facebook page - and Peres thereafter added Zuckerberg as his first Facebook "friend"!

Israeli paper Ha'aretz March 6, 2012 writes under the headline "Peres, Mark Zuckerberg launch president's international Facebook page": President Shimon Peres and Facebook founder Mark Zuckerberg launched the president's international Facebook page on Tuesday, with Zuckerberg to first to press 'like' to the page. The festivities began at 7 P.M. Israel time (9 A.M. P.S.T.), with a live press conference with web surfers from around the world. Peres and Zuckerberg then launched the page officially at 8 P.M. Israel time (10 A.M. P.S.T.). See also the article "Israeli President Shimon Peres Applauds Hollywood's Influence on Youth".

14.2.7 Israel to Promote Itself on Facebook - YNetNews, 04.02.2011

Facebook's Sheryl Sandberg is a key connector between Israel and Facebook. The Israeli news site YNetNews.com writes on the latest steps of cooperation in order to "foster a relationship between the Israeli government and Facebook heads": Deputy foreign minister meets networking site's managers to discuss plans for online PR WASHINGTON – The government intends to turn the social network Facebook into the main platform for Israeli online public relations, investing a lot of resources on creating an efficient strategy to utilize the 600 million-large' network. Deputy Foreign Minister Daniel Ayalon visited the California offices of the network on Friday, and met with company heads including Chief Operating Officer Sheryl Sandberg and VP of Advertising and Global Operations David Fischer, who is the son of Bank of Israel Governor Stanley Fischer. The Foreign Ministry is set on turning the famous social network into the main platform for Israeli online public relations both in English and in Arabic. Officials in Jerusalem have expressed their belief that Facebook is a friendly platform for communication with young people around the world, allowing for distribution of messages through video clips and games. Israeli embassies around the world have already begun to manage Facebook pages, but now the Foreign Ministry intends to make more efficient use of the network to improve Israel's image. Ayalon's meetings are intended to foster a relationship between the Israeli government and Facebook heads. Ayalon has also invited Facebook managers to visit Israel in order to meet with internet entrepreneurs and participate in the Presidential Conference expected to take place in Jerusalem next June. The deputy foreign minister displayed before them Israel's high-tech abilities, noting that Intel Company is the biggest private employer in Israel, with more than 7,000 employees. Following Facebook's slow response in closing the internet page calling for a "third Intifada" and a violent protest against Israel, Facebook managers clarified that in the future they intend to deactivate any pages preaching violence. They also stated Facebook plans to open a marketing center in Israel.

It is all becoming a family event with David Fischer, Facebook's Jewish VP of Advertising and Global Operations being non-else than the son of the Bank of Israel Governor Stanley Fischer! See also the Youtube clip from March 6, 2012 "President of Israel Peres speaks with Facebook's Sheryl Sandberg on Internet technology". In the introduction fellow Jew David Fischer sees it as "a real pleasure" "to welcome one of the great leaders of our times, President of Israel, Shimon Peres". Fischer continues his hymn to the Zionist war criminal: "But what is most impressive [...] is that he is a man always looking forward, a man with boundless energy, inspired many passions..."

14.2.8 First Facebook user has joined the Israel Defense Force

A quite telling detail is that the first real user of Facebook, apart from the co-founders, is a Jew, Arie Hasit (who carries the Facebook URL id 7). Hasit studied with Zuckerberg in Harvard and later on did what the Jews call Aliyah to Israel, that is he settled in occupied Palestine in accordance to the Jewish Law of Return. Hasit has since joined the Israel Defense Forces Spokespersons Unit, a propaganda/desinformation unit of the IDF. The Israeli paper Ha'aretz ran a piece on Hasit and Facebook 10/05/2009 (underlines below added by Radio Islam):

14.2.8.1 Facebook founder's roommate recounts creation of Internet giant

By Guy Grimland, Ha'aretz Correspondent Five years ago, hardly anybody had heard of Facebook. Today, it seems that there is nobody in Israel or the world over who is not familiar with the social networking Web site, which recently crossed the 200 million user threshold. Facebook is estimated to be worth $15 billion after Microsoft bought 1.6 percent stock in the company for $240 million. Arie Hasit, 26, witnessed the birth of Facebook. He shared the same apartment as Mark Zuckerberg, the site's founder, joined the same college fraternity, and witnessed first-hand the company's initial climb from a dormitory start-up to a dominant mega-monstrosity on the Web. Hasit grew up in Philadelphia. Since he was young, he dreamed of immigrating to Israel, which he did two years ago. Today he is serving in the Israel Defense Forces Spokespersons Unit. He chose to enlist for a year-and-a-half rather than the six months which are required of new immigrants in his age bracket. Israel is not foreign to him. "Every summer I was in Jewish summer camp in the U.S. From time to time I would visit Israel." After completing high school at age 18, he enrolled at Harvard University, where he studied the history of the Land of Israel. "I thought this would make it easier for me after I would get to Israel," Hasit said. "My parents actually thought I should learned computers so that I would work in high-tech when I got here." Hasit focused his studies on the hip-hop genre in Israel, a subject which would become the topic of his thesis. He met Mark Zuckerberg in 2002 after they had joined the same fraternity which primarily concentrated on activities within the Jewish community. "We ate Shabbat dinner together," Hasit said. "Every year we raised money for charities in Israel. Mark was one of the members of the fraternity, like many other Jewish students at Harvard." Hasit, who wears a skullcap, says the 25-year-old Zuckerberg feels an affinity with Judaism. "He fasts on Yom Kippur," Hasit says of Zuckerberg. "Sometimes he would come to the Hillel House, a Jewish organization that ran various activities." Hasit and Zuckerberg struck up a friendship, though they were not the closest of friends. They later lived together in the college dorms. "Mark just happened to live in the apartment where I lived in the dorms," Hasit said. "He was in one room while I was in the other. This was a large apartment, we were seven students crammed into five bedrooms. We saw each other every day for a number of hours. When Mark moved into the dorms I was already in my third year while he was in his second year." Hasit says that Zuckerberg decided one day to build a Web site that would serve as a utility for students at Harvard. "He built the site for fun," Hasit says. "We had books called Face Books, which included the names and pictures of everyone who lived in the student dorms. At first, he built a site and placed two pictures, or pictures of two males and two females. Visitors to the site had to choose who was 'hotter' and according to the votes there would be a ranking." "He only ranked people who received the most votes for being good looking, not everybody," Hasit said. "There were about 1,000 people in all. Within four, five hours the site became so popular that at one point it became impossible to surf the Web on Harvard's Internet server. This was on a Sunday in October 2003." "The next day, the head of the university denied Zuckerberg access to the Internet. People complained that Mark used their pictures without permission. He apologized and ultimately the university decided not to expel him even though there were columns in the campus newspaper that argued that what he did was completely improper." Zuckerberg's stunt came at a time when students were appealing to the university to develop a Web site that would include the pictures and contact details of students in dorms. Now they feared that the Zuckerberg episode would compel the administration to shelve the idea.

"Mark heard these pleas and decided that if the university won't do something about it, he will, and he would build a site that would be even better than what the university had planned," Hasit said. "Before founding Facebook, he built the site Course Match which allowed students to find out who among those living in the same dorm are taking what courses, so that they could form study groups." Zuckerberg started developing Facebook from his modest dorm room. Every visitor who registered at the site received a serial number. The first, second, and third user who registered took up dummy pages. The fourth user was Zuckerberg himself. The fifth user is Chris Hughes, a co-founder of Facebook who also served as the company's spokesperson. Dustin Moskovitz, the third part of the site's founding triumvirate, occupies the sixth user spot. Moskovitz led the technical staff at Facebook before quitting the company to found a start-up in 2008. Hasit's is the seventh registered user, which in practice makes him the fourth real user to log into Facebook. "Often people ask me how I became the fourth user. Sometimes I tell them."

"Mark came to me on the day he built Facebook, and he said to me, 'Arie, I built this site. I want you to sign up.' And that is how I signed up to Facebook. I put a favorite quote of mine in the profile. I specified my favorite books, which courses I take at Harvard. I uploaded one picture to the profile. There was no Wall. There was no News Feed. There weren't too many things in Facebook, which only began its lifespan on the Web. "Initially Zuckerberg asked a small group of people to sign up to Facebook. At a certain point he told us to start inviting friends, and that is what we did on the first and second day which the site went up on the Web. We could only invite students enrolled at Harvard. In fact, if you did not have a Harvard e-mail address you could not sign into Facebook. At first, dozens of Harvard students registered. The numbers then reached the hundreds, and by the fourth day it had already reached the thousands. People were very enthusiastic about the site. It enabled them to know who took what courses and to meet new people. It conquered Harvard. In less than a week, some 4,000 students signed up for Facebook." Hasit recalls how Zuckerberg spent hours in front of the computer. "He studied computers and psychology," Hasit said. "Despite the fact that he developed Facebook, he continued his studies as per usual. His grades were okay. He was even in a relationship with a girlfriend. During Facebook's initial days, the walls in his room were filled with graphs and charts which showed how many people joined on a daily basis, who used what application, and who has the most friends." "After a few weeks, he decided to open up Facebook to another university. He had two friends, one at Stanford and the other at Dartmouth, whom he asked to promote the site there. He also asked for help from his ex-girlfriend who was a student at Dartmouth." Facebook quickly attracted a following in other leading universities. "Every user specified which university he belonged to, and that was how he kept in touch with other students at the university in which he studied, but all the networks were under one Web site." "The graphs and charts in his room became graphs and charts which included statistics from all the universities. At one point he received requests from students at other universities who were not in Facebook to open the site to them as well.

14.2.9 Facebook Summary

So we now know that the Mark Zuckerberg, founder and CEO of Facebook, "feels an affinity with Judaism" and has "raised money for charities in Israel". In Facebook's early history Zuckerberg was assisted by the Jew Dustin Moskovitz and got funding from Jewish businessman Peter Thiel, the latter a man with open Zionist views and in contact with the Zionist establishment. Thiel then joined the Board of Facebook and is presently - according to The Guardian - "the real face behind Facebook". Other top names are co-Board member Jim Breyer and the Jewess Sheryl Sandberg, the "second-in-command of Facebook". And one of Zuckerberg's friends from Harvard - his roommate and Facebook's first real user - has since moved to Israel and joined the Israel Defense Forces Spokespersons Unit. This also reveals the mindset of people in Zuckerberg's proximity. Knowing this one is not surprised that the arch-Zionist Shimon Peres invited Zuckerberg to Israel in 2008. 14.3 Wikipedia

Wikipedia is an Internet encyclopedia that anyone can edit and add information. Wikipedia claims its articles are based on a "neutral point of view" but as it is human beings writing the articles, of course the contents quickly have been mixed up with politics. For instance organization like CIA have tried to affect the entries (see BBC's "Wikipedia 'shows CIA page edits'"), and big companies try to control the information on themselves. And Israel and its army of "cyber-soldier" Jews from all over the world are now doing the same...The Wikipedia project has ended into control of student research on the Internet. The situation is now that the majority of subjects Googled will show Wikipedia as the top - or one of the firsts top results - and thus Wikipedia will get the majority of the hits. And as shown in our section on Google this Internet search-engine is well in the hands of Zionist Jews and also cooperates openly with Zionist organizations such as ADL and the Zionist Organization of America (ZOA) to control the searches and censoring information and certain sites. This means that apart from Wikipedia other sites may be censored when Googling any given subject.

14.3.1 Wikipedia's Jewish founders- Wales and Sanger

From all the available information it appears Wikipedia was started by two Jews, one a programmer, and the other an 'Adult Site' operator. The origins are in a project called Nupedia launched in March 2000 by Jimmy Wales and Larry Sanger. The Jew Jimmy Wales (actually James Wales, or also known as "Jimbo"), with riches from his time as an options trader, became an Internet entrepreneur and decided to create a free, online encyclopedia. He recruited the Jew Larry Sanger, who was finishing a Ph.D. in philosophy at the Ohio State University - whom Wales knew from their joint participation in online mailing lists and Usenet discussion groups - to become the paid editor in chief. Wales's company Bomis, an Internet search portal and a vendor of online "erotic images" (featuring the Bomis Babe Report), picked up the tab initially. The Jewish computer programmer Ben Kovitz is the one who suggested to Larry Sanger, Nupedia's editor-in-chief, to transfer the online encyclopedia to a wiki support. Larry and Jimmy Wales accepted and from that time, Wikipedia took over Nupedia and became a huge success. Larry Sanger, one of the two recognized cofounders, is openly Jewish. In their rabblings of what different famous Jews are doing The Jewish Chronicle mentions Sanger in an article "Larry Sanger... creates a new Wikipedia", The Jewish Chronicle, 26 October 2006, p. 10. Wales is presently in charge. Sanger left in 2002, and is a professor/lecturer at Ohio State.

14.3.2 Jimmy Wales History

Jimmy Wales is the de facto leader of Wikipedia and as thus wields a lot of influence. Time Magazine named him in its 2006 list of the world's most influential people. Short history: Wales who was born in Huntsville, Alabama, went to the exclusive Randolph prep school, and onto the University of Alabama. Wales graduated and became a Futures Trader in Chicago. Next he opened Bomis, an 'Adult Content' website, which was followed by Nupedia, which morphed into Wikipedia. Wales is the darling of the Jewish crowd at Harvard, being a fellow at the Berkman Center for Internet and Society, at the Harvard Law School.

Basically 'Bomis' is an adult site, started by Wales. The website featured user-generated webrings and that, according to The Atlantic Monthly (September 2006), "found itself positioned as the Playboy of the Internet". For a time the company sold erotic photographs, and Wales described the site as a "guy-oriented search engine". Jewish Bomis employee(s) Names like Jeremy Rosenfeld (a Bomis employee), Benjamin Kovitz, Seth Cohen, dot the landscape of technical staff.

14.3.3 Wikipedia Founder Wales Sanitizing Editing Interventions of Web Content

It should here be noted that although Wikipedia states that it professes a "neutral point of view" the on-line dictionary has even seen direct interventions from its owner Jimmy Wales over its contents. The Herald Sun reports June 30, 2009, in the article "Wikipedia edits helped free David Rohde": THE New York Times worked with Wikipedia to keep news of the kidnapping of one of its reporters in Afghanistan off the online user-edited encyclopedia. New York Times reporter David Rohde, who was kidnapped by the Taliban in November, escaped from his captors along with his translator this month. A number of news organisations, including Agence France-Presse, at the request of the New York Times, agreed not to report the kidnapping out of concerns for their safety. Keeping the news off Wikipedia was another matter, the Times said. It said that on at least a dozen occasions, user-editors posted news of the abduction on a Wikipedia page about Mr Rohde, only to have it erased. Several times the page was frozen, preventing further editing, it said. "The sanitizing was a team effort, led by Jimmy Wales, co-founder of Wikipedia, along with Wikipedia administrators and people at the Times," the newspaper said. "We were really helped by the fact that it hadn't appeared in a place we would regard as a reliable source," Mr Wales told the Times. "I would have had a really hard time with it if it had." The Times said that two days after the November 10 kidnapping, Michael Moss, an investigative reporter at the Times and friend of Mr Rohde, altered Mr Rohde's Wikipedia entry to emphasize that his work could be seen as sympathetic to Muslims, like his reporting on Guantanamo and his coverage of the Srebrenica massacre of Bosnian Muslims. It said that the next day, an unidentified user, citing an Afghan news agency report, edited the entry on Mr Rohde and mentioned the kidnapping. Mr Moss deleted the mention, and the user promptly restored it, adding a note protesting the removal, the Times said. It said the Times eventually reached out to Wales and Wikipedia put an indefinite block and then a temporary freeze on changes to the page. "We had no idea who it was," Mr Wales said of the unidentified user making the edits. He said there was no indication the user had ill-intent. The Times said Mr Wales himself unfroze the page after the June 19 escape by Mr Rohde and his interpreter, Tahir Ludin. Interesting here is to see that people should be kept in the dark of the "security deterioration" and the realities of what is happening in occupied Afghanistan. Instead Wikipedia will help in sanitizing the image.

Wikipedia's Jimmy Wales at the Israeli Presidential Conference in Jerusalem on Oct. 22, 2009 together with the Jewish war criminal Shimon Peres. Note writing in Hebrew behind Wales. 14.3.4.1 Wikipedia chief Gardner goes to Israel - gets advice

Israeli paper Ha'aretz reports 04/05/2009 on how Sue Gardner, Executive Director of the Wikimedia Foundation which runs Wikipedia, has participated at a meeting in Israel - a Wikipedia Academy 2009 Conference - organized by Wikimedia's Israeli supporters and Tel Aviv University's Netvision Institute for Internet Studies. Ha'aretz writes.

14.3.4.2 Wikipedia editors: Coverage of Israel 'problematic' By Cnaan Liphshiz

Wikipedia's coverage of Israel-related issues is "problematic," leading Israeli internet researchers claimed Sunday at the Wikipedia Academy 2009 Conference dealing with the world's largest encyclopedia. The conference was organized by Wikimedia's volunteer-based Israel chapter and Tel Aviv University's Netvision Institute for Internet Studies. However, the Web site's leading manager said it merely reflected public discourse. In demonstrating what he defined as problems, Eli Hacoheh, the Institute's director, showed how Hamas is not defined as a terrorist organization in the first paragraph describing the organization on the English site of the reader-edited online encyclopedia, which is the world's fourth most popular Web site. Hachon also documented his attempts to define Iran's president, Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, as a Holocaust-denier. Each time he included his remarks on Wikipedia, users and editors removed the reference - despite Ahmadinejad's frequent and public Holocaust denials. On a related entry, Hachon also noted that Wikipedia defines David Irving - a known Holocaust denier - as a historian, although his credentials are recognized by no one but himself. Furthermore, the Wikipedia entry on January's Operation Cast Lead in Gaza describes it as an "intense bombardment" by Israel on a civilian population. Dror Kamir, a leading Israeli Wikipedia promoter, showed how Lod is not listed as a city in Israel in Wikipedia's Arabic-language version. Also attending the conference, which discussed Wikipedia's role in academia, was Sue Gardner, the executive director of the Wikimedia Foundation, which runs Wikipedia. Gardner told Haaretz that she is "quite comfortable" with the mistakes on the Web site. "I know that more or less the same mistakes can be found in the New York Times," she explained. Before her address at the conference, she defined Wikipedia as a "just another mainstream news medium." Wikipedia, Gardner said, "will never say anything as Wikipedia. It will only quote relatively well-respected sources, including other media. So it's natural for Wikipedia to reflect public discourse as it fluctuates, and news is the first draft of history." On her first visit to Israel, Gardner explained that her attitude stemmed from her framework of reference as a journalist in her native Canada, including a stint as director of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's Web site. The boss of Wikipedia thus travels down to the land of the chosen people to be lectured on how Wikipedia can be improved when it divulges information concerning Israel/Jews. 14.3.4.3 Wikipedia leading editor also goes to Israel - To Polish Israel's Image

David Shankbone, leading editor at Wikipedia, has been invited by the Israeli Government's Foreign Ministry to help polish Israel's image. Photo Editing Israel's Online Image By Sharon Udasin, Staff Writer The Jewish Week, 03/04/2009...

But David Saranga, the media consul for the Consulate General of Israel in New York, plans to fight back. After launching a pro-Israel campaign through Twitter.com during the Gaza war and by bringing Maxim magazine into Israel last year, he says he is recruiting the best in the business to revamp Israel's online image. In just a few weeks, he will bring six American new media experts to photograph Israel, with funds from the Consulate and Israel's Ministry of Foreign Affairs... However, Saranga says the initiative will, hopefully, knock the pictures of destruction much further down the lists, behind photos of ordinary Israeli daily life. And because he has enlisted Internet authorities like pen-named Wikipedia senior editor David Shankbone, Saranga thinks that there is a good chance they'll stay that way. Shankbone — whose real name is David Miller — first visited Israel in December 2007, when Saranga led a group of journalists on a tour of the country's high-tech and environmental developments. All in all Shankbone estimates that he illustrates over 4,000 Wikipedia articles with his photography. "The idea is to create a body of work that not only Wikipedia can use but that the general public can use," he said. Shankbone is not Jewish, but he said he learned extensively about the Israeli-Palestinian conflict in school. While he considers himself a supporter of Israel, Shankbone doesn't intend to make Wikipedia a Zionist Web site, and he looks at the Gaza war as a black-and-white situation — Israel had a right to respond, but its mode of attack was not without fault. Yet for Shankbone, the purpose of his photo expedition is not to document the aftermath of the war. "People want to talk to you about other things than just missiles," he said. Ideally, Shankbone said he'd like to end up at solar power plants in the Negev Desert or in a southern city like Eilat, because he spent most of his time up north during the previous trip. "I particularly like small towns, because my feeling is that anyone can come to Tel Aviv and Jerusalem," Shankbone said. While on open-source sites, users can add and remove other people's contributions as they see fit, only an administrator can permanently delete the posts from the storage database, Wikimedia Commons. In his three years working as a Wikipedia editor, however, Shankbone said that he has been careful to avoid inserting his own political positions, and readers have rarely altered his content. His collection remains the largest Creative Commons — a Web-based data-sharing platform — photograph community generated by one person, he said... Critic Oboler, however, questions whether "bringing out people like Shankbone will help directly with the grass-roots, anti-Israel and often anti-Semitic activity that occurs online." "What it will do is help in the fight for hearts and minds online," he said. "This proactive engagement is also important." "It certainly isn't going to be the silver bullet," Shankbone agreed. "It does give Wikipedia the opportunity or responsibility to present accuracy." And while Saranga hopes to change the world's perception of Israel in the long term with the support of every American Israel consulate, he recognizes that, realistically, results will not be immediate. "At the end of the day, a single activity won't change perceptions; a single activity won't change the criticism generated by the Gaza war," he said. "But what is important is to create a critical mass of positive activities that will improve Israel's image."

14.3.4.4 Leading Wikipedia editor to visit Israel

The Jerusalem Post writes on the same story. By Herb Keinon The Jerusalem Post, Dec 8, 2007. In an acknowledgement of the importance that the Internet encyclopedia Wikipedia has in shaping opinion, the Foreign Ministry is bringing one of its leading editors, David Shankbone, to Israel next week. World According to a communiqué put out by the ministry, Shankbone has carried out dozens of interviews of US personalities for Wikipedia, including presidential candidates, religious leaders, rock stars and journalists. Shankbone will be visiting within the framework of a delegation of technology writers being brought to Israel by the Foreign Ministry and the America-Israel Friendship League. Explaining the rationale for bringing Shankbone to Israel, David Saranga, the spokesman at the consulate in New York, said: "More than once we have faced editors connected to Israel that appear on Wikipedia in English that do not represent the reality in Israel. We decided to initiate a visit by Shankbone to describe Israeli reality as it is." Wikipedia, according to the Foreign Ministry, is the eighth largest web site in the world, with some 60 million visitors a day, or some 14,000 hits a second. David Shankbone - whose real name is David Miller - has himself written on his trip in his private user page in Wikipedia

- o http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/User:David_Shankbone/Israel

I went to Israel to expand Wikipedia's quality photographic representation and coverage of Israeli-related articles. My trip was reported on in their press.

- o Jerusalem Post
- o The official blog of Israel
- o Haaretz

I also wrote a series of articles about the trip for Wikinews. I interviewed their President, Shimon Peres, had lunch with the President of the Technion and discussed the philosophy of Wikipedia over dinner with Yossi Vardi. Here is the first one. And if you have a chance—check out Solar power in Israel, which I recently wrote. Below is a gallery of images I took on the trip. Above is a nice picture of Shankbone-Miller with Shimon Peres. Wikipedia's David Shankbone (Miller) with Israeli war criminal Shimon Peres - the man behind the Qana massacre of over 100 Lebanese civilians in 1996. Shankbone's interview with Peres appeared in the Israeli paper Yedioth Aharonoth (here part of the article, reproduced from the Israeli government site <http://www.isrealli.org/> - isRealli - The New Blog of the State of Israel).

14.3.4.5 WikiPeres

By Itamar Eichner Yedioth Aharonoth, 24 December 2007, p.12 A President with Value - Peres is the First Leader to Be Interviewed for Wikipedia's News Site. The nation's president proved again yesterday that despite his advanced age he has no need to be embarrassed facing politicians much younger than he. Shimon Peres is the first world leader to grant an interview to the online encyclopedia Wikipedia. The interview with Peres will be published on the Wikipedia news site, Wikinews and his statements will be integrated into various articles throughout the encyclopedia. For over an hour, Peres sat with one of the Wikipedia senior editors, David Shankbone. Shankbone, who came to Israel with a delegation of journalists, turned to the Israeli Consul for Media and Public Affairs in New York, David Saranga, and asked to schedule an interview with Prime Minister Ehud Olmert and President Peres. To Shankbone's surprise, it was Peres who decided to take up the gauntlet and grant an interview to the popular encyclopedia. Wikipedia is the eighth most-popular website in the world in terms of daily traffic. At the outset of the interview, Shankbone told Peres, "We checked among Internet surfers under age 30 and we found that you are the most popular and most recognizable leader in the world." Peres used the interview for a bitter attack on Iran. "The Iranian economy cannot support the atomic program," he said, "and the world must decide if it is ready for nuclear weapons to fall into terrorists' hands." Peres was asked his opinion of the younger generation of Israelis. "The 14- 15- and 16-year-olds need to participate in determining the world's future," the President explained. "If it were up to adults, they would want kids to keep dancing the hora or singing Slavic songs, but youngsters don't listen and should not have to. Young women today also wear more risqué clothing than they did in the past and there is no problem with that since they look nicer." Consul Saranga said last night "It was important for the Foreign Ministry that part of the interview was dedicated to subjects other than the conflict [with the Palestinians].”The interview has since appeared in Wikinews - "the free news source" - as it was destined to be, and can be read at:

14.3.4.6 David Shankbone to go back to Israel for Wikimedia

In his own blog 2008/07/31 Shankbone-Miller writes that he will return to Israel.

2. <http://blog.shankbone.org/2008/07/31/david-shankbone-to-go-back-to-israel-for-wikimedia/>

Last December I traveled to Israel where I had lunch with Yitzhak Apeloig, the president of their premiere university, the Technion, and interviewed their President and Nobel Peace Prize recipient Shimon Peres (photo, right). In the next few months I will be returning to the Holy Land for a week-long photography expedition. From the students of Haifa to the dolphins of Eilat; from the vineyards of the Galilee to the Bedouins of The Negev; I will engage in a photographic documentary of the people and landscape of Israel. The goal is to create a comprehensive body of images of the country that are licensed as free content, meaning my work will be available to everyone via Wikimedia for both commercial and non-commercial uses. Watch this blog for updates. In his own blog 2009/03/04 Shankbone writes more on his new Israel trip, where he will be joined by "baroness of social media, Tamar Weinberg, and her photographer husband". "Consul David Saranga in the Israeli Foreign Ministry [...] was instrumental in putting the trip together"

14.3.4.7 My Israel trip covered in Jewish Week By David Shankbone

3. <http://blog.shankbone.org/2009/03/04/my-israel-trip-covered-in-jewish-week/>

Sharon Udasin recently wrote in Jewish Week about my upcoming photography expedition of Israel for the creative commons. Also on the plane will be the baroness of social media, Tamar Weinberg, and her photographer husband. The itinerary is not set, but I have requested an interview for Wikinews. Because the focus is on photography, most of my writing will take place on this blog where I hope to document the experience. Consul David Saranga in the Israeli Foreign Ministry, who has spear-headed his country's foray into social media, was instrumental in putting the trip together. My goal here will be to document not just the monuments and public structures that every tourist documents, but also common, every-day features of life and landscape. Cities like Tel Aviv and Jerusalem are not crying out for free media (although they can always use more professional-quality shots). Instead, places like the Arava Valley, the kiryats and the kibbutzes need coverage. I want to capture life outside the scope of a rifle. That not every Israeli is armed, living in rubble or dodging missiles is lost in a media narrative that filters everything through conflict. The hope is to obtain shots of the country not typically obtained by tourists and photojournalists. Small town and rural Israel holds all the appeal for me.

14.3.4.8 More tricks to control information in Wikipedia

14.4 Yahoo! - In Jewish hands

The Jew Terry Semel was CEO of the search engine company Yahoo! between 2001 and 2007. During his time as Yahoo! CEO Semel used his position to impress on his fellow Jews. For instance Semel in the shape of Yahoo-boss appeared as one of the main speakers at the Jewish Community Federation (JCF) in San Francisco's meeting, January 25, 2006, according to the organization's homepage.

- <http://www.sfjcf.org/aboutJCF/photos/album/default.asp?album=blcbreakfast-jan2006&page=1>

February 17, 2006 By Maureen Earl, correspondent With more than 420 million users around the world, Yahoo can claim a high spot on the Internet echelon. But it wasn't always smooth sailing for the Sunnyvale-based company. When Yahoo's chairman and CEO, Jewish Brooklyn native Terry Semel, first arrived at the company in 2001, it had just lost $98 million on revenue of $717 million. Semel was determined to put Yahoo back in the black. His strategy worked. Last year Yahoo earned $1.2 billion on sales of $5.3 billion — and those 420 million users aren't bad, either. On Jan. 25 Semel addressed 300 donors to the S.F.-based Jewish Community Federation who gathered for the JCF's first Business Leadership Council breakfast. Semel, once one of the most powerful figures in Hollywood and now one of the most commanding leaders in Internet technology, started the keynote address by announcing that he was not a morning person. "I prefer to take an hour to reflect and catch up in the morning," he said. Soft-spoken but authoritative, Semel discussed the importance of philanthropy in business. "Business and philanthropy go hand in hand," he said. "I came from a lower-income family in Brooklyn, yet by the age of 10 or 12 I'd already been taught the importance of giving. "You need to start kids off that young so that it becomes a habit. To accomplish things you also have to give. At first maybe with time, then later with money, and eventually even both if you are able." At the age of 10 it was a dollar from his allowance; today, Semel no longer thinks on a small scale. "I now think in terms of hundreds of millions," he said, "but the same principles apply whether it's a two-person philanthropy organization or a giant like Yahoo." Tikkun olam, repairing the world, is how Semel operates both in philanthropy and business. He recalled how, as an ambitious young man working as a sales trainee at Warner Bros. in the mid-1960s, his boss would arrive shouting and yelling at all and sundry. "There and then I decided I would not do that. How people are treated is vital." Semel, who graduated in 1964 with an accounting degree from Long Island University, went on to become chairman and CEO of Warner Bros. During his 24-year career there, Semel and his business partner, Robert Daly, helped shape the company into one of the world's largest media outlets, generating nearly $11 billion in total revenue from businesses in 50 countries. In 1999, Semel and Daly pressed their hands into wet concrete outside Hollywood's legendary Mann's Chinese Theater. With the executives thus immortalized in Hollywood lore, the ceremony marked the last day of work for the two at Warner Bros. In May 2001, after an 18-month hiatus, Semel joined Yahoo as CEO and chairman immediately after the dot-com collapse in Silicon Valley. "I was looking for a challenge. I didn't take the position for the money," he said. Whether he was looking for it or not, Semel has netted $403 million by exercising Yahoo options and selling shares. He still owns shares and options worth more than $230 million. The credit of Yahoo's success, Semel said, goes to his staff and their practiced team ability. "It's always about team. No one wins if it rests on one star athlete. The superstar ideal will not get you to the Super Bowl, it's not sustainable. It has to be the team. And we [at Yahoo] actually like each other — we love the challenge." Last year Yahoo added 220 people a month and now employs about 10,000. Daniel Rosensweig, Yahoo's chief operating officer, said, "Terry's a Brooklynite at heart. He expects a new fight every day." One of the biggest challenges Semel faces is adapting the company to fit its users' ever-changing preferences. "The big change in technology is that we used to have someone else program everything for us," he said. "Someone else programmed television, so you watched what was on when it was on. Internet has turned the user into programmers — we want what we want, when we want, and we get it." On Friday evenings, Semel boards his private jet in Sunnyvale and returns to his family and home in Bel Air for the weekend. There he is able to relax for a couple of days knowing that he has helped grow Yahoo into a company that has the widest global reach of any Internet site. Not shabby for a man who, prior to joining Yahoo, had rarely gone near a computer. Semel may constantly redirect attention to his team, but he is very much an individual. "I would not have succeeded had I not been true to myself. I never wanted to be the guy who looks back and says 'I wish I'd done this, done that,'" he said.

14.4.2 Summing up Semel's pre-Yahoo! career

Prior to Yahoo! - as stated in the article above - Semel worked in Hollywood where he spent 24 years at Warner Bros. As its chairman and co-chief executive officer, Semel and his partner built the company into one of the world's largest entertainment enterprises. Prior to Warner Bros., Semel was in charge of Walt Disney's Theatrical Distribution division and he has also been in charge of CBS' Theatrical Distribution division. Terry Semel is a friend of Arnon Milchan, the Jewish Hollywood producer with Mossad connections, and was one of the invited at Milchan's Israel party 2008, a party co-organized by the Israeli consulate (The Jewish Journal, September 25, 2008).

The Israeli Jew Andrei Broder, a graduate from Israel's Technion Institute, is Vice President for Search & Computational Advertising at Yahoo! Research. Broder also serves as Chief Scientist of Yahoo's Advertising Technology Group. He has previously worked for AltaVista as the Vice President of research and for IBM Research as a Distinguished Engineer and CTO of IBM's Institute for Search and Text Analysis. David Goldberg was Vice President and General Manager of Music at Yahoo! Inc., since the acquisition of LAUNCH Media, Inc. by Yahoo! in August 2001. David Goldberg is married to and has kids with Sheryl Sandberg, the Jewish Internet boss formerly with Google and presently "second-in-command" in Facebook see our long entry on her in our Google section. Goldberg left Yahoo! in 2007. The Israeli engineer Udi Manber, also a graduate from the Israeli Technion Institute and who we portray in more depth in our section on Google, was chief scientist at Yahoo! from 1998 to 2002. Manber then joined Amazon.com where he became "chief algorithms officer" and a Vice President. He was later appointed CEO of the Amazon subsidiary company A9.com, where he led the company's A9 search engine work. In 2006, he was hired by Google as one of their Vice Presidents of engineering. Dan Rosensweig was the chief operating officer (COO) of Yahoo! Inc. from 2002 to 2007. He later became CEO at Guitar Hero and then at Chegg.

14.4.4 Yahoo! and Israel

Semel was in Israel during the festive events 2008, celebrating Israel's 60th anniversary. Semel appeared as a speaker on Shimon Peres' "President's Conference" in Israel May 15, on the topic "The Revolution of the Internet and the new media", together with Google's Jewish co-founder and President Sergey Brin. Semel was here to represent his post-Yahoo! company Windsor Media, where he is chairman and CEO. Susan Decker, the present President of Yahoo! Inc., also attended and spoke at the 2008 Israel conference. Decker is the person that took over the Presidency over Yahoo! directly after Semel.

14.4.4.1 Facebook, Google founders to attend Jerusalem conference in May 2008

Guy Grimland, Ha'aretz Correspondent 01/04/2008 - Co-founder of internet giant Google, Sergey Brin, will join Facebook founder Mark Zuckerberg, and Yahoo president Susan Decker at a presidential panel on technology to be held at the Jerusalem International Convention Center May 13-15, 2008. The convention, which was formed at the initiative of President Shimon Peres, will also be attended by a number of Israeli political, religious and financial leaders, as well as academics and cultural figures. The panel will discuss issues facing technology in today's age and the future, in particular in regard to how it will affect Israel and the Jewish world. Former UK prime minister Tony Blair will also take part in the conference, as will French Foreign Minister Bernard Kouchner, former U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, former prime minister of the Czech Republic Václav Havel, Nobel Prize Laureate Eli Wiesel, and Georgia President Michael Saakashvili. Other Zionist participants at the meeting were Rupert Murdoch and Maurice Levy, the latter a powerful French Jew with enormous might in the advertisement/publicity business (Publicist, Saatchi & Saatchi), and a man very dedicated to promoting Israel's image. The meeting was moderated by Israel's "technology guru" Yossi Vardi, whom Yahoo! already had business dealings. The "President's Conference" figured other speeches by staunch Zionists such as Israel's Defense Minister Ehud Barak, and "American" agents of Israel such as Dennis Ross and Henry Kissinger.

14.4.4.2 Collaboration between Yahoo! and Israel deepens

Here follows three Ha'aretz articles on the subject.

14.4.4.2.1 Yahoo! President Susan Decker takes interest in Israel

Haaretz Staff and Channel 10, May 18, 2008. Susan Decker, the president of Yahoo! Incorporated, visited Jerusalem last week to attend the 2008 Presidential Conference. Decker oversees one of the most popular Web sites in the world, with more than 400 million page views daily. She is the second highest paid female executive in the United States, with 14,000 people working under her. Decker suggests that Yahoo! exemplifies the fact that the glass ceiling she was spared is a thing of the past.

14.4.4.2.2 Internet giant Yahoo! to follow rivals Google, Microsoft to Israel

By Raz Smolsky and Maayan Cohen Ha'aretz 14/01/2008. Internet giant Yahoo! is coming to Israel, and not only over the Net. The company is taking its battle for survival against Google and Microsoft to Israel on two levels. It will open a research and development center in Haifa, and will also enter the content side of the business here for the first time through a cooperation agreement with Walla!, which is partly owned by Haaretz. Yahoo! is following Google, which set up R&D centers in Tel Aviv and Haifa, as well as establishing a marketing center that also deals in joint content arrangements with Israeli portals. Microsoft, meanwhile, has set up a sales and marketing branch in Ra'anana, as well as R&D centers in Tel Aviv and Herzliya. Yahoo! is now negotiating office space in the Matam high-tech park in Haifa; and is expected to open its research center within a few months. Google kicked off in the Middle East with its Haifa R&D center in July 2006, despite the Second Lebanon War at the time; the center was its first in the region and only its fourth outside of the U.S. Other well-known companies in the Matam industrial park include Intel, Microsoft, Elbit and Zim. Yahoo!'s first foray into the Israeli content market is based on a strategic deal signed with portal Walla!. The goal is to threaten Google's hegemony in the Israeli search market for the first time and the real challenge is to compete in search-based advertising. Under the long-term deal signed between Yahoo! and Walla!, the technology and databases will come from Yahoo!, but the search engine will be branded as Walla! Search, the name of Walla!'s present engine. Only six months ago there were reports that Walla! was negotiating with Google in the search market, but no agreement was ever reached. Google usually partners with a local search engine by providing the technology and the advertisements, while the revenues are split. The joint Walla!-Yahoo! venture will continue using Walla!'s AdVantage platform. This will allow Walla! to continue to manage the advertising itself, and it will receive a higher percentage of the revenues than in a deal that also included advertising, such as Google proposed. According to Walla! CEO Ilan Yeshua: "The search and advertising in search results sector is one of the fastest growing in the world, and also in Israel. The agreement with Yahoo! allows us to offer Walla!'s surfers an excellent search product ... for the Israeli user. The agreement will help Walla! increase its market share in the search-based advertising market. The existence of another strong player in the search and textual advertising sector will contribute to competitiveness, both in the search experience and in the range of possibilities available to advertisers." Yahoo! and Walla! had previously discussed technological cooperation in the past, but nothing serious came of it. Walla!'s previous management, replaced in 2006, was never willing to allow outsiders to share its advertising revenues. Israeli Internet advertising was estimated at $90 million in 2007, 10% of the total advertising pie. Of this figure, search engine advertising took about half, $40-50 million, the large majority of which went to Google.

14.4.4.2.3 Yahoo buys no-sales FoxyTunes for $40m

By Guy Griml Ha'aretz, February 05, 2008 - Yahoo, the Internet giant that Microsoft wants to take over, is gearing up for its second Israeli investment: FoxyTunes, owned by entrepreneurs Vitaly and Alex Sirota. The exact amount has not been announced, but sources close to the situation say the company will go for between $30 million and $40 million. The Sirota brothers, new immigrants from Russia, are the big winners in the deal, along with Yossi Vardi and a group of private investors from the United States. Initial investment in the company is estimated at just a few million, and the brothers will be raking in a total of $15 million. ... "We will become part of Yahoo Entertainment, and they will distribute the FoxyTunes toolbar to as many people as possible."

14.4.5 More on Jewish Internet actor Semel...

Semel is currently on the Board of Directors of Polo Ralph Lauren Corporation, Emerson College, and the Guggenheim Museum. But he still continues his favorite pastime, which he describes in a Hebrew-language interview in the Israeli The Globe, as: I'm busy mostly with in searching for interesting companies in order to purchase and invest in, and I'm certain that they'll be heard of in the coming years. Terry's daughter Courtenay Semel is also in the spotlight. The Jewish site Jewtastic writes.

14.4.5.1 Courtenay Semel Reveals She Was Lohan's First Jewish Gay Lover

By Jewtastic Staff August 18th, 2008. Lindsay Lohan embarked on a secret lesbian affair with aspiring actress Courtenay Semel before meeting [Jewish] Samantha Ronson, it has been claimed. Semel - the daughter of former Yahoo! CEO Terry Semel - insists she was the Mean Girls star's first gay love. But she claims they kept their affair secret because of the actress' fear of coming out to the world. She said: "Everyone thinks Samantha is Lindsay's first lesbian love, but we were very passionate until her fear of being found out drove us apart. At the time she was terrified her career would be over if she revealed her sexual tendencies. But then Samantha came on to the scene and I was dropped."

14.5 MySpace

MySpace is a social networking website with an interactive, user-submitted network of friends, personal profiles, blogs, groups, photos, music, and videos for teenagers and adults internationally.

14.5.1 Jewish co-founders and President

The MySpace project was overseen by Brad Greenspan (eUniverse's Founder, Chairman, CEO), who managed Chris DeWolfe (MySpace's starting CEO), Josh Berman, Tom Anderson (MySpace's starting President), and a team of programmers and resources provided by eUniverse. Known Jews in this lot are Anderson, Greenspan and Berman. As one Jewish blogger writes. The website was co-founded by Tom Anderson. Although Tom's last name reflects his father's Scottish heritage, he and his mother are Jewish and he was raised in a messianic Jewish household. Josh Berman, the other Jewish co-founder of MySpace.com, also served as the company's Chief Operating Officer.

14.5.2 Jewish Vice Presidents including an Israeli paratrooper (reserves)

Another Jew, Richard Rosenblatt, was former Chairman of MySpace and thus earned the title the "MySpace guru". The Jew Travis Katz is presently the international head of MySpace and a senior Vice President (2009). Among other names as senior Vice Presidents we have Shawn Gold, the Israeli Nimrod Lev (former Israeli paratroopers and military intelligence) and Josh Brooks. Whether Steve Pearman also is Jewish, we don't know. Another Jew - with political insights - is Jeff Berman who joined MySpace in 2006 as Senior Vice President of Public Affairs. In 2007, Berman was promoted to General Manager of MySpaceTV.

- <http://myspacetv.com>

Jeff Berman oversaw the launch of the company's global video platform. There he cooperated with media Jews Michael Eisner, Marshall Herskovitz and Edward Zwick. In 2008 Berman was appointed Executive Vice President of Marketing and Content of MySpace, responsible for spearheading the development and implementation of marketing initiatives and campaigns for MySpace's more than 110 million users worldwide. Berman will thus report to MySpace's CEO and co-founder Chris DeWolfe. Before joining MySpace, from 2001-2005, Berman served as Chief Counsel to the Jewish U.S. Senator Chuck Schumer and Staff Director of the subcommittee on Administrative Oversight and the Courts. MySpace, and its parent company eUniverse (now renamed Intermix Media) was bought in July 2005 for US$ 580 million by arch-Zionist Rupert Murdoch's News Corporation. Murdoch is a fanatic pro-Israeli. In the Jewish magazine 15 Minutes, Issue 26, July 1, 2001, one could read: [Murdoch] explained at a Museum of Jewish Heritage dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria that, "I have always believed in the future of Israel and the goals of the international Jewish community".

14.5.3 MySpace and Israel

The Israeli paper Ha'aretz writes, January 09, 2007 - Hey, Israeli startups - MySpace wants you By Lior Haner - Even though most Israeli entrepreneurs say they want to develop their startups into large companies, most secretly wish for generous purchase offers from abroad - and may even prefer working as senior vice presidents in an American corporation. Both of these wishes were granted to Israeli Internet serial entrepreneur Nimrod Lev, 35, who founded KSolo in 2005, sold it last summer to Fox Interactive Media and now works as a senior vice president at Fox. Fox Interactive is owned by the media conglomerate News Corp., and owns the popular MySpace Internet Web site. Lev is currently on a personal trip to Israel, and will be speaking at the Israel Management Center's convention this coming Sunday, January 7, where participants will choose the 2006 high-tech CEO of the year. Haner's current visit is his first to Israel since selling KSolo and he does not hide his intentions to find more Israeli Internet entrepreneurs for Fox's acquisitions department. "If there is a company can benefit FOX's MySpace, I would rather find it in Israel than elsewhere," explains Lev. Despite his Israeli background and the fact that there are other Israelis who could assist companies in penetrating the American market, Lev insists that due to the cultural gaps and problems in understanding one another, any company that wants to succeed overseas needs a local presence. This week Lev hopes to meet with representatives of several Israeli companies whose products are in their initial stages, to form ties between them and Fox. Lev believes that the next big high-tech field combines the Internet and cellular services, but he has not revealed which Israeli companies he thinks have the best potential, or with whom he is meeting. In the meantime, he has been heaping praises on the more established and familiar Internet companies, such as Jajah, Oberon Media and Quigo Technologies. He also feels the biggest underachieving company in recent years is Babylon, the interactive dictionary developer, which Lev says could have been much more successful. During his visit, Lev will share his experience and relate the story of his ascent to the upper echelons of the American Internet industry. Lev started out as an editor at the Israeli Internet portal Walla in 1996, a job he landed after editing the student newspaper at Tel Aviv's College of Management.

14.5.3.1 Firing Cupid's arrow

In 1999 Lev left Walla to join Zion Madmon, the founder of cupid.co.il, to help promote that company and develop it abroad, thus beginning his journey to American Internet. "We established JCupid, which joined forces with JDate," recalls Lev. "In 2004, Cupid was sold to Spark Networks, which operates JDate. That was my first exit and I immediately started looking for my next project and remained in the United States. The next thing turned out to be KSolo." KSolo, run by the Israeli developers of Cupid and headed by Lev in New York, is a site for karaoke singing and recording. Lev says that his secret to success is not developing something that he thinks users want, but something that users need. The product does not have to be connected to the success of other sites or the entrepreneur's personal background. "I was no longer a bachelor when I began matchmaking on the Web and had no connection to karaoke when I founded KSolo, but it seemed to me like a necessary product. One does not always have to invent the wheel. One can take something that works well in the real world and adapt it for the Internet. This was the case with the two companies I founded," he says. "At KSolo, we signed an agreement with all the major copyright holders of the songs in America and share the revenues with them," Lev adds, adding that in the Internet era, content has so far been considered the main thing. "One has to understand that in the past two years, the user has become the focal point," continues Lev, "and it is the users who control the content." Lev's path to the Fox deal began like that of many Internet entrepreneurs, with a fund-raising campaign by private investors. "The investors were American," relates Lev. "It is easier to raise money in the U.S. It depends on the project, but usually Israelis find it harder to spend money. It is something in their blood. Israeli market evaluations are lower, because Israelis were burned more severely by the bursting of the high-tech bubble. Since the American Internet market was much more advanced, many companies had already had exits, while in Israel, the industry collapsed a moment before companies closed deals, and the sting of the previous experience affects investors' decisions to this day." In the summer of 2006, about a year after KSolo went on the air, Lev received a telephone call from Tom Andersen, one of Fox's senior executives, who is also the president of MySpace. He had discovered a karaoke recording by a KSolo user on the user's personal site at MySpace. "The negotiations [with Fox] were quick and very serious," recalls Lev. "For a few weeks I attended a great many meetings, at which [Fox representatives] explained to me exactly what they wanted. They exhibited a level of perseverance and determination I had not encountered before and did not waste any time, something critical to startups." Lev would not disclose how much he received for the company, but commented that the investors received a good return on their money. After the sale, Lev was appointed a senior vice president at Fox, where he continues to be responsible for KSolo's operations. The Jewish Virtual Library wrote in their article on MySpace's Lev Nimrod's connection to the Israeli military:

- http://www.jewishvirtuallibrary.org/jsource/biography/Nimrod_Lev.html

Ironically enough, it was war-not love-that prepared Lev for his career and reinforced his belief in promulgating the Jewish faith via Jewish marriages. Military service is compulsory in Israel-women serve two years and men three. Lev, however, opted to serve five: three years as a paratrooper in a combat unit and then two years in charge of an intelligence unit that focused on anti-terrorist tactics. Today, he is a captain in the reserves. "When you walk 60 miles with 40 pounds on you, everything else looks easy," he says. "I wish that young people didn't have to go through this. At this age-after high school graduation-they should be thinking about chasing down dates not about chasing terrorists. But I know that until we find peace, everyone has to contribute to Israel's safety. We're defending Israel so Jews all over the world will have a place to feel safe. This is one of the reasons we need to do whatever we can to bring Jews together."

14.5.4 Israel seeks friends through MySpace

By Bobbie Johnson, technology correspondent The Guardian, Saturday 24 March 2007 - A 58-year-old Jerusalem woman is not a typical MySpace user - the hugely popular social networking site is inhabited mostly by people at least 30 years younger. But the profile she is reading is a profile with a difference: it represents the entire state of Israel. Officials hope that running a MySpace page dedicated to Israel will help improve relations with people from other countries, and increase awareness and communication with those under 35. The idea belongs to David Saranga, a diplomat based at the Israeli consulate in New York. Mr Saranga said research had shown Israel's image among the young was not good, and that by reaching out through one of the internet's most popular sites he could repair some of the damage. "We saw that we had a problem with the 18 to 35 age group. The reason is that this group doesn't see Israel as relevant. We have to talk to them in their language, in platforms they are using, and the new media is one of the ways to do so," he said. The page is particularly targeted at young Americans, who make up a large proportion of MySpace users. Since Mr Saranga set up the page, "Israel" has gained 963 friends from around the world, including fictional characters such as TV secret agent Jack Bauer and Star Wars heroine Princess Leia, as well as, it is claimed, the Hollywood actors George Clooney and Leonardo Di Caprio. The pages include pictures of Israeli cities, as well as music that invites the audience to question the cycle of violence and to "end this holy war". Among Mr Saranga's other initiatives are a blog called "isRealli" and an internet TV station.

14.5.5 MySpace Is The Trojan Horse Of Internet Censorship

Media elite's last gasp effort to save crumbling empire Paul Joseph Watson & Alex Jones/Prison Planet.com | March 16 2006 - MySpace isn't cool, it isn't hip and it isn't trendy. It represents a cyber trojan horse and the media elite's last gasp effort to reclaim control of the Internet and sink it with a stranglehold of regulation, control and censorship. Since Rupert Murdoch's $580 Million acquisition of MySpace in July 2005, it has come from total obscurity to now being the 8th most visited website in the world, receiving half as many page hits as Google, despite the fact that on first appearance it looks like a 5-year-old's picture scrap and scribble book. MySpace is the new mobile phone. If you don't have a MySpace account then you belong to some kind of culturally shunned underclass. What most of the trendy wendy's remain blissfully unaware of is the fact that MySpace is Rupert Murdoch's battle axe for shaping a future Internet environment whereby electronic dissent, whether it be against corporations or government, will not tolerated and freedom of e-speech will cease to exist. MySpace has been caught shutting down blogs critical of itself and other Murdoch owned companies. They even had the audacity to censor links to completely different websites when clicking through for MySpace. When 600 MySpace users complained, MySpace deleted the blog forum that the complaints were posted on. Taking their inspiration from Communist China, MySpace regularly uses blanket censorship to block out words like 'God'. Earlier this week Rupert Murdoch sounded the death knell for conventional forms of media in stating that the media elite were losing their monopoly to the rapid and free spread of new communication technologies. Murdoch stressed the need to regain control of these outlets in order to prevent the establishment media empire from crumbling. MySpace is Rupert Murdoch's trojan horse for destroying free speech on the Internet. It is a foundational keystone of the first wave of the state's backlash to the damage that a free and open Internet has done to their organs of propaganda. By firstly making it cool, trendy and culturally elite for millions to flock to establishment controlled Internet backbones like MySpace, Murdoch is preparing the groundwork for the day when it will stop being voluntary and become mandatory to use government and corporate monopoly controlled Internet hubs. The end game is a system similar to or worse than China, whereby no websites even mildly critical of the government will be authorized. The Pentagon admitted that they would engage in psychological warfare and cyber attacks on 'enemy' Internet websites in an attempt to shut them down. The fact that the NSA surveillance program spied on 5,000 Americans tells us that the enemy is the alternative media and that it will be targeted for elimination. Google has been ordered to turn over information about its users by a judge to the US government. The second wave of destroying freedom of speech online will simply attempt to price people out of using the conventional Internet and force people over to Internet 2, a state regulated hub where permission will need to be obtained directly from an FCC or government bureau to set up a website. The original Internet will then be turned into a mass surveillance database and marketing tool. The Nation magazine reported, "Verizon, Comcast, Bell South and other communications giants are developing strategies that would track and store information on our every move in cyberspace in a vast data-collection and marketing system, the scope of which could rival the National Security Agency. According to white papers now being circulated in the cable, telephone and telecommunications industries, those with the deepest pockets--corporations, special-interest groups and major advertisers--would get preferred treatment. Content from these providers would have first priority on our computer and television screens, while information seen as undesirable, such as peer-to-peer communications, could be relegated to a slow lane or simply shut out." The original Internet will deliberately be subject to crash upon crash until it becomes a useless carcass of overpriced trash and its reputation will be defiled by the TV and media barons cashing in on the perfectly streamlined Internet 2, the free for all network that just requires you to thumbscan in order to log on! Those with a security grading below yellow on their national ID card will unfortunately be refused access. Websites that carry hate speech (ones that talk about government corruption) will be censored for the betterment of society. For the aspiring dictator, the Internet is a dangerous tool that has been seized by the enemy. We have come a long way since 1969, when the ARPANET was created solely for US government use. The Internet is freedom's best friend and the bane of control freaks. Its eradication is one of the short term goals of those that seek to centralize power and subjugate the world under a global surveillance panopticon prison. Rupert Murdoch's MySpace and its ceaseless promotion by the establishment media as the best thing since sliced bread is part of this movement. In saying all this we do encourage everyone to set up a MySpace account, but only if you're going to use it to bash MySpace, Rupert Murdoch and copy and paste this article right at the top of the page! See how long it is before your account is terminated.

The Jewish boasting page www.jewishachievement.com writes on the Jewish first President of eBay, the Canadian-born Jeff Skoll. Jeff Skoll did not create eBay, non-Jew Pierre Omidyar did in 1993. For Omidyar, born to French and Iranian parents, creating an on-line auction Web-site was a Labor Day weekend hobby project. For its first couple of years, it was simply a free Web-site Omidyar ran on his own home page along with several other of his Web page creations. During the first few months, he tried to recruit Skoll, a Jewish French-Canadian he met through friends, to become his partner. Skoll turned him down, choosing to remain at Stanford Business School. In early 1996, Omidyar's Internet service provider began charging him $250 a month to host the site. Omidyar was forced to start charging a fee, which he passed along to the site's users based on the sale price of auction items. As the checks started rolling in Omidyar realized he needed help. Again, he approached Skoll. This time, after a few months of consulting for eBay, Skoll signed on as its first full time employee and President. Skoll grew up in Canada and showed early signs of being a driven entrepreneur. At twelve, he was selling Amway products door-to-door. After graduating from the University of Toronto with a 4.0 grade point average, he set up two high tech companies before moving to Palo Alto to enroll at Stanford Business School. Compensating for Omidyar's easy going ways and enjoyment of programming, Skoll was the driven leader who planned the business and made things happen. He hired key people, established much of the culture, and constantly pushed to build the business. The result is the number one auction Web site in the world. It grossed $3.9 billion in 2004, netted $936 million and was worth $53 billion by mid 2005, all of which made both Omidyar and Skoll very wealthy. Skoll has since left eBay and now devotes the bulk of his time to philanthropic activities, particularly his Skoll Foundation to which he has donated $250 million. The Foundation supports social entrepreneurs working to effect lasting positive social changes worldwide. In 2003, Skoll won recognition from Business Week magazine as "one of the most innovative philanthropists of the past decade". Ed Skoll also interacts with fellow Jewish Internet entrepreneurs. We have named the Israel-loving financier and Board member of Facebook, Peter Thiel, in our section on that company. Thiel together with the Ukrainian Jew Max Rafael Levchin founded PayPal. The company was then bought by eBay. In an excerpt from "Once You're Lucky, Twice You're Good: The Rebirth of Silicon Valley and the Rise of Web 2.0", by Sarah Lacy, <http://www.metroactive.com/metro/06.11.08/cover-supermen-0824.html>, we can see how Skoll "became friends with the PayPal crew" of Jews and even entered the movie business. The PayPal mafia even had Hollywood success. Jeff Skoll was one of the first eBay executives who became friends with the PayPal crew when eBay bought the company in 2002. He started up Participant Productions on a lark, and it has been one of the most profitable productions companies in Hollywood. Among its first four films were Syriana, Good Night, and Good Luck, North Country, and An Inconvenient Truth. Skoll's success convinced Max and Peter to start dabbling in Hollywood, bankrolling the 2006 indie flick Thank You for Smoking, along with David Sacks, PayPal's former chief operating officer. While Sacks continued to play the Hollywood game, he also launched a new social networking site for families, called Geni.com. It allows people to fill out their family trees and link them to the family trees of spouses and in-laws. Anyone on the tree can add to the tree, the idea being that over time you discover people you're related to that you didn't know. It's a bold idea, one of the first Web 2.0 start-ups aimed squarely at families. Peter Thiel, naturally, backed it early on. And in Geni's first venture capital round with Charles River Ventures, it got nosebleed $100 million valuation. The CRV partner who wrote the check was George Zachary, Skoll's early partner in Participant Productions and a friend of Max and Peter's. By 2006, the PayPal mafia was an incestuous world where, for now, everyone seemed to be making lots of money. Just to clarify both David Sacks, PayPal's former chief operating officer, and George Zachary, "Skoll's early partner in Participant Productions and a friend of Max and Peter's", are Jewish. Another Jew in Skoll's present entourage is Larry Brilliant who we detail more in our section on Google where he for 3 years was responsible for Google's philanthropic arm Google.org. In 2009 Brilliant joined a new organisation set up by Jeff Skoll. But Dr. Brilliant also said he would remain as an advisor to Google. Skoll was President of eBay until 1998 when he became Vice President, Strategic Planning and Analysis, until back problems necessitated his departure from full-time employment at the company. Once eBay's second largest stockholder (behind only Omidyar) he subsequently cashed out a portion of his company holdings, yielding him around $2 billion.

14.6.1 Yossi Vardi - "Israeli technology guru"

European Jewish Congress, Thursday, May 22, 2008 By Jennifer L. Schenker It's May 15, and Israeli technology guru Yossi Vardi is moderating a session on the future of the Internet at a conference in Jerusalem. On stage with the fatherly 65-year-old is a who's who of tech and media bigwigs, including Google (GOOG) co-founder Sergey Brin, Yahoo ! (YHOO) President Susan Decker, and News Corp. (NWS) Chief Executive Rupert Murdoch. Vardi (right in the above photo) isn't the least bit cowed by their eminence. In his irrepressible manner, he calls out to the crowd : "How many Israeli entrepreneurs in the audience want to do business with Yahoo ?" He then tries to get Decker to give out her personal e-mail address. (She declines.) Vardi settles for announcing the e-mail of Yahoo's head of European operations to the scores of entrepreneurs who have raised their hands. Undoubtedly the most prominent and connected tech entrepreneur in Israel, Vardi makes no bones about his objectives. The point of moderating the tech panel, he says later with a laugh, was to "shamelessly promote Israel's high-tech sector." The same evening, he tries to convince Brin to do more business in Israel by dragging the Google co-founder and his parents to a dilapidated warehouse in the suburbs of Tel Aviv to introduce them to 300 Israeli "garage geeks" who tinker there. Now this goodwill ambassador-long known for his connections in Silicon Valley-has been tapped by the Israeli government to help deepen ties with Europe. Vardi was recently named co-chairman-alongside Mathias Döpfner, the chief executive of German media company Axel Springer (SPRGN)-of a group called the EU-Israel Business Dialogue. Its aim is to foster business relations between Israel and Europe through events such as the upcoming Israel Innovation Day in Germany on June 16.

Making Deals, Earning Respect Although the panel's work is just getting under way, Europe's big tech companies have already been eyeing Israeli innovation for some time. In March, a France Telecom (FTE) subsidiary spent $21.4 million for a startup called Orca Interactive, based in Ra'anana, near Tel Aviv, that develops Internet TV software and applications. Germany's Deutsche Telekom (DT) has opened a research and development laboratory at Israel's Ben-Gurion University focused on network security. And Britain's BT Group (BT) is "actively scouting for Israeli technologies to use either ourselves or for our customers," says Gary Shainberg, BT's vice-president for technology and innovation support. Such deals are welcome news to Vardi, who founded his first technology startup in 1969 and has gone on to be involved in more than 60 Israeli tech ventures. He has taken seven companies public and sold many others-the most famous of which was ICQ, the first Internet instant-messaging company, which was acquired by AOL (TWX) for more than $400 million. But more than his financial success, what has turned the avuncular Vardi into Israel's Mr. Tech is relentless networking, his passionate belief in the cause, and generosity with his time and money. Known for his love of gadgets and mischievous sense of humor, Vardi has plowed his gains from ICQ and other successes back into startups, serving as angel investor and mentor to scores of young Israelis. He now counts more than 40 companies in his investment portfolio, and spends much of his time traveling around the world to promote these and other Israeli companies at business events. That commitment and kindness has earned Vardi legions of admirers, including Shimon Peres, the President of Israel, who calls him Israel's "best ambassador" to the world of science and technology. Vardi isn't in it for the money, Peres insists. "He is after the science itself. He really and sincerely wakes up in the morning, opens his eyes, and asks, 'God, what can I discover of your secrets today ?' And once he has it, he will relate it to others."

Groundbreaking Generosity There's another motivation as well, says Vardi, who had a long civil service career in Israel : what he calls modern day Zionism. "I belong to the generation that witnessed the creation of the state," Vardi says. "I still remember the dancing in the streets on the 29th of November, 1947, so for me, what I am doing, is a current manifestation of pioneering the building of the state of Israel." At times, Vardi may be too much of a soft touch. He says he hates to read business plans and instead goes with his gut-sometimes even committing to investments over the phone if he believes in the entrepreneur making the pitch. "My wife, Thalma, who keeps me connected to the ground, tells me it doesn't make sense that every kid with shining eyes walks away from a meeting with me with a check," says Vardi. "But I tell her if I lose the money at least it goes to nice people and allows them to follow their dreams. Who wants to give money to jerks?" Thanks in part to his involvement, high tech now represents a vibrant portion of Israel's economy (BusinessWeek.com, 5/13/08). But the domestic market is so small that Israeli tech companies have to grow their businesses quickly in the U.S. and Europe. Nobody can open doors abroad like Vardi, say entrepreneurs and executives. "Yossi is a super-node," says BT's Shainberg. "He connects people and companies from around the world to leverage the world-beating technology innovation in Israel." With the help of Vardi and the Israeli Trade & Industry Assn., Shainberg is bringing a group of Israeli tech entrepreneurs to London on June 10-11 to meet with executives from the British phone company and its partners.

Forging Relationships Indeed, Vardi's web of connections spreads throughout the Continent. He has, for instance, a long-standing relationship with German publishing company Hubert Burda Media, acting as an informal adviser on digital strategies. A few years back, he helped the company set up a conference called Cool Companies in the Hot Desert that brought a group of German tech entrepreneurs to Israel. "Yossi is a connector, a sharer, a giver, a storyteller," says Stephanie Czerny, Burda's managing director in charge of R&D, marketing, and communication. The success of the event led Vardi and Burda CEO Hubert Burda (left in the photo) to launch what has quickly become one of Europe's most important technology conferences, known as Digital, Life, Design, or DLD. The annual event now draws 1,000 attendees every January, and this year Vardi brought 150 Israeli Internet entrepreneurs along with him to the conference to introduce them to potential investors and business partners. Vardi thrives on forging those sorts of links. "Yossi has an amazing capability and will to connect people," says Tal Keinan, CEO of an Israeli startup called SemantiNet, one of the companies in Vardi's portfolio. "This is priceless for a startup." Keinan found that out firsthand when Vardi invited him to a private dinner in London in April. Held in the BT Tower, the exclusive event included senior executives from Apple (AAPL), Yahoo, Hutchison Europe, and Google, as well as partners from investment firms such as Accel Partners and Hasso Plattner Ventures. As if that wasn't enough, a few days later back in Israel, Vardi introduced Keinan to Dell (DELL) founder and CEO Michael Dell. For all his brokering of deals and relationships, Vardi isn't impressed by big names and isn't in it just for the money. "It is about building things, about having fun, about exploring new boundaries, and crossing boundaries," says Uri Admon, CEO of an Israeli startup called Dyuna, another company in Vardi's portfolio. "He is an inspiration to us all."

14.7 Other Jewish actors

In August 2007 the AlwaysOn Stanford Summit featured the forum "Social Networking 3.0". The composition of the panel at this forum was very illustrative. Moderator Charlene Li was joined by Travis Katz, senior Vice President and General Manager of MySpace International; Dustin Moskovitz, co-founder of Facebook; Richard Rosenblatt, CEO of Demand Media and former MySpace Executive; Gina Bianchini, CEO of Ning; and Karl Jacob, CEO of Wallop. The only non-Jew in this panel was Bianchini, the rest - Katz, Moskovitz, Rosenblatt and Karl Jacob - were all from the tribe of the "chosen people", as they call themselves. This clearly illustrates the Jewish overrepresentation in this field. We will here reproduce some Jewish articles on the subject of Jews and Internet. The Jewish boast-page www.jewishachievement.com writes on the subject.

14.7.1 Jews as High Technology Entrepreneurs and Managers

Jews have traditionally been seen as prominent in such industries as finance, merchandising, apparel, textiles, entertainment, media, and publishing. And in most of them, Jews were true pioneers. They played leading roles as those industries emerged on the scene. Their disproportionate importance to the contemporary world of 24/7 competitive high technology is less well known, but they have flourished there as well. It plays to their strengths. High technology demands a solid grounding in the underlying science or engineering and that typically calls for college, and sometimes a post graduate education. Demographically, Jews are better educated than their peers. An earlier chapter pointed out the high levels of Jewish enrollment at leading public and private universities. The National Jewish Population Survey 2000-01 goes further. It points out that: "More than half of all Jewish Adults (55%) received a college degree and a quarter (25%) earned a graduate degree." "The Comparable figures for the total U.S. population are 29% and 6%." As a result, "More than 60% of all employed Jews are in one of the three highest status job categories: professional or technical (41%), management and executive (13%) and business and finance (7%)." "In contrast, 46% of all Americans work in these three high status areas, 29% in professional or technical jobs, 12% in management and executive positions and 5% in business and finance." Jews also tend to be disproportionately entrepreneurial, working where they will succeed or fail based on their own efforts. Andrew Grove's decision to stop writing, and instead to pursue science, illustrates the point. Judgments about writers are often subjective while those about science are much less so. Grove wanted to work in a field where he would be judged on his own performance. He chose chemistry and got his Ph.D. After several years working with the best and brightest at Fairchild Semiconductor, he left to become one of the three founders of Intel. Technology is a high risk meritocracy. While even the most talented people sometimes fail, and fortune can obliterate the most brilliant of plans; technology is not political. Relationships and initial funding will carry a venture only so far. Ultimately it must succeed or fail on its own merits in a volatile, highly competitive arena. Such risky opportunities can be pursued in hospitable climates, such as the United States, and in such environments, Jewish entrepreneurs have done well. They:

- Created the world's largest and most valuable personal computer company; (Michael Dell, Dell Computers)
- Co-founded the world's most successful search engine; (Sergy Brin, Google)
- Head the world's largest software company; (Steve Ballmer, Microsoft)
- Co-founded and head the world's second largest software company; (Larry Ellison, Oracle)
- Co-founded, led and served as Chairman of the dominant microprocessor and memory chip company whose products drive most of today's personal computers; (Andrew Grove, Intel)
- Created the first "killer application" software which ignited demand for personal computers; (Mitch Kapor, Lotus 123)
- Served as Number 1 or 2 person in three of the world's four most valuable Internet companies according to a May 2004 Fortune study (Terry Semmel at Yahoo, Jeff Skoll at e-Bay and Barry Diller at IAC)
- Co-founded and head the communications protocol/chip company whose technology is the market leader in U.S. cell phones and is likely to be the world leader as the next generation cell phone technology (3G) is adopted worldwide. (Irwin Jacobs, Qualcomm).

14.7.1.1 Dell Computer – Michael Dell

Dell: Michael Dell and Larry Ellison (of Oracle) share the distinction of being two of the most successful college dropouts in history. (Non-Jew Bill Gates is a third.) Dell quit the University of Texas in 1985 when he was 19 years old to start Dell Computer Corporation with a $1,000 stake. His idea was to "cut out the middleman" by selling personal computers (PCs) directly to customers. Dell's combination of custom built computers, excellent product quality, superb customer service, outstanding production efficiency, and low prices created the world's largest computer manufacturing company. In achieving that distinction, he took on IBM, Compaq, Hewlett Packard, Toshiba, and many other PC makers, most of them much bigger and better financed than Dell. He is emblematic of the creative, determined nature of successful entrepreneurs. In the process, he made his company one of the most valuable in the world. In 1992, Dell became the youngest CEO in history to earn a spot on the Fortune 500 when his Company had been in existence for only eight years. With fiscal year 2005 sales of $53 billion, Dell has humbled most competitors. Despite the challenges of rapid growth and competitive success, Dell and its founder are consistently counted as among America's most respected. The success has earned 40 year old Dell a fortune, sufficient, till his most recent birthday, to consistently place him among Fortune's "40 under 40." These are all young entrepreneurs, athletes and entertainers who have achieved stellar success before reaching age 40. With his wife, Dell has created the Michael & Susan Dell Foundation, endowing it with more than $1 billion. Its focus is the health, education, safety, care and development of children. Among its recent commitments was $130 million to help boost high school graduation and college attendance rates in Texas.

14.7.1.2 Google – Sergy Brin

Google: Sergy Brin is the son of Russian Jewish emigrants who left the Soviet Union in 1979 to escape persecution. Sergy was six at the time. Mathematically inclined, he earned a computer science degree from University of Maryland before entering Stanford as a postgraduate student. There he met non-Jew, Larry Page, also studying for his doctorate. Together, they developed a search engine - called BackRub before they renamed it Google. They dropped out of Stanford, rounded up $1 million from friends, family and angel venture investors and on September 7, 1998, launched Google. Less than ten years old, it is the most popular search engine on the Web with more than eighty-two million users each month accessing more than eight billion Web site pages (twice the comparable 2004 figure). It employs more than 4,000 people and has had a spectacular run up in its stock price to a value of roughly $80 billion in mid 2005.

14.7.1.3 Microsoft – Steve Balmer

Microsoft: Steve Ballmer did not found Microsoft. Non-Jews Bill Gates and Paul Allen did. They started the Company in 1976, five years after they began programming together while attending Lakeside High School in Seattle where they had access to the school's computer. Gates went off to Harvard where he and Ballmer became good friends. Ballmer was a bright Jewish kid from Detroit who scored a perfect 800 on his math SATs and who took it upon himself to "socialize" Gates at Harvard - until Gates dropped out to start Microsoft. About the same time, Paul Allen dropped out of Washington State and together Gates and Allen launched the Company. Gates tried to convince Ballmer to drop out as well, but instead, Ballmer stayed in school, going on to graduate magna cum laude from Harvard in 1977. He worked for Proctor and Gamble for two years and then entered Stanford Business School. Perhaps just to "fit in," he then dropped out of Stanford Business School in 1980 after Gates had made yet one more appeal for him to join Microsoft. Ballmer was the Company's twenty-fourth employee. Within three years Paul Allen was gone, the result of a bout with Hodgkin's Lymphoma. Ballmer served first as the Company's financial disciplinarian and later became the number two guy, holding down every senior job in the Company before being named President in 1998 and CEO in 2000. Known for his determination and salesmanship, Ballmer has been vital to Microsoft's success.

Note: Microsoft appears before Congress periodically citing need for unlimited H1B Visa Immigration.

14.7.1.4 Oracle - Larry Ellison

Oracle: Larry Ellison is a University of Chicago dropout. He was one of the three (later four) partners who founded Oracle Corporation in 1977. Ellison, the leader, read an IBM article about a new kind of software termed a "relational database." Then commonly acknowledged as a revolutionary new way to build a database, no one, not even at IBM, thought it was commercially viable. Ellison disagreed and with $2,000, the partners began developing the software, using cash generated from consulting projects to augment the $2,000. Of the four founders, two later left the company and one died. But from the start, it was Ellison that was, and still is, the driving force behind Oracle. "Relentless," "determined," and "ruthless" are among terms commonly used to describe him. He has been schooled in Japanese approaches to business where anything less than 100 percent market share is not enough. His strong ego is characterized by the titles of two books about him. The first is titled, "The Difference Between God and Larry Ellison." It is the first line of an old Silicon Valley joke for which the punch line is "God does not think he is Larry Ellison." The second book is Everyone Else Must Fail, for which the preamble is "It is not good enough that I should succeed." Ellison was born to an unmarried Jewish teenage mother and an Italian-American air force pilot father, but he grew up with an aunt, and an uncle who constantly put young Larry down saying he would never amount to anything. Harvard Business School's Entrepreneur of the Year in 1990, the 2004 Forbes' 400 lists Ellison as the world's ninth wealthiest person. Ellison has devoted roughly half a billion dollars to charities, particularly a medical foundation focused mostly on infectious diseases in the third world and diseases of aging. In mid 2005, he also pledged $115 million to Harvard University.

Note: Larry Ellison was behind the H1B Visa Program.

14.7.1.5 Intel – Andrew Grove

Intel: As noted in the Andrew Grove bio, Intel was formed in 1968 by non-Jews Robert Noyce and Gordon Moore who recruited Grove to be their co-founder and third employee. Their established reputations and ability to raise the needed $2.5 million from venture capitalist Arthur Rock financed the Company, Noyce headed up sales and Marketing, Moore R&D, while Grove headed manufacturing and product development. Grove disciplined the organization to set and reach goals and he made the critical decisions, such committing Intel to the microprocessors which made Intel the huge success it is.

Note: Intel's Management stated "We do not need to hire Americans Anymore".

14.7.1.6 Lotus – Mitch Kapor

Lotus: Mitch Kapor did not invent the spreadsheet, but his software program, Lotus 123, was the first application to spawn huge demand for personal computers. Visicalc, an earlier spreadsheet program created by Jew Dan Bricklin and Bob Frankston in 1982, was available on several early computers including the Apple II a few years before Lotus 123 arrived. But Lotus 123 had many more features, was easier to use, and had far better graphics. It provided the compelling reason for consumers to buy personal computers and demand was so strong, Lotus grossed $53 million in its first year and $156 million by 1984. Kapor went on to create other major software programs including Lotus Agenda.

14.7.1.7 eBay – Jeff Skoll

eBay: Jeff Skoll did not create eBay, non-Jew Pierre Omidyar did in 1993. For Omidyar, born to French and Iranian parents, creating an on-line auction Web-site was a Labor Day weekend hobby project. For its first couple of years, it was simply a free Web-site Omidyar ran on his own home page along with several other of his Web page creations. During the first few months, he tried to recruit Skoll, a Jewish French-Canadian he met through friends, to become his partner. Skoll turned him down, choosing to remain at Stanford Business School. In early 1996, Omidyar's Internet service provider began charging him $250 a month to host the site. Omidyar was forced to start charging a fee, which he passed along to the site's users based on the sale price of auction items. As the checks started rolling in Omidyar realized he needed help. Again, he approached Skoll. This time, after a few months of consulting for eBay, Skoll signed on as its first full time employee and President. Skoll grew up in Canada and showed early signs of being a driven entrepreneur. At twelve, he was selling Amway products door-to-door. After graduating from the University of Toronto with a 4.0 grade point average, he set up two high tech companies before moving to Palo Alto to enroll at Stanford Business School. Compensating for Omidyar's easy going ways and enjoyment of programming, Skoll was the driven leader who planned the business and made things happen. He hired key people, established much of the culture, and constantly pushed to build the business. The result is the number one auction Web site in the world. It grossed $3.9 billion in 2004, netted $936 million and was worth $53 billion by mid 2005, all of which made both Omidyar and Skoll very wealthy. Skoll has since left eBay and now devotes the bulk of his time to philanthropic activities, particularly his Skoll Foundation to which he has donated $250 million. The Foundation supports social entrepreneurs working to effect lasting positive social changes worldwide. In 2003, Skoll won recognition from Business Week magazine as "one of the most innovative philanthropists of the past decade"

14.7.1.8 InterActive Corp – Barry Diller of QVC Home Shopping Network

InterActive Corp (IAC): Barry Diller has made a career of corporate transformations. He started in the mail room at the William Morris Agency in his early 20s, and at age 24, moved to ABC-TV. Within three years, he was Vice President of Feature Films and Program Development. In that job he inaugurated ABC's Movie of the Week, the most popular movie series in television history. At ABC Diller pioneered highly profitable "made-for-television" films which focused on social issues such as homosexuality, the Vietnam War and drugs. In 1974, following that success (and still only 32), he was named President of Paramount Pictures. At Paramount, he oversaw creation of the hit television series: Cheers, Taxi, and Laverne and Shirley, and hit movies including: Raiders of the Lost Ark, Saturday Night Fever and Grease. Ten years later he moved to Twentieth Century-FOX where in 1985, after Rupert Murdoch took over, he launched Fox as the fourth television network. By 1990, Diller had Fox producing five nights of prime time television with such popular shows as: The Simpsons, Married With Children, Cops and America's Most Wanted. Diller quit Fox to purchase a stake in QVC, the cable shopping network, and from there he launched an unsuccessful bid to take over Paramount. Sumner Redstone's Viacom beat him out. Shortly thereafter, in 1995, non-Jew John Malone recruited Diller to leave QVC, invest in and run Liberty Media's Silver King Communications, which was broadcasting the Home Shopping Network. Diller later merged Home Shopping into Silver King. Through a blinding series of name changes, strategic redirections and $8 billion worth of mergers, acquisitions, joint ventures and investments in more than 45 companies, Diller created what is now called Interactive Corp (IAC), the fifth major Internet Company, (behind Google, Amazon, e-Bay, and Yahoo). Little known to the general public, IAC controls such prominent Internet names as: Expedia, Hotels.com, Lending Tree, Hotwire.com, Evite, Citysearch and Ticketmaster. Over the years, Diller has served as a director of Coca Cola and the Washington Post, Trustee of New York University, member of the Executive Board for Medical Sciences at UCLA, member of the Board of Councilors of USC's School of Cinema-Television and a member of the Board of the Museum of Television and Radio.

14.7.1.9 Yahoo! – Terry Semel

Yahoo: Terry Semel did not create Yahoo. Non-Jews Jerry Yang and David Filo did in 1994, as a hobby, while pursuing their electrical engineering PhD's at Stanford. In those halcyon, "early bubble" days, Yahoo went public within two years. It was then, and still is today, regarded as one of the major Internet successes of all time, but along the way, it hit a bump in the road. In 2001, Yahoo lost $93 million on revenues of $717 million. The stock tanked and new talent was needed to avert a melt down. That is when Terry Semel arrived. Semel had 24 years at Warner Brothers where he had been instrumental in building the Company from $1 billion to $11 billion in annual revenues. Semel quickly pushed Yahoo's marketing, consumers' services and acquisitions and by 2003, he had turned the company around. In 2004, Yahoo made $1.6 billion under his leadership.

14.7.1.10 Qualcomm – Irwin Jacobs

Qualcomm: Irwin Jacobs is listed as one of seven Qualcomm founders, but by any measure, he has been the "essential man" from Qualcomm's 1985 inception till now. Qualcomm created and controls Code-Division Multiple Access (CDMA), a major wireless telecommunications technology. It is the most widely used wireless calling technology in the United States, (47 percent market share) used by such carriers as Verizon, Cingular, and Sprint. Around the world, 212 million wireless phones already utilize Qualcomm technology and as 3G, the next generation of wireless, is deployed, Qualcomm is expected to become the international market leader as well. Jacobs grew up in New Bedford, Massachusetts. He was a mediocre musician, but an excellent student earning a bachelors degree from Cornell and a Masters and a Doctor of Science degree from Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT). He taught at MIT and the University of California San Diego (UCSD) from 1959 to 1972. While teaching, he wrote a still used college text, Principles of Communications Engineering, and in 1969, co-founded LINKABIT, a company he describes as his initial move towards becoming an "academic dropout." That finally happened in 1972 when he became LINKABIT's full time President and Chairman. The Company pioneered satellite TV receiver technology (VideoCipher) and was the first to commercially introduce Time Division Multiplex Access (TDMA), the predecessor technology to CDMA. Jacobs built LINKABIT to 1,400 employees, before merging it with M/A-COM and he served on that Board until 1985. Initially, Qualcomm did research and development and some manufacturing for wireless companies while it built the largest satellite-based messaging service used by trucking companies to manage their fleets. That service was quickly overshadowed, however, by CDMA. By 2004, CDMA was generating over $5 billion in annual revenues. All of this has made Jacobs (and his fellow founders) quite wealthy. Jacobs has responded with major philanthropy. He and his wife have given $110 million to the San Diego Symphony (hearkening back to his days as a mediocre musician), another $110 million went to the UCSD to "support the other faculty that are currently doing the teaching," $7 million went to the Salk Institute, and millions more has gone to support the San Diego Food Bank and historic New Bedford. Both he, and fellow Qualcomm founder Andrew Viterbi now have schools of engineering named after them, Jacobs at UCSD and Viterbi and the University of Southern California.

14.7.1.11 RealNetworks –Ron Glaser

RealNetworks: Ron Glaser takes credit for creating the first technology to "stream" audio, video, and other digital content, such as music and games, to computers. He founded RealNetworks in 1994 to capitalize on the technology. Fresh out of Yale with degrees in economics and computer sciences, Glaser joined Microsoft in 1983 where he rose, over his ten years there, to become Vice President of Multimedia and Consumer Systems. He left Microsoft in 1994 and shortly thereafter, says he downloaded Mosaic, an early version of the Netscape Internet browser. He immediately saw the potential to augment the browser with "streaming." He founded RealNetworks and was soon able to take it public. It became a hot Internet stock and, for a time, Glaser was a billionaire. Today, following the bursting of the Internet bubble and heightened competition with Microsoft's Media Player and Apple's Quicktime, RealNetworks continues to post operating losses and it is taking on Microsoft in court. Like earlier Federal and state lawsuits against Microsoft, Glaser's company claims Microsoft competes unfairly by bundling its MediaPlayer into its software. Win or lose, RealNetworks has sufficient cash to finance itself for some time and thus remain a major Internet force, particularly as the downloading of music and games becomes ever more prolific. If RealNetworks succeeds, Glaser will rejoin the ranks of billionaires who hit it big with their Internet technology innovations.

14.7.1.12 Broadcast.com – Mark Cuban

Broadcast.com & HDNet: Mark Cuban grew up poor, the son of Russian Jewish emigrants in blue collar Pittsburgh. He was a bright student who was also considered something of a hustler with his native selling ability (selling garbage bags, greeting cards and magazines, all door-to-door, from the time he was 12.) At the University of Indiana he started a chain letter and gave disco dancing lessons to pay for school. After graduating in 1983 he started a computer consulting firm, MicroSolutions, though he neither owned, nor knew much about, computers. Self-taught by having to learn to perform on the promises he made to customers, he built the Company to revenues of $30 million a year before selling it to CompuServe. He made himself wealthy in the process. He then "kicked back" for a few years, before returning in 1995, with partner Todd R. Wagner (not Jewish), to create Broadcast.com. It pioneered radio and television broadcasting over the Internet. Cuban and Wagner soon took it public and, in 1999, sold it to Yahoo for $5.7 billion. Cuban and Wagner were billionaires. His attention then shifted to his ownership of the Dallas Mavericks basketball team. Cuban is a brash, avid, courtside presence whose outbursts have cost him an estimated $1 million in fines. At the same time, his savvy marketing and recruiting of top talent has converted the Mavericks from a perennial loser to a contender. Cuban also launched HDNet, a high definition television broadcast network available on satellite, cable, and selected over the air high definition broadcast stations. He and Wagner also purchased Landmark theaters, a large U.S. chain of "art-house" movie theaters which will air the high definition movies he is producing and the films he has contracted six major studios to convert from film to digital.

14.8 Measures of entrepreneurial success

One measure of entrepreneurial success is provided by the Fortune "40 Under 40" annual list of the wealthiest young Americans, nearly all of them self made. Though entrepreneurial success is not simply about wealth, it is one scorecard. The Fortune's 2004 list is included as Exhibit 16a. While it includes thirteen athletes and entertainers, the remaining twenty-seven are successful young entrepreneurs, mostly from high technology companies they started or led. Of the twenty-seven, at least six are Jewish. Three of them are among the top five and five of them among the top ten. In order, the six include: #1 Michael Dell, #3 Jeff Skoll, #5 Sergey Brin, #9 Dan Snyder, #10, Marc Benioff, and #17 Jerry Greenberg. Statistically, at two percent of the U.S. population, Jews would be lucky if even one of the twenty-seven was Jewish. At 22 percent, the result is ten times what one would expect. The Forbes 400 corroborates the Fortune list. (Exhibit 16b) Of the year 2004 ranking, at least 25 percent of the "400" are Jewish. And like the Fortune "40 Under 40," many of them made their wealth as entrepreneurs who started successful businesses. Prominent among the first twenty-five are #9 Michael Dell, #10 Lawrence Ellison, and #11 Steven Balmer. As with the Fortune 40, the performance defies expectations. We would expect perhaps eight Jews among the 400, the actual figure (at least 102) is twelve times that.

14.9 OMG, A Jewish History of the Internet

- o <http://emergentobserver.blogspot.com/2009/03/omg-jewish-history-of-internet.html>

Did you know that the internet is Jewish? Yeah...Moses got the Torah from HaShem on Mt. Sinai and HaShem told Moses that his brother Aaron and his descendants would be Kohenim forever. Now a "Kohen" is a priest and the story of the internet involves a Jewish priest, a Jewish painter, a Jewish Scotsman and a Jewish sugar merchant living high in the mountains...well sort of... In 1972, at the International Computer Communication Conference, Robert Kahn (a kohen) was able to connect 40 different computers revealing his work to the public for the first time. Just three years later David Farber (whose Yiddish family name means "painter") worked to create a primitive kind of email system. Within the next twenty years the internet that we now know and love was born. In 2003 MySpace was launched and by 2006 it had become the largest social networking site in the United States. MySpace added a new dimension to how we communicate and share information with our friends, family and even religious communities. The website was co-founded by Tom Anderson. Although Tom's last name reflects his father's Scottish heritage, he and his mother are Jewish and he was raised in a messianic Jewish household. At the age of 14 Tom was a computer hacker working his mischief under the tag name Lord Flathead (not a Jewish name). He lead a team of hackers that were able to brake in to Chase Manhattan Bank computers, he tampered with banking records and left a message saying that unless he was given free use of the system he would wipeout the records. He must have been praying because he was never charged with the crime :) The website Tom would later become famous for inspired a 23-year-old Mark Zuckerberg (a Jewish name meaning "sugar mountain") to create another social networking site called Facebook. Things are looking sweeter then a pile of sugar for Zuckerberg because Facebook has made him over a billion dollars and more people can be found on his networking site then in the entire country of Japan. ...So we see that many key players in the field of computer technologies are our fellow tribesmen. The internet itself has even been compared to the Talmud...layers upon layers of commentary dealing with issues from personal hygiene to oven construction. However the internet is only truly comparable to the Talmud if it's dialogue eventually returns to G-dly matters. The Talmud finds a way to elevate even mundane and seemingly secular matters to a level of Torah. We should do the same with our technologies, only then do they become truly Jewish.

14.10 Jews On The Internet

By Larry Kuperman July 29, 2007

- o http://kupe.joeuser.com/article/158970/Jews_On_The_Internet

The question of how many Jews there are begs the definition of "What is a Jew?" and also "Who is a Jew?" Questions that have been asked many a time.....mostly by other Jews. Being a Secular Jew myself, I like the most liberal, inclusive definition that includes....well ME. The biggest number that you will see is about 18 million Jews. This works out to something like 1/4 of one per cent of the world's population. So you would expect that our impact on the Internet would be proportional to our numbers. Not so, bubala. (A term of endearment, darling. Can you feel me virtually pinching your cheek? In a nice way.) The impact of Jews far outweighs their numbers. Lets look at "Who's A Yid?" Larry Page and Sergey Brin, founders of Google. Larry Page's mom, Gloria Page, is Jewish. Sergey Brin was born in Moscow, Russia, to Jewish parents, Michael and Eugenia, who fled to America for religious freedom. Facebook was founded by Mark Zuckerberg, while he was a student at Harvard University. It was originally going to be limited to Harvard students, but expanded quickly. Zuckerberg saw the potential in the site and sought capital. He turned to Peter Thiel, a co-founder of Paypal and, not-so-coincidentally, also Jewish. Facebook is often rumored to be up for sale. How much is Facebook worth? Let me refer that to Mr. Thiel: "Facebook's internal valuation is around $8 billion based on their projected revenues of $1 billion by 2015." Founder Mark Zuckerberg is 23, or as we like to say, 10 years past his Bar Mitzvah. Robert Kevin Rose is, comparatively, an old man at age 30. He is best known for founding Digg.com. Robert lost his job during the burst of the Dot Com bubble, ended up working as a production assistant on the show The Screen Savers He began appearing on air and stepped in as host after Leo Laporte left TechTV. On November 1, 2004, he started a site that combined social bookmarking, blogging, RSS into arguably the premier tech news site. Today Digg is rated among the 100 most popular sites on the web. Scott Blum has been referred to as the "Sam Walton of e-commerce." Leaving a successful career as a shoe salesman as a youth, he founded Microbanks, a company that sold add-on memory modules for Macintosh computers. Before his 21st birthday, he sold Microbanks to Sentron Technology in San Diego for $2.5 million in cash. He would then co-found Pinnacle Micro with his father. Leaving there under a cloud of dubious accounting practices (he paid no penalty and admitted no guilt) he would go on to found Buy.com. He left before went public, returned to take it back private and it is now his baby. RealNetworks is not the most beloved company in the world, nor is Real Player a favorite product. But there is no question that CEO and Founder Rob Glaser has been influential. When he founded Real Networks in 1994, at age 31, he was already a millionaire from his days at Microsoft. He has had a major impact on the Internet. Certainly also worth mentioning are Steve Ballmer, CEO of Microsoft, whose mother is Jewish; Larry Ellison, founder of Oracle, who was born on the Lower East Side of New York to a Jewish mother and raised by his great-aunt and great-uncle in Chicago; and Phillipe Kahn, founder of Borland. What would the Internet be like with Google, PayPal, Facebook, Digg.com, Buy.com? It would be very, very different.

15 President Kennedy Legacy (Bay of Pigs Affair)

The Assassination of JFK still remains by the official government position to be by a lone gunman.

15.1 Election of JFK via Joe Bonanno

The election of JFK was backed up in the Chicago Syndicate. Joe Kennedy Senior asked Crime Boss Joe Bonanno to support his son to become president. In return they required that LBJ be put onto the ticket as Vice President. Bonanno played a major in both the election of JFK and the assassination via his leadership and control of the Southern Mafia (Bonanno, Bronfman-Lansky, Trafficante, Giancana, Marcello). The photo show both JFK and RFK expressing grave concerns that their father had agreed with Bonanno to place LBJ onto the ticket as Vice President in the 1960 race. Both JFK and RFK knew all too clearly that LBJ was corrupt and in the pocket of the Bonanno Crime Family via the ties to the Southern Mafia

According to accounts by Former Congressman James Traficant, the Kennedy affair was derived from the efforts of the CIA Program known as Operation Mongoose. He indicates the Santos Trafficante was a party directly involved with the JFK murder. After the failure of the CIA program Operation Zapata via the Bay of Pigs affair. The follow up program headed up by the Kennedy administration was known as Operation Mongoose. The power structure of this program is identified as the key players in the JFK Assassination.

In conjunction with Operation Mongoose, the Kennedy administration established Operation Northwoods. The strategy of this program was identified by Alex Jones of InfoWars.com as being implemented in the 911 situation. The strategy of Operation Northwoods in the Kennedy Administration was to implement acts of Terrorism on American Cities and blame the Cuban government for these acts. In order to gain public support for the pretext of a war against Cuba.

On the evening of October 20, 1964, Joseph Bonanno, the boss of the New York crime family that bore his name, sat down to dinner at an uptown restaurant with three of his attorneys: William Maloney, his partner Joe Allen, and Bonanno's Arizona attorney Lawrence D'Antonio. The sixty-year-old Bonanno was scheduled to appear before a grand jury the next day, and the lawyers had assembled to counsel him. Bonanno would later refer to this time of his life as being between a "hammer and anvil." The federal government was actively pursuing him for his organized-crime activities while at the same time the Mafia Commission, the mob's ruling body in America, had gotten wind of his plans to revamp their ranks through a series of planned assassinations in order to make himself boss of all bosses. As written in the Book Hoffa Wars.

The Southern Mafia was formed in the early 60's with Bonanno and Bronfman as the Italian-Jewish Leaders located in Phoenix. Under the crime boss Bonanno was Sam Giancana, Santos Trafficante and Carlos Marcello.

- <http://www.moldea.com/Hoffamurder.html>

Here also we have the story of Frank Ragano Lawyer for Santos state within hours of the JFK Murder Hoffa called and said to him tell Santos and Carlos "we did it we finally got rid of him". See Assassination JFK by Joe Bonanno. Bonanno setup the Southern Mafia, his underbosses were Santos Trafficante, Carlos Marcello, Sam Giancana. This indicates that the leader of the Southern Mafia was involved. Since Bonanno worked with Joe Kennedy Sr. to get JFK elected and controlled the Southern Mafia he had to have more influence than what is indicated.

Bronfman at Rutgers Hillel (Chairman of Hillel)

- <http://www.thefreelibrary.com/Hillel+Chairman+Edgar+Bronfman+Visits+Rutgers.-a0138240798>

Edgar M. Bronfman, the former head of the Seagram business empire and the chairman of the Hillel International Board of Governors, visited the Rutgers Campus on Wednesday, November 2, to meet with students and to discuss his personal journey through the worlds of business, philanthropy and international Jewish leadership. Mr. Bronfman said, "Developing the next generation of leaders is crucial to the viability and growth of the Jewish community. That's why I view campus visits as so important to my work with Hillel. The students today are smart and they are serious about developing meaningful Jewish lives. It's a pleasure to be with them." In his ten years as chairman of Hillel, Mr. Bronfman has visited over 100 campuses in North America, South America and Israel. During his visit to the New Brunswick campus, in addition to his meetings with students, Bronfman met with Rutgers University President Richard L. McCormick, Ph.D., Rutgers University leadership, Jewish federation and community leaders and supporters of Rutgers Hillel. Mr. Bronfman has had a legendary career in business and community leadership. As head of the Seagram business empire, Edgar M. Bronfman was instrumental in making Seagram one of the most recognized and respected brands in the world. His leadership in the Jewish community includes serving as president of the World Jewish Congress and the World Jewish Restitution Organization, and as president of The Samuel Bronfman Foundation. Bronfman has helped to secure justice for the survivors of the Holocaust and for the heirs of its victims. He has worked to secure strength and security to Jews in Israel and the Diaspora, as well as to advance interfaith dialogue between Jewish leaders and the representatives of other major religions, most notably the Catholic Church. In recognition of his work, Mr. Bronfman was awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom by President Clinton. As chairman of the International Board of Governors of Hillel: The Foundation for Jewish Campus Life, Mr. Bronfman has presided over a global renaissance of Jewish life. Under Mr. Bronfman, Hillel has expanded throughout North America, building stunning new facilities from Santa Barbara, to Columbus, to Cornell. Hillel Foundations have been created in places that were unthinkable just a few years ago, places like Moscow, Montevideo, and Buenos Aires. Through his efforts, hundreds of thousands of Jewish college students around the world may enjoy the Jewish campus communities that they need and deserve. The largest Jewish campus organization in the world, Hillel: The Foundation for Jewish Campus Life seeks to inspire every Jewish student to make an enduring commitment to Jewish life through its network of more than 500 campus foundations, program centers and affiliates. Hillel enriches the lives of Jewish undergraduate and graduate students of all backgrounds so they may enrich the Jewish people and the world. About The Samuel Bronfman Foundation

The Samuel Bronfman Foundation (TSBF) focuses on projects dedicated to fostering a Jewish renaissance. TSBF is a major active supporter of the Hillel: The Foundation for Campus Jewish Life, The Bronfman Youth Fellowships in Israel, The Curriculum Initiative, and MyJewishLearning.com

15.11.3.5 Bronfman Nexus to School Bus Leasing Contracts – LaidLaw/First Student Inc

After the JFK Assassination, the Supreme Court ruled that in order to solve the issues of discrimination that the schools should implement Student Busing. Afterwards who won the majority of the School Bus Contracts? The company was Laidlaw. This was a School Bus Vendor in Canada with ownership ties directly to the Bronfman Crime Family Interests. In Recent times, Laidlaw was merged into First Student Busing along with Greyhound Buses. Greyhound bus ownership has direct ownership ties to the Chicago Syndicate. One can see via the School Bus Leasing, and the programs ADL-No Place for Hate and Annenberg Crime Family No Child Left Behind are examples of the influence of organized crime within the Public School System. Another indicator is the Privatization of Public Schools via Charter Schools.

15.11.3.5.1 Privatized School Busing Increases Costs in PA

- <http://keystoneresearch.org/publications/research/school-bus-transport>
- <http://keystoneresearch.org/sites/default/files/RunawaySpending.pdf>
- <http://pennsburystudentcare.org/outsourcing.html>

This study examines the cost of transportation services for Pennsylvania's school districts, focusing especially on the impact on costs of contracting out. Using data from the Pennsylvania Department of Education from 1986 to 2008, the study statistically analyzes total costs, the costs to the state, and the costs to local school districts. On average 72% of transportation services were contracted out by Pennsylvania school districts in 2008, up from 62% in 1986. In analyzing school district transportation costs, we control for the impact on costs of school district enrollment, fuel costs, spending for transportation of special education students, and the wealth and income of the school district. We find that:

- Contracting out significantly increases total costs. For example, if the "typical" district (with enrollment and other variables equal to the average for all districts) shifts from contracting out none of its transportation services to contracting out for all of its services, costs increase an estimated $223,861 (in 2008 dollars).

- Contracting out also increases costs to the state, in part because the state reimburses contracted transportation services at a higher rate than district self-provided services. In the typical district, increasing contracting out from zero to 100% increases costs to the state by $231,903.
- For local school districts, there is no statistically significant difference (at the 5% level) between what they pay for transportation services when they contract out versus when they self-provide transportation—in effect, the more generous state reimbursement of contracting out compensates for the increase in total costs.
- In addition to the state’s more generous reimbursement for contracted transportation services, decisions to contract out are also driven in some cases by the lump sum that districts receive up front for selling their bus fleet. Contractors also reportedly “low ball” their prices when bidding for new contracts—i.e., promise lower costs than actually result. Analysis of a sub-sample of 29 districts that privatized transportation services between 1992 and 2001 reveals that these districts experienced a 26% increase in total transportation costs in the five years after contracting out compared to a 6% increase in the five years before contracting out. Most of the jump in costs took place in the first year after privatization. Despite higher costs, districts may not revert to self-provided services because the state’s more generous reimbursement of contractor services absorbs the increase. In addition, once districts sell their bus fleet, reverting back to self-provided services is impeded by the up-front cost of repurchasing a fleet. Lastly, school officials may be reluctant to publicize the increase in costs due to privatization.
- Contracting out substantially increases state spending on transportation services. We estimate that if all districts switched to the self-supply of transportation services, total spending on student transportation services would fall by $78.3 million dollars with all of the cost savings accruing to the state.
- Why does contracting out cost more than self-providing transportation services? While this requires further study, the general answer is that private contractors do not provide efficiencies sufficient to compensate for increases in costs associated with contracting out. These increases include contractor profits, the higher salaries of private contractors at the managerial and executive level, and the cost to school districts of monitoring contractors. Contracting can also be expensive because of lack of competition within the private industry in some areas. In addition, once a contract is in place, switching contractors or in-sourcing services may be disruptive, create managerial headaches, or impose financial transition costs. These transition costs give current contractors leverage when charging for unanticipated additional services or bargaining over contract renewal terms. These reasons that privatization costs more than self-providing services are not unique to the school bus transportation industry but arise with a wide range of privatized services.
- A quote in response to a Joint State Government Commission survey provides an illustration of how private contracting can raise costs (the full quote is in the conclusion to this report): “...we purchased 3 mini-buses (1 with a wheelchair lift) and 4 minivans. Before...we were contracting 21 minivans that were transporting the same amount of students. We have saved over $200,000 per year in expenses by running a more efficient bus fleet... [We] believe we can add to savings in areas such as extra-curricular transportation and field trip transportation. ”
- At a time when the state is scouring the entire budget for cost savings, in-sourcing school transportation services represents a significant saving opportunity. To move in this direction, the state should lower the subsidy for contracted services to the subsidy for self-provided transportation services. Savings could be used to reverse some of the recent cuts to the state's basic education subsidy. The state should also provide technical assistance to districts to re-evaluate their transportation services, and low-interest loans to assist with the purchase of new school buses. The Pennsylvania Association of School Board Officials (PASBO) could provide the technical assistance, supporting contracting in when it would lead to large savings, promoting the spread of best transportation practices when districts self-provide, and providing districts that continue to contract out with the expertise to bargain better contract terms. Through PASBO or a stand-alone entity, the commonwealth could also create its own non-profit transportation services provider that submits bids in response to district requests for proposals. This innovative option would directly address the lack of competition in the industry and also overcome the challenge with purchasing new buses, since the commonwealth bus company would have its own buses.

...Two the biggest financiers to stumble from the drunken dreams of world-moving affluence were, in their time, Moses Annenberg, publisher of The Philadelphia Inquirer, and his son Walter, the CIA/mob-anchored publisher of the TV Guide. Like most American high-rollers, Annenberg lived a double life. Moses, his father, was a scion of the Capone mob. Both Moses and Walter were indicted in 1939 for tax evasions totaling many millions of dollars - the biggest case in the history of the Justice Department. Moses pled guilty and agreed to pay the government $8 million and settle $9 million in assorted tax claims, penalties and interest debts. Moses received a three-year sentence. He died in Lewisburg Penitentiary. Walter Annenberg, the TV Guide magnate, was a lofty Republican. On the campaign trail in April, 1988, George Bush flew into Los Angeles to woo Reagan's kitchen cabinet. "This is the topping on the cake," Bush's regional campaign director told the Los Angeles Times. The Bush team met at Annenberg's plush Rancho Mirage estate at Sunnylands, California. It was at the Annenberg mansion that Nixon's cabinet was chosen, and the state's social and contributor registers built over a quarter-century of state political dominance by Ronald Reagan, whose acting career was launched by Operation MOCKINGBIRD.**

The Warren commission report via Richard Sprague and Arlene Specter is incorrect. Hence a conspiracy exists as identified as the Power Control Group in the book taking of America 123. One the day of the JFK Assassination, the Secret Service played a role in the Assassination. The video “History Channel banned censored episode The Men Who Killed Kennedy 7 - Smoking Guns”. They describe in detail the actions of the Secret Service in Dallas. The President Limo was placed in the front without any Secret Service Protection. This violates security protocols. The Presidential Limo should have been located in the middle with Secret Service Officers on the car and with Police Escorts on the side of the Presidential Limo. One can see also just prior to the murder the police escort pulled back. Here also LBJ was the only party to duck down prior to the shooting. Hence the Secret Service was apparently following orders of LBJ in Dallas. LBJ changed the route. The Secret Service failed to secure the route by sealing the building windows for the parade route.

15.11.9.1 Secret Service's Role in the JFK Coverup Destroyed Limo Evidence

Shortly afterwards, the Limo was sent to the Ford Plant in Detroit. The manager in charge of the repairs was George Whitacre. He told Secret Service the Limo windshield has a bullet hole into indicating a shot from the front of the car. The Secret Service told him to destroy the windshield. The resulted in the loss of critical evidence.

...(4) Mr. George Whitaker, Sr., a senior manager at the Ford Motor Company's Rouge Plant in Detroit, Michigan, told attorney (and professor of criminal justice) Doug Weldon in August of 1993, in a tape recorded conversation, that after reporting to work on Monday, November 25th, he discovered the JFK limousine – a unique, one-of-a-kind item that he unequivocally identified – in the Rouge Plant's B building, with the interior stripped out and in the process of being replaced, and with the windshield removed. He was then contacted by one of the Vice Presidents of the division for which he worked, and directed to report to the glass plant lab, immediately. After knocking on the locked door (which he found most unusual), he was let in by two of his subordinates and discovered that they were in possession of the windshield that had been removed from the JFK limousine. They had been told to use it as a template, and to make a new windshield identical to it in shape – and to then get the new windshield back to the B building for installation in the Presidential limousine that was quickly being rebuilt. Whitaker told Weldon (quoting from the audiotape of the 1993 interview): “And the windshield had a bullet hole in it, coming from the outside through...it was a good, clean bullet hole, right straight through, from the front. And you can tell, when the bullet hits the windshield, like when you hit a rock or something, what happens? The back chips out and the front may just have a pinhole in it...this had a clean round hole in the front and fragmentation coming out the back.” Whitaker told Weldon that he eventually became superintendent of his division and was placed in charge of five plant divisions. He also told Weldon that the original windshield, with the bullet hole in it, had been broken up and scrapped – as ordered – after the new windshield had been made.

The information indicates Jack Ruby within the month prior made 52 phone calls to organized crime figures according to his phone log. A Secret CIA report written in 2013 has revealed that the head of the CIA at the time of JFK's death, John McCone, hid information from the Warren Commission (set-up to investigate Kennedy's assassination) that implicated the CIA in being responsible for the former president's death. The most important information that McCone withheld from the commission in its 1964 investigation, the report found, was the existence, for years, of CIA plots to assassinate Castro, some of which put the CIA in cahoots with the Mafia. Without this information, the commission never even knew to ask the question of whether Oswald had accomplices in Cuba or elsewhere who wanted Kennedy dead in retaliation for the Castro plots. The cover-up by McCone and others may have been "benign," in the report's words, but it was a cover-up nonetheless, denying information to the commission that might have prompted a more aggressive investigation of Oswald's potential Cuba ties. Initially stamped "SECRET/NOFORN," meaning it was not to be shared outside the agency or with foreign governments, Robarge's report was originally published as an article in the CIA's classified internal magazine, Studies in Intelligence, in September 2013, to mark the 50th anniversary of the Kennedy assassination.

FLETCHER PROUTY spent his early working life in the Army Air Corps and the Air Force. He flew missions for the OSS during the war and for the CIA after, then rose to the upper reaches of the Pentagon, where, during the 50s and early 60s, he routinely briefed the Dulles brothers and the Joint Chiefs -- and ran the Pentagon liaison unit that provided hardware and boots for the CIA when its dirty wars needed a lift or a big bang. From his perch in the Pentagon Prouty suspected, within hours of John F. Kennedy's murder, that a large-scale and well prepared covert operation was underway, and in time concluded that officers he worked with were involved. He resigned his commission in early 1964, and spent the remainder of his life writing exposes about covert operations and the crime of the century. The Secret Team of 1973 remains required reading for understanding not only how our Vietnam war and JFK's murder came about....

According to Prouty, people within the intelligence and military communities of the United States government conspired to assassinate Kennedy.^[1] He maintained that their actions were a coup d'état to stop the President from taking control of the CIA after the Bay of Pigs.^[1] Prouty stated that the assassination was orchestrated by Edward Lansdale ("Gen. Y" in Oliver Stone's JFK) and that Lansdale appeared in photographs of the "three tramps".^[1]

In 1975, Prouty appeared with Richard Sprague at a news conference in New York to present what they believed was photographic evidence of a conspiracy.^[9] According to Prouty, the movement of Kennedy after a bullet struck his head was consistent with a shot from the grassy knoll.^[9] He also suggested that the actions of a man with an umbrella, the "Umbrella Man", were suspicious

15.12 Legacy of JFK/RFK AIPAC and the Israeli Nukes

- <http://irmep.org/ILA/Senate/default.asp>
- <http://www.rense.com/general42/enemies.htm>

In May 1963, the U.S. Senate Committee on Foreign Relations opened an investigation into the covert activities of foreign agents on U.S. soil, focusing in particular on the American Zionist Council and the Jewish Agency for Israel. [1] The investigation was prompted by a report from the Chairman of that standing Committee, Senator J. William Fulbright, written in March 1961 (declassified in 2010), stating: "In recent years there has been an increasing number of incidents involving attempts by foreign governments, or their agents, to influence the conduct of American foreign policy by techniques outside normal diplomatic channels." By covert activities, including "within the United States and elsewhere," Fulbright was referring to the 1953 "Lavon Affair" [2], where a group of Egyptian Jews was recruited by Israel to carry out bomb attacks against British targets, which were to be blamed on the Muslim Brotherhood so as to discredit Nasser in the eyes of the British and Americans. The Senate investigation brought to light a money laundering racket through which the Jewish Agency (indivisible from the State of Israel and a precursor to the Israeli Government) was channeling tens of millions of dollars to the American Zionist Council, the main Israeli lobby in the United States. Following this investigation, the Department of Justice, under the authority of Attorney General Robert Kennedy, ordered the American Zionist Council to register as "agents of a foreign government," subject to the requirements of the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938, involving the close monitoring of its activities. This attempt to counter Israel's growing interference in U.S. politics undoubtedly enjoyed the support of the President. At the time when he was still a young journalist covering the United Nations inaugural conference, John Kennedy was troubled by Israel's ability to buy politicians, up to and including the President himself. By recognizing the State of Israel on May 15, 1948, (just ten minutes after its official proclamation) despite the unanimous disapproval of his government, President Harry Truman not only gained a place in biblical history ("Truman's historic act of recognition will remain forever inscribed in golden letters in the 4000-year history of the Jewish people", declared the Israeli ambassador), he also pocketed two million dollars to revitalize his re-election campaign. "That's why our recognition of Israel was rushed through so fast," Kennedy told his friend novelist and essayist Gore Vidal [3]. In 1960, John Kennedy himself received a financial aid offer from the Israeli lobby for his presidential campaign. He decoded Abraham Feinberg's proposal for his journalist friend Charles Bartlett in the following terms: "We know your campaign is in trouble. We're willing to pay your bills if you'll let us have control of your Middle East policy." Bartlett recalls Kennedy's promise that "if he ever did get to be President, he was going to do something about it [4]." Between 1962 and 1963, he submitted seven campaign finance reform bills but all were defeated by the influential groups they sought to restrain. All government efforts to stymie the corruption of American democracy by Israeli agents were stopped short by Kennedy's assassination and his brother's replacement at the Department of Justice by Nicholas Katzenbach. The American Zionist Council evaded foreign agent status by dissolving and renaming itself American Israel Public Affairs Committee (AIPAC). Ten years later (April 15, 1973), Fulbright commented on CBS: "Israel controls the U.S. Senate. [...] The great majority of the Senate of the U.S. – somewhere around 80 percent – are completely in support of Israel; anything Israel wants Israel gets." AIPAC continued the same practices, dodging any sanction even when its members were caught red-handed in acts of espionage and high treason. In 2005, two AIPAC officials, Steven Rosen and Keith Weissman, were acquitted after having received from a member of the Pentagon Office of Special Plans, Larry Franklin, documents classified as Secret-Defense which they transmitted to a senior Israeli official. In 2007, John Mearsheimer and Stephen Walt demonstrated in their book The Israel Lobby and U.S. Foreign Policy that AIPAC and less prominent pro-Israel lobbies were the main cause of the war in Iraq and, more broadly, the determining factor in the foreign policy of the U.S. in the Middle East. Considering that nothing has changed, there is no reason to believe that the government of Benjamin Netanyahu will not also obtain from the United States the destruction of Iran that it consistently clamors for. On October 3, 2001, Prime Minister Ariel Sharon was reported by Kol Yisrael radio to have said to his Foreign Minister Shimon Peres that "We, the Jewish people control America, and the Americans know it." His successor Benjamin Netanyahu gave a demonstration of that on May 24, 2011, before the U.S. Congress, when members of both houses stood up to cheer him 29 times, in particular after each of the following remarks: "In Judea and Samaria, the Jewish people are not foreign occupiers"; "No distortion of history could deny the 4000- year-old bond between the Jewish people and the Jewish land"; "Israel will not return to the indefensible boundaries of 1967"; "Jerusalem must never again be divided. Jerusalem must remain the united capital of Israel."

15.12.1 Kennedy, the bomb and Israel Dimona Nuke Plant

Had Kennedy lived, Israel's influence would most certainly have been curbed on yet another front, that of nuclear weapons. By the early 1950s, David Ben Gurion, who combined the functions of prime minister and defense minister, had engaged his country in the secret manufacturing of nuclear weapons, diverting the Atoms for Peace cooperation program, naively launched by Eisenhower, from its intended goals. Briefed by the CIA about the real purpose of the Dimona facility as soon as he moved into the White House, Kennedy put heavy pressure on the Israelis not to pursue it. He demanded that Ben Gurion open up Dimona for regular inspections, at first in person in New York in 1961, then through formal and increasingly insistent letters. In the last one, dated June 15, 1963, Kennedy urged that a first visit should take place immediately, followed by regular visits every six months, otherwise "This Government's commitment to and support of Israel could be seriously jeopardized [5]." The reaction to this message was astonishing: Ben Gurion resigned on June 16, thus avoiding receipt of the letter. As soon as the new Prime Minister Levi Eshkol took office, Kennedy sent him a similar letter, dated July 5, 1963.

Kennedy's intention was not to deprive Israel of a power which was reserved to the United States and its NATO allies. The President's approach was part of a much more ambitious project, which he had announced on September 25, 1961, nine months after taking office, before the General Assembly of the United Nations: "Today, every inhabitant of this planet must contemplate the day when this planet may no longer be inhabitable. Every man, woman and child lives under a nuclear sword of Damocles, hanging by the slenderest of threads, capable of being cut at any moment by accident or miscalculation or by madness. The weapons of war must be abolished before they abolish us. [...] It is therefore our intention to challenge the Soviet Union, not to an arms race, but to a peace race – to advance together step by step, stage by stage, until general and complete disarmament has been achieved [6]." The message was well received by Nikita Khrushchev, who responded favorably in a 26-page confidential letter dated September 29, 1961, delivered through secret channels. After the October 1962 Cuban missile crisis, the nuclear war that was narrowly avoided thanks to their composure brought the two heads of State even closer to the awareness of their shared responsibility to liberate humanity from the nuclear threat. Khrushchev sent Kennedy a second private letter in which he expressed the hope that at the end of Kennedy's eight years of presidency, "we could create good conditions for peaceful coexistence on earth and this would be highly appreciated by the peoples of our country as well as by all other peoples [7]." Despite other crises, Kennedy and Khrushchev continued this secret correspondence, now declassified, comprising a total of 21 letters in which the intention to abolish nuclear weapons was a prominent concern.

In 1963, negotiations led to the first limited test ban treaty prohibiting nuclear weapon tests in the atmosphere, outer space and underwater, which was signed on August 5, 1963, by the Soviet Union, the United States and the United Kingdom. Six weeks later, on September 20, 1963, Kennedy manifested his pride and hope before the United Nations: "Two years ago I told this body that the United States had proposed and was willing to sign a limited test ban treaty. Today that treaty has been signed. It will not put an end to war. It will not remove basic conflicts. It will not secure freedom for all. But it can be a lever, and Archimedes, in explaining the principles of the lever, was said to have declared to his friends: 'Give me a place where I can stand and I shall move the world.' My fellow inhabitants of this planet, let us take our stand here in this Assembly of nations. And let us see if, in our own time, we can move the world to a just and lasting peace [8]." In his last letter to Kennedy, handed to U.S. Ambassador Roy Kohler but which was never forwarded to the addressee, Khrushchev also took pride in this first historic treaty that "has injected a fresh spirit into the international atmosphere." He formulated other proposals, borrowing Kennedy's words: "Their implementation would clear the road to general and complete disarmament and, consequently, to the delivering of the peoples from the threat of war [9]."

For Kennedy, the nuclear weapon was the negation of all historical efforts to civilize war by sparing civilians. He said to his friend and assistant Kenneth O'Donnell during his campaign for the Test Ban Treaty, "I keep thinking of the children, not my kids or yours, but the children all over the world." In his televised speech on July 26, 1963, he reiterated: "This treaty is for all of us. It is particularly for our children and our grandchildren, and they have no lobby here in Washington [10]."

In the sixties, nuclear disarmament was a realistic goal. Only four countries had a nuclear weapon. There was a historic opportunity to be seized, and Kennedy was determined not to pass it up. "I am haunted by the feeling that by 1970, unless we are successful, there may be ten nuclear powers instead of four, and by 1975, fifteen or twenty [11]." he uttered prophetically during his press conference of March 21, 1963. While all NATO member states and countries of the communist bloc were following the example of the USA and the USSR and taking a first step towards nuclear disarmament, Israel was acting secretly on its own, and Kennedy was determined to prevent it.

Kennedy's death a few months later eased the pressure on Israel. Johnson chose to turn a blind eye on the activities at Dimona. John McCone, the CIA director appointed by Kennedy, resigned in 1965, complaining of Johnson's lack of interest in the subject. Israel acquired its first bomb around 1967, without ever admitting it. Nixon was just as unconcerned as Johnson, while his National Security Adviser Henry Kissinger privately expressed his satisfaction at the idea of having friendly Israel as a nuclear ally. Nixon, who ushered the "deep state" into the White House so to speak, played a double game: at the same time as he publicly supported the 1968 Non-Proliferation Treaty (which was not a U.S. initiative), he sent a contradictory top-secret National Security Decision Memorandum (NSDM-6) saying: "There should be no efforts by the United States government to pressure other nations [...] to follow suit. The government, in its public posture, should reflect a tone of optimism that other countries will sign or ratify, while clearly disassociating from any plan to bring pressure on these countries to sign or ratify [12]." According to 2011 figures from SIPRI (Stockholm International Peace Research Institute), there are today across the world about 20,000 nuclear bombs with an average power 30 times that of Hiroshima, which equals 600,000 times Hiroshima. Of these, 1,800 nuclear warheads are on alert, i.e. ready to be launched in only a few minutes. With less than 8 million people, Israel is the world's sixth nuclear power. It was not until 1986, with the publication in the Sunday Times of photographs taken by Israeli technician Mordechai Vanunu inside Dimona, that the world discovered that Israel had secretly developed the atomic bomb. After being kidnapped by the Israeli secret services, Vanunu was convicted of the charge of "betraying state secrets." He spent 18 years in prison, including 11 in complete isolation. Since his release in 2004, he is prohibited from leaving Israel and communicating with foreign countries.

15.12.2 Nexus of Walter Annenberg to Israeli Nukes

This analysis implies that Walter Annenberg played a role in enabling Israel to build its Nuclear Weapons. The Nexus is revealed via the statement of Wallis Annenberg stating that her Uncle Ben Dunkelman (Brother In Law of Walter Annenberg). Worked directly with Ben Gurion. In the book Final Judgment they state JFK pressured Israel to stop working to make Nukes at the Dimona Plant. Ben Gurion stepped down and Israel gave the go ahead to assassinate JFK. Walter Annenberg played major roles in the activities of JFK via the Warren Commission. Having his crony US Sen Specter Cover up the JFK murder at the Warren Commission And via Sen Specter defended Zalman Shapiro for allowing Israel to steal hundreds of pounds of nuclear material From the Apollo project.

15.12.2.1 Nexus of Walter Annenberg to Ben Gurion via Brother in-law Ben Dunkelman

In this video one can hear the daughter (Wallis Annenberg) of Walter Annenberg state that her uncle Ben Dunkelman worked directly with Ben Gurion in the war to establish the state of Israel.

15.12.4 Nexus of Walter Annenberg to JFK Murder

This section presents the links of Walter Annenberg to the Murder of JFK

15.12.4.1 Walter Annenberg links to CIA via Operation Mockingbird and Cord Meyer

In 1947, Frank Wisner established Operation Mockingbird, a program to influence the domestic and foreign media . CIA agent Hunt identified Cord Meyer as the primary point man in the CIA JFK Assassination program. Hence the nexus of Walter Annenberg to the JFK Murder.

The CIA established the program Operation Mockingbird to promote the views of the CIA in the national Media in the United States. The CIA owned respected members of the media (New York Times, NewsWeek, CBS, Time and Life Magazines, Washington Post, Miami Times, Christian Science Monitor, TV Guide etc.). CIA Director Allen Dulles hired Cord Meyer to join the CIA. Meyer efforts involved work on Operation Mockingbird. Joseph McCarthy accused senior CIA members as national security risks. McCarthy claimed the CIA was a “sinkhole of communists”. One of McCarthy’s first targets in the CIA was Cord Meyer who was working on Operation Mockingbird. The CIA unleashed the Mockingbird against McCarthy. CIA Program Operation Mockingbird was active during the overthrow of the Guatemala leader in 1954 on behalf of Purple Gangster Max Fisher who was controlling United Fruit

The two biggest financiers to work with the CIA program were Gangsters Moses and his son Walter Annenberg. They owned the media Philadelphia Inquirer and TV Guide. The Annenbergs led a double life, Moses was directly link to the Chicago Syndicate. Both Annenbergs were indicted in 1939 for tax evasion. Moses pled guilty and was sentenced. Moses died in Lewisburg Penitentiary. Walter Annenberg's influence increased to the point he selected the President Nixon entire Cabinet as his Rancho Mirage Estate in Sunnylands California. (Note at the Nixon Library in Yorbra Linda CA, the top benefactor is shown as Walter Annenberg)

Note1: Frank Sinatra lived next to Walter Annenberg and the Betty Ford Clinic was setup in the Annenberg Estate. President Ford and Betty were loyal to the Annenberg Political interests to the end. Recently Obama bought a home near the Rancho Mirage Annenberg Estate.

In parallel to the CIA's Operation Mockingbird, the Chicago Syndicate had extended influence with control of the Hollywood media. This again shows the CIA and the Mafia working together over the control of the media. A major Hollywood Media Player is the Bronfman Crime family.

The Wikipedia article shows some details of Capone Mafia Gangster Walter Annenberg. One point is inaccurate however. The fact that Walter Annenberg controlled the Philadelphia Inquirer and the rampant political corruption in Philadelphia is true. Walter Annenberg did not clean up the corruption he was part of it. He controlled the Politics of the entire state of Pennsylvania Republican Party that exists up to the present time via the Bucks County Republican Party (www.bucksgrop.org). He was directly involved with the cover up of the JFK Assassination via the Warren Commission single bullet theory. The authors of the JFK single bullet theory were from the Philadelphia District Attorney office. This is a place that has been overrun by Jewish Organized Crime up to recently with the former DA Lynn Abraham an executive director of the Anti-Defamation League. Walter Anneberg's father Moses Annenberg setup the race wire for the Capone syndicate. This allowed the mob to gain an advantage on the horse track betting activities. Moses attended the meeting to setup the national crime syndicate in Atlantic City New Jersey with Capone. Moses influence in Pennsylvania politics enabled him to protect Capone during his time at Eastern State Penitentiary in plush circumstances.

- http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Walter_Annenberg

Walter Annenberg worked with the CIA's Operation Mockingbird program using his media for their purposes. One of his media outlets is Clear Channel. This was subsequently bought out by Bain Capital which is controlled by Mitt Romney. Walter Annenberg setup the Annenberg Foundation which is responsible for the "No Child Left Behind" program located at Brown University in Providence Rhode Islands. This program is the legacy of President Obama rise to national politics. In the 70's Walter Anneberg setup the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB). This is a taxpayer funding television under the influence of Jewish Mafia. Walter Annenberg also established within major colleges and universities schools for the study of media communications eg USC – Annenberg School of Communications and at the University of Pennsylvania. After his death part of his media was sold off to Rupert Murdoch's Fox Media and Mitt Romney's Bain Capital.

...In about 1949 Cord Meyer started working for the Central Intelligence Agency, joining the organization in 1951 at the invitation of Allen Dulles. At first he worked at the Office of Policy Coordination under former OSS man, Frank Wisner.^[4] In 1953 Meyer came under attack by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), which claimed he was a security risk for having once stood at the same podium of a "notorious leftist" and refused to give him a security clearance

In 1952, Frank Wisner became head of the Directorate of Plans, with Richard Helms as his chief of operations. This office had control of 75% of the CIA budget. In this position, he was instrumental insupporting pro-American forces that toppled Mohammed Mossadegh in Iran and Jacobo ArbenzGuzmán in Guatemala (Operation PBSuccess) [9] following the Alfhem affair.

...Two the biggest financiers to stumble from the drunken dreams of world-moving affluence were, in their time, Moses Annenberg, publisher of The Philadelphia Inquirer, and his son Walter, the CIA/mob-anchored publisher of the TV Guide. Like most American high-rollers, Annenberg lived a double life. Moses, his father, was a scion of the Capone mob. Both Moses and Walter were indicted in 1939 for tax evasions totaling many millions of dollars - the biggest case in the history of the Justice Department. Moses pled guilty and agreed to pay the government $8 million and settle $9 million in assorted tax claims, penalties and interest debts. Moses received a three-year sentence. He died in Lewisburg Penitentiary. Walter Annenberg, the TV Guide magnate, was a lofty Republican. On the campaign trail in April, 1988, George Bush flew into Los Angeles to woo Reagan's kitchen cabinet. "This is the topping on the cake," Bush's regional campaign director told the Los Angeles Times. The Bush team met at Annenberg's plush Rancho Mirage estate at Sunnylands, California. It was at the Annenberg mansion that Nixon's cabinet was chosen, and the state's social and contributor registers built over a quarter-century of state political dominance by Ronald Reagan, whose acting career was launched by Operation MOCKINGBIRD.

15.12.5 Walter Annenberg's Role in JFK's Warren Commission

One can see clearly the Nexus of the ADL to the Annenberg Crime Family via the association to the Clear Channel and WPVI TV both former assets of the Annenberg's. This Nexus clearly shows the links to both organized crime via Capone's Chicago Syndicate and the JFK Warren Commission to cover up the murder of JFK. Via WPVI's former owner Walter Annenberg, US Sen Richard Schweiker setting up both Arlene Specter and Richard Sprague with the Warren Commission Single Bullet Theory. The Nexus of WPVI is also shown in the connection of WPVI's Ms. Romper Room Wife of US Sen Richard Schweiker to Walter Annenberg.

15.12.6 Nexus of Walter Annenberg to Israeli Nukes via Apollo Project

At this point the facts establish the relationships of Walter Annenberg to Ben Gurion via Ben Dunkelman, the JFK Murder via Cord Meyer and Warren Commission Pointmen Specter and Sprague. Specter rose to power in the US Senate to head up the Intelligence, Judicial and Permanent Investigation Committees. US Sen Specter was a puppet for Walter Annenberg via direct ties to www.bucksgop.org Specter's power base via Annenberg. In a manner like the Warren Commission, Specter tried to protect the activities of the loss of Nuclear Material in the Apollo Project and protect Zalman Shapiro. The fact that Walter Annenberg's proxy Specter covered up the stealing of the Nuclear Material to build the Israeli bombs at the Dimona Plant implicitly indicates Walter Annenberg worked with Ben Gurion to steal America's Atomic Weapons.

.. In December 2010, the Washington-based Institute for Research: Middle Eastern Policy, in its 80-page submission to Obama administration had asked to delay the presentation of the National Medal of Technology and Innovation Award to Zalman Shapiro 89 (a Jew and former President of the Pittsburgh chapter of the Zionist Organization of America) over lingering questions about the theft and diversion of US weapons grade uranium to Israel. In its March-April 2010 issue, the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists (a magazine founded by Russian-born American Jewish biophysicist, Eugene Rabinowitch) had reported that "741 pounds of highly enriched uranium suitable for weapons production disappeared from NUMEC while Shapiro was president and was likely diverted into the Israeli nuclear weapons program". Israel's top economic espionage case officer Rafael Eitan, who handled spy Jonathan Pollard in the 1980s, infiltrated NUMEC to meet with Shapiro in 1968. According to Anthony Cordesman, "there is no conceivable reason for Eitan to have gone to the Apollo plant but for the nuclear material." Former Deputy of the CIA's Directorate of Science and Technology Carl Duckett went on record verifying the agency came to the conclusion by 1968 that "NUMEC material had been diverted by the Israelis and used in fabricating weapons." NUMEC's venture capitalist had close ties to Israeli intelligence. CIA Tel Aviv station chief John Hadden went on record calling NUMEC "an Israeli operation from the beginning."

The Apollo Affair was a 1965 incident in which a US company, Nuclear Materials and Equipment Corporation (NUMEC), in the Pittsburgh suburbs of Apollo and Parks Township, Pennsylvania was investigated for losing 200-600 pounds of highly enriched uranium. In 1965, the FBI investigated Zalman Shapiro, the company's president, over the loss 200 pounds of highly enriched uranium. After investigations by the Atomic Energy Commission, the Central Intelligence Agency, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, other government agencies, and inquiring reporters, no charges were ever filed. A General Accounting Office study of the investigations declassified in May 2010 stated "We believe a timely, concerted effort on the part of these three agencies would have greatly aided and possibly solved the NUMEC diversion questions, if they desired to do so."^[1] Some remain convinced that Israel received 200 pounds of enriched uranium from NUMEC,^{[2][3]} particularly given the visit of Rafi Eitan, later revealed as an Israeli spy and who was later involved in the Jonathan Pollard incident.^[4] In June 1986, analyst Anthony Cordesman told United Press International:...

At the prompting of Zalman Shapiro's lawyer, senator Arlen Specter asked the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to clear him of any suspicion of diversion in August 2009. 15.13 JFK on the Palestine Issues

Kennedy would not be remembered in Tel Aviv as a friend of Israel. In addition to his attacks against the outrageous lobbying activities of Israel and its nuclear power ambitions, Kennedy defended the right of return of the 800,000 Palestinian refugees expelled from their neighborhoods and villages in 1947-48. On November 20, 1963, his delegation to the United Nations called for the implementation of Resolution 194 crafted for this purpose. Kennedy probably never got the chance to read Israel's hysterical reactions in the newspapers: two days later, he was dead.

16 President Johnson Legacy - It Was Johnson who Killed JFK

The Legacy of LBJ starts with his activities in Texas. Then his selection via Joe Bonanno to become VP, Murder of JFK, RFK via CIA Assassin Squad(s).

16.1 Early Political Career – Landslide Lyndon

In the 1948 Texas US Senate election, Johnson apparent won in a highly contested three way race. Concerns with respect to voter fraud in this election, resulted in the FBI becoming involved with review of the situation placed the ballots in the local courthouse. During the contest, the courthouse was burned down and subsequently, LBJ was re-elected to the US Senate seat for Texas.

16.2.1 LBJ's Motive for the Assassination of JFK

LBJ needed the Warren Commission to determine the death as a lone gunman to prevent a national investigation. LBJ used the commission to control the outcome.

Note: US Senator Arlene Specter head of the Senate Intelligence Committee prevented any further independent investigation of the assassination.

16.2.6 LBJ setup the Warren Commission to Cover up the JFK Assassination

LBJ knew if the Warren Commission report did not indicate a lone Assassin then he would be the prime suspect of a conspiracy. With the Warren Commission, LBJ suppressed any independent investigations that would uncover the facts that would implicate LBJ in the conspiracy.

16.2.9.1 Assassination of RFK

In Los Angeles at the Ambassador Hotel owned by LA Crime Boss Jack Dragna, Robert Kennedy was killed. The reports was a lone gunman like in the JFK story. More recent investigation are proving these facts to be incorrect and point to involvement of the CIA. Dragna has long standing ties to the National Crime Syndicate via Bugsy Segal one of the members of Murder Inc who reported to Meyer Lansky.

16.2.9.1.1 Nexus of RFK Assassination to the MK Ultra Programs used for Political Assassination

This video shows the impact of MK Ultra program to control someone to assassinate. In real like to do this to a person is like the brain washing program used in the Korean War. To reprogram someone the process involves torture and sensual deprivation to the point of a mental breakdown. At this point, one can be reprogrammed to perform activities under the control of the programmer.

The RFK Lone gunman theory of a Palestinian Sirhan Sirhan killing Presidential Candidate would rally support for Israel during the 1967 War Era. The other benefit is for LBJ to remove a subsequent President that would uncover the Conspiracy of the JFK Assassination. The location of the murder was at the Ambassador Hotel controlled by Los Angeles Gangster Jack Dragna. Dragna worked closely with the Jewish Mafia Segments of Organized Crime via Bugsy Segal, Mickey Cohen and Meyer Lansky who stated he financed the JFK Bullet. (Gangsters Walter Annenberg and Max Fisher played major roles also).

Walter Annenberg's Father Moses was a close ally of Lansky.

The lone gunman theory on RFK was done for a Jordanian Citizen upset with US policies in Palestine. The end result of the official version of the story was to get the United States to come in on the side of Israel during the Era of the 1967 Middle East War against Egypt, Syria, Jordan and Lebanon. This was also the time of the sinking of the USS Liberty which was an attempt to result in using Nuclear Weapons against Cairo Egypt under the LBJ. The ship did not sink and Israel did not lose the war. These efforts indicate the CIA and the Mossad worked together to attempt to achieve these objectives. Israel requested that if they lost the 1967 Six Day War (June 5-10, 1967) that they be given the state of Arizona to become the new Israel. President Johnson declined the request.

Note: RFK Assassination was on June 6, 1968 and attack on USS Liberty was one June 9, 1967.

16.2.9.1.2 RFK Children Speak out on JFK Murder

- <http://news.yahoo.com/rfk-children-speak-assassination-dallas-050810379.html>

DALLAS (AP) — Robert F. Kennedy Jr. is convinced that a lone gunman wasn't solely responsible for the assassination of his uncle, President John F. Kennedy, and said his father believed the Warren Commission report was a "shoddy piece of craftsmanship." Kennedy and his sister, Rory, spoke about their family Friday night while being interviewed in front of an audience by Charlie Rose at the Winspear Opera House in Dallas. The event comes as a year of observances begins for the 50th anniversary of the president's death. Their uncle was killed on Nov. 22, 1963, while riding in a motorcade through Dallas. Five years later, their father was assassinated in a Los Angeles hotel while celebrating his win in the California Democratic presidential primary. Robert F. Kennedy Jr. said his father spent a year trying to come to grips with his brother's death, reading the work of Greek philosophers, Catholic scholars, Henry David Thoreau, poets and others "trying to figure out kind of the existential implications of why a just God would allow injustice to happen of the magnitude he was seeing." He said his father thought the Warren Commission, which concluded Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in killing the president, was a "shoddy piece of craftsmanship." He said that he, too, questioned the report. "The evidence at this point I think is very, very convincing that it was not a lone gunman," he said, but he didn't say what he believed may have happened. Rose asked if he believed his father, the U.S. attorney general at the time of his brother's death, felt "some sense of guilt because he thought there might have been a link between his very aggressive efforts against organized crime." Kennedy replied: "I think that's true. He talked about that. He publicly supported the Warren Commission report but privately he was dismissive of it." He said his father had investigators do research into the assassination and found that phone records of Oswald and nightclub owner Jack Ruby, who killed Oswald two days after the president's assassination, "were like an inventory" of mafia leaders the government had been investigating. He said his father, later elected U.S. senator in New York, was "fairly convinced" that others were involved. The attorney and well-known environmentalist also told the audience light-hearted stories Friday about memories of his uncle. As a young child with an interest in the environment, he said, he made an appointment with his uncle to speak with him in the Oval Office about pollution. He'd even caught a salamander to present to the president, which unfortunately died before the meeting. "He kept saying to me, 'It doesn't look well,'" he recalled. Rory Kennedy, a documentary filmmaker whose recent film "Ethel" looks at the life of her mother, also focused on the happier memories. She said she and her siblings grew up in a culture where it was important to give back. "In all of the tragedy and challenge, when you try to make sense of it and understand it, it's very difficult to fully make sense of it," she said. "But I do feel that in everything that I've experienced that has been difficult and that has been hard and that has been loss, that I've gained something in it." "We were kind of lucky because we lost our members of our family when they were involved in a great endeavor," her brother added. "And that endeavor is to make this country live up to her ideals."

A reported investigated the person on the ground who pointed to the location of the shooter of Martin Luther King. Twenty years later, he tracked this person down and found to be working for the CIA since the time prior the MLK Assassination. MLK became a liability to LBJ after his opposition to the Vietnam War effort. The most likely scenario is LBJ used CIA Assassination squads.

16.3 USS Liberty Attack by Israel – LBJ States “I Want That Ship to the Bottom”

Meyer Lansky stated he financed the State of Israel. In review of the JFK Assassination, the nexus of LBJ has been described. The 1967 Middle East War between Israel and the Arabs neighbors was being monitored by the USS Liberty. The ship was attacked by Israel. The Navy commander called for air support to defend the ship. The Navy commander called Defense Secretary Robert McNamara directly to defend the ship, LBJ got onto the line and stated “I want that ship to the bottom!” (recall the air support). If the USS Liberty was sunk this would become the justification for LBJ to come in on the side of Israel in the Middle East to send planes to Nuke Cario and take over the Middle East.

Johnson's rise to power was greeted with relief in Israel: "There is no doubt that, with the accession of Lyndon Johnson, we shall have more opportunity to approach the President directly if we should feel that U.S. policy militates against our vital interests," considered Israeli newspaper Yedio Aharonot. Far from reproaching Israel for its ethnic cleansing, Johnson fully embraced the myth of "a land without people for a people without a land", even going so far as to compare in front of a Jewish audience, "Jewish pioneers building a house in the desert" with his own ancestors colonizing the New World – which, in fact, unintentionally underscored the equivalence between Israel's denial of its ethnic cleansing of Palestine, and the denial by the Americans of their own genocide history.

While Kennedy had cut down aid to Israel, Johnson increased it from 40 million to 71 million and to 130 million the following year. While the Kennedy administration had authorized the sale of a limited number of defensive missile batteries to Israel, under Johnson more than 70% of the aid was earmarked for military equipment, including 250 tanks and 48 Sykhawk offensive aircraft. Military aid to Israel reached 92 million in 1966, more than the total of all previous years combined. Conversely, by denying them U.S. aid, Johnson forced Egypt and Algeria to turn to the Soviet Union to maintain and upgrade their defense systems. In June 1967, Johnson gave Israel a "yellow light" for its so-called "preventive" war against Egypt, by a letter dated 3 June, when he assured Israeli Prime Minister Levi Eshkol of his determination to "protect the territorial integrity of Israel [...] and provide as effective American support as possible to preserve the peace and freedom of your nation and the area."

Kennedy's death deeply affected the Arab world, where his portrait graced many homes. "Now, De Gaulle is the only Western head of state on whose friendship the Arabs can rely," said Gamal Abdul Nasser. While reducing aid to Israel, Kennedy had generously provided grain to Egypt as part of the Food for Peace program. For that country, the short-lived presidency of John F. Kennedy will have been an enchanted interlude, a dream shattered all too soon. In 1954, under Eisenhower, Egypt had been the target of false flag terrorist acts perpetrated by Israel in order to "break the West's confidence in the existing Egyptian regime [and] to prevent economic and military aid from the West to Egypt [14]," according to the very words of the head of military Intelligence (Aman) Benjamin Givli in a secret, today declassified, telegram. The accidental ignition of an explosive device led to the exposure of the conspiracy, sparking the scandal which became known as the "Lavon Affair" after defense minister Pinhas Lavon, a scandal which was quickly stifled by Israel and the United States. Prime Minister Moshe Sharett, who advocated a moderate brand of Zionism, respectful of international rules, acknowledged at that time (but only in private) the irresistible rise of extremists, among which he included future President Shimon Peres, who "wants to frighten the West into supporting Israel's aims" and that "raises terrorism to the level of a sacred principle [15]."

Kennedy's death gave free rein to this Machiavellian terrorism which Israel has developed into an art form. Two days before the end of the Six Day War, the Israeli army launched against the USS Liberty the most famous and disastrous of its false flag attacks. On the sunny day of June 8, 1967, three unmarked Mirage bombers and three torpedo boats flying an Israeli flag bombed, strafed and torpedoed for 75 minutes this NSA (National Security Agency) ship -unarmed, floating in international waters and easily recognizable – with the obvious intention of leaving no survivors, machine-gunning even the lifeboats. They only stopped at the approach of a Soviet ship, after killing 34 crew members, mostly engineers, technicians and translators. It is assumed that if they had succeeded in sinking the ship without witnesses, the Israelis would have attributed the crime to Egypt, so as to drag the United States into war on the side of Israel.

According to Peter Hounam, author of Operation Cyanide: Why the Bombing of the USS Liberty Nearly Caused World War III (2003), the attack on the Liberty was secretly authorized by the White House as part of the project labeled Frontlet 615, "a secret political arrangement in 1966 by which Israel and the U.S. had vowed to destroy (Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser)." The orders issued by the White House that day, which delayed the rescue mission by several hours, suggest that Johnson not only covered up the Israelis post-facto, but also conspired with them. Oliver Kirby, the NSA Director for Operations at the time, reported to journalist John Crewdson of the Chicago Tribune (October 2, 2007) that the communications transcripts from the Israeli planes intercepted by the NSA and sent to Washington immediately, left no doubt as to the identity of the attackers, and about the fact that they were aware it was a U.S. target before the attack: "I'm willing to swear on a stack of Bibles that we knew they knew [that it was a U.S. ship]." Unmasked, Israel claimed it was a case of mistaken identity and offered its apology, which Lyndon Johnson meekly accepted on the grounds that "I will not embarrass our ally." When, in January 1968, Johnson received Israeli Prime Minister Levi Eshkol to Washington and then invited him to his Texas ranch, relations were cozy.

Israel will have drawn a lesson of impunity whose influence on its future behavior should not be underestimated: the price for failure in a false-flag operation against the United States is zero. In fact, failure is impossible, since the Americans will themselves step in to cover up Israel's crimes. Better yet, Johnson rewarded Israel by lifting any restriction on military equipment: weapons and U.S. aircraft immediately flocked to Tel Aviv, soon turning Israel into the top customer of the U.S. military industry.

“If this country has been misled, if this committee, this Congress, has been misled by pretext into a war in which thousands of young men have died, and many more thousands have been crippled for life, and out of which their country has lost prestige, moral position in the world, the consequences are very great,”

Senator Frank Church, Democrat of Idaho, said in an executive session in February 1968: “In a democracy you cannot expect the people, whose sons are being killed and who will be killed, to exercise their judgment if the truth is concealed from them,” Other senators were keen to withhold the truth about Tonkin in order not to inflame public opinion on the war:

16.6.2 The Murder of Hoffa

Several stories claim to identify the details of the murder of James Hoffa. Hoffa was given a pardon by Richard Nixon. Part of the agreement was the Frank Fitzsimmons would remain the head of the teamsters. The teamsters pension funds were used to finance Vegas. Hence the real power broker of the Teamster and Hoffa of Detroit was none other then Moe Dalitz. When Hoffa attempted to regain control his demise was forthcoming. One possible story is Tony Provenzano of the Genovese family along with the Ice Man Ted Kuklinski met with Hoffa at the Detroit restaurant.

In an interview aired on CNN's "Larry King Live," Carlo discussed the confession in detail, explaining the Kuklinski was part of a five-member team, who under the direction of Tony Provenzano, a captain in the Genovese crime family, kidnapped and murdered Hoffa in a restaurant parking lot in Detroit.

In the confession of the Ice Man he said he place the remains of Hoffa in the auto Junk Yard in Kearney New Jersey. This part of his confession is not accurate with the actual facts. A witness has stated he saw the actual Hoffa Limo at Paul Vario's Junkyard aka the Fountain Auto Mall in Brooklyn New York. An examination of prior activities of the Ice Man supports this part of the story. A review of how the Ice Man managed the murder of John Gotti's Neighbor (Mr. Favara) who killed his son indicates the Ice Man has used the Fountain Auto Mall to dispose of the remains of other victims. Hence this part of the Hoffa Murder correlates with the details provided by the witness to the Hoffa Limo.

April 23, 2006 – Tom Troncone - HACKENSACK, N.J. -- He plunged the knife into the back of Jimmy Hoffa's head. He helped gun down Gambino boss Paul Castellano on a Manhattan street. He tortured a neighbor of John Gotti's who accidentally ran over and killed the Dapper Don's young son.

Note1: IceMan stated he put the Gotti neighbor in a 50 Gallon Barrel at Paul Vario's Junkyard

He even fired the fatal shots into Bonanno boss Carmine Galante. In shocking detail, he tells author Philip Carlo how he turned old mines in Bucks County, Pa., into his private chamber of horrors, feeding live victims to rats while a video camera rolled.

The most sensational claim in the book, culled from 240 hours of interviews with Kuklinski, is that he murdered Teamsters boss Jimmy Hoffa almost 31 years ago. Kuklinski claims that on July 29, 1975, he, a mobster named "Tony P.," a pair of brothers, "Gabe" and "Sal," and a "guy named Tommy" drove to Detroit, where they killed Hoffa. The men he names are likely Anthony Provenzano, Gabriel and Salvatore Briguglio and Thomas Andretta. The four were among a group of people targeted by a grand jury that probed Hoffa's murder. Salvatore Briguglio was a reputed mob hit man who was also the business agent for Provenzano's New Jersey Teamsters local. All have denied taking part in the Hoffa hit, and none has been charged. According to Kulinski, after the 10-hour drive to Detroit, members of the hit team received a telephone call telling them to go to a suburban restaurant, where they met Hoffa. The men drove a few miles with the Teamsters boss before, Kuklinski said, he knocked Hoffa unconscious with a blackjack and, while holding Hoffa's chin up, thrust a hunting knife into the back of his head. The men, Kuklinski said, stopped at a rest area and put Hoffa in a body bag. The other four took a bus back to New Jersey, Kuklinski claims, while he drove the body to a junkyard from Detroit.

"They took a body from Detroit, where they have one of the biggest lakes in the world, and drove it all the way back to New Jersey? Come on," said Bob Buccino, the former chief of organized-crime investigations for the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice. "It's all very hard to believe," said Buccino, who helped lead the probe that put Kuklinski behind bars. "We didn't believe a lot of the things he said." Once back in New Jersey, Kuklinski says, Hoffa was placed in a 50-gallon drum and set on fire. The drum was then sealed and buried in the junkyard, he claims. But it was dug up a short time later, after Salvatore Briguglio began cooperating with the feds, the book claims, and placed in the trunk of a car that was then crushed and sold as scrap metal to Japanese carmakers.

Note2: Two witnesses state they saw the Hoffa Limo located at Paul Vario's Junkyard on Brooklyn. IceMan lied stating he placed the Hoffa body in a New Jersey Junk Yard. Hence the reason to dig up the Meadowlands Sports Center.

Conclusion: Hoffa's remains and the Hoffa Limo were taken to Vario's Junk Yard and crushed. The metal block was sold to Japan as scrap metal.

Semicentennial of LBJ's War on Poverty by Phyllis Schlafly May 21, 2014 - This year, the cheerleaders for big government are celebrating the 50th Anniversary of the launching of Lyndon Johnson's War on Poverty. This should be an occasion for mourning, not celebration, because that was the most expensive legislative failure in our history. Yes, failure. Today we have four million Americans who have been unemployed for more than six months, 49 million Americans living below the poverty line, and 100 million people receiving some form of food aid from the federal government. Johnson came into power in 1964 on the biggest landslide in U.S. history, and then he brought about the largest expansion of government in our history, surpassing even the expansion of government initiated by Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal in the 1930s. Instead of lifting Americans out of poverty, LBJ's 40 federal programs trapped millions of Americans in poverty and permanent dependency. Today's legislative battles — raising the minimum wage, expanding and perpetuating government-financed health care for seniors and the poor, extending long-term unemployment benefits, and big appropriations to the education establishment are all about extending government spending for Johnson's programs. LBJ announced his War on Poverty in his 1964 State of the Union address. He then expanded his goal to the Great Society, using the "great" concept 16 times in his commencement speech in May before a crowd of 70,000 at the University of Michigan. With his insufferable ego, LBJ declared that he planned "to move us not only toward the rich society and the powerful society, but upward to the Great Society." Johnson summoned his young speechwriter, Richard N. Goodwin, and told him to use the unfinished John F. Kennedy program "as a springboard to take on Congress" and turn it into an "aggressive Johnson program." With a super majority of Democrats in Congress and using his famous bullying tactics known as the "Johnson treatment," LBJ pushed Congress to pass 200 expensive new laws. Key pieces of Great Society legislation were enacted by 1968 and Joseph A. Califano Jr. boasted that "This country is more the country of Lyndon Johnson than any other president." These new spending bills included the start of Medicare, Medicaid, direct federal aid to public schools, bilingual education, Head Start, food stamps, vocational education through the Job Corps, urban renewal programs, new spending for the arts and humanities, a giant expansion of immigration, public housing, aid to college students, and handouts to non-commercial TV and radio including PBS and NPR. LBJ's pie-in-the sky promises, followed by expansion of the taxpayer spending he rammed through Congress, gave us a dozen years of what we, with hindsight, can see was a massive change in the role of government. Charles Murray's influential book "Losing Ground" showed that the Great Society's changes actually made the problems of the poor and the disadvantaged worse, not better. The policy of channeling all welfare money to mothers made the father family-provider unnecessary, and thereby broke up millions of intact families. Unfortunately, most of LBJ's spending programs survive to this day and continue to rise. The federal government is now five times as big in real dollars as it was in 1964. LBJ's Great Society spending was not merely an Obama-style strategy to redistribute the wealth. Johnson's purpose was to shift power from the states to the federal government, from Congress to executive-branch regulators, and from big-city political machines to Alinsky-style community groups so they could organize and make demands to increase federal control. For example, federal meddling in public school education, encrusted with lavish federal spending, started with LBJ's Great Society. The Elementary and Secondary Education Act and the Higher Education Act were both born in 1965. Prior to that, the federal powers-that-be never presumed to tell schools what to teach or to bribe them with federal money. The only pre-LBJ money that went to education was the GI bill to help World War II veterans attend college. The Immigration and Nationality Act of 1965 scrapped our immigration system that had been in place since 1924 and replaced it with admitting large numbers of Latin Americans, Africans and Asians instead of Western Europeans. This greatly increased the number of immigrants with welfare and public education costs. When LBJ started to hand out the tax-paid goodies, polls reported that a big majority of Americans trusted the federal government to do what is right. But by 1966 the favorable view of Washington declined and kept going down. Reagan wrote in his diary: "I'm trying to undo the 'Great Society.' It was L.B.J.'s war on poverty that led to our present mess."

Note: The United States ranks 3rd in Murders throughout the World. However, if you take out Chicago , Detroit , Washington DC , and New Orleans , the United States is 4th from the bottom for murders. These 4 Cities have the toughest Gun Control Laws in the United States .. All 4 are also controlled by Democrats.

New York Times Jan 20, 1994 – Top Nixon Library Benefactor Walter Annenberg

The Annenberg Foundation is giving $5 million to the Richard Nixon Library and Birthplace and a new center the library is creating on foreign and domestic policy issues, library officials said. The gift is scheduled to be formally announced today in a ceremony at the library in Yorba Linda, Calif., where plans for the new institution, the Center for Peace and Freedom, will also be unveiled. The Nixon library, which opened in 1990, operates a museum and an archives. The Center for Peace and Freedom will also be based in Yorba Linda, according to a statement released yesterday by the library. The gift to the library is the second, recent large Annenberg grant. Last month, Walter H. Annenberg announced that he would award grants totaling $500 million to several education groups involved in improving education. He said he was donating the money because of the growing violence in schools.

Citizen Annenberg So Long Rotten Bastard

- http://www.slate.com/articles/news_and_politics/press_box/2002/10/citizen_annenberg.html

Walter H. Annenberg in the Los Angeles Times, New York Times, and Washington Post barely scrape the festering keratosis that was his career in crime, journalism, and politics. "Media Tycoon Gave Fortunes to Others," soft-pedals the Los Angeles Times. "Walter Annenberg, Philanthropist and Publisher, Dies at 94," intones the New York Times. "Publisher, Philanthropist Walter Annenberg Dies," echoes the Post. I'd prefer the headline, "Billionaire Son of Mobster, Enemy of Journalism, and Nixon Toady Exits for Hell— Forced To Leave Picassos and van Goghs at Metropolitan Museum." The dailies concede that the bedrock upon which Walter built his fortune was cleared by a tax-evading father, Moses; that the son dodged a trip to the slammer with Dad via a plea bargain; that Walter punished his political and personal enemies with his publishing empire; and that he ingratiated himself with his soul mate, the odious Richard Nixon. But in skimming only the surface scum of his life, these obituaries neglect the fetid undercurrents and tidal filth of his complete life. The ugly arc of Annenberg's life rivals that of fellow press baron William Randolph Hearst or even his fictional stand-in, Charles Foster Kane. It's a life that proves that you can earn polite notices in death no matter how you lived if you give away a billion dollars to the right places before you croak. (In the time-honored tradition of obituary writing, I've plundered the archives for this Annenberg appreciation. I lean especially hard on a June 1993 piece I wrote after Annenberg bought his way onto Page One of America's top dailies by giving hundreds of millions of dollars away. One of the many luxuries of the rich is that if they go philanthropic at the right time, they can read their obituary before they die—obits that are usually more flattering than their real obits.) Walter Annenberg was born of a congenital criminal, a rascal who never saw a business proposition that he couldn't improve with a bit of violence. Moses "Moe" Annenberg developed these talents in 1900 in Chicago when he worked as a circulation manager for the monstrous William Randolph Hearst, back when circulation wars were fought with clubs and torches. At Hearst's behest, Moe and his gang cracked the heads of rival newsboys, burned uncooperative newsstands, and toppled competitors' delivery vans. When Marshall Field's department store canceled an ad in Hearst's Evening American, Moe's brother Max led 60 drivers and newsboys to the store, where they terrorized shoppers and employees by surrounding it and chanting, "Marshall Field's closed! Marshall Field's closed!" The store reordered its ad, reports John Cooney's The Annenbergs: The Salvaging of a Tainted Dynasty, a detailed 1982 dual biography of Walter and Moses. In Moe and Max's defense, it should be said that the competition used the same tactics to move newspapers. When Hearst needed circulation help with the New York Daily Mirror, Moe enlisted Lucky Luciano, the numbers and loan-sharking gangster. "I used to think of the Mirror as my paper," Luciano said. "I always thought of Annenberg as my sort of guy." In the early '20s, Moe purchased the Daily Racing Form and became the major owner of the General News Bureau, a race wire that provided horse race results to newspapers and bookies. With what biographer Cooney calls "methods of strong-arm tactics and bribes" to politicians and police, Moses expanded his business in city after city by ruthlessly destroying the local race-wire competition. "The hoods on his payroll might intimidate a racing publication one day, a man with wires to bookies the next," Cooney writes. Moe's boys literally made Blanie Shields an offer he couldn't refuse. When the small-time race-wire operator in Covington, Ky., declined to sell his business, they sabotaged Shields' office and told him that he would be "bumped off." In his drive for domination, Moe double-crossed his racketeering wire partners by going into business against them. That put him on the Capone-mob hit parade, so he moved himself and his family to Miami, protected by gangster Meyer Lansky. As the Racing Form and the wire thrived, Moe expanded his publications empire by buying the Philadelphia Inquirer, which he turned into his personal anti-New-Deal political sheet. Walter Annenberg, writes Cooney, was shielded from his father's illegal enterprises and connections. Although he held titles in his father's businesses, he mostly busied himself with Hollywood starlets and the playgirls of Miami and New York. The publicity created by Moe Annenberg's scummy enterprises was plain for all to see. If Walter didn't know, he would have to be stupid, which he was not. If he knew and still worked for the old man ... you make the moral call. Moe's bribery, blackmail, and mobstering career ended when he was indicted for tax evasion in 1939. Walter, a company VP, was indicted on charges of "aiding and abetting." Moe pleaded guilty, agreeing to pay the $9.5 million in back taxes and fines. Prosecutors offered to dismiss Walter's charges if Moe went directly to jail, which he did. Moe served two years and died 39 days after his release. Assuming control of his father's shattered company, Annenberg launched the phenomenally successful Seventeen magazine in the '40s and TV Guide in the '50s and acquired several radio and TV stations. Annenberg habitually turned his head to the right to obscure the disfigured ear he had been born with. His politics usually followed his ear after his second marriage, to Leonore Cohn Rosenstiel. Like his father, he used the Inquirer and his media empire as his bully pulpit, punishing enemies real and imagined. After purchasing the Philadelphia Daily News, Annenberg practically turned over local police coverage in the city to Police Commissioner Frank Rizzo, a brutalist who rose to mayor in large part thanks to Annenberg. Rizzo returned the favor by providing extraordinary protection when the Teamsters and Newspaper Guild struck the Inquirer. Annenberg also waged a smear campaign against Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp, using his two dailies, two radio stations, and three Pennsylvania TV stations. In one example, reported in today's Philadelphia Inquirer obit, an Inquirer reporter got Shapp to deny that he'd ever been in a mental hospital and then printed the denial on Page One. The media war subsided only when Shapp asked the FCC to revoke Annenberg's broadcast licenses. And in the mid-'70s, he sicced TV Guide on the liberal media culture. TV Guide may be the only publication to become more liberal after Rupert Murdoch purchased it. "Annenberg became an oddity in Philadelphia," Cooney writes. "His name was associated with numerous good works, and he was often the first prominent citizen anyone seeking charitable donations approached, but the whimsical use of his paper on occasion to punish those who offended him made many people uneasy." The kindest thing he ever did for Philadelphia was to sell the Inquirer to John Knight, who turned it into a real newspaper. President Richard Nixon rewarded Annenberg for his anti-communism and pro-Vietnam-War views by appointing him ambassador to Great Britain, where he attacked U.S. student radicals in his first speech. Ambassador Annenberg, as he thereafter preferred to be called, returned to the States and expanded both his media properties and burgeoning art collection. He also entertained the flow of human sewage that visited him at his own Xanadu, a mansion set on 250 acres (complete with its own golf course) in Palm Springs. There at "Sunnylands," he hosted the disgraced Nixon ("Life is 99 rounds," he told Dick), the detestable Frank Sinatra, and offered refuge for his political soul mate, the shah of Iran. Talk about guilt by association. By the late '70s, the racketeer's son launched the rehabilitation of his reputation with philanthropy. He gave $150 million to the Corporation for Public Broadcasting in 1981 and went on a giving binge after selling his media properties to Murdoch in 1988 for $3.2 billion. He pledged his $1 billion collection of Cézannes, Monets, van Goghs, Gauguins, and others to the Metropolitan Museum of Art (postponing delivery, of course, until his death; meanwhile he collected tax breaks). He also donated hundreds of millions to various educational foundations and projects. The light from Annenberg's philanthropy will continue to burn brightly at the various Annenberg organizations: Annenberg Center for Health Sciences; Annenberg Center for Communication (University of Southern California); Annenberg School for Communication (University of Southern California); Annenberg School for Communication (University of Pennsylvania); Annenberg Foundation; Annenberg/CPB Projects; and Annenberg Institute for School Reform. Some may find justice in this finale: That Annenberg's billions are being spent to still the wretched wake he churned with his life and his media empire. The less charitable of us will nod, smile, and mutter that there's no rap you can't beat if you're willing to empty the purse.

Nixon F252 Cabinet ...

The Cabinet Committee on Voluntary Action was formed by President Richard M. Nixon's 1969 Executive Order 11470, to foster cooperation among Government departments and agencies on programs related to voluntary action, and to promote reliance on and recognition of volunteer activities. Additionally, the Committee was charged with being responsible for developing new Federal initiatives in the voluntary action area. The work of the Committee led to the creation of the National Center for Voluntary Action in 1969, and to the establishment of an Office of Voluntary Action within the new ACTION agency in 1971.

The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, George W. Romney, served as Chairman of the Cabinet Committee. In naming him Chairman, President Nixon cited his "impressive successes in stimulating voluntary action during his terms as Governor of Michigan." The other members of the Committee were the Secretaries of Commerce; Labor; Agriculture; Health, Education, and Welfare; the Attorney General; and the Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity. At the same time that the Cabinet Committee was formed, the President named Max M. Fisher to serve as his Special Consultant on Voluntary Action, and asked him to work with Secretary Romney's Committee in helping to foster voluntary action.

"Every time we do something you tell me America will do this and will do that . . I want to tell you something very clear: Don't worry about American pressure on Israel. 17.7.3 Israel the Enemy within as Quoted by Cicero

A nation can survive its fools, and even the ambitious. But it cannot survive treason from within. An enemy at the gates is less formidable, for he is known and carries his banner openly. But the traitor moves amongst those within the gate freely, his sly whispers rustling through all the alleys, heard in the very halls of government itself. For the traitor appears not a traitor; he speaks in accents familiar to his victims, and he wears their face and their arguments, he appeals to the baseness that lies deep in the hearts of all men. He rots the soul of a nation, he works secretly and unknown in the night to undermine the pillars of the city, he infects the body politic so that it can no longer resist. A murderer is less to fear. The traitor is the plague." - Cicero

Nixon removed the US dollar off of the gold standard and pegged the value to the petrodollar as the underlying currency asset. As a result the price of a barell of oil or a gallon of gasoline is a more accurate reflection of the purchasing power of the US dollar. The US then backed Saudia Arabia with military defense in return for selling all its oil based on US dollars (petro-dollars).

The Marathon Oil Merger with DuPont resulted in the Bronfman-Lansky Syndicate controlling the firm. In a Charles Rose interview Edgar Bronfman Jr. said he was earning a Billion per day from DuPont Alone. (Comes to about a Trillion in 3-5 years). DuPont controls Delaware politics. Hence Joe Biden who was selected to become President Obama's Vice President. Seems just like the scenario of when Joe Bonanno selected LBJ to be JFK's VP.

He ties to General Electric a company owned by Rothschild interest via the take over about 1900. This was due to the financial losses Thomas Edison incurred upon losing the Power contract to Tesla in Nigara Falls. JP Morgan which is identified as the proxy for the Rothschild banking interests in the US owns GE. Drexel Burnham

Drexel Burnham Lambert Incorporated

A consequence of this was to allow wall street firms like Drexel Burnham, (A Financial Services Business owned directly by the Rothschilds), to use Private Equity junk bonds to purchase firms and then pay off the debt of the merger using the employee pension funds. Subsequently the employees were laid off to prevent them from vesting into the company pension fund. Milken continues this legacy with his K12.com business converting public schools to Privatized Charters.

...Steven Wynn: tough-guy casino owner and Likud backer. Steve Wynn started in Las Vegas in 1967, with a small interest in the Frontier Hotel casino, then controlled by the Detroit mob. He later took control of the Golden Nugget. In 1980, with financial backing from Drexel Burnham Lambert, Wynn built the Golden Nugget casino in Atlantic City, where Meyer Lansky's Resorts International had opened the first casino in 1978. Wynn sold the Atlantic City casino and took more from Milken's Drexel to build the massive Mirage in Las Vegas, which opened in 1989. Drexel also funded other casinos, pumping billions of hot dollars into Vegas as part of Dope, Inc.'s transformation of its money laundering center from a city run by the old-style Mob, into a resort center with the organized crime activities hidden behind slick corporate fronts. Wynn is a personal friend of Milken, his neighbor in Lake Tahoe.

The mid-1990s book, Running Scared: The Life and Treacherous Times of Las Vegas Casino King Steve Wynn, by the famous Las Vegas Review-Journal reporter John L. Smith, alleged that Wynn was a front for the New York Genovese organized crime family. Wynn sued the publisher for libel and won. Wynn is deeply feared in Las Vegas.

A biography of Steve Wynn on the Milken Institute website says "Wynn is widely credited with transforming Las Vegas into a world-renowned resort destination"; and he is on the Advisory Board

(chaired by Paul Volcker) at the Center for Strategic and International Studies in Washington, a trustee of the University of Pennsylvania, and a member of the board of the George Bush Presidential Library

19.3 Regan's Outsourcing of US Jobs via 1986 Tax Reform Act Section 1706

The 1986 Tax Reform act section 1706 destroyed millions of US High Professionals business and careers. The setup blank purchase order agreements for government contracts and forcing technology professionals to become W2 employees. The law was sponsored by US Senators Arlene Specter and Daniel Patrick Moynihan. This Tax was sponsored by US Senators Moynihan and Specter. In a subsequent Government Investigation, they found out Senator Moynihan and his Uncle owner of Computer Horizons are tied to organized crime. Senator Specter stated in a public meeting that he sponsored the tax code on behalf of CDI (Consultant and Designers Inc now called Management Recruiters Inc) to make the 1986 tax code revenue neutral. The tax code implemented the 20 rules to determine a party is an independent contractor or a forced W2 employee. Additionally the law setup BPA (Blanket Purchase Order Agreements) for Federal Contracts. Hence effectively destroying small business in the high technology industry. NASA went to Congress and asked them to not sponsor the tax code that it would severely impact the agency. NASA Goddard implemented Section 1706 via Blanket Purchase order agreements which destroyed over 700 jobs for small business just prior to the space shuttle Columbia accident. The tax code has adversely impacted NASA Technical capabilities up to the present time. NASA state the current generation of technical professionals in not up to the challenge.

The first large-scale Amnesty for illegal aliens was enacted on this day more than 25 years ago. The 1986 legislation became the template for numerous subsequent Amnesties, each one encouraging invasion by more illegal aliens. The 1986 law promised strict border enforcement, surprise work-place inspections, and deportations in order to stop future illegal entries. All of these promises have been broken. More than 3 million illegal aliens signed up for the 1986-87 Amnesty. They and their US-born offspring account for upwards of 80 percent of subsequent US population growth, during a period during which average real wages have trended lower, national and local debt have exploded, and the middle class has shrunk. One cannot expect average Americans to prosper when their earning power is constantly eroded by the mass arrival of new workers who compete down wages and displace existing American workers from jobs. WHERE is our MIDDLE CLASS???!!!! Mass immigration goes far in explaining WHY IT IS VANISHING!

19.6 Reagan's 1982 Tax Reform Act Mergers for the Rothschilds

The 1982 Tax Reform Act Allowed Mergers via Junk Bond Financing used by Drexel Lambert (Rothschild owned Financial business based out of Philadelphia PA), This resulted in the Ivan Bowsky scandal in which Milken Went to jail. The scam went like this, Jack Welsh of GE (Rothschild owned via JP Morgan). Used Junk bonds Financed by the Columbia Drug Cartels under Pablo Escobar to send money up to Switzerland. This was then sent To Kidder Peabody (Now GE Capital). The funds allowed the merger of GE and RCA together. After the merger Layoffs the RCA Labor Force allowed GE take the RCA pension funds to payoff the mafia. (Payoff of the Junk Bonds). In 1989 Congress Put the brakes on this merger activity. Jack Welsh gave all the top executives at Kidder Peabody golden parachutes And put the bond trader in charge of the new business GE Capital. Jack Welsh CEO of GE knew what was Going on in his dealings with the Columbia Drug Cartels.

Stewart bestseller Den of Thieves, swept Wall Street. The firm was implicated when former Kidder executive and merger specialist Martin Siegel—who had since become head of mergers and acquisitions at Drexel Burnham Lambert—admitted to trading on inside information. Siegel also implicated Richard Wigton, Kidder's chief arbitrageur. Wigton was the only executive handcuffed in his office as part of the trading scandal, an act that was later depicted in the movie Wall Street. With Rudy Giuliani, then the United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, threatening to indict the firm, GE conducted an internal investigation that revealed Kidder executives hadn't done enough to prevent the improper sharing of information. In response, GE fired Kidder chairman Ralph DeNunzio and two other senior executives and stopped trading for its own account

The term "new world order" has been used to refer to any new period of history evidencing a dramatic change in world political thought and the balance of power. Despite various interpretations of this term, it is primarily associated with the ideological notion of global governance only in the sense of new collective efforts to identify, understand, or address worldwide problems that go beyond the capacity of individual nation-states to solve.

One of the first and most well-known Western uses of the term was in Woodrow Wilson's Fourteen Points, and in a call for a League of Nations following the devastation of World War I. The phrase was used sparingly at the end of World War II when describing the plans for the United Nations and the Bretton Woods system, and partly because of its negative associations with the failed League of Nations. However, many commentators have applied the term retroactively to the order put in place by the World War II victors as a "new world order."

...George H. W. Bush used the term to try to define the nature of the post Cold War era, and the spirit of great power cooperation that they hoped might materialize.

New World Order or NWO refers to the emergence of a totalitarian world government.

The common theme in conspiracy theories about a New World Order is that a secretive power elite with a globalist agenda is conspiring to eventually rule the world through an authoritarian world government—which will replace sovereign nation-states—and an all-encompassing propaganda that makes the establishment of the New World Order the culmination of history's progress and an ideology. Significant occurrences in politics and finance are speculated to be orchestrated by an unduly influential cabal that operates through many front organizations. Numerous historical and current events are seen as steps in an ongoing plot to achieve world domination through secret political gatherings and decision-making processes.¹

Carlyle initially developed a reputation for acquiring businesses related to the defense industry. In 1992, Carlyle completed the acquisition of the Electronics division of General Dynamics Corporation, renamed GDE Systems, a producer of military electronics systems.^[14] Carlyle would later sell the business to Tracor in October 1994.^[15] Carlyle acquired Magnavox Electronic Systems, the military communications and electronic-warfare systems segment of Magnavox, from Philips Electronics in 1993.^[16] Carlyle sold Magnavox for approximately $370 million to Hughes Aircraft Company in 1995. Carlyle also invested in Vought Aircraft through a partnership with Northrop Grumman.^[17] Carlyle's most notable defense industry investment came in October 1997 with its acquisition of United Defense Industries. The $850 million acquisition of United Defense represented Carlyle's largest investment to that point.^{[13][18]} Carlyle was able to complete an IPO of United Defense on the New York Stock Exchange in December 2001 selling a significant portion of its interest in the company. Carlyle completed a sale of its remaining United Defense stock and exited the investment in April 2004.^[19] In more recent years, Carlyle has deemphasized its focus on defense industry investments

Saudi Clan Has Had Access To Influential Republicans By Staff Reporters Daniel Golden and James Bandler in Boston, and Marcus Walker in Hamburg - If the U.S. boosts defense spending in its quest to stop Osama bin Laden's alleged terrorist activities, there may be one unexpected beneficiary: Mr. bin Laden's family. Among its far-flung business interests, the well-heeled Saudi Arabian clan - which says it is estranged from Osama - is an investor in a fund established by Carlyle Group, a well-connected Washington merchant bank specializing in buyouts of defense and aerospace companies. Through this investment and its ties to Saudi royalty, the bin Laden family has become acquainted with some of the biggest names in the Republican Party. In recent years, former U.S. President George Bush, ex-Secretary of State James Baker and ex-Secretary of Defense Frank Carlucci have made the pilgrimage to the bin Laden family's headquarters in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia. Mr. Bush makes speeches on behalf of Carlyle Group and is senior adviser to its Asian Partners fund, while Mr. Baker is its senior counselor. Mr. Carlucci is the group's chairman. Osama is one of more than 50 children of Mohammed bin Laden, who built the family's $5 billion business, Saudi Binladin Group, largely with construction contracts from the Saudi government. Osama worked briefly in the business and is believed to have inherited as much as $50 million from his father in cash and stock, although he doesn't have access to the shares, a family spokesman says. Because his Saudi citizenship was revoked in 1994, Mr. bin Laden is ineligible to own assets in the kingdom, the spokesman added. The bin Laden family has long disavowed Osama, and has cooperated fully with several federal investigations into his activities. The family business, headed by Osama's half-brother Bakr bin Laden, epitomizes the U.S.-Saudi alliance that the suspected terrorist often rails against. After the 1996 truck bombing in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, that killed 19 U.S. servicemen, Saudi Binladin Group built military barracks and airfields for U.S. troops. But the Federal Bureau of Investigation has issued subpoenas to banks used by the bin Laden family seeking records of family dealings, a person familiar to the matter said. This person said the subpoenas weren't an indication the FBI had found any suspicious behavior by the family. A family spokesman said he had no knowledge of the subpoenas but that the family welcomes them and has nothing to hide. People familiar with the family's finances say the bin Ladens do much of their banking with National Commercial Bank in Saudi Arabia and with the London branch of Deutsche Bank AG. They also use Citigroup Inc. and ABN Amro, the people said. "If there were ever any company closely connected to the U.S. and its presence in Saudi Arabia, it's the Saudi Binladin Group," says Charles Freeman, president of the Middle East Policy Council, a Washington nonprofit concern that receives tens of thousands of dollars a year from the bin Laden family. "They're the establishment that Osama's trying to overthrow." Mr. Freeman, who served as U.S. ambassador to Saudi Arabia during the Gulf War, says he has spoken to two of Osama's brothers since hijacked planes rammed the World Trade Center and the Pentagon on Sept. 11. They told him, he says, that the FBI has been "remarkably sensitive, tactful and protective" of the family during the current crisis, recognizing its longstanding friendship with the U.S. A Carlyle executive said the bin Laden family committed $2 million through a London investment arm in Carlyle Partners II Fund, which raised $ 1.3 billion overall. The fund has purchased several aerospace companies among 29 deals. So far, the family received $1.3. million back in completed investments and should ultimately realize a 40% annualized rate of return, the Carlyle executive said. But a foreign financier with ties to the bin Laden family says the family's overall investment with Carlyle is considerably larger. He called the $2 million merely an initial contribution. "It's like plowing a field," this person said. "You seed it once. You plow it, and then you reseed it again." The Carlyle executive added that he would think twice before accepting any future investments by the bin Ladens. "The situation has changed now," he said. "I don't want to spend my life talking to reporters." A U.S. inquiry into bin Laden family business dealings could brush against some big names associated with the U.S. government. Former President Bush said through his chief of staff, Jean Becker, that he recalled only one meeting with the bin Laden family, which took place in November 1998. Ms. Becker confirmed that there was a second meeting in January 2000, after being read the ex-president's subsequent thank-you note. "President Bush does not have a relationship with the bin Laden family," says Ms. Becker. "He's met them twice." Mr. Baker visited the bin Laden family both in 1998 and 1999, according to people close to the family. In the second trip, he traveled on a family plane.

Mr. Baker declined comment, as did Mr. Carlucci, a past chairman of Nortel Networks Corp., which has partnered with Saudi Binladin Group on telecommunications ventures.

Figure 230 Carlyle Group made Two Billion Investing in Eric Snowden's Firm Booz Allen

In 2008, the Carlyle Group made a large $910 million investment to buy a majority stake in Booz Allen's government consulting business. The deal saw Booz Allen's big government advisory unit, which produced most of the firm's revenue, split off from its corporate consulting group, on the eve of the financial crisis. But Washington-based Carlyle, which has a long and successful history doing deals involving government contractors, has really made the Booz Allen deal work. It has been an amazing transaction for Carlyle. The private equity firm has made $2 billion in realized and unrealized profits on the Booz Allen Hamilton deal so far. Its $910 million investment is now worth $3 billion.

The last tripwire in Congress to prevent the H1B Visa and Lax Immigration policies was Newt Gingrich. Newt was going after President Clinton over the Monica Lewinsky issue. All the while he has a mistress on the side. In the 1998 GOP Fund raiser in Silicon Valley. Newt meet the leaders of Microsoft, Oracle, Sun Micro Systems, Cisco and others. The CEO of Oracle Larry Ellison said to him Newt we know you have a lady on the side, give us the H1B Visa program or we will expose your affair. Hence he was compromised resulting the massive immigration issues of today. The Clinton's along with Newt Gingrich were also responsible for the free trade agreements that are wrecking the US Economy.

21.2.2 CIA's Frank Wisner Son Links H1B Immigration Job Losses CIA 's Bush & JFK Death

Frank G. Wisner is the son of Frank Wisner the former OSS/CIA Leader under CIA Director Helms. During the Clinton Era, Frank G Wisner was the Leader of the US Indian Business Council and Ambassador to India. Interesting situation where the son of a CIA Leader involved with Cord Meyer and the JFK Issue becomes a leader in the US State Department overrun by the Annenberg Syndicate as Ambassador to India (94 to 97), Leader in USIBC that is being used to outsource millions of US High Technology Jobs. Here also one can see his leadership in the AIG Financial Scandal in the Bank Bailouts deals for "Too Big to Fail". Here also one can see Enron/McKinsey's convict Rajat Gupta ties to the same exact scandals and Wisner. Wisner was also associated with PNAC being part of the advisory board in Partnership for a secure America in 1992 to 1993. Wisner has also worked closely with Henry Kissinger.

May 13, 2002 Computerworld - Jeff Joerres is chairman and CEO of Milwaukee-based Manpower Inc., an $11.8 billion staffing services firm that counts among its clients 98 of the Fortune 100. He spoke last week with Computerworld's Don Tennant about some of the more controversial staffing issues facing IT professionals.

What's your response to the unemployed U.S. IT worker who resents the fact that the government is issuing H-1B visas to import IT talent? We have to continue it at a certain level, albeit maybe at a smaller one, but the visa policy must continue. We have to bring talent into the organization. [Unemployed U.S. IT workers] may not have the right skills. They may not have the mobility. When push comes to shove, they're not going to move to Des Moines. Someone from India might say, "I'm an SAP programmer; I'll move to Des Moines."

What's the most common IT staffing concern that you hear? That there is still a complete reluctance on the part of senior management to want to do anything with IT. There is still this Y2k hangover. I feel as though there is an attitude [among senior managers that] "IT is extremely important - it gives me an awful lot of savings. But I still can't feel that real trust that the money I'm putting in, which is always [increasing], is really coming back. So I'm going to hold off for a while."

21.3 Clinton's Repeal of Glass Steagall Act

In the Clinton era, the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act of 1999 repealed the Glass Steagall Act of 1933. This opened the door for firms like Goldman Sachs to cause massive debts during the current Mortgage Financing Crises.

- http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Glass%E2%80%93Steagall_Act
- <http://www.pbs.org/wgbh/pages/frontline/shows/wallstreet/weill/demise.html>
- <http://republicbroadcasting.org/fifty-ways-the-american-dream-has-become-a-nightmare/>

We can thank President William Jefferson Clinton (Billy “Slick Willie” Blythe) and his corrupt psychopathic Jewish financial handlers, Alan Greenspan, Robert Rubin and Larry Summers (Samuelson) for these two treasonous laws. The first law was the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act, also known as the Financial Services Modernization Act of 1999, enacted November 12, 1999. This law voided the most important part of the Glass-Steagall Act of 1933, by repealing barriers in the market among banking companies, securities companies and insurance companies that prohibited any one institution from acting as any combination of an investment bank, a commercial bank, and an insurance company. With the passage of this new law, commercial banks, investment banks, securities firms, and insurance companies were allowed to consolidate. Furthermore, it failed to give to the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) or any other financial regulatory agency the authority to regulate large investment bank holding companies. Rescinding a law specifically put in place during the depression to regulate out of control casino gambling by Wall Street and the banking system, priceless.

The second law was signed on December 21, 2000, once again by Slick Willie. The Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000 was a great going away present, just 30 days before he left office. This law made sure that most over-the-counter derivatives transactions would not be regulated as futures under the Commodity Exchange Act of 1936 or as securities under the federal securities laws. Today most estimates of the derivatives market have it between one and two quadrillion dollars (1,000 and 2,000 trillion United States Dollars (USD)). Compare that to the Gross domestic product (GDP) for every country of Earth together, which was approximately 72 trillion USD in 2012, and one can see the destructive folly these paper shuffling greed filled cretins have gotten us into. The top American five banks that dealing in derivatives are: JPMorgan Chase; Goldman Sachs; Citibank; Bank of America and Morgan Stanley.

Today derivatives are traded for one reason, and one reason only, to elaborately fleece the 99% of their money. Today their enormous size makes them extremely dangerous instruments that could very easily bring down the house of cards that is finance.

“Derivatives are financial weapons of mass destruction.” - Warren Buffett

Note: In the last link the details show the same parties involved with the bailouts are the same ones who claimed they are too big to fail resulting in Trillions for the bailouts.

Under President Clinton, the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) was put into law. This created the free trade zone between the US and Mexico. The US has seen the impact with out of control Mexican immigration, Loss of US Trucking Jobs etc. A Benefit was WalMart expansion of operations in Mexico.

Note: NAFTA cost US workers almost 700,000 Jobs. Likewise the US Korea free trade agreement has caused the trade deficit with South Korea to increase by over 80% and the loss of an additional 70,000 US Jobs. Since China's admission to the World Trade Organization, the US-China Trade debt increased from $24 Billion to $343 Billion. The Trans Pacific Partnership will be NAFTA on steroids, further eroding the US trade deficit and increasing the number of US jobs losses. The Free Trade deals are not about trade, They are really about increasing Wall Streets financial profits at the expense of American workers.

Note1: Here it was BucksGOP Congressman Mike Fitzpatrick that was the last vote to Pass the NAFTA Trade Agreement upon request from Chicken Hawk Cheney to support the legislation. Con Fitzpatrick supports H1B Visa Immigration via his alignment with India PAC www.usinpac.org

The Mena Arkansas scandal indicated the CIA used the Mena AK, airport for smuggling of drugs into the United States. 21.9 Legacy of Clinton Continues with Next Generation Chelsea-Mezvinsky

He is Edward "Ed" Mezvinsky, born January 17, 1937. Then you'll probably say, "Who is Ed Mezvinsky?" Well, he is a former Democrat congressman who represented Iowa's 1st congressional district in the United States House of Representatives for two terms, from 1973 to 1977. He sat on the House Judiciary Committee that decided the fate of Richard Nixon. He was outspoken saying that Nixon was a crook and a disgrace to politics and the nation and should be impeached. He and the Clintons were friends and very politically intertwined for many years. Ed Mezvinsky had an affair with NBC News reporter Marjorie Sue Margolies and later married her after his wife divorced him. In 1993, Marjorie Margolies-Mezvinsky, then a freshman Democrat in Congress, cast the deciding vote that got President Bill Clinton's controversial tax package through the House of Representatives.

- https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Marjorie_Margolies

In March 2001, Mezvinsky was indicted and later pleaded guilty to 31 of 69 counts of bank fraud, mail fraud, and wire fraud. Ed Mezvinsky embezzled more than $10 million dollars from people via both a Ponzi scheme and the notorious Nigerian e-mail scams. He was found guilty and sentenced to 80 months in federal prison. After serving less than five years in federal prison, he was released in April 2008 and remains on federal probation. To this day, he still owes $9.4 million in restitution to his victims. About now you are saying, "So what!" Well, this is Marc and Chelsea Mezvinsky. That's right; Ed Mezvinsky is Chelsea Clinton's father-in-law. Now Marc and Chelsea are in their early thirties and purchased a 10.5 million dollar NYC apartment (after being married in George Soros' mansion). Has anyone heard mention of any of this in any of the media? If this guy was Jenna or Barbara Bush's, or better yet, Sarah Palin's daughter's father-in-law, the news would be an everyday headline and every detail would be reported over and over. And yet liberals say there are no double standards in political reporting. And people are already talking about Hillary as our next President! And then there is possibly Chelsea for president in our future! The cycle never ends! Lying and corruption seem to make Democrat candidates more popular.

Nov 29, 2013 - Israeli-American media tycoon Haim Saban, a major donor to the U.S. Democratic party, said on Friday he would back former secretary of state Hillary Clinton with his "full might" should she run for president in 2016. Clinton, 66, whose four-year tenure as U.S. secretary of state ended in February, has said she is considering running for the presidency but that she will most probably decide next year. As a candidate, she would be widely viewed as the favorite for the Democratic nomination - which she contested in 2008 but lost to Barack Obama, who is in his second term. Billionaire financier George Soros, another party bankroller, also pledged support for the wife of former President Bill Clinton last month. "I hope she will run. She would be a wonderful president," Saban told Israel's Yedioth Ahronoth newspaper. "If it happens, we will of course pitch in with full might. Seeing her in the White House is a big dream of mine." Haim Saban is an Israeli and American media proprietor, investor, philanthropist, musician, record, film & television producer.^[21] An accomplished businessman primarily involved with business interests pertaining to financial services, entertainment, and media, and an estimated net worth of $3 billion...Saban says his greatest concern is to protect Israel. At a conference in Israel, Saban described his formula. His three ways to influence American politics were: make donations to political parties, establish think tanks, and control media outlets.^[22]... President. Senator McCain linked to Bronfman Crime Family linked Jack Ruby, Joe Bonanno and the Toronto Syndicate. Senator Lieberman has stated at a Republican Jewish Coalition meeting US Should attack Iran. PNAC has identified several Middle Eastern Nations to be removed: Iraq, Iran, Syria, Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, Libya etc. This PNAC Plan follows very closely to the Zionist Yinon Plan.

“The Unfolding of Yinon’s ‘Zionist Plan for the Middle East’: The Crisis in Iraq and the Centrality of the National Interest of Israel,” illustrates how the ethno-sectarian fragmentation and internecine warfare between Shiites and Sunnis is in line with the Yinon plan to enhance Israel’s security and was ignited by the neocon-inspired US invasion of Iraq in 2003. Netanyahu and the neocons currently view Iran as a greater threat in the Middle East than ISIS, and while they advocate US military intervention, they emphasize that such intervention should not empower Iran, notes Stephen Sniegoski.

In the Bush administration, the Enron Fraud prosecutions resulted in both former McKinsey Manager and Enron President Jeff Skilling and CEO Ken Lay were prosecuted. However, the other Major Party Mike Milken the Wall Street Junk Bond Dealer who was convicted of fraud got away from being prosecuted. The Lieutenant of California at the time was prosecuting both Ken Lay and Mike Milken for over nine billion dollars of these personal assets. Both met California Governor candidate Arnold Schwarzenegger who agreed with them if he was elected he would drop the lawsuits against them over the Enron Fraud. Milken also is directly tied the Vegas Syndicate interests via his neighbor Steve Wynn who he helped finance his casino expansions. Directly involved with the Enron Fraud Also was McKinsey however, with the MCI-Worldcom scandal right after Enron, McKinsey was not prosecuted. The Head of McKinsey was Rajat Gupta the same one involved with the Goldman Sachs Scandal over the Mortgage Backed Securities meltdown. Gupta setup President Clinton to be lobbyist to outsource millions of US high technology jobs via the H1B Visa Program. Gupta also setup the US Indian Political Action Committee (USINPAC) and the US Indian Business Council (USIBC)

22.2.1 Accounting for Disaster Enron Fraud and Now HP -> Failure of Sarbanes Oxley

The reason for the failure of Independent Financial Accounting for Fraud was due to the fact that Arthur Anderson was providing both Millions in Revenue for Accounting services and at the same time Millions in Professional Technical Services. Due to this conflict of interests Arthur Anderson Account and Arthur Anderson Consulting had economic pressures to overlook accounting fraud. This problem has not been fixed a recent example of this issue is with the recent Merger of Autonomy Corp with Hewlett Packard. In this case the Financial Accounting firm Deloitte LLP was providing both Accounting Services and NonAudit business to Autonomy. In this case, after purchasing Autonomy HP has had to write down billions for the acquisition.

By MICHAEL RAPOPORT Auditing wasn't all Deloitte LLP did for Autonomy Corp., the software firm recently accused of accounting improprieties by its parent company. To many observers, that sort of multitasking is potentially an industry problem. Insight from CFO Journal

- U.S. Regulators Slam Auditors on Consulting Expansions

As auditor, the U.K. unit of Deloitte Touche Tohmatsu was in charge of signing off on Autonomy's financial statements before Hewlett-Packard Co. HPQ +0.71% bought the company in 2011. But Deloitte also was paid significant fees for other work it did for Autonomy, like due-diligence work on a potential acquisition. In 2010, Deloitte received $1.2 million from Autonomy for nonaudit work, close to the $1.5 million the firm was paid for the audit itself.

Deloitte

Nonaudit businesses form a steadily increasing portion of Deloitte's business, with 39.6% of revenue now coming from consulting or financial advisory, up nearly a third since 2006. The rise in Deloitte's nonaudit revenue spotlights a recent resurgence in consulting and other nonaudit work by the Big Four accounting firms, a decade after conflict-of-interest concerns and corporate scandal sharply limited such work. The firms—Deloitte, Ernst & Young, KPMG and PricewaterhouseCoopers—say that their nonaudit businesses operate within legal boundaries, and that their growth isn't cause for concern. They focus their nonaudit work on U.S. companies they don't audit, and on foreign companies that aren't U.S.-listed and thus aren't subject to the U.S. restrictions on nonaudit work. Even so, the move has revived fears that an increased focus on nonaudit work compromises companies' capacity to sniff out fraud. "If firms become too preoccupied with consulting, I think it hurts the authenticity of the audit," said former Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker in an interview. Mr. Volcker spoke last week at a New York University roundtable on the comeback of consulting by accounting firms. Plunging too far into nonaudit services can "distract" firms' attention from auditing and "weakens the public trust" in audits, Paul Beswick, the Securities and Exchange Commission's acting chief accountant, said at an accounting conference Monday. Even if it's only a matter of perception, "negative perceptions can undermine confidence in audits," he said. The growing focus on consulting and other nonaudit services "threatens to weaken the strength of the audit practice in the firm overall," James Doty, chairman of the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, the U.S. government's auditing regulator, said at the conference. H-P alleged last week that Autonomy is riddled with accounting improprieties, though it hasn't alleged any wrongdoing by Deloitte and hasn't cited the firm's dual role as a problem. Deloitte said much of its non-audit fees for Autonomy were for "audit-related services" typically carried out by the auditor and actually classified by Deloitte as audit revenues. The firm says it didn't do any consulting work for Autonomy, and that Autonomy had procedures to ensure that any nonaudit services provided by Deloitte didn't compromise its independence. A decade ago, there was widespread concern that the Big Four would get too cozy with their audit clients because the same companies also were paying them lucrative consulting fees. Those fears peaked when Arthur Andersen imploded after shredding company documents related to Enron Corp.; the auditor made more consulting for Enron than it did for auditing. The Sarbanes-Oxley Act subsequently barred most consulting for audit clients, and all of the Big Four except Deloitte divested themselves of their consulting businesses. The firms have since rebuilt those businesses by providing nonaudit services to other companies, within the new prescribed limits. Demand for Sarbanes-Oxley compliance, forensic investigations and merger-and-acquisition work have helped the growth in nonaudit services. Consulting and other nonaudit lines of business are growing at rates far outpacing auditing. At PwC, for instance, advisory revenue rose 16.9% in fiscal 2012, versus 3.4% for auditing. "The auditing market is pretty much saturated," said Martin G.H. Wu, an associate professor of accounting at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. "Consulting, on the other hand, is pretty unlimited." If consulting growth continues to boom, the Big Four effectively could become consulting firms that "dabble" in auditing, said Joseph Carcello, a University of Tennessee accounting professor. "I think if we get to that point, we'd have a major, major problem." The firms disagree. "We wouldn't jeopardize audit quality for anything," said Greg Garrison, clients and markets leader at PwC. "I don't think there's any chance we'd take our eye off the ball, and I don't think our competition would either." At PwC, 90% of advisory work is for nonaudit clients, said Dana McIlwain, PwC's U.S. advisory leader. The Big Four also argue that consulting provides synergies even if they don't consult for and audit the same companies. Offering consulting gives them expertise they can draw upon when related issues arise at their audit clients, they say. "We believe the services we're in actually help us on the front of audit quality," said John Ferraro, Ernst & Young's global chief operating officer. Deloitte could both audit and consult with Autonomy, because it was a U.K. company that didn't trade in the U.S. and thus wasn't subject to Sarbanes-Oxley restrictions. Autonomy paid its auditors about $3.2 million in nonaudit fees over its last three years as an independent company, compared with about $4.5 million in audit fees, according to company filings.

22.2.1.1 US Regulators Slam Auditors on Expansion of Consulting Business

<http://www.directorship.com/u-s-regulators-slam-auditors-on-consulting-expansions/>

According to the Wall Street Journal, "U.S. markets regulators are worried that consulting practices at audit firms are growing and fear that shift could harm the quality of corporate audits by compromising auditor independence and draining resources." A decade after the Sarbanes-Oxley financial reforms prodded many audit firms to downsize their consulting practices, auditors have become increasingly accustomed to independence restrictions about providing consulting services to their audit clients and are expanding into such new service areas as project management and system architecture design. However, the Journal notes that Paul Beswick, acting chief accountant at the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, warned Monday that “recent acquisitions by auditors of new consulting services could raise the risk that auditors will lose independence from their clients.”

...Unless you're here, you can't really feel it and you've got to feel it," said Rajat Gupta, managing director of McKinsey & Co., the management consulting firm. "It's a fact-finding and experiencing mission." Mr. Gupta and Victor J. - <http://www.businessweek.com/news/2012-06-15/rajat-gupta-convicted-of-insider-trading-by-u-dot-s-dot-jury>

Rajat Gupta, who reached the pinnacle of corporate America as managing partner of McKinsey & Co. and director at Goldman Sachs Group Inc. (GS) (GS) and Procter & Gamble Co. (PG) (PG), was convicted by a federal jury of leaking inside information to hedge-fund manager Raj Rajaratnam.

Gupta, 63, was found guilty of three counts of securities fraud and one count of conspiracy yesterday by a federal jury in Manhattan in its second day of deliberations. Securities fraud carries a maximum prison sentence of 20 years, and conspiracy carries a five-year maximum. U.S. District Judge Jed Rakoff said Gupta can remain free on bail until his sentencing on Oct. 18, 2012...

Note: In the Past Gupta was quoted in Computer World about the outsourcing of US high technology jobs. “Let the American Workers become project managers for the Indian Consulting Firms”.

Gupta was prosecuted only after millions of US jobs have been destroyed by immigration and outsourcing for the proxies for Goldman Sachs, JP Morgan, Citibank, McKinsey, Enron etc.

John F Kennedy Jr was running for the New York US Senate Seat that was held by his uncle RFK who was also assassinated. This Senate seat was held before hand by Daniel Patrick Moyihan. The NSA Reports during the Reagan Era revealed by Senator Moyihan and his uncle the owner of Computer Horizon an IT Consulting firm involved with the 1986 Tax Reform Act Section 1706. When the Senate seat was vacated both Hillary Clinton and JFK Jr were in competition for the US Senate seat. The indications are that both the Clinton's and Bush Senior had the motives and access to murder JFK Jr. Both Bush and Clintons were at the airport of departure in New Jersey within two days of JFK Jr's death. Another point was the FAA reported the position of the crashed plane within 5 minutes of arrival at the airport in Matha's Vineyard MA. President Bush Jr. called out the national guard and only searched this location 18 hours later ignoring the FAA location reports.

He recently pledged to almost double Magna's annual revenue to US$20-billion by 2006. Last year daughter Belinda took over as Magna's CEO, with Mr. Stronach staying on as chairman. He still got one of the richest paycheques in Canadian business, US$33-million. For his next project, Mr. Stronach has his sights set on growing Magna Entertainment Corp., the company's horse racing and gaming venture that owns some of the most famous racetracks in the United States. He dreams of transforming the uppity world of horse-racing into pure entertainment for the masses. Son Andy, a former minor pro tennis player, helped steer MEC's growth, until he was reportedly fired for laying claim to a gaming software his dad felt belonged to the company. Squabbles aside, Mr. Stronach said recently, "Life's been just incredible to me. I'm lucky at everything I touch. I think it's because everyone makes things too complicated. I do the opposite. I simplify everything." Frank Stronach supposedly arrived in America with no money. Today he is a billionaire in auto parts and horseracing.

22.5 The 911 Commission led by Henry Kissinger

The appointment of Henry Kissinger to lead the 911 commission indicates the fix was in to cover up what really happened in 911. The parallels to cover up of the JFK Assassination to 911 seem to be more than just a mere coincidence. Perhaps Bush's Jr. Administration learned the techniques of the cover up from his father's involvement with the JFK Assassination. Thanks to Senators McCain and Lieberman for setting up Kissinger to head up the 911 commission.

..."The U.S. Department of Homeland Security last week awarded Accenture the lead role in a $10 billion contract to create what it calls the Smart Border Alliance, "a new entry/exit system to be deployed at the nation's more than 400 air, land and sea ports of entry." But something funny happened soon after. Lawmakers woke up to the idea that Accenture would, in its way, be building this border system from outside the border.

The House Appropriations Committee June 10 voted to block the contract, because Accenture insists it is based in Bermuda, not the United States, where its top executives work and where a plurality of its employees toil. The committee voted 35 to 16 in favor of a budget amendment that would prohibit contracts between the Homeland Security Department and non-U.S. corporations and would prevent such companies already under a government contract from receiving extensions. Representative Rosa DeLauro (D-Conn.) sponsored the amendment on the grounds that Accenture's Bermuda base is means to dodge U.S. taxes. For Accenture, the Bermuda tax dodge charge is nothing, and it neither admits nor denies. The idea that non-U.S. companies should not be awarded U.S. government contracts has been bandied about for a while, especially since the creation of the Department of Homeland Security in 2002. Accenture has been able to dodge the bullet and it seems confident that it can do it again. "It is early in the legislative process. We continue to monitor legislative developments closely," the company said in a statement. Accenture, which reported $11 billion in revenue for 2003, has typically drawn a distinction between itself and companies like Tyco International, Ingersoll-Rand and Cooper Industries, which were once based in the United States and moved to Bermuda. Accenture, once known as Andersen Consulting, part of a now-defunct accounting firm that was based in Chicago, insists it was born in Bermuda: “It is important to remember that the global Accenture organization has never been a U.S.-based or U.S.-operated organization and has never operated under a U.S. parent corporation. Despite what some of our critics say, Accenture did not undertake what is called a ‘U.S. corporate inversion.’” According to Accenture’s own history of itself, it has always operated everywhere but from nowhere. It calls the border it would create for the Department of Homeland Security “virtual,” much like Accenture itself is virtual. Accenture doesn’t say why it picked Bermuda when it changed its name, “rebranded,” and went public on the New York Stock Exchange in 2001. (In one of the best bits of luck in corporate history, Accenture lost its fight to keep the Andersen name.) But taxes, to hear Accenture tell it, had nothing to do with the decision. “As a global company, Accenture pays, and has always paid, our fair share of taxes in each of the countries in which we generate income, including the United States.” That’s mighty decent, but the same would hold true of all non-U.S. companies operating in America.”....

NOTE: Ten years prior, Accenture was involved with the financial scandal via Waste Management Systems, a trash hauling firm with long term ties to the Chicago Syndicate. This firm was called Schultz Trash Hauling out of South-Eastern Pennsylvania in the 60’s. A Robin Williams had been involved with the firm for over 50 years. This fraud was at that time the largest financial scandal up until that point in time.

Chertoff’s RapidScan Systems for the Airport Scanners are a major disruption to Airport Travelers that is harming and reducing the airline passengers. During the Obama Administration, he went to India to praise their efforts for building the airport scanners. So much for hiring American when using taxpayer funds.

22.6.3 Janet Napolitano as DHS Secretary

Napolitano was selected by Senator McCain hence this indicates a nexus to Bronfman Crime Family. Cindy McCain sponsors gay agendas. We are seeing this in the grouping by the TSA inspectors at the airports of passengers.

22.6.4 ISRAEL CONNECTION TO HOMELAND SECURITY

- <http://www.realjewnews.com/?p=811>

Michael Chertoff's double-dealing and self-dealing [as in receiving commissions on sales of the airport "nude" scanners] have been public for a long time. Persuasiveness of the rest depends largely on a close reading of the links. It hardly needs repeating that the nexus reaching to the Homeland Security apparatus are great advocates of mass immigration into the United States and Amnesty for illegal aliens.

THE DISAPPEARING FRONTIERS of America's Security infrastructure can now be mapped via a direct route between Washington and Tel Aviv. The breakdown of America's sovereign infrastructure (which initiated the process of the federalization of local police) occurred in 2008 when the Anti-Defamation League organized a joint training program between US Police Chiefs and Israeli Swat Teams.

Since then, Jewish interests have totally absorbed Homeland Security in a broad range of areas including police training, counter-insurgency maneuvers, advanced technology, border security, intelligence, and cyber-security. View Entire Story Here, Here & Here. Alex Jones would have us believe that “Big Sis” Napolitano is running the show at Homeland Security but this reputed lesbian is nothing but a pawn. The MAIN players (yes, Jews) running DHS are Michael Chertoff and his gang of Jews at the Chertoff Group, the lead advisory ‘think tank’ shaping policy for Homeland Security. And two Jews within DHS: David Heyman and Alan Cohn are the heads of policy. Yes, “policy” at Homeland Security is led and shaped by Jews. In 2004, the Israeli Export Cooperation Institute and the US Chamber of Commerce launched the Homeland Security Master-Key Project in order to promote Israeli-American collaboration with 200 Israeli security-related companies fully engaged and participating in the Project. In February 2007, Homeland Security chief Michael Chertoff and Israeli Minister of Public Security Avi Dichter signed a joint Memorandum of Mutual Understanding, setting out terms for security cooperation between Israel and the US. The Memorandum called for joint planning and responses during a US state of emergency; US aviation security - including passenger and baggage inspection; and experimenting and evaluation of methods for detecting explosives. In March 2010, Janet Napolitano and Israeli Transport Minister Israel Katz signed an agreement to increase aviation security collaboration emphasizing drills that review procedures and codes for sending alerts if passengers try to commit acts of terror. Israel has also constructed an “operations room” for America’s national electricity grid and doubled the main operating center of computer and communications networks that monitor all commercial aviation in America. In other words, Big Brother Jew Is Watching You both in TSA lines and when you strap on your seat belt. Better put, a federal police force run by Jews has been brought to maturity since the 9/11 hoax...and a Jewish police state is now intact

BIG SIS NAPOLITANO has been in the pocket of BIG JEW for a long, long time. While serving as Attorney General of Arizona in 1998, Napolitano was awarded “Leader of Distinction” by the Anti-Defamation League followed by ADL’s “Torch of Liberty” award when she served as Arizona’s Governor. In April 2012, Napolitano was once again bought by the ADL with the “Naomi Gorowitz Institute Service Award” which saluted Big Sis for her efforts in fighting ‘extremism’ in America with NO ‘terrorists’ to be found. Jewry has ENTIRELY changed the focus. Abe Foxman applauded Big Sis with his usual anti American citizen rant: “Secretary Napolitano knows that countering American radicalization is best achieved by empowering groups to build resilience against extremism.” Big Sis returned the invitation, allowing BIG JEW to target law-abiding Gentiles: “Through partnerships with organizations like yours, the DHS is best able to identify those individuals and groups exhibiting dangerous behaviors and to intervene before they commit violent acts.” With the help of the Southern Poverty Law Center—a Jew-intensive “special watchdog” for Homeland Security—an extensive list of ‘extremists’ has been compiled INCLUDING many Christian organizations. And now, we have yet the LATEST Jew organization, Secure Community Network, joined at the hip with Homeland Security with joint training programs and siphoning off huge grants of tax payers’ money to “protect” multi-million dollar Jewish organizations. Is there at least ONE patriotic Gentile currently active in mainstream politics who will demand that Jewland Security be dismantled? If we don’t take this Jew-run federal police force down NOW then we’ll all be hauled off to their FEMA camps. There are NO ‘terrorists’ in America. The Jews have known this from the beginning ever since they staged 9/11...a proven inside job. And now the JEW-INFESTED, JEW-RUN, JEW-OWNED, Department of Homeland Security, has YOU the American citizen, YOU the American Christian, in its crosshairs.

The Magna Carta contains the writ of Habeas Corpus one of the oldest Human Rights Documents in English history. A copy of which is now owned by David Rubenstein, he grew up in an exclusive Jewish Community in Baltimore. He is a principal of the Carlyle Group and Co-Chair of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Following the bombardment and surrender of Fort Sumter at Charleston on April 9, 1861, Lincoln ordered Governors of the remaining Union states to call up their state militias and supply an army of 75,000 to invade and subdue the seven Southern states that had seceded. While this was received enthusiastically in many Northern States, the Border States viewed this order as a tyranny they would not follow. Consequently, the border states of Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina, and Arkansas seceded and secession efforts were underway in Missouri and Kentucky. The order was likewise not well received in Maryland. One of the first steps of the Lincoln administration was to secure the Capitol in Washington, although the Southern States wished to secede peacefully and had indicated no aggressive intentions against the Northern capitol. In order to get to Washington, the mustered Union regiments had to come through Baltimore. As the railroad did not go through the city of Baltimore, they had to disembark their troop trains north of the city and proceed by wagon, horse, and foot through the city, and then embark on other trains. on the south side. Unfortunately, on April 19th, the 6th Massachusetts chose to march through the city fully armed and in military formation. They were jeered by unsympathetic crowds of bystanders. Furthering the misfortune, the troops fired on the crowds killing twelve people. Fire then began to be returned from the crowd, and four soldiers were killed. These twelve civilians and four Union soldiers, whose blood flecked the streets of Baltimore, were the among first deaths of a war that would take the lives of 620,000 Union and Confederate soldiers and an estimated 50,000 Southern civilians from all causes. By May of 1861 Lincoln, his cabinet, and generals had already begun to close down dissenting newspapers all over the country from Chicago to New York. Lincoln also took it upon himself to suspend the Writ of Habeas Corpus, a constitutional guarantee of the Bill of Rights with precedent dating back to the English Magna Carta. Habeas corpus is a fundamental liberty which prevents arbitrary arrest and imprisonment indefinitely without defined charges, trial, or means of release. Suspension of habeas corpus under conditions of civil disorder can only be temporary and must be authorized by Congress within 30 days. In that same month of May a resident of Baltimore, John Merryman, who had been arrested on the order of Union General George Cadwallader and held at Fort McHenry without charges or trial, petitioned U. S. Chief Justice Roger B. Taney for a writ of habeas corpus. Taney granted a writ and set a date for a hearing, but it was ignored by Lincoln and his generals. Cadwallader responded by letter that Lincoln had suspended habeas corpus, so there would be no compliance with the Supreme Court. Taney ordered a federal marshal to Fort McHenry to enforce the writ, but Union Army officials refused his entrance. Taney responded by writing a blistering court opinion, a constitutional classic, that held Merryman's arrest to be unlawful and a violation of the Constitution, and that only Congress could suspend the Writ of Habeas Corpus. The Chief Justice stated that if Lincoln's actions were allowed to stand, "...the people of the United States are no longer living under a government of laws, but every citizen holds, life, liberty, and property at the will and pleasure of the army officer in whose military district he may happen to be found." Lincoln not only ignored the Supreme Court's ruling, he wrote out an order for arrest of Chief Justice Taney. This arrest, however, was in the end not actually carried out for fear of extremely adverse public opinion and political consequences. With these developments, a sizeable portion of the Maryland public was becoming sympathetic not only to the South but even to secession. Therefore, there was much talk of it among Maryland State Legislators. Consequently, Northern informers were asked to identify members of the Maryland Legislature that might support secession in the coming legislative session. Secretary of War Simon Cameron then issued an order to Major General Banks in Maryland that "all or any part of the Legislative members must be arrested to prevent secession." On the night of September 12-13 all suspected Southern sympathizers in the Maryland Legislature were arrested and imprisoned in Fort McHenry. In all fifty-one persons were arrested and imprisoned. Ironically, among those arrested and imprisoned was the grandson of Francis Scott Key, the author of the Star Spangled Banner. To further tighten Union political hold on Maryland, all members of the Union Armed Forces were allowed to vote in the November election, although they were citizens of other states. Voters had to walk through platoons of soldiers with rifles and fixed bayonets to reach their polling place. The London Saturday Review noted: "It was as perfect an act of despotism as can be conceived. It was a coup d'etat in every essential feature." The story of this despotism is reflected in the lines of Maryland's state song from the poem written by James Ryder Randall in 1861. Few now realize the lines were directed against Abraham Lincoln, his cabinet, and generals. Here are the most famous lines:

"The despot's heel is on they shore, Maryland, My Maryland! His torch is at thy temple door, Maryland, My Maryland! Avenge the patriotic gore, That flecked the streets of Baltimore, And be the battle queen of yore, Maryland, My Maryland! Dear Mother! Burst the tyrant's chain, Maryland, My Maryland! Virginia should not call in vain, Maryland, My Maryland.

Twenty thousand of Maryland's sons were able to escape the Union occupation of their mother state and distinguish themselves in the Confederate Army

US Senator Paul Wellstone opposed starting a war with Iraq. He got into a bitter dispute with Vice President Dick Cheney opposing starting a war with Iraq. A week later he and his family died in a plane crash. Shortly After this the US went to war with Iraq.

American Free Press, Steve Lombardo Once again, an outspoken political servant who refused to fall in line with the president and his administration's policies ended up dead under mysterious circumstances. In the past it's been names like Vince Foster, James Forrestal, JFK, RFK, MLK and others who have paid the ultimate price for bucking their party and/or the power elite. Senator Paul Wellstone (D-Minn.) spoke publicly and passionately against the war in Iraq and was looking into the 9-11 attacks at the time of his death. Many of his supporters praised him for his character and his willingness to speak truth to power. But you don't speak out against foreign policy and question 9-11—or disagree with the reigning administration's plans for war—without showing up on the radar in a dangerous way. Vice President Dick Cheney had personally warned Wellstone, for instance, that if he continued to oppose neocon policies, there would be ramifications for him and his home state of Minnesota. Soon thereafter, on October 25, 2002, Wellstone's King Air A-100 turboprop crashed in the woods, killing him, his wife, his daughter and three aides, as well as the pilot and co-pilot. Wellstone: They Killed Him examines the killers' means, motive and opportunity. High on the motive list is that Wellstone—one of but 23 senators who voted against the Iraq war—was “sticking his nose into 9-11.” Wellstone intimates say for this he was publicly executed as a warning to others. Witnesses to the plane crash said everything was intact with no flames or smoke coming off the plane. No communications came from the plane before it crashed. Chemistry professor Ron Caple said that whatever happened, it affected everything on the plane so fast that there was no time to place a distress call. A strange occurrence happened that morning around the time of the plane crash. Near the general area of the crash site, some people's garage doors opened on their own. This occurrence—along with the strange color of smoke that poured from the plane—suggests that an electromagnetic pulse may have been used to disable the electronics onboard the plane. When time came to investigate, the FBI froze out local police and sanitized the crash site before agents from the NTSB arrived. The media blamed the weather. The NTSB attributed the crash to pilot error. If it was all so cut-and-dried, why did federal investigators intimidate witnesses and ignore testimony? There was never a public hearing and the 1,100-page NTSB report will not be admissible in court.

22.9.1 Sen Byrd – The Truth Will Emerge on Iraq War Issue

- http://www.bintjbeil.com/articles/2003/en/0521_byrd.html

"Truth, crushed to earth, shall rise again, - - The eternal years of God are hers; But Error, wounded, writhes in pain, And dies among his worshippers." Truth has a way of asserting itself despite all attempts to obscure it. Distortion only serves to derail it for a time. No matter to what lengths we humans may go to obfuscate facts or delude our fellows, truth has a way of squeezing out through the cracks, eventually.

But the danger is that at some point it may no longer matter. The danger is that damage is done before the truth is widely realized. The reality is that, sometimes, it is easier to ignore uncomfortable facts and go along with whatever distortion is currently in vogue. We see a lot of this today in politics. I see a lot of it -- more than I would ever have believed -- right on this Senate Floor. Sen Byrd comments on reasons for US to go to War with Iraq.

22.9.2 Dying Veteran Message to Bush and Cheney

- <http://www.veteranstoday.com/2013/03/19/a-message-to-george-w-bush-and-dick-cheney-from-a-dying-veteran/>

I write this letter on the 10th anniversary of the Iraq War on behalf of my fellow Iraq War veterans. I write this letter on behalf of the 4,488 soldiers and Marines who died in Iraq. I write this letter on behalf of the hundreds of thousands of veterans who have been wounded and on behalf of those whose wounds, physical and psychological, have destroyed their lives. I am one of those gravely wounded. I was paralyzed in an insurgent ambush in 2004 in Sadr City. My life is coming to an end. I am living under hospice care. I write this letter on behalf of husbands and wives who have lost spouses, on behalf of children who have lost a parent, on behalf of the fathers and mothers who have lost sons and daughters and on behalf of those who care for the many thousands of my fellow veterans who have brain injuries. I write this letter on behalf of those veterans whose trauma and self-revulsion for what they have witnessed, endured and done in Iraq have led to suicide and on behalf of the active-duty soldiers and Marines who commit, on average, a suicide a day. I write this letter on behalf of the some 1 million Iraqi dead and on behalf of the countless Iraqi wounded. I write this letter on behalf of us all—the human detritus your war has left behind, those who will spend their lives in unending pain and grief. You may evade justice but in our eyes you are each guilty of egregious war crimes, of plunder and, finally, of murder, including the murder of thousands of young Americans—my fellow veterans—whose future you stole.

I write this letter, my last letter, to you, Mr. Bush and Mr. Cheney. I write not because I think you grasp the terrible human and moral consequences of your lies, manipulation and thirst for wealth and power. I write this letter because, before my own death, I want to make it clear that I, and hundreds of thousands of my fellow veterans, along with millions of my fellow citizens, along with hundreds of millions more in Iraq and the Middle East, know fully who you are and what you have done. You may evade justice but in our eyes you are each guilty of egregious war crimes, of plunder and, finally, of murder, including the murder of thousands of young Americans—my fellow veterans—whose future you stole. Your positions of authority, your millions of dollars of personal wealth, your public relations consultants, your privilege and your power cannot mask the hollowness of your character. You sent us to fight and die in Iraq after you, Mr. Cheney, dodged the draft in Vietnam, and you, Mr. Bush, went AWOL from your National Guard unit. Your cowardice and selfishness were established decades ago. You were not willing to risk yourselves for our nation but you sent hundreds of thousands of young men and women to be sacrificed in a senseless war with no more thought than it takes to put out the gas joined the Army two days after the 9/11 attacks. I joined the Army because our country had been attacked. I wanted to strike back at those who had killed some 3,000 of my fellow citizens. I did not join the Army to go to Iraq, a country that had no part in the September 2001 attacks and did not pose a threat to its neighbors, much less to the United States. I did not join the Army to “liberate” Iraqis or to shut down mythical weapons-of-mass-destruction facilities or to implant what you cynically called “democracy” in Baghdad and the Middle East. I did not join the Army to rebuild Iraq, which at the time you told us could be paid for by Iraq’s oil revenues. Instead, this war has cost the United States over $3 trillion. I especially did not join the Army to carry out pre-emptive war. Pre-emptive war is illegal under international law. And as a soldier in Iraq I was, I now know, abetting your idiocy and your crimes.

The Iraq War is the largest strategic blunder in U.S. history. It obliterated the balance of power in the Middle East. It installed a corrupt and brutal pro-Iranian government in Baghdad, one cemented in power through the use of torture, death squads and terror. And it has left Iran as the dominant force in the region. On every level—moral, strategic, military and economic—Iraq was a failure. And it was you, Mr. Bush and Mr. Cheney, who started this war. It is you who should pay the consequences. I would not be writing this letter if I had been wounded fighting in Afghanistan against those forces that carried out the attacks of 9/11. Had I been wounded there I would still be miserable because of my physical deterioration and imminent death, but I would at least have the comfort of knowing that my injuries were a consequence of my own decision to defend the country I love. I would not have to lie in my bed, my body filled with painkillers, my life ebbing away, and deal with the fact that hundreds of thousands of human beings, including children, including myself, were sacrificed by you for little more than the greed of oil companies, for your alliance with the oil sheiks in Saudi Arabia, and your insane visions of empire. I have, like many other disabled veterans, suffered from the inadequate and often inept care provided by the Veterans Administration. I have, like many other disabled veterans, come to realize that our mental and physical wounds are of no interest to you, perhaps of no interest to any politician. We were used. We were betrayed. And we have been abandoned. You, Mr. Bush, make much pretense of being a Christian. But isn't lying a sin? Isn't murder a sin? Aren't theft and selfish ambition sins? I am not a Christian. But I believe in the Christian ideal. I believe that what you do to the least of your brothers you finally do to yourself, to your own soul. My day of reckoning is upon me. Yours will come. I hope you will be put on trial. But mostly I hope, for your sakes, that you find the moral courage to face what you have done to me and to many, many others who deserved to live. I hope that before your time on earth ends, as mine is now ending, you will find the strength of character to stand before the American public and the world, and in particular the Iraqi people, and beg for forgiveness.

- "A nation of sheep creates a government of wolves." ...Edward R. Murrow

23.1 Legacy of JFK Power Control Group with Obama Administration via Biden

The selection of Joe Biden as Vice President of the United States has many correlations to the selection of LBJ as Vice President of in the JFK Administration. In the JFK era, Joe Bonanno worked directly with Joe Kennedy Sr. to have LBJ on the Kennedy ticket. Bonanno was closely connected to the Bronfman Crime Family. The state of Delaware's Politics is controlled to a great extent via the influence of DuPont in both the Economics and Politics of the state. DuPont was taken over by the influence of the Bronfman Crime Family during the 1980's Merge of Marathon Oil with DuPont. Marathon Oil was established by Max Fisher a Keating Five Felon and later the financial interests were passed onto the Bronfman Family interests. The implication is that the Politics of the State of Delaware is controlled by the Bronfman Crime Family interests. Hence since Joe Biden was the US Senator for the state of Delaware he was directly influenced by the political control of the state of Delaware by the DuPont organization. Since the Bronfman family was directly involved with the JFK Assassination this influence in the state of Delaware parallels the influence of the Power Control Group identified in the book "Taking America 1-2-3" with respect to the JFK Assassination. The parallel is the Vice President LBJ of the JFK administration was selected by the Chicago Syndicate interests. The same situation again applies to the Obama administration. Hence if Obama's administration and policies deviate too far from the interests of the Power Control Group. President Obama could meet the same fate as President JFK.

- Bailouts – Continued the bailouts of the banks
- Continuation of the Wars – Failed to stop the wars

Thanks to Bill Ayers, a great many people now know that Barack Obama chaired the board of the Chicago Annenberg Challenge from 1995 to 1999. Ayers, erstwhile member of the 60s' terrorist group, the Weather Underground, was the driving force in bringing Annenberg's millions of education reform dollars to Chicago, and he worked with Obama once the project was up and running. It was inevitable that political hay would be made from this link, but in the process a more fundamental insight has been overlooked: The Chicago Annenberg Challenge was a total failure. And to this day, Senator Obama remains committed to its failed approach. But instead of being in a position to waste tens of millions of private dollars, as he was then, Obama is now asking voters for the power to waste hundreds of billions of taxpayer dollars. Before granting him that power, Americans should understand what went wrong. The Chicago Annenberg Challenge was part of a nationwide effort launched by TV Guide mogul Walter H. Annenberg on a blustery December day in 1993. In a White House ceremony hosted by president

Clinton, Annenberg pledged half a billion dollars to create model public schools and districts. He and the scholars he appointed to lead the project hoped their models of excellence would be replicated all over the country, transforming American education. Thanks to matching donations, the Challenge ultimately raised more than a billion dollars. It failed not just in Chicago, but around the country. The first problem was that many of the “model” schools and districts lacked results worthy of replication. The final report of the Chicago Annenberg Challenge, for instance, noted that, overall, students in its model schools had learned no more than students in regular public schools. Classroom behavior and other non-academic measures “were weaker in 2001 than before the Challenge.” And even the schools that did show meaningful improvement couldn’t be consistently replicated within the Challenge districts themselves, let alone around the nation. In an odd quirk of history, the Wreck of the Annenberg was foreshadowed by President Clinton during the launch ceremony. Clinton thanked Annenberg for his generosity, and added that the “people in this room who have devoted their lives to education are constantly plagued by the fact that nearly every problem has been solved by somebody somewhere, and yet we can’t seem to replicate it everywhere else.” Clinton would go on to explain that the most pressing need in American education is “to have a system to somehow take what is working and make it work everywhere. Nobody has unraveled this mystery.”

The Vallas extension - The Philadelphia PA School Reform Commission has voted wisely to extend the contract of Paul Vallas as chief executive officer of the School District of Philadelphia. Ask any of the school superintendents nationally who have presided over district wide improvement programs during the past 15 years, and they will confirm that academic reform doesn't happen overnight. Under Vallas' leadership during the past four years, however, the Philadelphia School District has acquired a hard-won reputation as a system headed in the right direction. Charter school mogul was charged today in a multimillion-dollar fraud case by the U.S. Attorney's Office. Dorothy June Hairston Brown, who received accolades for students' test scores and gained notoriety for collecting large salaries and suing parents who questioned her actions, was indicted on multiple counts of wire fraud, obstruction of justice, and witness tampering. Brown, 75, and four executives from her charter schools, were charged with defrauding three charter schools of more than $6.5 million in taxpayer funds. U.S. Attorney Zane David Memeger announced that a federal grand jury had returned a 62-count indictment against Brown and four of her trusted employees.

23.4.2.2 PA Legislation Proposal to Deny Public Access of Charter School Ownership

- http://articles.philly.com/2012-10-09/news/34343794_1_charter-law-charter-schools-public-access

A controversial proposal that would deny public access to records of private managers of charter schools has surfaced again in the Pennsylvania legislature after it was rebuffed during the summer. Disagreement over the proposed exemption to the state's Right-to-Know law was one of the reasons that a package of charter law changes submitted in late June was shelved until this fall. The proposal was part of a 53-page amendment inserted into a special education funding bill in an effort to get the charter changes passed along with the budget. It says the Right-to-Know law applies to charters, "except records of vendors of local agencies shall not be accessible." Charter schools are listed as local agencies in the Right-to-Know law. "Vendors" would include private management groups that run charter schools. Sen. Andy Dinniman (D., Chester) said last week that the House Republican leadership wants to include the same language in charter law changes being discussed again this fall. Dinniman called on the Senate to reject the proposal, as it did in June. The proposed package of charter law amendments, which includes a series of accountability measures for the schools, "purports to promote greater transparency for charters," Dinniman added. But "at the same time, it would destroy transparency with this language. The public has the right to see where its money goes. Every legislator should support that." Rep. Tom Killion (R., Delaware), the author of the proposal, said he did not intend to create a sweeping Right-to-Know exception. "If a public dollar is involved, the records should be open to the public, but not beyond that," he said. His main intent, Killion said, was to make sure that if a charter vendor has "another business, that should not be covered" by the law. But lawyer Michael Berry, the vice president of the Pennsylvania Freedom of Information Coalition, an open-records advocacy group, said the proposed exception could "gut" the provisions pertaining to charter managers and contractors with local governments and other local agencies. "When you take away the ability to scrutinize contractors of public agencies, you take away . . . the ability to have oversight of these agencies and to understand where their money is going and how the public is or is not benefiting from that," he said. In an e-mail, Erik Arneson, spokesman for Senate Majority Leader Dominic Pileggi (R., Delaware), said: "Negotiations on charter reform legislation are ongoing, with a number of issues yet to be resolved, including this one. We hope to send strong charter reform legislation to the governor for his signature the week of Oct. 15." Rep. Paul Clymer (R., Bucks), chairman of the Education Committee, said he had not been involved in discussions this fall about the proposed charter law changes. He added: "I have not found a compelling reason why certain agencies [like charter vendors] should get an exception. . . . I support the view that the more open you have things, the better. Charters should be on the same playing field as public schools," which are subject to the law. Still, Clymer said, it is hard to vote on legislation that includes some objectionable items "when it includes other issues where the public says we need reforms." Dinniman, the Democratic chairman of the Senate Education Committee, said he has been working for some time with Senate Republican Education Chair Jeffrey Piccola and others to craft a series of charter law changes. They would set academic standards for charters and include other long-awaited measures, such as covering charter board members and employees under state ethics law, and conflict-of-interest regulations, requiring annual independent charter audits and setting up a commission to look at how charters are funded. The main sticking points, he said, were the Right-to-Know law exception and differences about whether to establish a state board that could approve of non-cyber charter applications. Currently, only local school boards can grant charters, except for cyber-charters, which apply to the state Education Department.

23.4.2.3.1 Philadelphia Schools - 'Doomsday Budget' Forcing 'Catastrophic' Layoffs

Protester outside of the Philadelphia School District headquarters on May 30, 2013. Philadelphia's schools superintendent has called the massive layoffs forced by the district's financial crisis "nothing less than catastrophic." Last week, the district announced that it will lay off 3,783 employees — 676 teachers, 283 counselors, 127 assistant principals, and 1,202 noontime aides, according to the Philadelphia Inquirer. The group hit worst by the layoffs are the noontime aides. Doris Hogue, an aide at South Philadelphia High School, told the Inquirer that students trust the aides and that "when fights are getting ready to occur, the students come to us." "I just hate to see what September will look like," said Hogue, who is getting laid off. One student called the aides "the glue holding our schools together." Violence is already a huge problem in Philadelphia schools. The Inquirer won a Pulitzer Prize for Public Service journalism last year for its series on school violence. City officials are now asking the state for \$120 million to help close the school district's $304 million budget deficit. In a statement to the Inquirer, Donna Cooper, director of the nonprofit group Public Citizens for Children and Youth, said the "doomsday cuts" would turn schools into "glorified day-care centers." 23.4.2.3.2 More than 3,700 school employees (Philadelphia, PA) are being laid off

- http://articles.philly.com/2013-06-09/news/39836011_1_teacher-layoffs-city-schools-jerry-jordan

June 09, 2013 Philadelphia Superintendent William R. Hite Jr. announced Friday that the School District had begun mailing layoff notices to 3,783 employees, informing them they will lose their jobs July 1 because of the district's financial crisis. The list includes 676 teachers, 283 counselors, 127 assistant principals, and 1,202 noontime aides. "These ... employees are more than numbers: these are people — professionals — who play important roles in the lives of thousands of students throughout our city," Hite said at a news briefing. He called the layoffs "nothing less than catastrophic for our schools and students. "Every aspect of the district will feel the impact — schools, regional offices, and central office — along with employees ranging from senior administrators to support staff." District spokesman Fernando Gallard said the layoffs were the largest in recent memory. Officials said more jobs would be lost. Friday's round involved school-based workers. Layoff notices are to be mailed next week to an unknown number of employees at district headquarters at 440 N. Broad St. Hite, who has led the district for less than a year, has spent much of his time trying to avert financial ruin. Facing a $304 million shortfall in the fiscal year that begins July 1, the School Reform Commission adopted a budget May 30 that Hite has said would be catastrophic for city schools. Jerry Jordan, president of the Philadelphia Federation of Teachers, said: "Today we are seeing what a 'doomsday' budget looks like for Philadelphia's schoolchildren, and how our city's educators are paying the price for a deficit we didn't create." Under the terms of the current PFT contract, the teacher layoffs are based on seniority, with the newest hires most likely to lose their jobs. They include math, English, reading, elementary, and special-education teachers, as well as music teachers who are assigned to several schools. In an e-mail sent to district employees late Thursday, Hite said he was "profoundly upset" to be forced to take such draconian measures and pledged to continue to advocate for more money from the city and the state to cover the shortfall that had triggered the layoffs. He said he hoped that the budget the SRC adopted could be amended when additional funds become available and that "we are able to restore many of the positions, programs, and services that are crucial to maintaining nurturing and effective learning environments." Hite has asked for $60 million in extra funding from the city and $120 million from the state. The district also is seeking more than $100 million in givebacks from the PFT. Paul Kihn, deputy superintendent, said that the school-based layoffs would save the district $215 million; the central savings would be $23 million. Four principals who attended the briefing said they could not imagine operating their schools without assistant principals, secretaries, or noontime aides and with fewer counselors and teachers. Daniel Lazar, principal of Greenfield Elementary School in Center City, noted that his school is one block from the site of Wednesday's fatal building collapse. "Immediately after that occurred, our phones began to ring" and continued to ring all day as anxious parents called the school. Without his office staff and a support worker assigned to Greenfield, Lazar said, "running the school would have been near impossible." Parents United for Public Education said its members were appalled by the massive layoffs and warned they would have devastating consequences for students, schools, and communities. Robert McGrogan, president of the local chapter of Commonwealth Association of School Administrators, said he met with assistant principals a few weeks ago after it became clear their jobs would be eliminated. He said the district met with administrators Friday to tell them how to respond to employees who receive layoff notices. Instead of being able to help principals with that task, he said, assistant principals will be asking questions, too. Public Citizens for Children and Youth decried the layoffs and pointed out that the budget the SRC had adopted "would cut music, art, athletics, counselors, librarians, assistant principals, secretaries among others. Even books and paper will be cut from schools." Donna Cooper, the nonprofit's director, said in a statement: "This is a devastating day for our city's children. The doomsday cuts will turn our schools into glorified day-care centers, depriving students of the proper education they deserve."

23.4.2.3.3 Germantown High School Closure Angers and Saddens Community

- http://www.philly.com/philly/news/20130619_Germantown_High_closure_angers_saddens_community.html

To say the Germantown (Philadelphia, PA) community is devastated that its high school of 99 years will close would be a grand understatement. "You're wiping out a whole community," said Vera Primus, president of the Germantown Alumni Association. "To find out your school is closing is so disheartening," said Angela Hanna, whose first and only job with the school district has been as guidance counselor at Germantown High. "You feel like you've been stabbed in the back." "The spirit has been broken," said the Rev. LeRoi Simmons, founder and coordinator of the Germantown Clergy Initiative. "It's a sin and a shame." In 2010, the long-troubled high school became a "promise academy," receiving extra money to beef up its academics. But Germantown will see the promise fade away just when student test scores are improving and not long after the school had been removed from the persistently dangerous list. "What do you call a neighborhood without a school? Without a business?" Primus asked. "It's not a neighborhood. You're destroying a neighborhood." Beyond the deep concerns about the future is anger over the district's handling of the closure and what critics say is a broken promise to keep the school open. Everyone - students, staff and community leaders - fears for nearby businesses along Germantown Avenue, some of which are already closing. There's also the unwelcome sight of an additional vacant property in the neighborhood: Fulton Elementary, next door to Germantown High, is also closing. The schools will join a pair of already unoccupied buildings nearby, the old Germantown City Hall and the YWCA. "Anytime you have large, empty properties, that's going to have a negative impact on that corridor, specifically that stretch of Germantown Avenue," said Andy Trackman, board president of Germantown United Community Development Corp. "Having another large, empty building is not going to help in attracting new businesses." And, of course, there are the kids. The students. The future. "It's truly sad to see Germantown close down," said state Rep. Stephen Kinsey, a Germantown alum himself. "I feel bad about the education of kids in that area." Students, teachers and community members believe dropout rates will increase, because many teens fear moving to their fierce rival, Martin Luther King High School. "It's bad . . . people already don't get along," said Anthony Fleming, 18, a senior. "Now, you're going to have to worry about more fights than you would have to at a regular school." "If you're in a school by yourself, full of people that you don't like, bullied everyday or jumped everyday," said senior Coshae Torrence, 18, "it's going to make you not want to go to school anymore."

23.4.2.3.4 Philadelphia may Privatize more City Public Schools as Charter Schools.

- http://articles.philly.com/2013-06-20/news/40095821_1_mastery-charter-schools-paul-kihn-renaissance-schools

June 20, 2013 - In the face of the Philadelphia School District's fiscal uncertainty, the School Reform Commission on Wednesday night postponed moving forward with plans to turn over three low-performing district schools to charter operators. The commission also renewed the operating agreements for five charter schools because they had agreed to forgo their requests to add students for the 2013-14 academic year. "We have asked everyone to share the sacrifices," said Paul Kihn, deputy superintendent. He said that if all the expansion requests sought by the 16 charters up for renewal this spring had been approved, they would have cost the district $25 million more in the first year and $225 million over the next five years. The charter schools granted five-year renewals Wednesday night were the Architecture and Design Charter High School in Center City; Hardy Williams Academy Charter School in West Philadelphia; Pan American Charter School in eastern North Philadelphia; Mathematics, Civics and Science Charter School on North Broad Street near Spring Garden Street; and Young Scholars Charter School in North Philadelphia. The actions came as the district scrambles to fill a $304 million shortfall by July 1 to avert the announced layoffs of 3,783 employees at schools and 76 at the district's headquarters and regional offices. Superintendent William R. Hite Jr. has asked for $60 million more from the city and $120 million from the state. He also is asking for $133 million from the unions, mostly from the Philadelphia Federation of Teachers. The draft of the SRC's agenda called for it to take the final steps in giving three low-performing elementary schools to charter operators to lead academic turnarounds as part of the district's Renaissance Schools initiative. Pastorius in East Germantown would go to Mastery Charter Schools; Kenderton in Tioga to Scholar Academies; and Alcorn in Grays Ferry to Universal Cos. SRC Chairman Pedro Ramos said the commission had decided to put the fourth year of the Renaissance charter program on hold until the district's financial crisis has been resolved. "We will ask for the SRC to take action on these once we have a clearer picture of our revenues," he said. A contingent of parents and proponents of Mastery's takeover of Pastorius urged the SRC to move forward and sign the agreements so that the academic turnaround could begin. Parents, students, and staff continued to appeal to the commission to reverse budget cuts, restore music programs, and halt the layoffs of music teachers, counselors, and other staff. Harry Levant, president of the home and school association at the High School for Creative and Performing Arts, said he found it ironic that earlier in the meeting, commission members had applauded after a performance by student-musicians when the commission's actions would result in destroying the programs where the students learned to play their instruments. He also decried cuts of teachers from every arts program at CAPA, including laying off the instrumental teacher. "This is designed to destroy the fabric of our school," Levant said

PHILADELPHIA (CBS) — Students arriving at a troubled Philadelphia charter high school Monday morning were told to go home, and informed that the school will be closing for good. Some parents got “robo” calls Sunday night telling them that the Walter D. Palmer High School, in Frankford, would be closed and that they shouldn’t send their children there Monday. But those students who did arrive found no teachers there, and they were told to go home. This is the latest chapter in the Palmer charter school saga. The school was approved for 675 students in grades K through 8, but enrolled 1,300 in grades K through 12. Founder Walter D. Palmer challenged the enrollment cap in court, but lost. And with the Philadelphia school district required to pay for only 675 students, Palmer didn’t know how long he could afford to keep the high school (at the former St. Bartholomew school, on Harbison Avenue) open. Currently, 300 students go to Palmer High, and they will now have to find a new school. Palmer, the school’s founder, says parents should have seen the inevitable. “Well, they basically knew it was coming. They didn’t know when it was coming,” he told KYW Newsradio this morning. Arlene Esquilin, a parent, says she was blindsided nonetheless. “I work in a hospital where I can’t be taking days off,” she said today. “And now I’m here, losing a day of work, where I probably have to buy some more school uniforms? I don’t know where I’m going to put her.” Parent Theresa Dawson is the mother of two 11th graders. She says the school suggested a high school in West Philadelphia, but: “That’s not where I want my child to go. Now it’s really up to me to find her somewhere to go,” Dawson said. The Walter Palmer Charter school has a separate K-8 school totaling 1,300 students, but the district says it has a cap of 675 students. “My hands are tied. I’ve exhausted almost every court,” Palmer said. Earlier this month, the K-8 school held a lottery leaving dozens of students to find a new school. Palmer says he fought to avoid these cuts. “It’s very traumatic for me personally because, I’m very personal about these children,” Palmer said. “They went over their enrollment numbers and here they are in a situation that financially they cannot stay open,” Philadelphia School District spokesperson Fernando Gallard said. School District officials say the school was chartered to be a K-8, not a high school. “They did not have the funds, they were operating above their charter,” Gallard said. Palmer’s elementary school, in Northern Liberties, remains open, but the district is moving to revoke its charter on academic and financial grounds. At a very heated and emotional information session Monday night, the parents found out their options. “Every neighborhood high school is available to Walter Palmer families. In addition there are a number of citywide and special admission schools that are also available to Palmer families if they are able to submit records to the district,” Julian Thompson with the Philadelphia School District. Many parents and students say they are running into problems getting their records and information from Walter Palmer Charter.

A cash-strapped charter school with two Philadelphia campuses has notified parents it plans to close for good this week. But officials from the School District of Philadelphia said Saturday night the decision was news to them. In a notice posted on the school’s website, administrators at the Walter D. Palmer Leadership Learning Partners Charter School said its board had voted to permanently close the school Wednesday after months of financial turmoil. The words permanently close were in red. A letter dated Friday was sent out to parents with information about reenrolling their children at other schools. But as of late Saturday, charter administrators had not yet notified the district of their plans, district spokesman Fernando Gallard said. “The Walter Palmer organization has not informed the School district,” he said in a statement. “We will be reaching out to the school administration to confirm its plans to close.” The Palmer charter, a K-8 school with campuses in Northern Liberties and Frankford, has struggled for months to balance its books. This month, teachers scheduled to be paid Dec. 5 received their checks three days late and were told the money would not be immediately available. At the time, Walter D. Palmer, the school’s founder and board president, blamed the delay on a “timing issue.” He did not return calls Saturday seeking comment. The school also had its budgets slashed this year for failing to make required payments to the state teachers’ pension program. And it is still paying off a $1.5 million court judgment owed to the district for collecting money for students it was not authorized to enroll. Until the fall, the school had nearly 1,300 students, even though its operating agreement set a limit of 675. To comply with court orders, Palmer eliminated its high school program in October and held a lottery to cut the number of K-8 students.

Student Comments - I agree! Walter D Palmer is not a good school. I have been going to Walter D Palmer for almost all of my life and I've seen with my own two eyes, this school has went DOWN. There is only a handful of teachers that I believe work very hard. But not everyone can see it. Not only do the teachers need support, so do the children. I sit in class every day and watch as kids run around, fight, cuss and stay on their cell phones. And no one does anything when a teacher send them out. Walter D Palmer is last on my list. I am grateful that I am leaving this school this year. You shouldn't even call Leadership a charter school. Leadership has turned into a neighborhood school. They do not care about our education anymore. ITS ALL ABOUT THE MONEY!!!! If you are planning on putting your child into this school. PLEASE think twice. usually they help with our high school papers but this year they did not care. REMEMBER what I said. if you put your child into this school you'll be throwing away everything. Plz think twice.

Jan 22, 2015, www.philly.com On the same day that the Philadelphia School Reform Commission was told it could not scrap the teachers' contract to save money, the state House speaker urged the commission to approve more charter schools. Twenty-seven of the 40 applicants for new charters "are doing a bang-up job," Mike Turzai (R., Allegheny) said at a roundtable meeting Thursday with parents at Mastery Charter School's Shoemaker campus in West Philadelphia. In a private meeting with School Superintendent William R. Hite Jr. and SRC Chairman Bill Green, Turzai said he made it clear: The district ought to approve many of those new charter proposals. Of the applicants, Turzai said, the 27 applicants beat district averages, and 16 met the state's academic benchmarks....

Foreign teachers' American dreams vanish in a flash. US district hired them to meet No Child Left Behind demands, but now they're left in the lurch. DISTRICT HEIGHTS, Md. — As teacher Maria Ursula Raymundo stared out at the desert landscape bouncing past, she found herself thinking about where she would have been if her life hadn't been turned upside-down by a bureaucratic nightmare: On bus duty at the suburban Maryland elementary school where she had taught P.E. for four years. Instead, she was traveling the desolate back roads of Arizona and New Mexico in a van with a group of fellow Filipino teachers, hoping to find a school that would give them jobs before their American dreams vanished once and for all. "It's about your life ... changing suddenly without warning," said Raymundo, a 47-year-old from Manila, recalling the recent job-search expedition across the U.S. "We are not citizens, we are not green card holders ... it's not like you just pack your things and you move onto the next street or you move onto the next state, our home is (thousands of) miles away." Raymundo is one of nearly 1,050 foreign teachers caught in the middle of a Byzantine workplace dispute between the Prince George's County \(Md.\) Public Schools and the U.S. Labor Department over the former's recruiting under a temporary worker visa program. But in an unforeseen irony, their lives also have been ripped apart as the result of an international talent hunt prompted by the 2001 passage of the No Child Left Behind Act — the educational centerpiece of the presidency of George W. Bush. The teachers — most of them from the Philippines, but also from Chile, Colombia, India and the Caribbean — found out by email in April that the school district might not be able to sponsor them again amid a Labor Department investigation of its participation in the federal H-1B program, which allows employers to bring foreign workers into the country temporarily to fill specialty occupations. Three months later, the district announced that it could not rehire them when their visas expired under the terms of a settlement of the case, in which the Labor Department found that the district "willfully violated" the terms of the program. (An administrative law judge last week signed off on the settlement; meanwhile, some teachers are still exploring if they have any legal recourse.) The news threw the teachers' lives into disarray. As their visas began expiring, they faced a stark choice: Drop their lives in Maryland to crisscross the country looking for jobs — even though they technically don't have the right to work in the U.S. until they find a new sponsor — or go back to their homelands. It also had serious financial implications. Some had sold land and homes in their native countries or taken out high-interest loans to be able to afford the move to the U.S. Some also had moved their families to Maryland and had bought homes and cars. An 'emotional massacre' A few of them already had their "green cards," entitling them to permanent residency, but others had only just begun the process. Raymundo, whose work permit expired on July 31, is one of the latter. She is still in the country legally on a tourist visa, living with friends while desperately looking for a new job and trying to cope with what she calls an "emotional massacre." The Filipino teachers said they were drawn to Prince George's County, just outside Washington, D.C., by officials from the school district — one of the nation's biggest, with 198 schools, more than 127,000 students and nearly 18,000 employees — who went to the Philippines to recruit them through a local job-placement agency. "We hired temporary foreign national employees at a time when school systems across the country were facing shortages of highly qualified instructors in hard-to-fill subject areas such as math, science and special education, as mandated by the federal No Child Left Behind Act," Briant Coleman, a district spokesman, wrote in a statement. The foreign teachers provided "an exceptional service to our school district," Coleman said. Parents in the district also said they brought a high level of energy to the job. "You see the community centers and how active they are," said David Edwards, whose daughter attends a school there and who is director of international relations at the National Education Association. "A lot of them are getting their green cards; they're applying for permanent residency. Their intention is ... to immigrate and stay."

Parents Troy and Dedra Townsend said a Filipino special needs teacher, Maria Urbano, had a big impact on the education of their autistic son, Skylar, who she worked with for more than two years. She saw that he was not lazy but brilliant, and helped get him into a new school, where he now is two grades ahead of his age group, Dedra Townsend said. “I think those (foreign) teachers brought so much to these kids ... I think they went over and above,” said Townsend, a 49-year-old letter carrier for the U.S. Postal Service. “I think that the kids are going to be at a loss, I really do.” The teachers first found out that their jobs were at risk in April, when the district informed them about the Labor Department investigation and that agency announced it had charged the school district with “willful violation of the laws that govern the H-1B temporary foreign worker visa program.” Investigators determined that the district had illegally reduced the wages of 1,044 foreign teachers hired under the H-1B program by requiring the payment of $4.22 million in fees. The H-1B visa provides a three-year permit that can be renewed for up to three more years. The idea is “to help employers who cannot otherwise obtain needed business skills and abilities from the U.S. workforce,” the Labor Department says on its website. The H-1B program mandates that employers pay certain fees incurred when they use the program. “Instead of paying these fees, (the school district) required the foreign teachers to pay them. As a result, the teachers' earnings were reduced below the amount legally required to be paid,” the Labor Department said in April. In its original announcement, the agency said the district faced another $1.74 million in civil money penalties and could be debarred from “filing new petitions, requests for extensions or requests for permanent residency for foreign workers under any employment-based visa program.” It noted that violations were “willful when an employer knew or acted in reckless disregard for whether its actions were impermissible.” The news sent shockwaves rippling through the county’s international teaching community, but the educators initially were hopeful the matter would be resolved when they said they received emails from the district asking them to submit their paperwork for visa renewal in May. An ominous lull in communications followed. On July 7, the district announced that, as part of the settlement, it would pay the $4.22 million to the Labor Department, which would in turn give the money to the foreign workers. It also stated that it was barred from participating in the H-1B visa program for two years — meaning it could not renew the teachers’ work permits during this time. 'Not the outcome we had hoped for' Coleman said the Labor Department, “agreed to reduce the proposed civil money penalty to $100,000 contingent on the board’s agreement to terminate all visa sponsorship programs effective July 1, 2011.” “Obviously, this is not the outcome we had hoped for as these employees have provided an exceptional service to our school district. (The school district) did everything possible to retain these excellent and valued employees,” he said in a statement. “However, in the final analysis of the current state of our shrinking school budget and mounting legal fees, we determined that we simply could not afford to continue to operate this program.” Coleman, who noted that the district faced a $150 million budget shortfall in the coming year, said the teachers were not promised a green card or permanent residency — only that they would be employed until their visas expired if they performed well. The district’s last foreign teacher visa will expire in 2013. “This decision is in the best interest of our school district and marks the end of a challenging chapter in our school district’s efforts to meet the mandates of the federal government’s No Child Left Behind Act,” he added. The U.S. has for many years been an importer of skilled teachers from overseas. Nearly 19,800 foreign teachers were potentially working in the U.S. on temporary visas in 2009, according to the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO. And some 4,930 green cards were certified for teachers from 2006 to 2010, with a majority of them — 28 percent — being from the Philippines, followed by Mexico, India, Colombia and Canada, it said. Edwards, the NEA official, said his organization began to notice the trend of importing teachers in the late 1990s. Among the institutions hiring the teachers are hard-to-staff schools, urban districts, and charter and private schools, according to the American Federation of Teachers. Nearly all the foreign teachers in Prince George's County are members of the local NEA affiliate, whose membership numbers 3.2 million nationwide. Edwards said his organization pushed for labor laws to be enforced regarding foreign teachers, but had serious problems with the results in this case. 'Doubly victimized' "At one point we came out, we were glad they were doing the investigation because we felt that these were teachers who were being exploited and we also felt that employers were using this way to kind of create a sort of sub-tier of teaching category ... that wouldn't necessarily have due process, it would be sort of at-will employees," he said. But with the outcome, he said, "We feel that they have been doubly victimized. We disagree with the remedy, the unintended consequences as a result of the debarment that is basically putting the burden back on these vulnerable workers, who are going to have to uproot their lives." Edwards said foreign teachers are particularly vulnerable, noting that he had heard of cases in California where international instructors were terminated simply by not having their visas renewed. "It's the new form of termination in the global economy," he said. "You can just have this sort of disposable labor force, and not just the labor force you think about, but the knowledge labor force, I mean the people that are teaching our kids." While the scenario in Prince George's County wasn't driven purely by economics, the outcome has been just as devastating. Among the foreign teachers dealing with the fallout is Ximena Meneses, a Spanish-language middle school teacher in the district for four years. A native of Chile, Meneses had bought a home, and moved her husband, Alvaro Brito — who does not have the legal right to work in the U.S. — and their son, Alvaro Jr. They had been in the U.S. for seven years and she had begun the application process for the green card in September 2010. Today, Meneses is sleeping on a mattress on the floor of a friend's home in Virginia, where she found a teaching job that pays about $22,000 less than her old one. Courtesy Of Ximena Meneses Ximena Meneses, who moved to the U.S. seven years ago from Chile, found a job that pays less than she used to make and may lose her house. "What happened to me has happened 1,000 times ... you've got 1,000 stories. Which one is the worst?" she asked. "All of them are." "My heart is full of pain," said Meneses, who noted she was named teacher of the month in June at her old school. "I am a good teacher. I love teaching. ... It happened here in this country that I really love." Other school districts and educational institutions (religious, charter and private schools, a pre-school and public school districts and teacher's placement groups) have been found to have violated the H-1B visa program: 19 in Texas, Ohio, New York, Florida, California, Georgia and New Jersey. The Labor Department found another school district — Dayton (Ohio) Public Schools — to be a willful violator of the program, too, in November 2007. The Labor Department began its investigation into Prince George's County Public Schools in 2007, an agency spokesperson said in an email. Under the law, an employer who willfully violates the wage provisions of the program must be debarred for at least two years. Enforcement creates a strong incentive for other employers to follow the law, and as a result of the Prince George's case, two other large school districts that use the program have determined they made "impermissible deductions from H-1B teachers' pay similar to the ones made by (Prince George's) ... and will reimburse H-1B workers for fees already charged," the spokesperson said. Whether the district's actions were willful or not, Raymundo is dealing with the fallout. She said she often finds herself asking, "Why are we victims and where is justice?" Like other teachers, she is searching all potential avenues to try and find another teaching job in the U.S. But she also is steeling herself for the worst — a return to the Philippines and the uncertain job prospects she would face there — and trying to stay optimistic. "I am preparing myself emotionally to go home in October," she said. "It is not the end of the world, you know, one door is closed now, but another window will open tomorrow."

Presidents and world leaders have visited the Southern California getaway for decades, but Obama is using the serene site as a new center for diplomacy – this time with Jordan's King Abdullah II. WASHINGTON — They'll meet at a discreet compound in Southern California on Friday, dining with a view of the mountains before a long talk and, if the mood strikes, a walk around the grounds in the balmy night. It's hardly a storybook Valentine's Day, with President Obama as the host and Jordanian King Abdullah II the guest at Rancho Mirage's luxurious Sunnylands estate, which is becoming the Camp David of the West. But the setting holds a special allure for world leaders looking to work out nettlesome problems, far from the media glare and diplomatic protocols that come with an official visit to the White House. Ties are optional, as are elaborately orchestrated meetings. Aides say that's exactly why Obama ordered up the tete-a-tete on the other side of the continent from the nation's capital, even though Abdullah was in Washington earlier in the week. Then there's the golf course, where the president is free to play golf after his work with Abdullah is done. The serene setting is ideal for serious discussions, said James Phillips, a senior research fellow for Middle Eastern affairs at the Heritage Foundation. "It's a more intimate atmosphere," Phillips said, "and serves as kind of a quiet tribute to the importance accorded to U.S.-Jordanian relations and to one of our more important allies." With a good friend or not, Obama sometimes favors a getaway strategy when entertaining heads of state. He took then-President Dmitry Medvedev of Russia to Ray's Hell Burger in Arlington, Va., a few summers ago. British Prime Minister David Cameron got courtside seats for a "First Four" matchup in the March Madness college basketball tournament. And when it was time to talk about the touchy topic of cybersecurity with Chinese President Xi Jinping last year, Obama set up a two-day session at Sunnylands, a 200-acre haven carved out of the desert in the 1960s by publisher Walter Annenberg. The two went for a stroll in their shirt-sleeves, eventually settling on a new bench crafted from California redwood that the White House had placed there in honor of the Chinese people. Aides think the two leaders laid important groundwork in their cloistered one-on-one. There's a feeling of "serenity, isolation, vastness of nature" amid the lush green lawns stretching into the desert, as Wallis Annenberg, president of the Annenberg Foundation, once put it. Isolation may be part of the attraction for Abdullah. Jordan is quietly supporting some opposition factions in Syria but might suffer retribution if seen as a base for U.S. intervention in that country's civil war. Obama and Abdullah have other crucial issues to confront, especially the overwhelming flood of refugees fleeing the violence and pouring across the border into Jordan. Jordan is seeking more assistance for the effort. The leaders are also likely to discuss the proposed U.S. framework for Israeli-Palestinian peace negotiations. The Palestinian diaspora accounts for about half the population of Jordan. Jon Alterman, director of the Middle East Program at the Center for Strategic and International Studies, noted that the U.S. and Jordan have strong military, intelligence and diplomatic relationships. "Jordan is in between a whole bunch of places we care about," he said. "So if there's a domino in the Middle East, many people calculate that that domino is Jordan. We have to keep it from falling the wrong way." Alterman also suggested that Obama might benefit from a little unstructured time with Abdullah. "This king, with his love of Harley-Davidsons and 'Star Wars,' is a person that the president could both learn from and relax with," he said. For decades, presidents and former presidents have traveled to Sunnylands to get away from it all. The rules of the estate's trust hold that the master bedroom be reserved for the president of the United States or other heads of state. President Eisenhower liked to golf at Sunnylands and, after resigning, President Nixon holed up for a time behind its stucco walls. Foreign leaders have been guests as well, as when the first President Bush hosted the Japanese prime minister. But Obama is turning the sprawling retreat into a virtual diplomatic center. After the Xi summit last year, Obama told aides that he thought he'd gotten a better sense of the Chinese president than he would have at the White House. His sunny perception of things may have stemmed, at least a bit, from the temperate climate. When the president arrives Friday night, the temperature is predicted to be in the 70s. (At Camp David, it could be in the 20s.) Then there's the matter of the golf course, built in a parkland style and featuring a magnolia tree on the seventh green. (Camp David has a driving range and a single green.) First Lady Michelle Obama and the first daughters have other plans for the weekend, potentially allowing the president something he doesn't get much of in Washington — downtime with some of his golf buddies.

The Obama Administration with the help of Senator Harry Reid has attempted to allow the Dream Act to come into law. The idea is that during the economic downturn, the government would allow children of illegal immigrants to attend colleges at in state tuition rates. Additionally, the proposed law provides the millions of illegal immigrants a path to become US Citizens. This will impose excessive burdens on the Social Program that are already facing upcoming economic issues.

23.10.1.1 Obama's Attack on Romney's Outsourcing Hypocritical – InformationWeek

- <http://www.informationweek.com/news/global-cio/outsourcing/240002894>

President Obama this week slammed Mitt Romney for outsourcing jobs overseas. That took some jam, given that the administration for the past three years has actively promoted off-shoring while making nice with India over the issue. Obama hit Romney for investing in companies that shipped work to low-cost locations like India and China while the former Massachusetts governor was at Bain Capital. The President said that's proof that Romney is not the big job creator he claims to be. "Governor Romney's commitment to outsourcing is not just part of his record, it's part of his overall economic vision that he and Republicans in Congress want to implement," Obama said Monday during a stop in New Hampshire. Obama's campaign press secretary took it a step further. In a memo to reporters Wednesday, he said Bain provided "a guidebook for other companies on how to ship American jobs overseas." The tone of these attacks suggests Bain was funneling American workers into a wood chipper, rather than engaging in a business practice that has become standard operating procedure for virtually every Fortune 500 company over the past 20 years, starting with Jack Welch's General Electric. Off-shoring does cost American jobs in some cases, but it also gives American companies access to a global pool of talent and global markets. But even if one does not accept the business case for outsourcing, it's hard to escape the fact that Obama's anti-outsourcing rhetoric is hypocritical. the United States Agency for International Development, under Obama's handpicked appointee Rajiv Shah, has championed outsourcing around the world and has used millions of U.S. taxpayer dollars to train workers in developing countries for jobs at companies that specialize in off-shoring IT, manufacturing, and call center work from the United States. USAID launched such programs in a number of countries, including Sri Lanka, Armenia, and the Philippines, and only discontinued them after InformationWeek reported on the practice. Obama's support for outsourcing doesn't end there. While the President talks tough when he's, say, stumping before Michigan factory workers, he and his representatives strike a different tone abroad, especially in India. "The United States not only welcomes India as a rising global power, we fervently support it, and we have worked to help make it a reality," Obama said during a speech to the Indian parliament in late 2010. Obama cabinet members have been more direct in floating the notion that outsourcing is vital to good relations between the U.S. and India, which the administration views as a key ally in its efforts to stabilize Afghanistan before the troops leave. Here's what Gary Locke, U.S. ambassador to China, had to say in New Delhi last year when he was Obama's Commerce secretary: "Ours is increasingly a partnership of equals, with major U.S. multinationals like Cisco, GE, and IBM locating major research and development facilities here, and depending on Indian scientists and engineers to do growing amounts of higher-value-added work." Sounding like a spokesman for NASSCOM, the lobby group for India's outsourcing industry, Locke added that, "We came to India for the costs, we stayed for the quality, and we're now investing for innovation." Last November, State Department deputy assistant secretary Geoffrey Pyatt was in the Indian coastal city of Chennai, one of the country's biggest outsourcing hubs, talking about how the U.S. and India mutually benefit from offshoring. Pyatt said the notion that outsourcing is a one-way street that only benefits Asia is "outdated." "Bilateral trade is flourishing, with Indian investment in the United States increasing substantially. The pace of innovation in India has been amazing. Here in Chennai, automobile components, software development, hardware manufacturing, and healthcare industries are all thriving, building out a diversified economic base reflecting the Indian economy of tomorrow, directly linked to global markets, and vital to U.S. and global economic prosperity," Pyatt said. "On the U.S. side, the outdated perception of an Indian economy that detracts from U.S. production and output is widely seen as an anachronism. As former United States Trade Representative Susan Esserman recently noted, the periodic debate over outsourcing doesn't 'begin to capture the richness, breadth, and diversity of the U.S.-India economic relationship,'" Pyatt continued. Meanwhile, numerous bills that would restrict outsourcing have gone nowhere during the three-and-a-half years Obama has been in the White House, and he's spent zero political capital trying to change that. Getting the picture? Obama the campaigner is big on anti-outsourcing rhetoric when he's on the hustle. Obama the globetrotting, internationalist president believes outsourcing is crucial to leveling the playing field between the West and developing nations, and thus vital to world peace, stability, and economic growth. Romney? He just thinks outsourcing is a good option for cash-strapped companies facing bankruptcy. Where's the fun in that?

23.11 ObamaCare – GE CEO - America Must Pay More for Healthcare

By David Sell, Inquirer Staff Writer POSTED: MARCH 08, 2013 -NEW YORK - General Electric Co. chief executive officer Jeff Immelt, whose company sells medical technology but also spends $3 billion a year on employee health-care costs, said individual Americans must bear greater responsibility for their health and pay more for care. "We don't have enough conversations in the United States - because the minute your words leave your mouth, it becomes highly political - about how we'll never bend the cost curve until we get more consumer skin in the game," Immelt said Thursday in the opening session of the Wharton Economic Summit 2013 at Jazz Lincoln Center. GE Healthcare has about 53,000 of the company's 300,000 employees worldwide and has a facility in Princeton, N.J. Immelt dismissed the idea of a single-payer health-care system. Instead, he told the audience to use India as a model because it is "100 percent" consumer-directed. He said a GE executive had tests done for $150 in India that a year earlier had cost $2,500 at "one of the great American health-care institutions." Wharton has focused more on the interaction between public policy and business, and Thursday's theme was the bridging of that divide. The first of four panel discussions after Immelt spoke involved health care. Ezekiel Emanuel, a panel moderator and University of Pennsylvania vice provost for global initiatives - who worked in the White House during formulation of the Affordable Care Act - agreed with the need to address health-care financing, but not with Immelt's consumer suggestion. "Consumers already pay 27 percent of the bill," Emanuel said. "Half the people use no health care. Ten percent use 67 percent of the dollars spent." Panelist Alex Gorsky, chief executive of Johnson & Johnson, said the key is "to continue to build a system that rewards innovation." Drug and device companies such as J&J resist public and private insurance attempts at reducing payments for their products. In an interview after the panel, Gorsky said he doubted overall spending would come down. "With so many patients coming into the system because of the demographics," he said, "there is going to be more, and that's in the U.S., let alone in emerging markets."

Asked if he would favor higher taxes to pay for it, he said, "At the end of the day, all of us are going to have to give in our system and participate in an appropriate way."

23.11.1 Full List of ObamaCare Taxes

Under the Obamacare, the health insurance costs for two adults will increase from about $10,000 per year to about $20,000 per year.

- WASHINGTON, DC -- Obamacare contains 20 new or higher taxes on American families and small businesses. Arranged by their respective sizes according to CBO scores, below is the total list of all $500 billion-plus in tax hikes (over the next ten years) in Obamacare, their effective dates, and where to find them in the bill.

- $123 Billion: Surtax on Investment Income (Takes effect Jan. 2013): A new, 3.8 percent surtax on investment income earned in households making at least $250,000 ($200,000 single). This would result in the following top tax rates on investment income:

Year	Capital Gains Tax	Dividends	Other*
2013+	23.8%	43.4%	43.4%

- Other unearned income includes (for surtax purposes) gross income from interest, annuities, royalties, net rents, and passive income in partnerships and Subchapter-S corporations. It does not include municipal bond interest or life insurance proceeds, since those do not add to gross income. It does not include active trade or business income, fair market value sales of ownership in pass-through entities, or distributions from retirement plans. The 3.8% surtax does not apply to non-resident aliens. (Bill: Reconciliation Act; Page: 87-93)*

- Employer: If an employer does not offer health coverage, and at least one employee qualifies for a health tax credit, the employer must pay an additional non-deductible tax of $2000 for all full-time employees. Applies to all employers with 50 or more employees. If any employee actually receives coverage through the exchange, the penalty on the employer for that employee rises to $3000. If the employer requires a waiting period to enroll in coverage of 30-60 days, there is a $400 tax per employee ($600 if the period is 60 days or longer). Bill: PPACA; Page: 345-346 (Combined score of individual and employer mandate tax penalty: $65 billion)
- $60.1 Billion: Tax on Health Insurers (Takes effect Jan. 2014): Annual tax on the industry imposed relative to health insurance premiums collected that year. Phases in gradually until 2018. Fully-imposed on firms with $50 million in profits. Bill: PPACA; Page: 1,986-1,993
- $32 Billion: Excise Tax on Comprehensive Health Insurance Plans (Takes effect Jan. 2018): Starting in 2018, new 40 percent excise tax on “Cadillac” health insurance plans ($10,200 single/$27,500 family). Higher threshold ($11,500 single/$29,450 family) for early retirees and high-risk professions. CPI +1 percentage point indexed. Bill: PPACA; Page: 1,941-1,956

- $20 Billion: Tax on Medical Device Manufacturers (Takes effect Jan. 2013): Medical device manufacturers employ 360,000 people in 6000 plants across the country. This law imposes a new 2.3% excise tax. Exempts items retailing for <$100. Bill: PPACA; Page: 1,980-1,986
- $15.2 Billion: High Medical Bills Tax (Takes effect Jan 1. 2013): Currently, those facing high medical expenses are allowed a deduction for medical expenses to the extent that those expenses exceed 7.5 percent of adjusted gross income (AGI). The new provision imposes a threshold of 10 percent of AGI. Waived for 65+ taxpayers in 2013-2016 only. Bill: PPACA; Page: 1,994-1,995

- $13.2 Billion: Flexible Spending Account Cap – aka “Special Needs Kids Tax” (Takes effect Jan. 2013): Imposes cap on FSAs of $2500 (now unlimited). Indexed to inflation after 2013. There is one group of FSA owners for whom this new cap will be particularly cruel and onerous: parents of special needs children. There are thousands of families with special needs children in the United States, and many of them use FSAs to pay for special needs education. Tuition rates at one leading school that teaches special needs children in Washington, D.C. (National Child Research Center) can easily exceed $14,000 per year. Under tax rules, FSA dollars can be used to pay for this type of special needs education. Bill: PPACA; Page: 2,388-2,389
- $5 Billion: Medicine Cabinet Tax (Took effect Jan. 2011): Americans no longer able to use health savings account (HSA), flexible spending account (FSA), or health reimbursement (HRA) pre-tax dollars to purchase non-prescription, over-the-counter medicines (except insulin). Bill: PPACA; Page: 1,957-1,959

- $4.5 Billion: Codification of the “economic substance doctrine” (Took effect in 2010): This provision allows the IRS to disallow completely-legal tax deductions and other legal tax-minimizing plans just because the IRS deems that the action lacks “substance” and is merely intended to reduce taxes owed. Bill: Reconciliation Act; Page: 108-113
- $2.7 Billion: Tax on Indoor Tanning Services (Took effect July 1, 2010): New 10 percent excise tax on Americans using indoor tanning salons. Bill: PPACA; Page: 2,397-2,399
- $1.4 Billion: HSA Withdrawal Tax Hike (Took effect Jan. 2011): Increases additional tax on non-medical early withdrawals from an HSA from 10 to 20 percent, disadvantaging them relative to IRAs and other tax-advantaged accounts, which remain at 10 percent. Bill: PPACA; Page: 1,959

Q: Does a college classmate of Michelle Obama work for CGI Federal? Did that company receive a no-bid contract to build the HealthCare.gov website?

A: Toni Townes-Whitley, a senior vice president at CGI, and Obama graduated from Princeton University in 1985. However, company and government officials say the contract was awarded through a competitive bidding process.

FULL QUESTION Was CGI the sole bidder on the Obamacare website? Was Toni Townes-Whitley, senior vice president at CGI Federal, the classmate of Michelle Obama at Princeton (class of 1985) and are both members of the Association of Black Princeton Alumni? Did CGI donate $47 million to the Obama campaigns?

FULL ANSWER An email forwarded to FactCheck.org several times claims that “First Lady Michelle Obama’s Princeton classmate is a top executive at the company that earned the contract to build the failed Obamacare website.” That’s actually the lead sentence of an Oct. 25 Daily Caller article linking the Obama administration and CGI Federal, the tech firm hired by the administration to build HealthCare.gov. That same Daily Caller article said CGI Federal “earned the no-bid contract to build the $678 million Obamacare enrollment website at HealthCare.gov.” Toni Townes-Whitley — the executive named in the article — is a senior vice president with CGI Federal. And she graduated from Princeton University in 1985 — the same year as Michelle Obama. But the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services dispute the claim that CGI Federal received a “no-bid” contract. A spokeswoman for the agency said that four companies, including CGI Federal, submitted proposals to build the marketplace website.

Princeton Connection It’s true that Townes-Whitley works for CGI Federal. She joined the company in May 2010, and is senior vice president of the Civilian Agency Programs Business Unit, according to the CGI website. In her current role, she oversees services to 22 U.S. federal civilian agencies and is “responsible for sales, client relationships, P&L and member management for CAP’s 1,850+ members across the U.S. and 34 countries internationally.” It’s also true that she and Michelle Obama graduated from Princeton University in 1985, and both are members of the Association of Black Princeton Alumni, according to the alumni group’s website. Obama studied sociology and African-American studies at Princeton, and Townes-Whitley studied economics and public policy at the university’s Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. The women belonged to some of the same student groups as well. Obama, then Michelle Robinson, participated in the Organization of Black Unity and the Third World Center, according to a Boston Globe article. And an out-of-date LinkedIn page for Townes-Whitley — before she began working for CGI Federal — lists those same groups among her “activities and societies” while in school.

In addition, White House visitor records show that Townes-Whitley attended meetings at the White House at least four times between 2010 and 2013. According to the records, she met with Vivek Kundra, former White House chief information officer, in 2010; Danny Werfel, former controller of the Office of Management and Budget, in 2011 and 2013; and Jonathan McBride, assistant to the president and director of presidential personnel, in 2013. The 2010 meeting was described as a forum on IT management reform, according to the records. No description was given for the other meetings. Townes-Whitley also attended a White House holiday party in 2010. A photo on her Facebook page shows her and her husband, John Whitley, posing with the president and first lady. What we don’t know is whether any of those details means that Townes-Whitley had anything to do with CGI Federal receiving a federal contract to work on the HealthCare.gov website as the email could lead readers to believe. That claim isn’t made directly in the Daily Caller article, and the emails it has spawned provide no other information directly linking her to the work order. We contacted the first lady’s press office to see if the women knew one another while in school or if they are in contact now. But we didn’t hear back. However, a company official for CGI denied that Townes-Whitley had any role in securing the contract. “Ms. Townes-Whitley is not currently and has never been responsible for the CMS contract as a CGI employee,” said Linda Odorisio, CGI vice president of global communications, in an email to FactCheck.org. “She also was not involved in CGI business development, proposal development or client meetings related to the CMS FFM program (Healthcare.gov).” Odorisio said that Townes-Whitley has communicated directly with Michelle Obama on two occasions while working for CGI Federal, both times during social events at the White House attended by hundreds of guests. “There was NO DISCUSSION OF CGI” during either conversation, Odorisio wrote. (Capitalizations are her own.)

The CGI Contract A portion of the Oct. 25 Daily Caller article that is being forwarded widely in an email claims that CGI Federal “earned the no-bid contract to build the $678 million Obamacare enrollment website at HealthCare.gov.” The Daily Caller got that bit of information from an Oct. 13 report in the Washington Examiner that said “Federal officials considered only one firm to design the Obamacare health insurance exchange website that has performed abysmally since its Oct. 1 debut.” A portion of that Examiner article also appears as the lead in another chain email going around online. It’s true that the CMS did not accept bids from all comers to build the HealthCare.gov website. A Bloomberg report said the administration used an “expedited bidding system” that limited its choices to just a select few. But officials for CGI Federal and the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services say it’s not accurate that CGI Federal was the only firm considered for the job. In congressional testimony, Cheryl Campbell, a CGI Federal senior vice president, said that the firm received the contract to build the site “through a two-step competitive process” that began back in 2007.

Campbell, Oct. 24: CGI Federal obtained the [Federal Facilitated Marketplace] contract through a two-step competitive process. In 2007, through full and open competition, CGI Federal was awarded an Indefinite Delivery/Indefinite Quantity contract for Enterprise Systems Development (ESD) along with 16 other industry competitors. In 2011, CMS conducted a competition for the FFM cost-reimbursement task order among the ESD contract holders. Of the four bids submitted, CGI Federal was selected by CMS as the “best value” to the government.

A CMS spokeswoman told FactCheck.org the same thing via email. “CGI did not receive any sole source awards,” she said. “They competed for the work on our multiple award contract.” The spokeswoman said the competition to build HealthCare.gov was open to the 16 contractors that had been awarded an ID/IQ contract through the process Campbell outlined in her testimony, and, thus, were pre-approved for subsequent task orders. Four of the 16 companies submitted proposals for the work order to build the marketplace website, the spokeswoman said. Those four were: Quality Software Services Inc., IBM, Computer Science Corporation and CGI Federal. We reached out to QSSI, IBM and CSC to confirm that they submitted proposals. CSC referred us to CMS, and we did not hear back from IBM or QSSI. CGI announced in December 2011, that the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services Center for Consumer Information and Insurance Oversight had awarded CGI Federal with an estimated $93.7 million contract to build the website for the federal health insurance exchanges. A press release said that the contract value was “over a two-year base with three, one-year option periods.” More than that has been spent already, though. At an Oct. 30 congressional hearing, Health and Human Services Secretary Kathleen Sebelius said a total of $174 million had been spent as of August, including “$118 million on the website itself, and about $56 million has been expended on other IT to support the web.” Sebelius said $197 million had been obligated to CGI Federal through March 2014. That figure is confirmed by government records available at USASpending.gov. In addition, CMS communications director Julie Bataille, in a Nov. 1 conference call with reporters, said the total budget for the website project was “in the neighborhood of $630 million.” The CMS spokeswoman told us that amount includes contracts for the HealthCare.gov website, the data services hub that supports the state and federal exchanges and other system hardware.

CGI Group Inc. (GIB), the company that built the main Obamacare website, will be replaced next month when its contract with the U.S. federal government expires, a person familiar with the decision said. The Obama administration intends to sign a contract with Dublin-based Accenture Plc (ACN) to complete unfinished work on healthcare.gov and run the site, said the person, who asked not to be identified because the decision isn't public. Montreal-based CGI fell 2.9 percent, to $31.58 in New York. The Oct. 1 debut of the insurance exchange serving 36 of the 50 U.S. states was plagued by delays, error messages and hang-ups that prevented people from completing applications. Accenture, the second-largest technology-consulting company, led construction of California's better-performing state system. "We are working with our contract partners to make a mutually agreed upon transition to ensure that healthcare.gov continues to operate smoothly for consumers," Aaron Albright, a spokesman for the U.S. Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, said in an e-mail without confirming the decision. A spokeswoman for CGI, Linda Odorisio, didn't respond to an e-mail seeking comment on the decision. Joanne Veto, an Accenture spokeswoman, declined to comment, saying the company is always in contact with prospective clients.

23.14.1 H1B Visa ObamaCare BombShell

Sept 13, 2013 Democratic Governor awards $71.4 million contract to an outsourcing firm billing up to $128.08 per hour per position- plus $200,000 taxpayer financed “slush fund” for travel.

By Adam Andrzejewski

CHICAGO- Billions of dollars of IT contracts are wrapped inside the implementation of ObamaCare. With Federal tax dollars paying up to 90% of the cost for upgrading state Medicaid Management Information Systems (MMIS). These awards are some of the largest in state history. Two weeks ago, Illinois Governor Patrick Quinn became national news for circumventing a three year procurement process on up to $190 million in no-bid IT contracts. Last week, we found that one of the largest bid-contract awards outsources state jobs to H-1B contractors from India. This story led the nightly news covering the state capitol. “Outsourced” at home in Illinois... at a higher cost A $71.4 million IT contract was awarded to Cognizant Technology Solutions, which ranks in the top 7 for procuring H-1B visa workers. As soon as the Illinois contract was signed, evidence shows the company has applied for over 100 H-1B visas with the United States Department of Labor and Training Administration and is www.noplaceforcorruption.com Copyright © All Rights Reserved, April 29, 2012

recruiting staff from India for the Illinois work. According to myvisajobs.com, Cognizant filed federal applications for H-1B visas to fill over 100 full-time positions for the Illinois work. The federal applications of Cognizant explicitly delineate that work locations are Springfield, IL and Lansing, MI. (Illinois has admitted that the MMIS upgrade would occur in both Lansing, MI and Springfield, IL locations.) Job listings in India offer further evidence of job outsourcing: Cognizant is in India recruiting consultants, coders, architects, MBA's and programmers with skills such as a "working knowledge of Medicaid and MMIS." In mid-July, Cognizant Technology Solutions India, Ltd., based in Chennai, held "open interviews" for applicants with the computer language skills needed for the Illinois work. Cognizant's recruiting agency posted jobs in India looking for medical billing specialists and system programmers with knowledge of Medicaid and the privacy HIPPA laws. Even though the language in the state contract seems to prohibit off-shoring of the Illinois work, posted job descriptions show that once hired, the H-1B employees will work in Chennai and Bangalore, India. Does Illinois really know what its vendor is up to? Cognizant's June 20, 2013 contract confirms figures found in the approved federal planning documents. Contracted fee schedules show that first year charges of up to $109.28 per hour per position will increase on renewal to $128.08. Cognizant's consulting fees of up to $256,160 per person per year will replace senior state managers making $75 per hour or $150,000 per year, including pension and health insurance costs. Adding to taxpayer cost, the Quinn administration lets Cognizant charge an additional \$200,000 in first year travel costs. It's a long way from India to Springfield, Illinois.

Quinn Administration's Response - The Quinn administration responded to our first report with a blanket denial. "No state IT jobs will be eliminated for the MMIS project and that no state jobs are being outsourced to India." Furthermore, the administration called our report, "entirely false, unfounded and misleading." Quinn's rhetoric can't cover-up the vendor's own H-1B visa applications to the Department of Labor, nor does it account for Cognizant's recruiting pitch taking place in India, and the high consulting fees and travel costs inside the contract. Cognizant's outsourcing business model isn't an industry secret. In the company's 2011 SEC filings, they explained it this way, "The vast majority of our technical professionals in the United States and Europe are Indian nationals." In 2006, the United States Homeland Security Office of Inspector General included Cognizant in its report on L-1 visas (specialized knowledge petitions for intra-company transfer of nonimmigrant visa program) assessment of vulnerabilities and potential sources of abuse. Among nine computer and IT firms, the report highlighted Cognizant and their "computer visa" applications primary benefiting India. In January 2013, Bloomberg News touted Cognizant as a leading outsourcing firm specifically citing their bidding on the Illinois healthcare exchange. Revenues from writing code for state governments and pharmaceuticals make up 25% of Cognizant's revenues . In a March 2013 Boston Globe editorial Outsourced at Home, Cognizant was highlighted after being sued for their H-1B recruiting on behalf of Molina Corporation- a company working on the California MMIS upgrade. It was alleged that Cognizant recruited the replacement of 40 American workers at Molina with H-1B visa holders from India. The editorial argued that "this isn't off-shoring but a quiet replacement of American workers on domestic soil." In August 2013, our research showed evidence that Cognizant not only outsourced MMIS IT jobs with H-1B visas, but is also currently off-shoring work for some states at its facilities in India. On the Alaskan MMIS project, Neha Anand, a business manager with Cognizant Technology Solutions since December 2011, is a "business analyst for Alaska Medicaid." According to his LinkedIn page, Anand is based in Chennai, India.

Conclusion - Illinois does not have an outsourcing prohibition. By contrast, both Democrat and Republican governors in Ohio have prohibited the outsourcing of state government services. In 2010, former Ohio Governor Ted Strickland banned state agencies from purchasing outsourced services; Governor John Kasich continued the policy. Even Ezekiel Emanuel, an architect of the Affordable Care Act has weighed in, “An issue as important as health care is no place to get caught up in the politics of outsourcing.” Stipulating that Illinois MMIS IT work must be done in Michigan and Illinois did not stop the H-1B visa outsourcing of Illinois work to India. Imported H-1B visa contractors can still work under Cognizant on the Illinois project. American workers are displaced by this Democratic governor. If the Governor could prove his actions saves taxpayers money, or provides better outcomes, he could have an argument. But, the Governor can’t argue there are savings when the cost of consultants is higher than the cost of Illinois-based staff. Instead, the administration argues that the outsourcing of Illinois-based jobs at a higher cost... is not even happening. It’s time to open the books on IT contracts in Illinois.

- <http://tv.msnbc.com/2013/03/07/its-official-obama-signs-expanded-violence-against-women-act/>

The VAWA was created during the Clinton Administration to address domestic abuse issues. The authors of the bill were VP Joe Biden and former US Senator Arlene Specter. This law is used in family courts throughout the US via the “Protection from Abuse” orders. In a divorce situation, a spouse can provide the courts false testimony during a divorce action merely expressing they are afraid of the other spouse. The result is the accused party will be forced to leave the home for a period of time. During this time period the accused party can be placed into prison for up to a year for violation of the court order. This situation creates a meltdown of the family system and destroys the financial integrity of the spouses. A consequence here also in both parties will spend a fortune on legal fees to defend and protect their interests in the violence implemented against the accused spouse. An important note here was the statement by Hillary Clinton “It Takes a Village to Raise a Child”. This really means the following: The legal community is expanding its business opportunities within the area of Family Law, using the VAWA act to create turmoil and hence generate revenue. In analysis of this situation the Legal communication generates about 35% of all the revenue earned by the legal community is via Family Law and the courts.

Another consequence here, is this situation destroys the mental health of the children and results in some spouses who are mentally unstable getting involved with school shootings. Analysis of the background many of the school shootings within the US indicate the parties came from a divorce situation and were also under psychotic medication. This along with the social isolation that results from family system meltdown and the governmental violence implemented against the family via the VAWA are primary factors that result in situations like the Sandy Hook School Shooting. The likes of Hillary Clinton, Joe Biden, Arlene Specter at the Federal Level and PA Senator Greenleaf are directly responsible for creating the situation that destroys the mental health of the parties of the family unit via VAWA laws

The Violence Against Women Act of 1994 (VAWA) is a United States federal law (Title IV, sec. 40001-40703 of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994, H.R. 3355) signed as Pub.L. 103-322 by President Bill Clinton on September 13, 1994. The Act provides $1.6 billion toward investigation and prosecution of violent crimes against women, imposes automatic and mandatory restitution on those convicted, and allows civil redress in cases prosecutors chose to leave unprosecuted. The Act also establishes the Office on Violence Against Women within the Department of Justice. Male victims of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking may also be covered.^[1] VAWA was drafted by the office of Senator Joe Biden \(D-DE\), with support from a broad coalition of advocacy groups. The Act passed through Congress with bipartisan support in 1994, clearing the House by a vote of 235–195 and the Senate by a vote of 61–38, although the following year House Republicans attempted to cut the Act's funding.^[2] In the 2000 Supreme Court case United States v. Morrison, a sharply divided Court struck down the VAWA provision allowing women the right to sue their attackers in federal court. By a 5–4 majority, the Court overturned the provision as an intrusion on states' rights.^{[3][4]} VAWA was reauthorized by Congress in 2000, and again in December 2005.^[5] The Act's 2012 renewal was opposed by conservative Republicans, who objected to extending the Act's protections to same-sex couples and to provisions allowing battered illegal aliens to claim temporary visas.^[6] In April 2012, the Senate voted to reauthorize the Violence Against Women Act, and the House subsequently passed its own measure (omitting provisions of the Senate bill that would protect gays, American Indians living in reservations, and illegal aliens who were victims of domestic violence). Reconciliation of the two bills was stymied by procedural measures, leaving the reauthorization in question.^[7] The Senate's 2012 reauthorization of VAWA was not brought up for a vote in the House. While the bill was not reauthorized, its provisions (as enacted in the 2005 reauthorization) remain in effect.^[why?] In February 2013, the Senate passed an extension of the Violence Against Women Act by a vote of 78-22,^[8] and the House of Representatives passed it by a vote of 286-138, with unanimous Democratic support and 87 Republicans voting in the affirmative.^[9] The extension was signed by President Barack Obama

23.15.1 Zionist Protocol Violence Against Families in PA Family Courts

Figure 304 It Takes Zionism to Destroy US Families with VAWA/PFA & Domestic Courts

In Pennsylvania Family Courts one can see the impact of the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) also known as the Protection from Abuse (PFA) court orders. This has resulted in large economic gain for the legal community. Over a third of the entire revenue for the lawyers in the US is derived from the disaster in family courts. Prior US Senator Arlene Specter said “I was the proud author of the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA)”. At the Pennsylvania state level PA Senator Stewart Greenleaf leader of the Pennsylvania Senate Judicial Committee was the author of the VAWA/PFA laws in the state. As example of the impact of these laws can be shown in family courts in the Zionist Controlled Family Courts in Montgomery County Pennsylvania. Right before the law the courts reported about 500 Domestic Violence cases per month. After the law, over 5,000 cases were reported per month.

When one would attend the family court hearings in Norristown PA, One can see entire rows of family court facility on the walls. One interesting point is they all have on their lapels, the flag of Israel!! This is a clear indication that the family court agenda to destroy families in the PA courts domestic relations is overrun by the Zionists.

In addition to Senator Arlene Specter at the Federal Level, the other primary sponsor was Prior US Senator Harris Wofford (PA). Wofford, was appointed by prior PA Governor Robert Casey whose son US Senator Bob Casey (PA) is the Co-Sponsor of the Hate Laws in the US Senate along with Arlene Specter. Wofford worked for the Law firm Schnader Harrison & Segal. One of their primary lines of business is family law for the rich and famous. Many of the Actors and Sports Figures use their services. One example is Mafia Connected Frank Sinatra used the firm's services to handle his divorce case via Albert Momjian. Interesting to note that the law firm got a member to become a US Senator and to then sponsor legislation to enrich their business.

Honorable Mention to Vice President Joe Biden who many times in the Senate expressed his war on US Families at times screaming about the issues with Dead Beat Parents. Also to Hillary Clinton's famous quote "It takes a village to raise a child". What they were all really saying is follow the Protocols of Zion to destroy the families using the corrupt legal system to financially ruin and devastate the family system within the Domestic courts, Enrich the legal system without any oversight. When the families breakdown the kids will be left to their own devices, get into drugs and crime, creating a secondary revenue base within the Criminal System for the legal community.

12/16/14 - Colwyn Borough police officer Stephen Rozniakowski killed Valerie Morrow and shot her daughter in their Glenolden house Monday, according to reports. The cop was arrested in March for stalking and harassing his former fiancée through thousands of texts, calls and emails, police said. A suburban Philadelphia police officer with a history of stalking his exes killed a former girlfriend and injured her teen daughter Monday night, police said. Stephen Rozniakowski, a Colwyn Borough Police Officer, opened fire in the woman's Glenolden home around 9 p.m., killing the homeowner and wounding her teenage daughter with nonlife-threatening injuries, police said. Neighbors identified the dead victim as Valerie Morrow, NBC10 reported. Morrow's husband, a part-time Morton police officer, fired back at Rozniakowski and injured him, authorities told the Delaware County Daily Times. Rozniakowski, 32, went into surgery and is being treated at a nearby hospital under police guard, according to Delaware County District Attorney Jack Whelan. The shooting happened just three hours after Rozniakowski called his boss to resign. He was angry after being served with a protection from abuse order on Morrow's behalf, police said. Rozniakowski had been on administrative leave since March after he was arrested for stalking and harassing his former fiancée through thousands of text messages, phone calls and emails, police said. He was free on $100,000 bail as he faced trial on 75 charges. His police-issued gun was taken from him after his arrest, Colwyn Borough Police Chief Bryan Hills said. The gun Rozniakowski fired Monday night was not police-issued. Rozniakowski will appear before a judge Thursday morning at Montgomery County Common Pleas Court

23.17 The Treason of AIPAC over the Israeli Palestine Occupation Issue

The Obama administration attempted to broker a deal between Israel and Palestine to better treatment of the citizens of Gaza and the West Bank. AIPAC used its influence in the US Government to prevent this initiative. In the Obama administration an act of treason was committed by members of Congress corrupted by the Mafia Controlled American Israel Political Action Committee (AIPAC). The AIPAC in building in Washington DC was built by Gangster Sheldon Adelson who is a dominate party to their agenda. Congressman Eric Cantor is backed by Adelson. In the US Senate one can see the influence of AIPAC with Senator Barbra Boxer.

Congress of the United States
Washington, DC 20515

May 1, 2009

President Barack Obama
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue NW
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Mr. President:

We are writing out of our shared concern over 60 years of conflict in the Middle East and a mutual desire to see peace between Israel and its Arab neighbors. While the obstacles are formidable, we agree with you that every effort should be made to try to realize that peace at the soonest possible time.

Many decades of U.S. engagement have helped lead to peace treaties between Israel and both Egypt and Jordan. We strongly believe that the best way to achieve future success between Israelis and Palestinians will be by adhering to basic principles that have undergirded our policy in this arena. These include the following: 1) acceptance that the parties themselves must negotiate the details of any agreement. While the U.S. has an important role to play, the parties themselves are the ones who will need to live with whatever agreement is reached; 2) understanding of the need to work closely with our democratic ally Israel, who will be taking the greatest risks in any peace agreement. No doubt our two governments will agree on many issues and disagree on others. The proven best way forward is to work closely and privately together both on areas of agreement and especially on areas of disagreement. The United States must be both a trusted mediator and a devoted friend to Israel; 3) continuation of our insistence on an absolute Palestinian commitment to end violence, terror, and incitement and to build the institutions necessary for a viable Palestinian state living side by side in peace with the Jewish state of Israel inside secure borders. Once terrorists are no longer in control of Gaza and as responsible Palestinian forces become more capable of demonstrating the ability to govern and to maintain security, an accord with Israel will be easier to attain; and 4) promotion of far greater involvement and participation by the Arab states both in moving toward normal ties with Israel and in supporting moderate Palestinians. Everyone in the region has a stake in the success of these negotiations. Everyone in the region needs to play a role in helping to ensure that success.

We wish you the best of luck and look forward to working closely with you on these critical issues in the months and years ahead.

Sincerely yours,

Steny H. Hoyer
MAJORITY LEADER

23.17.1 Obama Signs the Enhanced US-Israel Security Bill Into Law S.2165

- <https://www.govtrack.us/congress/bills/112/s2165/text>

23.17.1.1 S.2165 Findings

Congress makes the following findings:

- (1) Since 1948, United States Presidents and both houses of Congress, on a bipartisan basis and supported by the American people, have repeatedly reaffirmed the special bond between the United States and Israel, based on shared values and shared interests.
- (2) The Middle East is undergoing rapid change, bringing with it hope for an expansion of democracy but also great challenges to the national security of the United States and our allies in the region, particularly to our most important ally in the region, Israel.
- (3) The Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran is continuing its decades-long pattern of seeking to foment instability and promote extremism in the Middle East, particularly in this time of dramatic political transition.
- (4) At the same time, the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran continues to enrich uranium in defiance of multiple United Nations Security Council resolutions.
- (5) A nuclear-weapons capable Iran would fundamentally threaten vital United States interests, encourage regional nuclear proliferation, further empower Iran, the world's leading state sponsor of terror, and pose a serious and destabilizing threat to Israel and the region.
- (6) Over the past several years, with the assistance of the Governments of the Islamic Republic of Iran and Syria, Hizbollah and Hamas have increased their stockpile of rockets, with more than 60,000 now ready to be fired at Israel. The Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran continues to add to its arsenal of ballistic missiles and cruise missiles, which threaten Iran's neighbors, Israel, and United States Armed Forces in the region.
- (7) As a result, Israel is facing a fundamentally altered strategic environment.
- (8) Pursuant to chapter 5 of title 1 of the Emergency Wartime Supplemental Appropriations Act, 2003 (Public Law 108–11; 117 Stat. 576), the authority to make available loan guarantees to Israel is currently set to expire on September 30, 2012.

23.17.1.2 S.2165 Statement of Policy

It is the policy of the United States:

- (1) To reaffirm our unwavering commitment to the security of the State of Israel as a Jewish state. As President Barack Obama stated on December 16, 2011, America's commitment and my commitment to Israel and Israel's security is unshakeable. And as President George W. Bush stated before the Israeli Knesset on May 15, 2008, on the 60th anniversary of the founding of the State of Israel, The alliance between our governments is unbreakable, yet the source of our friendship runs deeper than any treaty..
- (2) To help the Government of Israel preserve its qualitative military edge amid rapid and uncertain regional political transformation.
- (3) To veto any one-sided anti-Israel resolutions at the United Nations Security Council.
- (4) To support Israel's inherent right to self-defense.
- (5) To pursue avenues to expand cooperation with the Government of Israel both in defense and across the spectrum of civilian sectors, including high technology, agriculture, medicine, health, pharmaceuticals, and energy.
- (6) To assist the Government of Israel with its ongoing efforts to forge a peaceful, negotiated settlement of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict that results in two states living side-by-side in peace and security, and to encourage Israel's neighbors to recognize Israel's right to exist as a Jewish state.
- (7) To encourage further development of advanced technology programs between the United States and Israel given current trends and instability in the region

23.17.1.3 US Actions to Assist in Defense of Israel and Protect US Interests

It is the sense of Congress that the United States Government should take the following actions to assist in the defense of Israel:

- (1) Seek to enhance the capabilities of the Governments of the United States and Israel to address emerging common threats, increase security cooperation, and expand joint military exercises.
- (2) Provide the Government of Israel such support as may be necessary to increase development and production of joint missile defense systems, particularly such systems that defend against the urgent threat posed to Israel and United States forces in the region.
- (3) Provide the Government of Israel assistance specifically for the production and procurement of the Iron Dome defense system for purposes of intercepting short-range missiles, rockets, and projectiles launched against Israel.
- (4) Provide the Government of Israel defense articles and defense services through such mechanisms as appropriate, to include air refueling tankers, missile defense capabilities, and specialized munitions.
- (5) Provide the Government of Israel additional excess defense articles, as appropriate, in the wake of the withdrawal of United States forces from Iraq.
- (6) Examine ways to strengthen existing and ongoing efforts, including the Gaza Counter Arms Smuggling Initiative, aimed at preventing weapons smuggling into Gaza pursuant to the 2009 agreement following the Israeli withdrawal from Gaza, as well as measures to protect against weapons smuggling and terrorist threats from the Sinai Peninsula.
- (7) Offer the Air Force of Israel additional training and exercise opportunities in the United States to compensate for Israel's limited air space.
- (8) Work to encourage an expanded role for Israel with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), including an enhanced presence at NATO headquarters and exercises.
- (9) Expand already-close intelligence cooperation, including satellite intelligence, with Israel.

23.19 Obama Nexus to George Soros – One Evil Man per Steve Kroft

FROM STEVE KROFT ("60 Minutes") Glen Beck has been developing material to show all the ties that Soros has through the nation and world along with his goals. This article is written by Steve Kroft from "60 Minutes". It begins to piece together the rise of Obama and his behavior in leading the nation along with many members of Congress (in particular the Democrats, such as the election of Pelosi as the minority leader in Congress). If you have wondered where Obama came from and just how he quickly moved from obscurity to President, or why the media is "selective" in what we are told, here is the man who most probably put him there and is responsible. He controls President Obama's every move. Think this is absurd? Invest a few minutes and read this. You won't regret it. Who is Obama? Obama is a puppet and here is the explanation of the man or demon that pulls his strings. It's not by chance that Obama can manipulate the world. I don't think he knows how to tie his shoe laces. After reading this and Obama's reluctance to accept help on the oil spill you wonder if the spill is part of the plan to destroy the US ? "In history, nothing happens by accident. If it happened, you can bet someone planned it."/ Franklin Delano Roosevelt Who Is George Soros? He brought the market down in 2 days. Here is what CBS' Mr. Steve Kroft's research has turned up. It's a bit of a read, and it took 4 months to put it together. "The main obstacle to a stable and just world order is the United States . "George Soros" George Soros is an evil man. He's anti-God, anti-family, anti-American, and anti-good." He killed and robbed his own Jewish people. What we have in Soros, is a multi-billionaire atheist, with skewed moral values, and a sociopath's lack of conscience. He considers himself to be an elitist World class philosopher, despises the American way, and just loves to do social engineering and change cultures. György Schwartz, better known to the world as George Soros, was born August 12, 1930 inHungary . Soros' father, Tivadar, was a fervent practitioner of the Esperanto language invented in 1887, and designed to be the first global language, free of any national identity. The Schwartz's, who were non-practicing Jews, changed the family name to Soros, in order to facilitate assimilation into the Gentile population, as the Nazis spread into Hungary during the 1930s. When Hitler's henchman Adolf Eichmann arrived in Hungary , to oversee the murder of that country's Jews, George Soros ended up with a man whose job was confiscating property from the Jewish population. Soros went with him on his rounds. Soros has repeatedly called 1944 "the best year of his life." 70% of Mr. Soros's fellow Jews in Hungary, nearly a half-million human beings, were annihilated in that year, yet he gives no sign that this put any damper on his elation, either at the time or indeed in retrospect" During an interview with "Sixty Minute's" Steve Kroft, Soros was asked about his "best year." KROFT: My understanding is that you went out with this protector of yours who swore that you were his adopted godson. SOROS: Yes. Yes. KROFT: Went out, in fact, and helped in the confiscation of property from your fellow Jews, friends and neighbors. SOROS: Yes. That's right. Yes. KROFT: I mean, that sounds like an experience that would send lots of people to the psychiatric couch for many, many, years. Was it difficult? SOROS: No, not at all. Not at all, I rather enjoyed it. KROFT: No feelings of guilt? SOROS: No, only feelings of absolute power. In his article, Muravchik describes how Soros has admitted to having carried some rather "potent messianic fantasies with me from childhood, which I felt I had to control, otherwise they might get me in trouble." Be that as it may. After WWII, Soros attended the London School of Economics, where he fell under the thrall of fellow atheist and Hungarian, Karl Popper, one of his professors. Popper was a mentor to Soros until Popper's death in 1994. Two of Popper's most influential teachings concerned "the open society," and Fallibilism. Fallibilism is the philosophical doctrine that all claims of knowledge could, in principle, be mistaken. (Then again, I could be wrong about that.) The "open society" basically refers to a "test and evaluate" approach to social engineering. Regarding "open society" Roy Childs writes, "Since the Second World War, most of the Western democracies have followed Popper's advice about piecemeal social engineering and democratic social reform, and it has gotten them into a grand mess." In 1956 Soros moved to New York City , where he worked on Wall Street, and started amassing his fortune. He specialized in hedge funds and currency speculation. Soros is absolutely ruthless, amoral, and clever in his business dealings, and quickly made his fortune. By the 1980s he was well on his way to becoming the global powerhouse that he is today. In an article Kyle-Anne Shiver wrote for "The American Thinker" she says, "Soros made his first billion in 1992 by shorting the British pound with leveraged billions in financial bets, and became known as the man who broke the Bank of England . He broke it on the backs of hard-working British citizens who immediately saw their homes severely devalued and their life savings cut drastically, almost overnight." In 1994 Soros crowed in "The New Republic ," that "the former Soviet Empire is now called the Soros Empire." The Russia-gate scandal in 1999, which almost collapsed the Russian economy, was labeled by Rep. Jim Leach, then head of the House Banking Committee, to be "one of the greatest social robberies in human history. "The "Soros Empire" indeed. In 1997 Soros almost destroyed the economies of Thailand and Malaysia . At the time, Malaysia 's Prime Minister, Mahathir Mohammad, called Soros "a = villain, and a moron." Thai activist Weng Tojirakarn said, "We regard George Soros as a kind of Dracula. He sucks the blood from the people." The website Greek National Pride reports, "Soros was part of the full court press that dismantled Yugoslavia and caused trouble in Georgia , Ukraine and Myanmar [Burma] Calling himself a philanthropist, Soros' role is to tighten the ideological stranglehold of globalization and the New World Order while promoting his own financial gain. He is without conscience; a capitalist who functions with absolute amorality." France has upheld an earlier conviction against Soros, for felony insider trading. Soros was fined 2.9 million dollars. Recently, his native Hungary fined Soros 2.2 million dollars for "illegal market manipulation." Elizabeth Crum writes that the Hungarian economy has been in a state of transition as the country seeks to become more financially stable and westernized. Soros deliberately driving down the share price of its largest bank put Hungary 's economy into a wicked tailspin, one from which it is still trying to recover. My point here is that Soros is a planetary parasite. His grasp, greed, and gluttony have a global reach. But what about America ? Soros told Australia 's national newspaper "The Australian." " America , as the centre of the globalised financial markets, was sucking up the savings of the world. This is now over. The game is out," he said, adding that the time has come for "a very serious adjustment" in American's consumption habits. He implied that he was the one with the power to bring this about." Soros: "World financial crisis was "stimulating" and "in a way, the culmination of my life's work." Obama has recently promised 10 billion of our tax dollars to Brazil , in order to give them a leg-up in expanding their offshore oil fields. Obama's largesse towards Brazil came shortly after his political financial backer, George Soros, invested heavily in Brazilian oil (Petrobras).Tait Trussel writes, "The Petrobras loan may be a windfall for Soros and Brazil , but it is a bad deal for the U. S. The American Petroleum Institute estimates that oil exploration in the U S could create 160,000 new, well-paying jobs, as well as $1.7 trillion in revenues to federal, state, and local governments, all while fostering greater energy security and independence." A blog you might want to keep an eye on is SorosWatch. com. Their mission: "This blog is dedicated to all who have suffered due to the ruthless financial pursuits of George Soros. Your stories are many and varied, but the theme is the same: the destructive power of greed without conscience. We pledge to tirelessly watch Soros wherever he goes and to print the truth in the hope that he will one day be made to stop preying upon the world's poor, that justice will be served." Back to America . Soros has been actively working to destroy America from the inside out for some years now. People have been warning us. Two years ago, news sources reported that "Soros [is] an extremist who wants open borders, a one-world foreign policy, legalized drugs, euthanasia, and on and on. This is off-the-chart dangerous." In 1997 Rachel Ehrenfeld wrote, "Soros uses his philanthropy to change or more accurately deconstruct the moral values and attitudes of the Western world, and particularly of the American people. His "open society" is not about freedom; it is about license. His vision rejects the notion of ordered liberty, in favor of a PROGRESSIVE ideology of rights and entitlements." Perhaps the most important of these "whistle blowers" are David Horowitz and Richard Poe. Their book "The Shadow Party" outlines in detail how Soros hijacked the Democratic Party, and now owns it lock, stock, and barrel. Soros has been packing the Democratic Party with radicals, and ousting moderate Democrats for years. The Shadow Party became the Shadow

Government, which recently became the Obama Administration. Discover The Networks. org (another good source) writes, "By his [Soros'] own admission, he helped engineer coups in Slovakia , Croatia , Georgia , and Yugoslavia . When Soros targets a country for "regime change," he begins by creating a shadow government, a fully formed government-in-exile, ready to assume power when the opportunity arises. The Shadow Party he has built in America greatly resembles those he has created in other countries prior to instigating a coup." November 2008 edition of the German magazine "Der Spiegel," in which Soros gives his opinion on what the next POTUS (President of the U. S.) should do after taking office. "I think we need a large stimulus package." Soros thought that around 600 billion would be about right. Soros also said that "I think Obama presents us a great opportunity to finally deal with global warming and energy dependence. The U. S. needs a cap and trade system with auctioning of licenses for emissions rights." Although Soros doesn't (yet) own the Republican Party, like he does the Democrats, make no mistake, his tentacles are spread throughout the Republican Party as well. Soros is a partner in the Carlyle Group where he has invested more than 100 million dollars. According to an article by "The Baltimore Chronicle's" Alice Cherbonnier, the Carlyle Group is run by "a veritable who's who of former Republican leaders," from CIA man Frank Carlucci, to CIA head and ex-President George Bush, Sr. In late 2006, Soros bought about 2 million shares of Halliburton, Dick Cheney's old stomping grounds. When the Democrats and Republicans held their conventions in 2000, Soros held Shadow Party conventions in the same cities, at the same time. In 2008, Soros donated $5,000,000,000 (that's Five Billion) to the Democratic National Committee, DNC, to insure Obama's win and wins for many other Alinsky trained Radical Rules Anti-American Socialist. George has been contributing a $ billion plus to the DNC since Clinton came on the scene. Soros has dirtied both sides of the aisle, trust me. And if that weren't bad enough, he has long held connections with the CIA. And I mustn't forget to mention Soros' involvement with the MSM (Main Stream Media), the entertainment industry (e. g. he owns 2.6 million shares of Time Warner), and the various political advertising organizations he funnels millions to. In short, George Soros controls or influences most of the MSM. Little wonder they ignore the TEA PARTY, Soro's NEMESIS. As Matthew Vadum writes, "The liberal billionaire-turned-philanthropist has been buying up media properties for years in order to drive home his message to the American public that they are too materialistic, too wasteful, too selfish, and too stupid to decide for themselves how to run their own lives." Richard Poe writes, "Soros' private philanthropy, totaling nearly $5 billion, continues undermining America 's traditional Western values. His giving has provided funding of abortion rights, atheism, drug legalization, sex education, euthanasia, feminism, gun control, globalization, mass immigration, gay marriage and other radical experiments in social engineering." Some of the many NGOs (Non-Government Organizations) that Soros funds with his billions are: MoveOn. org, the Apollo Alliance , Media Matters for America , the Tides Foundation, the ACLU, ACORN, PDIA (Project on Death In America), La Raza, and many more. For a more complete list, with brief descriptions of the NGOs, go to DiscoverTheNetworks. org. Poe continues, "Through his global web of Open Society Institutes and Open Society Foundations, Soros has spent 25 years recruiting, training, indoctrinating and installing a network of loyal operatives in 50 countries, placing them in positions of influence and power in media, government, finance and academia." Without Soros' money, would the Saul Alinsky's Chicago machine still be rolling? Would SEIU, ACORN, and La Raza still be pursuing their nefarious activities? Would Big Money and lobbyists still be corrupting government? Would our college campuses still be retirement homes for 1960s radicals? America stands at the brink of an abyss, and that fact is directly attributable to Soros. Soros has vigorously, cleverly, and insidiously planned the ruination of America and his puppet, Barack Obama is leading the way. The words of Patrick Henry are apropos: "Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, almighty God! I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty, or give me death!"

A boy named Stanley is traumatized and abandoned. In 1926, eight year old Stanley Dunham discovers his mother's body after she has committed suicide. Stanley 's father then abandons the traumatized boy, leaving Stanley in the care of his maternal grandparents in El Dorado ,KS. Stanley is psychologically devastated by suicide & abandonment! Stanley Dunham becomes a troubled teen.The emotionally damaged boy grows into a rebellious teenager. The hurt little boy grows into an angry young man. Stanley punches his High School principal and becomes a drifter,hopping rail cars to Chicago , then California , then back again. At age 20, he marries Madelyn Payne on the night of her Senior Prom. Just before leaving to fight in World War II in 1942, Stanley impregnates Madelyn. A girl is born on November 29, 1942. Because Stanley wanted a son, he names the girl after himself -Stanley Dunham. (Middle name of Ann. Stanley Ann Dunham endures childhood trauma. After the war, the Dunham's bounce around the country for 15 years moving to California , back to Kansas , to Seattle , WA , to Mercer Island ,WA, and finally to Hawaii . Stanley is teased about her boyish name at every new school she attends. The instability of constantly moving, the teasing/bullying over her strange name, and the constant reminder that her father wanted a boy - will combine to turn young Stanley Ann into a traumatized psycho like her father. Stanley Ann Dunham becomes a troubled teen. At 17, Stanley Ann now goes simply by "Ann." By this time, she has already embraced Marxism (as had her father), is posing naked for a Communist named Frank Marshall Davis, bashing America , and having sexual relations with older black men. Feminist Stanley Ann Dunham Frank Marshall Davis (right) had a passion for photography and pornography. Ann is impregnated by one of two Black Communists. About 1960, Still a 17 year old college freshman, Ann becomes pregnant. She claims that a Kenyan Marxist named Barack Obama (who she met in a Russian language class) is the father. Obama, apparently unbeknownst to Dunham at the time, has his own wife and children back in Kenya. Ann was having sexual relations with another black man during this time - Frank Marshall Davis (more on him later). Obama looks nothing like his Kenyan father, but resembles Frank Marshall Davis very much. Less than four years into the unlikely marriage, Ann divorces the Kenyan bigamist. Barack Sr. returns to Africa in 1964. Barack Obama Jr. is abandoned by his Kenyan father. Little "Barry" experiences his first abandonment. Barry will briefly see his alleged father again in 1968, when he is about eight years old, only to have to say goodbye to him. Barack Sr. will later die in a driving accident in 1982 Little Barry's fragile psyche was doomed from the start. The reunion with the father figure he longed for was very brief. In 1965, Ann marries an Indonesian man, Lolo Soetero. She, Lolo, and little Barry settle in Indonesia . (Ann and Lolo will divorce in 1980) Stanley Ann has a baby girl with her new husband. Already a full-fledged feminist Marxist, Ann Soetero hires 'Evie,' a transvestite, to care for young Barry. In 2012, it was revealed that Nanny Evie is now a broke homosexual prostitute. Old lady/man Evie holds up a photo of his/her flaming younger self. Desperate and destitute, old Evie survives by prostitution. Obama won't help. The only Black in an Indonesian school, Barry is outcast and bullied as "the boy with big ears." Little Barry Soetero doesn't fit in. Little Barry is again traumatized by the pain of rejection. After having a daughter with Lolo, psycho Ann ships 10 year old Barry off to Hawaii to be raised by his grandfather. Barry's little psyche is sent from the frying pan into the fire. Grandpa Dunham is friends with the Communist bi-sexual Frank Marshall Davis. Davis will become a mentor to young Barry. It was Davis, an avid photographer, who took the nude photographs of young Ann Dunham. Davis tells of his sexual deviance in a book entitled "Sex Rebel Black", written under the pen name of Bob Green. In lurid detail, he describes 3-way sex sessions between himself, his wife, and a young girl named "Ann." Davis wrote the filthy "Sex Rebel Black" in 1968. The dirty old Communist will finish corrupting little Barry. Teenage Barry is lazy student and a heavy drug user. By the end of high school, generations of family dysfunction and painful rejection will have already shaped the man that Obama will become. By his own adult admission, Obama wastes his High School years as a heavy pot smoker and a mediocre student. A self described "lazy student", Obama has a passion for smoking marijuana. (later on cocaine) After high school, Obama is a self-described mediocre college student at Occidental College in California . In the 1980's, Young Obama is plugged into the Globalist Communist Presidential Pipeline. At some point during the 1980's, Frank Marshall Davis, and others above him, plug "Barack Obama Jr." into the subversive network of Professor William Ayers. Ayers and his wife, Bernadine Dohrn, are former FBI fugitives and founders of the Communist / terrorist Weather Underground. Obama is to be decorated with Ivy League degrees and groomed to be the first Black President. Obama began his first political campaign in the Chicago living room of Ayers and Dohrn. Ageing hippie communists Ayers and Dohrn are still very active in politics today. The radical Marxist Reverend Jeremiah Wright specializes in finding women to marry the professional men who frequent his church. The angry Michelle and Obama are believed to have been matched up by the Reverend. There is no record of any other women in Obama's life prior to Michele. Few men would marry an angry woman. So Reverend Wright gave her to Obama. Obama and the America-hating Reverend go 'way back. Reverend Wright with Bill Ayers

23.22.1 CONCLUSION / DIAGNOSIS

Barack Obama is the product of generations of severe psychological dysfunction. The neurotic manifestations rooted in both sides of his family tree include - suicide, abandonment of children, multiple relocations, polygamy, rejection, bullying, drug & alcohol abuse, and communist subversion. To cope with the pain and low self esteem of childhood trauma, the ego creates a false Superman. We clearly see the narcissistic personality disorder manifested in the anti social behavior of Grandpa Dunham (naming a daughter after himself, joining the Communist Party), Stanley Ann Dunham (posing for pornographic photos, having sex with older black men, dumping her child), Barack Sr. (secretly keeping two families at the same time), Nanny Evie (dressing up as a woman, engaging in homosexual prostitution), Frank Marshall Davis (joining the Communist Party, boasting of sexual perversion). This is why Obama himself is so arrogant, so conceited, so callous, so sensitive to criticism, so dishonest, so immoral, so vindictive, so cold, so cruel, and so dangerous. Like the Frankenstein monster of Mary Shelley's classic novel, Obama is seething with rage at the society which he blames for the pain of his dysfunctional childhood. Apart altogether from his flawed Marxist ideology and his manifest incompetence, OBAMA IS RUTHLESS.... the perfect man to lead a nation of dumbed-down, degenerate sheep, many of whom are themselves narcissistic psychopaths. That is why Obama's invisible globalist masters chose him. And why 47% of the voters, elected him.

23.23 Obama Signs into Law Hate Crime Legislation

- <http://www.wnd.com/2009/10/114305/>

A “hate crimes” bill opponents claim will be used to crack down on Christian speech, even the reading of the Bible, was signed into law today by President Obama. The Senate approved the Matthew Shepard and James Byrd Jr. Hate Crimes Prevention Act by a vote of 68-29 on Oct. 22 after Democrats strategically attached it to a “must-pass” $680 billion defense appropriations plan. Most Republicans, although normally strong supporters of the U.S. military, opposed the bill because it hands out federal money to states and local governments in pursuit of “preventing” hate crimes. The bill creates federal protections and privileges for homosexuals and other alternative lifestyles but denies those protections to other groups of citizens. Obama signed the 2010 National Defense Authorization Act at a White House ceremony today. Prior to signing the act into law, Obama spoke briefly of the hate-crimes bill. “After more than a decade, we’ve passed inclusive hate-crimes legislation to help protect our citizens from violence based on what they look like, who they love, how they pray or who they are,” he said. “I promised Judy Shepard when she saw me in the Oval Office that this day would come, and I’m glad that she and her husband, Dennis, could join us for this event. I’m also honored to have the family of the late

Sen. Ted Kennedy who fought so hard for this legislation. I just want you all to know how proud we are of the work that Ted did to help make this day possible.” American Family Association President Tim Wildmon warned that the new law “creates a kind of caste system in law enforcement, where the perverse thing is that people who engage in nonnormative sexual behavior will have more legal protection than heterosexuals. This kind of inequality before the law is simply un-American.” Wildmon said the legislation creates possible situations where pastors may be arrested if their sermons on sexuality can be linked in even the remotest way to acts of violence. “It threatens free speech and freedom of religion and is totally unacceptable,” he said. As WND reported, U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder admitted a homosexual activist who is attacked following a Christian minister’s sermon about homosexuality would be protected by the proposed federal law, but a minister attacked by a homosexual wouldn’t be. The Alliance Defense Fund blasted the “hate-crimes” bill, calling it “another nail in the coffin of the First Amendment.” “All violent crimes are hate crimes, and all crime victims deserve equal justice,” ADF Senior Legal Counsel Erik Stanley said in a statement. “This law is a grave threat to the First Amendment because it provides special penalties based on what people think, feel or believe. ADF will be on the front line to defend those whose free speech or free exercise of religion rights are violated by this unconstitutional law and to ultimately overturn this attack on freedom.” Opponents point to cases in Canada and Sweden, where Christians have faced criminal prosecution for preaching that homosexual behavior is a sin. “ADF has clearly seen the evidence of where ‘hate crimes’ legislation leads when it has been tried around the world: It paves the way for the criminalization of speech that is not deemed ‘politically correct,’” Stanley explained. “‘Hate crimes’ laws fly in the face of the underlying purpose of the First Amendment, which was designed specifically to protect unpopular speech.” Stanley said such crimes are already punishable under existing federal, state and local laws. “Bills of this sort are designed to forward a political agenda and silence critics, not combat actual crime,” he said. “The bottom line is that we do not need a law that creates second-class victims in America and that gives the government the opportunity to ignore the First Amendment.” Brad Dacus, president of Pacific Justice Institute, testified before Congress against the hate-crimes bill in 2007. “It is fundamentally unjust for the government to treat some crime victims more favorably than others, just because they are homosexual or transsexual,” Dacus said. “This bill is an unnecessary federal intrusion into state law-enforcement authority, and it is an unwise step toward silencing religious and moral viewpoints.” He said the adoption of hate-crimes legislation has led to widespread suppression of speech deemed politically incorrect. The Pacific Justice Institute noted that in California, hate-crimes laws are commonly invoked as a basis for further laws pushing acceptance of homosexuality in public schools and the workplace. The group also warned that use of “hate speech” terminology is also now being employed by minority religious groups in America to encourage suppression of free speech, as a prominent Hindu group called on Congress and major Internet service providers to shut down websites critical of Hinduism, including websites of Christian mission organizations. The Pacific Justice Institute pledged to come to defend anyone who is prosecuted under the new hate-crimes law because of their religious expression. Liberty Counsel litigation counsel Matt Krause told WND, “It’s a very sad day for America and for religious liberties in general.” He said the law will not deter crime or help the law-enforcement system. “The only thing it will do is silence and scare Christians and religious organizations,” Krause said. “It will penalize thoughts and actions, and it will not stop crime. It should be called the ‘thought-crimes’ bill.” He continued, “We encourage pastors and church leaders to keep doing what they’re doing and preach the gospel. If they run into any barriers, they can contact us because we are ready and willing to defend them in any way we need to.” The White House announced it will host a reception this evening to commemorate the enactment of the hate-crimes legislation. Obama's remarks will be aired live on the White House website

23.24 Obama to Fast Track the Trans Pacific Partnership Free Trade Deal

In December 2014 President Obama said he will team up with the GOP to Fast Track the Free Trade deal known as the Trans Pacific Partnership.

The Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) is a proposed regional regulatory and investment treaty. As of 2014, twelve countries throughout the Asia Pacific region have participated in negotiations on the TPP: Australia, Brunei, Canada, Chile, Japan, Malaysia, Mexico, New Zealand, Peru, Singapore, the United States, and Vietnam. The TPP would expand the NAFTA Free Trade Agreement. The NAFTA agreement resulted in massive US Trade deficits, job losses, downward pressures on US wages, unprecedented levels of inequality and flooded US markets with agricultural imports.

Dec 3, 2014 Washington Post – President Obama indicated he is willing to defy fellow Democrats to pursue a partnership with the GOP to fast track the 12 Nation Trade Deal in the Asian Pacific known as the Trans Pacific Trade Partnership.

Note: NAFTA cost US workers almost 700,000 Jobs. Likewise the US Korea free trade agreement has caused the trade deficit with South Korea to increase by over 80% and the loss of an additional 70,000 US Jobs. Since China's admission to the World Trade Organization, the US-China Trade debt increased from $24 Billion to $343 Billion. The Trans Pacific Partnership will be NAFTA on steroids, further eroding the US trade deficit and increasing the number of US jobs losses. The Free Trade deals are not about trade, They are really about increasing Wall Streets financial profits at the expense of American workers.

Figure 316 Obama Continues Disasterous Free Trade Deals of Reagan, Bush, Clinton Era

The legacy of the Reagan-Bush Economics has dramatically changed the situation for Middle Class America. This includes Free Trade Agreements rather than Fair Trade. The result is massive outsourcing, immigration and job losses. In the Reagan era of the 1982 Tax Reform act allowed Private Equity (PE) to utilize mergers as a means to take over entire industry segments. They relaxed the regulations on the Banking Industry that subsequently resulted in the Mortgage Securities, Foreclosures and massive banking bailouts. Reagan began the deficit spending. During the terms of Bush Jr. The National Debt Doubled. As a matter of fact during Bush's terms 2000 to 2008, the amount of debt in the United States doubled from the amount of the entire debt of the nation that existed for over the prior two years that the nation existed.

- <http://www.veteranstoday.com/2015/01/13/the-big-squeeze-and-the-destruction-of-the-middle-class/>

Veterans Today Author Preston James, Ph.D on January 13, 2015 The Middle Class is being squeezed economically by rising unemployment, declining wages and rising prices -- this is producing a remarkable decline in purchasing power A Pall of doom has swept over much of Middle Class America. The job market is dismal in most sectors and those who lose their jobs often find new ones with much less income. New college grads are finding that there are fewer and fewer good job opportunities. Some economists claim that approximately 30% or more are back home living with their parents, working minimum wage jobs and carrying huge college loans that could easily keep them debt-slaves to the banks for the rest of their working lives. The actual unemployment rate is 23-24% and the USG is covering it up. The USG claims the unemployment rate is 5-6% tops. These figures are based on consciously manipulated input categories. The actual real unemployment rate in America is between 23 and 24% depending on how you calculate it. Some Americans are starting to fear that America is sliding back into the Great Depression of the 1930s, others that have lost their jobs and cannot find any new work and are living on public assistance and food stamps believe we are already there. And millions of Americans are now homeless or very close to it. there are numerous "Tent Cities" spouting up across America for the homeless lucky enough to have been able to acquire a tent. Consumer prices keep steadily rising due to the ever decreasing value of the US dollar. The only respite has been the recent massive drop in oil which has lower gasoline prices, but this is likely just a temporary aberration of a secret trade war between the USA and the Russian Federation. The CIA's ISIS/ISIL/Daish has been stealing oil and selling it for $20 a barrel to depress the oil market and stress the Russian Federation. Hidden costs have crept into almost every budget with new and quite expensive electronic devices considered by many to now be basic necessities. The costs of these devices and their use must be paid for on an ongoing monthly basis and it is not uncommon for these items to total up to $200 a month or more (after tax dollars).

23.24.3.1 Illegal Immigration Impact

One would think that the so-called phony War on Terror would have immediately resulted in a 100% lock-down of every single US border, especially the southern border with Mexico which is the location of at least three major drug cartels that ship massive quantities of illegal drugs into America. But no, because the CIA is in partnership with these cartels and gets a major piece of the profits; they protect the supply lines into America, which means that they make sure no southern border is policed. What we know for sure is that illegal immigration seriously stresses many state budgets of the states along the border and also seriously stresses their hospital and welfare system, many close to the breaking point and bankruptcy. Some hospitals have closed because of this. This mass of unrestricted illegal immigration has allowed thousands of Mexican felons and gang members who are cartel members into America, including some trained by American special forces at Fort Bragg. But the large numbers of illegal immigrants from Mexico and central and South America that have migrated into America have also driven the labor costs way down, harming the ability of Americans to obtain employment with a wage high enough for basic subsistence.

Note: the economy in Mexico has been failing for the same reasons it has been failing in America — it has been hijacked by the Organized Crime Cabal (OCC), which is asset-stripping it of resources and wealth and running drug cartels which compete and fight with each other; the continual infighting keeps them in check, while the OCC skims large profits, and the large Wall Street banks and OCC businesses launder the money.

23.24.3.2 The On Going Recession of 2007

On top of all this, the recession going back to 2007 just never seems to end, despite all the absurd false claims by the controlled mass media (CMMM) that the economy has turned around. Realists know otherwise and understand why things will never get any better until the basic underlying problems are resolved. And what is the serious underlying core problem that is responsible for this current recession that seems to never end? It is the illegal, unconstitutional, traitorous, seditious free trade treaties — NAFTA, CAFTA, GATT, WTO and now the TPTT.

23.24.3.3 Staginating Economy and High Inflation

As in the Nixon era of Wage and Price freezes, this part of the economic cycle seems to be just around the corner. Here the US had a stagnated economy, high inflation and the Federal Banks raising interest rates. This is the upcoming threat to the Middle Class economy. The Federal Reserve Bankers are intentionally malicious in the management of the American monetary production and distribution by the private Rothschild franchisee the Federal Reserve System, which just keeps printing and issuing more and more watered down US petro dollars. We have had seemingly endless quantitative easings (QEs). Before that we had two major multi-trillion USD bank bailouts which were clearly illegal and unconstitutional. We later learned most of this money went to prop up the private Wall Street banks through their foreign private bank partners. As the Federal Reserve System just keeps printing and issuing more and more USD in unbelievably massive amounts, the world becomes flooded with US Petro dollars. Soon the World is going to reject the use of the USD and start dumping them. Already China, awash with dollars because of the free trade agreements, has been buying up large American corporations and all kinds of real estate and assets in America at fire-sale prices.

23.24.3.4 Destruction of the Middle Class Net Worth

The average American has lost 60% of their net worth since 1995 and lost approximately 40% since 2007. Much of the accrued net worth of many years of savings, investment in one's home is gradually evaporating. Many retirement plans have been reduced, some eliminated.

23.24.3.5 Free Trade Agreements result in US Trade Deficits. $318 Billion in 2014 alone.

When the US economy started failing because so much taxpayer money was being spent on the various illegal, unconstitutional, unprovoked, undeclared wars, the USG was able to implement free trade as a stopgap effort to artificially raise the purchasing power of the American consumer. But this cannot go on for ever, as far too many US dollars are now in circulation and held in China because of this illegal, unconstitutional, treasonous free trade policy. The main underlying problem responsible for this unending recession is the illegal, unconstitutional free trade agreements which include NAFTA CAFTA, GATT, WTO and now the secret Trans Pacific Trade Treaty (TPTT). Ross Perot warned about what NAFTA and free trade agreements in general would do when he ran for President: create a big sucking sound and pull major industries, manufacturing and jobs out of America. Initially, much of US manufacturing moved to Mexico. Now, it has moved to China.

23.24.3.6 US Government (USG) support of Free Trade Agreement is Traitorous, Seditious Acts

No elected politician or USG official who obeyed their oath to the US Constitution would ever support such free trade agreements which are so notably destructive to the American economy. These free trade agreements have been slowly but surely sucking the jobs and life right out of middle-class America. To allow these treaties to continue intact is criminally insane and negligent beyond imagination. It is truly the setting up of the United States of America to commit slow motion economic suicide, and it is just hitting bottom right now in the middle class. Obviously, any reasonable person can easily conclude that America is under siege by some major enemy who has hijacked the US Congress and the whole political system. Certainly this must be the case, since it was Congress and poor administrative leadership run by compromised, corrupt Presidents that allowed NAFTA and the other criminal free trade agreements to strip America of most of its industrial manufacturing jobs. How could Americans have been so stupid to allow these free trade deals to be passed? Sadly the labor unions were in favor of this, conned by their compromised leaders that promised free trade would provide lots of new jobs. This of course was a big lie that was repeatedly published and broadcast by the controlled major mass media (CMMM) and sadly many Americans fell for this con job and are now paying for it in spades.

23.24.3.7 How Did the Corrupt Officials Get into Office?

Well as many know, most federal elections are manipulated electronically and politicians who have already been initiated into a very corrupt, pedophile based system have been pre-selected to compete. These individuals have already been completely vetted and indoctrinated in the Organized Crime Cabal (OCC) to function as its cutouts and operatives. And because many of these elected Politicians and USG are narcissistic (self-centered and strong willed) some tend to stray out of their allowed parameters. But they can be quickly brought back into compliance with the OCC's top kingpin's wishes by the use of various tools of blackmail and human compromise.

23.24.3.8 Private Equity (PE) Groups Plan Consolidation of American Business in Virtual Cartels

One issue that is often overlooked which is notably destructive to the middle class is the business model of the private equity groups. The is the very crafty method by which the large corporations consolidate and “roll-up” every industry sector which sells products or services to the American consumer. How this “roll-up” of businesses is implemented is by identification of an industrial or consumer sector which may have 25-30 independent businesses. Once identified as a vital sector, the private equity groups will acquire a major player within that sector. Once acquired, the PE group will use that company and their PE assets, which seem unlimited, to acquire other companies with that business sector, thus constituting the “roll up”. Once the target company has achieved critical mass by acquiring or rolling up a certain percentage of these businesses, they will begin predatory practices to either drive the competitors out of business and into bankruptcy, or to drive the price down for a more affordable acquisition price. What the readers will notice is that once an industry sector has been successfully “rolled up” it will no longer have any robust competition. Thus, a typical roll-up reduces 25-30 competitors to perhaps 5-7 remaining competitors which technically function as a big cartel or monopoly, despite the ability of their corporate lawyers to skirt the law and avoid anti-trust litigation that can stick. There are occasional situations where USG anti-trust actions are threatened and even started by the US Department of Justice, such as what was done with Microsoft. It's not that the USG gives a damn about anti-trust, but this happens when it is attempting to blackmail a large corporation like Microsoft to allow the NSA to infiltrate it and use it for illegal spying on the public.

PE groups always leave between 5-7 competitors in every sectors because it helps them avoid the charge of creating a monopoly. However as the ADM case showed in secret undercover FBI recordings of their Board Meetings, the few top competitors in their business conspired to raise prices in lockstep and shared a common credo, “our competitor is our friend, the consumer is our enemy”. This practice is detrimental to the middle class, because every time the PE-owned firm acquires a competitor, they downsize, resulting in massive layoffs for economy of scale of course, and these jobs are gone forever. The other detrimental effect of these large PEs roll-ups has on the middle class is that this activity has a chilling effect upon the entrepreneurs, the self-employed, and even bank lending. As these PE-owned businesses grow, they continually raise the bar for small businesses to compete. This is accomplished in multiple ways. One way is if a small business is to be a supplier to the PE-owned business, the PE-owned business will impose impossible standards upon the small entrepreneur so strict that the standards cannot be complied with. The net result is that the small business that was a supplier loses a major customer which cannot be replaced. Once that business is lost, layoffs within the small business follow; this is how the layoffs propagate throughout the economy. The other manner in which small business is harmed is the PE-owned business will have its own supply, chain which is typically owned by the same PE firm that has done the roll up with that industry sector. Overnight the long term supplier is out, and the new supply chain is in place. There is no way for the small business to replace these lost customers.

The PE Virtual Cartel Model is a real and direct national security threat to the American economy, American jobs, family income and the American way of life as well as to our Republic.

The American people need to realize that the private equity (PE) model is a serious danger to the economic security of the entire American Nation. The end goal of private equity companies is to consolidate every aspect of American commerce, and give the consumer fewer choices, while achieving “economies of scale” resulting in massive unemployment and the destruction of multitudes of small business that have been successful in the past, but find themselves facing bankruptcy and destruction. This kind of massive PE induced corporate roll-outs and resulting consolidation of American industry and jobs, makes it quite easy for the top corporate controllers who run the PEs to run America, and to acquire more and more profit, and to buy off and bribe more politicians and USG officials. The top corporate controllers are themselves controlled by the Organized Crime Syndicate aka Cabal (OCC). Take the PE Cerberus Capital Management (of which George Soros is a principal) which has acquired a number of US gun manufacturers. Apparently, it is now moving to acquire grocery store chains. Or consider all the destruction that Walmart has done to small family businesses, many existing for generations, using CIA enterprise drug money.

23.24.3.9 Actually, PEs are RICO crime begging for prosecution.

Regardless of what these PE entities and associates claim, an honest US Department of Justice could easily and successfully prosecute them for constructive anti-trust and RICO for conspiring to fix prices and control the market. Right now, because the US Department of Justice is so notably corrupt, the only entity left which has constitutional authority to do this is the Military High Command.

23.24.3.10 Who is actually behind most of the PE “roll-ups”?

Astoundingly, it is a group of 147 major international corporations that have interlocked Boards of Directors. Of this 147, there is a group of the top 50 that are even more powerful. Together these interlocked international corporations constitute a secret shadow government (SSG) control structure and for the most part the SSG is controlled by the top kingpins of the Organized Crime Cabal (OCC). This roll-out consolidation process has actually been planned and deployed by the Rothschild private Banksters. It is their view that it is much easier to control the world’s various populaces, and especially the American people, when all their businesses are rolled-up and consolidated. Traditionally small business has been the backbone of the American economy since this country was founded as a Republic. Destruction of small business by this means seems innocuous, but has had devastating effect upon the economy and yields massive unemployment on once secure and promising jobs for highly skilled Americans.

- <http://www.forbes.com/sites/bruceupbin/2011/10/22/the-147-companies-that-control-everything/>

23.24.3.11 What must be done to save America?

What must be done to save America from the corruption of its elected politicians and its officials that have been working hard to create their own retirement fortunes while allowing the asset stripping and destruction of America's economy and very existence? The first thing is that all free trade agreements must be immediately dropped and stopped and fully recognized as illegal and unconstitutional. Fair trade agreements must be put in place with reasonable tariffs that create actual parity and encourage American manufacturers to come back to America and new ones to emerge inside America. First, we have to start indicting, arresting and prosecuting these OCC kingpins and their cutouts — that is arrest these filth for their crimes against We The People and the asset stripping of America and their work to destroy America the Republic. Second, the corrupt elected politicians and USG officials who are owned or controlled by the OCC are clearly in violation of numerous major US and state felonies including RICO, espionage against the USA, pedophilia, bribery laws for payments to foreign offshore numbered account called “Set Aside Allocations”, misprision of felonies and much more. Therefore, the key is to get them indicted, arrested, tried and convicted for these Capital crimes punishable by death. Technically speaking, the US Military High Command now has the constitutional authority to act because the US Department of Justice has been shown to be completely corrupt, with a completely owned and compromised Attorney General Eric Holder who is leaving the office and has been hired by JP Morgan for an annual $77 million payoff salary. Because of the involvement of foreign controlled Israeli-American “Israeli-first” dual citizen traitors inside America who did 9/11/01 and run the OCC, and who have committed treason, the US Military High Command now has the authority to arrest them, try them, convict them and hang them on a military gallows like they did to the Nazi war criminals, who were convicted and sentenced to death at Nuremberg.

Nixon F252 Cabinet ...

The Cabinet Committee on Voluntary Action was formed by President Richard M. Nixon's 1969 Executive Order 11470, to foster cooperation among Government departments and agencies on programs related to voluntary action, and to promote reliance on and recognition of volunteer activities. Additionally, the Committee was charged with being responsible for developing new Federal initiatives in the voluntary action area. The work of the Committee led to the creation of the National Center for Voluntary Action in 1969, and to the establishment of an Office of Voluntary Action within the new ACTION agency in 1971.

The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, George W. Romney, served as Chairman of the Cabinet Committee. In naming him Chairman, President Nixon cited his "impressive successes in stimulating voluntary action during his terms as Governor of Michigan." The other members of the Committee were the Secretaries of Commerce; Labor; Agriculture; Health, Education, and Welfare; the Attorney General; and the Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity. At the same time that the Cabinet Committee was formed, the President named Max M. Fisher to serve as his Special Consultant on Voluntary Action, and asked him to work with Secretary Romney's Committee in helping to foster voluntary action.

24.4 Distasteful Things About Romney Trip to Israel in July 2012

- <http://readersupportednews.org/opinion2/277-75/12700-top-10-most-distasteful-things-about-romney-trip-to-israel>

The trip of Republican presidential hopeful Mitt Romney to Israel is in bad taste for lots of reasons.

1. He is holding a fundraiser at the King David Hotel in Jerusalem. It is distasteful for an American political candidate to hold a high profile fundraiser abroad, implying a commitment to a foreign country as a means of reaching out to American interest groups (in Romney's case, Christian Zionists among the evangelicals and the minority of American Jews who would be willing to vote Republican).
2. It is distasteful that Romney has broken his pledge of transparency and declared the fundraiser off limits to the US press.
3. It is distasteful that Romney won't explain why he has abruptly gone back on his word, and closed the Jerusalem event to the press.
4. There is a convention in US politics that you don't criticize the sitting president, even if you are an opposition politician, while on foreign soil. Romney clearly intends to slam President Obama while in Israel.
5. It is distasteful that Romney is clearly holding the event in some large part to please casino mogul Sheldon Adelson, who first bankrolled Newt Gingrich and now is talking about giving $100 million to elect Romney. Adelson is a huge supporter of far rightwing Likud Party Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu, and published a free newspaper in Israel to support all things Bibi all the time. Adelson is under investigation for allegedly bribing Chinese officials in Macau in reference to his casino empire there. Since Adelson is potentially an agent of Chinese influence and is a partisan of one of Israel's most rightwing parties, Romney's indebtedness to him is disturbing.
6. It is distasteful to have Israeli Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu interfering in an American domestic election by openly favouring Romney over Obama.
7. It is distasteful that Romney is promising his donors in Jerusalem a war on Iran. When George W. Bush promised his pro-Israel supporters a war on Iraq, it cost the US at least $3 trillion, got hundreds of thousands of Iraqis killed, destabilized the Gulf for some time, cost over 4,000 American soldiers' lives, and damaged American power, credibility and the economy. As Nancy Reagan said of drugs, so US politicians must say to constant Israeli entreaties that the United States of America continually fight new wars in the Middle East on their behalf: "Just say no." Instead, Romney is playing war enabler, and that abroad!
8. It is distasteful that Romney will not meet with Mahmoud Abbas, president of the Palestine Authority, who actually was elected by Palestinians, but only with an appointed and toothless 'prime minister' known for cooperation with Israel's Likud.
9. It is distasteful the Romney will not commit to a two-state solution within 1967 borders or demand Israel cease illegal squatting on and unilateral annexation of Palestinian land. If he is going to this Middle East hot spot, why doesn't he visit a Palestinian refugee camp so as to understand the nub of the dispute, instead of hobnobbing with the uber-rich in Jerusalem.

10. It is distasteful that he is holding the fundraiser in the King David Hotel, which was famously blown up by the Zionist terrorist organization Irgun in 1946, in a strike that killed 91 persons and wounded dozens, many of them innocent civilians. Irgun leader Menachem Begin (later a leader of the ruling Likud Party) hit the hotel because there were British security offices there, which were tracking violent organizations like his own, during the British Mandate period of Palestine. He maintained that he called ahead to warn of the bombing, but that is just propaganda to take the edge off the deed - who in 1946 would have taken such a call seriously? When current Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and other Likud leaders attended a commemoration of the bombing, the British Foreign Office sent over a sharp note of protest. I guess Romney is not finished with insulting London.

24.5 Mitt Romney and the Junk Bond King Michael Milken

It was at the height of the 1980s buyout boom when Mitt Romney went in search of $300 million to finance one of the most lucrative deals he would ever manage. The man who would help provide the money was none other than the famed junk-bond king Michael Milken. What transpired would become not just one of the most profitable leveraged buyouts of the era, but also one of the most revealing stories of Romney's Bain Capital career. It showed how he pivoted from being a relatively cautious investor to risking his reputation for a big payoff. It is one that Romney has rarely, if ever, mentioned in his two bids for the presidency, perhaps because the Houston-based department store chain that Bain assembled later went into bankruptcy. But what distinguishes this deal from the nearly 100 others that Romney did over a 15-year period was his close work with Milken's firm, Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. At the time of the deal, it was widely known that Milken and his company were under federal investigation, yet Romney decided to go ahead with the deal because Drexel had a unique ability to sell high-risk, high-yield debt instruments, known as "junk bonds." The Obama campaign has criticized the deal as showing Romney's eagerness to make a "profit at any cost," because workers lost jobs, and challenged Romney's assertion that his business background best prepares him for the presidency. Romney, meanwhile, once referred to the deal as emanating from "the glorious days of Drexel Burnham," saying, "it was fun while it lasted," in a little-noticed interview with American Banker magazine. The "glorious" part, for Romney at least, was that he used junk-bond financing to turn a $10 million investment into a $175 million profit for himself, his partners, and his investors. It marked a turning point for Romney, according to Marc Wolpov, a former Drexel employee who was involved in the deal and later was hired by Romney to work at Bain Capital...

June 12, 2012, Even in a political season marked by unprecedented levels of political spending, Sheldon Adelson stands alone. In recent days, Mr. Adelson, a billionaire casino operator and his wife, Dr. Miriam Adelson, gave $10 Million to Restore Our Future, a super PAC backing Mitt Romney, people with knowledge of the contribution said Wednesday. The move leaves the Adelsons by far the most prolific campaign donors in the country. All told they have given at least $35 million to pro-Republican superPACs during 2012....

As violent protests over an anti-Islamic film ridiculing the Prophet Muhammad sweep over much of the Muslim world, a conservative blogger's provocative ad equating Muslim radicals with savages is set to go up in New York City's subway system. Pamela Geller, who once headed a campaign against an Islamic center near the Sept. 11, 2001 terror attack site won a court order to post the ad in 10 subway stations on Monday. The ad reads, "In any war between the civilized man and the savage, support the civilized man. Support Israel. Defeat Jihad." The ad was plastered on San Francisco city buses in recent weeks, prompting some artists to deface the ads and remove some of the words, including "Jihad," or holy war. Geller said she filed suit Thursday in the U.S. capital to post the ad in Washington's transit system after officials declined to put up the ad in light of the uproar in the Middle East over the anti-Islam film. Abdul Yasar, a New York subway rider who considers himself an observant Muslim, said Geller's ad was insensitive in an unsettling climate for Muslims....

Bus ads linking "Islamic Jew-hatred" with Adolf Hitler are rolling through the streets of Washington, DC, with First Amendment protections guaranteeing they will remain a regular sight on the beltway for some time to come. The 15-foot-long (4.6m) ads have been plastered on the elongated broadsides of some 20 buses in the DC metro area. The bus ads feature a photo of Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler seated alongside his "staunch ally" Haj Amin al-Husseini, the Palestinian nationalist and grand mufti of Jerusalem who allied himself with the Third Reich before and during World War II. "Islamic Jew-hatred: It's in the Quran. Two-thirds of all US aid goes to Islamic countries. Stop racism. End all aid to Islamic countries," the text of the ad reads, with a fine-print disclaimer from the city's Metro transit authority. The ads, which are to run until mid-June, were placed by the American Freedom Defense Initiative (AFDI), a self-proclaimed human rights group that has been accused of being an anti-Islam hate group by the Southern Poverty Law Center and the Anti-Defamation League. The AFDI says their ads are "response to the vicious Jew-hating ads that American Muslims for Palestine (AMP) unleashed on Washington, DC, Metro buses last month." The ads in question, which bore an image of US personification Uncle Sam with an Israeli flag in hand, were placed around the DC area on April 15 – tax day. "We're sweating April 15 so Israelis don't have to! Stop US aid to Israel's occupation!" the ad by the Illinois-based pro-Palestinian group read.

- <http://freedomdefense.typepad.com/>

Dec 2014 PHILADELPHIA (CBS) — A federal judge today heard evidence on whether Septa, the local mass transit agency, violated the First Amendment to the Constitution when it refused to run some anti-Islamic advertising cards on its buses. “We’re not a public forum,” says Gino Benedetti, general counsel for Septa. He says he made the final decision to block the ads, featuring Adolf Hitler sitting next to Haj Amin al-Husseini and the phrase “Islamic Jew-Hatred is in the Quran” in bold letters. Septa lawyers argue that the agency does not allow public-issue advertisements on its properties and says a look back at the ads run over the past three years proves it — although Benedetti acknowledges that Septa used to accept or reject ads on a case-by-case basis. “Fifty-three hundred (series of) ads ran — less than one percent were public issue,” he says. Robert Muise represents the plaintiff, American Freedom Defense Initiative, which has successfully sued other transit agencies, forcing them to run the anti-Muslim ads. The group claims that Septa’s refusal to run their ads last May was illegal censorship, claiming that the agency even changed its policy after AFDI filed suit. “When you read that modified policy, it’s clear they were trying to do so to prevent our clients from running an advertisement,” Muise says, “so the fact is that this is content-based. It is the most egregious form of discrimination under the First Amendment, and we should win as a matter of law.” The new Septa policy makes it more clear that public-issue advertising is prohibited. Muise told the judge today that AFDI wanted to run ads on roughly 50 Septa buses over the course of a month. They’ve asked the judge to issue an order forcing Septa to run the ads despite the new policy. The judge could make a final decision in a matter of weeks. The Judge Ruled Against SEPTA

Pamela Geller is the founder, editor and publisher of Atlas Shrugs.com and President of the American Freedom Defense Initiative (AFDI) and Stop Islamization of America (SIOA). She is the author of The Post-American Presidency: The Obama Administration's War on America, with Robert Spencer (foreword by Ambassador John Bolton) (Simon & Schuster); Freedom or Submission: On the Dangers of Islamic Extremism and American Complacency; and Stop the Islamization of America: A Practical Guide to the Resistance (WND Books). She is also a regular columnist for World Net Daily, the American Thinker, Breitbart.com and other publications. Geller's activism on behalf of human rights has won international notice. She has led awareness campaigns in U.S., Europe, and Israel on behalf of the victims and potential victims of honor killing, for the human rights of apostates from Islam, for the freedom of speech, and more. She has placed ads nationwide on buses, taxicabs, billboards, and in subway stations, calling attention to the plight of victims of Sharia and countering the deceptive and misleading ad campaigns of the Hamas-tied Council on American-Islamic Relations (CAIR) and other Islamic supremacist groups. In May 2013, she was awarded the Guardian of Freedom award by the Nassau County Federation of Republican Women. The Queens Village Republican Club, the oldest Republican club in America, honored Pamela Geller as the "American Patriot of the Year" in February 2013. That same month, the Creative Zionist Coalition gave her the Queen Esther Award for Jewish Heroism. Pamela Geller also received the Annie Taylor Award for Courage in 2010 from the David Horowitz Freedom Center. In October 2011, the United States Marine Corps presented her with the flag flown on September 11, 2011 over Camp Leatherneck, "amid the battlefields of Afghanistan during decisive operations against enemy forces in Helmand Province." Pamela Geller has been the subject of a profile on 60 Minutes, and of cover stories in the Sunday New York Times Metro section and the UK's Independent. The Times also published an in-depth interview with her. She has made appearances on NBC Nightly News, ABC, CNN, AP, Reuters, the Sean Hannity Show, the Bill O'Reilly Show, Red Eye, Geraldo, the Mike Huckabee show, and other shows on the Fox News channel. She has been featured in the New York Times, the Washington Post, the Los Angeles Times, the Village Voice, the Daily Mail and the Telegraph. Geller is a frequent guest on talk radio and has regular segments on two radio shows, The Jaz McKay Show and Jamie Allman In the Morning. Geller has been a featured speaker at the David Horowitz Freedom Center's Restoration Weekend and at numerous Tea Party and pro-freedom events across the nation. Pamela Geller has broken numerous important stories — notably the questionable and illegal foreign sources of some of the financing of the Obama campaign, the anti-Semitic posts on Obama's website, Obama's political organizing in public school classrooms, ACORN's destruction of Republican voter registrations, and many more, but perhaps she is best known for her leadership of the nationwide campaign against the Ground Zero mosque. 24.9.3.1.1 Geller's NYC Transit Signs "Killing Jews is Worship"

- http://www.washingtonpost.com/news/morning-mix/wp/2015/04/22/killing-jews-is-worship-posters-will-soon-appear-on-nyc-subways-and-buses/?tid=pm_national_pop_b

New Yorkers are used to aggressive advertising. Banners for breast implants. Billboards for condoms. But a federal judge's ruling has opened the door for far more controversial posters on buses and subways across the city. "Killing Jews is Worship that draws us close to Allah," reads one such ad next to the image of a young man in a checkered headscarf. "That's His Jihad. What's yours?" The poster is at the center of heated legal debate over public safety and free speech. On Tuesday, U.S. District Judge John Koeltl ruled that New York's Metropolitan Transportation Authority (MTA) cannot stop the controversial ad from running on scores of subway cars and buses. The MTA has argued that the ad could incite violence against Jews, but Koeltl rejected that idea. MTA officials "underestimate the tolerant quality of New Yorkers and overestimate the potential impact of these fleeting advertisements," he ruled. "Moreover, there is no evidence that seeing one of these advertisements on the back of a bus would be sufficient to trigger a violent reaction. Therefore, these ads — offensive as they may be — are still entitled to First Amendment protection." Making the case all the stranger is that the posters are not the work of an Islamist group, but rather a pro-Israel organization. "This is a triumph for liberty and free speech," tweeted Pamela Geller, the president of the American Freedom Defense Initiative (AFDI), the group that purchased the ads and sued the MTA to run them. AFDI is not your traditional free speech organization, however. The "about" section on its Web site starts out pretty straightforward, then takes a very hard turn. "Our objective is to go on the offensive when legal, academic, legislative, cultural, sociological, and political actions are taken to dismantle our basic freedoms and values,” it says. “AFDI acts against the treason being committed by national, state, and local government officials, the mainstream media, and others in their capitulation to the global jihad and Islamic supremacism, the ever-encroaching and unconstitutional power of the federal government, and the rapidly moving attempts to impose socialism and Marxism upon the American people.” The Southern Poverty Law Center considers AFDI an “anti-Muslim” hate group. This year, AFDI is organizing an inaugural Muhammad portrait contest, despite objections from Muslims who consider images of the prophet blasphemous. Whatever you make of the group, AFDI has been remarkably successful in bringing its message to America. AFDI has filed at least nine lawsuits across the country, often against cities or their contractors that refuse to display their messages. Those messages include a poster depicting Adolf Hitler meeting with “the leader of the Muslim world” and demanding that the United States cut off all aid to Islamic countries. “In any war between the civilized man and the savage, support the civilized man,” reads another AFDI poster. “Support Israel. Defeat Jihad.” These posters have put AFDI on a crash course with both the MTA and Muslim advocacy groups. In 2011, the MTA refused to run the “savage” ad because it was demeaning to Muslims and Palestinians. AFDI sued, and a federal judge later ruled that MTA’s non-demeaning standard violated the First Amendment guarantee of free speech. The “savage” ads soon went up all over New York City. AFDI’s ads have also drawn objections from Muslims. The Council on American-Islamic Relations (CAIR), a civil liberties group that promotes the rights of Muslims and better relations between Muslims and non-Muslims, launched its own public relations campaign to combat AFDI. In 2012 and 2013, CAIR ran posters in several U.S. cities promoting peaceful versions of Islam. “‘#MyJihad is to build friendships across the aisle.’ What’s yours?” But the ads never ran in New York due to a disagreement between CAIR and MTA. With its echoing “What’s yours?,” AFDI’s latest and most controversial “Killing Jews” advertisement parodies CAIR’s campaign. Last summer, AFDI purchased space on 100 buses and subway cars for four of its ads. The MTA approved three of the ads but blocked the “Killing Jews” poster. The poster attributes the “Killing Jews” quote to “ Hamas MTV,” apparently a reference to the Palestinian group’s odd blend of violence and music videos. The ad also has a disclaimer at the bottom noting that it is “a paid advertisement sponsored by” AFDI and “does not imply MTA’s endorsement.” But MTA Security Director Raymond Diaz worried that the poster would nonetheless incite violence, primarily against Jews. “What matters is not AFDI’s intent, but how the ad would be interpreted,” he wrote. The line “What is yours?” could be considered a “call to violence,” particularly because the CAIR posters it was mocking never appeared in New York. When AFDI pointed out that the exact same poster had not caused any problems in Chicago or San Francisco, Diaz argued that New York was different because it is “the prime terror target” and that the “terrorist security threat” had grown worse since 2013. On Tuesday, however, Judge Koeltl tossed out those arguments and sided with AFDI. The ads could not reasonably be considered an incitement to violence, even if someone didn’t understand them. “The defendants admit that the actual intention of the advertisement is not to advocate the use of force, but to parody the CAIR ‘My Jihad’ campaign and to criticize Hamas and radical Islam. However, they argue that a reasonable New Yorker would not read the advertisement this way, but would instead read it as advocating the killing of Jewish people,” Koeltl wrote. “The defendants’ theory is thoroughly unpersuasive.” After AFDI’s victory, Geller posed for photos outside the federal courthouse while holding the “Killing Jews” “With our NY win, our ads will make their debut on New York buses in the coming weeks,” AFDI’s Web site promises above a “donate” button. “We want to run 100. Help us make that happen.” But even if the ads don’t incite violence in New York City, they could overseas. Earlier this month, Egypt’s top religious authority called AFDI’s posters “racist” and issued a fatwa, or official edict, against them. “This hazardous campaign will leave the gate of confrontation and clashes wide open instead of exerting efforts towards peaceful coexistence and harmony,” according to the edict. Hamas, the group cited on the ads, has not said whether it approves of the message.

Steve Wynn and porn producer Joe Francis faced off before jurors Tuesday, with the casino mogul denying that he threatened to kill the "Girls Gone Wild" founder and saying the accusation is threatening his upscale casinos. Jurors listened to wildly varying accounts of whether Wynn threatened to hit Francis over the head with a shovel and have him buried in the desert, with the soft-porn producer insisting he heard about the threats from record executive Quincy Jones. Francis testified that Jones told him Wynn made the threats in conversations and emails, but Wynn denies it. "I've never sent an email in my life," the 70-year-old designer of signature casinos such as The Mirage, Bellagio, Wynn and Encore, told jurors. Wynn is suing Francis for slander, the latest legal fight in ongoing battles between the two men that include gambling debt that Francis racked up in one of Wynn Resorts Ltd.'s casinos. Wynn also testified that he has been repeatedly investigated by gambling oversight agencies and the FBI for a presidential commission appointment and wouldn't be allowed to run casinos if he made threats. "It would be a singularly self-destructive act - incredibly, incredibly stupid," Wynn said. The billionaire was mostly poised throughout his testimony, his deep voice occasionally quivering when he discussed the potential downfall that Francis' claims could spark. "I'm sitting here because Joe Francis decided he wanted to destroy my company because he didn't want to pay his marker," Wynn said, using a term to refer to a gambling debt. Francis was at times jittery and combative toward Wynn's attorney - and argued with a judge who urged him to keep his answers succinct - but maintained Jones gave him good reason to fear Wynn. "He was trying to save my life," Francis said of the record producer. He claims Jones told him that Wynn was a gangster and a murderer who was the de-facto head of the Genovese mob family. In deposition testimony read in court, Francis claimed Jones said about Wynn, "He's gangster. He's old Vegas. He doesn't play." Francis acknowledged he never actually read the emails Jones claimed he received. He said he saw one was written in all capital letters but couldn't describe them further. Jones, who is Francis' next-door neighbor and a close friend of Wynn's, is expected to testify in the trial. ... Wynn, who said he had never threatened anyone in his life, said he was concerned that Francis' allegations will hurt his reputation with his thousands of employees in Las Vegas and harm future casino projects. "If I was a gangster and a criminal, what would that mean to their job security?" Wynn said.

...The Obama campaign has criticized the deal as showing Romney's eagerness to make a "profit at any cost," because workers lost jobs, and challenged Romney's assertion that his business background best prepares him for the presidency. Romney, meanwhile, once referred to the deal as emanating from "the glorious days of Drexel Burnham," saying, "it was fun while it lasted," in a little-noticed interview with American Banker magazine. The "glorious" part, for Romney at least, was that he used junk-bond financing to turn a $10 million investment into a $175 million profit for himself, his partners, and his investors. It marked a turning point for Romney, according to Marc Wolpow, a former Drexel employee who was involved in the deal and later was hired by Romney to work at Bain Capital. "Mitt, I think, spent his life balanced between fear and greed," Wolpow said. "He knew that he had to make a lot of money to launch his political career. It's very hard to make a lot of money without taking some kind of reputational risk along the way. It's just hard to do. It doesn't mean you have to do anything illegal or immoral, but you often have to take reputational risk to make money."

25.10.1 Corruption of Pennsylvania Gaming Commission

- http://articles.boston.com/2011-09-25/news/30201607_1_full-scale-casinos-casino-gambling-interest-in-opening-casinos

Few states have a more compelling story to tell about how casino gambling is helping to balance the government's books than Pennsylvania. Just five years after its first slot parlor opened, Pennsylvania now has 10 full-scale casinos, paying an annual $1.3 billion in taxes. That's more revenue than New Jersey, Nevada, or any other state in the country. Yet Pennsylvania's story is also about how badly things can go wrong within the halls of government when billions of dollars are at stake. The financial success of Pennsylvania's casinos was built on the ambitious scope of the effort and the rich profitability of the industry, but also on a foundation of cronyism, patronage, and back-room deals, not to mention overlooked criminal histories and alleged mob ties, according to a grand jury report released earlier this year.

... Stephen L. Friedman and Menachem Atzmon: partners in Likud money-laundering, with implications in the Sept. 11, 2001 terrorist attacks. A Philadelphia lawyer, Friedman was the general counsel in the United States for the Likud party of Israel from 1984 (or, officially, 1988) to 1999. Friedman is a close friend of the Netanyahu family; he grew up in Wyncote, Pennsylvania, around the corner from Benjamin and his father Benzion Netanyahu, the senior aide to avowed fascist Vladimir Jabotinsky. Israeli plutocrat Menachem Atzmon was co-treasurer of the Likud, along with Jerusalem Mayor Ehud Olmert, during and after the 1988 Israeli elections. In August 1988, Atzmon worked with Olmert and two other men to collect illegal contributions for the Likud from corporations, against Israel's party funding law, by providing fictitious advertising services to the contributors. Atzmon was later convicted in that campaign finance fraud, while Olmert was acquitted. Up until his 1996 conviction, Atzmon was president of the Israel Development Fund (IDF), a U.S. tax-exempt foundation funneling money illegally to the Likud. IDF is one entity in a cluster of such false-front Likud money spigots, all run by Philadelphia attorney Steven L. Friedman, a partner in the Dilworth, Paxson firm. Friedman has overseen the Likud's U.S. fundraising since 1984, when he began arranging Netanyahu's broadcasts and meetings with American leaders. Netanyahu first met Mervyn Adelson at that time, and brought him into his inner circle along with Friedman and Ron Lauder. Friedman is a key leader of the Republican Jewish Coalition, founded and run by Detroit Purple Gang mobster Max Fisher, a longtime chairman of dope-running United Fruit. The Coalition finances and corrupts the U.S. Republican Party. Friedman created a network of tax-exempt

U.S. organizations tied to Likud. The first entity, Israel Development Fund (IDF), began in 1989. According to Internal Revenue Service tax records, IDF gave money directly to the Likud, directly countering the purpose of the U.S. tax exemption laws....

25.10.3 Legacy of Legislation for Pennsylvania Casinos

The voter referendum initially doomed the PA Gambling agenda. The next approach was via Fawkes to attempt to install Riverboat Gaming. This approach also failed. After Tom Ridge left office his Lieutenant Governor Mark Schweiker became PA Gov. During his term the casino issue was not moving forward.

In the next election, PA State Senator Tomlinson (Bensalem, PA) stated Ed Rendell was our greatest ally to obtain gambling in the state without the voter referendum. State Senators Tomlinson and Vince Fumo of Philadelphia were the two major political figures to support the gambling legislation without any voter input. State Senator Stewart Greenleaf however limited PA gaming to slot machines only. Subsequently Greenleaf's home burns down and a few days later Gov Rendell passed legislation to allow Casinos both Slots and Table Games. This seems to be a case of Jewish Lighting since Billions in Casino revenue were at stake. Greenleaf forgot his power brokers in www.BucksGop.org was the political power behind this legislation. State Senator Fumo was convicted on Public corruption issues. However his counter part Tomlinson appears to be an untouchable under the protection of the Bucks GOP. At the same time Rendell became PA Governor. Felon Asher and Bucks GOP Leader Fawkes selected Tom Corbett to become PA Attorney General. Corbett used to work for the Mafia influenced firm Waste Management Systems. During his eight year term as Pennsylvania AG he was unable to find any wrong doing in the PA Casino industry or in the corruption within the PA State Gaming Commission. After PA Gov Ed Rendell served an eight term. Tom Corbett became Governor of Pennsylvania. His Lieutenant Governor James Cawley was a former Bucks County Commissioner who worked very closely with State Senator Tom Tomlinson. This analysis clearly shows all the parties involved has a direct nexus to www.bucksgop.org.

Ira Lubert runs his casino like his investment funds- To run his new Valley Forge Casino Resort, the club-sized hotel-appendaged gambling hall he opened this past Spring in King of Prussia, Ira Lubert says he uses the same formula he's applied over the past 15 years in picking pros to run $10 billion plus at his Independence Capital funds: He hires experienced operators. (Lubert's day job is running the Independence Capital group of investment funds -- Lubert Adler (commercial real estate), LLR (mid-market buyout), Versa (troubled-company), Patriot (community banks), Quaker BioVentures -- which handle over $10 billion for clients including Pennsylvania state pension funds.) Three months in, how's this working? "It has been a slow start, Lubert told me, sighing: "It's amazing to me — I thought the ribbon would get cut and 100,000 people would walk through the door." So far, he's signed up 43,000 card-carrying customers from one or more visits. The slots bet is about $10 million a week, compared with more than $50 million at Harrah's bigger hall in Chester. Then again, Rivers, the Pittsburgh casino where he is a minority owner, got off to a slow start; it now leads its nearest neighbor.

He's an octogenarian trial lawyer with a fierce reputation, but on matters of finance, Richard A. Sprague calls himself "an ignoramus." "I wouldn't know budgeted development costs from a hole in the wall," Sprague testified at a trial in Wilmington over the expansion of the SugarHouse Casino in Philadelphia. Sprague said he needed a financial partner when he was putting together a 2005 bid for one of Philadelphia's two casino licenses. He approached Las Vegas casino operator Steve Wynn, but those talks went nowhere. Sprague had better luck with billionaire Chicago developer Neil G. Bluhm. The Philadelphia investors, led by Sprague and Robert Potamkin, the auto-dealership scion, brought local connections to the deal, while the Chicago partners, led by Bluhm, promised to raise the money for a casino. But the falling out of those two groups in the last year is now the subject of a lawsuit in Chancery Court here. Local investors have accused the Chicago partners of not following through with a "supermajority" vote on the planned expansion of SugarHouse. The vote would give them effective veto power over the project, which they argue is not big enough. Though the subject of the lawsuit is the expansion, the trial has revealed how the SugarHouse Casino almost did not get built. The Pennsylvania Gaming Control Board selected SugarHouse for a casino in 2006 but did not award the license until January 2008. The SugarHouse partners had 120 days to exercise an option to buy 22 acres of waterfront property on North Delaware Avenue in Fishtown and Northern Liberties. But the group was facing problems. Mayor Nutter openly opposed the site, saying it did not fit his vision for developing the central Delaware waterfront. The project also faced about a dozen legal challenges. In one, local legislators were challenging its riparian rights, or the ability of partners to build on waterfront land. Bluhm testified that in early 2008, he and Sprague flew to California to "plead" with the owner of the land - Wache A. Manoukian, who also is a majority owner of Parx Casino in Bensalem - for more time to seal the deal. He refused. The partnership had to come up with $80 million, but with the economy weakening, no one was lending, Bluhm said. The cost of the project had ballooned to $742 million.

Sprague demands apology from Castor for remarks about GOP chairmen - Bob Asher 1/10/04 By CHRIS BRENNAN brennac@phillynews.com If things looked bad for Montgomery County District Attorney Bruce Castor after his public tirade against his own party last month, they just got worse. Attorney Richard Sprague sent Castor a letter yesterday, demanding that he retract and apologize for claims he made about the Republican Committee chairmen in Philadelphia, Delaware, Chester and Bucks counties. Castor lashed out at his fellow Republicans last month when those committee chairmen - Vito Canuso, Thomas Judge Sr., Joseph "Skip" Brion and Harry Fawkes - decided to endorse former U.S. Attorney Tom Corbett of Pittsburgh for state attorney general this year. Castor, who is seeking that post, was backed only by the Montgomery GOP chairman. Castor accused GOP powerbroker Bob Asher of hijacking the party for Corbett. " 'Bob Asher has, quite simply, bought the State Committee endorsement for his hand-picked candidate,' " Sprague quotes in his letter from an angry Dec. 18 Castor press release. Sprague calls that a "vicious and defamatory verbal assault on their integrity." Castor responded yesterday with a letter to U.S. Sen. Rick Santorum, saying he was going to "return to the focus" of running for attorney general. But that doesn't mean Castor is backing down. He wrote in that letter that he would "show the dramatic weaknesses" of Corbett. And Castor fired yet another shot at Asher, saying it was in Asher's interest as a fund-raiser and lobbyist to have an ally in the attorney general's office. A spokesman yesterday said Castor would have no further comment on the matter. Asher has declined to speak publicly about the political feud. Fawkes yesterday was clearly still angry about claims, saying they were false and Castor had no right to make them. "I guess he's losing control of himself," Fawkes said. "He just felt like everyone was supposed to endorse him. He went crazy. He started sending letters, nasty things, accusing us. I think what he did was destroy himself."

Interview with Richard Sprague Warren Commission By John Williams

WILLIAMS: Before you ever got appointed to the Committee at all, before it was ever in anybody's mind, is there something you can say about your own reaction to the assassination, and whether, and to what extent it got any interest on your part, or whether it hit you in any way?

SPRAGUE: Well, let me put it this way, probably the best way to respond to your question. I had been, at the time of the assassination, a District Attorney in Philadelphia, had been a prosecutor of murder cases. In fact the day that the assassination of President Kennedy was announced, I was going into a courtroom for the sentencing of somebody I had prosecuted for first-degree murder, who was to get the death penalty, and that's the occasion for hearing about the assassination. And obviously, I was as horror-struck, as I'm sure everyone else was. And I went through a period of time where I watched on TV the funeral, and I was watching TV and saw the assassination by Ruby of Oswald. I must say that when the assassination occurred, my immediate reaction was that the President of the United States is not assassinated by one person. There has to be a group of some sort involved in the assassination. My initial reaction of thinking had been, "I wonder what foreign government was behind this?" I also recall reacting and felt that since Robert Kennedy was the Attorney General of the United States, that because of his own relationship as brother of the President, that Robert Kennedy would leave no stone unturned in trying to get to the bottom of who was behind the assassination. And at the time that Oswald was killed by Ruby, I remember the thought flickering through my mind, whether Oswald was killed in order to keep his mouth shut. That generally was my thinking back then. The Warren Commission was appointed and came out with the conclusion that Oswald was the lone gunman, and that there was no conspiracy. A person who worked with me in the DA's office, Arlen Specter, had been a junior lawyer working with the Warren Commission. And I remember thinking when the report came out, you know, I'd be interested in reading it, and finding out what the factual determinations were, how solid they were. But I never got around to reading the report. And I guess in the course of time, I kind of accepted that report. I think principally, on the grounds that as a prosecutor, I found it very hard to believe that if there was a cover-up, that there could be so many disparate individuals in high positions of our government that would be involved in a cover-up. And it would seem to me that it would come asunder in some manner, so I kind of just accepted it. Arlen Specter, as you know, helped develop, if not was the author, of the single-bullet theory. And I was aware of the controversy that existed about that theory, and the people who suggested that it could not really be; or the people who said that if you really looked at the Zapruder film, a number of people who thought there was shooting from the front, and there were some people on the knoll off to the front. I was aware of all that. I was aware that President Johnson was convinced that there was a conspiracy. So I had all that general knowledge. However, having said that, while I worked with Arlen Specter—I was the first assistant with Arlen the DA in Philadelphia for a full eight years, my having been in the DA's office before and after, and being really Arlen's right-hand man, I never spoke to him about the Warren Commission work, or what he did there, or his theory. I was involved in my own work, and I guess it is a long way around to respond. I was aware of everything. But I just accepted the Warren Commission report. And when I would hear from time to time that there were books, Mark Lane's book, other books saying it was not true, I noted it with passing interest, but nothing beyond. You know, as today, I have a general interest in why Clinton felt the need to bomb Iraq on the night before an impeachment vote, that these were acts of war, since there was not a need to bomb. And there are questions that pop up in my mind. But am I spending my time really studying it, analyzing it? The answer is no. That is really the framework of where I was before I got involved with the House Assassinations Committee, not having really read—actually, I shouldn't use the word "not having really read"—not having read anything pro or con on the matter, not having engaged really in discussions about it. At my family table, I believe very much in discussions of current events, but never seemed to get into a discussion about the facts of the Kennedy assassination, although I had friends sometimes pooh-pooh that it was done by a single person.

WILLIAMS: Now, where did that change in terms of your—I don't suppose the reasoning so much, but then someone approached you or something happened to change that in terms of...

SPRAGUE: Well, here is what I recall. I did become aware that there seemed to be more questions being stated publicly concerning the findings of whether there were errors in the Warren Commission, and something being taken for granted. I think Mark Lane's book was being given greater circulation, Rush to Judgment was given greater prominence at that time, and attacks on the Warren Commission. But I think a matter that came up, at least, I believe, in the public eye, and it's certainly something that I became aware of, Schweiker's Intelligence Committee came up with intelligence concerning Castro, which then started to raise more questions. That seemed to start, at least as I recall, to give greater prominence to questions being raised about the validity of the Warren Commission Report. And then the next thing that sort of stands out in my mind, prior to the election of Carter as President of the United States, the House of Representatives authorized in a resolution, the creation of a Select Committee to investigate the assassination of Martin Luther King and President Kennedy. And that pretty much was the stage. And all of these things I noted with interest, not again, enough of an interest to do any digging, do any reading, but just aware of this because I do believe in staying up to date.

WILLIAMS: Kind of like in with the daily news. => Note: Annenbergs owned Daily News!

SPRAGUE: That's right. Where are they going with it? And then at some point in time, I recall getting a call from, I think it was Mark Lane, who I didn't know, had never spoken to. And Mark Lane told me that my name was being considered, or was going to be submitted to the House Select Committee, if I was interested. And I am not sure if he said that Chairman Downing had asked him to call me or if he was to submit names to Chairman Downing, but I was asked if it would be something that I might consider. And I have to back up one second here, just so maybe you understand me a little better. Even though I was in public service as a DA, a prosecutor for many, many years, when requests had come to me to take other public matters, if it was something that interested me, I would take it. For example, the assassination of Jock Yablonski and his wife and daughter, and then I was contacted and asked would I take an additional assignment, to handle that investigation for the people, I took it. When I was asked by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania to undertake an investigation against one of the justices in the Supreme Court, I took it. I was asked by a District Attorney of another county to undertake an investigation, I did it. So that I have—if it involved matters of interest to me, I was always willing to take additional matters. So when I was asked about this, I said "Yes, I would be interested if a number of conditions were met." When I say that was my response, I may have first said I want to think about it, I'll get back to you. But I then spoke to Mark Lane, who I knew had spoke directly to Downing. (Rep. Tom Downing was the first chairman of the House Select Committee on Assassinations, Eds.) But I ended up speaking to Downing. And I thought it over, said that I would be willing to take it on certain conditions. The conditions were that I did not want this to be a political-oriented investigation. That as far as I could see in legislative investigations, the problems with them were that they were very politically oriented. And I really wondered, is the legislature a proper vehicle for investigation of a murder? Or is that something that you leave for a grand jury, or the executive branch? And I had that concern, which I expressed. And I said that one of my conditions would be, I do not want any of this nonsense of a majority counsel representing the majority party, and a minority counsel representing the minority party. I wanted it clear that I was the General Counsel, there was no majority or minority. I was Counsel for the entire Committee. I did not want there to be a diffusion of responsibility between a Director administratively, and Counsel. I wanted to be, in effect, the whole show. I would take it if I was the Director, Executive Director over everyone in the title, and General Counsel.

WILLIAMS: Had there been any talk of the other arrangement?

SPRAGUE: There had been no discussion. I just laid it down what my requirements would be.

WILLIAMS: What your conditions were.

SPRAGUE: And my view was, if they didn't want to accept it, fine. I had other things to do with my life. The second condition was that—and again, it was really an off-shoot from the first—I was aware of the problems in this majority/minority that arise from the selection of hiring of personnel. And I wanted it clear that all hiring, from the file clerks to the lawyers to everybody, would be by me. There was to be no Congressman, nobody else, that had one iota of a voice in the hiring. I didn't mind if people wanted to suggest to me look at X, Y or Z. But the determination was to be mine. And secondly, that I had the absolute right to fire. That it was not dependent on a vote by anybody—and this included the chairman—had no authority of hiring or firing. It was mine.

WILLIAMS: You wanted the power to put together a staff that you could work together and not be torn apart by political complications.

SPRAGUE: Right, and that would have no loyalty to any members of Congress, but that would just be focused, really, in terms of what I wanted done, and recognizing that the power lay with me, that they didn't have to play up to any Congressman, anybody. That was a second condition. A third condition was that there had to be a provision for an ample budget to do the kind of investigation that I wanted done. And that I needed start-up money to at least be able to start recruiting, with the idea of then examining what I thought needed to be done to then be able to submit a budget. It seems to me there was a fourth condition, which right now—oh, yes, that was it. And I wanted it agreed that there would not be any time limitation. I did not want to be told "You gotta wrap this up in 60 to 90 days." It think time limitations are a terrible, terrible restriction in any ability to do a proper investigative job, as Senator Thompson and his recent effort in investigating campaign money, limitations that he had agreed to, which he shouldn't have. I also—those were basically my conditions. There may have been another one, and if so it'll come back to me as we go along. I also, though, made it clear that in my recruiting of staff, I was not going to hire members of FBI or the CIA or federal agencies either, because to do a thorough investigation, those agencies' actions would be part of the investigation. And I did not want anyone that would have any conflict of interest, any view of being protective of anyone.

WILLIAMS: Had you stated that—I'm curious to know—had you stated that right up front to Downing?

SPRAGUE: Yes. Yes. And I also made clear the way in which I saw, I wanted it understood from the beginning that I intended to proceed with the investigation, that I was going to treat this as though it was a murder case, and that I intended to work anew. I wasn't bound by whatever there had been determined by anybody. I was going to treat this from the word "go" as a murder case, examine all the circumstances of the murder, the findings, retain our own experts on both murders. Remember, I was dealing with King as well as Kennedy.

WILLIAMS: That sounds like a fifth condition.

SPRAGUE: Well, it could be, maybe that was it. And that I was going to—at the same time that I was treating this as—each of these as a murder case and track them through, I was also, because I felt that it was very important to the American public that we examine with an open mind all that had been published of Mark Lane's theory, Weisberg's theory, whoever theories, the Warren Commission's conclusions. And that we ultimately not only publish the results of our own investigation, but that we lay out to the American public the examination of what each and every supporter or critic has said and what was in support of it and what were the defects of it. As best as I can recall, that was what I put forth. I was welcomed with both arms around me, told that my conditions had been agreed to—oh, one last condition. I was going to do this as a public service, I was not to get paid for it. I had my own private income, I was going to be able to continue with that, that I would give this full-time.

WILLIAMS: Wow.

SPRAGUE: For example, I was teaching as well at Temple Law School, and I enjoyed mixing with the youngsters in classes. Kicking back ideas keeps you fresh, keeps you on your toes, and I did that each Friday evening, and I wanted to be able to continue with that. That was it, and those conditions were agreed to.

WILLIAMS: Now when you say that, can you recall Downing's response at all?

SPRAGUE: Downing's response was he was enthusiastic about it. I had never met Downing. I came down to Washington, I met with Downing. I thought very highly of him. He seemed to be absolutely—and I do believe Downing was absolutely supportive of that approach. Downing took me around to meet other members of the Committee. And I would say that the initial response and reaction by the Committee members was enthusiastic. And as a matter of fact, while they ended up only criticizing me, the fact the New York Times wrote an editorial about what a great appointment this was, treated me as a white knight who would do this as a thorough, seasoned investigator, prosecutor, without politics being involved. So that's I guess the answer to your question.

WILLIAMS: Yes. Okay, so then after seeing Downing—I am going to turn—look back for a moment. Was there any kind of process that went through your mind in terms of your own qualifications? Did you do any kind of thinking about that in terms of how you would fit for this position? Because that's a big undertaking. Or had you figured by that time, this is something I am ready for without much real...?

SPRAGUE: Maybe it was a fault of mine. I never had much qualms about my ability to undertake, really, whatever I decide to undertake. And I never had any question about my ability to do this, provided the commitments to me were stuck to. Now I must tell, and maybe we'll get into it in subsequent questions. Of course, one of my assumptions was that there was really a commitment by the Congress of the United States, when the resolution created this Committee, to really have an investigation of the two assassinations, and that the Congress of the United States would be whole-heartedly behind it and that they would give you the proper funding. Now if you say to me today, "Well, Dick did you go and speak to anyone higher than Downing, to see where was the Congress of the United States, where was Tip O'Neill, the Speaker of the House?" Where was majority leader, who became speaker, Jim Wright in all of this? The answer is "No," I didn't have any contacts with them until after I was down there, which I can get into.

WILLIAMS: Yes.

SPRAGUE: But the assumption was what I just said, and as I went along I learned otherwise.

WILLIAMS: Yes. As far as you were concerned at that time, Downing knew what he was talking about. And as far as you felt here, the reception you got from the Committee members represented the commitment Congress was making to you. And that seemed solid at the time.

SPRAGUE: Absolutely.

WILLIAMS: Really no reason to question it.

SPRAGUE: That's right. The only thing that first happened that took me back a little bit after I accepted it, I learned that Downing was not going to run for re-election. And that therefore, his term as Chairman was going to end upon his term of office being over. And then the question arose, who is going to be the next Chairman? I had had enough—by the time I really learned of that, I had had enough contacts with the Committee, and forgive me if I mistake names of the members of the Committee, you can probably help me. I think there was somebody named Preyer [Richardson Preyer was a representative from North Carolina. Ed. Note] Preyer, that was it, who impressed me very much. Preyer was a very impressive person, and I really hoped that he would become Chairman in place of Downing. I did learn, I think from Downing, that one of the people who had been somewhat of a problem for him was Gonzales. And lo and behold, Gonzales was going to then become the Chairman in place of Downing, which I can get to as we go along. [Henry Gonzalez was a representative from Texas. Ed. Note] I guess the bottom line of all of this is, there were the high hopes, the understandings, agreement that I just told you. When I got to Washington, I learned that the leadership of the Democratic Party was not as much in support of this investigation as I had kind of assumed. For example, I learned that prior to the [1976] Carter election, the Black Caucus had been formed, in the House of Representatives, and that the Black Caucus had very much wanted an investigation into the assassination of Martin Luther King. Until this time, the Congress had refused all the push to get a reopening of the Kennedy investigation. And I had always been curious, how come they all of a sudden agreed to King and Kennedy? What I learned when I got to Washington was that when the Black Caucus had been formed and with the Carter election coming up, the Democratic leadership wanted the Black Caucus to feel they had real input, real power with the Democratic organization. And since the Black Caucus wanted an investigation into King, they wanted to give the Black Caucus what they wanted. But they felt from a country standpoint, they could not quite have an investigation of King without coupling it with Kennedy. And that was really the political motivation for at least forming the Committee prior to the Carter election, so that as a result there wasn't quite the enamored with the idea of an investigation. It was created for political purposes. Secondly, I was at a really early stage—I can't remember quite when—was advised that —Richard Helms, former Director of the CIA and later ambassador to Iran, had sent word back indirectly that the investigation as to the Kennedy assassination really ought not to proceed, and that the Kennedy family really could find it embarrassing.

WILLIAMS: Do you remember how you became aware of that, and through what channels?

SPRAGUE: No, I've tried to rack my brain since, but somehow I was made aware of that. For example, you asked me how I became aware of the motivation of the situation. There were so many people who were giving me information, I just can't tell you.

WILLIAMS: Things were happening fast.

SPRAGUE: Although as I go along, I do know that Tip O'Neill ended up asking me to do something which I do think was counterproductive to the success, at least toward the investigation while I was there. And I do know, there is no secret about this, I remember—and I am sort of jumping ahead of myself here.

JOHN : Sure.

SPRAGUE: But it maybe fits in. But at a certain point in time, I mean we were in the press. I mean, if I sneezed, it became a headline in the press, which we can get get. Everything I did was a big story. And Tip and Jim Wright called one day saying, "We'd like to get an update of where we are in this investigation." And I remember coming over with the two deputies there, headed to Wright's offices, and I think we had a luncheon. My deputies were Bob Tanenbaum of the Kennedy part—and I can get into how I organized this—and Bob Lehner for the King investigation. We went over and sat down with Wright. And he struck me as somebody with an attention span of all of ten seconds. And Wright said, you know, "Tell me where you are in the investigation," and all of a sudden he interrupts me and says, "Wait a minute, wait a minute. What are you telling that and that for?" He said, "You haven't gotten to Sirhan, Sirhan." And I looked at him, "Sirhan, Sirhan?" "Yes, he did the shooting." And we said, "Sirhan, Sirhan shot Robert Kennedy." And he said, "Of course, that's what you're investigating." We said, "No, we're investigating the assassination of President Kennedy." And Wright said, "Oh, yes, yes. That's right." I mean, I'm relating—now this is a majority leader of the House of Representatives. That's the kind of situation we ran into. When I got to Washington, and again, I cannot say enough complimentary words about Downing. Downing was absolutely superb in terms of backing and sticking to what he said, but because he was leaving, he really didn't stay in his office. He turned over his office to me. Now, we were given—and this is my best recollection...but this is the first time I really saw what I thought was not sticking to commitments. Before I went down there, [I asked] what kind of a budget do you have right now preliminarily? And I was told, I think I was told $150,000 for hiring staff. And I said, "Wait a minute, you are telling me I have a $150,000 budget to hire a whole staff, forget it." And I was told, "Oh, no, no, no. You don't understand the way that Congress works. There is $150,000 which is allocated which will run out." I think this was September or something... "That's what you can spend right now. So if you hire somebody—I'm just making up a salary—for $50,000, and their salary then for the remaining three months is, let's say, $15,000, you still hire at the $50,000 salary, but you've the $15,000 to pay them here. And in the new budget, the full year's salary will be there." And that was made, you know, absolutely clear to me. And so when I get down there, remember, I started out it was me alone. No secretary, no office. I'm working out of Downing's office. And what I did do, having been a prosecutor for years, I put out word that I was interested in top notch prosecutors from around the country. People who had had superb investigative prosecutorial experience, state investigators, local, not federal people, and I was going to recruit from that. And let me say, the response that I got really was a breath of fresh air, in terms of the type of people who responded. Really even to this day, you know, it just was such a wonderful feeling that there's that kind of talent and that kind of capable people with ability around this country. I thought wonderful, wonderful people. And in that process, I started interviewing. And again, in view of my original condition, even though it was terrible in terms of time consumption, I did not delegate that to anybody. I reviewed all the applications, and set up the interviews. And in that process, I started setting salaries, recruiting the staff. I met Bob Tanenbaum, who came from [Henry] Morgenthau's office in New York. I met Bob Lehner, neither of whom I had ever met before in my life. What I wanted to do here, I didn't want this to be a cozy place of people that I knew either.

WILLIAMS: Yes.

SPRAGUE: I really wanted top notch talent that all were imbued with a spirit of doing a job.

WILLIAMS: And I get the impression from what you're saying, if I am reading that correctly, that in proportion to the response you had, if something had happened, for instance, where Lehner or Tanenbaum were not interested, you had several different choices you could have made from highly qualified people.

SPRAGUE: There's no question about that. And I did an interviewing and culling-out process, and hired from secretaries to clerks to filing people, to the Tanenbaums and Lehnors. And my idea was looking at organizations, looking at myself at the top, having Tanenbaum with a team carrying out the investigation and the review, in terms of what people had said and done, critics pro and con, on the Kennedy side, having Lehner as the Chief Deputy under me on the King side with a staff. Available to both was what was needed, like a librarian. What we needed is access to all that had been filed, we needed as the investigation would be proceeding, somebody that would see that everything was filed and distributed within that area. That was the basic concept here. I also, as I started getting more people hired, wanted to use a couple of people like Tanenbaum and Lehner—because certain names I can recall, some others—sort of as a think tank. I am a big believer in working as a team. I don't think that all wisdom flows through me, and I wanted there to be a group whose thoughts or ideas and suggestions, analysis, and evaluation, and that was the concept.

WILLIAMS: Had you in mind, like you mentioned, these people who would be reviewing the information, had you in mind street detectives who would be out investigating?

SPRAGUE: Absolutely.

WILLIAMS: And how would you conclude the number of those needed, or were you just feeling your way along on that?

SPRAGUE: Feeling my way along. And I guess I sort of have to break it down here, as to prior to the end of the of year and after the end of the year. But the idea was to have an investigator, non-federal people in each area for purposes of interviewing, for purposes of giving them leads, as though we were starting the investigation from there. I did recognize that time makes much more difficult doing an investigation that anything really, particularly a homicide. And I did end up with a feeling that with the amount of time since the two assassinations, that if there was to be a thorough investigation and an analysis of the various pro and con views, that this was probably the last chance. I ended up feeling that if it was defeated at that time, it never will come to fruition and people will continue with their beliefs, pro and con thereafter. So I say that in terms part of what we said at the beginning.

WILLIAMS: You bet. I hear you loud and clear.

SPRAGUE: We started recruiting, which included detectives. And again, as I recruited, I was perfectly willing to hear recommendations from the attorneys we had hired. For example, Tanenbaum recommended some detective that had worked very closely with him, who I interviewed, who impressed me and we hired. So the whole idea was to use them with these lawyers. Now, one of the criteria I was using in the hiring of lawyers, as far as I got, and that becomes an important limitation, "as far as I got," was I did not want lawyers who sat at the desk. I wanted people who had been active investigators, who when they were assigned homicides back in the prosecutorial days of State offices, had gone to the scenes and worked with the police, and that was the whole idea here. As I was hiring, I was also having a study being made by each respective side as to what they really felt were the needs of that side to do the investigation, the examination, what experts were needed.

WILLIAMS: This would be Tanenbaum and Lehner.

SPRAGUE: Right. And to give me recommendations for manpower, to give me recommendations in terms of budgetary needs. I also did arrange, while I was going about this recruiting, because I wanted the staff, even though it was a skeleton staff, to have some things to do. I didn't want them all sitting while I'm doing all of the recruiting and interviewing, I wanted to put them to some work. I did start to have them starting to review material that been published. I remember that we brought in a number of people who had been critics. I forget the person's name in the Zapruder film, again, if you want, I'll get his name, the guy that enhanced it.

WILLIAMS: Robert Groden.

SPRAGUE: Groden, that was it. We brought Groden in and we had him show and then analyze it, and explain it. We had some people come in and sort of lay out difficult things, and we were open to everybody. And I really didn't distinguish, I wasn't trying to make value judgments. The fact that somebody thought somebody was a crackpot didn't mean anything to me. I felt that my job was to do analysis. So I was having that done. And again, and this may become not important from your standpoint, but who knows, it may explain my tenure on the Commission. Wanting my people to go out—oh, and I hired [Gaeton] Fonzi, who was a person I thought very highly of. And while Fonzi had his own views, that made no difference to me because I wanted people who I knew would not be beholden to the Federal government, and who would carry out investigations that I gave them, and I felt would do a thorough job. That was my criteria. Fonzi, I think, is outstanding and a terrific person to have. And I know he has his certain views of what he thinks happened, and that is fine with me. I don't mind that, as long as it didn't blind him to looking thoroughly and fairly, which I felt he would do. So we were doing that. Now you got to understand, as I said, initially I didn't even have a secretary. I was making personal calls until I could get a secretary and do this and that. And working on getting space and getting furniture and all that. But we were doing some preliminary interviewing. One of my thoughts had been, just like your having a tape recorder here, that it would be a helpful tool if in interviewing, because we didn't have a secretary to take along, if we, with the interviewee's permission, tape record the interview. And we had, I think, I had gotten one tape recorder, so that in terms of ultimately our budget requests, because—and we had done some interviews, as you are doing now, I felt it would be very helpful to our investigators to have along a tape recorder for interviewing. I also had the thought that since part of this was a thorough investigation where I had some question on an the interview about somebody telling the truth, maybe we could pull that interview and put it under one of these stress analyzers, and not that I think they are so great, but any little bit is a helpful investigative tool.

WILLIAMS: Sure.

SPRAGUE: I say that because jumping ahead, at a certain point I was accused of wanting to wiretap and engage in unconstitutional efforts in this investigation. And let me tell you that in over seventeen years as a prosecutor, even back in the days where wiretapping was lawful, I never have wiretapped in my entire life, and I don't like it. I think it is dirty and I have never done it and never had any intent to—and I want you to be aware of that, as that becomes germane to this story.

WILLIAMS: Yes, I can recall reading that, I think.

SPRAGUE: Well, I'll get into that as we go along.

SPRAGUE: But I...

WILLIAMS: This was premised on this—just this decision that you had made to tape record.

WILLIAMS: Somebody blew that up into wiretapping.

SPRAGUE: Absolutely. And it may take you in an area of interest in terms of the press, because I came away with this with that as the most fascinating area from my standpoint. But in any event—so I had the people engaging in some work, and I'll get back to that in a moment. As we were getting to the end of the year, I all of a sudden was told from, I think it was Tip O'Neill's office, or it may have been from Gonzales, who was becoming the new Chairman, because by now I have hired people with that $150,000 that I had to play with, whose—the budget for them for the following year, with a full year's salary, would have been—I'm making up a figure, I don't remember what it is, but let's say $500,000. And all of a sudden at the end of the year I am told, "You have overspent your budget." To which I responded, "What do you mean I've overspent the budget? I was told I would have a budget, I had this for...", "Oh, no, no. That represents your entire budget, and you're not going to have more than $150,000 for the next year."

WILLIAMS: Oh my gosh!

SPRAGUE: Yeah, well, and I've got people now hired whose salary far exceeds that. And my reaction was stronger than what you just said.

WILLIAMS: Oh, I can bet it was!

SPRAGUE: And I said, "Well, that's preposterous! It's ridiculous!" And I was dealing with Gonzales.

WILLIAMS: Now was this new, like had you been told previously of this other arrangement by Downing, and then now you're getting a different story from someone else?

SPRAGUE: I had been told all along that the $150,000 was mine to spend and that would represent just the portion of their annual salary, which we would have the funding for the following year, plus more, when I came up with my entire budget. So, for example, if, let's say two days before the end of the year, I still was saying—and again I am making this up—if for example, I had $20,000, I could hire like yet 10 people because for the remaining two days I had enough for their salary.

WILLIAMS: For that time.

SPRAGUE: But all of a sudden I'm finding out what I told you.

WILLIAMS: This was not true.

SPRAGUE: And I had discussions about this with the Committee members that they had to fight to get this budget. And in the new Congress they have an appropriation that they call a continuing funding until there's a new budget. Well, all I had now was that same lousy $150,000, and the new budget doesn't come up until, I forget what time. And the bottom line is that my staff went for I think they went for two to three weeks, just out of loyalty to me, without getting paid a penny, continuing their work.

WILLIAMS: This was into the new year.

SPRAGUE: That's right, which again, is a credit to them. Somewhere along the line, and as I say, we can back up for more detailed questions.

WILLIAMS: Yes.

SPRAGUE: I decided, you know, I said we had this think tank, and one of the things I set in motion was, let's interview James Earl Ray. We collected a fair amount of information, and I thought, well, let's start with interviewing him. Also in the Kennedy thing, because the Committee was chomping at the bit for, "Let's get some things underway." And I can understand that. And by the way, I think I came up with a budget, a proposed budget for the next year, and I think it was like $14 million. [This figure appears to be for two years. Eds. Note] And all of a sudden, it's like that was the big red flag, how dare! And when you think what they are paying now. And I remember arguing that $14 million was less than the cost of one airplane. Well, when the budget came out, all the people who really didn't want the investigation used that—and that was an outrage. And I'll get back to that in a moment, because a number of things came to a head, let me tell you. But I did decide, let us pick an area, that even though I am still recruiting, and I'm now fighting a battle to get a budget, and I'm trying to get funding for the people, that we'll do some investigation. As I say in King, let's go interview James Earl Ray, and some other things. And Kennedy, this was after talks with Tanenbaum, let's look at some areas, and one that stands out in my mind, there had been a representation, back in the days of the Warren Commission, that on a certain day, Oswald was in Dallas prior to the assassination of Kennedy, and seen talking to him was [Sylvia Odio]. And the Warren Commission discounted that, gave no credence to that, on the basis that Oswald was in Mexico City that same day and obviously could not have been in two places at one time. So we decided, well, let's take a look at that. And here you can get more details from Bob Tanenbaum, but I'll give you my recollection of this thing. Because this brought other matters to a head. And by the way, at that time George Bush was the head of the CIA. And in my request for information, I was told there would be full cooperation, and that they would provide what we wanted. Keep that in mind, because that changes. So anyway, looking into the Warren Commission Report, we wanted to find out on what basis did the Warren Commission accept that Oswald was in Mexico City. And the report from the Warren Commission was that Oswald had gone into, I believe—I may have my embassy's wrong here, I think the Cuban Embassy, and he had called over at the Russian Embassy. And there had been a photographic surveillance by the CIA, as well as a wiretap catching some of those photographs catching Oswald going into the Cuban Embassy, and there was a wiretapped conversation of Oswald calling whoever it was at the Russian Embassy. So we said, "Fine, let's see the photographs." Well, the short of it is, there were no photographs. And why did the Warren Commission accept it? They accepted it because they had been told that by the CIA. So then we wanted to know how come—we want to see the photographs for that day. What do we want to see? Is there still a photograph of Oswald going into the Cuban Embassy? I assume it is the Cuban, I am not sure, but I believe it was the Cuban Embassy. And then we were told, there were no photographs from that day because the camera wasn't working. So then when this was reported back to me, I demanded—I wanted to see what photographs there were the day before and the day after. I was all of a sudden very curious, how come a camera—how long a time was this camera not working? Was it just that day? And secondly, I wanted to see the repair bills if these cameras were not working. I wanted to see what was done for the repair. Hold that to the side for now. So, but then we decided, well, let's ask for the copy of the wiretap, of the actual recording. And the CIA responded, "We don't have that. It is not in existence. Because once we transcribe something, we reuse the tape. And we had transcribed this conversation before the assassination of Kennedy without knowing at that time any importance to Oswald. There was no need, therefore, to have kept the tape, and we had reused the tape." The problem with that arose because we had gotten access to an FBI document which stated that after the arrest of Oswald, a FBI agent who had at least taken part in the interrogation of Oswald, had listened to the CIA tape, and in his report said the voice on the CIA tape was not the voice of Oswald. So, if that was true, it showed that that tape was in existence after the assassination of Kennedy. So keep that in mind. So then, we thought, let's look at the transcript. Which transcript had been produced to the Warren Commission? And of course what we noted, which I think strikes anybody who looks at that transcript, it was an innocuous conversation, and some—the interpreter says that the speaker spoke in broken Russian, I believe it was. But that the voice on there introduces himself as "Lee Henry Oswald," which, if Oswald was trying to disguise who he is, I mean, whoever heard of giving your first and last name, and only changing your middle name? But the Warren Commission had accepted that transcript as proof that he was in Mexico City at the time. So then, we decided, well, let's see if we can find the person who was the interpreter and the stenographer, the typist, for the transcript. And we located them. It was a husband and wife team in Mexico City. Tanenbaum can give you more details. And our people spoke to them. They looked at the transcript. She said this is not the transcript that I typed. The interpreter disputed things that were on there, and we asked, "Do you still have the typewriter that you used," and they still had it, and we brought it back to Washington. And I will make a bet with you right now that that typewriter is still sitting in Washington. Nobody knows what the hell it is doing there. Nobody followed through and had the typewriter compared with the type on the transcript, which is something...

WILLIAMS: Oh, wow!

SPRAGUE: This is the kind of thing we were doing. And we also had done, let's say federal, record checks along the following lines. I was interested in, of those Americans that had defected to Russia, what was the time sequence when they decided they wanted to come back to this country, before they were allowed to come back? And there was a startling difference between Oswald and others. His time for coming back was much, much quicker. We also checked into those that, when they came back were debriefed by the FBI with one exception. Oswald was not debriefed by the FBI. Now, I'm not saying that this, therefore that we jumped to the conclusion, "Ah, ha! The CIA is involved in the assassination." I am just giving you an idea of the areas of inquiry, in what I believe was the thoroughness with which we were trying to undertake.

WILLIAMS: Right. You were still letting the evidence go walking, and right now...

SPRAGUE: Absolutely.

WILLIAMS: You were going to hold your options open until you accumulated enough evidence. . .

SPRAGUE: We were just going to do that type of thorough thing. I demanded the records from the CIA, and now there was an abrupt refusal, and I subpoenaed them. At that point, Gonzales, who was Chairman of the Committee, ordered the CIA, or told the CIA that they need not respond to my subpoena, and fired me, and ordered the U.S. Marshals come in and remove me from my office.

WILLIAMS: Oh, so that firing was directly after you had subpoenaed the records from the Central Intelligence Agency.

SPRAGUE: Right. But there's more involved in it than the timing...

WILLIAMS: Right.

SPRAGUE: ... if you checked the record. That came up after that. He ordered my firing. He ordered marshals to remove me from my office in what I'm sure was the first and only time in the history of the United States Congress. The rest of the Committee, backed me to a man and overrode the Chairman, and ordered that I remain, and the marshals were directed to get off. Of course, that led to Gonzales taking it up in the House of Representatives, and the House backed the rest of the Committee. And he resigned and Stokes came on. [Louis Stokes was the Representative from Ohio. Eds. Note] I'm sure that's the only time in the history in the United States Congress that in the fight between the Chairman and the Director, that the Chairman got bounced. But there's a terrible price paid for that. Every Congressman dreams of being Chairman of a Committee and being all powerful. It ultimately did not sit well with the Congress that a Chairman got ousted, and...

JOHN : The chief counsel.

SPRAGUE: ... the chief counsel stayed in. And that rubbed a lot more. But I've got to back up a second. When I proposed the budget, and those that did not want this investigation jumped on this thing, this terrible: "Who does Sprague think he is, that much money." It was a realistic budget to do the kind of job that had to be done. You know, and I met with Schweiker [Sen. Richard Schweiker was a Republican from Pennsylvania. Eds. Note] and I sat down with Schweiker before he went out of office. I got good ideas, I think, from him as to things that we wanted to do.

WILLIAMS: So you had done some thinking through of this whole thing in terms of your initial budget...

SPRAGUE: Oh, yes. And also—and I had a committee here—I mean, Gonzales, really in terms of being a leader and head of the Committee, it was night and day different from Downing. Members of his own Committee despised him. The Committee was concerned about how they were going to get more funding. I know I wanted to do the kind of job I said. They wanted to do something dramatic to help get new funding. And I remember they wanted to call some mobsters, like Trafficante, in to have him take the Fifth Amendment, which I protested. They said they wanted him—like ask questions, when did you stop murdering Kennedy, and take the Fifth Amendment, and you get a headline. All that was nonsense to try to help get funding, which was no—again, no way to run it. But in this fight to get funding, and I think because he knew exactly what he was doing, at least in retrospect, Tip O'Neill asked me to address the Congress.

WILLIAMS: The entire House?

SPRAGUE: Now you say the entire House, I think it may have been the Democratic Caucus.

WILLIAMS: The Democratic Caucus.

SPRAGUE: I think that was it. They don't let a non-member of Congress really speak to them from the pit of the Congress. Tip O'Neill arranged for me to do it. And so here I am speaking right in the pit, whatever you call it, the pit of the House of Representatives, with the Congress around me, to tell them why I need this budget, which I did. And they listened in a half-way fashion, some did and some did not. The effect of that was, well, I think I am a very quiet, honest person. I don't go around trying to stir things up. I just try to do my job. I'm not somebody who you would think, well, people would notice or pay attention to. For some reason, in my public life, it's the opposite. And the Committee had become known from the early start of it as "The Sprague Committee," which rubbed a lot of—I mean, whoever heard of a Committee being named, again, for the chief counsel? It's like the Chairman, you know, but not the chief counsel. That rubbed people wrong. But Tip O'Neill's maneuver in having me talk—he didn't have the Chairman—he didn't have a member of the Committee, he didn't have Gonzales do it, he had me. It had a lot of the members of Congress thinking, "Who the hell is this guy who thinks he is bigger than any of the Congressmen? It's not the Chairman, it's not Committee, this guy is talking to us, like he's riding over everybody." And if Tip O'Neill was trying to create, in a very subtle way, a political reaction, he was very successful. Because that, coupled with "The Sprague Committee," the fact that I unseated a Chairman, led to a very bad reaction. Now, at or about this time, all of a sudden, and this came up, and if you check your records, the timing here, because you asked when did Gonzales fire me, it's after he countermanded the subpoena to the CIA. And just at that time—and I am not a big conspiracy buff—when I say "at that time," I mean what I say, the subpoenas of the CIA, lo and behold, the Los Angeles Times comes out with an article, and it was prefaced upon a letter that a Congressman from out west, a former FBI agent [Rep. Don Edwards of California. Eds.]. I think he had it put in the Congressional Record, because you see, that protects him from a suit. And, anyway, the substance of it was, I guess maybe the Los Angeles Times came out first, and then he wrote his letter. ... But anyway, the whole idea between the Times and Edwards was that I was going to go about this investigation in a reckless manner. I was going to be doing it by using unconstitutional means, violating due process. I wanted to wiretap, and I was trying to get wiretap equipment. I mean, a horrendous attack. I immediately—and again, the timing of this is with the subpoena of the CIA, my being upheld by the Committee, but I immediately saw the threat politically of this, and we had a PR man on our staff, because I wasn't going to take—with all the work I was doing, I was going to deal with the press. And we had hired a fellow who did that. This was a friend of mine named Burt Chardak, who's still alive, you could interview him, because he's a newspaper man. And this is the first time he sees it from the other side. And he's in Florida, and I can get his address for you.

WILLIAMS: That would be great.

SPRAGUE: But Burt Chardak, a very good, savvy newspaper man, was our PR man. I immediately told him to contact the press around the nation, editorial boards, let them have the facts in the sense as I just gave them to you, take the time, which he did. Not one newspaper in this entire country or one editorial board contacted us to at least get more information. Not one newspaper or editorial board around this country printed our side of it. But with the attack by the Los Angeles Times, it was then picked up immediately by the Washington Post, and the New York Times, all of whom carried similar editorials, which then led to editorials all around the country about what a terrible ogre and what a terrible person I was. That's the scenario at that point.

WILLIAMS: The failure to check that, in other words, made you wonder what was going on out there.

SPRAGUE: Oh, absolutely. And to this day, while I'm certainly not a conspiracy buff, and I don't believe for a moment the New York Times, the Washington Post and the Los Angeles Times were all in bed with each other, to this day I find that the most fascinating part of my stint there. But, let me just finish this aspect of it. Then the New York Times decided to really get in. And remember, I was the fair-haired boy at the beginning, now I was a horrible monster. They assigned a reporter named Burnham. I can't think of Burnham's first name—David Burnham? And he subsequently—I don't think it was Fonzi—but he admitted it to somebody, that they assigned him to try to do a hatchet job on me.

WILLIAMS: He came here to dig up stuff.

SPRAGUE: Yes. And what he did is he then dug up an attack by the Philadelphia Inquirer on me from years back, which ultimately the Inquirer got hit with a $34 million judgment, and which was upheld to the tune of $24 million, the highest award against a newspaper for defamation of a public official in the United States. But Burnham, this was before that trial, Burnham dug up their attack on me and had The Times publish it as though it was true. And that was the main attack on me. At this point, and by the way, I must tell you, in my fights with Gonzales, he had tried to unseat me even earlier and appoint somebody that was a friend of his as chief counsel, you know, none of which I would accept, because it violated my conditions. And ultimately, when Stokes got appointed—and by the way, I had to testify before the whole Committee in response to the Burnham article and relate what the true facts were, which as I say, the best way in terms of history to show the true facts is that they had a $34 million judgment, which was ultimately upheld at $24 million against them. But Stokes finally said to me that the only way the Committee would get their new budget—and it would have to be reduced to a terrible amount, I think like 14 million would be made down to 4 million at some time—was that I had to give them back the power to hire and fire, which I refused. I said "No way." And they ultimately said that "You're going to have to agree to a lower budget and not hiring and firing in order for us to get the budget through." And I had a meeting with my staff, who still wanted me to stay. I had good loyalty, but I mean the staff felt that they had a real non-political professional who was fighting and was doing the right thing. And I told them "No," let the work of the Committee go on. I had had enough of this, and I was out.

WILLIAMS: So it was your resignation. You weren't actually fired, or would you say that you were pressured, in a way, to resign?

SPRAGUE: No, no, it was my decision. I was told that I had to accept the change in the conditions in order for the budget to be approved. And I wouldn't accept that, and by midnight or something, I drafted a letter of resignation, and gave it. And there were a number of members of the Committee that did not want me to. And even after the fact, I think one of them said, one or two even voted to not accept it.

WILLIAMS: So Congressional members were supporting you in saying "Don't resign."

SPRAGUE: That's right. Stokes was adamant, Preyer. There was a great number of them in my corner. But there was no way that I would—let me say this, it gets back to maybe what I said at the beginning. A legislative committee dealing with political figures, they each have their own political future, their constituencies, their own interests at heart, is not the proper vehicle for an investigation of this nature. One of my good friends in Washington, Joe Rauh, who I'm sure you've heard of. Joe Rauh was a great crusader, liberal lawyer. He helped found the Americans for Democratic Action. He really was the author of the civil rights legislation that Johnson signed. He had been Jock Yablonski's personal lawyer, and that's how we met.

WILLIAMS: I see.

SPRAGUE: He was very, very—I mean, he was everywhere in the Democratic liberal establishment in Washington. A very good friend of mine. And he came to the view that I might be a great investigator, prosecutor, but that combination does not mix with a political animal like the Congress of the United States.

WILLIAMS: I was wondering before as you were talking, because you said this has happened at other times in your life, that you suddenly found that you had become larger than life as you get into some kind of conflict like this. I wonder if it's because, in a way, you are a quiet, fairly gentle, straightforward person, but highly determined. You have a strong will about what will be.

SPRAGUE: Well, I think that's part of it. There's no doubt that, you know, I believe I listen. I believe if you talk to people in this office, it is a hard-working office. But I think everybody will tell you that after I listen, I make up my mind that's the way.

The first attempt was via BucksGop Leader Harry Fawkes during PA Gov Tom Ridge's administration. Ridge said only if a voter referendum allowed this. Subsequently, during the campaign of former PA Gov Ed Rendell, Bensalem State Senator Tom Tomlinson said Rendell was are greatest ally to get PA Casinos without a voter referendum. Both State Senators Tomlinson and Vince Fumo of Philadelphia were responsible for PA Casino industry. Fumo is not a convicted felon. Fumo for years was known as a gangster like Tomlinson in the state legislature. In passing the casino laws, they were only allowed to have slots games. Subsequently, PA Senator Stewart Greenleaf opposed allowing table games in PA casinos. His home caught on fire burned down and almost everyone in the house barely got out alive. Within a week of this Pennsylvania then got casino table games legislation as promoted by PA Gov Rendell. (Note: Rendell, Specter, Sprague and Lynn Abraham were all former Philadelphia District Attorneys). During this time, Montgomery County PA, Bruce Castor was running to the position of PA Attorney General. He was opposed by the leader of the PA GOP Robert Asher and Bucks GOP Leader Harry Fawkes. .. On July 31, 1936, Moses Annenberg (Walter's father) announced that he had purchased the Inquirer for four million dollars and assumption of $6.8 million dollars in debt. Many sources had placed the purchase price at $15,000,000. Some even said that Moses paid in cash with the money carried in two suitcases. The Annenbergs have always denied the $15 million price and the cash payment. Moses added a slogan to the paper's masthead, "An independent newspaper for all the people."...Moses assisted by his sole son, Walter, already had a print empire with the Daily Racing Form and the Miami Tribune newspaper. The Annenbergs had no problem with spending money. They hired new staff and reporters and added features while purchasing their own printing plant. Moses Annenberg was indicted in 1939 for evading taxes on more than $3.2 million in income. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to three years in prison, paying $10 million in penalties and interest. Released in June of 1942, Moses Annenberg passed away a month later and Walter inherited the business. Walter became a shaker and mover in local politics and eventually an icon on the national level. President Richard Nixon, in 1969, appointed him Ambassador to Britain. He was sworn in on April 14, 1969. At that point, Walter Annenberg thought that he should sell the paper along with the Daily News (started on March 31, 1925 and purchased by Annenberg in 1957 for three million dollars from Philadelphia builder Matt McCloskey). He also elected to sell the WFIL stations, which was owned by Triangle Publications, Walter's company. The same corporation also owned TV Guide, Seventeen magazine and other interests.

DEVELOPER BART Blatstein is to unveil plans Wednesday for what he's calling a "world-class resort and casino complex" at the site of the former Daily News and Inquirer offices on North Broad Street. A spokesman said Blatstein's Tower Investments will present architectural renderings for the proposed casino complex Wednesday night at Tendenza at the Piazza, on 2nd Street near Poplar. Not everyone in the area near the building at Broad and Callowhill streets is ready to pop the champagne. A lawyer for a new coalition said many people believe that North Broad Street already is developing, "just sprouting up in a really interesting way." Kevin Greenberg, who represents the coalition, cited Eric Blumenfeld's projects at Loft 640 and the Divine Lorraine; the opening of Osteria, Vie and Alla Spina restaurants; as well as Blatstein's own plans for luxury apartments at the former State Office Building at Broad and Spring Garden streets. The coalition "is deeply concerned about the impact a casino will have on that community, whether it's traffic, parking, crime and safety, or consistent development for North Broad," Greenberg said. He said on Tuesday that he couldn't yet name the organizations that make up the coalition but that they include civic groups and religious and educational institutions. Greenberg also noted that the coalition has neither a pro-casino nor anti-casino focus. He said the group "is focused on figuring out whether a casino is appropriate for this community, so that it can continue to thrive and grow in a manner that is consistent with the residential and mixed-use development that is so successful now.

25.10.9 Steve Wynn Wants to Build a Philadelphia Casino

- http://www.philly.com/philly/news/20121109_Steve_Wynn_again_wants_to_build_a_Philly_casino.html

Jennifer Lin, Inquirer Staff Writer POSTED: FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 2012, 3:01 AM

Steve Wynn has become the third contender to offer to build a casino and hotel in Philadelphia, on a 60-acre site on the Delaware River waterfront in Fishtown that he described as "delicious." The chief executive of Wynn Resorts Ltd., which has casino-hotels in Las Vegas and Macau, said in an interview Thursday that he would apply for the city's second license with the state Gaming Control Board by the deadline of next Thursday. The company, he added, has turned over to the Nutter administration a required report on the local impact of the proposed project. The property would be called Wynn Philadelphia and have a 300-room hotel similar to the Encore at Wynn Macau, in the special administrative region of China. The casino would cover 150,000 square feet, and include 2,500 slots and 100 table games. You can stay in the hotel if you're in Philadelphia without the casino dominating everything," he said. This is the second time Wynn has shown interest in Philadelphia. In April 2010, he agreed to partner with local investors to salvage the faltering Foxwoods project on Columbus Boulevard. But a week after he revealed his involvement, he dropped out. The gaming board revoked the license for Foxwoods in late 2011 after repeated delays. Wynn said he was asked by his friend Ronald Rubin, one of the partners in Foxwoods and the former chief executive of the Pennsylvania Real Estate Investment Trust, to help with the project. "Ronnie got me to do it as a favor last time," Wynn said. "But the deal was so screwed up and complicated that we couldn't function at the end of the day." He said there were problems with the South Philadelphia site as well as financial issues with the partnership. The final straw, Wynn said, was learning that he would have to work with a builder not of his choosing. Rubin could not be reached for comment. The Fishtown parcel, owned by New Hope builder James Anderson, stretches on North Beach Street from Palmer to Cumberland Streets. "It's such a perfect site," Wynn said. "It allows for the ... creation of a destination resort that these local casinos haven't done before." Wynn said the board of directors of Wynn Resorts signed off on the project two weeks ago. In a visit to Philadelphia soon after, Wynn said, he made an unannounced visit to the floor of the SugarHouse Casino, a few blocks to the southwest. "Three of the dealers yelled out, 'Hey, Mr. Wynn,'" he said. Wynn said the proximity to SugarHouse, the city's first casino, would not be a problem for his proposed project. "It's good to be near SugarHouse, good to have us together in a neighborhood where people have choice," Wynn said. "It's like the fast-food business." Wynn said he would not have an artist's rendering of the project until Tuesday. Two other groups already have come forward with plans for casinos. Philadelphia developer Bart Blatstein is proposing a casino, hotel, retailing and entertainment complex on North Broad Street at Callowhill Street. His project - the Provence - would incorporate the former building of The Inquirer, the Philadelphia Daily News, and Philly.com. In South Philadelphia, a partnership including the owners of the Parx Casino in Bensalem and the Cordish Cos. of Baltimore would build a hotel and casino incorporating the current Holiday Inn on Packer Avenue. Stadium Casino would have 2,000 slot machines and 125 table games in a property next to the sports complex. Wynn said he would work with local builder Dan Keating to advance the project through the application process. "If it makes sense for the state of Pennsylvania, we'll get picked," he said. "If not, fine." He said he did not want to get entangled in "political machinations."

Mayor Rahm Emanuel is pushing lawmakers to pass a gambling bill that would allow the city to weigh its choice of a casino operator in secret and forbid state regulators from taking away its license. The legislation also would grant the mayor authority to seize land for a casino and keep not only the gambling profits but also two local taxes and a cut of an upfront fee paid for the right to run the gambling emporium. It's a mix of power and privileges that gambling experts say has never been bestowed upon any city or casino owner in the country. They also say the measure raises concerns about whether the state would have ample oversight of the nation's first city-owned casino. "The traditional model is the state and city collect tax revenue, the state regulates and then there is a clear line with the owner-operators running the casino with no connection other than the collection of taxes," said Mark Clayton, a Las Vegas casino regulation expert and former member of the Nevada Gaming Control Board. "In this case, that line is more blurred ... and raises legitimate questions about oversight." Beyond regulatory issues looms the question of who would get to spend the hundreds of millions in gambling money reeled in from slot machines, blackjack tables and roulette wheels. The measure requires all proceeds from a Chicago casino to go toward school construction and modernization. But the 524-page bill says only that the money would be "transferred to the city" by the new Chicago casino authority. It does not specify whether gambling proceeds would flow through the elected City Council, the Emanuel-appointed Chicago Board of Education or some other arm of the city. Mayoral spokeswoman Sarah Hamilton said Emanuel would work with Chicago Public Schools to spend the money. She would not guarantee that aldermen would get a vote but did say City Council approval would "likely be necessary." Secrecy concerns

The legislation, which has passed the Senate and is pending in the House, is drawing scrutiny from Gov. Pat Quinn, who twice has vetoed gambling expansion bills he insisted were short on ethical safeguards, education funding and regulatory oversight. As with the previous two bills, the latest version would add five casinos and allow slot machines at horse racing tracks. The new measure includes provisions aimed at easing the Democratic governor's concerns, including a ban on political contributions from gambling interests and required state approval of the Chicago authority's members. But the proposal still would allow Chicago's casino to dodge areas of oversight all other Illinois casinos face. For example, when the Chicago Casino Development Authority sits down to consider the bids from private companies competing to run the casino, it can do so behind closed doors. The measure calls for Chicago's authority to accept sealed bids, which the city could keep secret under the state's Freedom of Information Act until after it selects a casino operator. By contrast, when the Illinois Gaming Board considers the other new casinos, it will be required to open bids, discuss those proposals, listen to presentations from bidders and make a decision during public meetings. "The process set up for Chicago definitely is unusual, and I think for something like this where you've got a lot of money at stake, the more transparency, the better," said David Schwartz, director of the Center for Gaming Research at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas. "It raises a lot of concerns, and if this is how it was going to be selected in my state, I would want some more transparency." Hamilton noted that the closed-door bidding language was contained in prior gambling bills, including one that predated Emanuel taking office. Asked whether it should stay in the bill, Hamilton did not respond. Hamilton insisted the mayor is "committed to a robust and transparent procurement process" and pointed to a provision that requires the city to tell state regulators of its bidding procedures ahead of time. The bill, however, would not give the Illinois Gaming Board power to approve or change the city's bid process. The state regulator's only recourse would be to reject the license for Chicago's operator. Rep. Lou Lang, D-Skokie, said that's good enough, waving aside concerns that the public could be shut out of the decision on who runs a casino responsible for generating millions of dollars in city and state revenue. "I don't think it's a breach of any ethical code or need for transparency to say that the private bids the city of Chicago gets for their operator might be kept out of public view," said Lang, the bill's House sponsor. "But I would not say that if the Gaming Board didn't have final say on the license." Quinn spokeswoman Brooke Anderson said the governor believes the Gaming Board should have power to approve Chicago's bidding procedures to help state regulators identify any problems early on.

Jul 21, 2014 - UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — Prince George's County officials on Monday approved a building plan for a $925 million MGM Resorts International casino and hotel near the nation's capital on an 8-1 vote, paving the way for MGM to get the permits needed to begin construction. The casino, which will be designed to hold 3,600 slot machines and 140 table games like blackjack, could open as early as July 2016. Members of the Prince George's County District Council, which decides land use and zoning matters, expressed support for the plan as a major economic development engine. Work on grading the site at National Harbor already has started, and MGM hopes to move swiftly to get permits needed to begin construction to build the casino in time for a 2016 opening. "We are, I think, on the precipice of a substantial step forward in economic development in Prince George's County," said County Councilman Mel Franklin, who chairs the panel.

...The Maryland State Board of Education is reviewing an appeal by a nonprofit group and about two dozen Prince George's County residents who allege that the county's school system violated local and state rules when it voted to transfer a vacant school to the county so that MGM Resorts could use it as a casino training facility. Nehemiah's Vision alleges that the school board violated county regulations in January when it placed the transfer of Thomas Addison Elementary School on its consent agenda, which meant that it was not subject to public discussion. According to board regulations, consent agenda items are "ministerial and administrative in nature, or which have previously been presented to the Board for review and discussion at a prior Board meeting." The group also argues that Schools Chief Kevin M. Maxwell and his staff violated state law because there is no evidence that the school system consulted with the state superintendent of education, as is required, to determine that the building was no longer needed for school purposes. MGM, which has received approval to open a full-service casino at National Harbor, wants to use the nearby school as a training facility. Local officials hope the casino will create more than 3,750 new jobs and boost the county's economy.

26 Destruction of American Economy

The Jobs for the American Labor force are being eliminated by government programs such as H1B Visa, Illegal Immigration and Outsourcing. Government Policies such as Free Trade Agreements, Open Border Policies, Lack of Enforcement of Border and Immigration security and virtually unlimited immigration of foreign labor into America to replace US professional labor with cheap foreign labor is on going creating major issues for the US Workforce.

Politics of Out of Control Immigration - Foreign Affairs Oct 2000

The immigration debate has recently switched 175 degrees. Only 5 years ago the Jordon Commission proposed a cut to legal immigration....Yet only 5 years later immigration into the US is at its absolute highest levels in history more then 1.1 million annually. Somehow the process has gotten out of control... Congress has forgotten the Jordon Commission recommendations...Few members in Congress support Richard Arney R-TX open borders philosophy!... Alan Greenspan praised immigration (This is a form of wage and price control!)...Evidence from Harvard University and the RAND Corp. suggest that skilled immigrants are driving down American's skilled labor force and diverting resources from the education of Americans. During recent hearings Asst. Sec of Labor Ray Uhalde warned that Immigration fixes undercut efforts to improve public education, create better worker retraining and with getting unemployed back to work. Today's policies foretell many dangers. What will happen when the economy slows down? What will happen when 600,000 H1B young engineers to be admitted over the next 3 years adding to the current 400,000 H1B population finish their indentures at the same time precisely the same time American engineers retrained via government programs funded from fees start seeking employment? We will have to create another economic miracle to utilize everyone. But short of a new miracle wages will fall, unemployment, crime, divorce, welfare will rise. Social conflict will increase. Nearly 2/3 of Americans in poll after poll say the want illegal immigration stopped and legal immigration slowed. Immigration willing to take below average wages drive down wages! ...Industry owners profit from the unnaturally low price of labor. Workers lose because immigration drags down wages. To avoid crisis Congress should make reform a high priority starting with the Jordon Commission proposals. Jordon Commission started in 1990 led by Barbra Jordon D-TX. They undertook the most exhaustive examination of immigration ever carried out in this country. The mandate was to examine both legal and illegal immigration. They proposed that legal immigration should be cut by 1/3 to 550K, to bring skills immigration in line with historical levels. Along with stopping illegal immigration and using computerized registration of immigration... The Senate Immigration Subcommittee, headed by Alan Simpson R-Wyo incorporated the Jordon Commission recommendations. When the bill hit the Judiciary Committee Orrin Hatch R-UT, Ted Kennedy D-MA insisted legal & illegal immigration be separated... everyone knew this would doom the bill on legal immigration. Legal Immigration was taken by Spencer Abraham R-MI a freshman who never hid his views that skills based immigration should continue at its highest levels. In a bitter fight Abraham won and Simpson lost!

Some interesting players here were Sen McCain R-AZ Head of Senate Dept of Commerce supports unlimited skills immigration like Arney and Abraham. When Abraham lost in Detroit Bush appointed him head of Dept. of Energy! Newt Gingrich was influenced due to his girlfriend scandal by Corporate interests in Silicon Valley. The H1B Visa program is used by firms to gain exclusive government and corporate IT Servicing and Outsourcing contracts by using H1B Visa labor locking out American high technology small business. Hopefully this shows the American labor force, that the H1B visa issue really a fallout of the corporate interests corrupting the American political system. "A society can not have political freedom without economic freedom.. The American experiment will fail unless we have a population of educated, moral citizens!" - Thomas Jefferson.

26.3.1.1 Rajat Gupta's Legacy with Bill Clinton

See Here how Rajat Gupta setup Former President Bill Clinton to Outsource millions of US High Technology jobs and replace US Labor with H1B Visa immigration. Not bad for a Communist country that was in the Russian Camp during the Cold War.

...Unless you're here, you can't really feel it and you've got to feel it," said Rajat Gupta, managing director of McKinsey & Co., the management consulting firm. "It's a fact-finding and experiencing mission." Mr. Gupta and Victor J. Menezes, president and chief executive officer of Citibank, who are the foundation's vice chairmen, were among those who met with Mr. Clinton...

Note: The Bailed out bank Citibank was on this mission to India. Even today Citibank has right on its web site to do business with the firm they look for small business with links to Bangalore India. This is no surprise since the CEO is an Indian National (Vikram Pandit). So much for a too big to fail bank saving American Jobs.

NJAR, India, April 4 — Thousands of people, precariously balanced on mountains of rubble in this earthquake-ravaged town, chanted "Clinton, Clinton!" as the former president toured the ruins today, solemnly laying roses in a lane where 150 schoolchildren were buried alive when the ground shook on Jan. 26. Bill Clinton, with his scandal-tinged exit from office, may elicit an exhausted sigh from many Americans, but here he still draws adoring throngs of ordinary Indians a year after he became the first American president to visit this country of one billion people in 22 years. And he basked in their affection today on the first full day of a week-long visit that will also take him to Bombay, Calcutta and New Delhi. At the devastated villages and towns he visited, Mr. Clinton ardently declared, "I intend to come back to India for the rest of my life." This time, he came as chairman of the new American India Foundation, which was formed by wealthy Indian-American entrepreneurs, executives and doctors. They have set themselves a goal of raising $50 million to rebuild 100 of the 1,000 villages that were more than 50 percent destroyed by the earthquake here in the western state of Gujarat. So far, they said they had collected more than $8 million. State officials said that private groups — not including the foundation — had entered agreements with the government to rehabilitate 286 villages. "A huge number of villages are still waiting to be adopted," said Palani Panneervel, the state's commissioner of relief. "Bill Clinton's visit will be a big boost to us." Dozens of Indian-American business people and professionals accompanied Mr. Clinton today on a grueling five-hour tour. Many of the millionaires were packed into un-air-conditioned minivans without so much as a cold drink on a sweltering day when temperatures surpassed 105 degrees. Sweat dripped down their faces and soaked their polo shirts, kurtas and long-sleeved business attire, as they drove past the tent camps of those made homeless by the earthquake. They are among the growing ranks of successful Indian-Americans, many of them from Silicon Valley, looking for a way to give something back to India. They said they were awed by the scale of the devastation and determined to find a way to spend their money so it goes to the people who need it. The earthquake killed more than 20,000 people, injured 166,000, destroyed or damaged more than a million homes and did property damage of 21,000 acres of rupees (1 crore equals 10 million rupees). This would mean damage amounting to about $4.5 billion. "Unless you're here, you can't really feel it and you've got to feel it," said Rajat Gupta, managing director of McKinsey & Co., the management consulting firm. "It's a fact-finding and experiencing mission." Mr. Gupta and Victor J. Menezes, president and chief executive officer of Citibank, who are the foundation's vice chairmen, were among those who met with Mr. Clinton in early February to discuss what to do in response to the earthquake. Mr. Clinton said today at a news conference in Bhuj, where a collapsed hospital formed his backdrop, that he had spoken with India's prime minister, Atal Behari Vajpayee, after the earthquake — and that Mr. Vajpayee told him that the country would need help with the long-term tasks of rebuilding schools, housing, hospitals and people's ability to make a living. "I came to look, to listen, to learn and to try to determine how we can best help the people of all these villages," Mr. Clinton said. For the people here, Mr. Clinton was simply a good man who was coming to their aid, and they seemed to have little or no awareness or interest in the former president's latest troubles surrounding the pardons he issued before leaving office. In Ratnal, a prosperous village of truck drivers and farmers that was flattened by the earthquake, clusters of elderly men in white turbans, women in the traditional mirrored and embroidered dress of the region and young workers taking a day off lined the road for a glimpse of Mr. Clinton. "He's a big personality in the world," said Arjan Bhai, 32, a truck driver. "Something good will come of his visit, though we don't know what it will be." The crowd burst into applause when they saw that it was not trucks overloaded with sheaves of barley, or dusty buses loaded with passengers or sputtering scooters approaching them on the road, but finally, an hour late, Mr. Clinton's entourage. He emerged from his black van and stood on a cleared, dirt patch in the midst of acres of rubble, splintered wood and collapsed red tile roofs, and waved somberly to the villagers. In the town of Anjar, admirers broke through the police barricades to encircle and touch Mr. Clinton. He finished up in Bhuj with a tour of the Red Cross field hospital and a stint at the microphone for a news conference. As he left, he spoke briefly with the Indian journalists who mobbed him. In his last words, as he tried to explain why he gone so far from home to find people to help, he said, "I'm just trying to find something useful to do in a place I care about."

26.3.1.2 Inside McKinsey Nexus to Enron "Inside McKinsey" - Businessweek 7/8/2002 "

It's the world's most prestigious consulting firm. But it helped create Enron's High Risk Business Model"...And Some of McKinsey's other clients haven't fared so well either: Kmart, Swissair, Global Crossing What's Happening". Shortly after Enron Corp. tumbled into bankruptcy last December 2001, McKinsey & Co. Managing Partner Rajat Gupta was worried. It wasn't only because former Enron CEO Jeffrey K. Skilling was once a McKinsey & Co. partner and loyal alum. Or that his firm had advised the giant energy trader for nearly 18 years on basic strategy, even sitting in on boardroom presentations to Enron's directors. Or even that many of the underlying principles of Enron's transformation, including its "asset-light" strategy, its "loose-tight" culture, and the securitization of debt, were eagerly promoted by McKinsey consultants. Gupta was worried about something much more immediate: Had McKinsey crossed a legal line that would drag it into the unfolding morass? In a stunning exercise for the world's whitest of white-shoe management consultants, Gupta dispatched his chief legal counsel to McKinsey's offices in Houston to review the firm's work at Enron. The mission was to find any evidence linking McKinsey to the massive fraud behind Enron's business model. The lawyer came back with good news: There were no shredded documents, a la Arthur Andersen LLP, and, more important, says Gupta, there was nothing in the files to show that McKinsey ever helped Enron engineer its controversial off-balance-sheet financing or its financial reporting strategy. "In all the work we did with Enron," maintains Gupta, "we did not do anything that is related to financial structuring or disclosure or any of the issues that got them into trouble. We stand by all the work we did. Beyond that, we can only empathize with the trouble they are going through. It's a sad thing to see." Still, outsiders marvel that the secretive partnership has not been drawn into the debacle, given its extensive involvement at Enron. "I'm surprised that they haven't been subpoenaed as a witness, at least," says Wayne E. Cooper, CEO of Kennedy Information, a research and publishing firm that keeps tabs on consultants. "There was so much smoke coming out of the Andersen smoking gun that all the firefighters went after that one. McKinsey was lucky. They dodged a bullet." The bad news, however, is that Enron, which was paying McKinsey as much as $10 million in annual fees, is just one of an unusual number of embarrassing client failures for the elite consulting firm. Besides Enron, there's Swissair, Kmart, and Global Crossing--all McKinsey clients that have filed for bankruptcy in relatively short order. And those are just the biggest. McKinsey also finds itself improbably lining up with other creditors to collect unpaid fees from recently bankrupt companies that soared during the late '90s only to crash later.

Battery maker Exide Technologies and NorthPoint Communications Group Inc., an upstart telecom provider, are two such examples. All of which raises uncomfortable questions about the world's most prestigious--and enigmatic--consulting firm. Did McKinsey's partners get caught up in the euphoria of the late '90s and suffer lapses of judgment? And if so, what does that say about the quality of its expensive advice? Did it stray from its core values? What accountability does it--or any consulting firm--have for the ideas and concepts it launches into a company? After all, McKinsey was a key architect of the strategic thinking that made Enron a Wall Street darling. In books, articles, and essays, its partners regularly stamped their imprimatur on many of Enron's strategies and practices, helping to position the energy giant as a corporate innovator worthy of emulation. The firm may not be the subject of any investigations, but its close involvement with Enron raises the question of whether McKinsey, like some other professional firms, ignored warning flags in order to keep an important account.

The breakdowns of such visible clients could not have come at a more trying time. Instead of celebrating the end of his third and final three-year term as managing director, Gupta, 53, finds his firm roiled by a rare and potentially disruptive downturn in its business. Like most other consulting firms, McKinsey rode the e-business wave to record revenues--and record partner payouts--in 2000. When the boom turned to bust, the firm was stuck with far too many consultants and not nearly enough assignments. The utilization rate, or billable time, of its consultants has fallen to its lowest level in more than 32 years: just 52%, vs. the heady 64% level during the dot-com boom....Gupta shows little concern over the meltdown of high-profile clients. "In these turbulent times, with our serving more than half the Fortune 500 companies, there are bound to be some clients that get into trouble," he says matter-of-factly. "We wouldn't have as many ongoing client situations if we didn't do good-quality work." And to be fair, McKinsey was hardly the only consultant to tie up with some high-flying upstarts in the '90s that later crashed. When he became McKinsey's managing partner in 1994, Gupta's challenge was clear: He had to keep up McKinsey's growth while ensuring that size would not destroy the ethos of the close-knit partnership or undermine the firm's guiding principles. McKinseyites refer to these precepts, laid down by the firm's early leader, Marvin Bower, with near-religious conviction. Among the high-minded goals: Hire the best people and urge them to always put the client first--ahead of the interests of the firm. In Gupta's early days as managing partner, some colleagues argued for keeping McKinsey small, to safeguard its culture and quality. Gupta was of another mind: He aggressively expanded abroad, opening up far-flung branches throughout Asia and Eastern Europe. In all, he expanded McKinsey's network to 84 worldwide locations from 58, boosted the consulting staff to 7,700 from 2,900, and lifted revenues to $3.4 billion from $1.2 billion in 1993. Meanwhile, the number of partners grew from 427 to 891. "It's a less personal place than it used to be," says Nancy Killefer, a senior partner in Washington, D.C. "In the old days, you knew everybody. That's not possible anymore." Some observers believe the changes in McKinsey's culture went even deeper. Quietly, some current and former McKinsey consultants say the firm strayed from some of the ingrained values that have long guided the firm. Through the dot-com boom, for example, McKinsey allowed its focus on building agenda-shaping relationships with top management at leading companies to slip, as the firm took on some distinctly downmarket clients and projects. Increasingly, McKinsey began advising upstarts and divisional managers at less prestigious companies. Worse, some argue, there was a noticeable tilt toward bringing in revenue at the expense of developing knowledge--a claim McKinsey vehemently disputes. "In [an earlier] era, the whole place had this tremendous focus on ideas," recalls a former McKinsey consultant. "I think knowledge has taken a backseat to revenue generation. The more revenues you create, the more your compensation and standing in the firm increases." Gupta downplays any shift in priorities. "The pendulum does swing a little bit. I'd say that client development in the last year or two is more in the forefront, simply because that is the biggest need right now," he says, using McKinsey-speak for bringing in new business. Perhaps the most visible example of this shift, say observers, was the rise of Ron Hulme, an affable, low-key senior partner and a leader of its energy practice, who managed the Enron account from McKinsey's Houston offices. Like many of the firm's consultants, Hulme penned essays extolling the virtues of Enron. As McKinsey's annual billings climbed higher and higher at Enron--at one recent point exceeding $10 million--Hulme commanded greater influence in the firm, helping to lead partner conferences and key initiatives. Some insiders even considered him a potential successor to Gupta, though that's now an unlikely prospect, given Enron's collapse. "Despite his young age, he had tremendously high standing and power that derived from the Enron relationship," says a former McKinseyite. Hulme declined to comment. Hulme did not initiate McKinsey's Enron business. Like many of the deepest and most lucrative corporate relationships, it began with one consultant who instantly impressed a client with his brilliance and insights. Jeffrey Skilling, then McKinsey's partner in charge of the worldwide energy practice, began advising Enron in the late '80s, but the relationship was cemented when he joined Enron in 1990 with the mandate to create a new way of doing business. Skilling, who once said he felt as if he were "doing God's work" at McKinsey, had proposed that Enron create a portfolio of fixed-price purchase and supply contracts that would supposedly eliminate supply risks and minimize the price fluctuations of the spot market for trading natural gas. After joining Enron, Skilling repeatedly turned to McKinsey teams for analytical help and advice. "They infiltrated Enron with Jeff, and he was just the tip of the iceberg," says a former McKinsey consultant who worked at Enron. "There were all sorts of McKinsey people who went in over the years. They were so happy they had Enron locked up." Indeed, several other prominent McKinsey consultants migrated to Enron as employees, including partner Doug Woodham, who left the firm in 1994 for a four-year stint as vice-president at Enron Capital & Trade Resources, where he led a team that developed an electric power and natural gas hedge fund. As Enron work became more financially driven, McKinsey teams there increasingly drew on partners with expertise in trading, risk management, and investment banking. At any given time, McKinsey had as many as 20 consultants at the energy company, several stationed in Enron's offices. By and large, most of McKinsey's assignments at Enron were tactical or technical in nature: doing the prep work for entering new markets, formulating strategy for new products and services, and deciding whether Enron should acquire or partner with another company to gain access to a pipeline. But McKinsey also helped Enron formulate its now-discredited broadband strategy, in which it built a high-speed fiber network to support the trading of communications capacity. Among other things, McKinsey, over about six months, helped to gauge the size and growth of the market. And, like Enron and many others, it didn't see the telecom meltdown coming. McKinsey also helped to set up the finance subsidiary that Enron later portrayed as its growth engine, and also assisted the firm with its commodity risk management operations. A former Enron senior executive says McKinsey consultants wielded influence throughout the organization. "They were all over the place," he says. "They were sitting with us every step of the way. They thought, 'This thing could be big, and we want credit for it.'" The extent of its work there and its access to senior management exposed the firm to much of Enron's inner workings. Over the years, McKinsey partners Hulme and Suzanne Nimocks had numerous one-on-one discussions with Skilling, according to former Enron executives. Richard N. Foster, a senior partner, even became an adviser to Enron's board, attending a half-dozen board meetings in the 12 months up until October, 2001. Foster was frequently asked to step out of those meetings while the partners conferred with company lawyers over confidential matters. Competitors privately gloat that the title of Foster's most recent book, Creative Destruction, aptly captures what went wrong at Enron. Embarrassingly, the book, published in April, 2001, is filled with glowing references to Enron. "Dick Foster was very happy to see practice that enforced his theories of creative destruction at Enron," says a partner at another consulting firm. "McKinsey seems to have partners who develop academic theories and then run clinical trials on their clients." Foster declined to comment. Some insiders offer a less benign interpretation of what went wrong at Enron. They don't claim McKinsey did anything illegal but do suggest it might have turned a blind eye to signs of trouble to preserve a lucrative relationship. "The problem for McKinsey with Enron isn't Andersen-type issues," says the former McKinsey consultant who worked at Enron. "Rather, it's 'Could they have seen the organization malfunctioning and spoken up?' The answer is yes. When you have a mega-client, 'This is what the client should hear' is twisted into, 'This is what is going to let us stay at the boardroom level.'" Gupta won't be drawn into a detailed conversation on Enron. "Our view is not so much to have a public point of view here," he says. "I won't specifically talk about our work at Enron. We're constantly assessing whether we served everybody in the right way. I think we have."

Perhaps so. But many of the intellectual underpinnings of Enron's transformation from pipeline company to trading colossus can be traced directly to McKinsey thinking. Senior partner Lowell Bryan, one of the most influential of the firm's big thinkers today, has written extensively on securitized credit--the process of converting loans or receivables into securities. As far back as 1987, just after McKinsey began consulting for Enron, Bryan was writing that "securitization's potential is great because it removes capital and balance sheets as constraints on growth." It was Bryan, too, who has written and spoken extensively on how capital-intensive companies such as Enron can generate greater value by finding ways to run low-asset businesses--what Skilling referred to as his "asset-light" strategy. Bryan was brought into Enron to convey these ideas to the company's top 100 executives. But he insists his ideas are not to blame. "I never said anything about fraud, accounting, or any of those issues."

If McKinsey has been humbled by the Enron experience, it certainly doesn't show it. When New York headquarters asked all consultants who favorably mentioned Enron in articles whether they wanted their citations taken off McKinsey's Web site, not a single consultant said yes. So all of the nearly 30 separate references to Enron in McKinsey-authored articles remain on the site. As things began to unravel at Enron, some other important clients were also going off the rails. At Kmart, McKinsey produced work supporting the retailer's decision to sell more groceries in a bid to get shoppers to visit stores. It also was instrumental in creating BlueLight.com, which was intended to be spun off in an initial public offering but never made it to market. McKinsey began consulting for the retailer in 1994. In the ensuing years, Kmart's competitive position steadily eroded. "That is a long enough time for a firm to know if its advice has impact," says an ex-McKinsey consultant. "But senior partners need to show revenue growth, so they are willing to continue to work with clients even if they feel there is no light at the end of the tunnel." McKinsey ended its relationship in 2000 after disagreeing with new CEO Charles Conaway, who pursued a disastrous price war against Wal-Mart. Still, McKinsey's involvement through the mid- to late 1990s, when Kmart swiftly and steadily lost ground to Wal-Mart, did not serve either client or consultant well. At Swissair Group, McKinsey advised a major shift in strategy that led the once highly regarded airline to spend nearly $2 billion buying stakes in many small and troubled European airlines. The idea was for Swissair to expand into aviation services, providing everything from maintenance to food for other airlines as a way to increase revenues and profits. The strategy backfired, causing massive losses and a bankruptcy filing last October. McKinsey maintains it can't be held responsible for the outcome because it wasn't involved in the implementation of the strategy. At Global Crossing Ltd., McKinsey says its work was limited to only three projects, two of which involved information-technology outsourcing, so it cannot be blamed for the telecom provider's implosion. The Internet boom posed an especially difficult challenge for McKinsey. The blanket assumption was that the rules of the game were changing, and many McKinseyites saw their former MBA classmates emerge overnight as multimillion-dollar entrepreneurial celebrities. Inside the firm, Gupta was faced with all kinds of new pressures: whether McKinsey should start a venture-capital fund, or go public itself, or start its own dot-com ventures as offshoots of the firm's consulting business; whether to accept equity instead of cash for an assignment with a startup. The partnership declined to sell shares, as Goldman Sachs had done, but in other important ways it veered from the course it had long followed. One of the most noticeable changes was a drift away from its longstanding policy of not linking its fees to client performance. Bower believed alternative fee arrangements could tempt consultants to focus on the wrong things. During the past 18 months, McKinsey has been structuring dozens of deals with blue-chip companies that call for the payment of an assignment-ending bonus if a client is satisfied with the results. In the past three years, it also began accepting payment in stock from approximately 150 upstart companies, though McKinsey points out that this is a small percentage of its 12,000 engagements in that time. Gupta says the change allowed the firm to serve smaller, innovative companies that didn't have the cash to pay McKinsey's standard fees of $275,000 to $350,000 a month. The equity was then sunk into a blind trust and liquidated as soon as possible into a profit pool for its partners. In another case, that of Spain's Telefonica, it added a clause in its contract giving it a cash kicker based on the rising stock price of an Internet offshoot McKinsey was advising. The firm collected a $6.8 million bonus. McKinsey got its share, of course. In its quest for revenue growth, it pursued a whole new class of clientele. Demand for consulting soared from both startups and large corporate clients, many of which had grown fearful that they were falling behind the Internet curve. During the peak two years of the dot-com boom, McKinsey alone did more than 1,000 e-commerce assignments, even as partners internally debated the true impact of the Net on clients. "I was in the room saying, 'You're smoking dope here on this dot-com stuff,'" recalls Roger Kline, a longtime McKinsey partner who oversees the financial-services practice. But the firm even set up "accelerators," or facilities, to help entrepreneurs launch new dot-coms with direct McKinsey help. "Maybe we should have been a little more circumspect than we were," concedes Gupta. "But I don't think we made any big errors or excesses." Not surprisingly, some of McKinsey's dot-com clients fared little better than Pets.com Inc. EB2B Commerce Inc. (EBTB), which engaged McKinsey in early 2000 to help it develop a strategy after a merger, was recently warned by Nasdaq that its stock could be delisted. The company's shares have plummeted to 15 cents from $190 when McKinsey started working with it. Another high-tech client, Applied Digital Solutions Inc. (ADSXE), which McKinsey helped in exchange for equity, is in the midst of a meltdown, with first-quarter losses of $17 million. Applied Digital's auditors resigned the account in May after an accounting dispute with the company, which describes itself as a developer of "life-enhancing personal safeguard technologies." Shares of Applied Digital now trade for 57 cents. To be sure, McKinsey's core blue-chip clients, which range from General Motors Corp. (GM) to Johnson & Johnson (JNJ), remain the firm's true bread and butter--partly because only those big companies can afford its fees. "McKinsey is expensive," says Ralph Larsen, former CEO of J&J. "But what they provide is a fresh look at our thinking and a certain detachment. We use them carefully for selected projects, things of great significance, and they have been valuable to us." In managing the firm through the boom and the bust, Gupta now finds himself caught in a classic supply-demand squeeze, the sort of management dilemma for which a client would turn to McKinsey for advice: He hired too many people just as demand began to plummet. In an average year, McKinsey will offer consulting jobs to 3,100 MBAs and professionals in the expectation of getting roughly 2,000 acceptances. In 2000, however, more than 2,700 people accepted offers to join the firm. They apparently knew what McKinsey didn't yet get: The boom was over. By the following year, with the bubble clearly burst, the firm's attrition rate fell to only 5%. Suddenly, just as demand for business started falling off, McKinsey had too many consultants on the payroll, with fewer leaving for other opportunities. "We honored every offer and didn't push people out," says Gupta, "and we had no professional layoffs other than our traditional up-or-out stuff." As McKinsey begins its months-long process early next year to elect a new managing partner, the firm will likely toast Gupta as the man who led the firm to new growth records in new markets around the world. "In every generation, there are issues that come up that define the firm," he says. "We've had our share in the last decade. But I feel very proud of where we've come out." The question for his successor is whether he expanded the firm at the cost of the culture and values that made McKinsey tower above its peers

26.4 McKinsey's Leadership in Common Core Rotten to the Core

In review of the Big Picture and the role of Common Core one can see the objective is to degrade the K12 Public school system (Like other programs such as "No Child Left Behind", "No Place for Hate", Laidlaw-First Student School Bus Leasing, Privatization via Charter Schools and replacement of US Teachers using H1B Visa Teachers and awarding the management services contracts to crony vendors).

In July, the state of New York announced the results of its first tests based on the Common Core: The region hasn't been this battered since Superstorm Sandy. Just 26 percent of students in third through eighth grade passed the English exam, and only 30 percent passed the math test. In one Harlem school, just seven percent of students received passing scores in English, and 10 percent in math. We've gone from No Child Left Behind to Well-Just-About-Every-Child-Left-Behind ...progress of a kind. If 'learned helplessness' is the Common Core's goal, it's a stunning success." Businessman George Ball

Indeed, the tests based on the new Common Core (CC) curriculum horrified both parents and educators in New York State, as they are sure to do in the 45 other states that have accepted these new federal-education standards. Yet in the very definition of a clueless response to the disastrous test results, NY State Education Commissioner John B. King, Jr. said that "these proficiency scores do not reflect a drop in performance, but rather a raising of standards to reflect college and career readiness in the 21st century." Nice try, Mr. King. Go back to sleep. How did this happen? Here's a little history. When President George W. Bush introduced No Child Left Behind, liberals and teachers' unions went crazy. How dare any program actually measure the effectiveness of classroom teachers or, worse, hold them accountable for decade after decade of failure? How dare that same program document the great number of students allowed to progress through grade after grade in spite of jaw-dropping deficits in math and literacy? Isn't it wrongheaded, critics asked, to 'teach to the test' instead of giving students better skills and deeper knowledge? As if testing skills and knowledge is a bad thing! Of course the "evolved" progressives and educrats among us decided to contrive a better mousetrap for improving the devolving state of American public-school education and they called their brainchild Common Core, a program that was formally adopted by the federal government in 2010 and by NY State in 2011. Other contributors to this dumbed-down excuse for education included members of the leftist Aspen Institute which was founded in 1950 to, among other things, "define a good society." Common Core has a nice ring, doesn't it, suggesting that we're all in this together and we all believe in education that includes America's "core" values? Don't be fooled. As author and journalist Dean Kalahar writes, "Common Core...may look delicious, but before you take a bite out of the apple, it might be a good idea to know a razor is inside." As Kalahar explains, "President Obama and Education Secretary [Arne] Duncan falsely said the Common Core standards were developed by the states and voluntarily adopted. CC was actually developed by an organization called Achieve, approved by the National Governors Association and funded by the Gates Foundation by at least $173 million dollars. The [cash-starved] states were bribed by $4.35 billion 'Race to the Top' dollars if they adopted the standards. Federal laws prohibit the U.S. Department of Education from prescribing any curriculum, but four billion is a big carrot – or is it a stick? Forty-six states and the District of Columbia have sold out... I mean 'signed on.'" According to journalist Nick Wills, the Common Core curriculum was implemented with virtually no empirical evidence of its value, and it was rushed into school systems without consulting – drum roll here – students, teachers and parents! Education-reformer Diane Ravitch says that the standards have been adopted "without any field test ... imposed on the children of this nation despite the fact that no one has any idea how they will affect students, teachers, or schools." This takes on a certain grotesque logic when, according to businessman

George Ball, you realize that in "the 60-person work group that developed the curriculum, there was not one practicing teacher! David Coleman, chief architect of the Common Core curriculum, now heads the College Board. That's worrisome, and so is Coleman's background as a consultant at McKinsey & Co., the firm that so ably advised Kmart, Enron, Swissair and Global Crossing." But so irresponsible were our educators and so avaricious to feed at the federal trough that they bought the whole package without even a sneak-peek at its contents. What did they buy?

Kalahar states that "for all intents and purposes, Common Core is nationalized education. History has shown that state-run information control, which begins with education, has always led to disastrous results, [for example] the USSR, Germany, and Cuba. "The foundational philosophy of Common Core," Kalahar adds, "is to create students ready for social action so they can force a social-justice agenda." According to Wall St. Journal writer David Feith: "Common Core is about an obsession with race, class, gender, and sexuality as the forces of history and political identity...nationalizing education via Common Core is about promoting an agenda of anti-capitalism, sustainability, white guilt, global citizenship, self-esteem, affective math, and culture-sensitive spelling and language. This is done in the name of consciousness raising, moral relativity, fairness, diversity, and multiculturalism." Again, with zero input from students, teachers and parents – and zero knowledge by any parents about what is going on in their children's classrooms! For instance, did you know that the people who bleat most loudly about transparency – in this case those in Obama's U.S. Dept. of Education – rewrote federal privacy laws in 2012 allowing the powers-that-be to share your child's academic record with virtually anyone? Now states are starting to combine student test scores, discipline history, medical records, nicknames, religion, political affiliation, addresses, extracurricular activities, fingerprints, iris scans, DNA, blood type, religion, family income, bus stop schedules and psychological evaluations into a private database called in Bloom."The federal government is acquiring a massive amount of data that can be sold to the highest bidders," says Carole Hornsby Haynes, Ph.D., a curriculum specialist and writer. "This is an invasion of student and family privacy and a violation of our 4th Amendment rights. The education-technology buzzards are circling overhead and, having smelled the strong scent of money, are salivating at the thought of making billions from this new goldmine."Did the principal of your child's school let you know about this gross – and I believe, unconstitutional – invasion of privacy? Did your child's teacher? Did the superintendent? Did the School Board? No? Is that alone not an indefensible breach of trust and a further reason to reject this insidious Trojan Horse into American education? Journalist and author Michelle Malkin calls Common Core "the stealthy federal takeover of school curriculum and standards across the country." She explains that for decades, "collectivist agitators in our schools have chipped away at academic excellence in the name of fairness, diversity and social justice. [They] denounced Western civilization requirements, the Founding Fathers and the Great Books as racist. They attacked traditional grammar classes as irrelevant in modern life. They deemed ability grouping of students (tracking) bad for self-esteem. They replaced time-tested rote techniques and standard algorithms with fuzzy math, inventive spelling and multicultural claptrap." Malkin says that independent members of the expert panel in charge of validating the standards refute the claim that Common Core standards are superior. "Stanford University professor James Milgram, the only mathematician on the validation panel, concluded that the Common Core math scheme would place American students two years behind their peers in other high-achieving countries. In protest, Milgram refused to sign off on the standards. He's not alone." Professor Jonathan Goodman of New York University found that the Common Core math standards imposed "significantly lower expectations with respect to algebra and geometry than the published standards of other countries." And Ze'ev Wurman, a prominent software architect and longtime math advisory expert in California and Washington, D.C., said that "Common Core marks the cessation of educational standards improvement in the United States. No state has any reason left to aspire for first-rate standards, as all states will be judged by the same mediocre national benchmark enforced by the federal government." Journalist Cheryl Carpenter Klimek says that, "We've all been taught that $2+1=3$, but under Common Core the answer could be 4, or pretty much any number you want to offer – as long as you can explain how you calculated the problem...." She cites a video of a Chicago teacher, Amanda August, explaining the, ahem, logic of this Common Core policy: "Even if they said, '3 x 4 was 11,' if they were able to explain their reasoning and explain how they came up with their answer really in, umm, words and oral explanation, and they showed it in the picture but they just got the final number wrong, we're really more focusing on the how." Writer Tabitha Korol has pored over the textbooks used in the CC curriculum. Prentiss Hall's "World History," currently used in Brevard County, Florida, devotes a 72-page chapter to Islam and only small paragraphs about Judaism and Christianity which are embedded in other chapters. Multiple editions of Houghton Mifflin's "Across the Centuries" were found to contain Islamic preaching. And Pearson, the world's leading pre-K-20 educational publishing company, is "dedicated to working with educators to change the way America thinks." "With whose approval?" Korol asks. Indeed! In "Contemporary Human Geography 2e," Korol found mention of "the Five Pillars of Islam, the Four Noble Truths of Buddhism, but not the values and righteous ethics of the Ten Commandments of Judaism and Christianity. In "Human Geography," Korol found that "two of the topics posed the acceptability of murdering Jews, but for different reasons and judged by different circumstances. The superintendent of schools in one of the districts said he didn't find that offensive..." "Not only have they removed classes in civics, history, our nation's foundation and traditional values," Korol states, "but they have ensured the erasure by discontinuing cursive writing from the curriculum, the same script used for our original official documents, including the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, to make them indecipherable and insignificant. Gone are the studies in economics, needed for creative, entrepreneurial job opportunities, the country's growth, and the arts, a reflection of the culture. How different is this from the book burning events of Nazism and other conquering tyrannical regimes? "Further, the students will suffer a 60 percent cut in reading classic literature, poetry and drama, including the works of Charles Dickens, Edith Wharton, and Mark Twain, and the introduction of Algebra-1 and, by extension, advanced math will be delayed. From this information alone, it appears that the next generation is destined to become the drones of a worker society, not the citizens of an exceptional nation." Korol says that the Common Core textbooks "omit essential data and provide indoctrinating narratives that devalue Israel, Judaism and Christianity in favor of Islam." For instance, in Albany, New York, a high school English teacher used a Common Core textbook for her students' assignment, which was to watch old Nazi propaganda films and justify to the Kommandant (portrayed by the teacher) why the Jews should be murdered. And a teacher in Brentwood, Tennessee, asked her students if it was acceptable for Palestinians to kill Jewish children, based upon Israel's occupation of "Palestine." In yet another CC textbook, Korol says, "two spellings are given for the Arab capitals of Mecca and Medina, but Jerusalem, the Jewish capital in Israel for three millennia since the days of David, is absent! Similarly, the text mentions Muslim mosque designs, Christian churches and church architecture, Hindu temples, Buddhist and Shinto Pagodas, and Baha'i Temples, but not one mention of the various Jewish synagogue creations that reflected the architecture of their host cultures over the centuries." This is the tip of the proverbial iceberg. Korol and Malkin document their findings exhaustively and extensively, as do others who have made it their business to research the astoundingly racist – and of course leftist – curriculum, which is so replete with omissions, mistakes and distortions that it insures a one-size-fits-all population of astounding ignorance and deeply-embedded prejudice. Or, as Will Fitzhugh, publisher of The Concord Review has said: "The Common Core curriculum ...is enabling students to be ignoramuses." Journalist and author Dr. Ileana Johnson Paugh provides additional examples of the vile indoctrination the Common Core inflicts on students. She cites the development of a first-grade Democracy Plan to help people in need. "Is this what first graders do now, they think about ways to organize people in their communities to fix social problems? This is community organizing; this is communism, not literature and writing." "In the same series of books," Paugh adds, "educators are directed to teach first graders about emotional words of anger and fear in order to accomplish their social justice goals. The workbook gives the following example, 'My mom___ (tells) (nags) me to clean my room.' Students are supposed to choose 'nags' because it is an emotional word of anger. If a student chooses 'tells,' the answer is incorrect." Homework activities, she says, include practicing being upset and angry because "feelings cause people to act." "Is there any wonder that we have the Occupy Wall Street mobs, angry mobs, flash mobs, and people talking over each other? Liberals are taught to be ruled by feelings and not by logic." By third grade, Paugh explains, teachers must "measure attitudes, beliefs, and dispositions," noting on the Student Observation Form whether "growth and change in individual student's behavior and attitudes is observed. Does the student use the plural 'we' and 'our' to advocate ways to solve social problems? In other words, I and my, individualism, are frowned upon." Not incidentally, as a dangerous companion program to Common Core, the American Library Association is now teaching librarians how to push Islam. As part of a National Endowment for the Humanities program funded by $150 million of our taxpayer dollars, 25 books and a DVD are being provided to 800 public libraries – is your library included? – but no books on Judaism, Christianity, Buddhism, Hinduism, etc. The good news is that all over the country more and more people are becoming aware of the totalitarian nature of the Common Core curriculum and fighting back. Malkin lists grassroots parents groups and Tea Party groups in Massachusetts, Georgia, Utah, Texas, Indiana, Alabama, Florida, Ohio, South Carolina, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and nearly a dozen other states that are now educating themselves and their state legislatures about "the centralized education racket." In addition, the Indiana state senate passed legislation to halt Common Core implementation and similar legislation is moving through the Alabama state legislature. And a few weeks ago, Governor Rick Scott of Florida held an education summit for education, business and political leaders on Common Core. Writing of the summit, Laura Rambeau Lee says: "The primary objection is that it is taking the control of our children's education away from the parents, teachers, and local, even state, departments of education." For instance, she adds, "on a nationwide scale, every teacher in every second grade class will be doing the same assignment on the same day of the same week. Teachers are no longer responsible for lesson plans. They are given the specific assignments and are teaching them to their students. If a student does not understand he or she will be out of luck, because tomorrow it is on to the next assignment. There is no opportunity to help the students who do not 'get it.' They will become frustrated and begin to have behavior problems and hate school. Many parents are already experiencing these problems with their children." Additionally, "What is the correct answer? All I know is it is not 'B.' Parents will not understand the assignment sufficiently to help their child and the child will begin to believe their teacher knows more than their parents." Rambeau

Lee exhorts every parent to demand to see his or her child's assignments. She says there are anti-Common Core Facebook pages for every state, and links to other education websites on her blog, Right-Reason.com (under the education tab). David Bloomfield, professor of Education, Law and Policy at Brooklyn College, describes the defensiveness, excuses and rationalizations we've started to hear from the educational establishment this way: "The amount of spin is directly proportional to the size of the screw-up."

26.6 H1B Visa Issues related to 9/11

Several points to note here was the incident at Prudential in Roseland NJ and the fact the alleged 9/11 bombers used the Bush Express visa program to enter into the United States.

One 9/11 IT Consultants reported at Prudential, Roseland, NJ the company was in the midst of replacing US IT labor with cheap foreign H1B Visa workers at that time one of the primary resources was Tata an large Indian based conglomerate firm. The Prudential IT consultants watched on the monitors the World Trade Center Building collapse. As this was going on, the Tata IT Indian Consultants cheered and said repeatedly “Hooray you guys (United States) deserved this it was a long time coming”. Subsequently Prudential let go of the American IT professional consulting labor and replaced them for cheap Tata foreign H1B Visa Labor. About six months after this incident Prudential discovered the company’s Chief Information Officer was taking kick backs from Tata and fired. However Prudential did retain the Tata Labor and continued to disallow US IT labor to work on Prudential projects.

Prudential Stiffs Families of Suicidal GI's of Veteran Benefits. - NEWARK (CN) July 2012 - Prudential Insurance and the Department of Veterans Affairs refuse to pay life insurance benefits to families of military veterans who commit suicide due to post-traumatic stress disorder, four families claim in Federal Court. Lead plaintiff Mathew Ecker's son Michael served in Iraq in 2005-06 and received "at least eleven medals, ribbons, and badges of honor for his service," his father says in the complaint. "After Michael's return from Iraq his parents observed a dramatic change in his personality. He was in constant physical pain, suffered memory losses, and was anxious all the time. Michael never left the war behind and after medical treatment efforts failed him, on August 28, 2009, he walked to the garden, saluted his father in military fashion, placed a gun to his head and pulled the trigger. Mathew was the sole beneficiary of the SGLI [Service members Group Life Insurance] policy of his son, in the amount of $400,000. "Mathew has testified under oath that, while alive, Michael never received from Prudential any notice that he could convert his SGLI policy to a VGLI [Veterans Group Life Insurance] policy."

The grieving families claim that Prudential denied benefits by claiming that late veterans did not switch their SGLI policies over to VGLI within 120 days of separation from the military. "Members of the United States Armed Forces carry life insurance protection governed by federal statute. The life insurance protection is administered by Prudential under the SGLI and VGLI programs," the complaint states. "The SGLI and VGLI insurance programs are federal programs, but the United States government is the policyholder, not the insurer. The United States has contracted since 1965 with Prudential, which serves as the primary insurer administering the program. "SGLI and VGLI are guaranteed by the United States, to allow Prudential to derive monetary profit from administration of the programs. Thus in cases where service members are dying at higher rates than those envisioned by the risk calculations of Prudential, i.e. wars, the United States through the VA supplements the cash necessary to make certain Prudential does not lose expected profits from administration of the programs. "SGLI is the insurance program for active service members and members of the reserves when they are in active duty training. VGLI is the insurance program which covers veterans. The insurance premiums for SGLI are collected by the United States. The insurance premiums for VGLI are paid directly to Prudential by veterans. "Servicemembers and their dependents are automatically granted SGLI while in active military service, unless the servicemember opts out of coverage. SGLI coverage terminates automatically 120 days after the servicemember's separation from the military unless the deactivated member of the armed forces is disabled at the time of deactivation. Upon deactivation the insured is entitled to convert his SGLI coverage into VGLI coverage of equal value by submitting an application and the first premium payment with 120 days after the end of active service. "Under the terms of the statute controlling the programs, SVA [defendant Secretary of Veterans Affairs Erik Shinseki] is required to issue guidelines determining who is disabled for the purposes of establishing whether beneficiaries are entitled to the policy benefit in cases where a service member has not timely converted his/her SGLI policy to a VGLI policy. "When the service member is disabled at the time of deactivation, 38 U.S.C. §1968(a)(4) provides for continuous SGLI coverage for up to two years or until disability ceases, whichever occurs earlier." The plaintiff families all claim that their loved ones suffered from post-traumatic stress disorder and were unable to hold onto jobs before they killed themselves. They all claim that their loved ones were not informed in a timely manner about switching their policies from SGLI to VGLI. They cite two similar instances, in which the Department of Veterans Affairs ordered Prudential to pay benefits to beneficiaries of deceased veterans. In one case, "Prudential paid the benefit in that case even though: 1) the veteran failed to timely covert his SGLI policy to a VGLI policy, 2) more than two years had elapsed between deactivation and death, and 3) the veteran had been able to work at a refinery for period of fifteen months between deactivation and death," the complaint states. "In another case, of information and belief, Prudential was ordered by SVA [the Secretary of Veteran Affairs] or VA [the Department of Veteran Affairs] to pay the VGLI benefit to the beneficiary of a veteran who committed suicide on the basis that Prudential had failed to notify the veteran upon deactivation from the service and/or separation from the Ready Reserve that he could convert his SGLI policy to VGLI." The plaintiffs claim that the defendants

"intentionally denied the benefits of the life insurance of their insured under the SGLI and VGLI programs, with no rational basis for so doing, whereas others identically situated to plaintiffs were paid benefits under the life insurance policies." Citing The New York Times, the complaint states that "more than 4,000 former service members have died after returning home from Iraq and Afghanistan. Many of those returning veterans have died from self-inflicted wounds." The families seek actual damages, and damages for constitutional violations, breach of contract and breach of fiduciary duty. They are represented by Katherine Robinson with Layser & Freiwald, of Philadelphia

Associate Pres Oct 21, 2013 Philip Elliot - Almost 6 million young people are neither in school nor working, according to a study released Monday. That's almost 15 percent of those aged 16 to 24 who have neither desk nor job, according to The Opportunity Nation coalition, which wrote the report. Other studies have shown that idle young adults are missing out on a window to build skills they will need later in life or use the knowledge they acquired in college. Without those experiences, they are less likely to command higher salaries and more likely to be an economic drain on their communities. "This is not a group that we can write off. They just need a chance," said Mark Edwards, executive director of the coalition of businesses, advocacy groups, policy experts and nonprofit organizations dedicated to increasing economic mobility. "The tendency is to see them as lost souls and see them as unsavable. They are not." But changing the dynamic is not going to be easy. The coalition also finds that 49 states have seen an increase in the number of families living in poverty and 45 states have seen household median incomes fall in the last year. The dour report underscores the challenges young adults face now and foretell challenges they are likely to face as they get older. A young person's community is often closely tied to his or her success. The Opportunity Nation report tracked 16 factors — Internet access, college graduation rates, income inequality and public safety among them — and identified states that were doing well for its young people. Topping the list of supportive states are Vermont, Minnesota and North Dakota. At the bottom? Nevada, Mississippi and New Mexico. "Their destiny is too often determined by their ZIP code," said Charlie Mangiardi, who works with Year Up, a nonprofit that trains young adults for careers and helps them find jobs. "We have the supply. We don't have a lack of young people who need this opportunity," Mangiardi added....

Cruz, the keynote speaker at the new "In Defense Of Christians" organization's dinner in Washington DC, had offered the crowd--a number of whom were Christians from the Middle East, including Palestinian Christians--public support for Israel. After doing so, some members of the crowd booed at Cruz, and they persisted until he left the stage, noting their hatred and saying he can't stand with them if they don't stand with Israel. "Tonight, in Washington, should have been a night of unity as we came together for the inaugural event for a group that calls itself 'In Defense of Christians.' Instead, it unfortunately deteriorated into a shameful display of bigotry and hatred," Cruz said in a statement provided to Breitbart News. "When I spoke in strong support of Israel and the Jewish people, who are being persecuted and murdered by the same vicious terrorists who are also slaughtering Christians, many Christians in the audience applauded. But, sadly, a vocal and angry minority of attendees at the conference tried to shout down my expression of solidarity with Israel."

26.8 More US Service Jobs Go Overseas

- <http://www.usatoday.com/story/money/business/2012/12/06/service-jobs-offshore/1751857/>

USA Today - 9:58PM EST December 6, 2012 - The strike that crippled two of the nation's busiest shipping ports was settled this week, but the trend it spotlighted — the offshoring of service jobs — is expected to continue to grow across the USA. The eight-day walkout by clerical workers at the ports of Los Angeles and Long Beach largely centered on the outsourcing of their jobs overseas and elsewhere in the U.S., says Craig Merrilees, a spokesman for the International Longshore and Warehouse Union. Shippers denied outsourcing jobs, but the tentative settlement restricts the practice, according to the Associated Press. Yet service companies have been sending jobs abroad in large numbers the past decade to cut labor costs — a trend that accelerated in the recession and is expected to continue the next few years before slowing after 2016. About 663,000 large-company jobs in information technology, human resources, finance and purchasing — the category that includes the port workers — have been offshored since 2002, according to The Hackett Group. By 2016, the consulting firm estimates, another 375,000 jobs in the sectors will be moved abroad. More than a third of the U.S. jobs in those industries in 2002 will have moved offshore by 2016. Most workers are employed directly by companies that previously used U.S. staffers, though some work for outsourcing firms. Hackett studied companies with at least $1 billion in annual revenue, noting they represent about 75% of the offshoring market. India is the largest offshoring center. Service jobs also have gone to eastern Europe, the Philippines, China and Mexico. In other sectors, initially low-level jobs were offshored, such as handling payroll or tracking purchase orders. Employers typically can cut labor costs by about 75%, Dorr says. In recent years, a growing number of higher-level jobs have moved overseas, such as benefits analysis and vendor management, though the cost savings for offshoring those positions is only about 25%. The trend took off after companies began contracting with programmers in India to help with the massive preparations for the Y2K computer bug in 2000, says Hackett research director Erik Dorr. "Organizations now feel more comfortable moving up the value chain," Dorr says, noting, for example, that India's education system is improving and turning out top-notch job candidates. Since 2005, legal services such as document review, contract drafting and regulatory communication increasingly have been offshored, particularly to India, says Greg McPolin, managing director of Pangea3, a legal outsourcing firm. Indian attorneys handle work that in the U.S. is sometimes done by paralegals and at a 40% to 60% cost savings, he says. Several thousand legal jobs have been offshored, estimates Edward Brooks, founder of The LPO Program, a legal consulting firm. Striking workers carry placards Tuesday at the Port of Los Angeles. The now-settled labor strike highlighted the trend of the offshoring of service jobs. "In the current environment, it is more important than ever that ... the support we provide to clients adds value without adding unnecessary cost," law firm Clifford Chance said in a statement. Once services are offshored, there's little chance they'll come back to the U.S., Dorr says. By contrast, manufacturers have returned some production to the U.S. recently, largely because of a narrowing wage gap between the U.S. and China, rising shipping costs and falling U.S. energy costs — factors that generally haven't affected service jobs. One exception: call-center jobs. About 500,000 were offshored from 2006 to 2010, according to the Communications Workers of America. Many have returned to the U.S. the last few years because of cultural gaps between representatives and customers that hurt sales, says Hal Sirkin, senior partner of Boston Consulting Group. Yet CWA spokeswoman Candice Johnson called the jobs that have come back "a drop in the bucket."

26.8.1 US Jobs Going to H1B Labor

The last time I looked, the US economy was creating not many more than 100,000 new jobs per month. Therefore, isn't it a dirty crime, an assault on the millions of American unemployed, to import [at least] 100,000 legal immigrants each month? And that's not counting the allegedly-temporary H1b visa holders. Professor Andrew Sum is one among several economists who have shown that immigrants fill about 90% of all new jobs. Now it is obvious why that happens! The United States needs an immigration moratorium in place until our economic problems get sorted out!

26.8.2 U.S. Congress imports 100,000 immigrants into America every 30 days

- <http://beforeitsnews.com/politics/2012/12/u-s-congress-imports-100000-immigrants-every-30-days-2474582.html>

Last month, in November our U.S. Congress imported 100,000 legal immigrants into America. This month, December 2012, our 435 citizen-representatives in Congress will bestow another 100,000 legal immigrants upon our shores, into our communities, into our schools and into our job market with green cards. Whether they can speak English, benefit this country with a skill or not, or are compatible with a 21st century culture—doesn't matter. Congress piles them into this country because it's been doing it for the past 47 years. And not 1,000 Americans give it a second glance, sneeze or thought. Our U.S. congress imports and has imported 100,000 legal immigrants into our country every 30 days, of every month, of every year, of every decade since 1965. That continued importation of an endless armada of humanity added 100 million people to our country in the last 47 years. That same Congress will add another 100 million immigrants to our country within the next three decades, give or take a few years. U.S. Census Bureau projects an addition of 100 million people to our country by 2035, a scant 23 years from now and 138 million by 2050—a mere 38 years from now. That's a total of all legal, illegal, chain migration and their babies—immigrants landing in America. Congress continues importing that 100,000 immigrants each month in light of our own 14 million unemployed, crumbling infrastructure, degrading educational systems and our failing cities and erratic environment, i.e., drought, food costs, water shortages and lowering standard of living of the middle class. Yet, you won't hear a peep out of the White House, Congress or Main Stream Media about the ultimate consequences of adding that 138 million people. Here's what America will look like in 2050:

This 10 minute demonstration shows Americans the results of unending mass immigration on the quality of life and sustainability for future generations: in a few words, “Mind boggling!”

Am I the only American citizen to notice that America cannot survive this “Human Katrina and Human Sandy” combined—overwhelming our shores? Am I the only one that is frightened out of my mind at the ramifications of adding 100 million immigrants? Why haven’t George Will, Kathleen Parker, Maureen Dowd, Scott Pelley, Diane Sawyer and Brian Williams written and reported on the catastrophic consequences all of us face—IF we allow this human invasion to continue?

“We must alert and organize the world's people to pressure world leaders to take specific steps to solve the two root causes of our environmental crises - exploding population growth and wasteful consumption of irreplaceable resources. Over-consumption and overpopulation underlie every environmental problem we face today.”
Jacques-Yves Cousteau, Oceanographer

Can anyone tell me one, single, positive aspect of adding THAT 138 million more people? Anybody? Can George Noory at Coast to Coast tell me that it’s going to be all peaches and cream? george@coasttocoastam.com How about Charlie Rose at CharlieRose@pbs.com ? How about Brian Williams? nightly@nbcnews.com How Neil Conan at NPR: talk@npr.org

Contact them. I have a dozen times and have received nothing. Are they brain dead? Am I off my rocker to think that bad things will happen with this next added 138 million people to our civilization? Can anyone refute the facts on overwhelming carrying capacity such as water, energy and resources? Can we continue on this immigration path without wrecking our country and our future as a viable civilization? How in the hell can our U.S. Congress continue being this stupid or this methodically diabolical to swamp America with this endless immigration? Can we keep ripping up our habitat and slaughtering endless species? We lose 2,500 species every decade in the lower 48 states because of habitat destruction.

“Upwards of two hundred species...mostly of the large, slow-breeding variety.. are becoming extinct here every day because more and more of the earth's carrying capacity is systematically being converted into human carrying capacity. These species are being burnt out, starved out, and squeezed out of existence...thanks to technologies that most people, I'm afraid, think of as technologies of peace. I hope it will not be too long before the technologies that support our population explosion begin to be perceived as no less hazardous to the future of life on this planet than the endless production of radioactive wastes.” Daniel Quinn

If allowed, this massive population buildup to occur, our children will curse us for our stupidity and our arrogance. This final quote by Dr. Otis Graham says it all:

“Most Western elites continue urging the wealthy West not to stem the migrant tide [that adds 80 million net gain annually to the planet], but to absorb our global brothers and sisters until their horrid ordeal has been endured and shared by all—ten billion humans packed onto an ecologically devastated planet.” Dr. Otis Graham, Unguarded Gates

26.9 Solutions to the Immigration Issues

For over twelve years a Bi-partisan, committee know as Jordon Commission recommended to limit all immigration into the United States to 65,000 people per year. Presently we allow several million.

- <https://www.utexas.edu/lbj/uscir/becoming/full-report.pdf>

The solutions to the issue are very easy to understand.

- <http://rense.com/general95/late.htm>

- 1) Follow Recommendations of the Jordon Commission – Limit all immigration to 65,000 per year
- 2) Enforce Border Security
- 3) Levy Taxes on Business that outsources US Jobs.
- 4) Levy Taxes on Business that replaces US Labor with Foreign Immigration Labor

26.10.1 Americans Underwrite Their Own Demise

- <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=nsDYAtKlT4>

Oct 14, 2012 Bruce Paone www.phillyburbs.com America's current economic unwinding didn't begin on Wall Street in 2008, as is often reiterated. Its genesis lies in the affluence-to-poverty trade regiments enacted by President Clinton, beginning in 1993. Seduced by assurances that free trade would create millions of new high-paying jobs in the United States; Democrats, aided by Republican politicians like Newt Gingrich, Bob Dole and David Gergen, succumbed to K Street coercion and codified free trade into American law. However, the economic Elysium predicted by backers of free trade prior to its passage never developed. Principally because free trade, as a 21st century neo-Colonial economic compact, was no longer nation-based. Rather, this new version was a United Nation's developed transnational colonialism. A system designed to benefit a new superclass of cosmopolitan. Stakeholders bereft of nationalistic sentimentality, itching to profit from the coming realignment in global prosperity. Correspondingly, America's most acute trade-related dilemma today is unemployment. However, it's impossible for the United States to address the problem of trade-related dislocations, even modestly, when the entirety of our nation's trade policy is premised upon the notion, that surrendering America's economy to foreign interests, while simultaneously relocating tens of millions of American jobs offshore, somehow benefits our nation's competitiveness. Remembering, it isn't actually competition when one party, America, supplies the other parties, its economic rivals, with the prerequisites required for their mercantile success. Including, providing them the education, technology, infrastructure, financing, and jobs needed to dominate every sector of international commerce. Especially, since it's been public tax dollars, predominantly, subsidizing the conveyance of these prerequisites offshore. Clearly, the American people have been sacrificed; duped into underwriting their own economic demise by our country's elected public servants in Washington. Hence, when Fed Chairman Ben Bernanke tells Congress, as he did last February, that unemployment will stay high and that the nation's recovery would remain slow for years to come; he's stating the obvious. As Washington has, since codifying Free Trade, given away millions upon millions of America's highest paying, most sought after jobs, all in pursuit of some Agenda 21 driven Catallactics. Consequently, no matter which side wins in this upcoming election, Democratic or Republican, it will be impossible for America to ever again create enough jobs, which pay a sufficient wage for ordinary workaday people to flourish. Moreover, many Washington technocrats actually think that creating an economically enfeebled America is beneficial for our global maturation. Believing poverty and deprivation will help induce America to relinquish its freedoms and embrace global governance. Thus, both parties continue to facilitate the China-fication of thousands of American industries. Further spotlighting Washington's affluence to poverty trade stratagem, were media reports from earlier this year, which disclosed that both political parties allowed General Motors and Bank of America to use bailout funds (your tax dollars) to continue to ship American jobs overseas. All while domestic unemployment soared. Combine that with equal culpability for institutionalized banking fraud, systemic government corruption, constitutional execration, an ignominious judiciary, bailouts, foreclosures, open borders, Obamacare, endless wars, skyrocketing food prices, soaring energy costs, plummeting living standards; and well, the result was predictable: A dysfunctional nation that is morally, ethically and fiscally bankrupt. Bearing in mind, that if free trade and global governance meant slashed executive compensation and massive dislocations at the bourse; rather than middle-American decimation; you can rest assured there wouldn't be a single CEO, Wall Street banker, or Washington bureaucrat in support. Not even for reasons of "social equality" or "environmental justice." Americans, therefore, should face two facts. First, neither Democrats nor Republicans, both of whom use the opaque communitarian veneer of global sustainability for political cover, will solve America's economic woes. Inasmuch as both parties agree with the proposition of establishing global governance with all its entails. Including free trade and the Agenda 21 goal of a de-industrialized economically flaccid United States. Secondly, that the Democrat and Republican parties are the same philosophical organism, working to benefit the same constituency, and that constituency obviously isn't you, the American citizen. As literary critic George Steiner once wrote, "There is in every suicide simultaneously apologia and acquiescence." The same can be said, in fact, of Washington's obsession with the unholy trinity of globalization: Free Trade, global governance and Agenda 21.

Comment 1: Congress created OPIC in 1969 through an amendment to the Foreign Assistance Act, and the agency began operations in 1971, during the Nixon Administration, with a portfolio of $8.4 billion in political risk insurance and $169 million in loan guaranties. Organized as a corporation with a corporate structure, OPIC is governed by a Board of Directors,[5] President and CEO,[6] and Executive Vice President,[7] all nominated by the President of the United States and approved by the U.S. Senate. Although it operates on a self-sustaining basis at no net cost to American taxpayers, OPIC is appropriated administrative funding, and reauthorized on a regular basis, by the U.S. Congress. Both Republican and Democratic administrations have since expressed strong support for OPIC.

Comment 2: Overseas Private Investment Corporation provided resources and insurance at taxpayer expense to relocate American businesses. When it was made known that the insurance against loss was taxpayer funded the agency changed to self insurance. Jobs fled to Mexico..that was the genesis of the demise of the American Middle Class. www.opic.gov

Comment 3: It actually began in 1971 with the creation of the Overseas Private Investment Corporation. Companies were being moved to Mexico, jobs to cheap labor. The decline in wages in the US began in 1973. Things just keep getting worse for the American worker, and by implication US economy, where as we have shown many times before, it pays just as well to sit back and collect

disability and various welfare and entitlement checks, than to work .The best manifestation of this: the number of people not in the labor force which in March soared by a massive 663,000 to a record 90 million Americans who are no longer even looking for work. This was the biggest monthly increase in people dropping out of the labor force since January 2012, when the BLS did its census recast of the labor numbers. And even worse, the labor force participation rate plunged from an already abysmal 63.5% to 63.3% - the lowest since 1979! But at least it helped with the now painfully grotesque propaganda that the US unemployment rate is "improving."

I am a cosponsor of this legislation because I believe violent crime is a tragic problem in our society and our law enforcement system should have all the resources it needs to prevent violent crime and protect its victims. On April 23, 2009, H.R. 1913 was reported out of the House Committee on the Judiciary and on April 29, 2009, it was agreed to in the House of Representatives. Both versions of these bills are currently pending before the Senate Committee on the Judiciary, of which I am not a member. Should either version of this legislation come before the full Senate for consideration, it will have my support. Please be assured that I have been gratified to hear from my constituents regarding hate crimes legislation. Again, thank you for sharing your thoughts with me. Please do not hesitate to contact me in the future about this or any other matter of importance to you. If you have access to the Internet, I encourage you to visit my web site, <http://casey.senate.gov>. Perhaps one can consider Casey's actions as support the Bronfman Crime Family front organization known as the Anti-Defamation League (ADL).

What are hate crime laws? State hate crime laws impose tougher penalties on criminals who target their victims because of the victim's race, religion, ethnicity, sexual orientation, gender, gender identity, or disability. So, if a criminal assaults a person because that person is Jewish, the crime would likely be a hate crime.

How do hate crime laws work? State hate crime statutes are typically "penalty enhancement" statutes, which means that they increase the penalty for an offense if the victim or target is intentionally selected for violence because of his/her personal characteristics.

What does the new federal hate crime statute – the Matthew Shepard and James Byrd, Jr. Hate Crimes Prevention Act – do? This act allows the federal government to provide assistance in the investigation and prosecution of hate crimes – or, in limited circumstances, to investigate and prosecute hate crime cases when a locality is unable or unwilling to prosecute. Second, it ensures that those criminals who target their victims because of race, color, religion, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity or disability are all covered by the law.

Why have hate crimes laws? Whenever a bias-motivated crime is committed, the victim's entire community is left feeling victimized, vulnerable, fearful, isolated, and unprotected by the law. Such crimes can also lead to reprisals and a dangerous spiral of escalating inter-group tension and violence. Thus, the impact of the crime is far greater than the already terrible impact on the individual.

Don't hate crimes punish thoughts? Or speech? Hate crime legislation has never been about punishing people for their beliefs or speech. Rather, it is about punishing people for their criminal actions. The Supreme Court unanimously upheld Wisconsin's hate crimes law (which is based on ADL's model statute) in 1993 because the law clearly did not criminalize hate speech, which is constitutionally protected.

Won't hate crimes lead to the prosecution of religious leaders who preach against homosexuality? This is an oft-repeated but false charge. First, our nation's Constitutional guarantees of free speech and freedom of religion would prohibit such a charge. Second, hate crime laws only punish criminal acts that target victims because of the victim's race, religion, ethnicity, sexual orientation, etc. Preaching is not a criminal act. Third, the federal statute explicitly protects this activity.

Are hate crimes really a problem in America today? Hate crimes are disturbingly prevalent. According to the most recent data available from the FBI, there was almost one hate crime in America in every hour of every day in 2007 – a total of more than 7,600 reported bias-motivated incidents. In addition, along with an increase in harsh, hateful rhetoric against Hispanics, immigrants and those who look like immigrants in recent months, there have been several very high-profile hate crimes against Hispanics recently, including several murders. Unfortunately, in the aftermath of the election of the first African-American President, a deep economic and housing crisis, and a broken immigration system, we have seen a disturbing increase in ideologically-motivated violence against Jews and others. Sadly, hate crimes really are a problem.

Who supported the new federal hate crime law? The bill has attracted the support of nearly 300 civil rights, religious, educational, professional, and civic organizations – and virtually every major law enforcement organization in the country, including the International Association of Chiefs of Police, 26 state Attorneys General, and the National District Attorneys Association.

I am a cosponsor of this legislation because I believe violent crime is a tragic problem in our society and our law enforcement system should have all the resources it needs to prevent violent crime and protect its victims. On April 23, 2009, H.R. 1913 was reported out of the House Committee on the Judiciary and on April 29, 2009, it was agreed to in the House of Representatives. What is ADL's role in hate crime law? Most state hate crimes laws are based on or similar to ADL model legislation initially drafted in 1981. Forty-five states and the District of Columbia now have hate crimes laws, and the Supreme Court ruled such laws constitutional in the landmark case Wisconsin v Mitchell in 1993. For more than 10 years, ADL has led a broad coalition of civil rights, religious, educational, law enforcement and civic organizations working in support of the Matthew Shepard and James Byrd, Jr. Hate Crime Prevention Act.

27.3 The ADL Face of Bronfman Crime Syndicate's Hate

Here we can see the report on the ADL nexus to organized crime. This is also a story of the Mafia Takeover of the city of San Diego California (to be discussed later).

- <http://theunjustmedia.com/Jewish%20Zionists/Anti-Defamation%20League%20The%20Face%20of%20Hate.htm>

The Anti-Defamation League is the longest running and most powerful hate group in the United States with 29 offices domestically and 3 offices abroad. They bring in over $40 million a year to combat free speech and the right of ethnic minorities to defend themselves from bigotry (including Black Muslims, Arabs, and Euro-Americans). The Anti Defamation League was created in 1913 by the racist secret society known as B'nai B'rith. This organization which exists today excludes people based on their ethnic background and religion. It is exclusively restricted to powerful Jews who believe in racial superiority. The ADL has spear headed efforts at censorship against all people who wish to express themselves in a way that by ADL is seen as anti-Zionist or anti-Semitic. The Director of the ADL Richard Gutstadt wrote to all periodicals he could find to censor a book., "The Conquest of a Continent". Mr Gutstadt brazenly writes, "We are all interested in stifling the sale of this book. The ADL was also instrumental in terrorizing St. Martins's Press into canceling their contract last year with David Irving. The ADL recently "hailed" the arrest and imprisonment of a German man who questioned the Holocaust. They also "hailed" the imprisonment of Gerhard Lauck an American who was kidnapped by German authorities in Denmark and brought to Germany to serve a prison sentence for sending "racist" material to Germany from his American home.

The ADL tries to cover its anti-free speech activities by giving out a Free Speech "Torch of Liberty" award occasionally. The most prominent recipient is flesh peddler and woman denigrator Hugh Hefner. Obscene pornographer Larry Flynt is another supporter who has contributed 100,000's of dollars to the ADL. In 1993 the San Francisco and Los Angeles offices of the ADL were raided for evidence of criminal wrongdoing in many spheres. The raids turned up evidence of the ADL's compliance in the theft of confidential police files stolen from California police departments. The ADL had been paying Roy Bullock a salary for decades to spy on people and steal police files. He stole files from SFPD through corrupt cop Tom Gerard. His illicit contact in San Diego was white racist sheriff Tim Carroll.

The ADL have been linked closely to organized crime, especially Las Vegas mafia boss Meyer Lansky, Theodore Silbert worked simultaneously for the ADL and the Sterling National Bank (a mafia operation controlled by the Lansky syndicate). As a matter of fact the granddaughter of the mafia boss, Lansky, herself is the ADL's liaison to law enforcement, Mira Lansky Boland. (What a convenient arrangement!. She use ADL money to treat Tim Carroll and Tom Gerard to an all-expense paid luxury vacation to /Israel.) Another Las Vegas gangster, Moe Dalitz was honored by the ADL in 1985. Another among the shady contributors to the ADL's supremacist activities is the Milken Family Fund, of the "junk bond" fame. The ADL uses its well-oiled propaganda machine to protect their "friends" in the mafia and pornography industry by shrieking "Anti-Semitism!" at the slightest movement to protect of the law against these perverse interests. The ADL has mastered the art of intimidation and blackmailing unlike any of the powerful mafias they are associated with. The ADL has influential contacts in the media and politics that can ruin a person or business if they don't follow ADL's agenda. Already mentioned are instances of bad cops falling under the allure of the ADL, ones such as Tom Gerard and Tim Carroll. Yet now good cops and even freshman cops are being "conditioned" for the type of anti-free speech, anti-cultural diversity, police state that the ADL would like for our country. Throughout the nation, the ADL is threatening police departments with all kinds of retribution if they don't initiate state funded lectures and seminars for law enforcement given by the ADL spokesmen. The ADL rakes in large sums of money for these sessions, boosting their already overflowing coffers. Already the ADL men have been seen at the scene of crimes ordering cops on how investigations are to be conducted. Perhaps at no time in history has any other criminal organization, such as the ADL, been able to infiltrate and influence law enforcement to such an extent. Its tentacles are growing. Freshman sheriffs in San Diego are now being personally "trained" to crimes by the SouthWestern Director of the ADL Morris Casuto.

The most alarming part of this horrible story is...

The ADL is a very powerful, secretive racial religious supremacist organization with substantial ties to the underworld of crime and pornography. To burrow their way into the minds of children, the ADL has created the "World of Difference" program designed to influence them at an early stage. In a report to its few, but wealthy supporters in 1995, the ADL boasts that it has reached more than ten million students and more are ready to be indoctrinated. The ADL hopes to make children susceptible to the world of crime and vices they and their criminal associates have in store for the USA.

27.3.1 Abe Foxman – National Director of Anti-Defamation League

National Chairman of the hate group Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith. His main job is to write to celebrities and powerful people who say something unkosher and temporarily forget that Jews are a special criticism-proof people. Claims whole family was "holocausted" in the last war.

27.3.2 Roy Bullock - Paid Informant for the ADL

The ADL's paid informant who rummaged through trash for decades for the ADL, until he was given the sensitive position of being the conduit for stolen police files coming from the San Francisco Police Department by way of Tom Gerard. He was paid $550 per week for his services. Also an associate of racist sheriff Tim Carroll. His existence was discovered after the FBI raids on ADL offices in 1993 and resulted in the publicizing of 750 pages of information on the spying operations of the ADL.

27.3.3 Tom Gerard - San Francisco Police Spy for ADL Operations in the US

San Francisco Police Officer who stole sensitive, confidential files from his agency and gave them to Roy Bullock to assist ADL's spying operations on Americans. Among files stolen were ones on the Black Muslims, Arabs and right-wing organizations that were in any way critical of ADL. Received an all-expense paid luxury vacation in Israel, courtesy of the ADL.

27.3.4 Tim Carroll - San Diego Sheriff ADL Sponsor

Racist ex-detective in San Diego's Sheriff Department. Remarkd in 1993 that he would like to see "all illegal aliens shot" and "all the niggers sent back to Africa on a banana boat". An associate of both Roy Bullock and Tom Gerard. He mysteriously retired from the Sheriff's Department after the raids on the ADL offices at the early age of 54. Also received an all-expense paid luxury vacation in Israel, courtesy of the ADL. Despite his overtly racist nature, he was put in charge of security at the ADL's National Convention in September, 1997 using strong-arm tactics against participants and visitors. This is interesting considering it was his bumbling confessions to an investigator that led to the raids on the ADL.

27.3.5 Mira Lansky Boland - Law Enforcement Liaison

The "law-enforcement liaison" for the ADL. She arranged luxurious trips to Israel for certain key police officers who could have something to offer the ADL in return. Among these were file thief Tom Gerard and racist Tim Carroll. She is uniquely positioned in that she is the granddaughter of Meyer Lansky, one of the most powerful mafia figures in US history.

27.3.6 Hugh Hefner - Smut Media Honored by the ADL

Famous pornographer who was honored by the ADL with its ridiculous "Torch of Freedom" award. From him proceeds protection for all pornography in the US, which is and has always been associated with vice elements like the mob and ADL.

27.3.7 Larry Flynt - Smut Media Major Contributor to the ADL

This pornographer is a major contributor to the ADL of 100,000's of dollars. He has been jailed often for "obscene pornography" and the general hideous defiling of women in his Hustler magazine (whose description is beyond the limits allowed on a decent web page).

27.3.8 Theodore Silbert - Employee of ADL /Mob Associate of Lansky

Mob associate of Meyer Lansky, employee of the ADL and mafia front "Sterling Bank." Was simultaneously the CEO of "Sterling Bank" and National Commissioner of the ADL. (Remember the BCCI Scandal?)

27.3.9 Moe Dalitz - Honorary Member of the ADL

Las Vegas mob figure and close associate of Meyer Lansky who was honored by the ADL in 1985.

- <http://www.1st100.com/part2/dalitz.html>

Billion dollar fund that has given extensively to the ADL, the money of which was made in the "junk bond" scandals.

- <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=PyWF3osN6Lg&feature=related>
- <http://www.mff.org/>

27.3.11 Morris Casuto - Southwester Director of the ADL

Jewish Southwestern Director of the ADL who personally trains freshmen law enforcement to do the bidding of him and his criminally indicted organization. Morris Casuto is also close friends with white racist Tim Carroll. Boasted in March 1999 that Alex Curtis' "luck will run out. And he will be sent to prison for a very long time." Is this a threat from a man whose group has already been criminally indicted for nefarious connections to rogue police agents?

27.3.12 Rick Barton - National Commissioner for ADL

National Commissioner of ADL. Another racial integrationist who lives on an expensive cul-de-sac in pure white Olivenhain, California in San Diego County

27.3.13 Teresa Santana – San Diego DA who prosecutes ADL Hate Laws

Deputy DA of San Diego who works with the criminal ADL and prosecutes non-Jews for imaginary "hate crimes" against precious Jews.

27.3.14 Bill Kolender – Head of San Diego Sheriff's Office

Jewish Head of San Diego Sheriff's Office who is a member of B'nai B'rith, the racist secret society that oversees the criminal ADL. The anti-Zionist organization The Nationalist Observer was raided by the SDSO in April 1999 for political reasons.

27.3.15 Jessica Lerner – Director of San Diego Hate Office

27.4 The ADL's Take Over of San Diego, CA via Mayor Sanders

The Waste Management attempt failed, however with the help of Jerry Sanders the Chicago syndicate did succeed in controlling the government of San Diego using the Anti-Defamation League via relationship with the Mayor Jerry Sanders. Sanders was identified as being a major reason the San Diego SWAT team was unable to properly respond to the San Ysidro massacre. He married an Assistant Executive director (Morris Casuto) of the South-Western Division of the ADL

27.4.1 Former San Diego Police Chief Jerry Sanders Unfit to be Mayor

- <http://www.laprensa-sandiego.org/archieve/august19-05/sanders.htm>

By Daniel L. Muñoz Publisher, La Prensa San Diego 2005

It is difficult to accept that Jerry Sanders believes that the Mexican American population, of the City of San Diego, could ever forget or forgive his role in the massacre that was carried out by James Oliver Huberty, at four O'clock in the afternoon, on the 18th of July 1984, at the San Ysidro McDonalds restaurant in San Ysidro. When the violence and smoke had cleared, on that day, 22 victims lay dead, and 15 others lay seriously wounded! The majority of the victims were Mexican American children, their mothers, younger brothers and sisters and a few Grandmothers. Jerry Sanders, on that day, was the commander of the San Diego Police Departments SWAT team! In the aftermath, of the massacre, questions began to surface. Where were the police from the San Ysidro Police Outpost? Where was the SWAT team and their Commander, Jerry Sanders? Why was their response time so slow? Why was the police station in San Ysidro so lightly armed and short of personnel? Why did it take so long for the SWAT team to arrive? We cannot forget that while James Oliver Huberty was busy murdering the innocent victims, Jerry Sanders, who was the Commander of the Swat team, was busy drinking with other policemen at a special police event in Mission Bay. We can't forget that the members of the SWAT team couldn't get into their armored vehicle. Someone had misplaced the necessary 2nd key to the vehicle. Could it be that Jerry Sanders had it? Why did Jerry Sanders rescind the orders, given by the Police Lieutenant on the scene, for a police sniper to take out Huberty? Many lives could have been saved. Why did the Commander of the Swat team, who was not on the scene, override the commands of the senior police officer present on the site of the massacre? Isn't it policy that the on-site senior officer is the commander until relieved on the scene? Why were the on-site police ordered to lie for over 40 minutes behind walls while the murderous Huberty continued his slaughter of the innocent children, women, teenagers and senior citizen?

It was revealing that the leadership of the Police Department failed to promote him for 13 times to a significant post thereafter. However on May 17, 1993, City Manager Jack McGrory picked him to succeed Chief Bob Burgreen. Mayor Golding and her City Council approved the promotion. It is also instructive to note that the rank and file, within the Department, highly disapproved of Jerry Sanders. Unanswered questions still remain that need to be asked of Mr. Sanders: Why didn't you order the on scene commander to lob tear gas and/or smoke bombs to roust Huberty out before so many innocents were massacred? Why was the Police substation in San Ysidro so seriously under-manned and under-armed? Why did two Staff Officers, who had no "fire-fight" experience, lead the attack against Huberty? Was it because your Line Officers were partying with you? Why did you order that "Command and Control" of the massacre site be turned over to you while you were 20 miles away from McDonalds Restaurant? As the Commander of the SWAT team, its Armored Van, and Personnel, you knew it took two keys, one held by the SWAT Commander and the other by Central Division Officer to open the SWAT Van? Didn't you have the 2nd required key in your pocket while you partied? As you can see, the Mexican American community has a lot of unanswered questions about your abilities and leadership. You were the man in the hot seat on July 18, 1984 when a man named James Oliver Huberty decided to murder 22 people in San Ysidro. We know that the Chief of Police was W.B. Kolender, and that the Mayor was Roger Hedgecock. In spite of the role that Sanders played in the San Ysidro massacre, City Manager Jack McGrory picked Sanders to succeed Chief Bob Burgreen as San Diego's Police Chief. Mayor Susan Golding and the City Council went along with it. Politics played a prominent role in his selection as Sanders was held in low esteem by a large segment of the Police force. Now, the Republican leadership of San Diego is trying to have Mr. Jerry Sanders elected as the next Mayor of San Diego. La Prensa San Diego cannot accept the Republicans choice of Mr. Sanders to be the City of San Diego's next Mayor! It is our opinion that the Republican leadership has a death wish and rather than support the best in their Party, they continue to foist upon the citizens the worse candidates that they have. Especially, since the next Mayor will be the first one that will operate under a "Chicago- style" strong Mayor system of governance. The Mexican American voters will find it very difficult to accept Jerry Sanders as their next Mayor. His incompetence, in the Massacre of 22 of their community by James Oliver Huberty, places in the limelight, the total incompetence and leadership of Mr. Jerry Sanders forever!

Subsequently via the ADL the San Diego CA government was taken over by Syndicate Interests

The ADL is the longest running and most powerful hate group in the US with 28 offices domestically and 3 in offices abroad. They bring in over $80 Million/year to combat free speech and promote Zionist agenda. The ADL was created in 1913 (In Philadelphia PA) by B'nai B'rith ("Blood of the Chosen"). The ADL was created in honor of Leo Franks lynching. Leo Franks was the President of his local B'nai B'rith (Atlanta Georgia). Leo was very active in civic affairs. Leo Frank was a sexual pervert who was a pedophile who preyed on young children. On April 26th, 1913 Leo Frank raped and murdered his twelve year old employee Mary Phagan. This is the man the ADL was established for a Murdering Child rapist.

27.7 ADL – No Place for Hate Program

Some of the Initial ADL Programs for No Place for Hate were in Pennsylvania at Penn State University and the Communities of Philadelphia and Abington PA. The ADL sponsors the "No Place for Hate" Program in the local schools and communities here. This is no different than having Capone's Goons teach the kids that should not bully other kids because the ADL is the biggest bully on the block.

In the Allentown Pennsylvania area, the ADL, (Philadelphia Chapter via Barry Morrison), condemned the Band as Anti-Semitic. The Band Leader Paul Topete responded stating the ADL has a history of character assassination. The ADL Leader Barry Morrison of the South Eastern Pennsylvania Division reported the band as anti-immigration, anti-government and anti-Semitic in their musical lyrics.

The Anti-Defamation League on its national website criticizes an Allentown rock group. The group is Poker Face, whose music was used in a video by the Michigan-based militia group whose members were charged this month with planning to attack law enforcement officers. The league, which fights anti-Semitism and describes itself as "the nation's premier civil rights/human relations agency," on April 9 posted a 12-paragraph item saying Poker face lead singer Paul Topete is an anti-Semite who "maintains affiliations with anti-Semites, Holocaust deniers, militia figures and conspiracy theorists." Poker Face's song "I Wanna Know" was on a video of paramilitary activity by Hutaree, a group authorities describe as a Christian militia. Nine alleged members of Hutaree planned to overthrow the government, starting by killing a police officer, then attacking members of the officer's funeral procession, officials said. The home page of Hutaree's Web site also had a link to Poker Face's website, calling the band "Patriot Rock." Poker Face, a group that has been active on the Lehigh Valley music scene for two decades, often weds hard rock with anti-government lyrics. Poker Face members have said many individuals and groups request use of its music for movies, videos and other presentations, and that it always requires credit through a link to the band's website. "Any interaction with Hutaree was limited to this request," Toptete said. But the Anti-Defamation League's item says that in "June 2003, Poker Face members, including Topete, attended and sang at a conference sponsored by American Free Press, an anti-Semitic conspiracy-oriented newspaper and The Barnes Review, a Holocaust denial publication." It also says Topete "has appeared at anti-immigrant events, where he shared the stage with xenophobic leaders who demonize undocumented immigrants, particularly from Mexico. At one rally in June 2007, area white supremacists were in attendance. To promote an anti-immigrant event in Pennsylvania in 2007, two Poker Face members called in to the Hal Turner Show, a white supremacist radio program." And it attributes to Topete anti-Semitic postings – including ones calling the Holocaust a hoax -- on the message board of Poker Face's Web site. Barry Morrison, regional president of the Anti-Defamation League, said the group "actively monitors groups and organizations and individuals that are engaged in extremist activity and that express hatefull views," was aware of Poker Face since 1995. Morrison said people in the Allentown area familiar with the group had alerted the league. "We kept an eye on it since then," Morrison said. "The group has the right to do what it wants to do and they have the right to express themselves." But he says his organization equally has an obligation to make people aware "of their ties or relationships" to extremists and that it's an anti-government and led by an anti-Semitic leader." Topete, in response to an e-mail seeking a response to the league's item, referred to Poker Face's website, on which the band posted "a response to ADL's defamation." It says "what the ADL is doing, not just to Poker Face, but, to many others as well, is a clear case of slander and libel." "Through their efforts, they influence others to take part in what they claim to rail against, defamation," the response says. "They do have every right to talk about us. But they do not have the right to make false accusations or interfere with our livelihood by preventing us from performing." Poker Face's statement says that "if visitors to our forum are offended by the articles, they must remember that we did not author them." Rather, the band says, it believes in the free exchange of ideas, regardless of how it feels about them. Topete has said Poker face does not deny the authenticity of the Holocaust, but the website does not repudiate or criticize those who do. "We are not anti-Semitic, but, we will shine the spotlight on those of Jewish faith who use their heritage to escape criticism, especially when it comes to crimes against this country, but also against their own people," the Poker Face statement says. the statement says "this topic is never discussed in our songs. It is not displayed in our artwork. It amounts to roughly 3% of the content on our forum board."

The statement likewise does not repudiate statements saying Israel was involved in the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks on the World Trade Center, Pentagon and central Pennsylvania. "Was Israel involved? It's not beyond the scope of reasonable doubt," the statement says. The statement also says the band's critics love "to call us racist because we support legal immigration and have performed at events supporting the Minutemen and Voice of the People." "We then try to explain that Paul has Mexican roots and his father went through the legal immigration process to become a U.S. citizen. He fully supports anyone from Mexico coming to enjoy the prosperity of the American dream, so long as they take the time to do what his father did."

27.12.1 The ADL Spying for Israel Since the 1960's

- http://www.larouche.org/eiw/public/1993/eirv20n18-19930507/eirv20n18-19930507_027-the_joftes_case_adl_spying_for_i.pdf

Pollard is now serving a life sentence in U.S.federal prison, after being convicted of espionage in 1986. Ruth Sella, who together with her husband, Col. Aviem Sella, was Pollard's Mossad handler, was an employee of the ADL legal department during the period that she handled Pollard's espionage assignments. Following Pollard's arrest, Sella fled to Israel to avoid prosecution for espionage. Forster, who ran the ADL legal department, has subsequently admitted in his memoirs that he had been a longtime Mossad "source."

27.12.2 Pollard Spy Case 25 Years Later

- <http://www.commentarymagazine.com/article/the-pollard-spy-case-25-years-later/>

...Jonathan Jay Pollard was a 29-year-old intelligence analyst working for the United States Navy when he sought out contacts within the Israeli military and security services to offer his services as a spy. He later claimed in an interview with Wolf Blitzer (who published the first and still best account of the affair, Territory of Lies, in 1989, when he worked for the Jerusalem Post) that he had done so solely out of a sense of concern for Israel's security. But Pollard had had a history of unorthodox behavior and had nearly lost his security clearance because of lying and various indiscretions more than once. He was also volunteering to do something that the Mossad, Israel's foreign intelligence agency, had specifically forbidden; its close ties with the CIA had resulted in an agreement in which the Mossad had pledged that Israel would not conduct espionage in the United States.

But the man Pollard contacted, Israeli Air Force Colonel Aviem Sella, did not report to the Mossad. On leave to study in the United States, Sella sought permission to meet Pollard from Yosef Yagur, the science counselor at the Israeli Consulate in New York City. Yagur reported directly to a special scientific-intelligence-gathering unit of the Defense Ministry, the office of Scientific Liaison—known by its Hebrew acronym, LAKAM. Far from being deterred by the danger of angering Israel's only ally, Rafael Eitan, the head of LAKAM, was intrigued by the opportunity to score a coup. Eitan had strong ties both to Yitzhak Shamir and Yitzhak Rabin, respectively Israel's prime minister and defense minister at the time, and obtained the permission of the chief of staff of the Israel Defense Forces for Sella to take part in this intrigue.

Pollard brought classified materials to his first meetings with Sella in 1984, and that was just the tip of the iceberg. By the time he was caught more than a year later, he would deliver to the Israelis an unprecedented volume of secret materials—satellite photos, sensitive cables, reports, and other documents that included references to sources.

From Pollard, the Israelis obtained the ability to track American intelligence capabilities in the Mediterranean (which, along with satellite photos, is believed to have assisted the Israeli air force's strike on Palestinian Liberation Organization Headquarters in Tunis in October 1985). But the most far-reaching of Pollard's haul was the 10-volume Radio and Signal Intelligence Manual (RAISIN), which detailed the American global electronic signal network. That theft alone reportedly cost the United States billions of dollars, since the compromise of these secrets required the complete restructuring of the country's capabilities.

While Pollard claimed that his intention was only to aid Israel and not to harm the United States, the sheer volume and quality of the reams of documents that Pollard provided the Israelis was an enormous blow to U.S. intelligence. The extent of that damage, however, is still a matter of dispute. The most devastating accusation that has been lodged against him is that the stolen material ultimately wound up in the hands of the Soviet Union and resulted in the capture and death of American intelligence sources. If true, that would justify the harshest possible punishment and undermine any appeal for mercy. But it is highly unlikely that this is so.

...But what Pollard did do was bad enough. Having “walked into” Israel's hands rather than being seduced in the normal way that spies are procured, Pollard presented his handlers with a unique management problem, and they proceeded in the most cynical manner possible to ensure that he would not “walk out” should the emotionally unstable agent change his mind. According to Blitzer's account, the Israelis insisted almost from the beginning that Pollard accept compensation, an act that would transform a supposedly idealistic foray into a mercenary one. To his shame, Pollard succumbed to their blandishments and took money and jewelry for his wife Anne, who had also been dragged into the scheme.

In the course of pilfering thousands of documents for the Israelis, Pollard also stole five classified documents that gave background information about Chinese diplomats and intelligence activities in the United States. He gave these documents to his wife, who used them as background material for a pitch to win a public-relations contract from the Chinese Embassy in Washington (though she did not disclose any of this material to the Chinese). Members of the prosecution team subsequently claimed that Pollard intended to sell other materials to other countries, such as Pakistan, but this was not included in the indictment and is thus still unproved.

In November 1985, Pollard's deceptions were uncovered, and he made a wild and ill-considered attempt at escape for which neither he nor his handlers were prepared. He and his wife were turned away from the Israeli Embassy, where they had foolishly thought they would be welcomed. In custody, Pollard agreed to a plea bargain that gained leniency for his wife and a lesser sentence for himself in exchange for cooperation that would obviate the need for a messy and expensive trial.

As for the Israelis involved, all who had worked with Pollard fled the country before being apprehended. When pressed for an explanation after Pollard's confession, the State of Israel maintained that his spying was the result of a rogue operation. This was clearly false. Not only had Eitan secured permission for his adventure, but there is little doubt that the information he procured from Pollard was made known one way or the other to the three men at the top of the coalition government at the time: Shamir, Rabin, and then-Foreign Minister Shimon Peres. And though Israel promised to cooperate with America's investigation of the affair, what ensued was a matter of damage control more than of cooperation. The Israelis downplayed the immense scale of the espionage and did their best to conceal Sella's role in the plot. They did not wish the career of the air force's rising star—he had been the pilot who led the mission to bomb Iraq's Osirak nuclear reactor in 1981—to be derailed by his crucial contribution to this disaster. (In the end, though, that was exactly what happened.)

...It was at this point that Pollard, having already confessed and facing a long prison term, began to feel abandoned by the Israelis. What followed was the first of his many post-arrest missteps—missteps that are, as Edwin Black wrote in a 2002 investigative report published in the Forward, the best explanations for why he is still in jail. In the months before his scheduled sentencing in March 1987, Pollard granted two exclusive interviews to Blitzer, then the Washington correspondent for the Jerusalem Post, in which he put himself forward as a Jewish hero, a “master spy,” and not the bumbler that the press had accurately portrayed him as being prior to that point.

This was followed up by a letter to the Jerusalem Post in which Pollard described his plea bargain as a “judicial crucifixion” and further asserted that the benefits to Israel justified the risks he took and demanded that the Jewish community “put a stop to this ordeal.” Just as damaging was an appearance on 60 Minutes by Anne Pollard that aired days before the sentencing hearing. In it, she claimed that the couple had no regrets, because their actions were the result of their “moral obligation as Jews.”

While Pollard had received permission from the prison to meet with Blitzer, the prosecution team regarded his campaign for sympathy as a moral, if not a legal, violation of the plea agreement, since defendants who admit guilt are supposed to show remorse. Their response was to violate their own promises. Instead of a request for a lesser sentence, they presented U.S. District Court Judge Aubrey Robinson with a demand for a life sentence. And going all-out to make sure Pollard was doubly punished for his presumption, they furnished the African-American Robinson with inflammatory evidence, such as a letter that Pollard had written complaining about black prisoners who were incarcerated with him.

But far more damaging was a four-page affidavit from then-Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger detailing Pollard's crimes and arguing for life in prison. Weinberger's memo is the subject of great controversy. He later attempted to downplay his role in the drama by telling reporter Black that the Pollard case was a comparatively “minor” business. Yet, at the time, his intervention was widely interpreted as evidence that Israel's spy had presented a major threat to U.S. security. The Weinberger memo, which was nothing unusual for a court proceeding involving a spy, may well have tipped the balances. To the dismay of Pollard, his family, and his lawyers, and to the shocked surprise of the prosecutors, Robinson slammed the prison door and threw away the key.

From that moment on, efforts to reverse or lessen that sentence have fallen into three categories: legal, activist, and diplomatic. All have failed but none so miserably as the first, largely because of inexplicable blunders by Pollard's defense team. While the prosecution's breach of the plea agreement might have led to a reversal of the sentence on appeal, the failure of Pollard's lawyers to present any objections at the time has presented an insurmountable obstacle to those who have taken up his case in the years that followed.

Pollard's attorney, Richard Hibey, failed to ask, as he might have done, for an evidentiary hearing about Weinberger's memo, during which he could have presented arguments to mitigate the effect of the secretary's intervention. Perhaps most astonishing was that Hibey failed to file a routine Notice of Appeal form with the court within the mandatory 10-day period, which meant that Pollard could never after file for a direct appellate review even if he could present evidence of judicial error or prosecutorial misconduct. Subsequent legal avenues of appeal have thus been blocked, and all efforts to reverse this colossal error with claims that Pollard had inadequate counsel or other legal stratagems have failed.

Even before the sentencing, Pollard's supporters have sought to create a broad-based public appeal for mercy for the spy. His sister Carol, whose brash tactics alienated some Jewish leaders who felt that Pollard's was a dubious cause, led the campaign at first. But the spy broke with his sister and his parents when he came under the influence of Elaine Zeitz, a Canadian woman who made the case her life's work and then married Pollard in prison (he and Anne were divorced after her release from prison). Calling herself Esther Pollard, she has since conducted a tireless campaign that has made more enemies for her husband than friends. Alternating shrill threats with abject pleas, she has besieged the government of Israel and the leaders of American Jewry with demands for action that have been largely fruitless.

But in spite of the counterproductive efforts of his second wife, support for clemency for Pollard has grown among American Jews over the past 25 years. Most organizations have signed on to appeals for mercy. Sympathy for this cause rests in no small measure on the importance in Jewish tradition and history of the concept of pidyon shvuyim, or the ransoming of captives. Some of his most ardent admirers have, despite the unambiguous guilt revealed by even a cursory look at the evidence, continued to promote the implausible image of Pollard as the ultimate Israeli patriot. But most of those who have spoken out on his behalf, such as attorney and activist Alan Dershowitz, have centered their arguments on the disproportionate nature of his sentence. It is this point that has led figures such as former U.S. attorney general Michael Mukasey; Lawrence Korb, assistant secretary of defense at the time of Pollard's crime; and former CIA director James Woolsey to call for commutation of his sentence.

Some veterans of the U.S. intelligence establishment scoff at the claim that no spy for a friendly country has ever been treated as harshly as Pollard. But the assertion is largely correct. Other spies—Walker, Pelton, Ames, and Hanssen—have also received life in prison, and given the scale of Pollard's espionage, it can be argued that his crime is no different from theirs. But while the law may not technically recognize a difference between a person who gives secrets to a friendly nation such as Israel and one who betrays his country to a deadly rival such as the Soviet Union, common sense dictates that these are offenses of a different nature. The fact is that no spy for a U.S. ally other than Pollard has ever gotten a life sentence or anything close to it.

For while it can be assumed that all nations spy on all other nations, including their allies, when such betrayals are discovered, they are usually hushed up or otherwise made to quickly disappear, since however angry the injured party may be, exacerbating the situation is generally in no one's interest. Cases of espionage against the United States on behalf of friendly countries have, as a rule, drawn light sentences, and defendants have usually secured early release. Though Pollard's crime is certainly the most egregious such case on record, it is not reasonable to claim that his betrayal—or its consequences—can be put on the same moral plane as that of an Ames or a Hanssen, both of whom served America's enemies.

The Pollard affair was a serious blow to the U.S.-Israel alliance, but not a lasting one. The powerful ties that link the two nations are based on common values that far transcend this one sad chapter. Though the case neither defines nor limits that relationship, it continues to be a distraction and an irritant to U.S.-Israel diplomacy.

Given the fact that the leaders of both the Israeli government and its parliamentary opposition were at least indirectly implicated in the decision to employ Pollard, it is hardly surprising that diplomatic efforts on his behalf in the years immediately following his sentencing were lackluster. The last thing that Shamir, Peres, or Rabin wanted was to draw attention to Israel's responsibility for Pollard's plight. Gradually, that changed through the succession of a new generation of leaders (though Peres remains in office in the ceremonial post of president). Pollard has been granted Israeli citizenship, and a square in Jerusalem has been renamed in his honor. Numerous appeals for mercy on Pollard's behalf have also drawn the support of the majority of Knesset members.

The closest that Pollard has come to freedom was the result of diplomatic initiatives undertaken by Netanyahu. During negotiations with the Clinton administration during the Wye Plantation talks in 1998, Netanyahu insisted that Pollard's release be part of the price to be paid for Israeli concessions to the Palestinians. While Clinton said in his memoirs that he was inclined to agree to the measure if it would grease the way for Israeli withdrawals from territories, the ardent opposition of virtually the entire U.S. security apparatus derailed the plan. CIA director George Tenet threatened to resign if Pollard was freed, and Clinton backed down. This exercise was nearly repeated more than a decade later, with Netanyahu back in the prime minister's chair. Pollard's name has again resurfaced as a possible bone to be thrown to the Israelis by the Obama administration to get them to accede to a freeze in settlement-building in the West Bank and Jerusalem. It is in this context that Netanyahu's recent public request to Obama must be seen.

The willingness of Netanyahu (who visited Pollard in prison in 2002 while he was out of office) to continue to push Washington to free Pollard is testimony to the sincerity of his belief that Israel bears the responsibility for his plight and must use whatever little leverage it has over its ally to gain his release.

But it can be argued that Pollard's role as a pawn in the peace process is yet another instance of how his spying harmed Israel. That a man who claimed his crime was committed to enhance the Jewish state's security would have his freedom bought with concessions on territory or settlements that undermine the country's ability to defend itself must be considered a bitter irony. But although Obama would be happy to make Netanyahu more pliable, it does not appear that this administration is any more likely to release Pollard than was its predecessors. The implacable determination of the U.S. security establishment to keep Pollard in jail is such that the political price for releasing Pollard is probably too high for any sitting president to consider.

- http://www.larouchepub.com/eiw/public/1998/eirv25n44-19981106/eirv25n44-19981106_055-the_israeli_spy_network_that_jon.pdf

...When the FBI arrested U.S. Naval Intelligence civilian analyst Jonathan Pollard in November 1985 outside of his office in Suitland, Maryland, U.S. investigators had crucial evidence that Israel was stealing U.S. intelligence secrets. But, more importantly, they knew Pollard was not acting alone. Among the immediate questions investigators posed, was how Pollard secured what seemed to be a specially created position in the Naval Investigative Service's new Anti-Terrorist Alert Center, which gave him completely unnecessary access to extremely sensitive documents from all agencies of the U.S. government. Moreover, they determined that even a routine background check would have revealed that Pollard had bragged of being a Mossad agent since college, and that his father, Notre Dame microbiologist Morris Pollard, had worked closely with Israel's scientific intelligence establishment since the 1940s. In other words, Pollard had patrons. The cost of Pollard's espionage was enormous. According to Federal prosecutors, Pollard forwarded tens of thousands of pages of highly sensitive, classified documents to his controllers in Lekem, the Israeli Defense Ministry's scientific intelligence agency. At the time, that agency was run by Rafi Eytan, a longtime aide of Israeli Foreign Minister Gen. Ariel Sharon, who, among his other exploits, stole the uranium from a Westinghouse plant in Apollo, Pennsylvania, used to make Israel's first nuclear bomb. Worse, while Pollard and his supporters said his spying was necessary to help protect Israel from its hostile neighbors, Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir forwarded many of the documents stolen by Pollard, to the Soviet Union. Shamir wanted Soviet Jews in exchange. It was also clear that Pollard was directed to steal documents with such trading purposes in mind. For example, why would Israel need the list of names of CIA agents operating in South Africa that Pollard stole? And all this, at a time when the Reagan administration had already given Israel astonishing access to U.S. classified information, supposedly necessary to combat the Soviet threat. As the investigation proceeded, more details emerged showing the far-reaching extent of the network, including its ties to leading U.S. Zionist organizations.

What does ADL national director Abe Foxman do when he's not hunting anti-Semites and exposing racists? Well, one thing he did earlier this month was give away his son Ariel, 40, editor of InStyle magazine, in a same-sex wedding with his Cuban-American partner Brandon Cardet-Hernandez. "Their marriage brings together things that were less easy to understand even 10 years ago," the elder Foxman was quoted as saying in the New York Times' Vows column. "Now it's just so normal, comfortable and loving." In his toast at the wedding, Foxman "thanked the grooms for the opportunity to be sensitive, and thanked Cardet-Hernandez for converting to Judaism, reminding him that the Jewish people had lost so many people in the past," the Times reported. Brandon Cardet-Hernandez, 29, the principal of the Urban Assembly Bronx Academy of Letters, a public high school. He studied with a rabbi for several months in order to convert to Judaism.

InStyle is a monthly women's fashion magazine published in the United States by Time Inc. Along with advertising, the magazine offers articles about beauty, fashion, home, entertaining, charitable endeavors and celebrity lifestyles. Its editor is Ariel Foxman, and its publisher is Connie Anne Phillips.^[3] After originating in the United States, InStyle has expanded its brand and is currently being distributed as international editions in 17 other countries including: Australia, United Kingdom, Poland, Germany, Brazil, Greece, Hungary, Indonesia, South Korea, Spain, Russia, Turkey, Romania^[4] and South America.^[5] InStyle aims to appeal to any woman no matter what her fashion price point may be, as they showcase trends at all price ranges. Since its first issue in 1994, in which Barbra Streisand was pictured on the cover, it has quickly come to be one of the most highly supported^[clarification needed] magazines under its category.^[6]

Today's managing editor at InStyle magazine, Ariel Foxman, has been in the role since September 2008 when he became the magazine's first ever male editor. He was born in Bergenfield, New Jersey, US and first joined InStyle in 1999 at the age of 25.^[10] Foxman oversees many aspects of the InStyle brand including the main magazine in the United States as well as all 17 of the international versions and expansions of the empire such as the InStyle website, InStyle Weddings, InStyle Hair and InStyle Makeovers. Other achievements for Foxman include graduating from Harvard College magna cum laude, being a judge on the television show "Project Accessory" and being called one of the most powerful fashion magazine editors by Forbes in 2009. Since Foxman has become the man behind the brand, InStyle has become the most frequently purchased fashion magazine of its kind and has attained a following of 10.9 million people, 92% being female and 8% being male,^[11] which is the largest audience the magazine has had since InStyle was born. “Magazine of the Year” was the title given to InStyle in 2010 when Time Inc’s Luce Award was presented to the magazine. A few weeks back at a chic, charming apartment downtown, we had the pleasure of cooking and eating with InStyle’s Editor-in-Chief Ariel Foxman and his fiancé, New York City principal Brandon Cardet-Hernandez. The apartment’s aesthetic no doubt reflects the couple living there; simple and classic with eclectic accents that pleasantly pop up and surprise you. The two decided to cook something up for us from Balaboosta, the cookbook they’ve been working their way through since getting engaged last fall. Incidentally, Foxman was shopping around for Cardet-Hernandez’s engagement ring the day we photographed him in Paris last September (we like to identify our part in the narrative of couples we love). What did he land on? A Jennifer Fisher custom-made ring that momentarily distracted us from the Kanafeh pastry the two were making. As we listened to some old school hits (which included ‘Hungry Eyes’ circa Dirty Dancing) we waited for the Kanafeh to finish cooking in the oven and chatted about everything from Balaboosta to Broadway. The finished product was delicious – both sweet and savory – and a perfect balance of sorts. Who knew that a dish could reflect on an almost-newlywed pair?

- <http://www.darkmoon.me/2014/defense-arthur-topham/>

Has Canada been taken over by Jews? It would seem so, if the relentless persecution of Canadian patriot and freedom fighter Arthur Topham is anything to go on. Canadian patriot and freedom fighter Arthur Topham is to be hauled before the Canadian courts next year on trumped-up charges. There is absolutely no doubt in my mind that Arthur is an innocent man. His trial date has now been set. He will appear in court on 26 October, 2015, and his trial will last for two weeks until 6 November. If found guilty, this man who has said and done nothing that you and I have not said or done a thousand times, will be torn from the embrace of his wife, his family and his friends and be thrown into prison. It will be a major miscarriage of justice if this should occur. The forthcoming trial of Arthur Topham is therefore much more than the trial of one man. Canadian justice will itself be on trial. What is Arthur's alleged crime? Arthur's only crime is that he is a political dissident who has chosen to exercise his democratic right to free speech. He has spoken out eloquently about the war crimes of the state of Israel and published books on his website which are regarded as offensive to many Jews. To criticize this privileged ethnic group in Canada or to question its cherished assumptions, is, it seems, strictly taboo. This is classified as "hate speech". At no time has Arthur advocated breaking the law. He has never incited anyone to violence. He has merely utilized his pen to express his political views in a rational and civilized way as any political dissident anywhere in the world would do. If Arthur had been an American or British citizen, he would not be facing a possible prison sentence right now, and this is because whatever Arthur has said or done is not regarded as a crime in the United States or Britain. If Arthur is to be condemned in a Canadian court for "hate speech", it will only be because Canada has now fallen under the dominant influence of a powerful ethnic group who have somehow managed to turn Canada into an Israelified police state. Yesterday I receive an email from an old friend of mine. His name is Felix Dean. He is a retired Canadian professional who dearly loves his country, just as Arthur Topham does. Unlike Arthur however, Felix can no longer bear to live in Canada. He feels that Canada has rapidly morphed into a police state under the malign influence of organized Jewry. So Felix now resides in self-imposed exile within "the civilized confines of Europe," to quote his own words. This is what Felix has to say about his Canadian compatriot Arthur Topham:

"To the best of my understanding, Arthur Topham's cardinal sin is not what he said, but the fact that he PUBLISHED it. There is an individual by name of Richard Warman, the rabid Zionist attack dog whose only reason for living is to destroy truth tellers like Arthur. Warman is actually of German ancestry, not a Jew as far as I know, but he is a classical cult zombie, someone so thoroughly brainwashed and programmed for bloodshed that I cannot but regard him as little better than a Manchurian candidate of the worst sort.”

Strong words, friend Felix. It distresses me to know that Canadian justice is now apparently relying on the evidence of Manchurian candidates. Has it really come to this? It would appear that this man Richard Warman (pictured), an ardent Zionist with a reputation for being a “serial complainant”, has a personal grudge against Arthur Topham and would like to see him go to prison. Though non-Jewish himself and with no official position, Warman is constantly to be seen filing complaints against critics of Big Jewry. It was he who tried to get David Icke into trouble recently, accusing Icke of unspecified “hate crimes”. Apparently mentioning “Jews” in the same breath as “lizards” is deeply disturbing to Mr Warman and could indirectly lead to a second Holocaust. Needless to say, Warman is relatively small fry: a pest and a nuisance rather than a serious threat to champions of free speech. Arthur’s main adversary is a powerful Canadian Jew, Harry Abrams, British Columbia representative of B’nai B’rith Canada. It was he who in 2007 registered a section 13 complaint against Arthur as follows:

“This concerns a complaint filed with the Canadian Human Rights Commission seeking relief for discriminatory publication under prohibited grounds caught by Section 13 of the Canadian Human Rights Act. The premise of this complaint is a contention that Arthur Topham of Quesnel, British Columbia, Canada, and his internet publication known as Radicalpress.com contrive to promote ongoing hatred affecting persons identifiable as Jews and/or as citizens of Israel.”

Cut out the legal jargon and it boils down to this: Arthur is a criminal because he has given offense to the Jews. In 2012, Harry Abrams filed a second complaint against Arthur with the British Columbia “Hate Crimes” unit, alleging that:

“Roy Arthur TOPHAM, between the 28th day of April, 2011 and the 4th day of May, 2012, inclusive, at or near Quesnel, in the Province of British Columbia, did by communicating statements, other than in private conversation, wilfully promote hatred against an identifiable group, people of the Jewish religion or ethnic origin, contrary to Section 319(2) of the Criminal Code.”

Impressive legal jargon reducible to the age-old whine: “This man is saying bad things about Jews and must be stopped!” This is the charge Arthur is now fighting, and this is the question the Canadian courts must decide: is it permissible to contradict a Jew in any way, thereby hurting his feelings, and will you be sent to prison if he complains about you? A few more quotes from the email of my Canadian friend Felix will help to fill in the picture:

“Arthur had a brave and noble defender in his lawyer, Douglas Christie, who originally defended Ernst Zundel and other political dissidents. Christie unfortunately succumbed to liver cancer a few years ago, a true hero in every sense of the word. Consider that all these guys are real Canadians, whose ancestors were the original pioneers and frontiersmen of our beloved country. These great Canadians earned combat medals, they fought and died in wars on behalf of Canada, and then what happens? These troublesome Jews show up and proceed to grind all our Canadian patriots to dust and ashes, as if they owned the world and all the surrounding planets. No part of Canadian history holds any value for these alien interlopers. They respect none of our traditions. It is thoroughly disgusting. You and I have said things that are hundreds of times more offensive to “the Jews” than Arthur Topham has, and yet no one is threatening to throw us in prison! So why do they pick on Arthur? It’s because Arthur has made a name for himself (through Christie) in the mainstream press. Ordinary Canadians know all about him and therefore he must be made a very public example of — his head must be paraded through the streets on a spike! Arthur most certainly needs defending. In fact, I believe his wife is Jewish. Not that this will help him in any way.”

I was deeply moved by this eloquent email from my friend Felix, himself a Canadian citizen, as I say, who has chosen to leave Canada and live abroad because of the takeover of his country by an increasingly obnoxious, in-your-face Jewish minority. This natural aversion to being bossed around by pesky Jews naturally means that Felix is now regarded as an “anti-Semite” — a term which, according to B’nai B’rith

Canada, can now be applied to four million Canadians. It is amazing to think that even a man with a Jewish wife such as Arthur Topham should be regarded as a dangerous anti-Semite by B'nai B'rith Canada.

Consider this sobering fact: not a SINGLE Canadian citizen has been named as a victim of Arthur Topham's political activities. Who has complained to the police about Arthur Topham? Only TWO individuals out of 36 million Canadians: one a non-Jewish serial complainant, Richard Warman, already mentioned above, and the other a powerful Jew representing B'nai B'rith Canada, Harry Abrams. It is Harry Abrams who is currently leading the witch hunt against Arthur Topham.

The glib assumption that B'nai B'rith Canada, spear-headed in the British Columbia region by Jewish commissar Harry Abrams, represents Jewish interests in Canada and speaks for all Canadian Jews, is an assumption that cannot be granted. There is one Jew who certainly does not feel that B'nai B'rith Canada speaks for all Jews, and that is Arthur Topham's Jewish wife. I venture to say that Arthur's Jewish wife is only one among thousands of Jews in Canada who are utterly appalled by the flagrant war crimes committed by the Jewish state in Gaza only quite recently. These Jews do not feel that B'nai B'rith Canada, with its undeviating loyalty to Israel, represents their interests in any way. For the record, Arthur Topham's Jewish wife is totally aware of Arthur's political activities and is behind her husband 100 percent of the way in whatever he has said or done. Raised in a secular household of Russian Jews, Topham's wife has no time for Zionism. She is a practicing spiritual healer, with clairvoyant abilities, who uses traditional medicines in her healing ministry. Ever since she was a child, I am told, "she has followed the Red path of the Native American Indians and never could relate to her Jewish background." Naturally, Arthur's Jewish wife does not, unlike B'nai B'rith Canada, regard it as a crime that Arthur should have published The Protocols of the Elders of Zion on his site. That B'nai B'rith Canada should actually go to the absurd length of suggesting that Arthur Topham should be sent to prison for, among other things, publishing the Protocols on his website—a book that anyone can buy anywhere—is a sure sign of desperation as well as malevolent overkill. Apart from the Protocols, there are other books Arthur has published on his website which, according to B'nai B'rith Canada, he should not have published and which mark him out as a dangerous criminal who is a threat to Canada's 375,000 Jews. These are books widely available not only on the internet but in major libraries and specialist bookshops, e.g., Eustace Mullins' The Biological Jew and Elizabeth Dilling's The Jewish Religion: Its Influence Today. Elizabeth Dilling's book, incidentally, happens to be a meticulously researched exposé of the Babylonian Talmud, revealing in quotation after shocking quotation the bizarre mindset of Talmudic Jewry. Here are a few examples of what will be found in the Jews' holiest book:

- (1) "When a Jew murders a gentile, there will be no death penalty. What a Jew steals from a gentile he may keep.
- (2) "A Gentile girl who is three years old may be [sexually] violated."
- (3) "If a Jew is tempted to do evil, he should go to a city where he is not known and do the evil there."
- (4) "Jesus is in hell, being boiled in hot excrement."

B'nai B'rith Canada is naturally incensed that the official Jewish hatred of non-Jews should be so openly revealed. They would prefer to see their hatred of the non-Jewish majority kept carefully under wraps. It follows that this highly repressive Jewish organization would not only like to see Dilling's book banned, but they would also like to see Arthur Topham given a stiff prison sentence for daring to draw attention to the book on his website. The unbelievablechutzpah of B'nai B'rith Canada was perhaps even more flagrantly on display when they raised objections to Arthur Topham's republication on his site of Theodore N. Kaufman's hate-filled 1941 book Germany Must Perish! Written by a mentally deranged American Jew, this disreputable book called for the TOTAL EXTERMINATION OF THE GERMAN PEOPLE BY FORCIBLE STERILIZATION OF EVERY SINGLE GERMAN MALE! In order to highlight the enormity of what this psychotic Jew was actually suggesting, Arthur employed the ingenious device of republishing the book on his website with a few significant alterations. First, he changed the title to Israel Must Perish! Then he substituted the word “Israel” for “Germany”, “Jew” for “German”, and “Netanyahu” for “Hitler”. This at once transformed Kaufman’s hateful book into a Swiftian satire.

The point Arthur Topham was making was unmistakable. If it is permissible to call for the mass extermination of the GERMAN people by enforced sterilization of every single GERMAN MALE, then it was equally permissible to call for the extermination of the JEWISH people by the enforced sterilization of every single JEWISH male. The logic was impeccable.

Such perfect logic, however, was displeasing to B’nai B’rith Canada. Driven to desperation, this Jewish organization then resorted to dirty tricks. First it alleged, falsely, that Arthur had actually published a real, hard copy book called Israel Must Perish! He had done no such thing. Secondly and even more egregiously, it made out that Arthur was himself advocating the genocide of the “whole Jewish population.” He was doing no such thing. It was Detective Constable Terry Wilson of British Columbia Hate Crimes Unit who told Arthur in person that B’nai B’rith Canada was attempting to make this defamatory and unprovable allegation.

Nov 17th, 2014 - WHITEFISH – Local residents turned out in droves Monday night at the Whitefish City Council meeting to decry a white separatist think-tank’s local residency and voice support for an anti-hate ordinance barring such groups from assembling in the community. The grassroots demonstration was organized by Love Lives Here, a Flathead Valley affiliate of the Montana Human Rights Network, and comes on the heels of renewed publicity for the National Policy Institute, whose president, Richard B. Spencer, set up headquarters in Whitefish several years ago after moving from Washington, D.C. The not-for-profit group bills itself as “an independent think-tank and publishing firm dedicated to the heritage, identity, and future of European people in the United States and around the world,” and Spencer advocates “a White Ethno-State on the American continent.” In 2006, the Southern Poverty Law Center named NPI one of the four leaders in the world of “academic racism.” Spencer recently re-emerged in the public purview when he was arrested for 72 hours in Budapest, Hungary, and subsequently banned from the country and most of the European Union for three years after trying to hold a conference expressing the group's views. In the wake of the renewed publicity, dozens of Whitefish residents banded together and packed the council chambers Monday night, urging council members to enact an ordinance barring hate-group activities in the community. Organized by civil rights activist and local Rabbi Allen Secher, and his wife, Ina Albert, the residents offered emotional testimony in an effort to "pass a no-hate ordinance so that hate organizations cannot do business in our town," Albert said. One Whitefish resident said he and his partner chose the community of Whitefish in large part because of its kind and accepting nature, and the views of groups like NPI are alarming. "As a gay couple, we chose to have our commitment ceremony in Whitefish because it is so accepting," he said. "I would hope that we do our best to encourage Richard Spencer to conduct his business elsewhere." More than two dozen residents voiced their support for such an ordinance. They were local builders, business owners, former council members, mayoral candidates, attorneys, pastors, mental health professionals and community advocates. "This isn't about one individual, it is about a way of thinking that is despicable," said Brian Muldoon, a Whitefish attorney. "This community I believe is standing up strongly against the kinds of ideas that Richard Spencer and his ilk promotes ... and it is time to deconstruct the ideas that are so insidious. It is time to take a very clear stance. An unambiguous one." Many in attendance spoke of their Jewish faith, including Hilary Shaw, executive director of the Abbie Shelter, whose grandfather is a Holocaust survivor. "My grandfather taught me that diversity makes us more beautiful. I do not want Richard Spencer to conduct National Policy Institute business freely in our town," she said. "I am here to ask you to stop he and others who share those beliefs from doing business in our town." At the end of the hour-long public testimony period, Whitefish Mayor John Muhlfeld explained the procedural steps the council would have to take to consider such a measure, including advertising a hearing, receiving a planning board recommendation, and holding two council hearings for public comment. "We will respond decisively, and I think we have multiple tools in our toolbox to consider this," he said. Similar anti-hate or anti-discrimination ordinances have been passed in other local communities, though infringing on First Amendment rights is an issue. At the end of the lengthy, dramatic testimony, council member Richard Hildner offered his own emotional comment in support of some countermeasure to local "hate groups." "Hate, racism, and bigotry are not community values in Whitefish and I promise you that I will do everything in my power to protect the city of Whitefish from racism, bigotry and prejudice," Hildner said. "I want you to know that you have my pledge." Spencer's presence is not the first time that a fringe group has found purchase in the Flathead Valley, or made headlines. Both Secher and Albert referred in their testimony to a spate of Holocaust-denial films shown publicly in the Flathead Valley in 2009 and 2010. The events were organized by well-known white supremacists seeking to transform the valley into a bastion for those who share white separatist ideologies. The films prompted the formation of Love Lives Here. "I love this town. I adore it and I want to keep adoring it," Secher told the council. "Let's not even open the door to this guy."

Barry Morrison listened with a modest smile last week as one speaker after another extolled his "courage" and "passion" and "integrity." "He is a hero," Mayor Nutter told the audience of 500 at the Crystal Tea Room. "I love you, Barry, for being my friend," said an emotional Tom Martinez, a former "white supremacist from Kensington." It sounded like a farewell party, but no. Morrison, executive director of the regional Anti-Defamation League, was celebrating his 30th anniversary at the ADL and has no plans to leave soon. "I found my world at ADL," Morrison told the crowd, which gave him a standing ovation Tuesday evening. The next morning, he was back at his Center City office, striving as ever to douse embers of racism and intolerance before they catch fire. Founded in 1913 as the Jewish Anti-Defamation League, the ADL today combats prejudice of all kinds - ethnic, religious, gender - while still keeping an eye on anti-Semitism and what it deems unfair criticism of Israel. Morrison's first order of business Wednesday morning was a call about an area Christian group that recently compared Israel's treatment of Palestinians to the Nazis' treatment of Jews and to South Africa under apartheid. "I'd rather not say who it is," Morrison said in an interview later. "I prefer going directly to the parties before going to the press." He paused, then smiled. "Of course, if we get no results, then we might want to go public." It is this brand of gentle, behind-the-scenes firmness that has made Morrison, 59, a major force in combating ethnic and religious hostility, say his admirers, who credit him with greatly broadening his office's scope. Patrick L. Meehan, U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, recalled watching Morrison arrive at the scene of a cross-burning or of distribution of hate literature and quickly impress on municipal officials the need to respond because "these were emotional and psychological assaults on a community." Yet so many of Morrison's efforts have been out of the public eye that even his admirers at last week's banquet found it a challenge identifying his successes. "How do you measure an incident that didn't happen?" wondered ADL board member Joe Goldblum. But then speakers recalled how, when Morrison was head of ADL's Chicago office around 1990, he stood alone before the Chicago City Council and urged it not to rename a major boulevard after Elijah Muhammad, a founder of the Nation of Islam and a bitter critic of Jews. They also cited his creation of the "No Place for Hate" program, now in 130 school districts, which seeks to reduce bullying, name-calling and intolerance. "He sets the standard for regional directors all across the country," Glen Lowry, ADL's national chairman, told the audience. Growing up in Brooklyn, the son of secular Jews from Palestine, Morrison had no reason to suppose he would one day be a champion of oppressed minorities - he had no sense of even being in a minority. "When you stepped out your door, everything around you was Jewish," he recalled. His first adult job was as an elementary school teacher in Bedford-Stuyvesant, one of New York's poorest and toughest neighborhoods. "My approach was an 'iron fist in a velvet glove,' " Morrison said. He gradually imposed order and social skills on children no one else wanted by "showing them an adult cared about them." In the process, he discovered "that I like working in adversarial conditions," he said. "I really do." He showed no particular interest in the ADL - then an agency of B'nai B'rith - until 1978, when a uniformed neo-Nazi group announced plans to march and wave swastikas in Skokie, Ill., home to many Holocaust survivors. "These were people who had lost their families to real Nazis," Morrison recalled, "and they had vowed 'never again.' "The ADL's Chicago office successfully petitioned the courts to halt the march but soon found itself toe-to-toe with the equally determined American Civil Liberties Union, which insisted that even neo-Nazis had a right to free speech. Both sides claimed victory when the courts ruled the Skokie march could proceed, only to see the neo-Nazis take it to Chicago instead. "I was impressed," recalled Morrison, who joined the ADL that year. He served as assistant or executive director in the New Jersey, Nebraska, Philadelphia and Chicago offices before returning to Philadelphia for good in 1992. With no plans to retire any time soon, Morrison said he would like nothing better than to "create some sort of vehicle - call it a clearinghouse, call it a forum" - that could publicly examine controversies related to race, religion and civil rights. "There's a lot of ignorance on Islam. And look at the storm over Rev. [Jeremiah] Wright," he said, referring to the provocative remarks by Sen. Barack Obama's pastor. "There's a lot still to do."

When Barry Morrison retired at the end of 2013 as regional director of the Anti-Defamation League's Philadelphia office after 21 years in that role and 35 with the agency, many thought associate director Nancy Baron-Baer would get the job. But she was not interested at that time and ADL launched a search to find Morrison's successor. Almost eight months later, ADL has found its new regional director: Baron-Baer. "Barry and I worked closely together for 12 years and it was a wonderful partnership," Baron-Baer said. "He was a wonderful mentor and I agreed to serve in an interim director capacity until they found his successor. I just didn't think it was a role I would desire. But during the time I did the job, I came to realize that it was something I wanted to do." David Pudlin, president of Hangley Aronchick Segal Pudlin & Schiller, has been an ADL board member for more than two decades. He now serves on the organization's national executive committee and has been a friend of Baron-Baer's more almost four decades. He was one of several board members on the search committee looking for a new regional director. "We must have looked at 15 candidates over nine months but it always came back to "Nancy's the best, why are we even doing this," Pudlin said. "But we kept after her and she finally agreed and we're very happy that she did." ADL is world's leading organization fighting anti-Semitism and all forms of bigotry through programs and services that counteract hatred, prejudice and discrimination. But for most of her professional life, Baron-Baer was helping clients secure real estate transactions or managing the daily operations of law firms. Baron-Baer spent 24 years as a real estate lawyer after graduating from the University of Pennsylvania Law School. She started in 1977 as an associate at Blank Rome and was recruited by Pudlin to joined the Hangley Connolly firm, which allowed her to work a reduced schedule as she raised her young children. When that firm split in 1994, she became managing partner of Connolly Epstein Chicco Foxman Oxholm & Ewing until that firm merged into Pittsburgh-based Eckert Seamans Cherin & Mellott, where she managed the Philadelphia office. But after nearly a quarter century practicing law, she wanted to try something different, with a particular interest in public service. And her old friend Pudlin knew it. Fresh off serving as ADL's regional chairman, Pudlin introduced Baron-Baer to Morrison, who hired her in 2002 as associate director. Baron-Baer said her chief goal as the new director of this region (which includes eastern Pennsylvania, South Jersey and Delaware) is to expand programming she helped Morrison originate here. One such initiative started 10 years ago is No Place for Hate, which enables schools, organizations and communities to challenge anti-Semitism, racism and bigotry with the ADL providing a model for creating more inclusive environments. Baron-Baer estimates it has been introduced into 200 local schools and communities and she would like that number to grow. Baron-Baer would also like to grow a partnership with the Philadelphia Police Department. Recently, Baron-Baer said ADL took police cadets to the U.S. Holocaust Museum in Washington "so they can understand the role of police in modern society. How it can be used for good and bad. We would like to expand the training to include how to spot left and right wing extremism or identify hate symbols and groups." The support for ADL's mission from the local business community has been strong, she said. ADL has a corporate partnership program, where businesses often sponsor programming and speakers. She said the organization's recent Walk Against Hate was sponsored by 43 companies. The skills and experience gained during Baron-Baer's 24 years as a lawyer, which included more than a decade as a managing partner, have been transferable to her new role with ADL. "Law school teaches us critical thinking, analysis of cases," she said. "Working at ADL, you have to separate fact from fiction and collect as much information as possible. Whether you are managing a firm or representing a client in a lease deal, you are dealing with people from different backgrounds just like we do at ADL. And in both jobs, you are supposed to have a commitment to justice. So it has served me well."

June 4, 2014 PHILADELPHIA (CBS) – The Anti-Defamation League of Philadelphia has sent a letter to Temple University expressing concern over the posts of an adjunct professor on a listserv questioning the number of Jews killed in the Holocaust. Professor Alessio Lerro also questioned the influence of Jewish scholars in academia and demanded Zionists answer for what he called their illegal occupation of Palestine. In a statement provided to 1210 WPHT's Dom Giordano, Temple Spokesman Brandon Lausch responded to criticisms of Lerro and the school. “Temple University promotes open discussion and expression among its diverse community of scholars. The exercise of academic freedom necessarily results in a vigorous exchange of ideas. The views and opinions of any individual instructor are those of the individual and not those of the university,” he wrote. Nancy K. Baron-Bear, the Interim Regional Director of the ADL, wrote in her letter, addressed to Temple President Dr. Neal D. Theobald, that the school did not go far enough to reject Lerro’s assertions. “When racism or other forms of intolerance are expressed in academia, it undermines the principles upon which the University was founded. We therefore believe that an appropriate response to such offensive speech is not censorship, but a strong and unequivocal denunciation of the message,” she stated.

...Hein v Religious Freedom Foundation \(2007\) The Freedom from Religion Foundation sued the then-Director of the White House Office for Faith-Based and Community Initiatives, alleging that his offices (and other similar Federal faith-based offices) were spending federal money to hold conferences where government officials gave speeches that unconstitutionally promoted and endorsed religion. The Supreme Court granted asked whether taxpayers have standing to sue under the Establishment Clause for Executive Branch actions where (a) the plaintiff does not challenge a particular act of Congress; (b) the challenged programs and actions are financed only indirectly through general appropriations; and (c) no funds are disbursed to any entities or individuals outside the government. ADL joined several other organizations in filing an amicus curiae brief that urges the Court to reject suggestions that this case be used to overrule the landmark case of Flast v. Cohen (1968), which secured the important right of “taxpayer standing.”

As an example of the ADL's Educational Series here is book review suggested for PreSchool to second grade. The name of the book is Jacob's Dress.

“Jacob loves playing dress-up, when he can be anything he wants to be—a pirate, a bird, a firefighter. But he also wants to just be himself and wear his favorite thing... a dress! Now Jacob has a new dress that he made himself and what he wants most of all is to wear it to school. Will Mom and Dad let him? This heartwarming story speaks to the unique challenges faced by boys who don't identify with traditional gender roles and promises to spark discussions of gender, identity and self-confidence. “

The book shows to small children they should tolerate children to be allowed to cross dress in school. This is one example of the diversity being promoted by the ADL's “No Place for Hate” program. Perhaps you may recall in California Proposition 8. Defense of Marriage Act that was passed by the voters of California. Subsequently, the Supreme Court ruled to override the voice of the people and ram LGBT agenda right down the throats of the people of California. This was backed by Cindy McCain wife of US Sen John McCain. She is daughter to the Arizona Hensley Beer Business. This business had direct connections to the Jacob Marley gangsters linked to the Bronfman Crime Syndicate and the Chicago Outfit. Perhaps a subsequent lesson will be on the “Rub Out”.

12 August 2013 – The United Nations committee tasked with combating racial discrimination today opened its latest round of work in Geneva with a focus on stopping the spread of racist hate speech on the Internet and social media networks, as well as the need to use education to prevent racism and xenophobia. “Where does the right of expression, which we all want to respect, stop and the need to sanction and prevent hate speech begin? What is the point in time when one right has to recognize that it cannot be exercised if it implies the violation of another one,” UN Deputy High Commissioner for Human Rights Flavia Pansieri said in her address to the opening of the 83rd session of the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination (CERD). As the world becomes more inter-connected, incidents in numerous countries have drawn attention to the issue of racist hate speech, which today is more easily spread across national borders, she added. Ms. Pansieri urged the Committee to include in its deliberations the Rabat Plan of Action, adopted by independent UN experts at a meeting in Morocco in October 2012, on the prohibition of advocacy of national, racial or religious hatred that constitutes incitement to discrimination, hostility or violence. The Deputy High Commissioner noted that the Committee meets against a backdrop of two landmark events – the annual Nelson Mandela International Day commemoration and the 50th anniversary of Martin Luther King Jr.'s march on Washington in which he made his famous "I have a dream" speech. Fifty years after his famous speech, Mr. King's vision remained a dream for many people around the world and that was why, to continue to protect those whose human rights were being violated because of their race, colour, descent or national or ethnic origin, the Committee's members are here today, said Ms. Pansieri...

Dec 27, 2014, Philly.com - More than 50 people - including religious leaders, political officials, and community members - gathered in Yardley on Friday afternoon to denounce an anti-semitic slur apparently spray-painted onto a family's garage door this week. Organized by State Rep. Steve Santarsiero (PA D-31, Bucks) 19 E. Afton Ave. Yardley, PA 19067 RepSantarsiero@pahouse.net, the event featured speeches from him and Lower Makefield Township Supervisor Jeff Benedetto as well as two rabbis, a nun, a Presbyterian pastor, a representative from a local Islamic group, and other community members. The purpose, Santarsiero said, was "to say in a loud voice that there is no place for hate in this community." "Things like this cannot be tolerated," added Rabbi Josh Gruenberg of Yardley's Congregation Beth El. "This is not the community we are going to be." The object of concern was the message "Move Jew," which Lower Makefield resident Michael Raker and daughter Samantha say was spray-painted on their garage door Monday. Both are Jewish. Samantha Raker said she discovered it before heading to work that morning, and that upon seeing the words, "I think my heart stopped for a second." "It was shocking," she said Friday, saying she and her father had not previously felt discriminated against in the neighborhood, where they have lived for about four years. Samantha Raker called police, she said, and Santarsiero said Friday they were investigating. Lower Makefield Township police officials could not be reached for comment. Since Monday, Raker said, she has felt unsafe in her own home. She said she had no idea who may have committed the act. At one point this week she asked her father to watch as she answered a knock at the front door. Santarsiero said he hoped Friday's gathering could show the Rakers that they had the community's support. Samantha Raker, after fielding hugs and handshakes from audience members, said she thought it was a good start. "It was very heartwarming today," she said. Steven J. Figure 405 PA Rep Santarsiero Plans to Run for PA 8th Congress

- <http://www.philly.com/philly/blogs/capitoling/Bucks-Dem-Santarsiero-to-launch-Congressional-bid.html>

Jan 2015 State Rep. Steve Santarsiero, a Bucks County Democrat, has filed papers to run for Congress in 2016, he announced Thursday morning. Santarsiero will be aiming to replace U.S. Rep. Mike Fitzpatrick (R., Pa.), who has announced that he won't seek re-election to the eighth district seat. Fitzpatrick holds a competitive seat, set almost entirely in Bucks, that has swung back and forth between Republican and Democratic control. Notably, Santarsiero's announcement included an endorsement from the local party chairman, something neither Democratic challenger could secure last year in a competitive primary. Democrats wound up nominating Kevin Strouse, a political rookie who had never lived in Bucks and was picked to run by national Democrats, instead of locals. He struggled to win the primary and was trounced in the general election. "I'm excited to start preparing a campaign to represent the people of Bucks and Montgomery Counties in Congress," Santarsiero, 49, said in a news release. "It's time we make Washington accountable to our citizens. I will make it a priority to focus on keeping the middle class families of the 8th District secure while helping to grow our economy, create jobs and bring real reform to Washington." His announcement came less than 48 hours after Santarsiero began a new term in Harrisburg and a new Congress was seated in Washington. A former lawyer, teacher and Lower Makefield township supervisor, he first won his statehouse seat in 2008. "Steve can win this seat. He just won re-election to the statehouse by a landslide in a swing district in what turned out to be a very bad year for Democrats," John Cordisco, chairman of the Bucks County Democrats, said in the release. "He has a clear track record of winning in a tough district, and that's what we will need to prevail in the 2016 congressional race." The announcement also included praise from former U.S. Rep. Allyson Schwartz

(D., Pa.), of Montgomery County. She called his plans “great news for the 8th district and for our Democratic Party.”

Earlier this year, I decided run for Congress in the 8th district. I am immensely thankful for all the support and kind words I've received so far, from County Commissioner Dianne Marseglia, to NOW President Helen Ratnor to Doylestown Borough Council President Det Ansinn. With the help of wonderful supporters like you, we have won tough elections in the past and I am confident we can do the same here. I first ran for Lower Makefield supervisor in 2003, inspired by our community effort to fight the Matrix Development - a proposed big-box shopping center. With the help of my community, I beat a long-term incumbent and was just the second Democrat to be elected to the board. We were then able to secure the majority on the board and I was honored to be its chairman. In 2008, again with the help of supporters like you, I was elected to the Pennsylvania State House, winning a seat that had been Republican ever since it was created. As a State Representative, I fought to bring resources back to our community, supported working families, fought to protect the environment, wrote gun safety legislation, called for ethics reform in the State government, fought for women's rights and against discrimination. I want to bring that same spirit and leadership to Congress so I can continue to fight for our district.

Pennsylvania State Rep. Steve Santarsiero (D-Bucks), based out of Newtown, sought support in Congress Wednesday for a bill that would cut funding to state universities that don't support Israel, he said at a news conference in Harrisburg. Santarsiero's House Bill 1818, "Stand with Israel," would seek to strip state funding for campuses that actively support boycotting Israel for political reasons. "Unfortunately, there is a growing – and alarming – trend on some college and university campuses to launch politically motivated attacks with the intent of pressuring these institutions to engage in boycotts against or divestment from Israel," said Santarsiero, D-Bucks, in a press release. "The state of Israel is the only dependable, democratic ally of the United States in the Middle East. As such, it is in the interest of this commonwealth to promote America's close ties with Israel." Boycott, divest, and sanction (BSD) is a popular movement among Palestinian opponents of Israel who seek to end what they consider an illegal occupation of the West Bank, a land both sides claim as their own. On the international level, it involves economic pressure placed directly on Israel, similar to the sanctions which the United States places on countries like Russia and Iran to discourage certain activities. Domestically, campus boycotts most likely wouldn't amount to more than symbolic action, although Israeli supporters say that it encourages a biased public opinion. Many organizations have called such boycotts Anti-Semitic, including AMCHA, an organization for Jewish students. Santarsiero said that he doesn't believe the bill violates free speech. "It merely creates consequences should schools succumb to political pressure to harm Israel," he said in the press release. Representatives from the Pennsylvania Jewish Coalition and the Jewish Federation of Greater Philadelphia were with Santarsiero during the news conference.

Note: Mr. Santarsiero: As a resident of Bucks County one has seen enough of the corruption in BucksGOP.org. This has included the efforts of US Sen Specter in the cover up of the Apollo Affair via Zalman Shapiro. Here Raphael Eitan (handler for Israeli Spy Jonathan Pollard) met with Zalman and shortly afterwards the company loses about 700 pounds of Nuclear Weapons Grade Material. This was used to build the Israeli Nuclear Weapons. Afterwards Netanyahu was involved with stealing US Nuclear Triggers for the Israeli Nuclear Weapons. Here Specter attempted to exonerate Zalman all the way up thru the Obama Administration. This was in fact TREASON. Your support of a nation that has committed direct espionage against the United States via HR 1018 shows a total disregard of protection of the First Amendment. If you wish to support Israel then you should run for public office in Israel. Resign from your Position as a State Representative and register as a foreign lobbyist. Your sponsorship of this bill shows you are acting in the interests of a foreign state over and above in representing the national interests of the United States with a nation that has committed espionage against the United States. You also support the Anti-Defamation League Hate Laws "No Place for Hate". Here again, the Executive director of the New York City office of the Anti-Defamation League Ruth Stella was the go between spy Jonthan Pollard and Raphael Eitan. If you continue with the policies that support the activities of a foreign nation involved with Treason against the United States then consider handing in your resignation and register as a lobbyist for a foreign nation.

27.27.3.1 Canada Calls a Boycott of Israel a Hate Crime

Washington D.C.- In Canada, it is apparently free speech to speak out against Islam or to mock the prophet Mohammed (based on statements by Canada's Prime Minister following the Charlie Hebdo attacks), but it is a hate crime to speak out against the nation of Israel? It seems to be the direction that the Canadian government is going. According to the CBC, Prime Minister Stephen Harper's government is threatening to use hate crime laws against groups that call for a boycott of Israel. Specifically, the Harper government is attempting to end the BDS- the Boycott, Divestment and Sanctions movement- which is growing in Canada and globally, calling for a boycott and divestment in companies that support Israeli occupation According to the CBC, "Such a move could target a range of civil society organizations, from the United Church of Canada and the Canadian Quakers to campus protest groups and labour unions. If carried out, it would be a remarkably aggressive tactic, and another measure of the Conservative government's lockstep support for Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu. . . ." This is again the same government that called the Charlie Hebdo attacks an assault on freedom and free speech. So what exactly is the BDS movement? Ben Swann talks with Yara Shoufani in the video above as she explains what the movement is all about and why it is becoming such a threat to governments around the world

Brandeis Center for Human Rights Under Law and author of the award-winning Jewish Identity and Civil Rights in America (New York: Cambridge University Press: 2010). Marcus founded the Brandeis Center in 2011 to combat the resurgence of anti-Semitism in American higher education. In November 2012, Marcus was named to the Forward 50, the Jewish Daily Forward's listing of the "American Jews who made the most significant impact on the news in the past year." The Forward described its 50 honorees as "the new faces of Jewish power," predicting that "if Marcus has any say in it, we may witness a new era of Jewish advocacy." During his public service career, Marcus served as Staff Director at the United States Commission on Civil Rights and was delegated the authority of Assistant Secretary of Education for Civil Rights and Assistant Secretary of Housing and Urban Development for Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity. Shortly before his departure from the Civil Rights Commission, the Wall Street Journal observed that "the Commission has rarely been better managed," and that it "deserves a medal for good governance." For his work in government, Marcus was named the first recipient of the Justice and Ethics Award for Outstanding Work in the Field of Civil Rights. Marcus also serves as Associate Editor of the Journal for the Study of Anti-semitism and Vice President of the International Association for the Study of Anti-semitism. On April 26, 1948, Brandeis University announced that [Abram L. Frederick M. Lawrence became the eighth president of Brandeis University on Jan. 1, 2011. An accomplished scholar, teacher and attorney, Lawrence is one of the nation's leading experts on civil rights, free expression and bias crimes. Lawrence has written, lectured and testified widely on civil rights crimes and is the author of "Punishing Hate: Bias Crimes Under American Law" (Harvard University Press, 1999), which examines bias-motivated violence and how such crimes are dealt with in the United States. He has authored and edited numerous books and articles examining bias-motivated crimes, free expression, and constitutional law and has written, lectured, and testified widely on civil rights crimes. At Brandeis, he teaches an undergraduate seminar on punishment and crime.

*With deep sadness, the RJC notes the passing of its founding chairman and visionary leader, Max M. Fisher. Max Fisher, known as "the dean of Jewish Republicans," was 96. Mr. Fisher was an advisor and friend to every Republican president since Eisenhower. As the Quiet Diplomat (the title of the 1992 biography of Mr. Fisher by Peter Golden), he played a unique role in U.S.-Israel relations for many years. A leader and mentor in the Republican Party for more than five decades, Mr. Fisher founded the National Jewish Coalition in 1985 to give Jewish Republicans a permanent, public presence in both the Jewish community and the Republican Party. Today, as a result of Max Fisher's hard work and vision, the Republican Jewish Coalition (renamed in 2000) has 17,000 members nationwide, 35 local chapters in major Jewish community population centers, and four regional offices in addition to the national headquarters in Washington, DC. As the national grassroots organization of Jewish Republicans, the RJC has become the well-respected and effective voice for Jewish Republicans to Republican decision makers in all levels of government and to the greater Jewish community.

"I tell everybody that you've got to elect Romney. You really don't have a choice. I'm worried about my grandchildren and I'm worried about your grandchildren."
- BERNIE MARCUS

Bernie Marcus knows a thing or two about creating jobs. He founded Home Depot, a company with over 2,200 stores nationwide and more than 330,000 employees. As a businessman, Bernie worries about the direction America's headed. He sees kids graduating college unable to find jobs, too many Americans missing their mortgage payments, and an economic environment that's hindering job growth.

Bernie Marcus never had it easy. The son of Russian immigrants, Bernie was raised in a New Jersey tenement. He knows the meaning of hard work. He founded Home Depot during the recession of the early 80s, but he never gave up and as a result, Bernie's created millions of good-paying jobs.

There's something wrong when successful businessmen doubt their ability to succeed due to cumbersome regulations and higher taxes. When Bernie founded Home Depot, he took a risk and it paid off. But Bernie knows we can't risk another four years of Barack Obama.

The group, the Republican Jewish Coalition, plans to begin a multimillion-dollar advertising campaign in the coming weeks called "My Buyer's Remorse," targeting voters in Florida, Ohio and Pennsylvania, aides said. The campaign uses testimonials from people who say they regret supporting Mr. Obama because of his economic policies and his posture toward Israel, in hopes of cutting into the wide advantage Democrats have held over Republicans among Jewish voters. – New York Times

It is the latest foray into the election by Mr. Adelson, a staunch supporter of Israel who has vowed to spend as much as $100 million to defeat Mr. Obama. It marks an escalation of the partisan politics over Middle East policy and represents an emerging Republican strategy of highlighting voters who supported Mr. Obama four years ago but are now expressing disappointment, while signaling to others that they are not alone in shifting their allegiances.

After weeks of intense discussions on possible mergers among the five biggest U.S. health insurers, Aetna announced it would buy Humana in a deal valued at $37 billion -- the largest insurance industry deal to date. In an interview with FOX Business Network's Charles Payne, Aetna Chairman and CEO Mark Bertolini (who will be CEO of the combined company) and Humana President and CEO Bruce Broussard said that the Affordable Care Act was behind the behemoth merger. "[The Affordable Care Act] was an action-forcing event that is starting to create a marketplace where the consumer has a lot more say in what they purchase from insurance companies," said Bertolini. Bertolino says the deal was driven by a change in the relationship between insurance companies and providers. "It's no longer about how much I pay you for each service -- it's more about how do we create a partnership where you get rewarded for improving the health of the population -- and we provide the backstop from a financing standpoint. So it's a very different relationship than we had in the past. And that requires a local market presence, much more scale and a greater opportunity to invest capital into those kinds of relationships in the long term," he said. Broussard argues -- despite upcoming steep premium hikes -- the Affordable Care Act has created a good opportunity for the consumer and insurers. "One of the things that has happened with the ACA is that there is a regulatory aspect that regulates insurance pricing and that has created a great opportunity for the consumer both from the point of view of being protected on the pricing, but at the same time while creating competition in the local marketplace,” said Humana President and CEO Bruce Broussard.

The National Jewish Democratic Council (NJDC) is a political lobbying organization dedicated to promoting Jewish values within the Democratic Party and the political process. The NJDC is outspoken in support of a strong U.S.-Israel relationship, Separation between Church and State (in the US),^[1] and pro-choice.^[2] The NJDC engages in voter education efforts and works with secular and Jewish media to promote the Democratic Party and its ideals. The organization also serves as a resource to candidates throughout the country, helping them understand issues of importance to the Jewish community. In addition, the NJDC serves as a liberal watchdog on the lawful activities of the religious portion of the Right, acting to raise public awareness about efforts to undermine the wall between church and state. These efforts are in furtherance of a solidly liberal agenda that NJDC promotes.

The Leader is Greg Rosenbaum. Greg Rosenbaum, President and founder of Palisades, has over 30 years of experience as an institutional investor and merchant banker. Mr. Rosenbaum previously served as a Vice President of the Dyson-Kissner-Moran Corporation (DKM), a large private investment firm active in leveraged buyouts, reporting directly to the CEO. Mr. Rosenbaum began his career at the Boston

Consulting Group, advising Fortune 500 CEOs on matters of corporate strategy. Prior to starting Palisades, Mr. Rosenbaum was a founder and Managing Director of the Carlyle Group in Washington, DC, a merchant banking firm. Mr. Rosenbaum holds a JD from Harvard Law School, a BA from Harvard College, and a Masters in Public Policy from Harvard's Kennedy School of Government. He is admitted to the active practice of law in Ohio, Illinois, and before the Supreme Court of the United States, and is a member of the American Bar Association's Sections on Antitrust Law and Business Law. 32.1 The US Federal Reserve 12 District Banks Control the Real US Power

The Federal Reserve officially identifies Districts by number and Reserve Bank city.

In the 12th District, the Seattle Branch serves Alaska, and the San Francisco Bank serves Hawaii. The System serves commonwealths and territories as follows: the New York Bank serves the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands; the San Francisco Bank serves American Samoa, Guam, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands. The Board of Governors revised the branch boundaries of the System in February 1996.

The United State of America was Taken over via the Federal Reserve Banking System. The twelve districts of the Federal Reserve Bank have replaced the economic and political power of the United States. Hence the Federal Reserve Banks Board of Governors are in control of the US economic and political power. The districts of the US Rothschild Federal Reserve Banking System are the following:

1. Boston, MA <http://www.bostonfed.org/>

2. New York, NY <http://www.newyorkfed.org/>
3. Philadelphia, PA <http://www.philadelphiafed.org/>

12. San Francisco, CA <http://www.frbssf.org/>

In addition to the twelve Federal Reserve Bank districts. The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System provide oversight and policy to the activities of the Banking Districts. The Board of Directors and the Executive Leadership of each of the twelve Federal Districts exercise the local economic and political control of the regional areas of the US Federal Banking Districts. Hence to determine within your Federal Reserve District Bank examine the leadership of the of the Federal Reserve Banks in your local region.

32.1.1 Federal Reserve Bank Board of Governors & Directors

At the core of the Federal Reserve System is the Board of Governors, or Federal Reserve Board. The Board of Governors, located in Washington, D.C., is a federal government agency that is the Fed's centralized component. The Board consists of seven members who are appointed by the president of the United States and confirmed by the Senate. These Governors guide the Federal Reserve's policy actions. A Governor's term is 14 years. It is possible, however, for a Federal Reserve Governor to serve a longer term. For example, William McChesney Martin Jr. served as a member and Chairman of the Board of Governors for nearly 19 years because he was appointed as Chairman to complete another person's term and was then appointed to his own term. Appointments to the Board of Governors are staggered—one Governor's term expires every two years. Terms are staggered to provide the Fed political independence as a central bank, ensuring that one president cannot take advantage of his power to appoint Governors by "stacking the deck" with those who favor his policies. The Board of Governors must be nonpartisan and act independently. In addition to independence, the staggered terms enable stability and continuity on the Board of Governors. The seven Governors, along with a host of economists and support staff, write the policies that ensure financially sound banks and a stable and strong national economy.

Bezos is known to have libertarian political beliefs. However Bezos is staunchly anti-union and fought hard to avoid sales tax for online purchases until conceding in 2013. Both Bezos and the Washington Post executive have attended several prior recent Bilderberg conferences.

32.7.2.1 Inside Amazon's Warehouse - Sweat Shop

- http://articles.mcall.com/2011-09-18/news/mc-allentown-amazon-complaints-20110917_1_warehouse-workers-heat-stress-brutal-heat

Elmer Goris spent a year working in Amazon.com's Lehigh Valley warehouse, where books, CDs and various other products are packed and shipped to customers who order from the world's largest online retailer. The 34-year-old Allentown resident, who has worked in warehouses for more than 10 years, said he quit in July because he was frustrated with the heat and demands that he work mandatory overtime. Working conditions at the warehouse got worse earlier this year, especially during summer heat waves when heat in the warehouse soared above 100 degrees, he said. He got light-headed, he said, and his legs cramped, symptoms he never experienced in previous warehouse jobs. One hot day, Goris said, he saw a co-worker pass out at the water fountain. On other hot days, he saw paramedics bring people out of the warehouse in wheelchairs and on stretchers. "I never felt like passing out in a warehouse and I never felt treated like a piece of crap in any other warehouse but this one," Goris said. "They can do that because there aren't any jobs in the area." Goris' complaints are not unique. Over the past two months, The Morning Call interviewed 20 current and former warehouse workers who showed pay stubs, tax forms or other proof of employment. They offered a behind-the-scenes glimpse of what it's like to work in the Amazon warehouse, where temperatures soar on hot summer days, production rates are difficult to achieve and the permanent jobs sought by many temporary workers hired by an outside agency are tough to get. Only one of the employees interviewed described it as a good place to work. Workers said they were forced to endure brutal heat inside the sprawling warehouse and were pushed to work at a pace many could not sustain. Employees were frequently reprimanded regarding their productivity and threatened with termination, workers said. The consequences of not meeting work expectations were regularly on display, as employees lost their jobs and got escorted out of the warehouse. Such sights encouraged some workers to conceal pain and push through injury lest they get fired as well, workers said. During summer heat waves, Amazon arranged to have paramedics parked in ambulances outside, ready to treat any workers who dehydrated or suffered other forms of heat stress. Those who couldn't quickly cool off and return to work were sent home or taken out in stretchers and wheelchairs and transported to area hospitals. And new applicants were ready to begin work at any time. An emergency room doctor in June called federal regulators to report an "unsafe environment" after he treated several Amazon warehouse workers for heat-related problems. The doctor's report was echoed by warehouse workers who also complained to regulators, including a security guard who reported seeing pregnant employees suffering in the heat. In a better economy, not as many people would line up for jobs that pay $11 or $12 an hour moving inventory through a hot warehouse. But with job openings scarce, Amazon and Integrity Staffing Solutions, the temporary employment firm that is hiring workers for Amazon, have found eager applicants in the swollen ranks of the unemployed. Many warehouse workers are hired for temporary positions by Integrity Staffing Solutions, or ISS, and are told that if they work hard they may be converted to permanent positions with Amazon, current and former employees said. The temporary assignments end after a designated number of hours, and those not hired to permanent Amazon jobs can reapply for temporary positions again after a few months, workers said. Temporary employees interviewed said few people in their working groups actually made it to a permanent Amazon position. Instead, they said they were pushed harder and harder to work faster and faster until they were terminated, they quit or they got injured. Those interviewed say turnover at the warehouse is high and many hires don't last more than a few months. The supply of temporary workers keeps Amazon's warehouse fully staffed without the expense of a permanent workforce that expects raises and good benefits. Using temporary employees in general also helps reduce the prospect that employees will organize a union that pushes for better treatment because the employees are in constant flux, labor experts say. And Amazon limits its liability for workers' compensation and unemployment insurance because most of the workers don't work for Amazon, they work for the temp agency. Amazon's priority and key competitive edge is quick delivery of products at low prices. Its Lehigh Valley location on Route 100 near Interstate 78 puts one-third of the population of the U.S. and Canada within a one-day haul. And the weak labor market helps keep employment costs down..

32.14 Debt, Mortgage and the Law Merchant - Sir David-Andrew

Ecclesiasticus 21:8 (Septuagint - Apocrypha), "He that buildeth his house with other men's money is like one that gathereth himself stones for the tomb of his burial."

What is the meaning and origin of the word mortgage? The term mortgage comes from mort and means "death" (as in mortuary or mortality), and gage means "pledge." Mort-gage means a "dead pledge." In Bouvier's Law Dictionary of 1856, Dead-Pledge is defined as "a mortgage of lands or goods." It's a pledge of death because it's an engagement in debt, which is a neglect or violation of our duty; we're not supposed to engage in those things. This is why we're not to owe man anything:

Romans 13:8, "Owe no man any thing, but to love one another:"

There is no love when one neglects or violates the Law of God. The definition from Bouvier's is a full disclosure that one is walking in bondage and death when engaged in mortgages and debt.

Nehemiah 5:3-5, "...We have mortgaged our lands, vineyards, and houses... We have borrowed money for the king's tribute, and that upon our lands and vineyards...and, lo, we bring into bondage our sons and our daughters to be servants, and some of our daughters are brought unto bondage already: neither is it in our power to redeem them; for other men have our lands and vineyards."

This article will explain how debt brings into captivity he who engages in it.

Proverbs 22:7, "The rich ruleth over the poor, and the borrower is servant to the lender."

2 Kings 4:1, "Now there cried a certain woman of the wives of the sons of the prophets unto Elisha, saying, Thy servant my husband is dead; and thou knowest that thy servant did fear the LORD: and the creditor is come to take unto him my two sons to be bondmen."

When one enter into debt, who is he a servant to? He is a servant to the merchants of the earth, because their law, the Law Merchant, has full jurisdiction over debt within their system. Between brothers there's not really any debt, because we give and expect nothing in return, for "it is more blessed to give than to receive" (Acts 20:35). But when we're dealing with the natural man and we go in debt with the world, we're entering into a private law, which is known as the lex mercatoria (Law Merchant).

32.14.1 Private law, not God's Law

This quote is from Stone, Smith, Frank and Rommage, a book called Fundamentals of Business Law, from 1950.

"The merchants of the Italian city states and of the cities that were members of the Hensiotic League rejuvenated general European trade in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, following its almost total abandonment after the fall of Rome. These traders took precepts from the ancient law of the Romans Empire, adapted them to their times, and created customs of trade and ways of doing business that became accepted among the merchants of all Europe. And hence, this body of business, or commercial law, obtained the name Law Merchant. The law of agencies, sales, negotiable instruments, insurance, carriage, debt, guarantees, soffage and transit, liens, partnership and bankruptcy, was made by these traveling, international private merchants."

In other words, the whole debt system that's set up today, when one enters into it, one is entering into that private law of those private merchants, and that's who they become a servant to.

32.14.2 Why Mortgages are Ungodly

The idea of paying interest on anything that is loaned to you is foreign to the Word of God, because interest (usury) is condemned by God (Exodus 22:25-27, Leviticus 25:36-37; 23:19-20, Nehemiah 5:7,10-11, Psalms 15:5, Proverbs 28:8, Isaiah 24:1-3, Ezekiel 18:8,13; 22:12-13). So, when one pays those usury fees (interest) they are partaking of the sin of the merchant who engages in the usury. Simply and directly put:

Deuteronomy 15:6; 28:12, "Thou shalt not borrow."

Now we'll look and see how, when a mortgage is contracted, one man is partaking of another man's sins. Basically, the mortgage system originated in Babylon, and by partaking of the ways of Babylon, we are forsaking God's ways.

The following quote is from a law Review called The Georgetown Law Journal, written by Judith A. Shapiro. The name of this article is called The Shetar's Affect on the English Law, a Law of the Jews becomes the Law of the Land. The introduction reads as follows:

“English Law, like the English language, is an amalgam of diverse cultural influences. The legal system may fairly be seen as a composite of discreet elements from disparate sources. After the conquest of 1066, the Normans imposed on the English and efficiently organized social system that crowded out many Anglo Saxon traditions. The Jews, whom the Normans brought to England, in their turn, contributed to the changing English society. The Jews brought a refined system of commercial law. Their own form of commerce and a system of rules to facilitate and govern it. These rules made their way into the developing structure of English law.

“Several elements of historical Jewish practices have been integrated into the English legal system. Notable among these is the written credit agreement, Shetar, or Starr, as it appears in English documents. The basis of the Shetar, or Jewish gauge, was a lean on all property, including realty, that has been traced as a source of the modern mortgage. Under Jewish law, the Shetar permitted a creditor to proceed against all the goods and land of the defaulted debtor. Both movable and immovable property was subjected to distraint.

“In contrast, the obligation of knight service, under Anglo Saxon Norman law, barred a land transfer that would have imposed a new tenant, and therefore, a different knight owing service upon the lord. The dominance of personal feudal loyalties equally forbade the attachment of land in satisfaction of a debt; only the debtor's chattels could be seized.”

At this point we will pause here and explain the above quote. When someone took out a loan, that loan could not be applied to the land. The land was free of any debt, because it was under knight service. To continue the introduction:

“These rules kept feudal obligations in tact, assuring that the lord would continue to be served by his own knights. When incorporated into English practice, the notion from Jewish law, that debts could be recovered against a loan secured by “all property, movable and immovable”, was a weapon of socio-economic change that tore the fabric of feudal society and established the power of liquid wealth in place of land holding.”

So, they brought in the Shetar as a weapon, and it completely changed what debt could apply itself to. And it is now the modern mortgage system. Previously to that law being implemented, the land could never be taken from you, but of course today it can. And to continue:

“The crusades of the twelfth century opened an era of change in feudal England. To obtain funds from Jews, nobles offered their land as collateral, although the Jews, as aliens, could not hold land in fee simple, they could take security interest in substantial money value. That Jews were permitted to hold security interest in land, they did not occupy expanded interest in land beyond the traditional tendencies. The separation of possessory interest from interest in fee contributed to the decline of the rigid feudal land tenure structure.”

So, when they bring in a new law, it changes it slightly, and then over time they bring in new laws. Similar to what the Federal government does today. They'll bring in just a little change that really doesn't affect much, then they'll bring in another little change, and so on and so forth, and before you know it everything is turned upside down and things aren't exactly as they used to be. And finally:

“At the same time, the strength of the feudal system had inheritant resistance to this widespread innovation abated. By 1250, scutage had completely replaced feudal services. Tenant obligations had been reduced to money payments, and as the identity of the principles in the landlord tenant relationship became less critical, a change in the feudal rules restricting alienability of interest in land became possible.”

32.14.3 The Shetar

Now, in the same law review under the section The Jewish Credit Agreement in Feudal England, page 1182, it explains the more intricate history of the Shetar in Jewish law.

“The law of the Shetar developed and elaborated by 500 A.D. in the Babylonian Talmud, antedates the Norman conquest by six centuries. Historically, the Shetar was an instrument that established formal obligation either in contract or in debt. At the moment that a debtor acknowledged his indebtedness through a Shetar, a general lien was established encumbering all the debtors property as security for ultimate repayment. In case of default, the creditor could proceed not only against “movable and immovable property” held by the debtor, but also against encumbered land that the debtor had transferred to a third party. The debt attached to the land and the creditors lien had priority over subsequent alienations.

“Because of the severe obligation imposed by the Shetar, the contents of the instrument followed a standard form designed to insure authenticity and precision. Each Shetar recited standard clauses of obligation, the creditor's right to customary modes of execution, and a final phrase stating that the document was not merely a forum, but a statement of an express contract. Inserted into the forum language were the names of the parties, the sum and the currency of the debt, and the date of the obligation, thereby indicating the creation of the lien. To prevent fraud, the document was signed by two witnesses who knew the parties.”

So when you see the description of the original Shetar, it's the same description of the modern mortgage. To continue:

“A nation of wanderers, in adapting a variety of cultures, determined that the language in which the Shetar was written should be irrelevant to its legal validity. Thus, in dealings with a surrounding Gentile populous, Jews were content that loan agreements be formalized in Latin or in the Norman French of early England. Generally, the Jewish parties and witnesses were to test in Hebrew and the Christians in French or Latin. Although neither party may have understood the other's language, the document had the full force of law in both communities.

“The crucial limitation on debt collection under Jewish law was that a creditor had a lien against the debtor's land, but not against the debtor's person. Personal freedom was not to be diminished by a debt obligation, and a creditor could not enslave one who was unable to repay him. The origin of this practice was the biblical protection of the dignity of debtors as embodied in the injunction not to enter the debtor's home to receive a pledge, but rather to wait outside for the debtor to bring it out. This was the structure of the law of obligation that the Jews brought with them to England.”

So, what we see here is the modern mortgage system and its origin. It came out of the Babylonian Talmud, and it was adopted by the merchants of the world, the banking system, etc. Therefore, it is fully revealed that he who engages in a mortgage is yoked with those of the world.

“Ruling during an era of socio-economic change from 1272 to 1307, king Edward was want to legislate accordingly, and Edward was weary of the Jews. Thus, he issued laws forbidding the Jews from holding real property, denying them usurious practice and ordering them to wear distinctive dress and identifying badges.”

So Hitler did nothing new when he forbade Jews from owning land and making them wear distinctive dress and identifying marks. On its face, it would appear that he was repeating history, but:

“Even as he restricted Jewish money lenders, Edward expanded the universe of non-Jewish money lending. He had before him a model of secured debt contracts, enforced for centuries by the royal courts for the royal users.”

What we see from the above is that the "non-Jews" picked-up on the ways of the Jews and became "one" with them and their Babylonian Talmud. So, we're not talking strictly about the Jews. We're talking about the spirit of anti-Christ which is promoted and enlarged by the kings and merchants of the earth.

“In the statute of merchants in 1285, Edward extended to creditors the forms of registry, remedy, and enforcement that had previously been the substance of the exchequer of the Jews. Under the statute, a debtor acknowledged the existence of his debt before the mayor and one of the recording clerks. The clerks recorded the debt in two rolls, one to remain with the mayor and one with the clerks. In his own recognizable handwriting, the clerk prepared a debt instrument to which the debtor affixed his seal and the officials affixed the king's seal. This instrument was given to the creditor who would present it to the mayor and the courts to prove his rights if the debtor defaulted.

“More than the enrollment procedures paralleled the structures of the exchequer of the Jews, the remedies also extended to Christian creditors the relief formally available only to Jews. No longer was a Christian creditor's release before judgment limited by the debtor's absence. If the Christian creditor presented to the mayor a matured acknowledged debt instrument corresponding to an enrolled debt he had established full right to relief. If the debtor did not pay, the creditor eventually obtained access to the debtor's lands even as the Jews had done for years. And if the creditor was ejected from the debtor's lands, he could bring an asseize of novel desizen to be put back in possession. The statute of merchants expressly allowed merchant's “damages and all necessary and reasonable costs in their labors, suits, delays and expenses,” the same label that disguised otherwise usurious interest in Jewish contracts. Finally, the king assumed the duty of maintaining the Role of Debts affixing his seal next to the debtor's and charging one penny for each pound of obligation. The new law expressly excluded Jews.”

We see then how this spirit was developed and promoted. The Jews "invented" it, the Christians bought "rights" to the "invention," and then the king, to make this spirit "appear" Christian, excluded the original "inventors," the Jews. And then he went even further to complete the ruse:

“Five years after the statute of merchants, Edward the first expelled the Jews from England. Religious hostility was rife. Repeated atalages had depleted the Jew's resources in lessened their value to the king's purse. No longer were the Jews the unique source of credit in England. By the statute of merchants, Edward had granted to all non-Jewish creditors the same remedies and procedural rights previously available to the Jews. Debts were secured by land and the security interests survived the death of the creditor and the alienation of the property. In addition to the property that escheated to the king on their departure, the Jews left behind a law of debtors and creditors developed in the Talmud, introduced in the exchequer and preserved in the laws of England.

“Traces of the Shetar procedures survived for centuries in English law. A sealed debt continued to be discharged only by a deed of release or by cancellation or destruction of the debt instrument. The practice of debt cancellation by requiring return of the pes of the chirograph continued from 1194 until its abolition by statute in 1833. Most important, the encumbrance of real property permitted by the Jewish law of the Shetar had been adopted by English law. Bonds contained the traditional Hebrew formula of pledging “all my goods, movable and immovable.” Creditors had the statutory right to execute against the debtor's land. No longer were personal obligations and rights in land rigidly separate. Even while Edward was divesting himself of his Jewish money lenders, he made their legacy permanent. A small but significant principle of Jewish law wherein personal debt superceded rights in real property had become the law of the land.”

Oh, that crafty serpent! The ways of the Babylonian Talmud mortgage practices became part of the common law of England. The law of the merchants of the earth in England was merged with the Common Law of England, which up to that time contained only Biblical Law. So today, the term “Common Law” includes the Law Merchant. The merger took place in England in the 1600's through a court decision by Lord Mansfield, and was then brought to America and "incorporated" into the Federal and State constitutions (i.e., the Common Law of England shall rule in all cases of law and equity).

So, we see how man has taken what was once a private way of doing things, and they've made it all part of the Law Merchant, the Lex Mercatoria. The above is an example of why Proverbs 22:7 warns us about those who join with and engage in the ways of the heathen:

Proverbs 22:7, "The rich ruleth over the poor, and the borrower is servant to the lender."

32.14.4 The Answer

People ask, “Well, what can we do about it?” The only answer is to stop partaking of it. Follow the ways of the Lord in your dealings with others. Remember, the Lord provides for all of our needs. We're not to seek those things of the world. And if your heart is truly after Him, you will abandon those things and find, through Him, His alternatives and His ways. It all comes down to Faith. You go to His Word and you go to prayer and He will show you the way. He always does. And that walk of Faith results in knowing, and then seeing, that he will provide for you when you walk in His ways.

Joshua 24:15, "...choose you this day whom ye will serve;"

When you enter into the debt system that's "set up" today, you're entering into that private law of those private merchants, and that's who you become a servant to. You're serving sin, because our Lord rejected all those things of the Roman Empire. As He rejected those things, we must also.

Now, words are easy to say, but doing it is always the difficult part. People are in debt and they don't know how to get out of it, or they don't think they can survive in the world without going into debt, especially in the area of buying a house and the mortgage system. And, along with that, everyone believes they must have just as good of a house as everyone else. So, it has a lot with being spoiled and going for our wants instead of our needs.

When you walk with the Lord, he provides all of our needs (Matthew 6:26-33; Luke 12:28-31, Philippians 4:19, Psalm 34:10). It's our wants that get us into debt. We have to put all those wants behind us and stop looking to the things of the flesh to satisfy us, because there is no satisfaction there.

Psalms 23:1, "The LORD is my shepherd; I shall not want."

Psalms 23:1 (Septuagint), "The LORD tends me as a shepherd, and I shall not want anything."

We are shown at 1 Samuel 22:1-2 that those who were "in distress, and every one that was in debt, and every one that was discontented," abandoned all of those things and they went to a man of the Lord (David) and had him rule over them. They abandoned that yoke and heavy burden of bondage of the ways of the heathen, and exchanged it for a yoke that is easy and a burden that's light (Matthew 11:30). And we must do the same thing; we must put all those things behind us and follow Christ Jesus only, and not the ways of the world. Without bringing you into bondage through debt, the beast has no power.

If we read the history of God's people, we find that sin always leads to slavery. And that's why we must follow His Words and His Commandments.

Leviticus 25:23, "The land shall not be sold for ever: for the land is mine; for ye are strangers and sojourners with me."

“Brett, speaking only for myself, I agree with your point that the principle of peaceful, non-violent protest and the observance of the rule of law is of utmost importance in any society. MLK, Gandhi, Mandela, and all great opposition leaders throughout history have always preached this precept. Further, it is critical that in any democracy investigation must be completed and due process must be honored before any government or police members are judged responsible. That said, my greater source of personal concern, outrage and sympathy beyond this particular case is focused neither upon one night’s property damage nor upon the acts, but is focused rather upon the past four-decade period during which an American political elite have shipped middle class and working class jobs away from Baltimore and cities and towns around the U.S. to third-world dictatorships like China and others, plunged tens of millions of good hard-working Americans into economic devastation, and then followed that action around the nation by diminishing every American’s civil rights protections in order to control an unfairly impoverished population living under an ever-declining standard of living and suffering at the butt end of an ever-more militarized and aggressive surveillance state. The innocent working families of all backgrounds whose lives and dreams have been cut short by excessive violence, surveillance, and other abuses of the Bill of Rights by government pay the true price, an ultimate price, and one that far exceeds the importance of any kids’ game played tonight, or ever, at Camden Yards. We need to keep in mind people are suffering and dying around the U.S., and while we are thankful no one was injured at Camden Yards, there is a far bigger picture for poor Americans in Baltimore and everywhere who don’t have jobs and are losing economic civil and legal rights, and this makes inconvenience at a ball game irrelevant in light of the needless suffering government is inflicting upon ordinary Americans.”

32.18 History of Russian Banking System Prior to 1917

- <http://rense.com/general95/truthaboutimpruss.html>

The Truth About Imperial Russia By Stephen Goodson 8-8-12 (Rense.com)

In early 1815, Nathan Rothschild approached Czar Alexander I (1801-25) at the Congress of Vienna with a proposal that he set up a central bank in Russia. Whether it was because he distrusted this shady banker or was aware of the perils of central banking is not known, but he prudently declined. In 1860 The State Bank of the Russian Empire was founded with the aim of boosting trade turnovers and the strengthening of the monetary system. Up to 1894 it was an auxiliary institution under the direct control of the Ministry of Finance. In that year it was transformed into being the banker of the bankers and operated as an instrument of the government’s economic policy. It minted and printed the nation’s coins and notes, regulated the money supply and through commercial banks provided industry and commerce with very low interest rate loans. Its vast gold reserves, the largest in the world, except for the year 1906 exceeded the bank note issue by more than 100%. Not unexpectedly Russia had the smallest national debt in the world. The following table reflects the number of rubles per inhabitant in 1908.

County	Rubles per Inhabitant
France	288.0
Great Britain	169.8
Germany	135.6

Table 8 Imperial Russia National Debt versus Western Nations

By 1914 83% of the interest and amortization of the national debt was funded by the profits of the Russian State Railways. In 1916 the total length of the main lines was 100 817 verst or kilometers. In 1861 Czar Alexander II (1855-81) abolished serfdom, which at that time affected 30% of the population. By 1914 80% of the arable land was in the hands of the peasants. The Peasants' State Bank, described at that time as the "greatest and most socially beneficent institution of land credit in the world" granted loans at a very low rate of interest, which was in effect a handling charge. Between 1901 and 1912 these loans increased from 222 million rubles to 1.168 billion rubles. Agricultural production soared so that by 1913, Russia had become the world's bread basket as the following table reveals.

Russian Agriculture Production as Percentage of World Production prior to 1917 Revolution

Oats	3,324.6	1,087.0	30.3%
Rye	2,378.0	1,593.0	67.0%
Wheat	4,971.4	1,554.8	31.2%

Table 9 Imperial Russia Agriculture Production

Russian agricultural production of cereals exceeded the combined production of Argentina, Canada and the United States by 25%. Mining and industrial output also expanded by huge margins. Between 1870 and 1914 industrial output grew by 1% per annum in Great Britain, 2.75% per annum in the United States and 3.5% per annum in Russia. During the period 1890 to 1913 industrial production quadrupled and Russian industries were able to satisfy 80% of internal demand for manufactured goods a perfect example of autarky. With the Russian State bank creating the people's money out of nothing at almost zero interest; as opposed to the rest of the world where central banks allowed parasitic private banks to create their nations' money supply at usurious rates of interest, it comes as no surprise that in 1912 Russia had the lowest levels of taxation in the world. Furthermore there was hardly any inflation.

Russia Tax Rate in 1912 prior to 1917 Revolution

Country	State Tax Rate	Local Tax Rate	Combined Tax Rate
---------	----------------	----------------	-------------------

Great Britain	10.01%	16.74%	26.75%
Germany	5.45%	7.52%	12.97%
France	5.12%	5.07%	10.19%
Russia	1.28%	1.38%	2.66%

Table 10 Imperial Russia Tax Rates versus Western Nations

An independent study by British lawyers concluded that the Russian Code of Laws and judiciary were “the most advanced and impartial in the world.” Elementary education was obligatory and free right up to university level. In labor relations the Russians were pioneers. Child labor was abolished over 100 years before it was abolished in Great Britain in 1867. Strikes, which were forbidden in the Soviet Union, were minimal in Czarist times. Labor laws were so advanced and humane that President William Taft was moved to say that “the Emperor of Russia has passed workers’ legislation which was nearer to perfection than that of any democratic country.” The Czar and his state bank had created a workers’ paradise that was unrivalled in the history of mankind. On November 7, 1917, the Rothschilds, fearful that replication of this extraordinary example of freedom and prosperity would destroy their evil banking empire, instigated a Judeo-Bolshevik revolution in Russia, which wrecked and ruined a wonderful country and resulted in the deaths by murder and starvation, according to Alexander Solzhenitsyn, of 66 million innocent people

With the fortune he made from business, he built Carnegie Hall, and founded the Carnegie Corporation of New York, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, Carnegie Institution for Science, Carnegie Trust for the Universities of Scotland, Carnegie Hero Fund, Carnegie Mellon University and the Carnegie Museums of Pittsburgh, among others. 32.21 Legacy of US Banking History – WhatReallyHappened.com

- <http://whatreallyhappened.com/WRHARTICLES/wildbankers.php>

32.21.1 Background of Banking in Early Colonial America

The banking history begins prior to formation of the United States. The original 13 colonies printer their own currency, this worked for commerce turning America into a powerful growing economy, free of poverty and unemployment that crippled London at that time. Europe Bankers used private banks to issue public currencies, the were against the American approach. The Bank of England lobbied King George III to impose the currency act on the US Colonies, the British forbade the colonies to use their own money and required them to borrow money from the Bank of England at interest.. In a few years the scheme reduced the formerly prosperous colonies to poverty and unemployment. American Public Schools teach the revolution was about the Stamp act and the Tea tax. The primary cause was anger created by the poverty caused by the Currency Act which led to the revolution.

32.21.2 American Economy After the Revolution 1776 to 1791

Founding Fathers of this nation set up a simple economic system that did not rely on a private central bank. Government issued the public currency and spent it into circulation where it was used by the public free of interest. Then the money was taxed back into the government's hands, then to be re-spent back into circulation. For each fiscal year the money issued equaled the money collected. Nothing was lost. The dollar was based on a weight measure of silver, which meant the value of a dollar was fixed and not subject to the whims of government or bankers.

32.21.3 First US Bank 1791 to 1811 Cause of War of 1812

This is a system which has worked very well for the civil population throughout history. It made the new nation immediately prosperous. This alarmed the European banking clans, which feared the American inspiration might spread to other nations (as it did to France in 1793). Where Britain's military might failed, politics succeeded and spurred on by Alexander Hamilton, the first Bank of the United States was granted a 20 year charter in 1791. Almost immediately, the spiraling debt in the government budget, championed as necessary for international commerce by Hamilton, began to drain the livelihood of ordinary Americans. The furor over the debt was one of many issues that led to the famous duel between Hamilton and Aaron Burr which resulted in Hamilton's death on July 11, 1804. As a side note, the pistols which were used in the duel are today in the possession of J. P. Morgan Chase & Co. Hamilton continues to be lionized by the private banking cartels he championed

Everything predicted by the enemies of banks, in the beginning, is now coming to pass. We are to be ruined now by the deluge of bank paper. It is cruel that such revolutions in private fortunes should be at the mercy of avaricious adventurers, who, instead of employing their capital, if any they have, in manufactures, commerce, and other useful pursuits, make it an instrument to burden all the interchanges of property with their swindling profits, profits which are the price of no useful industry of theirs." --Thomas Jefferson

By 1811, the owners of the First Bank of the United States had become rich while ruining the lives of ordinary Americans. Congress had prudently limited the charter of the bank to 20 years and it expired in 1811. A move to re-charter the bank failed due to public opposition.

The Bank of the United States is one of the most deadly hostilities existing, against the principles and form of our Constitution. An institution like this, penetrating by its branches every part of the Union, acting by command and in phalanx, may, in a critical moment, upset the government. I deem no government safe which is under the vassalage of any self-constituted authorities, or any other authority than that of the nation, or its regular functionaries. What an obstruction could not this bank of the United States, with all its branch banks, be in time of war! It might dictate to us the peace we should accept, or withdraw its aids. Ought we then to give further growth to an institution so powerful, so hostile?" --Thomas Jefferson

32.21.4 War of 1812

The following year, with the conclusion of Britain's wars with Napoleon, the Bank of England demanded King George re-invade the United States to force them back into the clutches of private central banking, this time with the Bank of England. Thus was initiated the war of 1812, a war like any other war; created and waged for profit.

Note: It was here at this point the Rothschild Bankers took over financial control of the London Financial Interests due to the financial manipulation during the battle of Waterloo.

32.21.5 Second Bank of the US 1816 - 1832

The war of 1812 failed. Political and monetary pressure succeed where military force failed. In 1816 President Madison chartered the Second Bank of the US. The bank was formed in part to manage the debts created during 1812 war. Runaway inflation caused by private banks issuing their own bank notes without restraint. The bank was granted a 20 year charter. By the time the charter was to expire the United States was again dealing with debt and poverty while bankers were growing richer. As a result, Andrew Jackson opposed the renewal of the bank charter and made it a major platform of his campaign in 1832

"Gentlemen, I have had men watching you for a long time and I am convinced that you have used the funds of the bank to speculate in the breadstuffs of the country. When you won, you divided the profits amongst you, and when you lost, you charged it to the bank. You tell me that if I take the deposits from the bank and annul its charter, I shall ruin ten thousand families. That may be true, gentlemen, but that is your sin! Should I let you go on, you will ruin fifty thousand families, and that would be my sin! You are a den of vipers and thieves. I intend to rout you out, and by the Eternal God, I will rout you out." -- Andrew Jackson

In 1835, an unemployed painter, Richard Lawrence, attempted to shoot President Jackson twice, with both pistols failing to fire. Lawrence gave as his reason for the attack that with the President dead, money would be more plentiful, an obvious reference to Jackson's veto of the re-chartering of the Second Bank of the United States. As a footnote, following the loss of its charter, the Second Bank of the United States attempted to continue as an ordinary bank, but went bankrupt in 1841.

32.21.6 Difference of a Private Banking System to Founders Banking Principles

The main difference between the economic system created by the Founding Fathers and the current system is that the control of the printing presses has been given over to the private central bank. The government no longer prints up and spends the money it needs to operate, but BORROWS the money from the private central bank, at interest! Then the money is spent into circulation and winds its way through the population, and is then collected back in taxes. But here is the problem. Taxes now have to collect back MORE money than the government spent in order to pay the interest back to the private central bank. Over time, relentlessly, the private central bank is acquiring wealth from the population, in essence charging the people a fee for doing what the government itself originally did for free. That is the major difference between the economic system created by the nation's founders (the reason we fought a war to be free of the Bank of England) and the system we have today.

It is because we have been sold back into the debt slavery of a private central bank that the history of the Currency Act and its impact on the American Revolution is marginalized in the state-controlled schools. We are brainwashed into believing that the Revolution was about soggy tea!

"If the debt which the banking companies owe be a blessing to anybody, it is to themselves alone, who are realizing a solid interest of eight or ten per cent on it. As to the public, these companies have banished all our gold and silver medium, which, before their institution, we had without interest, which never could have perished in our hands, and would have been our salvation now in the hour of war; instead of which they have given us two hundred million of froth and bubble, on which we are to pay them heavy interest, until it shall vanish into air... We are warranted, then, in affirming that this parody on the principle of 'a public debt being a public blessing,' and its mutation into the blessing of private instead of public debts, is as ridiculous as the original principle itself. In both cases, the truth is, that capital may be produced by industry, and accumulated by economy; but jugglers only will propose to create it by legerdemain tricks with paper." --Thomas Jefferson

32.21.7 Silver/Gold Money versus Paper Money

But the banks were still constrained by the Coinage Act of 1792, which defined a dollar as 371.25 grains of pure silver, matching the common silver currency in use around the world at the time, or that weight of gold which would match in value 371.25 grains of pure silver, 24.75 grains, 1/15 the weight of the silver in a silver dollar. It wasn't the coin that was the money, but the metal the coin contained. Of course, carrying around large amounts of silver was difficult, so paper certificates were issued, both silver and gold certificate, as a convenience. But those paper certificates were not the money. They were claim checks. They were accepted as items of value because you could walk down to the banks and turn the claim checks in for the appropriate amount of silver or gold. But the metal was the money, not the engraved coins and not the paper. The bankers could only loan out as much money, based on silver or gold, as they had the silver and gold to cover in their vaults. The adherence to gold and silver as a unit of value was a major limitation on the banker's activities.

32.21.8 Civil War Lincoln's Greenback

Then in 1861, the Confederacy broke free of the United States. Abraham Lincoln sought financing from the bankers for the war effort, but balked at the usurious high interest rates the banks demanded. Declaring that he would not enslave the white people to the bankers to free the black people, Abraham Lincoln exercised his Presidential Authority to issue a new government currency; the greenback. However in order to make the currency work and to cover the escalating costs of the War, Lincoln was forced to abandon convertibility, meaning that the paper notes became the money and were not convertible to silver or gold (despite the flood of silver from the Comstock strike of 1857, which eventually led to Nevada's rapid statehood and Federal taxation in 1864). While there was inflation at the time, the government-issued currency, free of interest to a private bank, worked well during the war years, and Abraham Lincoln declared his intention to keep issuing the Greenbacks after the war's conclusion. This did not please the world's bankers at all. An 1865 London Times editorial directed against Lincoln's debt-free Greenbacks said it all.

"If that mischievous financial policy which had its origin in the North American Republic during the late war in that country, should become indurated down to a fixture, then that Government will furnish its own money without cost. It will pay off its debts and be without debt. It will become prosperous beyond precedent in the history of the civilized governments of the world. The brains and wealth of all countries will go to North America. That government must be destroyed or it will destroy every monarchy on the globe."

Following Abraham Lincoln's assassination, Congress voted to end the Greenbacks, but did not restore convertibility. Banks could issue notes without regard to actual bullion reserves and a period of intense post-war inflation and speculation resulted.

32.21.8.1 Lincoln Foresaw the Crises Emerging

- <http://www.ratical.org/corporations/Lincoln.html>

"The money powers prey upon the nation in times of peace and conspire against it in adversity. It more despotic than a monarchy, more insolent than autocracy and more selfish than bureaucracy. It denounces as public enemies all who question its methods or throw light upon its crimes. I have two great enemies, the Southern Army in front of men and the Bankers in the rear. Of the two, the one at my rear is my greatest foe. I see in the near future a crisis approaching that unnerves me and causes me to tremble for the safety of my country. . . . corporations have been enthroned and an era of corruption in high places will follow, and the money power of the country will endeavor to prolong its reign by working upon the prejudices of the people until all wealth is aggregated in a few hands and the Republic is destroyed." Nov 21, 1864.

32.21.9 The Bankers Manifesto

Congressman Charles A. Lindbergh, Sr. revealed the Bankers Manifesto of 1892 to the U.S. Congress somewhere between 1907 and 1917. The source was an article written by Louis Even and published in United States Bankers Magazine 1892

We (the bankers) must proceed with caution and guard every move made, for the lower order of people are already showing signs of restless commotion. Prudence will therefore show a policy of apparently yielding to the popular will until our plans are so far consummated that we can declare our designs without fear of any organized resistance. Organizations in the United States should be carefully watched by our trusted men, and we must take immediate steps to control these organizations in our interest or disrupt them. At the coming Omaha convention to be held July 4, 1892, our men must attend and direct its movement or else there will be set on foot such antagonism to our designs as may require force to overcome This at the present time would be premature. We are not yet ready for such a crisis. Capital must protect itself in every possible manner through combination (conspiracy) and legislation. The courts must be called to our aid, debts must be collected, bonds and mortgages foreclosed as rapidly as possible. When, through the process of law, the common people have lost their homes, they will be more tractable and easily governed through the influence of the strong arm of the government applied to a central power of imperial wealth under the control of the leading financiers. People without homes will not quarrel with their leaders. History repeats itself in regular cycles. This truth is well known among our principal men who are engaged in forming an imperialism of the world. While they are doing this, the people must be kept in a state of political antagonism. The question of tariff reform must be urged through the organization known as the Democratic Party, and the question of protection with the reciprocity must be forced to view through the Republican Party By thus dividing voters, we can get them to expend their energies in fighting over questions of no importance to us, except as teachers to the common herd. Thus, by discrete actions, we can secure all that has been so generously planned and successfully accomplished

32.21.10 1910 Gold Standard

In 1900 President McKinley kept a campaign promise to bring back convertibility by signing the Gold Standard Act, making the Gold Standard the basis for all US currency, even though much of the coinage issued remained silver. McKinley did this because of the public perception that the US Banking system was weak and corrupted, and because the gold strikes in California, Alaska, and Colorado bolstered the US Treasury's stock of that metal. One year later, President McKinley was assassinated by Leon Czolozs, who explained his attack at his execution saying, "I killed the President because he was the enemy of the good people – the good working people."

- <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=vB5LK-jihgk>

In 1910, a group of private bankers met at a private island named Jekyll Island to plan the imposition of yet another private central bank on the people of the United States. As part of the ruse, they abandoned the unpopular name "Bank of the United States" and chose the name Federal Reserve to grant themselves the illusion that this was a government agency, when in point of fact it is just another privately owned central bank. Pretenses to the contrary notwithstanding, the Federal Reserve is no more "Federal" than Federal Express. It is a privately owned bank. Three years later, in 1913, Congress voted the Federal Reserve act and President Wilson signed it, redeeming a campaign promise to his financial backers. Six years later, as his Presidency came to a close, Woodrow Wilson wrote.

"I am a most unhappy man. I have unwittingly ruined my country. A great industrial nation is now controlled by its system of credit..We are no longer a government by free opinion, no longer a government by conviction and the vote of the majority, but a government by the opinion and duress of a small group of dominant men." -- Woodrow Wilson 1916

Because of the earlier disasters with 20 year charters, the Federal Reserve was granted a 100 year charter due to expire in 2013. A later Congress amended the Federal Reserve act to make the charter permanent

For a while, the new Federal Reserve was still bound by the requirements of the Gold Standard. Under the law, they were required to have enough gold on hand to redeem 40% of the paper notes they had issued. The Federal Reserve claimed that this requirement limited their ability to deal with the financial crash of 1929, and after years of lobbying, finally persuaded incoming President Franklin Roosevelt to abandon the gold standard entirely in 1933 and to confiscate all gold and gold certificates in order to make the gold available to the US Government for war funding purposes.

In looking back at the crash of 1929 it became obvious that reckless speculation had created the over-valued market bubble, while easy credit for buying stocks on margin drew in working-class people; people who did not have risk capital to play with, to form each succeeding layer of a rapidly-building pyramid doomed to eventual collapse. In the wake of the melt-down, Congress passed the Banking Act of 1933, otherwise known as the Glass-Steagall Act, which created the FDIC to restore public confidence in the banks and stop the runs. Glass-Steagall also included a ban on bank holding companies from owning other financial institutions, which was seen as a major contributing factor to the reckless speculation which precipitated the crash.

32.21.14 Heroic Congressman Louis McFadden vs Federal Reserve Bank

Congressman Louis T. McFadden was fearless. He continued efforts to expose the private, for profit Federal Reserve cabal even after two attempts on his life. They finally got him.

October 4, 1936 Attacks on Congressman McFadden's Life ReportedCommenting on Former Congressman Louis T. McFadden's "heart-failure sudden-death" on Oct. 3, 1936, after a "dose" of "intestinal flu," "Pelley's Weekly" of Oct. 14 said: "Now that this sterling American patriot has made the Passing, it can be revealed that not long after his public utterance against the encroaching powers of Judah, it became known among his intimates that he had suffered two attacks against his life. The first attack came in the form of two revolver shots fired at him from ambush as he was alighting from a cab in front of one of the Capital hotels. Fortunately both shots missed him, the bullets burying themselves in the structure of the cab." "He became violently ill after partaking of food at a political banquet at Washington. His life was only saved from what was subsequently announced as a poisoning by the presence of a physician friend at the banquet, who at once procured a stomach pump and subjected the Congressman to emergency treatment." Robert Edward Edmondson (Publicist-Economist)

- <http://home.hiwaay.net/~becraft/mcfadden.html>

In his June 10, 1932, address on the House floor, he declared, as reported in the Congressional Record: "Mr. Chairman, we have in this country one of the most corrupt institutions the world has ever known. I refer to the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Reserve banks. The Federal Reserve Board, a Government board, has cheated the Government of the United States out of enough money to pay the national debt. The depredations and the iniquities of the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Reserve banks acting together have cost this country enough money to pay the national debt several times over. This evil institution has impoverished and ruined the people of the United States, has bankrupted itself, and has practically bankrupted our Government. It has done this through defects of the law under which it operates, through the maladministration of that law by the Federal Reserve Board, and through the corrupt practices of the moneyed vultures who control it." Remember, this was a former bank president and member of the Republican Party speaking! McFadden added: "From the Atlantic to the Pacific our country has been ravaged and laid waste by the evil practices of the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Reserve banks and the interests which control them ... This is an era of economic misery, and for the conditions that caused that misery, the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Reserve banks are fully liable." Further statements by McFadden in his House speeches may be found at: As we watch today with dismay while the U.S. dollar shrinks in value and foreign investors continue to buy huge quantities of federal government debt, we might recall McFadden's words from a 1934 speech: "The Fed Note is essentially unsound. It is the worst currency and the most dangerous that this Country has ever known. When the proponents of the act saw that the Democratic doctrine would not permit them to let the proposed banks issue the new currency as bank notes, they should have stopped at that. They should not have foisted that kind of currency, namely, an asset currency, on the United States Government. They should not have made the Government [liable on the private] debts of individuals and corporations, and, least of all, on the private debts of foreigners.” Of the twelve regional Federal Reserve Banks, or corporations, McFadden said in words that also prefigured the life-and-death stranglehold the Fed has over every aspect of the U.S. economy today: “The imperial power of elasticity of the public currency is wielded exclusively by the central Corporations owned by the banks [i.e., the regional Federal Reserve Banks.] This is a life and death power over all local banks and all business. It can be used to create or destroy prosperity, to ward off or cause stringencies and panics. By making money artificially scarce, interest rates throughout the Country can be arbitrarily raised and the bank tax on all business and cost of living increased for the profit of the banks owning these regional central banks, and without the slightest benefit to the people. The twelve Corporations together cover and monopolize and use for private gain every dollar of the public currency and all public revenue of the United States. Not a dollar can be put into circulation among the people by their Government, without the consent of and on terms fixed by these twelve private money trusts.” In language that suited the 1930s but is also prophetic of our own disjointed times, McFadden summarized his outrage by saying: “Are you going to let these thieves get off scot free? Is there one law for the looter who drives up to the door of the United States Treasury in his limousine and another for the United States Veterans who are sleeping on the floor of a dilapidated house on the outskirts of Washington?” McFadden may have paid with his life for his outspokenness. After he lost his congressional seat in 1934, he remained in the public eye as a vigorous opponent of the financial system; that is, until his sudden death on October 3, 1936, of a “dose” of “intestinal flu” after attending a banquet in New York City.

Dr. Ron Paul, the Republican candidate for the 2008 presidential nomination, is not the first U.S. politician to point to the abuses of the Federal Reserve System and call for its abolishment. Similar pleas to get rid of the Fed were made by Reps. Wright Patman (1893-1976) and Henry Gonzales (1916-2000), both Democratic congressmen from Texas and chairmen of the House Banking Committee. Few recall, however, how controversial the Fed was when it was first proposed and then maneuvered through a recessing Congress just before Christmas 1913. Rep. Charles Lindbergh, Sr., R-MN and father of the future aviator, called the Federal Reserve Act “the worst legislative crime of the ages.” But the strongest opposition came later, during the Great Depression. The source was Rep. Louis T. McFadden, a Republican representative from Pennsylvania who, as a former bank cashier and president, knew the financial system intimately. McFadden was born in Granville Center, Bradford County, Pennsylvania, on July 25, 1876, just three weeks after the nation celebrated its centennial at the Philadelphia Exposition. He graduated from Warner’s Commercial College in Elmira, New York, and went to work at the First National Bank of Canton, PA, in 1892. McFadden was elected to Congress in 1914 and served until 1934. Though a Republican, he moved to impeach President Herbert Hoover in 1932 and introduced a resolution to bring conspiracy charges against the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve. He also made a 25-minute speech on the House floor accusing the Federal Reserve of deliberately causing the Depression. At the time, the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board was Eugene Meyer, who resigned after Franklin D. Roosevelt was inaugurated as president in 1933 and purchased the Washington Post at a bankruptcy auction. Later in 1933, McFadden introduced House Resolution No. 158, Articles of Impeachment for the Secretary of the Treasury, two assistant Secretaries of the Treasury, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve, and the officers and directors of its twelve regional banks. This was McFadden’s political swan song. In the election of 1934, he lost his reelection bid to a Democrat by 561 votes. Reporting his death in its October 14 issue, Pelley’s Weekly stated that it had “became known among his intimates that he had suffered two [previous] attacks against his life. The first attack came in the form of two revolver shots fired at him from ambush as he was alighting from a cab in front of one of the Capital hotels. Fortunately both shots missed him, the bullets burying themselves in the structure of the cab.” Next, ‘He became violently ill after partaking of food at a political banquet at Washington. His life was only saved from what was subsequently announced as a poisoning by the presence of a physician friend at the banquet, who at once procured a stomach pump and subjected the congressman to emergency treatment.’ Evidently the third time the assassins succeeded, and the most articulate critic of the Federal Reserve and the financiers’ control of the nation was dead. He was 60 years old.

32.21.15 JFK versus the Federal Reserve Bank

The Federal Reserve completed their plan for the economic subjugation of the American people in 1964, one year after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. Silver coin and certificates were still in general use; money that came from the government and was used free of interest. Since the money was something of value and owned by whoever held it, the banks made no profit off of the use of that money and more to the point, could not manipulate its value. Then President John F. Kennedy signed Executive Order 11110 on June 4th, 1963. This order authorized the Treasury to issue a new government currency, the US Note, based on silver in Fort Knox, recycled from the huge magnets used in early Uranium enrichment at Oak Ridge. This allowed the Kennedy administration to purchase four billion dollars worth of goods and services without having to borrow the money from the Federal Reserve, and signaled Kennedy's intention to restore the nations' economic system to the model used by the Founding Fathers.

32.21.16 End of Silver Dollar

The following year, all silver coins and silver certificates were withdrawn from circulation. The media proclaimed the new clad coinage and the Federal Reserve Notes to be just as good as the silver money, and the entrapment of the American people was complete. From then on, all currency in circulation was worth what the private central bank said it was worth, and over time, it has been declared worth less and less. Just see how many "dollar" notes it takes to buy an original US Silver Dollar today

32.22 USMC Gen Major Smedley Butler - War is a Racket

- http://rationalrevolution.net/war/major_general_smedley_butler_usm.htm

Marine Smedley Darling Butler is one of the most highly decorated military men from the pre-World War II era. He served from 1898 to 1931 and saw action all over the world. Butler became a prominent political figure and was one of America's important leaders of the liberal movement of the 1930s. Butler advocated military isolationism and was against American involvement in World War II. His isolationist views are certainly unpopular today, and in fact are not compatible with the current geopolitical situation. His views, however, developed from 33 years of serving as what he called "a gangster for capitalism."

The following is an excerpt from a speech he gave in 1933:

"War is just a racket. A racket is best described, I believe, as something that is not what it seems to the majority of people. Only a small inside group knows what it is about. It is conducted for the benefit of the very few at the expense of the masses. I believe in adequate defense at the coastline and nothing else. If a nation comes over here to fight, then we'll fight. The trouble with America is that when the dollar only earns 6 percent over here, then it gets restless and goes overseas to get 100 percent. Then the flag follows the dollar and the soldiers follow the flag. I wouldn't go to war again as I have done to protect some lousy investment of the bankers. There are only two things we should fight for. One is the defense of our homes and the other is the Bill of Rights. War for any other reason is simply a racket. There isn't a trick in the racketeering bag that the military gang is blind to. It has its "finger men" to point out enemies, its "muscle men" to destroy enemies, its "brain men" to plan war preparations, and a "Big Boss" Super-Nationalistic-Capitalism. It may seem odd for me, a military man to adopt such a comparison. Truthfulness compels me to. I spent thirty- three years and four months in active military service as a member of this country's most agile military force, the Marine Corps. I served in all commissioned ranks from Second Lieutenant to Major-General. And during that period, I spent most of my time being a high class muscle- man for Big Business, for Wall Street and for the Bankers. In short, I was a racketeer, a gangster for capitalism. I suspected I was just part of a racket at the time. Now I am sure of it. Like all the members of the military profession, I never had a thought of my own until I left the service. My mental faculties remained in suspended animation while I obeyed the orders of higher-ups. This is typical with everyone in the military service. I helped make Mexico, especially Tampico, safe for American oil interests in 1914. I helped make Haiti and Cuba a decent place for the National City Bank boys to collect revenues in. I helped in the raping of half a dozen Central American republics for the benefits of Wall Street. The record of racketeering is long. I helped purify Nicaragua for the international banking house of Brown Brothers in 1909-1912. I brought light to the Dominican Republic for American sugar interests in 1916. In China I helped to see to it that Standard Oil went its way unmolested. During those years, I had, as the boys in the back room would say, a swell racket. Looking back on it, I feel that I could have given Al Capone a few hints. The best he could do was to operate his racket in three districts. I operated on three continents.”

Dianne Feinstein—the ninth wealthiest member of congress—has been beset by monumental ethical conflicts of interest. As a member of the Military Construction Appropriations Subcommittee (MILCON) from 2001 to the end of 2005, Senator Feinstein voted for appropriations worth billions of dollars to her husband's firms. From 1997 through the end of 2005, Feinstein's husband Richard C. Blum was a majority shareholder in both URS Corp. and Perini Corp. She lobbied Pentagon officials in public hearings to support defense projects that she favored, some of which already were, or subsequently became, URS or Perini contracts. From 2001 to 2005, URS earned $792 million from military construction and environmental cleanup projects approved by MILCON; Perini earned $759 million from such projects.

In 2000, Perini earned a mere $7 million from federal contracts. After 9/11, Perini was transformed into a major defense contractor. In 2004, the company earned $444 million for military construction work in Iraq and Afghanistan, as well as for improving airfields for the US Air Force in Europe and building base infrastructures for the US Navy around the globe. In a remarkable financial recovery, Perini shot from near penury in 1997 to logging gross revenues of $1.7 billion in 2005. It is estimated that Perini now holds at least $2.5 billion worth of contracts tied to the worldwide expansion of the US military. Its largest Department of Defense contracts are "indefinite delivery-indefinite quantity" or "bundled" contracts carrying guaranteed profit margins. As of May 2006, Perini held a series of bundled contracts awarded by the Army Corps of Engineers for work in the Middle East worth $1.725 billion. Perini has also been awarded an open-ended contract by the US Air Force for military construction and cleaning the environment at closed military bases. In 2003 hearings, MILCON approved various construction projects at sites where Perini and/or URS are contracted to perform engineering and military construction work. URS's military construction work in 2000 earned it a mere $24 million. The next year, when Feinstein took over as MILCON chair, military construction earned URS $185 million. On top of that, the company's architectural and engineering revenue from military construction projects grew from $108,726 in 2000 to $142 million in 2001, more than a thousand-fold increase in a single year. Beginning in 1997, Michael R. Klein, a top legal adviser to Feinstein and a long-time business partner of Blum's, routinely informed Feinstein about specific federal projects coming before her in which Perini had a stake. The insider information, Klein said, "was intended to help the senator avoid conflicts of interest.” Although Klein’s admission was intended to defuse the issue, it had the effect of exacerbating it, because in theory, Feinstein would not know the identity of any of the companies that stood to contractually benefit from her approval of specific items in the military construction budget—until Klein told her. Feinstein’s husband has profited in other ways by his powerful political connections. In March 2002, then-Governor Gray Davis appointed Blum to a twelve-year term as a regent of the University of California, where he used his position as Regent to award millions of dollars in construction contracts to URS and Perini. At the time, he was the principal owner of URS and had substantial interests in Perini. In 2005, Blum divested himself of Perini stock for a considerable profit. He then resigned from the URS board of directors and divested his investment firm of about $220 million in URS. Shortly before my expose of Senator Dianne Feinstein’s conflict of interest was published in January 2007, Feinstein, who had declined to substantively comment upon serious allegations of ethical misconduct as reported in the story, resigned from the Military Construction Subcommittee. I then wrote three follow-ups, including a news column on her resignation, an expose of her husband Richard Blum’s conflict of interest as a regent of the University of California, and an expose of Blum’s business partner, Michael R. Klein. With Blum’s financial backing, Klein, a war contractor, operates a non-profit called The Sunlight Foundation that awards millions of dollars to reporters and government watchdog groups to research government ethics.

In March, right-wing bloggers by the thousands started linking to and commenting upon these stories—agitating for a Congressional investigation of Feinstein. In just two days, the stories got 50,000 online hits. Michael Savage and Rush Limbaugh did radio segments on my findings. I declined to appear on their shows, because I do not associate with racist, misogynist, homophobic demagogues. Fox News’ Bill O’Reilly invited me to be on his national TV show, but quickly uninvited me after I promised that the first sentence out of my mouth would frame Feinstein as a neoconservative warmonger just like O’Reilly.

As the storm of conservative outrage intensified, Joe Conason, from The Nation Institute, which had commissioned the Feinstein investigation, asked to have the tag thanking the Nation Institute for funding removed from my stories because, he said, Katrina vanden Heuvel, The Nation’s editor and publisher, did not want the magazine or its non-profit institute to be positively associated with Limbaugh. I told Conason that not only was I required to credit The Nation Institute under the terms of our contract, but that The Nation’s editors should be proud of the investigation and gratified by the public reaction.

The back story to that encounter is that, in October, vanden Heuvel had abruptly killed the Feinstein story, which had been scheduled to run as a cover feature before the November 2006 election in which Feinstein was up for reelection. The Nation’s investigative editor, Bob Moser, who worked closely with me on the project from start to finish, wrote that I had done a “solid job,” but that the magazine liked to have a political “impact,” and since Feinstein was “not facing a strong challenge for reelection,” they were not going to print the story. Moser added that there was no “smoking gun,” which amazed me, since Klein’s admission that he was funneling defense contracting wish lists developed by Feinstein’s husband’s company directly to the senator, who was in a position to make those wishes come true, was a hot and smoking fact pointing toward corrupt practices. Subsequently, vanden Heuvel wrote an editorial praising women leaders of the newly-empowered Democratic Party, including Feinstein: go figure.

I then sold the story to Salon.com, who abruptly killed it right before publication, too. This time the editor’s explanation was that “someone talked to the Sunlight Foundation” and that Salon no longer saw the matter as a serious conflict of interest. So, I pitched the story to Slate, The New Republic, Harper’s, the Los Angeles Times and, by way of experiment, to the neoconservative American Spectator and Weekly Standard. Most of the editors praised the reporting, but turned down the story. I cannot help but believe that, considering the precarious balance of power in the post-election Senate, some of these editors were not eager to critique the ethics of a Democrat. As for rejection by the neoconservatives, I theorize that they secretly adore Feinstein, who has consistently supported Bush's war and homeland security agenda and the illiberal Patriot Act.

So I sold the tale to the North Bay Bohemian, which, along with its sister papers in San Jose and Santa Cruz ran it on the cover—complete with follow-ups. After it appeared, the editors and I received a series of invective-filled emails from war contractor Klein (who is also an attorney) but, since he could show no errors of fact in the story, he did not get the retraction that he apparently wanted. In March, the story crested a Google tidal wave generated by left- and right-wing bloggers wondering why the mainstream media was ignoring the Feinstein scandal. After two dozen newspapers ran a McClatchy wire service article in April observing that no one had found any factual faults in my reporting, the lefty group Media Matters attacked me on its Web site as a right-wing pawn, without even calling me for comment, nor finding any errors in my reporting. I parried their fact-free insults with facts and they were compelled to correct the inaccurate rant.

On April 30, The Hill newspaper in Washington D.C. ran a highly-visible op-ed by a conservative pundit quoting from my story and comparing Feinstein (unfairly) to convicted felon and former Congressman, Duke Cunningham. As the Feinstein investigation gained national traction, mostly outside the realm of the mainstream media, one of Klein's employees at the Sunlight Foundation posted a "critique" of my story, which was loaded with personal insults, but contained no factual substance. Not coincidentally, Feinstein's press office distributes, upon request, a similarly-worded "rebuttal," which insults my personal integrity, finds no factual errors, and does not address the damning fact, reported in the story, that four non-partisan ethics experts based in Washington D.C. found the senator had a conflict of interest after reviewing the results of my investigation.

Also, in April, CodePink and The Raging Grannies held a demonstration in front of the Feinstein-Blum mansion in San Francisco demanding that she return her war profits to the Iraqi people. That was my proudest moment. Five months after the story was printed, opinion-floggers across the political spectrum continue to loudly ask why the mainstream media has not reported on Feinstein's ethical problem. Some say that the hurricane of opinion raised by the investigation has killed Feinstein's chance for a spot on the Democratic Party's presidential ticket in 2008. Klein has continued to send me e-mails full of verbal abuse, misspellings, and implied threat of lawsuit. Blissfully, I delete them.

32.22.2 Response to Senator Feinstein - Tyranny of Gun Control Bill

Figure 444 Senator Feinstein - Gun Control - I'll give you my gun when you take it from my cold, dead hands

One U.S. Marine was more than a little displeased with California Sen. Dianne Feinstein's draconian gun control proposal, which includes an assault weapons ban and provisions on handguns and even "grandfathered weapons."

The letter, written by U.S. Marine Joshua Boston, was titled "No ma'am" and was first posted on CNN iReport on Dec. 27. The letter has since gone viral and has been shared extensively on social media sites like Facebook and Twitter, as it seemingly has resonated with a segment of the American population. Read Boston's entire "No ma'am" letter below and then share it with others:

Senator Dianne Feinstein, I will not register my weapons should this bill be passed, as I do not believe it is the government's right to know what I own. Nor do I think it prudent to tell you what I own so that it may be taken from me by a group of people who enjoy armed protection yet decry me having the same a crime. You ma'am have overstepped a line that is not your domain. I am a Marine Corps Veteran of 8 years, and I will not have some woman who proclaims the evil of an inanimate object, yet carries one, tell me I may not have one. I am not your subject. I am the man who keeps you free. I am not your servant. I am the person whom you serve. I am not your peasant. I am the flesh and blood of America. I am the man who fought for my country. I am the man who learned. I am an American. You will not tell me that I must register my semi-automatic AR-15 because of the actions of some evil man. I will not be disarmed to suit the fear that has been established by the media and your misinformation campaign against the American public. We, the people, deserve better than you. Respectfully Submitted, Joshua Boston Cpl, United States Marine Corps 2004-2012

32.22.2.1 US Gun Control Cities Put US 3rd Highest Murder Rate of the World

The United States ranks 3rd in Murders throughout the World. However, if you take out Chicago , Detroit , Washington DC , and New Orleans , the United States is 4th from the bottom for murders. These 4 Cities have the toughest Gun Control Laws in the United States .. All 4 are also controlled by Democrats. It would be absurd to draw any conclusions from this data.

Since the JFK Assassination, Former US Senator Arlene Specter was the Senate Leader on the Senate Judicial and Intelligence Committees. At this point Senator Feinstein has these Senate Positions of Power.

During first Term of George Bush Jr. 2001-2004, via Specter the Bucks GOP (www.bucksgop.org) had their candidates controlling the House, Senate, Dept of Justice and FBI used to prosecute organized crime. In effect the BucksGop shutdown criminal prosecution during this period of time. In the House they had Congressman James Greenwood head up the House Committee on Permanent Investigation. He gave us the entertainment of Martha Stewart while he let the Enron Scandal Melt down the financial markets. In the Senate Arlene Specter was the leader of the US Senate Committees on Permanent Investigation and Intelligence. Hence the US Senate segment used to prosecute organized crime was controlled by Senator Arlene Specter. Specter then via his recommendation, has current Congressman Patrick Meehan head up the US Dept of Justice and FBI to prosecute organized crime. This in effect put the Fox in the Hen House. The FBI stated in the past to control a community by Organized crime, they go after three major key positions of power: 1) Mayor, 2) Chief of Police and 3) Prosecutor. With these three positions of power the Mafia is able to control the government of a community. This is in effect what they had during this point in time. Now with Senator Feinstein. They have again the Senate positions of power used to prevent effective prosecution of criminal offenses.

In Dollar amount SENATOR DIANNE FEINSTEIN is the biggest war profiteer in United States History, and the most ethically squalid. Even more so than Cheney. SENATOR FEINSTEIN WARNED ABOUT CHINA CONNECTION. BUT GOES ON TO TAKE MASSIVE BRIBES IN THE FORM OF PHONY “DEALS” HER HUSBAND DRUMS UP WITH THE CHINESE DICTATOR. FEINSTEIN HAS BECOME THE RICHEST TRAITOR IN UNITED STATES HISTORY. THAT MADE HER BUSH’S CANDIDATE (AND INSURANCE AGAINST IMPEACHMENT) FOR FEEDING OFF THE IRAQ WAR MACHINE WITH CHENEY AND HALLIBURTON. THAT RACQUET BOUGHT FEINSTEIN A 17 MILLION DOLLAR MANSION IN SAN FRANCISCO TO ADD WITH THE 30 MILLION DOLLARS IN OTHER MANSIONS THIS WOMAN HAS ACQUIRED WHILE IN OFFICE.

- <http://www.snopes.com/politics/business/blum.asp>

The US has entered into a contract with a real estate firm to sell 56 buildings that currently house U.S. Post Offices. The government has decided it no longer needs these buildings, many of which are located on prime land in towns and cities across the country. The sale of these properties will fetch billions of dollars and a handsome 6% commission to the company handling the sales. That company belongs to a man named Richard Blum. Who is Richard Blum you ask? Why the husband of Senator Dianne Feinstein, that's who. What a bunch of crooks we have running this country! Senator Feinstein and her husband, Richard Blum, stand to make a fortune. His firm, C.R. I., is the sole real estate company offering these properties for sale. Of course, C.R.I. will be making a 6% commission on the sale of each and every one of these postal properties. All of these properties that are being sold are all fully paid for. They were purchased with U.S. taxpayers dollars, and they are allowed free and clear by the U.S.P.S. The only cost to keep them is the cost to actually keep the doors open and the heat and lights on. The United States Postal Service doesn't even have to pay property taxes on these subject properties. Would you sell your house just because you couldn't afford to pay the electric bill? Well, the Post Office is. How does a powerful U.S. Senator from San Francisco manage to get away with such a sweet deal? A powerful United States Senator's husband is standing by, all ready to make millions from a U.S. taxpayer funded enterprise. No one in the mainstream media is even raising an eyebrow over his 6% commission on the sale of hundreds of millions of dollar's worth of quasi-public assets

Repealing Discriminatory Defense of Marriage Act -Senator Feinstein is the author of The Respect for Marriage Act, a bill to repeal the Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA) and restore the rights of all lawfully married couples—including tens of thousands of same-sex couples—to receive the benefits of marriage under federal law. Senator Feinstein introduced the Respect for Marriage Act on March 16, 2011. At a press conference that day (photo), she was joined by Senate colleagues and a gay couple from California. Under current law, legally married, same-sex couples cannot take advantage of federal protections available to every other married couple in this country. For example, these couples cannot:

- File joint federal income taxes and claim certain deductions
- Receive spousal benefits under Social Security
- Take unpaid leave under the Family and Medical Leave Act when a loved one falls seriously ill
- Obtain the protections of the estate tax when one spouse passes and wants to leave his or her possessions to another.

Senator Feinstein wrote a commentary, "Walking the Walk on DOMA Repeal," featured on the Huffington Post.

Jul 20 2011 Walking the Walk on DOMA Repeal - The Huffington Post By Senator Dianne Feinstein

It is great news that gay couples in New York now have the right to legally marry. It is wrong, however, that those same married couples will not be able to enjoy the federal rights and privileges afforded to straight married couples. The reason is the Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA), a bill passed in 1996 that denies the rights and benefits provided by the federal government to legally married same-sex couples. Just a few months ago, I introduced the Respect for Marriage Act, a bill to repeal DOMA once and for all. The bill is simple. It would strike DOMA from federal law and free the federal government to provide basic stability, security and fairness to thousands of same-sex couples in this country. And I am very pleased that President Obama has endorsed our legislation to repeal DOMA and right this wrong. Today the Senate Judiciary Committee held the very first congressional hearing on the repeal of DOMA. I hope it will open the minds of many of my colleagues about repealing DOMA. This is the key argument I made at today's hearing: Family law has traditionally been the preserve of state law and therefore it varies from state to state. Marriage is the preserve of state law. Divorce is the preserve of state law. Adoption is the preserve of state law. Inheritance rights are the preserve of state law. The single exception is DOMA. The Williams Institute at UCLA estimates there are between 50,000 and 80,000 married same-sex couples in the states that have approved same-sex marriage: Massachusetts, Connecticut, Iowa, Vermont, New Hampshire and the District of Columbia. The number of couples will significantly grow now that New York State recently granted same-sex couples the freedom to marry. In my state of California, an estimated 18,000 couples were wed when same-sex marriage was allowed in 2008. These couples live their lives like all married people. They share financial expenses, they raise children together and they care for each other in good times and bad, in sickness and in health, until death they do part. But because of DOMA, these couples cannot take advantage of the more than 1,100 federal protections available to every other married couple in this country. DOMA denies these couples the rights and benefits to file joint federal income taxes and claim certain deductions; receive spousal benefits under Social Security; take unpaid leave under the Family and Medical Leave Act; or obtain the protections of the estate tax when a spouse passes and wants to leave his or her possessions to another. In fact, many people are impacted precisely when they are at their most vulnerable: after the death of their spouse or when their spouse is seriously ill. This discrimination is wrong, plain and simple, and it impacts so many couples around the country. When I introduced the Respect for Marriage Act earlier this year, three couples came forward with stories of commitment to each other and to their children. Today the committee heard from more married couples about how DOMA has impacted their lives. The most effective weapon we have at our disposal is storytelling. These stories of married couples who are denied the stability and the protections guaranteed by federal law will help build momentum to repeal DOMA and right this wrong. The Courage Campaign, a 700,000-member grassroots organization based in California, is working state-by-state to gain support and gather stories. This has been an historic year in equality for LGBT Americans. Congress finally repealed the "Don't Ask Don't Tell" policy and a federal court recently found provisions of DOMA unconstitutional. But we still have more to do. Repealing DOMA won't be easy. It will be a long road. But it is the right thing to do and I look forward to leading this fight in the United States Senate. I hope you will share your story--whether you are gay or straight--and join me in this fight.

- <http://davidduke.com/straight-protocols-yellen-swears-fischer-onto-federal-reserve-board/>

June 2014 - Janet Yellen, has sworn in another Jewish Supremacist, Stanley Fischer—an Israeli citizen—as a member of the Federal Reserve's board, in anticipation of the latter's appointment as vice chair of the Fed. Fischer is not only an Israeli citizen, but actually former head of the Bank of Israel from 2005 to 2013. A further indication of the internationalization of the Jewish banking elite can be seen from his background. Fischer was born into a Jewish family in Mazabuka, Northern Rhodesia (now Zambia). When he was 13, his family moved to Southern Rhodesia (now Zimbabwe), where he became active in the Habonim Zionist youth movement. In 1960, he visited Israel as part of a winter program for youth leaders, and studied Hebrew at kibbutz Ma'agan Michael. He became an American citizen in 1976. From January 1988 to August 1990 he was Vice President, Development Economics and Chief Economist at the World Bank. He then became the First Deputy Managing Director of the International Monetary Fund (IMF), from September 1994 until the end of August 2001. By the end of 2001, Fischer had joined the influential Washington-based financial advisory body, the Group of Thirty. After leaving the IMF, he served as Vice Chairman of Citigroup, President of Citigroup International, and Head of the Public Sector Client Group. Fischer worked at Citigroup from February, 2002 to April, 2005. Fischer was appointed Governor of the Bank of Israel in January 2005 by the Israeli cabinet, after being recommended by Prime Minister Ariel Sharon and Finance Minister Benjamin Netanyahu. Fischer became an Israeli citizen but did not have to renounce his American citizenship, despite it being a pre-requisite for the job. He had been involved in the past with the Bank of Israel, having served as an American government adviser to Israel's economic stabilization program in 1985. In June 2011, Fischer applied for the post of International Monetary Fund (IMF) managing director to replace the Jewish Dominique Strauss-Kahn, but was barred as the IMF stipulates that a new managing director must be no older than 65, and he was 67 at the time.

33 The Federal Reserve – Cartel of Eight Families

The Four Horsemen of Banking (Bank of America, JP Morgan Chase, Citigroup and Wells Fargo) own the Four Horsemen of Oil (Exxon Mobil, Royal Dutch/Shell, BP and Chevron Texaco); in tandem with Deutsche Bank, BNP, Barclays and other European old money behemoths. But their monopoly over the global economy does not end at the edge of the oil patch. According to Security Exchange Commission 10K filings, the Four Horsemen of Banking are amount the top ten stock holders of virtually every Fortune 500 corporation. So who then are stockholders in these money center banks?. This information is guarded more closely. My queries to bank regulatory agencies regarding stock ownership in the top 25 US bank holding companies were given Freedom of Information Act status, before being denied on “national security” grounds. This is rather ironic, since many of the bank’s stockholders reside in Europe. One important repository for the wealth of the global oligarchy that owns these bank holding companies is US Trust Corporation – founded in 1853 and now owned by Bank of America. A recent US Trust

Corporate Director and Honorary Trustee was Walter Rothschild. Other directors included Daniel Davison of JP Morgan Chase, Richard Tucker of Exxon Mobil, Daniel Roberts of Citigroup and Marshall Schwartz of Morgan Stanley. [2]

J. W. McCallister, an oil industry insider with House of Saud connections, wrote in The Grim Reaper that information he acquired from Saudi bankers cited 80% ownership of the New York Federal Reserve Bank- by far the most powerful Fed branch- by just eight families, four of which reside in the US. They are the Goldman Sachs, Rockefellers, Lehmans and Kuhn Loeb of New York; the Rothschilds of Paris and London; the Warburgs of Hamburg; the Lazards of Paris; and the Israel Moses Seifs of Rome.

CPA Thomas D. Schauf corroborates McCallister's claims, adding that ten banks control all twelve Federal Reserve Bank branches. He names N.M. Rothschild of London, Rothschild Bank of Berlin, Warburg Bank of Hamburg, Warburg Bank of Amsterdam, Lehman Brothers of New York, Lazard Brothers of Paris, Kuhn Loeb Bank of New York, Israel Moses Seif Bank of Italy, Goldman Sachs of New York and JP Morgan Chase Bank of New York. Schauf lists William Rockefeller, Paul Warburg, Jacob Schiff and James Stillman as individuals who own large shares of the Fed. [3] The Schiffs are insiders at Kuhn Loeb. The Stillmans are Citigroup insiders, who married into the Rockefeller clan at the turn of the century. Eustace Mullins came to the same conclusions in his book The Secrets of the Federal Reserve, in which he displays charts connecting the Fed and its member banks to the families of Rothschild, Warburg, Rockefeller and the others. [4] The control that these banking families exert over the global economy cannot be overstated and is quite intentionally shrouded in secrecy. Their corporate media arm is quick to discredit any information exposing this private central banking cartel as "conspiracy theory". Yet the facts remain.

33.1 The House of Morgan

The Federal Reserve Bank was born in 1913, the same year US banking scion J. Pierpont Morgan died and the Rockefeller Foundation was formed. The House of Morgan presided over American finance from the corner of Wall Street and Broad, acting as quasi-US central bank since 1838, when George Peabody founded it in London. Peabody was a business associate of the Rothschilds. In 1952 Fed researcher Eustace Mullins put forth the supposition that the Morgans were nothing more than Rothschild agents. Mullins wrote that the Rothschilds, "...preferred to operate anonymously in the US behind the facade of J.P. Morgan & Company". [5] Author Gabriel Kolko stated, "Morgan's activities in 1895-1896 in selling US gold bonds in Europe were based on an alliance with the House of Rothschild." [6] The Morgan financial octopus wrapped its tentacles quickly around the globe. Morgan Grenfell operated in London. Morgan et Ce ruled Paris. The Rothschild's Lambert cousins set up Drexel & Company in Philadelphia. The House of Morgan catered to the Astors, DuPonts, Guggenheims, Vanderbilts and Rockefellers. It financed the launch of AT&T, General Motors, General Electric and DuPont. Like the London-based Rothschild and Barings banks, Morgan became part of the power structure in many countries. By 1890 the House of Morgan was lending to Egypt's central bank, financing Russian railroads, floating Brazilian provincial government bonds and funding Argentine public works projects. A recession in 1893 enhanced Morgan's power. That year Morgan saved the US government from a bank panic, forming a syndicate to prop up government reserves with a shipment of $62 million worth of Rothschild gold. [7] Morgan was the driving force behind Western expansion in the US, financing and controlling West-bound railroads through voting trusts. In 1879 Cornelius Vanderbilt's Morgan-financed New York Central Railroad gave preferential shipping rates to John D. Rockefeller's budding Standard Oil monopoly, cementing the Rockefeller/Morgan relationship. The House of Morgan now fell under Rothschild and Rockefeller family control. A New York Herald headline read, "Railroad Kings Form Gigantic Trust". J. Pierpont Morgan, who once stated, "Competition is a sin", now opined gleefully, "Think of it. All competing railroad traffic west of St. Louis placed in the control of about thirty men." [8] Morgan and Edward Harriman's banker Kuhn Loeb held a monopoly over the railroads, while banking dynasties Lehman, Goldman Sachs and Lazard joined the Rockefellers in controlling the US industrial base. [9] In 1903 Banker's Trust was set up by the Eight Families. Benjamin Strong of Banker's Trust was the first Governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank. The 1913 creation of the Fed fused the power of the Eight Families to the military and diplomatic might of the US government. If their overseas loans went unpaid, the oligarchs could now deploy US Marines to collect the debts. Morgan, Chase and Citibank formed an international lending syndicate. The House of Morgan was cozy with the British House of Windsor and the Italian House of Savoy. The Kuhn Loeb, Warburgs, Lehmans, Lazards, Israel Moses Seifs and Goldman Sachs also had close ties to European royalty. By 1895 Morgan controlled the flow of gold in and out of the US. The first American wave of mergers was in its infancy and was being promoted by the bankers. In 1897 there were sixty-nine industrial mergers. By 1899 there were twelve-hundred. In 1904 John Moody – founder of Moody's Investor Services – said it was impossible to talk of Rockefeller and Morgan interests as separate. [10] Public distrust of the combine spread. Many considered them traitors working for European old money. Rockefeller's Standard Oil, Andrew Carnegie's US Steel and Edward Harriman's railroads were all financed by banker Jacob Schiff at Kuhn Loeb, who worked closely with the European Rothschilds. Several Western states banned the bankers. Populist preacher William Jennings Bryan was thrice the Democratic nominee for President from 1896 -1908. The central theme of his anti-imperialist campaign was that America was falling into a trap of "financial servitude to British capital". Teddy Roosevelt defeated Bryan in 1908, but was forced by this spreading populist wildfire to enact the Sherman Anti-Trust Act. He then went after the Standard Oil Trust. In 1912 the Pujo hearings were held, addressing concentration of power on Wall Street. That same year Mrs. Edward Harriman sold her substantial shares in New York's Guaranty Trust Bank to J.P. Morgan, creating Morgan Guaranty Trust. Judge Louis Brandeis convinced President Woodrow Wilson to call for an end to interlocking board directorates. In 1914 the Clayton Anti-Trust Act was passed. Jack Morgan – J. Pierpont's son and successor – responded by calling on Morgan clients Remington and Winchester to increase arms production. He argued that the US needed to enter WWI. Goaded by the Carnegie Foundation and other oligarchy fronts, Wilson accommodated. As Charles Tansill wrote in America Goes to War, "Even before the clash of arms, the French firm of Rothschild Freres cabled to Morgan & Company in New York suggesting the flotation of a loan of $100 million, a substantial part of which was to be left in the US to pay for French purchases of American goods." The House of Morgan financed half the US war effort, while receiving commissions for lining up contractors like GE, Du Pont, US Steel, Kennecott and ASARCO. All were Morgan clients. Morgan also financed the British Boer War in South Africa and the Franco-Prussian War. The 1919 Paris Peace Conference was presided over by Morgan, which led both German and Allied reconstruction efforts. [11]

In the 1930's populism resurfaced in America after Goldman Sachs, Lehman Bank and others profited from the Crash of 1929. [12] House Banking Committee Chairman Louis McFadden (D-NY) said of the Great Depression, "It was no accident. It was a carefully contrived occurrence...The international bankers sought to bring about a condition of despair here so they might emerge as rulers of us all".

Sen. Gerald Nye (D-ND) chaired a munitions investigation in 1936. Nye concluded that the House of Morgan had plunged the US into WWI to protect loans and create a booming arms industry. Nye later produced a document titled The Next War, which cynically referred to "the old goddess of democracy trick", through which Japan could be used to lure the US into WWII.

In 1937 Interior Secretary Harold Ickes warned of the influence of "America's 60 Families". Historian Ferdinand Lundberg later penned a book of the exact same title. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas decried, "Morgan influence...the most pernicious one in industry and finance today." Jack Morgan responded by nudging the US towards WWII. Morgan had close relations with the Iwasaki and Dan families – Japan's two wealthiest clans – who have owned Mitsubishi and Mitsui, respectively, since the companies emerged from 17th Century shogunates. When Japan invaded Manchuria, slaughtering Chinese peasants at Nanking, Morgan downplayed the incident. Morgan also had close relations with Italian fascist Benito Mussolini, while German Nazi Dr. Hjalmer Schacht was a Morgan Bank liaison during WWII. After the war Morgan representatives met with Schacht at the Bank of International Settlements (BIS) in Basel, Switzerland. [13]

33.2 The House of Rockefeller

BIS is the most powerful bank in the world, a global central bank for the Eight Families who control the private central banks of almost all Western and developing nations. The first President of BIS was Rockefeller banker Gates McGarragh- an official at Chase Manhattan and the Federal Reserve. McGarragh was the grandfather of former CIA director Richard Helms. The Rockefellers- like the Morgans- had close ties to London. David Icke writes in Children of the Matrix, that the Rockefellers and Morgans were just “gofers” for the European Rothschilds. [14] BIS is owned by the Federal Reserve, Bank of England, Bank of Italy, Bank of Canada, Swiss National Bank, Nederlandsche Bank, Bundesbank and Bank of France. Historian Carroll Quigley wrote in his epic book Tragedy and Hope that BIS was part of a plan, “to create a world system of financial control in private hands able to dominate the political system of each country and the economy of the world as a whole...to be controlled in a feudalistic fashion by the central banks of the world acting in concert by secret agreements.” The US government had a historical distrust of BIS, lobbying unsuccessfully for its demise at the 1944 post-WWII Bretton Woods Conference. Instead the Eight Families’ power was exacerbated, with the Bretton Woods creation of the IMF and the World Bank. The US Federal Reserve only took shares in BIS in September 1994. [15] BIS holds at least 10% of monetary reserves for at least 80 of the world’s central banks, the IMF and other multilateral institutions. It serves as financial agent for international agreements, collects information on the global economy and serves as lender of last resort to prevent global financial collapse. BIS promotes an agenda of monopoly capitalist fascism. It gave a bridge loan to Hungary in the 1990’s to ensure privatization of that country’s economy. It served as conduit for Eight Families funding of Adolf Hitler- led by the Warburg’s J. Henry Schroeder and Mendelsohn Bank of Amsterdam. Many researchers assert that BIS is at the nadir of global drug money laundering. [16] It is no coincidence that BIS is headquartered in Switzerland, favorite hiding place for the wealth of the global aristocracy and headquarters for the P-2 Italian Freemason’s Alpina Lodge and Nazi International. Other institutions which the Eight Families control include the World Economic Forum, the International Monetary Conference and the World Trade Organization.

Bretton Woods was a boon to the Eight Families. The IMF and World Bank were central to this “new world order”. In 1944 the first World Bank bonds were floated by Morgan Stanley and First Boston. The French Lazard family became more involved in House of Morgan interests. Lazard Freres- France’s biggest investment bank- is owned by the Lazard and David-Weill families- old Genoese banking scions represented by Michelle Davive. A recent Chairman and CEO of Citigroup was Sanford Weill.

In 1968 Morgan Guaranty launched Euro-Clear, a Brussels-based bank clearing system for Eurodollar securities. It was the first such automated endeavor. Some took to calling Euro-Clear “The Beast”. Brussels serves as headquarters for the new European Central Bank and for NATO. In 1973 Morgan officials met secretly in Bermuda to illegally resurrect the old House of Morgan, twenty years before Glass Steagal Act was repealed. Morgan and the Rockefellers provided the financial backing for Merrill Lynch, boosting it into the Big 5 of US investment banking. Merrill is now part of Bank of America. John D. Rockefeller used his oil wealth to acquire Equitable Trust, which had gobbled up several large banks and corporations by the 1920’s. The Great Depression helped consolidate Rockefeller’s power. His Chase Bank merged with Kuhn Loeb’s Manhattan Bank to form Chase Manhattan, cementing a long-time family relationship. The Kuhn-Loeb’s had financed – along with Rothschilds – Rockefeller’s quest to become king of the oil patch. National City Bank of Cleveland provided John D. with the money needed to embark upon his monopolization of the US oil industry. The bank was identified in Congressional hearings as being one of three Rothschild-owned banks in the US during the 1870's, when Rockefeller first incorporated as Standard Oil of Ohio. [17] One Rockefeller Standard Oil partner was Edward Harkness, whose family came to control Chemical Bank. Another was James Stillman, whose family controlled Manufacturers Hanover Trust. Both banks have merged under the JP Morgan Chase umbrella. Two of James Stillman's daughters married two of William Rockefeller's sons. The two families control a big chunk of Citigroup as well. [18]

In the insurance business, the Rockefellers control Metropolitan Life, Equitable Life, Prudential and New York Life. Rockefeller banks control 25% of all assets of the 50 largest US commercial banks and 30% of all assets of the 50 largest insurance companies. [19] Insurance companies- the first in the US was launched by Freemasons through their Woodman's of America- play a key role in the Bermuda drug money shuffle.

Companies under Rockefeller control include Exxon Mobil, Chevron Texaco, BP Amoco, Marathon Oil, Freeport McMoran, Quaker Oats, ASARCO, United, Delta, Northwest, ITT, International Harvester, Xerox, Boeing, Westinghouse, Hewlett-Packard, Honeywell, International Paper, Pfizer, Motorola, Monsanto, Union Carbide and General Foods. The Rockefeller Foundation has close financial ties to both Ford and Carnegie Foundations. Other family philanthropic endeavors include Rockefeller Brothers Fund, Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, General Education Board, Rockefeller University and the University of Chicago- which churns out a steady stream of far right economists as apologists for international capital, including Milton Friedman. The family owns 30 Rockefeller Plaza, where the national Christmas tree is lighted every year, and Rockefeller Center. David Rockefeller was instrumental in the construction of the World Trade Center towers. The main Rockefeller family home is a hulking complex in upstate New York known as Pocantico Hills. They also own a 32-room 5th Avenue duplex in Manhattan, a mansion in Washington, DC, Monte Sacro Ranch in Venezuela, coffee plantations in Ecuador, several farms in Brazil, an estate at Seal Harbor, Maine and resorts in the Caribbean, Hawaii and Puerto Rico. [20] The Dulles and Rockefeller families are cousins. Allen Dulles created the CIA, assisted the Nazis, covered up the Kennedy hit from his Warren Commission perch and struck a deal with the Muslim Brotherhood to create mind-controlled assassins. [21] Brother John Foster Dulles presided over the phony Goldman Sachs trusts before the 1929 stock market crash and helped his brother overthrow governments in Iran and Guatemala. Both were Skull & Bones, Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) insiders and 33rd Degree Masons. [22] The Rockefellers were instrumental in forming the depopulation-oriented Club of Rome at their family estate in Bellagio, Italy. Their Pocantico Hills estate gave birth to the Trilateral Commission. The family is a major funder of the eugenics movement which spawned Hitler, human cloning and the current DNA obsession in US scientific circles. John Rockefeller Jr. headed the Population Council until his death. [23] His namesake son is a Senator from West Virginia. Brother Winthrop Rockefeller was Lieutenant Governor of Arkansas and remains the most powerful man in that state. In an October 1975 interview with Playboy magazine, Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller- who was also Governor of New York- articulated his family's patronizing worldview, "I am a great believer in planning- economic, social, political, military, total world planning." But of all the Rockefeller brothers, it is Trilateral Commission (TC) founder and Chase Manhattan Chairman David who has spearheaded the family's fascist agenda on a global scale. He defended the Shah of Iran, the South African apartheid regime and the Chilean Pinochet junta. He was the biggest financier of the CFR, the TC and (during the Vietnam War) the Committee for an Effective and Durable Peace in Asia- a contract bonanza for those who made their living off the conflict. Nixon asked him to be Secretary of Treasury, but Rockefeller declined the job, knowing his power was much greater at the helm of the Chase. Author Gary Allen writes in The Rockefeller File that in 1973, "David Rockefeller met with twenty-seven heads of state, including the rulers of Russia and Red China." Following the 1975 Nugan Hand Bank/CIA coup against Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam, his British Crown-appointed successor Malcolm Fraser sped to the US, where he met with President Gerald Ford after conferring with David Rockefeller. 33.4 Ex-Wall Street Bankers Living Large after $34 Trillion Meltdown

- <http://www.publicintegrity.org/2013/09/10/13326/ex-wall-street-chieftains-living-large-post-meltdown-world>

Editor's note: Nearly five years ago, on Sept. 15, Lehman Brothers Holdings Inc. filed for Chapter 11, the largest bankruptcy in the nation's history. The move set off a series of dramatic actions in Washington, D.C., and on Wall Street as bankers and regulators sought to avoid a shutdown of the global economy. To mark the anniversary, the Center for Public Integrity is publishing a three-part series on what has happened since the meltdown.

- In this story, we focus on the Wall Street bankers who fed the subprime mortgage machine, without regard to risk.
- Part two revisits key executives of the top 25 subprime lenders, companies whose loans nearly brought down the banking system.
- Tomorrow, in “Ex-SEC chief now helps companies navigate post-meltdown reforms,” we examine the regulators who oversaw the collapse and look at what they are doing now.

Five years after the near-collapse of the nation's financial system, the economy continues a slow recovery marred by high unemployment, hesitant consumers and sluggish business investment. Many of the top Wall Street bankers who were largely responsible for the disaster — and whose companies either collapsed or accepted billions in government bailouts — are also unemployed. But since they walked away from the disaster with millions, they're juggling their ample free time between mansions and golf, skiing and tennis. Meantime, the major banks that survived the crisis, largely because they were saved with taxpayer money after being deemed “too big to fail,” are now bigger and more powerful than ever. The Center for Public Integrity looked at what happened to five former Wall Street kingpins to see what they are up to these days. None are in jail, nor are any criminal charges expected to be filed. Certainly none are hurting for money. Take Richard Fuld. Five years after Lehman Brothers Holdings Inc., the 158-year-old company he ran, collapsed under the weight of bad investments and sent a tidal wave of panic through the global financial system, Fuld is living comfortably. He has a mansion in Greenwich, Conn., a 40-plus-acre ranch in Sun Valley, Idaho, as well as a five-bedroom home in Jupiter Island, Fla. He no longer has a place in Manhattan, since he sold his Park Avenue apartment in 2009 for $25.87 million. The other four bankers the Center caught up with — Jimmy Cayne (Bear Stearns), Stanley O'Neal (Merrill Lynch), Chuck Prince (Citigroup) and Ken Lewis (Bank of America) are also living in quiet luxury.

33.4.1 Meltdown primer

A quick crisis refresher: During the early years of the last decade, U.S. home values were soaring, fueled by ultra-low interest rates. Wall Street investors, eager to get in on the party, developed an enormous appetite for bonds backed by the mortgages of everyday homeowners. Firms like Lehman would buy up thousands of mortgages, pool them together into a security, and sell the cash flow from the mortgage payments to investors, including pension funds and hedge funds. The bonds were thought to be almost as safe as U.S. Treasuries, but they carried a higher interest rate. The demand was so great that eventually mortgage lenders loosened their underwriting standards and made loans to people who couldn't afford them, just to satisfy hungry investors. When the housing market turned down in 2007 and homeowners began to default on their loans, the whole system began to crumble. In March 2008, Bear Stearns almost collapsed and was sold. Six months later, Lehman failed, setting off a chain reaction that killed dozens more banks and mortgage lenders. Weeks later, Congress approved a $700 billion bailout of the financial system and soon nearly every major financial institution was on the dole. The ensuing recession destroyed as much as $34 trillion in wealth and sent the unemployment rate soaring above 10 percent for the first time in 25 years. "Every single one of these companies was insolvent," said Neil Barofsky, the former special inspector general overseeing the bailout, which was called the Trouble Asset Relief Program. "Clearly there was a large underpinning of fraud," said Barofsky, a former federal prosecutor, who argues the government didn't adequately pursue criminal charges against those who caused the crisis. "There was never really a comprehensive investigation. The Justice Department largely outsourced this to the Securities and Exchange Commission."

Five years after the meltdown, the potential for a criminal prosecution of any of those involved in the events leading up to the collapse has faded as the statute of limitations for financial fraud ran out. The five ultra-rich former Wall Street chieftains have simultaneously faded into luxurious obscurity while the survivors — Jamie Dimon of JPMorgan Chase & Co. and Lloyd Blankfein of Goldman Sachs — have only consolidated their power as they alternate between being seen as great villains or near statesmen depending on the changing fortunes of their companies.

33.4.2 Lehman's CEO Richard Fuld checks in Five years after Lehman Brothers declared bankruptcy, Fuld is keeping a low profile. He's not giving interviews or lectures, and he's not done an apology tour. At times he picks up the phone and calls up former Lehman co-workers — those whom he considers friends — to check in. Kevin White, a former managing director at Lehman, says he hears from Fuld about once a month. The former CEO asks about White's family, checks on how business is at the hedge fund White founded after Lehman, offers to help, and perhaps introduce him to someone. "Dick's a family man and he's someone who takes this whole Lehman bankruptcy very personally," White says. He admits that some of his former colleagues hate Fuld and don't understand why White stays in touch. Fuld has been widely criticized, by former Lehman workers and in official investigations, for allowing the firm to drown itself in too much debt. When it went bankrupt, for every dollar of capital Lehman held, it was borrowing at least $30. Some reports say the rate was higher than 40 to 1. That gave it no cushion to absorb losses when the market began to decline. The myriad investigations into the causes of the crisis revealed that under Fuld's watch, Lehman executives toyed with the company's finances to make that leverage look better than it really was using what some Lehman employees called an "accounting gimmick" called Repo 105, according to the official bankruptcy report by Anton Valukas of the law firm Jenner & Block. The tactic allowed the company to characterize a short-term loan as an asset sale and then use the money from that false sale to cut debt. By doing so, Lehman appeared to have less debt and more cash. Lehman used Repo 105 transactions to cut the debt on its books by as much as $50 billion just before it announced quarterly earnings, giving investors a false impression of the bank's financial health. In a legal filing in an investor lawsuit, Fuld and other Lehman executives said investors were informed that Lehman's leverage was often higher than it was at the end of each quarter. "Lehman specifically disclosed that its balance sheet 'will fluctuate from time to time' and could be and at times was larger than its balance sheet reported at quarter- or year-end," the filing said. Fuld, in testimony before the Financial Crisis Inquiry Commission, blamed Lehman's failure on the government's decision not to give it a bailout. "Lehman was forced into bankruptcy not because it neglected to act responsibly or seek solutions to the crisis, but because of a decision, based on flawed information, not to provide Lehman with the support given to each of its competitors," he testified. "There is sufficient evidence ... that Fuld was at least grossly negligent," Valukas wrote in his report. Negligence isn't necessarily a crime, however, so Fuld has faced no punishment for the wreckage caused by his company's collapse, save perhaps banishment to irrelevance. Last year a federal judge approved a $90 million settlement of a class action suit brought by Lehman investors against Fuld and several other company executives and directors. The judge, Lewis Kaplan, questioned whether the settlement, which will be paid entirely by Lehman's insurers, was fair given that none of the individuals would pay out of pocket. He agreed to the deal, however, because litigation expenses for a trial were likely to deplete the funds available for compensating the investors. Fuld quietly opened his own advisory firm called Matrix Advisors in a Third Avenue office building in Manhattan, across the street from the headquarters of Avon, the cosmetics company. He's landed a few clients, according to news reports, SEC filings and court records. Matrix advised AT&T Inc. on its failed bid to purchase T-Mobile. And it has consulted with GlyEco, a company that recycles the chemical glycol, and Ecologic Transportation Corp., a company that rents out environmentally friendly cars. He was recently spotted at Doubles, the private dining club in the Sherry-Netherland Hotel in Manhattan, according to a former Lehman employee. Still, companies haven't been eager to have their names associated with Fuld, so landing clients hasn't been easy, according to two people familiar with the business. Fuld, through his lawyer, declined several interview requests for this story. He wasn't in his office when a reporter paid a visit in July. His assistant, through a security guard, declined to say where he was. Even if business is slow, it may not matter much to Fuld. Unlike many of his former employees, and unlike the millions of people still out of work after the 2008 financial collapse, Fuld has money. When Lehman Brothers filed for bankruptcy on Sept. 15, there was a sense that if Fuld had mismanaged Lehman to death, at least he had lost a load of cash in the process as the value of his company stock dropped to nothing. And he did lose plenty. Fuld's 10.8 million shares of the company that may have once been worth more than $900 million, according to a study by Harvard University Professor Lucian Bebchuk, became worthless. However, he wasn't exactly on his way to the poor house. From 2000 through 2007, Fuld took home as much as $529 million from his Lehman job. That includes his salary and cash bonuses, as well as the Lehman shares granted him by the company that he sold before the bankruptcy in September 2008. That total comes from an analysis by Oliver Budde, a former Lehman associate general counsel who left the firm in 2006 because, he says, Lehman was underreporting its executive compensation to shareholders. That income allowed Fuld to buy some very high-end real estate. In Greenwich, he has an $8 million, nine-bedroom home with a guest house. He and his wife, Kathleen, bought the house in 2004 after they sold their previous Greenwich home to Robert Steel, a Goldman Sachs executive who became undersecretary of the Treasury in 2006 under Henry Paulson. Steel then became CEO of Wachovia, which nearly collapsed 11 days after Lehman and was sold to Wells Fargo at the direction of federal regulators. When he's looking to get out of Greenwich, Fuld can head south to Jupiter Island, Fla., a ritzy barrier island that's home to Tiger Woods and Greg Norman. He transferred ownership of the $10.6 million beachfront home, with a pool and tennis court, to his wife in November 2008, a common strategy for protecting assets from legal judgments. He also spends a lot of time at his 40-plus-acre ranch in Ketchum, Idaho, in the center of the Sun Valley resort area. The spot offers "ultimate privacy," according to Daryl Fauth, CEO of Blaine County Title in Ketchum. The ranch is located just five minutes from downtown Ketchum, east of the Baldy Mountain ski resort and west of the Reinheimer Ranch, a 110-acre spread that's owned by the Idaho Foundation for Parks and Lands and can't be developed. The house is situated on a bend in a river that runs through the property. Fuld even managed to make a killing in real estate during the depths of the collapse. A Park Avenue apartment that he and his wife bought in 2007 for $21 million was sold in 2009 for a $4.8 million gross profit. What he hasn't done is make any public statement or gesture or obvious effort to rehabilitate his image. He hasn't made any public overtures to major charities. He appears to have wound down his family foundation after Lehman went bankrupt, distributing the last $10,948 in 2009, according to tax filings. And last summer Fuld sued his estranged son-in-law seeking to recover money he had lent the younger man to buy a home with Fuld's daughter. Fuld was looking to be paid in cash and stock by those he advised, according to a person familiar with the company. That's the type of agreement he struck with Ecologic, which paid him a $10,000-per-month retainer and granted him options to buy 2.29 million shares of its stock at 25 cents per share.

33.4.3 Bears Stearns CEO Jimmy Cayne playing bridge

While Fuld has tried to stay in the business, Jimmy Cayne of Bear Stearns has withdrawn completely. Cayne, who lives in a $25 million apartment in New York's Plaza Hotel, can be found almost every day in cyberspace hosting an online bridge game. Last month in the Hyatt Regency hotel in Atlanta, Cayne sat for hours in a crowded ballroom with orange, brown and yellow swirled carpet competing for the coveted Spingold Cup. Cayne sat in a crisply pressed shirt with his team — two Italians and two Israelis — chomping a cigar and talking in hushed tones over one of the dozens of folding tables. He likely pays his players more than $100,000 a year each to help him remain atop the world rankings, according to two people who have played in tournaments against him. He's ranked 22nd in the world, according to the American Contract Bridge League. Last month he lost in the round of 16 of the Spingold knockout match. That he's opted for bridge over finance is telling, as Cayne was much criticized for spending more time on golf and bridge than on dealing with the crises that were crushing his firm. While at Bear, Cayne would leave every Thursday and take a helicopter to his New Jersey beach house for long weekends of golf at the Hollywood Golf Club. He'd emerge from the chopper behind sunglasses and chomping the trademark cigar, according to people who saw him there. Cayne had survived the bankruptcy of two Bear Stearns hedge funds the summer before but succumbed to the inevitable when, in the fourth quarter of 2007, the company had to write down $1.9 billion in bad home loan bets, leading to its first quarterly loss ever. He retired as CEO in January 2008, two months before the firm collapsed under the weight of its subprime mortgage investments, but remained as board chairman. As the market became doubtful that the mortgage bonds on Bear's books were worth what the company claimed, companies pulled their business, suddenly and en masse. Bear Stearns was sold on March 16, 2008, in a late night deal to JPMorgan Chase & Co., which eventually paid $1.2 billion, about what it would have cost to buy the company's Madison Avenue headquarters. The company's leverage ratio was 38 to 1 or higher, according to Phil Angelides, the chairman of the Financial Crisis Inquiry Commission. Cayne acknowledged in his testimony before the commission that it was too high. "That was the business," he said. "That was really industry practice." He told Angelides that he believed in Bear so strongly that he almost never sold its stock. "I rarely sold any of the firm's stock except as needed to pay taxes," he testified on May 5, 2010. Like Fuld, Cayne lost about $900 million on paper when Bear's stock plunged, but he took home plenty before the crash. He earned $87.5 million in cash bonuses from 2000 to 2007 and sold stock worth about $289.1 million in those years, according to Bebchuk's study. In addition to the Plaza Hotel condo, he and his wife have a second apartment on Park Avenue. They put that home on the market last month for $14.95 million. When they want to get out of the city, they can head to their $8.2 million mansion on the Jersey Shore, about a mile from the Hollywood Golf Club, or their \$2.75 million condo at the Boca Beach Club in Boca Raton, Fla. Cayne, like many of his fellow CEOs, has apparently worked to shield his assets from potential liability. In November and December 2009, he transferred ownership of four pieces of real estate to four separate limited liability companies, called Legion Holdings I, II, III and IV, for a total of $21. Some of the LLCs share Cayne's Plaza Hotel mailing address in public tax records. "I take responsibility for what happened. I'm not going to walk away from the responsibility," Cayne told the FCIC. He hasn't had to take any for the demise of Bear, however. He's paid no judgments or settlements from any lawsuits, according to his lawyer, David Frankel.

33.4.4 Citibank CEO Chuck Prince is helping his friends

While Fuld went down with his ship and Cayne remained until close to the end, two of their CEO brethren were pushed aside earlier — when the subprime collapse began taking its toll on profits — only to watch their companies falter from a distance. Charles O. Prince III resigned as CEO of Citigroup on Nov. 5, 2007, when the company announced it had lost between \$8 billion and \$11 billion on subprime mortgage bets. "Given the size of the recent losses in our mortgage-backed securities business, the only honorable course for me to take as Chief Executive Officer is to step down,” he said in a statement. Prince walked away with a golden parachute worth about $33.6 million. From 2000 through his resignation, Prince took home $65.2 million in cash salary and bonuses, according to an analysis by the Center. There are no SEC reports showing that he sold any shares from 2000 through 2008. It’s unclear whether he’s sold any since he resigned. Citigroup shares were priced at more than $300 the week Prince resigned and today hover at about $50 after a 1-for-10 reverse stock split. His downfall came only months after he famously justified Citi’s continued involvement in subprime: “When the music stops, in terms of liquidity, things will be complicated. But as long as the music is playing, you’ve got to get up and dance. We’re still dancing,” he told The Financial Times in July 2007. Prince was succeeded by Vikram Pandit, a former hedge fund manager whose firm was acquired by Citi just months earlier for $800 million. While Pandit was trying to right the listing ship, the company continued to provide Prince with an office, an administrative assistant and a car and driver for up to five years, a package worth $1.5 million a year, according to SEC filings. By the end of 2008, Citigroup had received $45 billion in bailout money from the U.S. Treasury and the Federal Reserve had guaranteed hundreds of millions of dollars of its debt. Prince apologized for the disaster that the financial crisis caused in testimony to the FCIC in 2010. “I’m sorry the financial crisis has had such a devastating impact for our country,” he testified. “I’m sorry about the millions of people, average Americans, who lost their homes. And I’m sorry that our management team, starting with me, like so many others, could not see the unprecedented market collapse that lay before us.” After Citigroup, Prince joined the global consulting firm Stonebridge International, which was founded by former National Security Advisor Sandy Berger. The company merged in 2009 with the Albright Group, founded by former Secretary of State Madeleine Albright to form Albright Stonebridge Group. Prince described his move to Albright Stonebridge as “helping my friends with their activities,” in a 2009 interview. When pressed about what his exact job was he said, “I’m just a friend.” He’s no longer listed as an executive on the company’s website and a spokeswoman for the company did not respond to an email and phone call seeking an update on his status. He serves on the boards of directors of Xerox Corp. and Johnson & Johnson Inc. He’s represented by the Harry Walker Agency as a speaker for hire on topics including “Corporate Governance: A Five-Point Plan to the Best Business Practices,” and “Inside the Current Financial Crisis.” Last year Prince, along with Citigroup and several members of the company’s pre-2008 board, settled a class action lawsuit for $590 million that accused them of misleading investors about the amount of subprime-related securities the company held on its books and underreporting losses related to those investments. Prince and the other defendants didn’t admit any wrongdoing in the settlement. It’s unclear how often Prince went to the office held for him at Citi, but what is clear is that Prince had plenty of other places to spend his time. He has a $3.6 million Nantucket getaway and a $2.7 million house in a Jack Nicklaus golf community in North Palm Beach, Fla., called Lost Tree Village.

33.4.5 Merrill Lynch CEO Stan O’Neal goes to the Vineyard

Prince’s ouster from Citigroup was prefaced just days earlier by the departure of Stanley O’Neal from Merrill Lynch. O’Neal had taken over Merrill when it was mostly a retail brokerage firm and turned it into a major manufacturer of collateralized debt obligations, a type of security, backed by home mortgages. By 2006, it was the biggest underwriter of CDOs on Wall Street and a year later the company had $55 billion worth of subprime loans on its own books that no one wanted to buy. As the losses mounted, O’Neal made overtures, first to Bank of America, then to Wachovia, about buying Merrill Lynch — without the approval of the board, according to a 2010 interview O’Neal gave to Fortune Magazine. When in October 2007 Merrill announced it was writing off $8 billion of its mortgage-backed securities, and then news broke that O’Neal was thinking of selling the firm, it was over. He was fired. O’Neal floated out of Merrill comfortably, however, buoyed by a golden parachute worth $161.5 million. In the eight years leading up to his ouster, O’Neal earned $68.4 million in cash salary and bonuses, and he sold Merrill stock at a profit of at least $18.7 million, according to a Center review of annual reports and SEC filings. He was succeeded by John Thain, a former CEO of the New York Stock Exchange, who convinced Bank of America to buy Merrill Lynch for $50 billion just as Lehman was imploding and taking much of the financial system with it. (Thain himself was eventually fired after it became public that he spent more than $1 million renovating his Merrill office — including $87,700 for a pair of guest chairs — as the company was on the verge of bankruptcy.) O’Neal, however, is flush. On top of his $161.5 million, he and his wife have a Park Avenue apartment. NBC anchor Tom Brokaw sold his apartment in the building for $10.75 million in 2011. O’Neal transferred full ownership to his wife in November 2008, a common strategy to protect the home from any legal judgments. The couple also owns a $12.4 million vacation home in Martha’s Vineyard through an LLC called KZ Vineyard Land. Today he sits on the board of Alcoa Inc., the world’s top producer of aluminum and is on the audit and corporate governance committees.

33.4.6 Bank of America CEO Ken Lewis moves to Florida

Kenneth Lewis survived the September 2008 bloodbath and even came out looking like a hero to some when he arranged Bank of America’s hasty purchase of Merrill Lynch — O’Neal’s former employer — for $50 billion on the same weekend that Lehman failed, possibly saving it from the same fate as Lehman. It soon became clear that Merrill was no bargain. That, combined with Lewis’ ill-advised purchase of subprime giant Countrywide Financial just as the housing market went into free fall, led Bank of America to start hemorrhaging cash. It eventually got $45 billion in bailout money from the federal government to stanch the bleeding. Lewis knew of Merrill’s excess losses before shareholders approved the final deal, according to his 2009 testimony to then-New York Attorney General Andrew Cuomo. He said he kept the losses hidden under pressure from Treasury Secretary Henry Paulson who worried that, if the deal fell through, it would hurt the already wounded market and overall economy. Bank of America last month was accused by the Justice Department in a civil lawsuit of understating the risks that the loans included in $850 million of mortgage-backed securities would default. The Justice Department said the company was so hungry for loans to securitize that it let its quality controls slide and didn’t adequately verify borrowers’ incomes or ability to repay. The suit did not name Lewis as a defendant.

The company already settled a civil fraud suit with the SEC for $150 million and another lawsuit brought by pension fund investors for $62.5 million. Lewis retired in September 2009 with a going-away package worth $83 million, even though the company was largely dependent on the federal government for its survival. He had already banked at least $86.4 million from Bank of America stock sales between 2000 and 2008, according to SEC filings. He also brought in $52.4 million in salary and bonuses in that time. He and his wife Donna sold their house in Charlotte, N.C., in January for $3.15 million and their mountainside mansion in Aspen for $13.5 million, $3.35 million less than what they paid for it in 2006. They appear now to have only one home, a $4.1 million condo in a beachfront high-rise in Naples, Fla.

33.4.7 Winners JP Morgan CEO Jamie Dimon & Goldman Sachs CEO Lloyd Blankfein

While Lewis and several of the CEOs that led their companies into the thicket of mortgage-backed securities have ended up rich but unemployed, two have seen their fortunes soar. Jamie Dimon and Lloyd Blankfein, the leaders of JPMorgan Chase & Co. and Goldman Sachs Group Inc., today stand atop the global financial system, their banks bigger and more powerful than ever and their personal fortunes growing. Blankfein was a magnet for scorn and envy before the crisis when Goldman awarded him a $68 million bonus in 2007, just as the economy was going bad. He then became the target for much of the public wrath that followed the collapse of the economy when he flippantly declared that Goldman was doing “God’s work” by lending money to businesses. His reputation plummeted to its lowest point in 2010 after revelations that Goldman Sachs packaged and sold mortgage securities that appeared designed to fail, and then shorted the bonds, making a killing for the firm while customers lost money. The company was sued by the SEC over one such deal, called Abacus, and Goldman settled the case for $550 million. While Blankfein was the villain, Dimon was treated as a rock-star statesman. He was welcome at the White House and lauded as one of the only bankers who didn’t need a bailout — even though he took one, allegedly at the direction of Paulson. Obama sang his praises in February 2009, just weeks after entering the Oval Office. “There are a lot of banks that are actually pretty well managed, JPMorgan being a good example,” Obama said. “Jamie Dimon, the CEO there, I don’t think should be punished for doing a pretty good job managing an enormous portfolio.” Dimon’s popularity in the White House began to fade because he was a vocal opponent of many of the financial reforms being advocated in response to the crisis. Then in 2012, JPMorgan announced it had lost billions because of bad bets by a rogue derivatives trader in London. Dimon came under investigation for minimizing the issue to investors — he called the problem “a tempest in a teapot.” The company was sued by the SEC, and Dimon had to testify before Congress. Last spring he barely survived a shareholder vote that would have separated his two jobs, chairman of the board and chief executive. Last month the company said it was under civil and criminal investigation by the Justice Department over its subprime mortgage-backed securities. When he hit the nadir of his troubles, Dimon reportedly sought advice from Blankfein on how to weather the storm and maintain his and his company’s reputation. Earlier this summer, Blankfein held forth before a roomful of journalists and lobbyists at Washington’s swank Mayflower Hotel where, like an elder statesman, he was asked about everything from immigration reform to his first job selling hot dogs at Yankee Stadium. BusinessWeek Magazine wrote a story about the fashion impact of his new beard. Through the ups and downs, neither CEO has suffered financially. Blankfein was paid $21 million last year and he was the highest-paid chief executive of the 20 biggest financial companies, according to Bloomberg. Dimon earned about half that, or $11.5 million, as a result of the derivatives loss that became known as the “London whale.” Blankfein owns about $256 million of Goldman shares, according to Forbes magazine. Dimon bought a Park Avenue apartment in 2004 for $4.9 million and bought a second unit in the same building this year for $2 million. He also owns a $17 million estate in Mt. Kisko, N.Y. Blankfein’s Central Park West penthouse is valued at $26.5 million, according to New York property records. Late last year, he and his wife also bought a 7.5-acre estate in the Hamptons with a pool and tennis court for $32.5 million. Forbes estimates Dimon owns $223 million of JPMorgan stock. While Dimon and Blankfein held on to their power, the banks they lead, and other U.S. megabanks, have grown larger and more powerful. JPMorgan’s assets — one common measure of bank size — have grown to $2.44 trillion from $1.78 trillion shortly before Lehman failed in 2008. Bank of America’s assets have ballooned to $2.13 trillion from $1.72 trillion, while Wells Fargo more than doubled to $1.44 trillion from $609 billion five years ago. Goldman Sachs, which wasn’t on the list of top 50 bank holding companies in 2008 because it was a pure investment bank at the time, is now the nation’s fifth largest with $939 billion in assets. Citigroup, beset by financial problems, is the only one of the top five banks whose balance sheet has shrunk in those years. Total assets don’t even adequately measure the full size of these institutions because the measure does not take into account derivatives contracts or off-balance-sheet items that could still put the banks at risk. If those assets were counted, JPMorgan's size would rise to $3.95 trillion, according to a worksheet prepared by FDIC Vice Chairman Thomas Hoenig.

Paul Joseph Watson Prison Planet.com - July 17, 2009 More information has come to light regarding former Treasury Secretary Henry Paulson's threats to Congress last fall that martial law would ensue unless they passed the bailout bill. During Paulson's first appearance on Capitol Hill since he left office yesterday, the former CEO of Goldman Sachs said he told Congress privately that if they rejected the bailout bill another great depression would ensue, that there would be a breakdown in law and order as well as food riots and civil unrest, adding that he couldn't reveal such things publicly for fear that the situation would "terrify the American people and lead to an even bigger problem". The threat of martial law was subsequently proven to be made on a fraudulent pretext because Paulson's justification – that the money was needed to buy up toxic debt – was abandoned almost immediately and the money was directly injected into banks – and even forced upon financial institutions who tried to reject TARP funds. The fact that the entire purpose of the bailout was switched as soon as it was approved by Congress proves that Paulson's threat was nothing less than financial terrorism and a successful effort to blackmail Congress with hastily manufactured doomsday scenarios. "The Bush administration and Congress discussed the possibility of a breakdown in law and order and the logistics of feeding US citizens if commerce and banking collapsed as a result of last autumn's financial panic, it was disclosed yesterday," reports the London Independent today. "Paul Kanjorski, a Pennsylvania Democrat, asked Mr Paulson to reveal details of officials' concerns, which were relayed to Congress in hasty conference calls last year." "The calls included discussion of law and order and whether it would be possible to feed the American people, and for how long, according to Mr Kanjorski." "In a world where information can flow, money can move with the speed of light electronically, I looked at the ripple effect, and looked at when a financial system fails, a whole country's economic system can fail," Mr Paulson said. "I believe we could have gone back to the sorts of situations we saw in the Depression. I try not to use hyperbole. It's impossible to prove now since it didn't happen." As we reported at the time, on October 2, Democratic Congressman Brad Sherman gave a stunning speech on the House floor during which he decried the fact that, "Many of us were told in private conversations that if we voted against this bill on Monday that the sky would fall, the market would drop two or three thousand points the first day, another couple of thousand the second day, and a few members were even told that there would be martial law in America if we voted no." A few days before, Rep. Michael Burgess also told the House, "Mr. Speaker I understand we are under Martial Law as declared by the speaker last night," referring to a temporary suspension of the rules and procedures of Congress by its leaders so that a bill can be passed quickly. The origin of the threat was later revealed by Senator James Inhofe to have been Treasury Secretary Henry Paulson. Asked by KFAQ radio host Pat Campbell where the threat came from regarding martial law and civil unrest, Inhofe responded, "That's Henry Paulson," responded Inhofe, "We had a conference call early on, it was on a Friday I think – a week and half before the vote on Oct. 1. So it would have been the middle ... what was it – the 19th of September, we had a conference call. In this conference call – and I guess there's no reason for me not to repeat what he said, but he said – he painted this picture you just described. He said, 'This is serious. This is the most serious thing that we faced.'" Inhofe said that Paulson told members of Congress the crisis would be "far worse than the great depression" if Congress didn't authorize the bill to buy out toxic debt, a proposal "which he abandoned the day after he got the money," added Inhofe.

33.4.8 Bad guys everywhere

Since that epic month in 2008 that began with the bankruptcy of Lehman early Monday, Sept. 15, and ended with the $80 billion bailout of insurance giant American International Group and the sales of Merrill Lynch to Bank of America, Wachovia to Wells Fargo and Washington Mutual to JPMorgan, thousands of hours and millions of pages have been filled trying to determine what happened. The most comprehensive, the Financial Crisis Inquiry Report, said the financial collapse was avoidable. "The captains of finance and the public stewards of our financial system ignored warnings and failed to question, understand, and manage evolving risks within a system essential to the well-being of the American public. Theirs was a big miss, not a stumble,” the report said. That those “captains of finance” have suffered few consequences of that “big miss” is now part of the legacy of the crisis, and has cast a shadow over the U.S. justice system, which prosecutes small-time offenders but appears to turn away from what many see as crimes of the wealthy. “This is the greatest white-collar fraud and most destructive white-collar fraud in history and we have found ourselves unable to prosecute any elite bankers,” said Bill Black, an economics and law professor at the University of Missouri and author of The Best Way to Rob a Bank is to Own One. “That’s outrageous.” U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder appeared to confirm that view earlier this year when he said he’s hesitant to criminally prosecute big banks because he’s afraid of the damage such a move could do to the economy. “When we are hit with indications that if you do prosecute, if you do bring a criminal charge, it will have a negative impact on the national economy, perhaps even the world economy, ... that is a function of the fact that some of these institutions have become too large,” he said during a Senate Judiciary Committee hearing in March. Since that time, the Justice Department has walked back those statements and assured lawmakers and the public that they have aggressively investigated and pursued any criminal acts related to the financial crisis. The hurdle, officials say, is that to prove a crime, they must prove intent. That means if the government wanted to bring charges against any of the CEOs of the companies that led the nation to financial disaster, prosecutors would have to prove to a jury beyond a reasonable doubt that these individuals intended to commit fraud. “They tend to have to work in a much more black and white misconduct universe,” said Jordan Thomas, a former lawyer for the SEC who worked with Justice on many financial fraud cases. Proving criminal misconduct is such a high hurdle that the government has resorted mostly to civil charges, where the burden of proof is lower. That doesn’t mean, Thomas says, that nobody did anything wrong. “The financial crisis had bad guys everywhere,” he said

This information references sections of the Book the Creature of Jekyll Island.

The top Communist leaders have never been as hostile to their counterparts in the West, as the rhetoric suggests. They are quite friendly to the world's leading financiers and have worked closely with them, when it suits their purposes. As we shall see in the following section, the Bolshevik revolution actually was financed by wealthy financiers in London and New York. Lenin and Trotsky were on the closest of terms with these moneyed interests both before and after the Revolution. Those hidden liaisons have continued to this day and occasionally pop to the surface, when we discover a David Rockefeller holding confidential meetings with a Mikhail Gorbachev in the absence of government sponsorship or diplomatic purpose. One of the greatest myths of contemporary history is that the Bolshevik Revolution in Russia was a popular uprising of the downtrodden masses against the hated ruling class of the Tsars. As we shall see, however, the planning, the leadership and especially the financing came entirely from outside Russia, mostly from financiers in Germany, Britain and the United States. Furthermore we shall see, that the Rothschild Formula played a major role in shaping these events. This amazing story begins with the war between Russia and Japan in 1904. Jacob Schiff, who was head of the New York investment firm Kuhn, Loeb and Company, had raised the capital for large war loans to Japan. It was due to this funding that the Japanese were able to launch a stunning attack against the Russians at Port Arthur and the following year to virtually decimate the Russian fleet. In 1905 the Mikado awarded Jacob Schiff a medal, the Second Order of the Treasure of Japan, in recognition of his important role in that campaign.

Jacob Schiff was head of the New York investment firm Kuhn, Loeb and Co. He was one of the principal backers of the Bolshevik revolution and personally financed Trotsky's trip from New York to Russia. He was a major contributor to Woodrow Wilson's presidential campaign and an advocate for passage of the Federal Reserve Act. (p. 210). Jacob Schiff ordered the execution of the Czar and his family.

33.5.2 Jacob Schiff Financed TROTSKY WAS A MULTIPLE AGENT

- https://en.wikipedia.org/?title=Leon Trotsky

One of the best known Russian revolutionaries at that time was Leon Trotsky. In January of 1916 Trotsky was expelled from France and came to the United States. It has been claimed that his expenses were paid by Jacob Schiff. There is no documentation to substantiate that claim, but the circumstantial evidence does point to a wealthy donor in New York. He remained for several months, while writing for a Russian socialist paper, the Novy Mir (New World) and giving revolutionary speeches at mass meetings in New York City. According to Trotsky himself, on many occasions a chauffeured limousine was placed at his service by a wealthy friend, identified as Dr. M. In his book, My Life, Trotsky wrote:

The doctor's wife took my wife and the boys out driving and was very kind to them. But she was a mere mortal, whereas the chauffeur was a magician, a titan, a superman! With the wave of his hand he made the machine obey his slightest command. To sit beside him was the supreme delight. When they went into a tea room, the boys would anxiously demand of their mother, "Why doesn't the chauffeur come in?" (Leon Trotsky: My Life, New York publisher: Scribner's, 1930, p. 277)

It must have been a curious sight to see the family of the great socialist radical, defender of the working class, enemy of capitalism, enjoying the pleasures of tea rooms and chauffeurs, the very symbols of capitalist luxury. On March 23, 1917 a mass meeting was held at Carnegie Hall to celebrate the abdication of Nicolas II, which meant the overthrow of Tsarist rule in Russia. Thousands of socialists, Marxists, nihilists and anarchists attended to cheer the event. The following day there was published on page two of the New York Times a telegram from Jacob Schiff, which had been read to this audience. He expressed regrets, that he could not attend and then described the successful Russian revolution as "...what we had hoped and striven for these long years". (Mayor Calls Pacifists Traitors, The New York Times, March 24, 1917, p. 2)

In the February 3, 1949 issue of the New York Journal American Schiff's grandson, John, was quoted by columnist Cholly Knickerbocker as saying that his grandfather had given about $20 million for the triumph of Communism in Russia. (To appraise Schiff's motives for supporting the Bolsheviks, we must remember, that he was a Jew and that Russian Jews had been persecuted under the Tsarist regime. Consequently the Jewish community in America was inclined to support any movement, which sought to topple the Russian government and the Bolsheviks were excellent candidates for the task. As we shall see further along, however, there were also strong financial incentives for Wall Street firms, such as Kuhn, Loeb and Company, of which Schiff was a senior partner, to see the old regime fall into the hands of revolutionaries, who would agree to grant lucrative business concessions in the future in return for financial support today.) When Trotsky returned to Petrograd in May of 1917 to organize the Bolshevik phase of the Russian Revolution, he carried $10,000 for travel expenses, a generously ample fund considering the value of the dollar at that time. Trotsky was arrested by Canadian and British naval personnel, when the ship, on which he was traveling, the S.S. Kristianiafjord, put in at Halifax. The money in his possession is now a matter of official record. The source of that money has been the focus of much speculation, but the evidence strongly suggests, that its origin was the German government. It was a sound investment.

Trotsky was not arrested on a whim. He was recognized as a threat to the best interests of England, Canada's mother country in the British Commonwealth. Russia was an ally of England in the First World War, which then was raging in Europe. Anything, that would weaken Russia - and that certainly included internal revolution - would be, in effect, to strengthen Germany and weaken England. In New York on the night before his departure Trotsky had given a speech, in which he said: "I am going back to Russia to overthrow the provisional government and stop the war with Germany." (A full report on this meeting had been submitted to the U.S. Military Intelligence. See Senate Document No. 62, 66th Congress, Report and Hearings of the Subcommittee on the Judiciary, United States Senate, 1919, Vol. II, p. 2680.) Trotsky therefore represented a real threat to England's war effort. He was arrested as a German agent and taken as a prisoner of war. With this in mind we can appreciate the great strength of those mysterious forces both in England and the United States, that intervened on Trotsky's behalf. Immediately telegrams began to come into Halifax from such divergent sources, as an obscure attorney in New York City, from the Canadian Deputy Postmaster-General and even from a high-ranking British military officer, all inquiring into Trotsky's situation and urging his immediate release. The head of the British Secret Service in America at the time was Sir William Wiseman, who, as fate would have it, occupied the apartment directly above the apartment of Edward Mandell House and who had become fast friends with him. House advised Wiseman, that President Wilson wished to have Trotsky released. Wiseman advised his government and the British Admiralty issued orders on April 21st, that Trotsky was to be sent on his way. ("Why Did We Let Trotsky Go? How Canada Lost an Opportunity to Shorten the War", MacLeans magazine, Canada, June 1919. Also see Martin, pp. 163-164.) It was a fateful decision, that would affect not only the outcome of the war, but the future of the entire world. It would be a mistake to conclude, that Jacob Schiff and Germany were the only players in this drama. Trotsky could not have gone even as far as Halifax without having been granted an American passport and this was accomplished by the personal intervention of President Wilson. Professor Antony Sutton says:

President Woodrow Wilson was the fairy godmother, who provided Trotsky with a passport to return to Russia to "carry forward" the revolution... At the same time careful State Department bureaucrats, concerned about such revolutionaries entering Russia, were unilaterally attempting to tighten up passport procedures. (Antony C. Sutton, Ph. D.: Wall Street and the Bolshevik Revolution, published by Arlington House in New Rochelle, NY, 1974, p. 25)

This cartoon by Robert Minor appeared in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch in 1911. It shows Karl Marx surrounded by enthusiastic Wall Street financiers: Morgan partner George Perkins, J.P. Morgan, John Ryan of National City Bank, John D. Rockefeller and Andrew Carnegie. Immediately behind Marx is Teddy Roosevelt, leader of the Progressive Party. (p. 211)

What emerges from this sampling of events is a clear pattern of strong support for Bolshevism coming from the highest financial and political power centers in the United States; from men, who supposedly were "capitalists" and who according to conventional wisdom should have been the mortal enemies of socialism and communism....

Trotsky in his book My Life tells of a British financier, who in 1907 gave him a "large loan" to be repaid after the overthrow of the Tsar. Arsene de Goulevitch, who witnessed the Bolshevik Revolution firsthand, has identified both the name of the financier and the amount of the loan. "In private interviews", he said, "I have been told that over 21 million rubles were spent by Lord [Alfred] Milner in financing the Russian Revolution... The financier just mentioned was by no means alone among the British to support the Russian revolution with large financial donations." Another name specifically mentioned by de Goulevitch was that of Sir George Buchanan, the British Ambassador to Russia at the time. (See Arsene de Goulevitch: Czarism and Revolution, published by Omni Publications in Hawthorne, California, no date; rpt. from 1962 French edition, pp. 224, 230) ...

The Khazarian Mafia's Globalist NWO Agenda to destroy every nation's sovereignty By Preston James, Ph.D on November 2, 2015

Top insiders now refer to this World's largest Organized Crime Syndicate that infiltrated and hijacked America in 1913 as the *Khazarian Mafia. The Khazarian Mafia was taken over by the Bauer family of Banksters who had changed their name to Rothschild. Thus, many insiders now refer to this World's largest Organized Crime Syndicate as the Rothschild Khazarian Mafia (RKM). They do this because it has now become known that the Rothschild banking Family gained control over the Khazarian Mafia and still maintains control. Close insiders have reported that the RKM is empowered by Babylonian Talmudic "Money-Magick" (the Black Art of "making money from nothing"). We also know that the Khazarian

Mafia has maintained a long term incredible, unimaginably evil, inter-generational Agenda to centralize all World Power in their hands. They intend to progressively establish complete control over the World, one nation at a time. They are working hard to Globalize the whole World into a single New World Order (NWO) Luciferian control grid, run by them. And we also now know for certain that these evil monsters' long term agenda is to destroy the sovereignty of every nation because unless they do this they cannot create their one world government. They intend to destroy the sovereignty of each nation, Balkanize them, and then fold them into their long planned NWO confederation of RKM hijacked territories with a single tyrannical World Governing body set up by them and run by them. These soulless monsters that walk among us pretending they are human have been able to use the sophisticated "Black Arts" of mind-control, sleight of hand, fraud and trickery to gain control of the World's monetary production and distribution systems. These Bloodline Family descendants have been able to apply the art of ancient Babylonian Talmudic "Money-Magick", a Black Art known to these deviant soulless sociopaths as "Money-Magick". And they used this secret Black Art to create and lend counterfeit FIAT "money from nothing" and rent it to the dumbed-down, naive masses, charging and accruing increasing amounts of pernicious usury (interest) for doing so. But along the way those that they could not bribe and corrupt or human compromise, they had their henchmen (and in some cases henchwomen) covertly murder them with poisons, staged so-called suicides (aka "Arkensides"), and abject easily recognizable violent murder to make an example to their cronies to stay in line. On careful consideration of this Babylonian Money-Magick ("we lend you our money, made from nothing, and we charge you accruing pernicious usury for using our money"). This "money from nothing" system is a fraudulent practice, absurd at face value, but in America it is also and completely illegal and unConstitutional. Why? Because the US Constitution forbids Congress and the Administration to allow a private foreign bank run by the World's largest Organized Crime Syndicate to create and lend fake money to Americans and charge them accruing interest for using what should have been owned by them as their own real money backed by Gold and Silver in the first place. Fiat money is not real Constitutional money and is therefore illegal ipso facto (the clearly apparent facts of the actual situation show that, no additional proof is needed, and the opposite cannot even be argued). According to the US Constitution, US Money must be issued by the USG, not a private bank and backed by Gold and Silver. Gold and Silver coinage or Gold or Silver certificates like we used to have in America at one time satisfies this requirement. The private foreign City of London Rothschild Khazarian Mafia (RKM) Banksters were able to gain a foothold in America and bribe and human compromise most of Congress and the President to get the Federal Reserve Act passed in 1913. Once this foothold was gained, this new RKM Bankster franchisee was able to activate a long term plan to substitute Federal Reserve Debt-notes (actually interest bearing loans) as money. Once this was done, the FRS had been able to install a very crafty, illegal, unConstitutional, purely fraudulent means to accessing and transferring American hard earned wealth to themselves and their crony corporations without the average dumbed-down obedient serf mind of the American masses even realizing this. It is no coincidence that the RKM Banksters were able to use their same method of bribery and human compromise to also institute the illegal and unConstitutional Federal Taxation System and as well as various support agencies that eventually evolved into the US Treasury Department and the Secret service. And they created a charade that additional Constitutional amendments supposedly making this legal were passed but these were never properly ratified. These USG agencies, the Internal Revenue Service, and the FBI, all designed to serve the much needed secret police and suppression functions of the RKM Banksters running the FRS and were secretly controlled by the Top Policy-Makers of the Rothschild Khazarian Mafia (RKM). The RKM operates out of the City of London Financial District, a separate nation from England that has its own diplomats and pays no taxes like the Vatican. The RKM phony Fiat Counterfeit money system was designed to be instituted as a Worldwide Web of Control (WWWC) used to take over the whole world. This was designed by the RKM as a substitute for the British Empire which had been based on international British Naval power which had ruled the seas and allowed numerous British Colonies which expanded the wealth and power of England.

34.1 How the Worldwide RKM Banksters' Web of Evil Was Created

The Rothschild banking family (Formerly Bauers) infiltrated and hijacked the City of London run English system by very crafty and deceptive means and seized control over the City of London Banking after Napoleon's defeat. At that time the British Empire was beginning to wane in strength. These Rothschild Khazarian Mobsters realized this and quickly and quietly began to plan, create and covertly institute their very crafty Banking web of deceit upon the nations of the World in order to reverse that weakening. Only this time the Empire of Evil they were creating in secret was far more sinister in its future implications than the British Colonial system.

This methodology of creating money from nothing and lending it at pernicious interest first to kings and rulers and then to whole nations, quietly and systematically brought most nations of the World under the control of the RKM Banksters who infiltrated and taken over the City of London right after Napoleon's defeat at Waterloo. They hijacked the City of London Banking and hijacked most of the nations of the World monetary production and distribution systems, always charging users of their counterfeit FIAT funny money pernicious accruing interest for doing so. They were able to accomplish this by their usual methods using the inter-generational "Bloodline-family" based Black Arts such as trickery, fraud, covert operations, covert murder, engineered wars, false-flag attacks, bribery and human compromise which "stoked the flesh" of elected officials and corporate leaders to stimulate extreme greed, lust for sex and power, all of the seven deadly sins. It is important to realize that once a private group of the World's most evil Organized Crime Syndicate was allowed to hijack America's monetary production and distribution system, they could then proceed in small incremental steps to substitute complete fiat counterfeit debt-notes for Gold and Silver Certificates. And this is what they did. One any people allows a private group of criminal Banksters to seize the creation of their money, it is only a matter of time and they will all be converted into debt-slaves owned by these Banksters, the RKM. And that is exactly what has happened in America and many other nations, especially the European nations. However, because this is a Ponzi scheme it always crashes and must be bailed out by the taxpayers. This can be done repeatedly until all the people's assets are consumed and the nation is ruined economically, completely asset stripped by the Banksters. This has been done repeatedly in America and the asset stripping is now almost complete. The next step is for official government and union pensions to start being reduced. Eventually they will be eliminated like Social Security unless we route these foreign controlled Banksters out of America. Right now old folks in America that worked hard and saved all their lives hoping to be able to live off of the interest of their principals receive almost no interest and are spending down their principals rapidly. The current buying power of the American dollar has been dropping faster than almost any investments can provide. And the stock market is artificially intercepted and controlled by a special USG unit called the "Plunge Protection Team" which makes the whole market an electronic scam. Like it or not, the American economy is on a downward slide due to this debt-note system of the RKM and their so-called Free Trade Agreements which have exported most American heavy industry and manufacturing to foreign countries. So far the only nation that has stood up to the Banksters and brought them to justice for their massive asset stripping and financial fraud is Iceland who arrested, convicted and jailed a number of them while cancelling most home mortgages and declaring them paid. This needs to happen in America NOW!

The RKM Banksters were rich enough and powerful enough to provide for those new out of control "needs of the flesh", best described as extreme vanity, addiction to easy luxurious lifestyles, a drift into and incredible selfishness and narcissism, each of which caused those entrapped to drift into lifestyle based on obtuse evil, various addictions and perversions, and incredible sociopathy. This creation and installment of this Worldwide spider web of deceitful private RKM central Banking was actually conceived and designed as an intermediate step to transfer enough wealth to the RKM Central Banksters to be able to buy up and control almost every single appointed or elected government official in the World. This massive corruption of most government officials, especially inside the DC beltway, was a necessary step empowering the RKM to eventually destroy the sovereignty of every nation captured in their "Web of deceit". This was necessary for the RKM to assume a position of global dominance necessary to be able to then create their own Globalist One-World government based on their New World Order (NWO) plan. The methodology they developed was Fabian Socialism, which is the breaking down of the overall NWO Agenda into very small goals which could be quite easily attained in small steps along the way without drawing too much attention from the masses and thus no serious backlash against them.

34.2 Why The RKM Banksters Are Destroying Nation(s) Sovereignty

The answer is quite logical. The RKM, the World largest Organized Crime Syndicate, keeps itself secret and hidden from public view and knowledge. It is run by a small group of Top Policy-makers known for their extreme evil and soulless nature have always had an overall "Globalist Agenda" to take over the World and set up a one-world government which they run, their own New World Order (NWO) System of evil beyond imagination. But their Agenda doesn't end there. It actually includes a capstone, which is to exterminate 90% of the Earth humans and to create and substitute a new race of machines merged with human genomes, known as the combination of iron and clay.

The RKM Banksters approved the design and implementation of the Worldwide Internet as a weapon of cyber war and the greatest spying device ever conceived. They were actually conned and deceived because some very crafty folks at DARPA figured that if the Internet was sold and manufactured as a decentralized spy device that could not easily be immobilized by another nation who became an enemy, this would make it very robust as a weapon of cyber warfare if ever needed.

The Heroes at Darpa started a new revolution that cannot be easily stopped, but did so covertly. These DARPA folks that developed the Internet understood but kept secret the realization that if the Internet was ever implemented it would seal the exposure and fate of the Rothschild Khazarian Mafia (RKM). They realized that the RKM was the World largest Organized Crime Syndicate and the main cause of all wars, mass death and destruction in the World since the 1700's but far too powerful and sinister to take on publicly and directly. They realized that the Internet would become the World's New Gutenberg Press and would result in a new and very powerful Populism that would emerge in parallel from the Internet. They also realized that without the maintenance of abject secrecy the incredibly inhuman, evil beyond imagination of the Khazarian Mafia could not maintain their existence. The RKM has been able to maintain power because they have been far more evil than any other entity in the World and have been able to attain and maintain power because of their ability to bribe, human compromise and corrupt the leaders of a society by the unmitigated, endless evil of the RKM system. No normal human could ever deploy such inhuman, unimaginably evil deeds to maintain control over all the governments and political leaders of the World. Only now we have the Russian Federation and its astute Statesman leader Vladimir Putin which have completely checkmated ISIS and have exposed those nations who created it, supplied it, paid for it and now run it. We know now that the USA, Israel, Saudi Arabia and Turkey have been involved in hiring and supplying the mercenaries that make up ISIS, ISIL, Al Nusra, and Al Qaeda (aka Al CIA Duh), but the best way to refer to this complex behind these mercenaries set up to appear as terrorists is the term Israeli-American Terror Machine.

It's very hard work and typically a very slow geopolitical process to provoke wars for RKM profits and the deployment of synthetic terror can greatly speed up the process. The goal in deploying the Israeli-American Terror Machine is to create synthetic terror and use it as a means to justify the deployment of the American War Machine on behalf of the RKM Banksters. This is done in order to justify another illegal, unConstitutional, undeclared, unprovoked, unwinnable, perpetual ground and air war to keep the massive war profits flowing to the RKM Banksters and their crony defense related corporations. The first major deployment of the Israeli-American Terror machine in America was the use of a micro-nuke and other explosives to blow up the Murrah Building in Oklahoma City.

in which micro- and mini-nukes were planted in the Twin Towers, turning them to dust. This immediately mass-murdered about 3,000 innocent humans, destroying their families. This was followed by about 39,000 slow deaths from the radiation poisoning and contaminated dust in the air, with about 70,000 folks in the NYC and surrounding along with many first-responders now fighting for their very lives from strange cancers and lung disorders from this attack on America on 9-11-01. Of course this has all been covered up by crooked Federal Judges and the USG Administration, the US Congress, the FBI, and a Controlled Major Mass Media which functions as an illegal News Monopoly that continues to avoid publishing any 9-11-01 truth. The result, the RKM and their perps and cutouts have skated free until now and have not yet been brought top justice for this incredibly evil crime used to justify the mass-murder of over a million civilians living in Afghanistan and Iraq and thousands of American Soldiers. But sadly many more American Soldiers some estimates up to 40 or even 50% are returning from these illegal, unConstitutional Mideast wars horribly wounded and disabled after being used a mere RKM cannon fodder for Israel and the RKM. Israeli leaders love to manipulate the situation so that American Soldiers are killed and wounded instead of their soldiers because they have a deep hatred and disgust for whom they secretly refer to as “American Goyim”. These top Israeli leaders and the top RKM leaders hate any nation that allows Christianity and view it as their greatest enemy along with Islam. However they infiltrate and use both whenever it fits their needs to start wars and manipulate World politics. These folks mock America because it allows Christianity. Doubt this? Then look at the modal attitude of their citizens that many Judaics express more than just occasionally.

Anyone who considers all the evidence will quickly come to the conclusion that Israel is a racial-based state of Khazarians a large portion of whom (especially the Likudists) have a collective hatred toward “American Goyim”, Palestinians and Islamics based on their own sick racial superiority complex. The problem is that 97.% of Judaics living in Israeli actually have no ancient Hebrew Blood at all, while about 80% of Palestinians do and there is no provable Jewish race at all, but only Khazarians and European Askenazis that do not carry ancient Hebrew blood. There are however some small enclaves of Hebrews in Spain and other areas which are Sephardic Judaics.

34.4 The Murrah Bombing was run by the Mossad and covered up by the FBI

This became an immediate turning point in America. It was used to start the official US War on Terror and used to wrongly blame the newly forming American Militias. Timothy McVeigh was an undercover agent whose execution was faked. Some insiders believe that Shandra Levy talked about this to a friend resulting in her murder and the ruin of the Political career of Rep. Gary Condit for getting her a job at the Bureau of Prisons. The 9-11-01 attack on America was used to provide a believable reason to attack those leaders and their nations who the RKM had wrongly blamed for this attack on America as an excuse to fight more wars for Israel and the RKM while deploying American troops as mere cannon fodder for Israel's wars in the Mideast. These wars had been planned for years before by the RKM and the RKM False-flag attack on America on 9-11-01 was staged to provide the trigger to motivate the American masses to support them.

None of this official USG lying and propaganda would have ever worked unless the RKM completely controlled all American Major Mass Media, which they have be able to do for at least 50 years, ever since they assassinated And to do this all Major Mass media has been consolidated into six Major Mass Media news corporations which actually constitute a a News Cartel, which is an illegal News Monopoly. These six Controlled Major Mass Media (CMMM) are controlled by six Media Moguls who all answer to a large American investment house that also works out of Switzerland. Some say this is a direct descendant of the Knights Templar, but so far no definitive proof of that has emerged. Right now the Internet along with President Vladimir Putin and the Russian Federation are exposing many of the lies and synthetic terror created by the Israeli-America Terror Machine. Putin and the Russian federation have completely checkmated ISIS and this has also checkmated the Israeli-American Terror machine and fully exposed all the lies of the Pentagon and the US Administration who have now been caught supplying ISIS. Basically the US Administration, Congress and the US State Department have been caught lying through their teeth about ISIS and all other terror groups which the Israeli-American terror Machine has covertly created and deployed, paid and supplied. Surveys show that the majority of all Americans completely distrust Congress and the US Administration and look upon them to be less desirable than cockroaches.

34.5 Conclusion:

In defense of their incredibly evil, anti-human system, the RKM has decided to continue to push and guarantee massive illegal and legal immigration in America in order to destroy American borders, language and culture without which no nation can retain its sovereignty. And this is exactly why the mercenary terrorists run by the Israeli-American terror Machine have been instructed to mass-murder and rape as many civilians as possible why money is funded to the young men to flee north to Europe. This is to force refugees northward to Europe in order to overwhelm and punish Europeans for supporting the Boycott, Divest, Sanction movement against Israel because of their negative view of Israel's Apartheid of Palestinians. But Israel and the RKM are also angry with the Europeans for not pushing NATO to help fight more proxy wars with America for Israel against Syria and Iran in order to help build the Greater Israel boundaries without sacrificing IDF soldiers, but only American and European Goyim. It has been rumored that many refugees from Syria are young males who have received some travel money. It is now suspected that wealthy RKM Cutouts have been supplying these funds. This use of rampant legal and illegal immigration is done to break down the borders, language and culture of the European nations involved and serve as an application of the Cloward-Piven strategy which is the forced over-utilization of a nations resources and services. In this case we have a creation of an ongoing deep recession with an ever growing engineered unemployment due to imposed Free Trade Agreements with a massive influx of immigrants with radically different language and culture. these together can be used to engineer the gross over utilization of existing government support systems. This is based on the "Order Ab Chaos" model of High Freemasonry which is the use of engineered chaos and societal collapse in order to make away for the emergence of a New World Order, the Phoenix Bird Rising from the ashes of Greek Mythology. A second option is for the RKM to come up with a multi-modal means of censoring the Alternative Media websites on the Internet using a two tiered speed system, fast for RKM approved businesses and very, very slow or stalled for those unapproved Alternative media web sites. A third option the RKM is now carefully considering is the deployment of one or more 9-11-01 style False-flag attacks to blame on Syria or Iran in order to draw American into another illegal, unConstitutional air and ground proxy war for Israel in the Mideast. A fourth option the RKM is seriously considering right now is a blanket detonation of all Samson Option nukes planted in the major cities of the World and used as a means to start WW3 by blaming it on Iran, Syria, Russia and China.

Homeland of the Khazarian Mafia which was destroyed in about 1020 by the Russians and the Persians (now Iran), which now encompasses part of the Ukraine. Are the Likudists trying to use US State Department assets to make the Ukraine the New Judaic homeland as Israel become rejected by the whole World over Palestinian Apartheid and perhaps soon to become Balkanized. Henry Kissinger has stated that Israel will be no more within ten years and a secret CIA study also claimed that Israel is now doomed.

The Khazarian Mafia is an abbreviation to represent the organized crime group that later morphed into the Rothschild Khazarian Mafia. VT Financial Editor Mike Harris coined the term "Khazarian Mafia". His VT radio, "The Short End of the Stick" show is on Tuesdays and Thursdays 7-9 PM CST. Mike Harris started using this descriptive term Khazarian Mafia after extensively researching the true but hidden history of the nation of Khazaria and its connection to Rothschild World Zionism now centered in the City of London. He also discovered the long held hatred that the RKM has harbored since about 1020 AD for the non-Khazarian Russians that is still a major motive for the Khazarian Mafia today in its quest to destroy Persia (Iran) and then encircle and once again destroy Russia. Their goal? To steal all Russia's its assets like in 1917, and mass-murdering any non-Khazarian Russians remaining alive, as a replay of their Bolshevik Revolution of 1917.

The Khazarian Mafia operates out of the City of London, a separate nation inside the UK which has its own police force and diplomats and pays no taxes to the UK government, like the Vatican, but has worldwide power through its private central banking system which uses FIAT money issued and placed in circulation (lent out for use at interest/pernicious usury). The Khazarian Mafia has deeply infiltrated America and hijacked its manufacturing and distribution of money and most of its institutions of government, uses the US Military to fight its proxy wars for Israel and to earn massive profits. The Khazarian Mafia uses UK, Israeli and American Intel factions and especially the Pentagon to traffick in massive quantities of illegal narcotics to generate massive “off the books” money for black ops and payoffs to politicians and government officials they “own”. There is a large Worldwide Drug Cartel which evolved from the City of London Intel proprietary called the British East India Company which sold Opium to the Chinese to get back all the silver and Gold the British had spent buying Chinese Tea and Silk. This led to the two Opium Wars but made the members of this Cartel immensely wealthy. One member set up the Russell Trust aka as the Skull and Bones at Yale University, which built the windowless Campus Building called the Tomb and bought a private island for the 15 new Luciferian death cult recruits that were selected each years from the Yale student population. This large Opium Cartel actually managed the construction of the Pentagon, making it an occult symbol of the pentagram to harness the teaming power of Lucifer in order to take over the whole World with their military might, and now runs the top Pentagon command structure. This large Opium Cartel is actually a main part of the RKM and also hijacked the CIA under the control of GHWB (actual name George Sherf). If we are ever to clean out the massive corruption and filth out of the Pentagon and NATO, this RKM and its large Worldwide Opium Cartel must be completely dis-empowered at all levels. Despite all the RKM Traitors and corrupt that now infest the Pentagon, there is a new faction of insiders who are gaining power by the day and have actually checkmated this evil RKM system inside the Pentagon. Stay tuned because this is likely to become quite interesting in the days and weeks to follow as true American begin to take their nation back from the RKM. Everyday more and more of the hidden history of the Babylonian Talmudics aka Khazarians becomes uncovered and known, despite their serious long term efforts to excise it from the history books.

36 The Enemy Within From Capone's Cicero, IL to AIPAC and Israel

A nation can survive its fools, and even the ambitious. But it cannot survive treason from within. An enemy at the gates is less formidable, for he is known and carries his banner openly. But the traitor moves amongst those within the gate freely, his sly whispers rustling through all the alleys, heard in the very halls of government itself. For the traitor appears not a traitor; he speaks in accents familiar to his victims, and he wears their face and their arguments, he appeals to the baseness that lies deep in the hearts of all men. He rots the soul of a nation, he works secretly and unknown in the night to undermine the pillars of the city, he infects the body politic so that it can no longer resist. A murderer is less to fear. The traitor is the plague." - Cicero

36.7.6.1 Corrie Family Loses Lawsuit in Israel Courts –Fix is In

- <http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-middle-east-19391814>

An Israeli court has ruled that the state of Israel was not at fault for the death of US activist Rachel Corrie, who was killed in the Gaza Strip by an Israeli army bulldozer in 2003. Ms Corrie's family had brought a civil claim for negligence against the Israeli ministry of defense. The judge said the 23-year-old's death was a "regrettable accident" and that the state was not responsible. She had been trying to stop Palestinian homes being pulled down in Gaza. Judge Oded Gershon, presiding at the court in the town of Haifa, said Ms Corrie had been protecting terrorists in a designated combat zone. He said the bulldozer driver had not seen her, adding the soldiers had done their utmost to keep people away from the site. "She [Corrie] did not distance herself from the area, as any thinking person would have done." He ruled the state of Israel did not have to pay any damages. The Corries had requested a symbolic $1 in damages and legal expenses. They had accused Israel of intentionally and unlawfully killing their daughter, and failing to conduct a full and credible investigation. An Israeli army investigation in 2003 concluded its forces were not to blame for Ms Corrie's death. Cindy and Craig Corrie travelled to Israel from the US to hear the ruling along with a group of friends and activists. After the ruling, Mrs Corrie told a press conference they wanted to see more accountability from the state of Israel, saying they had been "deeply troubled by what we heard today". "From the beginning it was clear to us that there was... a well-heeled system to protect the Israeli military, the soldiers who conduct actions in that military, to provide them with impunity at the cost of all the civilians who are impacted by what they do," she said. She said she believed at least one person in the bulldozer had seen their daughter, and that Rachel's death "could have been and should have been avoided.

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu was involved in smuggling nuclear triggers out of the United States carried out by a network of front companies, a report says. According to a Wednesday article posted on antiwar.com, the FBI partially declassified and released additional pages from a 1985-2002 investigation into how a network of front companies connected to the Israeli Ministry for Military Affairs illegally smuggled triggers used for nuclear weapons (krytrons) out of the United States. The FBI investigation reveals that Netanyahu worked at Heli Trading Company, the Israeli node of the network during the smuggling operations. The Israeli premier was in contact with Richard Kelly Smyth, who at the time was president of the MILCO International Inc., a front company for the Israel-based Heli Trading Company, then owned by Hollywood producer Arnon Milchan. In April 2002, Smyth was sentenced to 40 months in prison and fined 20,000 dollars for trafficking krytrons, tiny electronic devices that are used in high-speed photography, strobe lighting and photocopying machines, but can also be used in nuclear triggers. Smyth was also indicted for selling about 800 krytrons to Heli Trading Company (also known as Milchan Limited). “Smyth and [Netanyahu] would meet in restaurants in Tel Aviv and in [Netanyahu’s] home and/or business,” the FBI report said. In March, the co-authors of the book Confidential: The Life of Secret Agent Turned Hollywood Tycoon Arnon Milchan issued a statement saying, “Hollywood mega-producer and former secret agent Arnon Milchan has been asked directly by Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and President Shimon Peres to avoid any public discussion of the book Confidential, asserting that the matter is too sensitive at this time.”

UNITED NATIONS — Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu warned the United Nations that Iran's progress toward a nuclear bomb would be irreversible by next spring or summer, a more specific time frame than he had previously given in public, and demanded that world powers draw a "red line" to trigger military action if Tehran refuses to stop before then. Holding up a crude drawing of a round bomb with a burning fuse, Netanyahu told the General Assembly that at its current rate, he believes Iran will have produced enough sufficiently enriched uranium by mid-2013 to allow it to start working on an atomic weapon within "a few months, possibly a few weeks." He did not threaten to attack Iran, however, and said he was still working with the Obama administration to curb Tehran's nuclear development without war. He emphasized Israel's close ties to the United States, in what appeared an attempt to ease concerns of a rift between the allies over Iran's potential nuclear threat — even as he increased public pressure on Washington for a stepped-up effort. In his 30-minute address, Netanyahu drew a bright red line through the drawing of the bomb to make his point that unless the world stopped Iran, it would become an existential threat to Israel ...

Interesting Israel did not sign the Nuclear Proliferation Treaty. Iran has signed the agreement. In the Kissinger letter it states "introduction of Nuclear Weapons into the Near East would increase the dangers to an already dangerous situation". Israel a Nation with around 400 to 600 Nuclear Weapons expresses concerns about Iran a Nation that does not even have a single Nuclear Weapon. Shows how perverse the position of Israel's Prime Minister Netanyahu with respect to Iran Nuclear capabilities.

36.13 Pollard's Treason – Gideon Spies

In the Pollard case, his handler was Rafael Eitan former CEO of Israel's Largest Aerospace Company Rafael Aerospace. Eitan was in competition with Edgar Bronfman to head up the World Jewish Congress. Eitan was reported to have drowned by the pier in the Haifa Port in which a freak wave came in pulled him into the bay. That day the waves two inches on a bright sunny day. Eitan's car was found near the pier with the front windshield broken and the roof of the Volkswagen Jetta Roof was caved in like a Telephone Pole fell on top of the car. Afterwards, Edgar Bronfman took control of Rafael Aerospace and became the leader of the World Jewish Congress. Rafael is currently teamed up with General Dynamics on US Defense Contracts. General Dynamics was backed by Henry Crown.

Beyond any shadow of any doubt, Rafael Eitan did not die while carried off by a wave as he was standing on a breakwater at Ashdod port. We have been lied to and maybe this time, we have enough to get this political murder honestly investigated. Breaking this murder was as easy as opening pages one and two of Yediot Ahronot 24/11/04.

Eitan's car beside the spot on the breakwater where he allegedly fell in and drowned. First, look at the water. It is dead calm. Eitan was on the protected side of the breakwater. There is barely a ripple in all of this bay of the harbor. There are no big waves which could have towed Eitan in the water, and if a miracle tsunami had appeared, he would have swum to shore in seconds. But now look at the damage to his car. Observe the smashed windshield, the collapsed roof, the near total destruction of the right hand side of the vehicle. Now if anyone is crazy enough to think that a wave caused the wreckage, note the damage on the left hand side of the car as well. That car was rammed by something sharp there, by something powerful and blunt on the other side, and it appears that a fifty pound boulder fell on the roof. Raful's corpse found on the military side of the harbor. Now recall the calm waters where Raful was supposed to have fallen in and ask how his body floated so far away. But more important, this is an exposed part of the harbor. Look at the water. It's churning, but no wave comes close to reaching the top of the pier. These photos were taken some 90 minutes after Eitan drowned, however it happened. The weather could not have changed much. There are no killer waves anywhere. Now we know something about Raful's last minutes. He tried to escape his assailants in his car and was violently prevented from doing so. The murderers actually thought by parking his car on the breakwater, that people would think a magic wave wrecked it on all sides and from above. All doubt is now evaporated. Raful Eitan knew he was in trouble, he tried to escape his murderers, was chased and sadly, was caught. It's all in the car. He did not have an accident and drown. It's all in the waves...

Edgar M. Bronfman was President of the World Jewish Congress from 1979-2007. He was also the President of the World Jewish Restitution Organization, which is devoted to ensuring the return of communal Jewish property after it was stolen first by the Nazis and then by the communists in Eastern Europe, and property in Western Europe also stolen by the Nazis and unaccounted for. The WJRO is involved with seeing justice done in the case of the Swiss banks and other institutions throughout Europe that were depositories of Jewish wealth during the 1939-1945 period and whose owners perished in the Holocaust. He is Founding Chairman of the International Board of Governors of Hillel: The Foundation for Jewish Campus Life, a world-wide organization uniting Jewish students on college and university campuses. In addition to his roles in the World Jewish Congress and Hillel, Mr. Bronfman's philanthropic and civic activities include serving as Chairman of both The Samuel Bronfman Foundation and the United States Commission on Holocaust Era Assets. Mr. Bronfman attended Trinity College School in Port Hope, Ontario, Canada; Williams College in Williamstown, Massachusetts; and was graduated with a bachelor's degree from McGill University in Montreal, Canada, in 1951. In 1999, President Clinton awarded Mr. Bronfman the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the United States' highest civilian honor. That same year, Mr. Bronfman received an Honorary Doctor of Humane Letters from the University of Rochester. In 1997, he received from New York University an honorary degree of Doctor of Commercial Science and, from the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, an Honorary Doctor Philosophiae Honoris Causa. In 1995, the A.B. Freeman School of Business at Tulane University conferred upon Mr. Bronfman an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. In 1986, he received an Honorary Doctor of Laws from Williams College and was awarded the Chevalier de la Legion d'Honneur by the government of France, as well as the Justice Louis D. Brandeis Award of the 85th National Convention of the Zionist Organization of America. In 1982, Mr. Bronfman was also awarded a Doctor of Humane Letters by Pace University in New York City. Born on June 20, 1929, in Montreal, Canada, to the late Saidye (Rosner) Bronfman and the late Samuel Bronfman, Mr. Bronfman became a naturalized U.S. citizen in 1959.

36.13.6 Nexus of Rafael Aerospace Merger with Bronfman Family

Preliminary analysis here shows that Matthew Bronfman via Israel Discount Bank (IDB) and Clarion Investment took over Rafael Aerospace after the demise of Rafel Eitan.

Note: In more recent times IDB was involved with the Bernie Madoff Fraud in which about 25% of the money went to the IDB (8-9 Billion). Matthew Bronfman is the nephew of Phyllis Lambert sister of Edgar Bronfman and owner of Toronto Direct. TD Bank acquired a US Mid-Atlantic Bank Commerce Bank from the Corrupt Camden County NJ Commissioner George Norcross from about 8-9 Billion about equal to the funds lost in the Madoff scandal under control of Matthew Bronfman. Clarion Investments was the Israeli financial front company for Meyer Lansky used to buy the first Atlantic City Casino. Lansky sold his casino interests to Sheldon Adelson. Adelson was an investor in Facebook via Clarion Investment.

36.14 Horror in Israel 30,000 Spies Exposed

- <http://www.presstv.ir/detail/2013/03/30/295739/exposing-mossads-rotten-terror-corps/>

Last week, the hacker organization “Anonymous,” symbolized by the famous “Guy Fawkes” mask, hacked Israel’s Mossad. The hack, initially exposing a hidden network of 30,000 covert operatives, some openly labeled “hitman,” came only days after Israel admitted to their 2010 act of piracy and terrorism against the Freedom Flotilla. Now the Israeli regime has filled the internet with threats against “Anonymous,” if detailed information on their terror cells is leaked. After all, who is better to carry out acts of terrorism than an organization with 30,000 covert operatives around the world, almost all trained in use of explosives and demolition, building IEDs, car bombs, kidnapping and assassination and with a long and very public history of, not just murdering people but getting away with it as well. Every day we see it in the news, dozens killed in Pakistan, dozens more in Iraq, Kenya, Nigeria, the covert army of 30,000, planning terror, building a dozen car bombs a day and then being able to, not just write the lies blaming others but, in most cases, direct public officials, controlled through blackmail, threats or bribery, to “respond as directed.” Did I forget Syria? The army, more correctly the “cells” exposed by Anonymous include: 1. Direct Action: Assassins, explosives experts (for the Mossad “signature” car bombs) and kidnap/rendition teams 2. Espionage: Made up of trained agent handlers and signals intelligence personnel, often specially trained while posing as doing their “national service,” this group runs the Pentagon and White House, makes up Congressional employees, most think tanks, AIPAC and the ADL/SPLC. Key espionage operatives are seldom Israeli. Many are Turkish, Saudi, Jordanian and even Cuban diplomats. 3. Controlled opposition: Most obvious are the White Supremacist/Neo-Nazi groups recently exposed as being funded through Merkel's government in Germany at the direction of the Likudist Party in Israel. Nearly every individual or organization, with few exceptions, that describes itself as "holocaust denial," "anti-Zionist" or "historical revisionist" is now funded and directed through Israel. 4. Thought Control: No textbook, no university chair, no broadcast executive nor any news editor is ever employed unless a member of the "30,000." All belong, all are, not just "answerable," but actively involved in creating cover stories to shift blame for mass killings, political assassination, economic crimes or simply to put forth a continual "drumming," of the big lie. Birth by Murder The first major act of terrorism by Israel's Irgun, the predecessor to the Mossad, was in 1949. America's first Secretary of Defense, an office Chuck Hagel only recently assumed, a man under 24-hour protection against Mossad assassins even today, was James Forrestal. Forrestal was an enemy of Stalin and his inner circle of Zionists who, with the influence of Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, took control of President Truman, pushing him to back the occupation of Palestine by Communists, establishing a Soviet foothold in the Middle East under the guise of a "Jewish state." Under the guidance of Morgenthau, one million German POWs were starved to death, Germany was de-industrialized and Stalin was allowed to move into Eastern Europe and gain de facto control of France, Italy, establish broad terror and espionage cells that spread across the world, particularly in Washington. When the now reviled Senator Joseph McCarthy claimed the State Department was filled with communists, he was totally correct. Bernard Baruch told Forrestal that Zionists were going to kill him. The Irgun had tried to kill British Foreign Secretary Brevin in 1946. Forrestal, though Secretary of Defense, was continually attacked by the media, Walter Winchell and Drew Pearson, the most influential columnists of the day, wrote scathing attacks against Forrestal continually. Assassination teams following Forrestal were arrested more than once but released on orders from President Truman who, in March of 1949, finally fired Forrestal over his opposition to Israel's ethnic cleansing of the Palestinian people. Soon afterward, Forrestal was poisoned and taken to Bethesda Naval Hospital. While there, he was thrown out of a 16th story window, his body showing signs of a desperate struggle, the room in disarray. Walter Winchell, an accused Stalinist agent, called Forrestal's death a "suicide," a verdict certified later despite evidence to the contrary. The control of the press, likely 10,000 of the identities Anonymous accessed, seen today was "alive and well" many decades ago. As, decades later, the public became aware that the killings of Forrestal, the Kennedy's, Martin Luther King, even prominent American Jews like Senator Paul Wellstone and his family were Mossad operations. The Hollywoodism "spin" on the Forrestal assassination is the classic. We are told that Secretary of Defense Forrestal killed himself because his brain had been taken over by one of the aliens that crash-landed at Roswell, New Mexico in 1947. Jeremy Kagen, producer of the 1981 film, "The Chosen," depicting New York's Hasidic community, is responsible for the 1994 film, "Roswell," which implies Forrestal was murdered by aliens. We have seen it for over 60 years, if the trail leads to Tel Aviv, it must have been "little green men." Is the Story Dead? As soon as the story hit, press assets, both "blogosphere shills" and the MSM passed on the word, "Mossad assassination teams know where to find 'Anonymous' and are ready to kill family members, pets, blow up neighborhoods or even shoot up another elementary school." Those passing on the threats are guilty as co-conspirators, covering for espionage and terror groups, using terrorism to protect terrorists. Thus far, we have only seen the email accounts, a horror in itself, revealing what may only be the "tip of the iceberg." What if only 5,000 of the 30,000 are "agent handlers?" Does this mean there are tens of thousands of additional "deep cover agents" armed with dirty bombs or ready to kill public officials if, let's say, there is a threat to cut aid to Israel? Wait, isn't this exactly what brought on 9/11?

The real reason Russia and Syria are being targeted right now. Contrary to popular belief, the conduct of nations on the international stage is almost never driven by moral considerations, but rather by a shadowy cocktail of money and geopolitics. As such, when you see the mouthpieces of the ruling class begin to demonize a foreign country, the first question in your mind should always be "what is actually at stake here?" For some time now Russia, China, Iran, and Syria have been in the cross hairs. Once you understand why, the events unfolding in the world right now will make much more sense. The U.S. dollar is a unique currency. In fact its current design and its relationship to geopolitics is unlike any other in history. Though it has been the world reserve currency since 194 this is not what makes it unique. Many currencies have held the reserve status off and on over the centuries, but what makes the dollar unique is the fact that since the early 1970s it has been, with a few notable exceptions, the only currency used to buy and sell oil on the global market. Prior to 1971 the U.S. dollar was bound to the gold standard, at least officially. According to the IMF, by 1966, foreign central banks held $14 billion U.S. dollars, however the United States had only \$3.2 billion in gold allocated to cover foreign holdings. Translation: the Federal Reserve was printing more money than it could actually back. The result was rampant inflation and a general flight from the dollar. In 1971 in what later came to be called the "Nixon Shock" President Nixon removed the dollar from the gold standard completely. At this point the dollar became a pure debt based currency. With debt based currencies money is literally loaned into existence. Approximately 70% of the money in circulation is created by ordinary banks which are allowed to loan out more than they actually have in their accounts. The rest is created by the Federal Reserve which loans money that they don't have, mostly to government. Kind of like writing hot checks, except it's legal, for banks. This practice which is referred to as fractional reserve banking is supposedly regulated by the Federal Reserve, an institution which just happens to be owned and controlled by a conglomerate of banks, and no agency or branch of government regulates the Federal Reserve. Now to make things even more interesting these fractional reserve loans have interest attached, but the money to pay that interest doesn't exist in the system. As a result there is always more total debt than there is money in circulation, and in order to stay afloat the economy must grow perpetually. This is obviously not sustainable. Now you might be wondering how the dollar has maintained such a dominant position on the world stage for over forty years if it's really little more than an elaborate ponzi scheme. Well this is where the dollar meets geopolitics. In 1973 under the shadow of the artificial OPEC oil crisis, the Nixon administration began secret negotiations with the government of Saudi Arabia to establish what came to be referred to as the petrodollar recycling system. Under the arrangement the Saudis would only sell their oil in U.S. dollars, and would invest the majority of their excess oil profits into U.S. banks and Capital markets. The IMF would then use this money to facilitate loans to oil importers who were having difficulties covering the increase in oil prices. The payments and interest on these loans would of course be denominated in U.S. dollars. This agreement was formalized in the "The U.S.-Saudi Arabian Joint Commission on Economic Cooperation" put together by Nixon's Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in 1974. Another document released by the Congressional Research Service reveals that these negotiations had an edge to them, as U.S. officials were openly discussing the feasibility of seizing oil fields in Saudi Arabia militarily. In the United States, the oil shocks produced inflation, new concern about foreign investment from oil producing countries, and open speculation about the advisability and feasibility of militarily seizing oil fields in Saudi Arabia or other countries. In the wake of the embargo, both Saudi and U.S. officials worked to re-anchor the bilateral relationship on the basis of shared opposition to Communism, renewed military cooperation, and through economic initiatives that promoted the recycling of Saudi petrodollars to the United States via Saudi investment in infrastructure, industrial expansion, and U.S. securities. The system was expanded to include the rest of OPEC by 1975. Though presented as buffer to the recessionary effects of rising oil prices, this arrangement had a hidden side effect. It removed the traditional restraints on U.S. monetary policy. The Federal Reserve was now free to increase the money supply at will. The ever increasing demand for oil would prevent a flight from the dollar, while distributing the inflationary consequences across the entire planet. The dollar went from being a gold back currency to a oil backed currency. It also became America's primary export. Did you ever wonder how the U.S. economy has been able to stay afloat while running multibillion dollar trade deficits for decades? Did you ever wonder how it is that the U.S. holds such a disproportionate amount of the worlds wealth when 70% of the U.S. economy is consumer based? In the modern era, fossil fuels make the world go round. They have become integrated into every aspect of civilization: agriculture, transportation, plastics, heating, defense and medicine, and demand just keeps growing and growing. As long as the world needs oil, and as long as oil is only sold in U.S. dollars, there will be a demand for dollars, and that demand is what gives the dollar its value. For the United States this is a great deal. Dollars go out, either as paper or digits in a computer system, and real tangible products and services come in. However for the rest of the world, it's a very sneaky form of exploitation. Having global trade predominately in dollars also provides the Washington with a powerful financial weapon through sanctions. This is due to the fact that most large scale dollar transactions are forced to pass through the U.S. This petrodollar system stood unchallenged until September of 2000 when Saddam Hussein announced his decision to switch Iraq's oil sales off of the dollar to Euros. This was a direct attack on the dollar, and easily the most important geopolitical event of the year, but only one article in the western media even mentioned it. In the same month that Saddam announced he was moving away from the dollar, an organization called the "The Project for a New American Century", of which Dick Cheney just happened to be a member, released a document entitled "REBUILDING AMERICA'S DEFENSES Strategy, Forces and Resources For a New Century". This document called for massive increases in U.S. military spending and a much more aggressive foreign policy in order to expand U.S. dominance world wide. However the document lamented that achieving these goals would take many years "absent some catastrophic and catalyzing event – like a new Pearl Harbor". One year later they got it. Riding the emotional reaction to 9/11, the Bush administration was able to invade Afghanistan and Iraq and pass the patriot act all without any significant resistance. There were no weapons of mass destruction in Iraq, and this wasn't a question of bad intelligence. This was a cold calculated lie, and the decision to invade was made in full knowledge of the disaster which would follow. They knew exactly what was going to happen but in 2003, they did it anyway. Once Iraqi oil fields were under U.S. control, oil sales were immediately switched back to the dollar. Mission accomplished. Soon after the invasion of Iraq the Bush administration attempted to extend these wars to Iran. Supposedly the Iranian government was working to build a nuclear weapon. After the Iraq fiasco Washington's credibility was severely damaged as a result they were unable to muster international or domestic support for an intervention. Their efforts were further sabotaged by elements within the CIA and Mossad who came forward to state that Iran had not even made the decision to develop nuclear weapons much less begin an attempt. However the demonization campaign against Iran continued even into the Obama administration.

Why? Well, might it have something to do with the fact that since 2004 Iran has been in the process of organizing an independent oil bourse? They were building their own oil market, and it wasn't going to be tied to the dollar. The first shipments of oil were sold through this market in July of 2011. Unable to get the war that they wanted, the U.S. used the U.N to impose sanctions against Iran. The goal of the sanctions was to topple the Iranian regime. While this did inflict damage on the Iranian economy, the measures failed to destabilize the country. This was due in large part to Russia's assistance in bypassing U.S. banking restrictions. In February of 2009 Muammar Gaddafi, was named chairman of the African Union. He immediately proposed the formation of a unified state with a single currency. It was the nature of that proposed currency that got him killed. In March of 2009 the African Union released a document entitled "Towards a Single African Currency". Pages 106 and 107 of that document specifically discuss the benefits and technicalities of running the African Central bank under a gold standard. On page 94 it explicitly states that the key to the success of the African Monetary Union would be the "eventual linking of a single African currency to the most monetary of all commodities - gold." (Note that the page number is different on other versions of the document that they released.) In 2011 the CIA moved into Libya and began backing militant groups in their campaign to topple Gaddafi and the U.S. and NATO pushed through and stretched a U.N. no-fly-zone resolution to tip the balance with airstrikes. The presence of Al-Qaeda extremists among these rebel fighters was swept under the rug. Libya, like Iran and Iraq had committed the unforgivable crime of challenging the U.S. dollar. The NATO intervention in Libya segued into a covert war on Syrian. The armories of the Libyan government were looted and the weapons were shipped via Turkey to Syrian rebels groups working to topple Assad. It was already clear at this point that many of these fighters had ties to terrorist organizations. However the U.S. national security apparatus viewed this as a necessary evil. In fact the Council on Foreign relations published an article in 2012 stating that "The influx of jihadis brings discipline, religious fervor, battle experience from Iraq, funding from Sunni sympathizers in the Gulf, and most importantly, deadly results. In short, the FSA needs al-Qaeda now." Let's be clear here, the U.S. put ISIS in power. In 2013 these same Al-Qaeda linked Syrian rebels launched two sarin gas attacks. This was attempt to frame Assad and muster international support for military intervention. Fortunately they were exposed by U.N. and Russian investigators and the push for airstrikes completely fell apart when Russia stepped in to broker a diplomatic solution. The campaign for regime change in Syria, as in Libya has been presented in terms of human rights. Obviously this isn't the real motive.

In 2009, Qatar put forth a proposal to run a natural gas pipeline through Syria and Turkey to Europe. Assad however rejected this, and in 2011 he forged a pact with Iraq and Iran to run a pipeline eastward cutting Qatar and Saudi Arabia out of the loop completely. Not surprisingly Qatar, Saudi Arabia and Turkey have been the most aggressive regional players in the push to topple the Syrian government. But why would this pipeline dispute put Syria in Washington's cross hairs? Three reasons:

1. This pipeline arrangement would significantly strengthen Iran's position, allowing them to export to European markets without having to pass through any of Washington's allies. This obviously reduces the U.S. government's leverage.
2. Syria is Iran's closest ally. It's collapse would inherently weaken Iran.
3. Syria and Iran have a mutual defense agreement, and a U.S. intervention in Syria could open the door to open conflict with Iran.

In February of 2014 this global chess game heated up in a new venue: Ukraine. The real target however was Russia. You see Russia just happens to be the worlds second largest oil exporter, and not only have they been a thorn in Washington's side diplomatically, but they also opened an energy bourse in 2008, with sales denominated in Rubles and gold. This project had been in the works since 2006. They have also been working with China to pull off of the dollar in all of their bilateral trade. Russia has also been in the process of organizing a Eurasian Economic Union which includes plans to adopt common currency unit, and which is slated to have its own independent energy market. Leading up to the crisis in Ukraine had been presented with a choice: either join the E.U. under an association agreement or join the Eurasian Union. The E.U. insisted that this was an either or proposition. Ukraine couldn't join both. Russia on the other hand, asserted that joining both posed no issue. President Yanukovich decided to go with Russia. In response the U.S. national security apparatus did what it does best: they toppled Yanukovich and installed a puppet government. To see the full evidence of Washington's involvement in the coup watch "The Ukraine crisis what you're not being told" This article from the Guardian is also worth reading. Though this all seemed to be going well at first, the U.S. quickly lost control of the situation. Crimea held a referendum and the people voted overwhelmingly to secede from Ukraine and reunify with Russia. The transition was orderly and peaceful. No one was killed, yet the West immediately framed the entire event as an act of Russian aggression, and this became the go to mantra from that point on. Crimea is important geostrategically because of its position in the Black Sea which allows for the projection of naval power into the Mediterranean. It has also been Russian territory for most of recent history. The U.S. has been pushing for Ukraine's inclusion into NATO for years now. Such a move would place U.S. forces right on Russia's border and could have potentially resulted in Russia losing their naval base in Crimea. This is why Russia immediately accepted the results of the Crimean referendum and quickly consolidated the territory. Meanwhile in Eastern Ukraine, two regions declared independence from Kiev and held referendums of their own. The results of which overwhelmingly favored self rule. Kiev responded to this with what they referred to as anti-terrorist operations. In practice this was a massive and indiscriminate shelling campaign which killed thousands of civilians. Apparently killing civilians didn't qualify as aggression to the West. In fact the IMF explicitly warned the provisional government that their 17 billion dollar loan package could be in danger if they were not able to put down the uprising in eastern Ukraine. While the war against eastern Ukraine was raging elections were held and Petro Poroshenko was elected president. It turns out that Poroshenko, was exposed by a leaked diplomatic cable released by wikileaks in 2008 as having worked as a mole for the U.S. State Department since 2006. They referred to him as "Our Ukraine insider" and much of the cable referred to information that he was providing. (A separate cable showed that the U.S. knew Poroshenko was corrupt even at that point.) Having a puppet in place however hasn't turned out to be enough to give Washington the upper hand in this crisis. What does Washington do when they have no other leverage? They impose sanctions, they demonize and they saber rattle (or pull a false flag). This isn't a very good strategy when dealing with Russia. In fact it has already backfired. The sanctions have merely pushed Russia and China into closer cooperation and accelerated Russia's de-dollarization agenda. And in spite of the rhetoric, this has not led to Russia being isolated. The U.S. and NATO have put a wedge between themselves and Russia, but not between Russia and the rest of the world (look up BRICS if you are unclear about this). This new anti-dollar axis goes deeper than economics. These countries understand what's at stake here. This is why in the wake of the Ukrainian crisis China has proposed a new Eurasian security pact which would include Russia and Iran. Consider the implications here as the Obama administration begins bombing in Syria which also has a mutual defense agreement with Iran. This is not the cold war 2.0. This is World War 3.0. The masses may not have figured it out yet, but history will remember it that way. Alliances are already solidifying and a hot war is underway on multiple fronts. If the provocations and proxy wars continue, it's only a matter of time before the big players confront each other directly, and that is a recipe for disaster. Does all of this sound insane to you? Well you're right. The people running the world right now are insane, and the public is sleep walking into a tragedy. If you want to alter the course that we are on, there's only one way to do it. We have to wake up that public. Even the most powerful weapons of war are neutralized if you reach the mind of the man behind the trigger. How do we wake the masses you ask? Don't wait for someone else to answer that for you. Get creative. Act like you children's and grandchildren's futures depend on it, because they do.

Gordon Duff was part of a Veterans Today Senior Staff Delegation that traveled to Damascus and was in consultation with the Veterans Today Board and other like minded individuals within the American Military and Intelligence community and other such individuals from sixty-eight different nations around the World who were at the Conference. This Delegation included Veterans Today Senior Editor *Gordon Duff, Veterans Today Managing Editor Jim Dean, Veterans Today Director Colonel James Hanke, and Veterans Today Financial Editor *Mike Harris. Gordon Duff's speech quickly changed the focus of the whole conference and is now sending shock-waves around the World in the various Diplomatic, Military and Intelligence corps around the World. Why is his speech Historic? For a number of vitally important reasons. This speech is the first time in history an American Intelligence Team of “non-activists” gave a military briefing to an audience of this type, including key Military Leaders of diverse Tribal Forces throughout Lebanon, Syria and Iraq, along with a Russian delegation and many others from around the world. Before this historic speech by Duff, no one has ever dared to speak the simple truth about the true problem, that it is not Terrorism in the Mideast, but it is the effects of large scale international Organized Crime. But even more important, Duff, a noted international Intel and Security Consultant, identified the root cause of United States of America's dysfunctional involvement in Iraq and Syria and the true cause of ISIS/Daish. Duff's speech immediately changed the whole tone of the Conference and turned it to a very practical focus on the true causes of ISIS/Daish. His speech immediately shifted the focus of the Conference from theoretical discussions of Terrorism and Extremism, to what is actually going on at the ground level at a practical level, who is responsible and why they are doing it, that is stealing factories and torturing and killing civilians, folks that are their people. Gordon Duff laid out the true cause of ISIS/Daish in simple terms for the very first time anyone has ever done so publicly and this disclosure from such a highly credentialed and credible Intel Professional is now sending shock-waves around the World. Duff declared that there are far too many that have died to continue speaking in unclear terms and that it was time to share a key hypothesis based on signals intelligence. Then Duff proceeded to explain the True Causes of ISIS/Daish in simple understandable terms which provide the clarity needed to form a sustainable solution. Duff explained that what is going on in Iraq and Syria with ISIS is not Terrorism, it is simply CRIME. That is, it is the works of an international Crime Cabal which has gotten control of the American Congress. Yes, this is a large Organized Crime problem that must be understood at its simple root cause. Duff identified this Crime Cabal as Israeli and pointed out that this is Worldwide Crime on a scale never experienced before.

Duff explained how the illegal Supreme Court Decision of Citizens United made it possible for an Israeli-American Organized crime magnate now operating out of Macao, Sheldon Adelson to essentially buy

control of both Houses of Congress in the last election and being able to bring Congress under control of this International Crime Syndicate which specializes in human trafficking and narcotics. Duff also identified American Generals McInerney and Valley as being involved in organizing Daish along with Senator John McCain. He also pointed out that Secretary of Defense Chuck Hagel [who has just resigned] was the one that prevented the American bombing of Syria in response to the False-Flag gas attack at Aleppo, Syria. This keynote address delivered by Gordon Duff was historic because for the very first time ever a Top Intel and Security Consultant publicly explained how the problem with ISIS/Daish is not terrorism but is Crime. He clarified that ISIS/Daish is a result of Criminal Behavior of an Israeli based International Crime Syndicate which essentially bought control over the US Congress during the last election. Here is Gordon Duff's keynote speech which was historical and is now sending shock-waves around the World. It should now be clear to everyone that the creation of ISIS/Daish occurred not because of Terrorism, but because of the undue influence exercised on the American Political system by this Israeli based Crime Syndicate in which a faction inside the American Congress, Military and Intel has been manipulated into supporting the creation of ISIS/Daish. It is easy to imagine why Duff's frank disclosure in his keynote address that the real problem on the ground in Iraq and Syria is Crime and the handi-work of an international Israeli Crime Cabal immediately changed the tone of the conference, and is now sending shock-waves around the World. This is the first time ever that these issues have been clarified for the Syrian Security Services and Military as well as to Intel, Military and Diplomatic representatives from all over the World. In days and weeks to follow it is expected that such an Historic disclosure based on hard Intel will change the scope and tone of the discussion about what is really going on in Iraq and Syria on the ground and how a worldwide criminal enterprise is behind it. There were several sophisticated attempts to sidetrack and derail the VT Delegation and keep Gordon Duff from delivering his Historic Speech. Despite all these attempted interceptions, one of which was directly thwarted by VT Financial Editor Mike Harris, Gordon Duff was able to deliver his keynote address and make history by putting the actual facts behind ISIS/Daish on the public record for the very first time. Colonel Jim Hanke spoke at the Conference also and his talk was very well received. Jim Dean took numerous films which should prove to be quite important when some are published on VT. Mike Harris gave numerous interviews to the Syrian Press and met with Syrian Security Officials and the Grand Mufti, the World's top Islamic legal and theological scholar. These discussions were very productive and did a great deal to further an understanding of what is actually behind the ISIS/Daish crime problem in Iraq and Syria which is nothing more than sophisticated international Organized Crime and must be dealt with as such.

Conclusion: Obviously Gordon Duff and his team displayed great courage in attending this Conference in Damascus and deserve the highest commendations possible for this fine work representing the true interests of peace for folks with no voice. When the dust settles time will show this speech will be a major turning point in the Criminal Cabal's blatant abuse of the American People from their buying and hijacking of the US Congress and some American Generals with deep Intel connections and their abuse of millions around the World in many different nations, especially the Mideast. No criminal Cabal or conspiracy this large can exist without utmost secrecy, which no longer exists thanks to Duff's keynote address and complete disclosure. Their crimes are now no longer secret and the "Jig is now up". Thanks to Duff the Jig is about up for this International Israeli linked Crime Cabal, some have identified as the International Zionist Crime Cabal (IZCS) which has formed an alliance with the Bush Crime Cabal (BCC) which is now being completely identified all over the Worldwide Internet. It is now realized by many that the BCC was formed when Bush1 ran the Assassination of JFK and rose to power, able to deeply embed his operatives in the CIA, the Military, Congress, the Department of Justice and the Judiciary. Now if anyone doubts that ISIS/Daish was set up under the Money Power of the International Zionist Crime Cabal (IZCS) operating out of Israel which has now gained Control of the US Congress, consider this. All ISIS/Daish wounded are taken to Israel for medical treatment, all expenses paid and those that can be are returned to Iraq or Syria to attack, torture, murder and asset strip innocent civilians, pretending to be Islamic Terrorists. This is all done in order to create mass confusion and to empower those governments that exist off the spoils of pushing solutions to their synthetic terrorism which is really nothing more than a massive Organized crime operation to make money and accrue more power. How do we know that the Criminal cabal has truly gained control over the US Congress. We now have actual specific evidence which has uncovered the Crime Cabal's control over Congress through the use of large bribes and threats of assassination. It is now beyond obvious that the only way to deal with a such a large Criminal Cabal is to indict them, arrest them, fully prosecute them, and if convicted with clearly convincing evidence beyond any shadow of a doubt, then sentence them appropriately. If they have committed Treason, Sedition or other Capital offenses well, then upon conviction in a suitable court of law, US or International, they must be executed like the convicted Nazis from the Nuremberg War trials or the convicted Japanese from the International Military Tribunal for the Far East also known as the "Tokyo Trials" and in other courts in many different places in Asia and the Pacific. About 1,000 Japanese War criminals were executed after conviction and Twenty Nazi War criminals were executed after conviction. However, it is known inside high level Intel circles and by those who worked closely with OSS agents and operatives, that numerous American Army secret assassination teams were deployed in Europe to bring many uncharged Nazis to instant justice. Some teams operating under Presidential Orders were also deployed to Hawaii and Asia to bring "instant, extra-judicial justice" to many Japanese war criminals that avoided exposure and arrest. This whole Nuremberg Trial and Tokyo Trial process needs to be repeated against the Criminal Cabal and all their kingpins, Top Policy-Makers, political and Judicial puppets as well as all their operative and mass-murderers deployed on the ground as mercenaries for fat paychecks. Those who attempt to flee prosecution can be hunted down to the ends of the Earth if necessary. And the worst of all this is the ability of the Crime Cabal to use American Generals and a sitting US Senator to start up and run ISIS/ISIL/Daish. This is truly disgusting but there is actually even more to this story. Because the honest faction of the US Military is now targeting some ISIS positions, what we actually have now is a Secret American Civil War being fought in Iraq. And now China has offered military help to the Iraqi government. Unless John McCain is stopped in his rise to become Chairman of the Armed Service Committee, he may be able to exert serious pressure and be able to push America into another War in Iraq (maybe Syria, Iran and the Ukraine too) and his actions could trigger a nuclear WW3 with the Russian Federation and President Putin who has just about had enough. Hat's off and Highest Commendations to Gordon Duff and his team of American Heroes who have now set the record straight and had the great courage necessary to publicly disclose, for the very first time anywhere, the true causes of ISIS/ISIL/Daish and have shown it to be a crime problem created by a large international Organized Crime Cabal. Now most of the World Security and Intel Units know the truth that has been hidden from them for many years by excess compartmentalizing and billions of dollars spent by the Crime cabal to control and prevent their access to this information. These Units now know with incredible clarity for the first who deploys synthetic terror, torture, mass-murder and asset-stripping in the Mideast and why. They now know it is being done to further the Crime Cabal's goals and power.

Gordon Duff: Too many people have died for people to continue speaking in terms that are unclear and just not speaking the truth. It's time we simply said what we know, whether it's classified information or not. All of you have seen the results of what we're saying. What we're saying will fit what has happened here and what facts you've been able to bring out... Our hypothesis is based on solid information, solid research on the ground, using human signals intelligence from our extensive capabilities. We don't guess. We know what we're talking about here. Their motivation is largely economic. They're a criminal organization but they are part of a worldwide criminal organization. And they're here in your territory, taking your things – your factories, your lives, your people – for the enrichment of a specific group of people who need to be held to account. It's almost as though it's a police problem. This is crime. This terrorism you're suffering is worldwide crime on a scale we have never seen before. There has never been anything like this.

Gordon Duff: I appreciate your statements and I recognize the truth and honesty of what you were saying but I do believe there are areas of misunderstanding how the United States works politically. And this is a problem, a tremendous problem in the Middle East and one of the things that's driven us here is it's very difficult to understand what has happened as far as Israeli control of American politics and I will, as succinctly as possible, I will explain this to you.

Gordon Duff: In 2005, the Supreme Court of the United States had a decision on a case called Citizens United. The decision of the Supreme Court legalized unlimited corporate bribery. This turned control of the Congress of the United States over to human traffickers, narcotics traffickers and in particular, the most powerful individual in the United States today is a gambling boss named Sheldon Adelson, an Israeli citizen who fled the US living in Macau. He spent over one billion dollars in the last election and bought control of both Houses of Congress. Now Senator John McCain, the father of al Nusra, the father of ISIS, will be running US legislative and military foreign policy.

Gordon Duff: American generals like General McInerney and General Paul Vallely, specialists in psychological warfare, helped organize Daish. They have traveled in and out of your country here, Syria, over and over, as had Senator John McCain. Meeting with al Qaeda – an organization created by the American, Saudi and Israeli Defense Forces and Intelligence Services.

Gordon Duff: Only a week ago, the US Secretary of Defense Chuck Hagel, resigned. Chuck Hagel was the individual that stopped the United States from bombing Syria over the false flag gas attacks near Aleppo.

Gordon Duff: It was our organization here that supplied the intelligence that stopped those attacks.

Gordon Duff: It's our goal here, while we are here, to try to establish a method of communication that will allow Syria and other nations within the area to understand Israel's control of the US, the control of the US by organized crime and how the US government is subservient to a worldwide criminal organization

The Vallas extension - The Philadelphia PA School Reform Commission has voted wisely to extend the contract of Paul Vallas as chief executive officer of the School District of Philadelphia. Ask any of the school superintendents nationally who have presided over district wide improvement programs during the past 15 years, and they will confirm that academic reform doesn't happen overnight. Under Vallas' leadership during the past four years, however, the Philadelphia School District has acquired a hard-won reputation as a system headed in the right direction. Let's all join the members of the School Reform Commission now in helping Vallas to build on the district's gains. Gail C. Levin Executive director - Annenberg Foundation Radnor PA

37.2 Legacy of Signers of the Declaration of Independence

Have you ever wondered what happened to the 56 men who signed the Declaration of Independence? Five signers were captured by the British as traitors, and tortured before they died. Twelve had their homes ransacked and burned. Two lost their sons serving in the Revolutionary Army; another had two sons captured. Nine of the 56 fought and died from wounds or hardships of the Revolutionary War. They signed and they pledged their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor. What kind of men were they? Twenty-four were lawyers and jurists. Eleven were merchants, nine were farmers and large plantation owners; men of means, well educated, but they signed the Declaration of Independence knowing full well that the penalty would be death if they were captured. Carter Braxton of Virginia, a wealthy planter and trader, saw his Ships swept from the seas by the British Navy. He sold his home and properties to pay his debts, and died in rags. Thomas McKeam was so hounded by the British that he was forced to move his family almost constantly. He served in the Congress without pay, and his family was kept in hiding. His possessions were taken from him, and poverty was his reward. Vandals or soldiers looted the properties of Dillery, Hall, Clymer, Walton, Gwinnett, Heyward, Rutledge, and Middleton. At the battle of Yorktown, Thomas Nelson, Jr., noted that the British General Cornwallis had taken over the Nelson home for his headquarters. He quietly urged General George Washington to open fire. The home was destroyed, and Nelson died bankrupt. Francis Lewis had his home and properties destroyed. The enemy jailed his wife, and she died within a few months. John Hart was driven from his wife's bedside as she was dying. Their 13 children fled for their lives. His fields and his gristmill were laid to waste. For more than a year he lived in forests and caves, returning home to find his wife dead and his children vanished. Some of us take these liberties so much for granted, but we shouldn't.

"I believe in social responsibility. A man's service to others must be at least in ratio to the character of his own success in life. When one is fortunate enough to gain a measure of material well being, however small, service to others should be uppermost in his mind." - Walter H. Annenberg (1951)

Walter H. Annenberg was born in 1908 and enjoyed a distinguished career as a publisher, broadcaster, diplomat, and philanthropist. He graduated from The Peddie School in Hightstown, New Jersey and attended the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania. He entered the family publishing business in Philadelphia where he became the President of Triangle Publications in 1940 and, subsequently, Chairman of the Board. While serving as Editor and Publisher of The Philadelphia Inquirer, Mr. Annenberg saw the need for a publication for teenage girls and, in 1944, established Seventeen Magazine. In 1953, as a result of his belief that television's growth would create a demand for more information on the part of viewers, he established TV Guide as a national publication. Under Mr. Annenberg's leadership, Triangle Publications bought a radio station in the early 1940's in Philadelphia and built a VHF television station which was one of the first TV stations owned by a publishing house. The radio-TV division of Triangle grew to include six AM and six FM radio stations, and six TV stations. The Philadelphia station pioneered a number of broadcasting concepts among which was Mr. Annenberg's decision to use television to present a series of educational programs that ran for more than a decade. In 1951, Mr. Annenberg became an early awardee of the prestigious Alfred I. DuPont Award for pioneering education via television. He was also given the Marshall Field Award in 1958. In 1983, he received the Ralph Lowell Medal for his "outstanding contribution to public television." A man with a deep interest in education, Mr. Annenberg founded The Annenberg School for Communication at the University of Pennsylvania in 1958 and The Annenberg School for Communication at the University of Southern California in 1971. In 1983, he established the Washington Program in Communications Policy Studies in response to growing awareness that difficult government and industry problems were emerging in the rapidly changing telecommunications field. He served as Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, Great Britain, from 1969 to 1974. By the late 1980's, having sold all of his publishing and broadcast enterprises, Ambassador Annenberg devoted his attention to philanthropy and public service.

37.3.1 Paper Trail –Annenberg Family Reads Just Like A Mafia Story

Paper Trail -Take away the name and the philanthropy and the Annenberg family history reads just like any other mob story. by Brendan McGarvey

Walter Annenberg is dead. Long live Walter Annenberg's billions. One of the richest men in the United States, Walter Annenberg was a generous philanthropist who gave millions to universities, art museums, charities and PBS. He was a friend to kings and presidents. Annenberg was the U.S. Ambassador to the Court of Saint James, London, for Richard Nixon. A media magnate who once owned local institutions like the Philadelphia Inquirer, TV Guide, the Daily News and Channel 6, Annenberg split his time between his estate in Wynnewood and a second one in Palm Springs, Calif. And, oh yeah, Walter Annenberg was indicted in one of the largest tax evasion cases in the history of the United States. Annenberg was indicted with his father, Moses Annenberg, and two other business associates in 1939. They were charged with evading more than $2 million in taxes and another $3 million in penalties and interest. On Aug. 18, 1939, Walter Annenberg, his father and two other business associates surrendered to the U.S. Marshal. They posted bond, and were released to await trial. Later that same month, Moses Annenberg, Philadelphia nightclub owner Jack Lynch and two others were indicted for conspiring to bribe a Philadelphia detective. Lynch allegedly wanted to influence the detective if and when he was called before a grand jury investigating four corporations owned by Moses Annenberg. In April 1940, Moses Annenberg agreed to plead guilty to one count -- "willfully" evading $1,217,296 -- and to pay almost $9 million in fines and penalties. In exchange for his plea the government agreed to drop all charges against his son, Walter Annenberg. Moses was sentenced to three years in prison. He was sent to Lewisburg federal pen, but released early because of poor health, and he died a month later. Walter parlayed the family fortune into billions and spent the rest of his life making people forget how Moses Annenberg had acquired this great American fortune in the first place. The story of Walter Annenberg's father is a tale of a hardworking immigrant and financial genius who got his start working alongside violent Chicago gangsters while employed by newspaper titan William Randolph Hearst at the turn of the last century. It was a time when "circulation wars" literally meant gunmen and slugers beating and killing rival news dealers to gain a monopoly for their newspaper. Both Moses and his older brother, Max Annenberg, were involved in the brutal Chicago newspaper wars in the first decade of the 20th century in which 14 news dealers were murdered. Max and Moses Annenberg were hired by William Randolph Hearst as circulation managers for his newspapers. Their job was to hire and dispatch gangs of plug-uglies to intimidate anyone selling The Chicago Tribune. One member of the Annenberg crew was the exceptionally notorious and bloodthirsty Dion O'Banion. O'Banion captained his own gang of neighborhood toughs. A decade after working for the Annenbergs, O'Banion headed his own mob, but was rubbed out by gangland rival Al Capone in 1925. Bleeding -- literally -- people and money, the owner of the Tribune, Bertie McCormick, decided to hire Moses Annenberg away from Hearst. For a while, the Annenberg brothers were sending out thugs to battle each other. Fifteen years later, Max Annenberg was alleged to be an associate and friend of Chicago crime boss Al Capone. In 1938, the Secretary of the Interior, Harold Ickes, traveled from Washington D.C. to give a speech in Philadelphia condemning Moses Annenberg, who, at that time, was backing the Republican candidate for governor of Pennsylvania. Ickes charged it was Annenberg's violent tactics during the Chicago newspaper wars that inspired gangsters like Al Capone. Ickes said that "the hiring of Moses Annenberg by Hearst was the beginning of the subsequent flood of lawlessness that almost engulfed law enforcement in the United States." But Moses Annenberg didn't just rely on gangsters to improve newspaper circulation. He also came up with the idea of giving away free silver teaspoons to each new subscriber and made so much money he branched out on his own, buying newspapers in Milwaukee and New York. [Philadelphia Inquirer..Daily News] But it was Moses Annenberg's involvement in the shady world of illegal gambling that put him in touch, and in business, with mobsters all across the nation. In 1924, Annenberg got involved with a racing news service in Chicago and Milwaukee. The service provided horse race information to gambling parlors -- also known in those days as "pool rooms." With that information, bookies could set odds and collect from gamblers or pay out winnings. It was called the General News Bureau and it was owned by Chicago's largest gambler/bookie, Mont Tennes. Tennes agreed to sell out to Annenberg after his house was firebombed.

Annenberg took on a partner named Jack Lynch. But Lynch sued Moses, alleging that more than a million dollars had vanished from their business. Annenberg's lawyers argued that "the General News Bureau is aiding and abetting an illegal enterprise," and the Illinois Supreme Court agreed, ruling that it was an illegal business; therefore, the dispute between Lynch and Annenberg was outside the scope of the law. Lynch turned to Al Capone's number-one guy, Frank Nitti, to back him against Annenberg. Moses reputedly enlisted the trigger-happy organizer for the Chicago Motion Picture Operators' Union, Ralph O'Hara, to watch his back. But when O'Hara's boss was murdered gangland-style, the Chicago mafia took control of the union. Before the disagreement between Lynch and Annenberg was settled, George Downs, an Annenberg lieutenant operating in Miami, Fla., was found shot to death, execution-style, in the Everglades. At the time Downs was killed, Moses Annenberg was running newspapers in Florida, the Midwest, New York and Philadelphia. Critics charged Annenberg was using his newspapers to back local politicians who would close down rival bookmaking services and allow his illegal racing wire to operate without competition. Within a few years Annenberg had a nationwide monopoly. Annenberg's Nationwide News Service and subsidiaries were servicing bookies in 223 cities, 39 states and three Canadian provinces. Gamblers, bookies and underworld syndicates were Annenberg's customers. Ironically, there were reports that those who didn't take the Annenberg race wire service were themselves the victims of beatings, fire bombings and, on occasion, murder. The crime syndicates had come to be dependent on Moses Annenberg. Without his service they couldn't operate their illegal gambling rackets. Moses Annenberg made millions and millions of dollars until the federal government indicted him for not paying taxes on his illegal businesses. This underworld money was the source of the great Annenberg fortune and helped to finance Walter Annenberg's own generous philanthropy.

37.3.2 Annenberg(s) Ties to the Origins of the Mafia – National Crime Syndicate

The origins of the Mob and the Atlantic City Conference – By John William Tuohy [The Formation of the Syndicate/Mafia..Right Hand Man of Capone Moe Annenberg!]

In 1927 Atlantic City, New Jersey, was New York's playground, the sands were bleach white and great hotels lined the seemingly endless Boardwalk. The perfect place for the first major Mob conclave in American history. The newly married Meyer Lansky was there. It wasn't where he had planned to spend his honeymoon, but his boss and sometime partner Lucky Luciano needed him at the meeting, so ever the loyal corporate man, he was there. Since

Meyer and several other members of the party were Jewish, Nucky Johnson, the crime boss of Atlantic City, had reserved rooms for the group in Anglo sounding names, at the exclusive Breakers Hotel, which restricted Jews. That part of the plan worked well, but when a cigar-chopping Al Capone, clad in a purple jacket and white pants and surrounded by a small army of thugs, trumped into the lobby, they were promptly barred from the place. The convoy of limousines drove away from the front of the Breakers to the less constricted, President Hotel. Nucky Johnson, wearing his ever-present red carnation in his lapel, joined the cavalcade. Capone, who virtually ran Chicago and couldn't understand being barred from anything or anyplace, spotted Johnson and brought the parade to a halt in the middle of the street. Luciano said, "Nucky and Al had it out right there in the open. Johnson was about a foot taller then Capone and both of them had voices like foghorns. I think you could have heard them in Philadelphia, and there wasn't a decent word passed between them. "Johnson had a rep for four letter words that wasn't even invented and Capone is screamin' at me that I made bad arrangements. So Nucky picks up Al under one arm and throws him into his car and yells out, 'All you fuckers follow me.' "They all wound up at the Ritz Hotel, right behind Johnson's own mansion. Capone stormed into the lobby and started ripping pictures off the wall and throwing the mat at Johnson. And that is how our convention got started." For the first few days of the meeting, there were a round of parties, good food, the best hookers and liquor available. Each morning the delegates would breakfast in their suites, and then drive along the Boardwalk in canopied promenade roller chairs for two pushed by a strapping Black attendant, which prompted Luciano to say, "How the hell could we talk about anything with those niggers breathing down our necks?" At the end of the Boardwalk, near the suburb of Chelsa, they stepped out of their chairs, rolled up their pants to their knees and waded into the ocean to discuss business. It was here, according to Luciano, that all of the big decisions were made. Formal meetings were held in a large conference room, a crystal chandelier dangling above the rich mahogany table, all of it gleaming from the recent polishing. Sitting around the table was Owney Madden, Frank Costello, Buchalter, Joe Adonis, Frank Erickson and Dutch Schultz. The boys would later meet and agree to the hit on Schultz. From Brooklyn there was Albert Anastasia, Vincent Mangano and Frank Scalise. With Capone was his business manager, Jake Guzak, bodyguard Frankie Rio, underboss Frank Nitti, and a young thug bodyguard named Tony Accardo. During a break in the meeting, Meyer Lansky watched as Accardo returned from the Boardwalk and showed off a tattoo of an eagle that expanded its wings when he closed his fist. He proudly showed it to Capone who remarked, "Kid, you're gonna regret get'n that thing for the rest of your life."

- <http://vault.fbi.gov/meyster-lansky/meyster-lansky-part-16-of-26>

Capone also brought along a heavy set, very tall and distinguished-looking man named Moses Annenberg. Annenberg wasn't a thug, not exactly. He began his career as a lowly circulation booster for the Chicago Tribune and eventually became the paper circulation manager. In 1904, he left the Tribune for William Randolph Hearst's operation, The Examiner, where he headed a small army of goons that included Dion O'Bannion, Bugs Moran, Frankie McErlane, Hymie Weiss, James Ragen, Walter Stevens, Tommy Maloy and Mossy Enright. Their job was to beat up anyone who sold the opposing side's newspapers and the group committed several murders during the bloody circulation wars of 1910-1911. In 1922, Annenberg borrowed money from mob boss Johnny Torrio to buy the Daily Racing Form, and with profits from that, he purchased other publications, including his own newspaper, the Philadelphia Inquirer. But, Annenberg's main income was from the Nationwide News Service, which provided the results of racetracks across the country, the perfect mechanism for organized crime to control the results of every racetrack in America. Capone took the floor at the meeting and introduced Annenberg, and pointed out that millions could be made by subscribing to his news service, Nationwide, and turn it into a horse racing announcement service, thereby allowing the mob to control every gambling outlet in America. The bosses listened, they liked what they heard and within a year, Nationwide became the biggest gambler's outlet in the history of the world. Capone, only 29 at the time, had another suggestion too. He wanted the various mobs to pool some of their money and jointly support a national discipline squad, a hit squad, who would enforce the syndicate's will. At the time, the bosses shrugged it off, but ten years later, the New York families did get together and financed just the type of thing Capone had been talking about, Murder Incorporated. Meyer Lansky, the smartest man in the room, liked Capone, for if nothing else, Capone could be likable, charming even. But Meyer's boss Luciano, had a low opinion of Capone. Lucky, always on the lookout for the angle in every sentence, figured Capone was a braggart and a loud mouth who spent too much time trying to position himself within the national syndicate. On the other hand, Capone thought Luciano was an insane killer who was too eager to send a man to his grave during one of his all too frequent temper tantrums. Lansky's sharp eyes roamed the rest of the massive and regal room, straining to match the names with the faces he was now forgetting. There, sitting just right of Capone and the Chicago boys, was Charlie

"King" Solomon, from Boston. Then came Max Hoff, Waxey Gordon, the narcotics king who would one day become his own best customer. Next to Gordon sat Harry Stromberg, "Nig Rosen," Sam Lazar, Charlie Schwartz from Philadelphia. At the end of the table, seemingly out of place was young Moe Dalitz. It was his first time out of Cleveland, and the first time he had ever seen the ocean. Next to Dalitz sat Lou Rothkopf and Leo Berkowitz and Abe Bernstein, the leader of the Purple gang out of Detroit. To his right, sat Johnny Lazia, who had come as a representative of Tom Pendergast and his political-criminal organization. The national syndicate would later use the Pendergast contact to work its way into Harry Truman's White House. Lansky's eyes caught a familiar face, Longy Zwillman out of New Jersey. Zwillman was an interesting man. He moved into New Jersey and opened the syndicate's gambling and vice rackets and it was Zwillman who directed the hit on Dutch Schultz on October 23, 1935, after the Dutchman demanded that the syndicate kill New York's District Attorney, Tom Dewey. After the Dutchman was killed, Zwillman reigned supreme over the Jersey rackets. He was one of the first hoods to discover Hollywood, and he was said to have financed Jean Harlow's initial trip to Hollywood. Harlow fell deeply in love with the rugged and personable Zwillman, and he with her. He probably would have married her had she not succumbed to such an untimely death. Over the next two decades that followed the Atlantic City Conference, Zwillman pounded every cent out of the rackets that he could find, hoping to retire early to the life of country gentleman. When he earned his fortune, Longy had decided not to live in two worlds. He quit the mob and lived off the millions he had plowed into legitimate enterprises, married a socialite and moved into a thirty room, $200,000 house in West Orange, New Jersey. It was a completely different life. His wife was a member of the Junior League, the daughter of wealth and with her help, Zwillman spread word around the country club that he had earned his fortune as a self-made man who struck it rich in steel investments, and in fact, his name was on a list of stockholders of the Pittsburgh steel plant. He even donated 250,000 to a slum clearance project. However, his Mister Clean image fell apart after he appeared before the McClellan committee, which pasted his name on the headlines for weeks. The Outfit bosses figured that Zwillman would get hit with an IRS audit. In fact, most newspapers later wrote that it was the pending IRS audit, and the exposure of his alternate life as a hood that led Zwillman to suicide on February 27, 1959. Supposedly, he hung himself with a plastic cord in the basement of his mansion, just before dawn. The FBI didn't buy the suicide story, largely because they had information that Meyer Lansky had advocated killing Zwillman, he said, to ensure his silence. Sitting next to Zwillman at the conference was the always smiling Willie Moretti, then Danny Walsh and Frank Zagarino were there, along with Johnny Torrio. [GANGSTER Torrio was Backed by the Rothschilds Founder of the Fed Bank] Lansky remembered the old days, back before prohibition, when Luciano was a gofer in Torrio's outfit before Johnny moved out to Chicago to work under his uncle, Big Jim Colosimo. That was in 1907. Twelve years later, Al Capone went west to the Windy City too, but he went to blow Colosimo's brains out of the back of his head with a .32. "I hate this hellish business of ours," Lansky was fond of saying. Now, in 1928, Torrio was living in New York and working with Frank Costello. Capone had muscled him out. It was Torrio who had had planned the meeting, so he was the first one to take the floor. "The reason we called this meeting," Torrio said, "is that we have to get organized. Everybody's working on his own, we got independent guys muscling in, and that's got to stop. What we need is a combination around the country, where everybody in charge of his city is the boss, but we all work with each other." Then he introduced Frank Costello, the Boss in Manhattan under Luciano. Frank stood and made a short speech which was pointed at Capone. "The reason we got to get organized is that we put ourselves on a business basis. We got to stop this sort of thing that's going on in Chicago right now. You guys are shooting at each other in the streets and innocent people are getting killed and they're going to start to squawk. And if they start squawking loud enough, the feds get off their tails and start cracking down, and you know what that means. We got a thing where millions of dollars can be made just getting people what they want. "When I was on trial three years ago on that whisky deal, all the people were behind me and I was able to stay in business. But if you make people afraid of you, they're going to turn the other way and start yelling at the government to clean us up. That means the internal revenue boys, the FBI, the Narco's and every DA in the country and that ain't worth it. "From now on, nobody gets killed without the commission saying so. Johnny and I have a little piece of paper we want to show you. We're going to have a national commission with every family represented, twenty-four by our count. No boss will be attacked unless the commission says he has to go... And no button man gets hit without a hearing from his own boss." It made sense. Costello always made sense. There were nods of approval. Then, Capone took the floor and called for dividing up of the gambling, labor rackets, extortion and drugs businesses between the various gangs and asked the bosses to consider forming a nationally controlled hit squad. He also wanted to form an alliance that would swap prostitutes across state lines and called for more open communications between the New York and Chicago mobs. He also declared that in the future any major dispute would be settled by a conference of the national syndicate leaders, and called for an expansion of the narcotics business, which he suggested would be run out of Cuba, where labor was cheap and the laws were lax. The bosses agreed to all of Capone's plans. Moe Dalitz took the floor and told the bosses that there should be an end to the cutthroat underbidding on liquor from Canada and Europe. If that happened, he said, prices would drop and they would all make more money. Again, the bosses agreed. He was a smart kid, this Dalitz kid. They talked about what to do when prohibition ended, about which legitimate business they would take over, and most decided that they would stick with the business they already knew, booze. They would open distilleries and breweries. But Lansky saw the future in gambling. He talked about a worldwide venture that would operate casinos in areas that would permit them, like Las Vegas, Cuba, Central America and the Bahamas. Maybe Asia. The Bosses smiled politely. He was a smart kid, this Lansky, but, they thought to themselves, he was a dreamer.

37.3.4.1 Bush Family and the Saving and Loan Scandals

- http://rationalrevolution.net/war/bush_family_and_the_s.htm
- <http://critcrim.org/critpapers/potter.htm>

There are several ways in which the Bush family plays into the Savings and Loan scandal, which involves not only many members of the Bush family but also many other politicians that are still in office and still part of the Bush Jr. administration today. Jeb Bush, George Bush Sr., and his son Neil Bush have all been implicated in the Savings and Loan Scandal, which cost American tax payers over $1.4 TRILLION dollars (note that this is about one quarter of our national debt). Between 1981 and 1989, when George Bush finally announced that there was a Savings and Loan Crisis to the world, the Reagan/Bush administration worked to cover up Savings and Loan problems by reducing the number and depth of examinations required of S&Ls as well as attacking political opponents who were sounding early alarms about the S&L industry. Industry insiders were aware of significant S&L problems as early 1986 that they felt would require a bailout. This information was kept from the media until after Bush had won the 1988 elections. Jeb Bush defaulted on a $4.56 million loan from Broward Federal Savings in Sunrise, Florida. After federal regulators closed the S&L, the office building that Jeb used the $4.56 million to finance was reappraised by the regulators at $500,000, which Bush and his partners paid. The taxpayers had to pay back the remaining 4 million plus dollars.

Mogilevich wanted by the FBI for Fraud by Wire; RICO Conspiracy; Mail Fraud; Money Laundering Conspiracy; Money Laundering; Aiding and Abetting; Securities Fraud; Filing False Registration With the SEC; False Filings With the SEC; Falsification of Books and Records Semion Mogilevich is an FBI Ten Most Wanted for his alleged participation in a multi-million dollar scheme to defraud thousands of investors in the stock of a public company incorporated in Canada, but headquartered in Newtown, Bucks County, Pennsylvania between 1993 and 1998. The scheme to defraud collapsed in 1998, after thousands of investors lost in excess of 150 million, and Mogilevich thought to have allegedly funded and authorized the scheme, was indicted in April 2003. Mogilevich may wear facial hair to include a moustache. He is known to be a heavy smoker. Mogilevich has his primary residence in Moscow, Russia. He is known to utilize a Russian passport, but may also possess Israeli, Ukrainian and Greek passports.

Semion Mogilevich: Born in 1946 in Kiev Ukraine. In the early 1970s he became part of the Lyubertskaia crime group in Moscow. Just prior to this, Mogilevich had built a lucrative prostitution ring in Israel and in Eastern Europe. Semion Mogilevich's Moscow criminal organization began in trading art and antiques stolen from churches and museums in Eastern Europe. Mogilevich's criminal organization soon became one of the largest and most feared in the world, employing a private army of brutal killers. Mogilevich began trading in military equipment manufactured in Hungary. Soon Mogilevich began trading in uranium and nuclear arsenals. NATO has said that he is a threat to the stability of Europe. Mogilevich also masterminded the largest money laundering scheme in US history, washing 7 billion dollars through the Bank of New York, one of the owners of the Federal Reserve System. Mogilevich's money laundering scheme prompted an investigation by US Congress that led to a dead end. Why a dead end? Jewish $$$ perhaps?

CONGRESS INVESTIGATES THE RUSSIAN JEWISH MAFIA ON SEPTEMBER 21 1999, Congressman James A. Leach, Chairman, Committee on Banking and Financial Services, led a full scale investigation of Russian Jewish Mafia money laundering that led to a dead end: .. "Hearing on Russian Money Laundering The Committee meets for its hearing on the depth of crime and corruption in Russia; Russian use of off-shore financial institutions; and the intertwining of those financial institutions with US banks. We invited several witnesses but they have declined to appear before the Committee, including: Natasha Kagalovsky, (Jew), former head of the Eastern European Division, Bank of New York; Bruce Rappaport, (Jew), Chairman and CEO of Bank of New York Inter-Maritime; Mikhail Khodorkovsky, (Jew), Russian oil industry executive. We will begin with an examination of recent allegations that corrupt Russian groups and individuals have infiltrated Western financial institutions. The banks must co-operate with our efforts and be our first line of defense against criminal enterprises seeking to launder their illicit proceeds by entering them into the legitimate financial system. The US must ensure that our financial institutions do not contribute to or facilitate corruption abroad.” —For The Full Text See: Click Here

THE RUSSIAN JEWISH MAFIA WORKS IN THE JEWISH COMMUNITY The Russian Jewish Mafia operates within the Jewish community. Gentiles must understand that Jews have a common interest between themselves for their self-survival. And it is upon $$$ that the Jews depend. Thus the Russian Jewish Mafia operates with the support of hundreds of Jewish Lobby Groups that receive millions of $$$ from the Russian Jewish Mafia. And what can American Christians do about the Russian Jewish Mafia and their Bankers? It begins with the knowledge that not only are the Jews pulling their propagandizing-fleece over American eyes, but fleecing American pocket-books as well!

- <http://www.phumph.com/crime.html>
- <http://www.realjewnews.com/?p=111>

Who controls crime? Certainly not the police. Crime is nothing new but what is new is the concentration of criminal activity worldwide in the hands of one particular group. All Jewish fortunes have been based on crime of one sort or another dating back to before the Rothschilds right up to the present day. The Jewish businessman, Joseph Seligman, created the infamous "Black Friday" stock market crash in the late 1800s. In 1885 the French-based project to build the Panama Canal collapsed, once again Seligman was involved with a Paris-based Jewish financier Jacques de Reinach. Leon Weiss was implicated in Huey Long's corrupt political machine in early 20th century. In 1908 according to the Jerusalem Post "Jews were 25 percent of the four million residents in New York City but 50% of the prison population." A number of modern "respectable" Jewish fortunes were founded on links to the underworld in the Prohibition era. The Seagram's alcohol fortune (Bronfman family) had a distribution deal for his liquor with mobster Meyer Lansky. The Chicago-based Pritzker family also had links with organized crime. In 1999 the Daily Mail highlighted the Kray twins, Ronnie and Reggie, who lorded it over London's underworld through their networks of thugs and thieves, until their imprisonment in the 1960s. Israeli Nachum Ben David lists 91 cases of assassinations committed by Jews in Palestine/Israel from 1882 to 1988. Aside from Jewish gangster murders there are the assassinations carried out by Jews under the auspices of Russian communism. It was the Jews not the Italians who created what was later called the Mafia. In the 1920s the Italians began to replace the Jews in the New York organized crime industry but as late as 1940 the Lepke Buchalter, also known as Murder Incorporated, still held a prominent position. The Jews were the first ones to realise the link between organized crime and organized politics. They led the way in corrupting the police and city councils. They realized the value of gang syndicate cartels and were monopolists of the highest order. In London the Jews have always been involved in assorted criminal activities. They committed petty thievery, forgery and illegal distilling of liquor. Some went to Eastern Europe and convinced young girls that jobs and bachelors awaited them in England, only to ship them off to Indian or Argentina white slave markets. The Jackson Vanick Law, a bill pushed heavily by the American Jewish lobby which allowed "Russian" immigrants ease of entry into the United States, presented a chance for the KGB to dump its hard core criminals into the United States. One of these, Marat Balagula, acted as a mob functionary for the KGB who set him up as head of the largest food co-op in the Ukraine. He became a major Jewish crime figure and acting in collusion with the Zionist agencies and the women's group, Hadassah, purchased a restaurant in Brooklyn, which became of real power in the area. This criminal operation was multi-national in scope. They had a fleet of massive oil tankers. All owned by Jews loyal to the Mob. Balagula created a massive Mafia empire leading from North Africa to Saudi Arabia to Venezuela to Brooklyn. They developed an infra structure within the oil trade that made them invincible. Yuri Brokhin was another Jewish mobster from the USSR. Both he and Balagula were able to transfer their wealth to America via Zionist and "charitable" Jewish organizations. A major connection between American politics and the Jewish mafia is the rabbi Ronald Greenwald who was a major player in the Richard Nixon campaign of 1972, and was given the post as adviser to Nixon on the "Jewish poverty" program. Undoubtedly Nixon owed Greenwald. Greenwald was also instrumental in protecting Marc Rich, a billionaire Jewish investor with mob ties who was a major player in the Clinton administration. While Jewish mafia investors all but took over Las Vegas.

- George W. Bush's professed mentor, Natan Charansky, has long and deep ties to organized crime. The Congress, State Department and the CIA all have lengthy dossiers on Charansky who acted as a bridge between the Republican Party and Jewish thugs. Charansky, knowing his power, simply refused to sever ties with organized crime, infusing the Jewish Mafia into the highest echelons of the Bush administration. Jewish Mafia influence plays a vital part in the price of oil whereby the Mafia act as go-between Mossad and the Arab oil-producing kingdom. On April 28th 2002 a military helicopter went down in the southern part of the Krasnoyarsk region of Siberia. On board was a major Russian dignitary General Alexander Lebed, governor of the region. Lebed was pronounced dead at the scene. Almost immediately the international (Jewish) press blamed "heavy fog". However every member of the Russian military knew that the death of Lebed was no accident but another hit by the international Jewish mafia, an organization that has taken control over much of Russia's economy. The fact that the Jewish Mafia, often misnamed the "Russian" Mafia, was capable of completely covering its tracks while everyone (in Russia) was convinced of their complicity, is proof of its power.
- This Mafia is without exception Jewish. The unique situation in the former USSR and the fact that Jews predominated in the Soviet bureaucracy provides the clue to the rise of the Jewish Mafia. The king-pin in this morass is a Ukrainian Jew, born in 1946, named Semion Mogilevich who traffics in nuclear materials, drugs, precious gems and stolen art and controls everything that goes on in Moscow's International airport. He bought a bankrupt airline in a former Asian Sovietic Republic for millions of dollars in cash so that he could haul heroin out of the "golden triangle". His first operations were based in Israel where he fleeced Jewish refugees from Russia. He then acquired Hungarian citizenship. He controls the brothels in Israel, where Ukrainian and Russian girls are forced into slavery. This is legal in Israel if the girls are non-Jews. Mogilevich controls the vodka trade in Russia and Central Europe, but despite all this his name is little known and never appears on any report in the Press or television in Israel, the Ukraine or the United States. Proof of the power of the Zionist controlled media and their relentless drive to suppress all investigation into Jewish crime. He has created a massive global communications network and employs hundreds to run his financial empire. He has penetrated every stock exchange and controls much of the trading therein. He was also the mastermind of the largest money laundering scheme in US history, washing 7 billion dollars through the Bank of New York, which is a major branch of the Federal Reserve and his bank of choice. He controls the military equipment being manufactured in Hungary. He has his own army, mechanised infantry, etc. NATO has said that he is a threat to the stability of Europe although his name still remains little known. He has agents in the intelligence agencies of all European countries, which means he may never be prosecuted. German television reported that the German Intelligence Service, the BND, had entered into secret negotiations with Mogilevich, whereby the latter would supply information on his rivals in Russia. He has a similar arrangement with French Intelligence. He has close connections with Mossad which destroyed his criminal file, which means he is immune from prosecution and travels freely. He controls the black market from Central Europe to Russia. He has a Rockefeller connection. His main economic adviser, Igor Fisherman, was a consultant to Chase Manhattan. The state of Israel is a major factor in the rise in power of the Jewish Mafia, Jewish drug dealers, child porn pushers and slave traders. The CIA has commented that there is no major "Russian" Mob figure that does not carry an Israeli passport but the Israeli state refuses to take any action against the gangsters. The power of the Jewish gangs is wielded more ruthlessly than any other criminal gang. All of whom are free from prosecution in Israel. Israel does not consider these to be crimes so long as the victims are non-Jews and the Israeli state will not extradite its citizens to non-Jewish countries.

38.2.1 Meyer Lansky Daughter's Legacy

The daughter sits on the front porch of a little bungalow in Seminole Heights, her new home since her husband died a few months ago down south. She misses him, but she's making do. At 76, she has her health, and friends. And her son, Gary. And she has the memories. Like the time Frank Sinatra came over to say hello to her father and spilled a champagne bucket of ice in her lap and looked as though he had made a fatal mistake. Or the time her father took her to the Majestic Theatre to see Carousel, the hottest ticket on Broadway, and he bought all the seats in front of them so their view was unimpeded. Or the time she went ice skating on the terrace of her family's 19th-floor apartment at the Beresford at 211 Central Park West. Or the time, later, when she made love to Dean Martin six times in one night. Central to them all — her charmed childhood, the company she kept, her astonishing life — was her father, Meyer Lansky. If that doesn't ring a bell, pull up a seat on the porch and let Sandra Lansky ring it for you. She always assumed her father was a jukebox salesman because he had shown her a showroom full of Wurlitzers at his office at Emby Distributing Company near Times Square. And his group of friends, the men with whom he broke bread most often at Dinty Moore's on West 46th Street, were all her uncles.

Family. There was Uncle Frank Costello, and Uncle Abe Zwillman, the kings of New York and New Jersey. There was Uncle Joe Adonis, and Uncle Willie Moretti. There were her father's closest associates, men with whom he'd bonded as a boy: Uncle Benny and Uncle Charlie. The FBI knew these men as "Bugsy" Siegel and "Lucky" Luciano. And they said her uncles formed the mafia, what the papers called the National Crime Syndicate, and later Murder Incorporated. In the seat of honor at Dinty Moore's was Meyer Lansky, a stoic, well-dressed Jew, husband and father of two boys and a little girl upon whom he doted. When it was time to talk business, Sandra could see it in her father's face. She'd take her cue and go pal around with the hat-check girl, who gave her candies and let her sort mink stoles and topcoats. Lansky was the architect of the mob, the brains, the little man in the middle, at home with both the Jews and Italians. He'd had a tough upbringing on Manhattan's Lower East Side. He teamed up with Siegel in his teens, forming the Bugs and Meyer Mob. The mob ran bootlegging operations and gambling rings and the cops would eventually start investigating them for racketeering, theft, extortion, even murder. The Bugs and Meyer Mob, the Feds believed, helped "Lucky" Luciano take control of New York by offing mob kings Joe Masseria, who was found with an ace of spades in his lifeless hand, and Salvatore Maranzano, the "boss of the bosses." For all the tales of bloodshed and bootlegging in the press linked to her father and uncles, Sandra Lansky has a hundred more about how much they loved her. They hugged her. Kissed her. Cut her steak. "They spoiled me rotten," she said. For the mascot of the mob, ignorance was bliss. The men she knew were not in the business of murder. They were in business. Casinos and night clubs. Tailored suits and penthouse suites. Vacations in Miami Beach and Vegas. The rubouts and warfare of their youths seemed to be in the past, Sandra said. They found opportunity in America, and as a way of saying thanks, Sandra said, they helped their new country win World War II. She remembers the day Lansky took her to view the French luxury liner Normandie, which had been sabotaged and was burning on the West Side docks. Then the two went to Dinty Moore's, where Lansky met with Uncle Joe — Joseph Lanza, head of the seafood workers' union and one of the most powerful men on the waterfront — to cook up a patriotic plan to secure the docks and root out traitors who might destroy other ships. All in return for freeing Luciano, who had been sent to prison on prostitution charges. Sandra's first hint that her father was a made man came when she was 13. She stopped at the news stand and saw her father's picture on a magazine. She secreted it home and read that her father and uncles were the most powerful criminals in the world. There was no mention of the money the mob raised for orphans or the work they did during WW II. These guys were evil, nothing more. "But they did a lot of good," said the daughter. "These guys came to this country with nothing — little education and no opportunity," said her son, Gary Rapoport, sitting nearby. "The boatloads that had come prior to them would beat them up on a daily basis and belittle them. So they just tried to stick together and make money any way they could." "At the end of the war, he was given a copy of the signing of the surrender, from the Navy department," Sandra Lansky said. "He was very proud of that." But the momentum had shifted. Sandra watched the Kefauver hearings in 1951 on television, saw her uncles nervously testifying before the Tennessee senator and crusader against organized crime. She worried that the Feds would be coming for her father. "Don't believe any of this stuff," she recalls her mother saying. "It's all lies." Meyer Lansky, the man in the middle, was never called to testify. His daughter says she knows why. Lansky met privately with Kefauver. He knew something few others did. Connections in Hot Springs, Ark., gave Lansky log books from the race track that showed Kefauver had a gambling problem and had run up debt, she said. "He went in there and pulled out of his pocket an IOU," Sandra said. "Kefauver was a big gambler. And that was that." Even so, Meyer Lansky had become a household name. But the man who didn't like being recognized still did business at Dinty Moore's. Sandra recalls one of those meetings in 1951. Her father was talking business with Uncle Willie Moretti when Moretti made an offensive comment. "Willie, you talk too much," Meyer Lansky said. Then he called for the check. The next day at school, Sandra recalls, she saw one of the janitors reading the newspaper. There was Uncle Willie in a pool of blood on the floor at Joe's Elbow Room in New Jersey. "Mob Boss Exterminated in N.J." the headline read. Moretti was the second uncle she had lost to bullets. A few years before, someone had gunned down her Uncle Benny "Bugsy" Siegel in Beverly Hills. He was accused of squandering mob money building The Flamingo in Vegas. Sandra

Lansky bottled her curiosity. Meyer Lansky had his daughter trained. Never complain, never explain. And never ask to be explained to. One of the few times she recalls her father explaining his business was in 1953, before he went to jail on gambling charges in upstate New York. He had opted to do a few months time to avoid trial. "He said to me that he had two choices," Sandra said. "He could walk down one road or the other road. But my brother" — Buddy — "was handicapped and he had no choice which road to take." Lansky moved to Florida upon his release. Life didn't get easier for the daughter of the mob. The government had cranked up its investigations as the mob's casino ambitions grew. The FBI was watching his gambling operations in Vegas and South Florida and Havana, Cuba, where Cuban President Gen. Fulgencio Batista, had rolled out the welcome mat. Lansky invested big in Cuba. That cost him two years later, when the Cuban revolution brought Fidel Castro to power. Revolutionaries smashed slot machines and shuttered casinos. Meanwhile, Sandra's uncles were falling. Someone rubbed out Albert Anastasia in the barbershop of the Park Sheraton Hotel. Then her Uncle Abe Zwillman was said to have hanged himself in his basement in West Orange. Soon Sandra, who had given birth to a son, Gary, got caught up in the mess. She befriended a man who turned out to be an FBI spy. She fearfully told her father, who brainstormed a way to use the daughter's new relationship to keep the FBI off his trail. Sandra began feeding the man bad information. She'd been betrayed, but she was a Lansky, and Lansky blood was thick. "I got my vendetta," she said. In 1964, Sandra married Vince Lombardo, a mobster, who promised her father he'd get out and stay out as long as he was with Sandra. The FBI tightened its noose on Meyer Lansky. Agents tracked his every move and overheard him boast that organized crime was "bigger than U.S. Steel." That line that would be repeated by Hyman Roth, a character based on Lansky in The Godfather. Lansky sought asylum in Israel, but was forced back to Miami. When the plane touched down in November 1972, he was arrested on charges of tax evasion, conspiracy and skimming casino profits. But nothing stuck. Lansky was celebrated in Miami, his daughter said, even if the papers called him Public Enemy No. 1. She remembers getting letters addressed to the "Mayor of Miami Beach." Meyer Lansky died on Jan. 15, 1983, after fighting lung cancer. Forbes had estimated his wealth at $300 million, but there was very little money in the will. His family still wonders where it went. Lansky was buried in Mt. Nebo Cemetery in Miami. His daughter visited often, until she relocated to Tampa. Her only connection to Tampa, she said, was "Santo," meaning Santo Trafficante Jr., one of the last of the old-time bosses. She said her father never betrayed remorse. "Why should he have remorse for anything?" After years refusing to talk about her upbringing, the writers Nick Pileggi and Norah Ephron convinced her to tell her story and matched her up with a writer. Daughter of the King: Growing up in Gangland, was published earlier this year. She doesn't love the book. She wanted it to go deeper into the good side of the mob, to tell an American story that brought balance to the Lansky legacy. There's more to the story. She still mourns her father. "I adore my dad," she said. "I wish he was here right now." "It's hard for her to get past his death," Gary said. "But our life moves on." "You still have the loyalty," Sandra said.

38.3 Legacy of Former Bucks GOP Leader Herbert Barness

- <http://www.bucksgop.org/>

Herb Barness '48 is a major player in the Republican party at the state and national level.

Herb Barness dismisses GOP presidential hopeful Patrick Buchanan as "too far to the right," says of political gadfly Ross Perot, "I would like for him to disappear," and gives Newt Gingrich a seven on a scale of 10. The average American voter may not have heard of Barness or care what he thinks, but his opinion is of utmost importance to politicians and potential candidates. Barness '48, a member of Bucknell's Board of Trustees since 1979, has never run for office, but the prominent Bucks County, Pa., developer is a major player on the political scene. Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., has known Barness since 1965. "He is an outstanding guy, very public spirited, very charitable, very active politically, a good friend of mine, well-respected around the country," Specter says. Barness has been Pennsylvania's Republican National Committeeman since 1989, has been a delegate to seven GOP conventions, was on the site selection committee for the 1996 convention in San Diego and will serve on the convention's committee on arrangements.

He was co-chairman of the Pennsylvania finance committee in Ronald Reagan's presidential campaigns, state vice-chairman of the Bush-Quayle campaign, co-chairman of Pennsylvania Governor Tom Ridge's campaign and chairman of Specter's senatorial campaigns. He served on the President's Commission on Housing under Reagan. Political mementos are surprisingly missing from Barness' office in Warrington, Pa. But after a visitor asked about pictures, Barness opened the door to his conference room where the walls are filled with photos of political figures of the past 40 years. There are five presidents, including Democrat Jimmy Carter, and an assortment of governors, senators and congressmen. Even former Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev smiles down from the gallery. Most photos are signed. "With appreciation and warm regards," wrote former President Ronald Reagan. "To Herb with best wishes," said Senate majority leader Bob Dole, R-Kan. "To my dear friend with affection and appreciation," said Tom Ridge. "Herb, You are a tremendous asset to the Republican party and to our country. Thanks for all you do," wrote Senator Rick Santorum, R-Pa. A rag doll of Bill Clinton serves as an office door draft dodger. The doll's not autographed.

38.3.1 The History of his Passion

Herb Barness has been interested in politics since 1940 when he was a mechanical engineering student at Bucknell and worked for the Republican presidential candidate Wendell Willkie in the Hoosier's race against President Franklin D. Roosevelt. "Roosevelt was running for a third term, and I didn't think anybody should have three terms," Barness says. Barness' first venture into the political arena wasn't successful. FDR went on to win his third term, and Barness went off to war, serving as an Air Force officer in the Pacific Theatre. Back home following World War II, Barness graduated from Bucknell, married Irma Shorin '48 and entered the family development business, the Barness Organization. The firm was started more than 70 years ago by his father and mother, immigrants from Poland and Russia. His parents bought a tract of land after settling outside Philadelphia and while still farming, began selling real estate to other immigrants. Today, with Barness as chairman of the board, the international firm builds shopping centers, industrial parks, homes, office complexes and is one of the nation's largest developers of senior citizens' housing. Over the years, according to press accounts, the low-key and gracious businessman has personally contributed thousands of dollars to political campaigns - national, state and local - and is credited with raising millions more.

38.3.2 His Read on the '96 Campaign

In the early stages of the current presidential campaign, Barness backed the moderate Specter as a favorite son from Pennsylvania in the senator's short-lived bid for the GOP nomination. Before deciding to suspend his presidential campaign, Specter said, "I talked to Herb about it in detail, kept him fully apprised. I always talk to him regularly." With Specter out of the race, Barness threw his support to Dole. Dole's current courtship of the conservative wing of the party pleases Barness. "Dole is a centrist. I think he is doing what former President Nixon told him to do. To get the nomination you go to the right, and then to win the election go to the middle. I think Dole has always been in the middle." Dole will win the Republican nomination, Barness predicts, "unless there is some tremendous change." Although the 72-year-old Barness is confident that the 72-year-old Dole can beat President Clinton in the general election, he acknowledges Dole's age is a factor. "I don't know how big a problem it is, but there is definitely a perception that he's too old. I hear my friends who are of that age saying the same thing." He attributes the attitude to the fact that when his contemporaries were growing up, "society thought that 60 was real old, 65 was older and, boy, when you get into the 70s, you should be put out to pasture someplace. I think that is changing because longevity has increased tremendously." Barness himself certainly has no intention of retiring.

Barness admits mixed feelings about former General Colin Powell's withdrawal from the presidential race. Although Barness backs Dole, "Powell would have made it interesting had he stayed in." Even though Powell ruled out a vice presidential bid, Barness notes, "A lot of people say no in politics, but no doesn't always mean no." There's the possibility that Powell could be secretary of state under a Dole administration, or he could change his mind and run in four years, Barness says. "A black man on the Republican ticket could change the dynamics of politics in the United States for generations." The Republican Party has "been trying desperately" to woo blacks and other minorities into the party, Barness says, "but it's a perception that the Democrats care more for the minorities. We have to change that perception. We're building in this country a middle class minority. As it is being built, more and more are becoming Republicans, or not just automatically voting Democratic. Instead of pulling one lever, they are voting for a candidate. That in itself will change politics. Democrats have taken for granted the black population for years, because they had them." Barness sees more and more members of minorities coming into his office, asking him how they can get involved. An Asian-American businesswoman stops by because she thinks it is important for Asian Americans to be active in politics. A black doctor is a regular visitor and a big GOP supporter. Initially he told Barness, "I always thought the Republicans didn't want minorities, didn't want African Americans." Barness asked him where he got that idea, and the doctor replied, "From the Democrats." Although Powell may not seek the second spot on the GOP ticket, Barness sees many other good candidates. A candidate from the West or East is likely since Dole is from Kansas. Barness seems partial to New Jersey Governor Christine Todd Whitman. "She'd be a great candidate."

38.3.3 The Hidden Costs of Running

Politics have changed dramatically since Barness first worked for Willkie. "There's nothing sacred anymore," he says. "The media dissect anyone who is running for public office. You just have to lay yourself out there naked and say this is my life and this has been my life. There's nothing any more that is not unsaid, and that discourages people." In addition, there's the tremendous cost of running for office. "Unfortunately money has become too important," Barness says. "It always was important, but there were limitations. But now with television ... raising money has really become a burden, it's become almost obscene." The six-second sound bite on news programs dictates that a candidate cannot rely on news coverage alone to get his message out, Barness says. He estimates that about 60 percent of a campaign budget goes for television advertising. Every candidate running for president of the United States knows he has to raise at least $25 million, Barness notes. Years ago, if someone gave $100 to a campaign, "it was a lot of money. Today, $1,000 is a not a lot of money. I've said for years now the only growth industry in the United States is financing politicians." Communications itself has changed politics and government. "We sat and watched the Gulf War, saw missiles being shot, people being killed. Thirty years ago, it would take days to learn about, to read it in the newspaper. We didn't watch news 24 hours a day."

38.3.4 Herb Barness Dedicated to the People eg US Senator Arlene Specter

Even with the problems of 1990s politics, there is no dearth of candidates. "I think we have some outstanding individuals in government, Democrats and Republicans, dedicated and devoted people, who are not in it for personal gain, but because they really believe in doing something for the people." Barness cited Ridge as an example. "There's nothing personal he wants. He could go back practicing law and probably make a multiple times of money. The same applies to Pennsylvania's two senators (Specter and Santorum)." Barness also praised Edward Rendell, Democratic mayor of Philadelphia. "He was a very successful lawyer, could have made tons of money if money was his goal, but he loves the political scene, loves the activity, the excitement, the challenges. He's doing a great job." Private citizens have to support the good people, Barness says, "or we are not going to have qualified, honest individuals who are going to be interested in government." That's what motivates Barness. He's never been interested in seeking public office himself. "I felt I could do more helping elect people, becoming involved in a broader scale than being a county commissioner or state representative." His biggest reward in politics is "trying to get good people, qualified people, in office. That's always the aim." Senator Specter notes,

"Herb Barness is interested in politics for the public good, for no personal gain at all. It is very important to have people participate in drafting the platform helping to establish policy and helping candidates." The election of Ridge in 1994 is a great source of satisfaction for Barness, who was an early supporter. "I thought he had all the qualifications, and he does. The biggest thing he's done is to create a more business-friendly state. He has really turned the state around. He's doing what he said he was going to do. He is a fine governor now, and I think he is going to be a great governor." Helping Reagan win the presidency was also gratifying. Although Barness considers Harry Truman the "best, most effective president we've had in the last 50 years," Reagan "was one of the tops."

38.3.5 Coming Changes

Barness welcomes the national debate on such issues as balancing the budget, Medicare, Medicaid, affirmative action and welfare reform. "For the first time the major issues facing our country are really being discussed head-on. If we are going to have a balanced budget in seven years, we will have to face some of the divisive issues we are discussing ... Someone has to bite the bullet and say we have to make some changes. It's going to hurt. It's very difficult to take something away from someone that has already been given, but it has to be done." He credits Gingrich for "leading the revolution. He's certainly changed the way government operates, moderately for the best, I guess. He doesn't come across too well, needs a little better PR. He's done many good things; some not so good." Even if the winner of the GOP presidential nomination has been decided by the time the convention convenes next summer, Barness anticipates some fireworks over the platform. The biggest fight will be over abortion, he laments. "Abortion is the one issue that shouldn't be in politics at all," Barness says. "That's not a political issue. That's a moral issue, that's a religious issue, a personal issue, but it's not a political issue."

Come June 1997, you can go on a two-day golf outing with Gov. Ridge. In November, you can attend his private reception before the Governor's Ball. And on occasion, you might dine with him at Le Bec-Fin. All it takes is $50,000. A pledge to contribute that sum to Ridge's campaign fund over four years buys admission to the Governor's Club board of directors - current membership 97 - and a half-dozen exclusive gatherings each year. Or, for $25,000, you can be a regular member of the club, as are 131 people, and still get some of the special invites. Created after Ridge became governor in 1995, the club guarantees the Republican incumbent a minimum $8.1 million toward his expected reelection bid next year. And he has yet to even declare his candidacy. Many club members' companies have business with the state, some have big business. In all, their state contracts are worth a half-billion dollars. Some are longtime state vendors; some got new work under Ridge. At least 120 of the 228 club members or their businesses receive something from the state: a contract, a grant, a loan, a lease, legal work, or a seat on a state board. And some are in the business of influencing government: Club members include 20 paid Harrisburg lobbyists. Some members don't get anything from the state and say their only interest is in good government. Ridge says that there are no paybacks for donors and that "government isn't for sale." At a time when the Clinton White House is under intense scrutiny for rewarding big Democratic donors with access to the President and his aides, a close look at the Governor's Club reveals how campaign money leads to access at the state level. Though hardly unique to the Ridge administration, the club also underscores a pattern: Many who give to the chief executive's campaign also receive something from the government he runs.

Consider the following:

- Thirty-seven Governor's Club members and directors are with companies that held state contracts worth about $530 million as of December, the midpoint of Ridge's term, records show. Roughly $375 million of the contracts began since January 1995, when Ridge took office.
- Thirty-three members are lawyers whose firms have done state work. In 1995 and 1996, their firms' contracts were worth about $18 million. And a dozen of those firms got about 70 percent of $5 million paid in bond-counsel fees under Ridge.
- A dozen members' companies also have done millions of dollars of work since 1995 for one of the state's biggest quasi-independent agencies, the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission. The governor nominates four of the five commissioners; the fifth is his transportation secretary.
- Nine members' companies lease space to the state. Their multiyear leases are worth more than $80 million.
- Seven members' companies got economic grants, loans or tax credits from the Ridge administration totaling $15 million.

- Ridge has named 40 club members to unpaid state boards that approve everything from tuition to licenses to loans. Businessman Tim Buchanan, a college dropout, said "it blew my mind" when he was made chairman of the museum commission. Robert Asher, the former Montgomery County GOP chairman jailed in 1989 after a bribery scandal, got a seat on a conservation panel.

Ridge acknowledges there may be a perception that campaign donors get rewarded, but says it is not the reality. "The perception is created, to a certain extent, by the notion that people will get the contracts whether they're qualified or not," Ridge said in a recent interview. ". . . We're looking for people who do a good job; it doesn't matter what they gave." He agreed that many of his campaign donors got seats on state boards, but said, "I'm sure you could find 250 or 350 who were not members of the Governor's Club as well." One thing every Governor's Club member gets is access to the governor. "Fund-raising is knocked by the media when we say it gives us access. But that's what it does," says John Milliron, a Harrisburg lobbyist and a Governor's Club director. "If I call Tom Ridge, I feel within a reasonable time he'll call back." Access ranges from dinners with as few as 30 to 40 people, as was the case at Le Bec-Fin and the Locust Club last year, to the June golf outing at Nemacolin in Western Pennsylvania and autumn links at Saucon Valley near Allentown. And there is access to other club members, many of whom are influential in their own right. A club event could, for instance, offer a chance to rub elbows with club member and Turnpike Commissioner Robert Gleason. Need Phillies tickets? Maybe team owner Bill Giles can help. He's in the club, as are NFL owners Art Rooney 2d (Steelers) and Edward DeBartolo Jr. (49ers). Planning a special occasion? Call club director Olga Lembesis. Her firm, Kitchenworks, catered Ridge's campaign for a fee. Now she caters events at the governor's mansion - at taxpayer expense. The tab is $39,000 since Ridge moved in. "One benefit" of being in the club, says director LeRoy Zimmerman, former state attorney general and now a Harrisburg lawyer, "is getting together with leaders of business, commerce and other professions. And who knows? You may get the opportunity to make a deal while you're there." Some members say they want nothing and get nothing.

"I don't think there is a member of the Governor's Club who has joined because they think it's going to help them get business in any way," said Herbert Barness, the GOP national committeeman who helped found the club and is its chairman. "There might be one or two who think that way, but it is infinitesimal."

Asked whether members would get as much state work if they didn't give campaign money, Barness said: "We're in a democracy. Some of them would, maybe some of them wouldn't. I don't know." State Sen. Clarence Bell (R., Delaware), who has 43 years in office, says most donors give for a reason. "They make investments to get returns," Bell said. "I haven't run into any political philanthropists for a long time." There is also prestige. David Girard-diCarlo is the governor's campaign treasurer and headed Ridge's 1994 transition team, helping to select cabinet members. A wall in his Philadelphia office is adorned with pictures of himself with politicians, including the governor, who named one of Girard-diCarlo's law partners, Paul Tufano, as his general counsel. Girard-diCarlo gave $84,500 to Ridge's 1994 campaign. Not only does his firm get state legal work, the fact that he's a close Ridge ally could be a reason some seek his high-priced counsel. "I'm sure some people do. But some people think I can do things I can't do, too," he said. "I turn down more people than I take [as clients] because all they want me to do is pull a political lever, and I won't do that." Girard-diCarlo noted that Ridge's contributors are publicly disclosed. "You know who the supporters are, and they are likely to be part of the process one way or the other. And if you don't like it, elect somebody else." Another sought-after Ridge club director is William A.K. Titelman, one of the capital's most prominent lawyer-lobbyists who, with retired Rite Aid chairman Alex Grass, held a 1995 fund-raising event that netted $230,000 for the new governor's campaign coffers. The elegant sit-down dinner was held at the home of Titelman and his wife, Maria Keating Titelman, who is a Ridge deputy chief of staff. William Titelman is one of several club directors who also raise big money for Democrats. He boasts of collecting "substantial six figures" for President Clinton - and last fall, he got to stay in the Lincoln Bedroom. Ridge has taken fund-raising to a new level in Pennsylvania, one of a minority of states that don't limit contributions by individuals or political action committees. He spent a record $12.7 million in 1994. And he didn't stop there: His campaign, with five full-time staffers, has raised $4.7 million since he became governor. About 30 fund-raising events are planned this year. The latest, a laid-back, wear-your-Hawaiian-shirt "beach party" at a Harrisburg hotel, raised about $70,000. Critics see the Governor's Club as an example of what's wrong with campaign financing these days. The pattern of donations to Ridge's fund from state contractors ``says that campaign contributions are a wise investment with big paybacks, especially when you're in the upper echelon of contributors," said Barry Kauffman, Pennsylvania director of the self-styled citizens' lobby, Common Cause. ``It sends a strong message that state government is for sale," said Sen. Allen Kukovich, a Western Pennsylvania Democrat and the legislature's leading advocate of campaign finance reform. Kukovich said it would be ``unfair to simply single out the Ridge administration, but I think with each succeeding administration it gets worse and worse. Part of it is the constant escalation of the need for campaign finances. It drives these folks to think of nothing else except how to raise more and more money." All you need is dough. ``I don't think I've ever turned anyone away from the Governor's Club," said Laurie Simmons, executive director of Ridge's campaign committee.

To be on the board of directors, a contributor must give (or raise from others) $10,000 a year in 1995, 1996 and 1997, plus $20,000 in 1998, Ridge's reelection year. A similar schedule at half the price buys a club membership. And half that, or $12,500 over four years, buys a spot on the campaign's 212-member finance committee. (That adds $2.6 million more to Ridge's war chest.)

And that's only a part of Ridge's financial picture. For one thing, many club members do more. Montgomery County developer Ronald Mintz held a 1995 fund-raising event at his home that netted $300,000 for Ridge, then still in his first year as governor. Mintz picked up the $51,749 tab. Others give without joining. Like Marilyn Ware Lewis, chairwoman of the American Water Works Co., whose family gave Ridge about $210,000 for his 1994 race. Last year, 46 people who weren't in the club gave the Ridge campaign fund $5,000 or more. A number of club members were major rain-makers for Ridge, giving not only of their own but helping bring out the unselfish side of others. In this realm, Barness, a Bucks County developer, is a regular thunderstorm producer, having brought in as many as 40 percent of the club's members, according to Simmons. (He also gave $60,000 of his own in 1994.) ``It was Herb's idea," she said of the club. ``During the campaign your pitch is always the same - you've got to have money for media. We wanted to have a way to raise the funds during the off years. . . . I thought it was a great idea and so did the governor."

She said Bob Asher is a major Ridge fund-raiser in suburban Philadelphia, as are Titelman in Harrisburg and lawyer Evans Rose in Pittsburgh. The club membership reads like a Who's Who in Pennsylvania Business, as befits a governor who ran as pro-business and has called for corporate tax cuts in three straight years. Many members have CEO after their name. The club is mostly male and white. It includes just a half-dozen minorities and eight women. Many club members interviewed spoke of the state's highest official as ``Tom." 84 Lumber CEO Joe Hardy praised the governor's impressive long golf game this way: ``The son of a bitch, he was pounding them out." Members can be spotted on the fairways by their umbrellas and golf shirts emblazoned with the words Governor's Club. The club also gives members round blue and gold cufflinks bearing the initial R. What membership does not necessarily buy, said Simmons, is a one-on-one with Ridge. ``I won't guarantee a meeting for $10,000. I'll take your money, but I won't guarantee a meeting with the governor," she said. Unlike Clinton, Ridge doesn't bring his donors home. ``We don't have private coffees or sleepovers with the governor," Simmons said. `` . . . It's offensive." Said Ridge: ``Probably the toughest part of politics is the fund-raising side of it. We did a good job during the election, but now that I'm governor, I've tried to create a bit of a wall between myself and fund-raising." Simmons said that since he became governor, Ridge had not made a single phone call for cash. ``As we get closer to the campaign, we might ask him to," she said. ``If there was someone who would only take a call from him. And there are people like that." Rick Reynolds, a Harrisburg construction manager who joined Hardy and Barness in Ridge's golf foursome last year at Nemaquin, said he holds no state contracts or hopes that his club membership will help him win any. But Reynolds, who recalls tying Ridge with a 90, figures that if he called the governor's office now, ``they'll know who I am." Hardy, who owns the Nemaquin course, says the same. ``I think if I have a problem I would call his deputy or something like that . . . and I'm sure it gets to the governor and perhaps he can help," he said. ``I think it's important that we have access to some of these people - his staffers, the head of this, the head of that, the head of the other thing. And they're available." Contracts. As of December, 37 club members' businesses had state contracts, according to Treasury Department records. Of those, 36 have won new contracts, or had old ones renewed, since January 1995, when Ridge became governor. Many have additional contracts that predate him. Most of the state contracts are competitively bid. Many aren't, including those for engineers, architects and law firms, with the state generally extending "requests for proposals" and then selecting the lowest responsible bidder, though not necessarily the least costly. Last year, the largest under Ridge was a one-year contract for $204 million, a hefty chunk of the roughly $2.5 billion the state spends annually for goods and services. That contract was with Healthcare Management Alternatives (HMA) to provide health insurance for poor people in Philadelphia. The company is owned by AmeriChoice, whose chairman, Tony Welters, is on the Governor's Club Board of Directors. Steven Matthews, AmeriChoice vice president and spokesman, said Welters had supported Ridge before he became governor, and that HMA had had major contracts with the state before that time, too. Matthews said HMA's latest contract, for 1997, was awarded through a competitive process. New Enterprise Stone & Lime Co., which is headed by a club member, had state contracts totaling $87 million, more than two-thirds of it since January 1995. The company has also earned millions from the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission since the 1980s. Several New Enterprise officers were civilly fined $150,000 in 1995 for federal elections violations - specifically, for reimbursing employees after they gave thousands to a congressional campaign. Correctional Physicians Service Inc., whose president is club member Emre Umar, signed a contract with the Department of Corrections for $49.2 million to provide medical services at six state prisons. Umar's company has had this work since 1990 and was lowest bidder in 1995. Umar could not be reached for comment. Legal fees. Among the law firms that got the most state work since Ridge took office were those whose letterheads include club directors Titelman, Girard-diCarlo and Zimmerman.

Number one in another category, bond-counsel fees, was Ballard, Spahr, Andrews & Ingersoll, the Philadelphia firm that includes club director Tom Ellis. Ellis, who is also a Cheltenham Township commissioner, said the firm got more work from the previous administration under Democratic Gov. Bob Casey. "We are the biggest bond counsel firm in the state. So I would hope we would get the most bond counsel work," Ellis said. "People support their friends," Titelman said. "If there are two equally competent people capable of providing a service or a product . . . is it reasonable for someone to select their opponent to provide it, or their friend?"

Asked why the Ridge administration had given so much bond work to law firms that gave campaign money, Titelman said: "Well, why shouldn't he? The reality of the system is, people do need to raise political funds." He hastened to add, "There's never a quid pro quo. Never." Loans and grants. Several major companies that got a helping hand from state economic programs under Ridge also have executives in the club. PNC Financial Corp., whose lobbyist is a club member and whose chairman is a major Ridge donor, got a $6.5 million commitment for various state grants for its new operations center in Southwest Philadelphia. PNC is investing $14 million of its own money. Advanta, whose CEO is club director Dennis Alter, received a $3 million Job Creation Tax Credit in fiscal 1997, plus a $1 million grant to help finance a $22 million project in Montgomery County. Alter could not be reached for comment. Bentley Systems Inc., an engineering software company, got a $2 million low-interest loan in 1995 through the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority (PIDA) to expand facilities in Exton. About six months after the loan was approved, state GOP chairman Alan Novak contacted company president Gregory Bentley and asked him to enroll in the club, according to spokesmen for the company and the party. Later, Bentley and his brothers, who help run the company, gave $11,000 to Ridge's fund. Leases. Philadelphia Suburban Development Corp., where club member Bob Nicoletti is president, holds a handful of 10-year leases worth a total of $13.5 million on state welfare, labor and revenue offices in Philadelphia, and is negotiating to extend three other leases that could be worth millions more. Nicoletti could not be reached for comment. Two other club members' businesses lease large office buildings to the state in the Capitol area, one worth $22.5 million, the other $32 million. Harrisburg developer Robert Mumma's company holds leases with the state worth close to $500,000. A club member, he gives office space to Ridge's campaign for free. Mumma says he bids against other landlords to win state leases, and that helping the Ridge campaign makes "no difference whatsoever." Appointments. Ridge has named 40 club members to state advisory commissions and licensing boards - some to two or three boards each. Spouses and siblings of club members hold seven other seats. Members were named to boards of colleges including Temple, Drexel, West Chester and Pennsylvania State University. Ridge put businessmen (and club directors) Manny Stamatakis and Paul Zelenkofske on the Delaware River Port Authority board. Stamatakis was also named to head the widely publicized government efficiency panel known as the IMPACCT Commission. Stamatakis in turn named 21 others to head various IMPACCT committees - including club director Charles Sexton Jr., a longtime Delaware County Republican leader, and three other club members. For a follow-up panel Stamatakis chose another club member - a Dodge dealer whose political contributions include the car driven by Ridge campaign director Simmons. Explaining why big contributors were placed on state panels, Tim Reeves, Ridge's press secretary, said: "You tend to nominate people you know." One who is well known is Bob Asher, a Ridge appointee to the Conservation and Natural Resources Advisory Council. Asher, a former state GOP chairman, was convicted of conspiracy and other charges in the 1980s bribery scandal over a computer company's attempt to win a state contract. Prosecutors said Asher had tried to steer money into Republican campaign coffers. Asher, CEO of Asher's Chocolates, said he is on other conservation boards, and that, "conservation is my real passion in life, even more than politics." He declines allowable travel expenses. Ridge press secretary Reeves said that Asher had "paid a very serious price" and that now, "he deserves the opportunity to show that he is a good citizen again."

Timothy Buchanan's company was paid $350,000 by Ridge's campaign, mostly for printing. Buchanan gave $22,450 to the Republican's 1994 race and $4,780 in the first three months of Ridge's term. Six months later, Ridge named Buchanan to head the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission. How did that happen? "After the campaign they asked me if I'd like to be on a board or commission and if so, which one. I said, 'I love history.' They mentioned [the commission] and said, 'We'll get back to you,' and they did and told me, 'You're chairman of that commission.' It blew my mind." Buchanan, who left college after a year and a half, said: "I'm sure there are many other people that would be eminently more qualified."

38.4 Summary of Corruption in Tom Ridge's PA Gov Club

Herb Barness setup the Pennsylvania Governor's Club.

38.4.1 Herbert Barness

Barness controlled the PA Gov Club. He was Tom Ridge's power broker via PA Bucks GOP www.bucksgop.org. He setup felon Robert Asher to replace himself. Barness was a Bucks County PA Home builder. He was closely tied to home builder DeLuca and Toll Brothers. Barness was the power broker of US Senator Specter. Specter via his wife owns and controls the NVR/Ryan Homes www.nvrinc.com. Barness was the power broker for: 1) Arlene Specter, 2) Tom Ridge, 3) Rick Santorum, 4) Robert Asher and 5) Robert Dole. The analysis of both Barness and Annenberg both mutually providing political support to Specter indicates a nexus of Barness to Gangster Walter Annenberg.

38.4.1.1 Arlene Specter Nephew to Ed Rendell

Arlene Specter was a former Philadelphia DA when Specter changed political parties to join the GOP his power broker was Barness. Specter was involved with protection of the Dope Distribution Center in Bensalem, PA. Specter was directly involved with the cover up of the Murder of JFK via the Warren Commission. Specter was a leader of the US Senate Judicial Committee. During this tenure the courts ruled on some of agendas.

- Busing in Public Schools K-12 hence awarding Laidlaw a Bronfman Crime Family Billions in school bus leasing contracts. (Laidlaw and now First Student)
- Smut - Supreme courts ruled pornography is protected by first amendment. Bronfman crime family made Billions from control of the industry
- Eminent Domain - As a major national home builder via NVR/Ryan homes ownership he built about 70% of the Real Estate in suburban Baltimore MD. As leader on US Senate Judicial Committee courts rule Eminent Domain can be used to take over property on behalf of private developers.
- Veteran Affairs -Specter was a leader of the US Senate Committee on Veterans Affairs. The scandal at Walter Reed Hospital where a former Haliburton executive ran a substandard facility was due to the lack of oversight by Specter. Haliburton is part of KBR (Kellog Brown Root). KBR was identified by LBJ's Mistress being tied to the JFK assassination.
- Outsourcing - Specter was a major sponsor of legislation resulting in Jobs Outsourcing and out of control immigration via. 1986 Tax Reform Act Section 1706, H1B Visa etc.
- Destruction of Families in Domestic Courts - Specter has stated he is the proud sponsor of the Violence against Women Act. This is used in family courts to financial destroy families via the protection from abuse laws (PFA orders) and setup the program to destroy families via a financial reimbursement programs to family courts to provide 67 cents of federal funds to the courts for each dollar collected in family courts.
- Abortion Laws – Specter as a leader of the Senate Judicial Committee was key to this Communist agenda that has resulted in over 30 American Child being lost. Strong supported of Planned Parenthood
- Close Ally of Robert Asher - Specter and Asher are close political allies.
- Drug Smuggling – Protected local Dope Rings in Bensalem PA and in Naples Italy.
- Hate Crime Laws – Both US Senators Casey and Specter are the authors of the Hate Crime Laws.
- Involvement with the Apollo Affair in which Nuclear Material was lost and used in the Israeli Bomb

38.4.1.2 Herb Barness the Influential Real Estate Developer in PA GOP

- http://articles.philly.com/1998-09-06/news/25759569_1_politics-real-estate-family-business

Sept 6, 1998 - Real estate developer Herbert Barness, 74, a prominent Republican powerbroker and fundraiser, died yesterday at his home in Doylestown. To residents of Bucks County, the name Barness was virtually synonymous with real estate. His parents, Mary and Joe Barness, launched the family business 73 years ago when they built a house with a detached garage and a chicken coop in Warrington. Today the Warrington-based family business, the Barness Organization, is one of the largest developers of houses and shopping malls in the area. Mr. Barness, who earned a reputation as a shrewd, tough businessman, made millions in real estate, and used his fortune to become prominent in philanthropy, politics and professional sports. A husky six-footer who broke a leg playing football in high school, he went on to become a co-owner of the Philadelphia Eagles from 1969 to 1978, when he relinquished his 29 percent interest in the team after a bruising legal battle with principal owner Leonard Tose. In 1986, he and his son-in-law, Craig Stein, acquired ownership of the Reading Phillies - the Philadelphia Phillies' AA team. He used his wealth to support the political campaigns of prominent Republicans. He was a longtime friend of, and contributor to, Sen. Arlen Specter (R., Pa.) and was a founder of the "Governor's Club," a small group pledging to donate at least $50,000 over four years to Gov. Ridge. As a result of his political work and contributions - $119,150 in 1996 alone - he was a Republican National Committeeman at the time of his death. "Money is the milk of politics, and somebody's got to do it," he said in a 1990 interview, adding that fund-raising allowed him to be close to politics without being a politician. He never held elective office. "He was a very good friend of mine, a very generous, public-spirited individual," Specter said yesterday. "I knew him from the early 1960s, long before I ran for the Senate." Beginning in the early 1980s, he served as chairman of the Pennsylvania Federal Judicial Nominating Commission

“and played a key role in selecting the federal judges in this state,” Specter said. Lynda Barness said yesterday that her father “loved politics and was involved in it a long time, really from when he was very young. He saw it as a civic duty.” But, she said, he regarded his family as his “main achievement.” She recently recalled that in the early years of his involvement in the real estate business, he would arrive at each house under construction wearing work clothes and work boots. Even in his later years, and despite illness, she said, he was usually the first person to arrive at the office each morning. “He was here a week ago Wednesday,” she said. He was born and reared on the farmlands outside Doylestown and was educated in a one-room schoolhouse, a replica of which sits in his office. He served as executive officer of the 70th Army Airways Communications Group, and was commander of the 147th Airways Communications Squadron in the Pacific during World War II. In 1948 he earned a degree in mechanical engineering from Bucknell University. After joining his father's real estate business, Joseph Barness & Sons, he turned it into the Barness Corp., a development firm that did work in Pennsylvania, the Caribbean and Atlantic City. Mr. Barness had also served as president and director of the Bucks County Industrial Development Corp., as a member of the Bucks County Planning Commission, as a member of the Philadelphia Regional Port Authority, and as a trustee of Germantown Academy and the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts. He was a delegate or alternate delegate to several Republican national conventions, beginning in 1968, and was a member of the Electoral College of Pennsylvania in 1972. In 1983, President Reagan named Mr. Barness to the President's Commission on Housing. He is survived by his wife, Irma, two daughters, and four granddaughters. Services will be held Wednesday at 1 p.m. at Reform Congregation Keneseth Israel, Old York Road and Township Line Road in Cheltenham. Interment will be private. The family has asked that contributions be made to the Herbert and Irma Barness non-Hodgkins Lymphoma Research Fund, in care of the Cancer Center of the University of Pennsylvania, to the attention of Dr. John Glick.

Many people believe that Pennsylvania's best days are behind us and that the business climate in Pennsylvania cannot and will not improve. I know that this isn't the case because every day I talk with business leaders, elected officials and candidates that are dedicated to improving Pennsylvania. Since 2007, Pennsylvania has lost 217,000 private sector jobs but has added 13,500 government jobs. Our commonwealth has fallen to a bottom five rating for job growth and overall business environment. The time to watch and wait is over and the time to act is now. The Pennsylvania Future Fund is dedicated to restoring Pennsylvania's economy by supporting elected officials and candidates that understand that the strength of our economy lies within the economic spirit of the Commonwealth's entrepreneurs. In addition to candidates, the Pennsylvania Future Fund supports local grassroots organizations and candidate development programs like the Anne Annstine program. No matter the political environment, the Pennsylvania Future Fund will continue to support the election of candidates who share its member's vision for Pennsylvania's Future – A future in which Pennsylvania's business and commerce will grow strong. I hope that you will continue to view the PA Future Fund website and consider joining as a member if you are not already. Thank you again for your support, -Sincerely, Bob Asher Chairman

Oct 25, 2013- Lower Gwynedd, Pennsylvania Republican Robert B. Asher, a GOP powerbroker on both the state and national levels, returned to an active role in Montgomery County GOP politics Thursday night. The announcement of Asher as co-chair of the organization's finance committee by a wide-smiling county GOP Chairman Robert J. Kerns drew warm applause from almost 300 party officials and foot soldiers gathered at the party's fall fundraising dinner at the Westover Golf Club in West Norriton. Kerns said that Asher's return and an agreement by Lower Merion Republican Vahan H. Gureghian, who has almost single handedly bankrolled the fractured, cash-strapped organization in recent years, to share his finance committee chairmanship with Asher shows the “new unity” of the county GOP. “I think some guys in leadership roles had different ideas on where we should be going but once everyone got together and talked, I think we are all united,” said Kerns. Those talks, according to sources, occurred over six to eight months. State Rep. Mike Vereb, R-150, West Norriton, was instrumental in bringing Asher, a former chairman of both the county GOP and the state GOP, and Gureghian together. Until then the pair had an edgy, frosty relationship even though both were strong supporters of Gov. Tom Corbett. Ironically, Corbett was the party’s “special guest” at the Thursday dinner but all the buzz was about Asher’s return. Asher removed himself and the wallet of his well-funded Pennsylvania Future Fund political action committee from county politics in the early 2000s when Asher threw his support to Corbett over Bruce L. Castor Jr. in the pair’s battle for the party’s nomination for state Attorney General. A simmering feud between Asher, who served a year in jail following his federal conviction on political corruption charges, and both Castor and then-county GOP Chairman Frank Bartle became bitter, personal and very public at that juncture. Gureghian, a non-practicing real estate lawyer who heads a charter school management firm and a billboard company, had long contributed to Lower Merion Republicans and their candidates as well as to state candidates but eventually stepped into the vacuum created when Asher withdrew from the county GOP. “There are no rearview mirrors on this organization,” said Kerns. “We are moving forward together.” “A lot of people said we should put the past behind us and unite and I was more than happy to do that,” said Asher, who heads the family run Asher’s Chocolates in Souderton. Asher said he and Gureghian will not have a problem working together. “We talked about it and we both want the same thing, which is unity in the Republican Party in Montgomery County,” said Asher. “It’s our common objective so I don’t think there is going to be a bit of a problem.” “We are a team,” said Gureghian. “I’ve been a Republican for 40 years now and I can tell you that you can only win elections if you are a team. It is nice that we have finally been able to come together and work as a team.” “My interest always has just been in the party,” said Gureghian. “This is nothing but a positive. It’s a shame it took this long.” Missing from Thursday night’s dinner was Castor, who turned 52 on Thursday. Castor, a county commissioner and former district attorney, could not be reached for comment after the dinner. Asked about Castor’s role in the newly united county GOP, Kerns responded, “This is about party politics.” “I would have no comment on the county commissioner,” Asher said when asked the same question. Gureghian said Castor has two choices. “Either he is on the team or he is not on the team,” said Gureghian. “He has to make that decision. After tonight, he sees where the team is.” Corbett was one of those applauding the “new team.” Corbett will need a united Montgomery County GOP if he stands any chance of winning the county next year when he runs for re-election. Montgomery County, second only to Allegheny County in its number of registered GOP voters, in 2010 was only one of two counties where voters gave the nod to Democrat Dan Onorato in the governor’s race. Statewide in 2010, Corbett received 54.9 percent of the vote to Onorato’s 45.1 percent. Onorato walked away with Montgomery County in his pocket, receiving 51.71 percent of the vote to Corbett’s 48.29 percent.

Nov 14,2013 The Philadelphia Daily News has reported that Robert J. Kerns, the Montgomery County Republican Committee chairman is under investigation for alleged sexual assault. The story alleges that Kerns is accused of getting drunk and sexually assaulting a co-worker on Oct. 25.

Nov 15, 2013 The chairman of the Montgomery County Republican Party resigned Thursday. The party's executive director, John Kelemen, announced that Robert J. Kerns, 66, submitted his resignation. Kerns' second term as chairman was set to expire in June. "(The party) has no comment on media reports related to a possible criminal investigation of Mr. Kerns unrelated to his duties as chairman," Kelemen said in Thursday's written statement. "All inquiries related to a possible investigation will be referred to his personal attorney and the proper authorities." Published reports say that the Montgomery County District Attorney's Office is investigating Kerns. However, law enforcement officials, including the district attorney, have declined to go on the record about the investigation. No charges have been filed. Kerns' attorney, Brian McMonagle, has not returned calls for comment. On Thursday, Montgomery County Commissioner Bruce Castor, a rival power broker in the party, called for Republicans to support acting Chairwoman Sharon Thomas. Two weeks ago, Kerns proclaimed party unity during an event at Kerns' law office, Kerns, Pearlstine, Onorato and Hladik, in Upper Gwynedd.

May 2015 - The former head of the Montgomery County Republican Committee who pleaded no contest in November 2014 to charges of indecently assaulting a woman who worked at his law firm was deemed a sexually violent predator by the court on Friday. Following a brief hearing on Friday morning, Senior Judge John Braxton deemed Robert Kerns, 67, a sexually violent predator. Now that Kerns is classified as a sexually violent predator, he will have to register his address with the state police, quarterly, for the rest of his life. He will also have to attend monthly counseling sessions. This means that Kerns' status has changed. When he pleaded no contest to the assault charge in November 2014, he was only required to register as a sex offender for the next 15 years. The hearing on Friday was brief because Kerns, his attorney Brian McMonagle and Deputy Attorney General Daniel Dye earlier in the week stipulated to the findings of the Sexual Offenders Assessment Board (SOAB).

38.9 Former PA Governor Mark Schweiker

Mark Schweiker worked at Merrill Lynch in Princeton NJ in the 1980's. Here as a consulting he was able to recommend that Merrill replace US Information Technology professionals with cheaper H1B Visa Labor. Overtime the corruption of the resulted in Merrill Lynch management asking for kickbacks from the H1B Visa Labor. Subsequently Mark Schweiker got involved with Bucks GOP Politics and became a County Commissioner of Bucks County and was then recommended to become Lieutenant Governor. When PA Governor Tom Ridge was selected by the Bush administration to head up the Department of Homeland Security. Mark Schweiker became Governor of Pennsylvania. Schweiker's political power brokers were Harry Fawkes of the Bucks GOP, Robert Asher and Jim Nevels of the the Swarthmore Investment Group. During his tenure, Schweiker spent the state Rainy Day Fund of two billion plus the two billion surplus at that time. During his tenure Schweiker spent $4Billion of state funds. to work with the Company via Volt Information Sciences. Schweiker was responsible for setting up the Philadelphia School Reform Commission. Schweiker appointed his power broker Nevels as the head of the School Reform Commission. Subsequently this resulted in a $600 Million debt for the schools of the City of Philadelphia Due to the privatization of the schools. Edison Schools was awarded the largest portion of the school funding to setup privatized schools in the city of Philadelphia. Edison schools was setup as an IPO of Merrill Lynch and was the primary financier of the enterprise. Edison has a very poor track record being removed from 40 different school districts prior to working with the Philadelphia school system. After leaving office Schweiker became President of the Greater Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce. In this position Schweiker supported replacement of US High Technology labor with H1B Visa Labor. Schweiker after leaving the Chamber became an executive in a private firm that would provide management services to business to replace US High Technology labor with H1B Visa Labor. He works for a pharmaceutical manufacturer PRWT as President of business process outsourcing.

MicroSoft's PA PowerPort Web Deal Causes Loss of PA Jobs - www.state.pa.us

Despite these laudable goals, some of Pennsylvania's small Web companies objected, claiming there is no need for government intervention because they already are providing these services. By giving a prominent position to Microsoft's PA Small Business Network on the state Web site, the government is setting up Microsoft as a virtual preferred vendor. "Microsoft gets positioned on the most visited Web site in the state with this deal," said Wayne Kessler of Kessler & Freeman Inc. in Mechanicsburg. His company, a 2 1/2 man shop that has built Web sites for about 50 commercial and government customers, takes in about $100,000 a year in revenue — the same amount that Microsoft is donating to the state in free Web services. Kessler and others also contend the state government should not be offering other services, such as free e-mail, that are provided by the private sector. "The government is talking about competing with us and using our tax dollars to do it," said Bill Hall, chief executive officer of Keystoneweb.com LLC in Montoursville. Hall describes Keystone-web.com as a full-service Internet company, offering domain name registration, Web site development, Web hosting, and maintenance. The company has offices in three cities and about 500 paying clients in 85 percent of the state's counties, but "we're a flyspeck on the wall compared to Microsoft," he said. Both Kessler and Hall said the Ridge administration did not hold sufficient public discussion about the PA PowerPort plan. They would like the state legislature to hold hearings and look into the deal before the agreement with Microsoft is finalized. If the legislature makes a full examination and then decides that the PA PowerPort deal is a good idea, Kessler said he would accept that decision. It is unclear how many other small Web companies also oppose PA PowerPort. An online petition calling for a legislative inquiry thus far has garnered little more than 70 signatures. State officials said the complaints are coming from just a handful of companies, and that many companies responded positively to the initiative at the first stakeholders meeting, held April 20 in Bryn Mawr. But Hall said this is not surprising. "Only a small number are complaining because most are just trying to scratch out a living and don't have time to bother," he said. Regarding fears that Microsoft will dominate the state portal, state spokesman Elliott said other companies and their services will be listed on the Web site along with Microsoft. "Microsoft is not leading this. We are leading this," he said. Microsoft officials also said the company has no intention of squeezing out smaller Web companies. Philip Moyer, who is heading up the project for Microsoft, said the company partners with thousands of companies, such as Keystoneweb.com and Kessler & Freeman, to install its software. "At the end of the day, we sell software," not consulting services, he said. And for every dollar of Microsoft software that is sold, consulting companies bring in $5 to $6 worth of services, he said. "The spirit of PA PowerPort is to serve as an incubator for more Internet business throughout the state," Elliott said. "We see it as helping companies get their feet wet [on the Web]. Then they will go to local companies." Although Elliott and Moyer argue that PA PowerPort www.state.pa.us will not lock customers into Microsoft products, Hall is skeptical. "The government is helping the monopoly," he said. Like Pennsylvania, many state governments are trying to stimulate technology development and e-government services through a variety of programs and business partnerships. These include giving tax breaks to attract high-tech businesses, providing seed money for investing in innovative companies, and using the governments' purchasing power to stimulate the building of telecommunications services in rural and underserved areas. "It's a judgment call" whether and how the government should step in, said Missouri's Benzen. In Missouri, for example, a few years ago the government gave matching funds to small communities to help establish Internet connections in areas where it was not profitable for the private sector to provide services. But today the private sector is ready to serve these communities and so resents the competition from the local non-profit organizations that were created with state funding to obtain Internet service. "Sometimes you're damned if you do and damned if you don't," Benzen said. "You can't do these things without stepping on toes. But the alternative is to do nothing." To some extent, the situation in Pennsylvania is similar to the controversy that arises when Wal-Mart moves into a small community and threatens local stores, said John Kost, vice president with Siebel Systems Inc. of San Mateo, Calif., a company that provides customer relationship management solutions to governments and businesses. "Quite simply, it's best deal vs. local content," he said. Pennsylvania's mistake may have been that its stakeholders meetings are coming after the announced deal with Microsoft, rather than before. "I think it's good that Pennsylvania is holding these meetings to deal with the policy implications," said Don Heiman, chief information officer in Kansas. It is in such forums "that you can find wisdom and balance." Thank PA Gov Schweiker for this mess.

Former Pennsylvania Gov Ed Rendell first sponsored Casino Slot Machine Gaming without a Voter referendum. Bensalem State Senator Tom Tomlinson said “Rendell is our greatest ally for Slots without a Voter Referendum”. Subsequently Rendell again gave the Casino Industry Table Games without a voter referendum. In the debates for his first term Rendell said to the GOP candidate (Mike Fisher) “My God what is the GOP doing about Robert Asher?”. At the time when the legislation for Casino Table Games was being debated, the head of the PA Senate Judicial Committee Stewart Greenleaf was the hold out preventing the legislation. In early January of that year, Greenleaf’s home burned down in the middle of the night with the occupants just barely getting out with their lives. Three days later, Rendell signed the legislation to give PA Table games at the Casinos. Certainly sounds like a case of Jewish Lighting with Billions in Casino Gaming Revenue at stake. Like the JFK DA Specter and Sprague, Rendell started his career in the Philadelphia District Attorney’s office. Like Specter, Rendell lived in the housing Complex by the Inn of the Falls in Conshohocken PA. This was a track of exclusive homes that the Bootlegger Mafia of Conshohocken, PA used to compensate political figures.

38.11.4 PA Gov Corbett Backs Privatized School Bus Contracts

This study examines the cost of transportation services for Pennsylvania's school districts, focusing especially on the impact on costs of contracting out. Using data from the Pennsylvania Department of Education from 1986 to 2008, the study statistically analyzes total costs, the costs to the state, and the costs to local school districts. On average 72% of transportation services were contracted out by Pennsylvania school districts in 2008, up from 62% in 1986. In analyzing school district transportation costs, we control for the impact on costs of school district enrollment, fuel costs, spending for transportation of special education students, and the wealth and income of the school district. We find that:

- Contracting out significantly increases total costs. For example, if the "typical" district (with enrollment and other variables equal to the average for all districts) shifts from contracting out none of its transportation services to contracting out for all of its services, costs increase an estimated $223,861 (in 2008 dollars).
- Contracting out also increases costs to the state, in part because the state reimburses contracted transportation services at a higher rate than district self-provided services. In the typical district, increasing contracting out from zero to 100% increases costs to the state by $231,903.
- For local school districts, there is no statistically significant difference (at the 5% level) between what they pay for transportation services when they contract out versus when they self-provide transportation—in effect, the more generous state reimbursement of contracting out compensates for the increase in total costs.

In addition to the state's more generous reimbursement for contracted transportation services, decisions to contract out are also driven in some cases by the lump sum that districts receive up front for selling their bus fleet. Contractors also reportedly "low ball" their prices when bidding for new contracts—i.e., promise lower costs than actually result. Analysis of a sub-sample of 29 districts that privatized transportation services between 1992 and 2001 reveals that these districts experienced a 26% increase in total transportation costs in the five years after contracting out compared to a 6% increase in the five years before contracting out. Most of the jump in costs took place in the first year after privatization. Despite higher costs, districts may not revert to self-provided services because the state's more generous reimbursement of contractor services absorbs the increase. In addition, once districts sell their bus fleet, reverting back to self-provided services is impeded by the up-front cost of repurchasing a fleet. Lastly, school officials may be reluctant to publicize the increase in costs due to privatization.

Contracting out substantially increases state spending on transportation services. We estimate that if all districts switched to the self-supply of transportation services, total spending on student transportation services would fall by $78.3 million dollars with all of the cost savings accruing to the state.

Why does contracting out cost more than self-providing transportation services? While this requires further study, the general answer is that private contractors do not provide efficiencies sufficient to compensate for increases in costs associated with contracting out. These increases include contractor profits, the higher salaries of private contractors at the managerial and executive level, and the cost to school districts of monitoring contractors. Contracting can also be expensive because of lack of competition within the private industry in some areas. In addition, once a contract is in place, switching contractors or in-sourcing services may be disruptive, create managerial headaches, or impose financial transition costs. These transition costs give current contractors leverage when charging for unanticipated additional services or bargaining over contract renewal terms. These reasons that privatization costs more than self-providing services are not unique to the school bus transportation industry but arise with a wide range of privatized services.

38.11.5 PA Gov Corbett Privatizes PA State Lottery

Jan 17, 2013 - The Corbett's administration has finalized a contract to hire British lottery operator Camelot Global Services to manage the Pennsylvania Lottery. A spokesman for the state attorney general's office said the contract paperwork arrived Wednesday night. Attorney General Kathleen Kane's office has 30 days to review it for form and legality. The Pennsylvania Lottery is one of the nation's largest. Pennsylvania in line to become the third state behind Illinois and Indiana to hire a private lottery manager. Various other legal hurdles for the contract are waiting. The 20-year contract can be extended to 30 years if Camelot reaches certain performance benchmarks. Camelot will charge a management fee worth hundreds of millions of dollars over the life of the deal and get cash incentives for exceeding its annual profit commitments.

Pennsylvania state government will get $34 billion from the deal. Since Corbett power brokers are the same parties involved with situation of prior Gov Mark Schweiker where he burned thru $4 Billion in 18 months awarding many contracts to his cronies tied into the Bucks GOP. One can be sure again with $34 Billion PA Gov Corbett will award Billions in pork pay to play contracts to his cronies.

The Camelot Group is financed via Teacher Pension Funds. The Mafia has been working with Pension funds since Teamsters and Hoffa setup Vegas. A few years ago PA almost doubled property taxes to pay for pensions of Legislature and Teacher Pensions. Here we see how well the ponzi scheme is working.

Wednesday, January 30, 2013 -- Governor Tom Corbett today launched his drive to sell PA's Wine and Spirits stores and eliminate the jobs of 3,500 members of UFCW Local 1776 and Local 23. Wendell W. Young, IV, President of Local 1776 and Chair of the UFCW of PA Wine & Spirits Council, said that the Union will continue its fight to protect the jobs of its members, the revenues generated by the stores for all Pennsylvania taxpayers, and the communities that would be endangered by privatization. Corbett's move was expected. Last month he renewed his campaign pledge to sell the PA Wine and Spirits stores. In an interview with the Pittsburgh Tribune-Review, he said: "I don't give up. I keep coming back. I'll keep going next year." Read the full story. The Governor's comments point to the importance of urging our legislators to modernize, not privatize. Please continue to urge your State Representative and State Senator to support the bipartisan, common sense modernization proposals that will enable the Wine and Spirits stores to be even more productive for all Pennsylvanians.

Every so often one of the Governors in Pennsylvania come up with the grand solution to the balance the budget and propose selling off the state-run liquor stores. Former Governor Tom Ridge fought for years trying accomplish this mission and failed each time. Current Pennsylvania Governor Corbett announced on Wednesday, January 30th his plan to sell off the state-owned wine and spirits stores and use the revenue to fund education. After successfully privatizing the PA lottery, Corbett's next step is to get the state out of the business of selling wine and booze. Motivated by a lump sum payment that the sale of the stores would generate, Corbett proposed to use the funds from the sale of 600 state stores and 1,200 wine and liquor licenses to provide an education block grant that school districts could apply for to fund projects that focus on safety in schools, early childhood development programs, learning support systems and additional classes in math, science, engineering, and technology. Since December 1933, the sales of all liquor, wine and the licenses to sell these products have been regulated by the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board (PLCB). On December 5, 1933, the 21st Amendment to the U.S. Constitution was ratified and alcohol prohibition was repealed. One day later on December 6, 1933, the Pennsylvania General Assembly approved the sale of more than 600 liquor licenses which gave bars and restaurants the permission to sell alcohol at their establishments. This very same month over 1,000 clerks were hired by the Commonwealth to work at the state stores. After 14 years of prohibition laws making the use and sale of alcohol a federal and state crime, on January 2, 1934, the PLCB opened up five warehouses and 63 state stores which sold wine and liquor. The "Liquor Code" was signed by the PA General Assembly into state law on April 12, 1951 combining the sale of liquor and beer into one statute. The first premium liquor store was opened in Allentown on August 23, 1990 giving consumers the ability to purchase over 4,000 products in the superstore. In an effort to encourage consumers to keep buying their booze locally and to keep sales in state, on June 3, 2003 the PLCB opened up wine and spirit outlet shops in Gettysburg, Hermitage and Franklin Mills. That same year brought the inception of one-stop wine and spirit stores shops with the first one opening up in Montgomery County, PA. Over the past 20 years, the PLCB has taken the sale of wine and liquor to a new level providing consumers with chairman-selected wines and wine tasting events right at the stores that are located in convenient places throughout the state offering both choice and quality. Over the years much criticism from privatization supporters has been directed towards what many refer to as Pennsylvania's antiquated system of selling liquor which has been by and large through the the PLCB. Operated and run by the state, proponents of liquor store privatization believe that the Commonwealth should not be in the business of selling wine and spirits rather putting the responsibility of the actual sales and distribution to private business owners. There are many reasons why privatization proponents want the state out of the liquor business: convenience, morality, big revenue, price competition and improved selection. The belief is that if businesses were managing the sale of alcohol, they would open earlier and stay open later instead of regulated hours kept by the state employees who manage the wine and spirit shops under the current system. Proponents also think that if business owners manage the sale of liquor that competition will move prices up and down to the consumer's benefit. In other words, people will buy where they can get a bargain or a deal. There is also the thought that privatization will bring out larger product selection as compared to what exists now. Naturally, there is the big windfall of money an estimated $2 billion in revenue that the state could look to receive if the stores were sold to the private sector not to mention the fact that people in this state just seem to resent that the state is in the business of selling booze. On the other side of the argument are those people who think that the way we do it here in Pennsylvania is just fine going by the don't fix what isn't broke mantra. Privatization opponents believe that there are too many good reasons to keep the PLCB running and managing the wine and spirit stores and not to privatize most notably because of public safety, selection, prices, profits, loss of jobs. One only need cross the PA border into New Jersey, Maryland, New York or Ohio and go into a local convenience store or gas station to pick up some beer or liquor for the ride and see that the prices are not that much different from what is sold here. While it might be convenient to pick up beer or wine at a place like Sheetz or the local Wal-Mart, the selection is small mostly name-brand products which means that better prices and convenience might still be at a store that just sells alcohol. Another concern is who is behind the counter at the register ringing up the sales. In PA, the liquor store clerks receive additional training in alcohol education compared to the business world where a sale is a sale. Privatization also means the loss of jobs as about 3,000 liquor store clerks, managers and other employees would be laid off. The strongest argument against privatization is the loss of annual revenue. While the sale of the liquor stores and their licenses would bring in around $2 billion over a four-year period, the state would lose the $494 million annual profit that alcohol brings into PA. That just does not make sense. Why sell off a business that brings in almost $500 million each year to make a quick sale that the state would already make in the same four-year period. In taking a good hard look at Corbett's proposal and his reasons for wanting to privatize liquor in PA, it is all smoke and mirrors being thrown up to cover up the real reasons to privatize and it is not for the reasons stated. It is cold hard politics at work with Corbett motivated by the lure of big business such as Wal-Mart in his back pocket backing him come the next election year. Corbett says that the $2 billion in sales revenue would be used to help out PA's education system; however, in the same breath the Governor wants to cut education expenses. Should PA get out of the business of selling alcohol, there is no guarantee that the Corbett would actually shift the funds into a block grant for education and the schools when in the same breath he wants to cut expenses. While the Governor does have public opinion in his favor as many Pennsylvanians are in favor of privatization, the unions are his biggest opposition and they also wield a certain amount of political power and control. After all, if the liquor stores were sold and run by private businesses, there would be a few thousand state employees who would either have to be absorbed into the LCB and/or other state agencies in comparable positions, be furloughed while the state figures out what to do with them or be shifted onto unemployment which does not seem to be a viable solution. Instead of looking to privatization as a solution to problems that do not exits, Corbett needs to get a new hook for his re-election campaign. While $2 billion seems like an easy way to bring in a bucket of money that typically takes the PLCB four years to earn, the fact is that they money that the state bring into the state each month from the sale of alcohol is ongoing. When the $2 million is gone, there will be no more wine and spirits stores to sell to bring in new profit. With the stores being a money maker and a multitude of jobs at stake, privatizing alcohol only seeks to reward Corbett's image among voters and enhance his prospects at re-election.

Bucks County Republicans gave Harry Fawkes an emotional sendoff Saturday and selected a new chair for the first time in four decades with the unanimous election of Pat Poprik. Poprik, who has been a state committeewoman for the county since 1984, had been vice chair for four years until Saturday's GOP committee reorganization meeting in Doylestown. She is the first woman to hold the position, just as she was the first woman to be treasurer of the state party, a position she held for 17 years. "So much for the Republican war on women," Poprik said. "It just shows the Republican party doesn't have a war on women. We're very much for women." Poprik said her emotions were mixed. "I'm sad to see Harry go. He has been such a force in the state," she said. "I'm looking forward to new opportunities. It's going to be a challenge." She said one of her goals is to get more Republicans on the voting rolls. In recent years Bucks Democrats have passed the GOP in voter registration. David Christian, who planned to challenge Poprik, said a death in the family prevented him from running for the post. "If anything can knock you off track and settle your feet down it's losing a loved one," he said. "I wish Pat the best, and I wish our party the best. But you have to pick your battles, know when to hold and known when to fold. The situation is, family first." A four-minute video of Fawkes was shown during Saturday's meeting. Poprik called it "a special moment for Harry. I'm really happy for him." She said since the two have worked "so closely the last four years," the change in leadership will not be difficult. "It'll be different not having his presence there as much," she said. "In some ways it'll be a challenge, but I'm looking forward to it. I'm ready to hit the ground running." The rest of the executive board includes Joe Cullen, vice chair; Tom Profy III, secretary; Joe DiGirolamo, treasurer; and Linda O'Neill, assistant secretary treasurer

Note: The finances would be in better hands with Jake (Greasy Thumbs) Guzik (Capone Finance Guy) then DiGiroloamo.

March 19, 2013 - The patriarch of the Bucks County Republican Party was laid to rest Monday. But as friends told stories of Harry Fawkes' leadership, the smiles and laughs held their own against the grief and tears. Fawkes, who was the county's GOP chairman for four decades until his retirement last summer, was buried at Bristol Cemetery on a cold day filled with warm words to remember him by. He died March 12 at the age of 83. "Boy, we do have a wonderful life to celebrate today, don't we," Pastor Herb Phillips of Trevoise United Methodist Church told a large crowd at Tomlinson Funeral Home in Bensalem, where rows of seats were added to accommodate guests. "He was a stable man in an unstable world." State Sen. Tommy Tomlinson, R-6, and Lt. Gov. Jim Cawley spoke fondly of Fawkes, mentor to both. "He listened to people who lived on the street and in the neighborhood," Tomlinson said. "He listened to the people who lived in Croydon." Cawley said Fawkes, who met several U.S. presidents, "had a way of being a great equalizer. He treated everyone the same way." Tomlinson told a story of Cawley's desire to run for the Legislature back in the 1990s. Cawley, who paid his dues knocking on doors on behalf of the GOP to register voters, and later became Tomlinson's chief of staff, stood in front of Fawkes for an hour to plead his case. Fawkes, known as a good listener, sat back and heard Cawley's argument to run for elected office. His response: "No." "It worked out," said Cawley, who became chairman of Bucks County commissioners before becoming lieutenant governor. Cawley called upon the gathering to "celebrate the life of this giant, because we shall never see his like again.” Fawkes, said Cawley, was “like a grandfather to me. Don’t get me wrong, it was a tough-love grandfather.” For a decade, he said, Fawkes referred to him as “the kid.” Cawley called Fawkes “the only man in commonwealth history who was responsible for the election of two lieutenant governors” — Cawley and Mark Schweiker, who later replaced Tom Ridge to become governor. Schweiker also attended the funeral, as did Congressman Mike Fitzpatrick, R-8; state Sen. Chuck McIlhinney, R-10; Bucks GOP chairwoman Pat Poprik; Commissioner Charley Martin and several row office officials, including Prothonotary Pat Bachtle, Sheriff “Duke” Donnelly, Controller Ray McHugh, Clerk of Courts Mary Smithson and Treasurer Bill Snyder. Former Bucks County Commissioner Andy Warren and former Montgomery County Commissioner Jim Matthews also attended the service. A red-eyed Schweiker said many of the people in the room “owed their success” to Fawkes. Pastor Phillips used a Cawley comment in this newspaper to illustrate Fawkes’ essential political principle: “Do what is best for Bucks County, what is best for Pennsylvania and, ultimately, what is best for the people. If you accomplish that, it was good politics.” He spoke of Fawkes as an outdoorsman, who enjoyed time at his cabin in Tioga County, where he hunted. He also fished in Alaska. “That was his heaven on earth,” Phillips said. And, of course, there was Mary, his wife of 65 years. She passed away in December, just as Alzheimer’s disease was taking hold of her husband. The couple raised three children and later had five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. Last week, Cawley called them “soulmates, life mates, two wonderful people.” On Monday, Phillips spoke of the rare times the two would disagree. Both, he said, could be stubborn. And if you were in ear shot, all you could do is “sit back, shut your mouth and listen.” Phillips said “Harry has joined his wonderful wife Mary in heaven. There’s no doubt about that.” Later, he added, “Harry would never say it’s a bad day to go to heaven. There are a lot of Republicans up there.”

Note: Assuming Heaven is Awaiting is an awful big presumption.

WASHINGTON -- Abortion opponents plan to march in Washington in a demonstration that coincides with the landmark U.S. Supreme Court decision that created a constitutional, nationwide right to abortion...

Note: Even at the Protest they have the likes of K-Street Rick Santorum looking like he cares about the interests of the people.

The US Policies here are to let the Power Control Group define normal social behavior of abortion as just a simple means for management of family planning, rather than consider this a policy of last resort. Hence we lost 55 Million American Children. This wrecks families, leads to many divorces. Hence this policy of Planned Parenthood becomes of policy of the Enemy within (the Communists), seeking to destroy the United States. Here also with respect to the US immigration policies the Immigration Rate is about equal to the abortion rate. Now in the US instead of having 55 Million Americans we now have about 55 Million who immigrated to the United States.

- <http://www.ncregister.com/blog/pat-archbold/democrat-leader-operated-abortion-clinic>

BY PAT ARCHBOLD Tuesday, June 07, 2011 - If there were any question what type of blood runs through the veins of the Democrat party, this piece should answer that question. Abortion money is the life-blood of the Democrat party. Not only were the Democrats willing to shut down the entire federal government to keep taxpayer money flowing to Planned Parenthood; not only is the Obama administration willing to cut off Medicaid funding for millions of poor people in Indiana to keep the money flowing to Planned Parenthood; but now in a shocking development, we find that the Congresswoman selected by the Democrat party to recruit candidates for Congress founded, owned, and operated an abortion clinic. My co-blogger Matthew Archbold has a report at Creative Minority Report that details how Rep. Allyson Schwartz of Pennsylvania, who has been tapped to run candidate services for the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, owned and operated a business that butchered babies and women. One fact that has gone unmentioned in all the media reports trumpeting Schwartz's ascendancy is that Allyson Schwartz, besides having a perfect pro-abortion record in Congress, co-founded and acted as Executive Director of an abortion clinic in Philadelphia for 13 years (1975-1988). The clinic was called the Elizabeth Blackwell Center which is ironic because Blackwell, the first female physician in the U.S., was pro-life. The clinic was not without its troubles. The Philadelphia Daily News quoted a call from a Republican candidate that detailed an assortment of lawsuits against the clinic: "18 lawsuits have been filed against Miss Allyson Schwartz's clinic, including assault, battery, negligence, perforated bowels and uteruses," the woman said, "and even abortions performed without consent of her patients. In 2002, the Blackwell clinic declared bankruptcy due to diminished demand for abortion and stiff competition in the area. In its last year, the center still performed about 1,500 abortions. According to the Daily News, the center derived its largest share of revenue from abortions. You have to understand how important Schwartz's new position is for the Democrat party. The abortionist Schwartz will be in charge of recruiting, vetting, and influencing considerable funding for all Democrat candidates for Congress. Since leaving the abortion business, Schwartz has remained just as committed to abortion. Since Schwartz left the abortion business, she hasn't forgotten her past. NARAL has consistently rated Schwartz a perfect 100 score. EMILY's List, the radically pro-abortion PAC, has donated hundreds of thousands of dollars to Schwartz, giving her campaign far more than any other organization. According to one site, EMILY's List donated almost $500,000 to Schwartz. In return, Schwartz voted against the Child Interstate Abortion Notification Act, the Unborn Child Pain Awareness Act, and the Stupak Amendment. Schwartz even sponsored the Freedom of Choice Act (FOCA) which would have erased all federal, state, or local limitations on abortion up to an including the ninth month of pregnancy. And this is the woman who will largely decide which candidates will be selected. The unholy alliance between the Democrat party and big abortion has moved to the next level. The Democrat party IS big abortion.

April 3, 2013- Video: Planned Parenthood Official Argues for Right to Post-Birth Abortion [Excerpts] Florida legislators considering a bill to require abortionists to provide medical care to an infant who survives an abortion were shocked during a committee hearing [the week of March 24] when a Planned Parenthood official endorsed a right to post-birth abortion. Alisa LaPolt Snow, the lobbyist representing the Florida Alliance of Planned Parenthood Affiliates, testified that her organization believes the decision to kill an infant who survives a failed abortion should be left up to the woman seeking an abortion and her abortion doctor. "So, um, it is just really hard for me to even ask you this question because I'm almost in disbelief," said Rep. Jim Boyd. "If a baby is born on a table as a result of a botched abortion, what would Planned Parenthood want to have happen to that child that is struggling for life?" "We believe that any decision that's made should be left up to the woman, her family, and the physician," said Planned Parenthood lobbyist Snow. Rep. Daniel Davis then asked Snow, "What happens in a situation where a baby is alive, breathing on a table, moving. What do your physicians do at that point?" "I do not have that information," Snow replied. "I am not a physician, I am not an abortion provider. So I do not have that information." Rep. Jose Oliva followed up, asking the Planned Parenthood official, "You stated that a baby born alive on a table as a result of a botched abortion that that decision should be left to the doctor and the family. Is that what you're saying?" Again, Snow replied, "That decision should be between the patient and the health care provider." "I think that at that point the patient would be the child struggling on the table, wouldn't you agree?" asked Oliva. "That's a very good question. I really don't know how to answer that," Snow said. "I would be glad to have some more conversations with you about this." Later another representative asked Snow, "What objection could you possibly have to obligate a doctor to transport a child born alive to a hospital where it seems to me they would be most likely to be able to survive?" Snow said Planned Parenthood was concerned about "those situations where it is in a rural health care setting, the hospital is 45 minutes or an hour away, that's the closest trauma center or emergency room. You know there's just some logistical issues involved that we have some concerns about."

American birth control activist, sex educator, and nurse. Sanger popularized the term birth control, opened the first birth control clinic in the United States, and established organizations that evolved into the Planned Parenthood Federation of America. Sanger was also a writer. She used this method to help promote her way of thinking. She was prosecuted for her book Family Limitation under the Comstock Act in 1914. She was afraid of what would happen, so she fled to Britain until she knew it was safe to return to the US. Sanger never stopped trying to complete her goal- to help women realize that they could have control over their body. She was a feminist, and she wanted to fight for women's rights. Sanger's efforts contributed to several judicial cases that helped legalize contraception in the United States. Sanger is a frequent target of criticism by opponents of abortion and has also been criticized for supporting eugenics, but remains an iconic figure in the American reproductive rights movement.^[2] In 1916, Sanger opened the first birth control clinic in the United States, which led to her arrest for distributing information on contraception. Her subsequent trial and appeal generated controversy. Sanger felt that in order for women to have a more equal footing in society and to lead healthier lives, they needed to be able to determine when to bear children. She also wanted to prevent unsafe abortions, so-called back-alley abortions, which were common at the time because abortions were usually illegal. She believed that while abortion was sometimes justified it should generally be avoided, and she considered contraception the only practical way to avoid the use of abortions. In 1921, Sanger founded the American Birth Control

League, which later became the Planned Parenthood Federation of America. In New York City, she organized the first birth control clinic staffed by all-female doctors, as well as a clinic in Harlem with an entirely African-American staff. In 1929, she formed the National Committee on Federal Legislation for Birth Control, which served as the focal point of her lobbying efforts to legalize contraception in the United States. From 1952 to 1959, Sanger served as president of the International Planned Parenthood Federation. She died in 1966, and is widely regarded as a founder of the modern birth control movement.

- Quote from Margaret Sanger in Woman, Morality, and Birth Control, 1922, page 12: "We should hire three or four colored ministers, preferably with social-service backgrounds, and with engaging personalities. The most successful educational approach to the Negro is through a religious appeal. We don't want the word to go out that we want to exterminate the Negro population, and the minister is the man who can straighten out that idea if it ever occurs to any of their more rebellious members." April 1932 Birth Control Review, pg. 108: "Birth control must lead ultimately to a cleaner race."
- "Our failure to segregate morons who are increasing and multiplying... demonstrates our foolhardy and extravagant sentimentalism ...[Philanthropists] encourage the healthier and more normal sections of the world to shoulder the burden of unthinking and indiscriminate fecundity of others; which brings with it, as I think the reader must agree, a dead weight of human waste. Instead of decreasing and aiming to eliminate the stocks that are most detrimental to the future of the race and the world, it tends to render them to a menacing degree dominant ... We are paying for, and even submitting to, the dictates of an ever-increasing, unceasingly spawning class of human beings who never should have been born at all."

Born in Corning, New York, Margaret was much influenced by her early life; Her mother was a staunch Roman Catholic who went through eighteen pregnancies, although with only eleven live births resulting. This convinced the impressionable young Margaret that women should not be 'slaves' to their own bodies. In 1902 she married William Sanger who was a German Jew and a political leftist radical; Margaret wasted no time in imposing strict sexual restraints on his behaviour with her, for she had no intentions of following her mother's path. In fact, they had two children. It was William who introduced her to militant socialism and atheism. They went to live in Greenwich Village where they surrounded themselves with all the leftist radicals of the day.

"Ten years after her marriage Margaret Sanger started writing a column for the New York Call entitled "What Every Girl Should Know." She also distributed a pamphlet, Family Limitation, to married women. Sanger repeatedly caused outrage and risked imprisonment by acting in defiance of the Comstock Law of 1873, which had specifically outlawed the dissemination of contraceptive information and devices, such being regarded as obscene at that time.

"Sanger was in fact a Marxist, an atheist and a racist with some real enthusiasm for human eugenics. As an example, she – like many eugenicists of her era – saw Australian aborigines as under-evolved and of little value except where they could be studied to gain better knowledge of evolution. She certainly believed that they, and other black peoples, should not be allowed to enter the white gene pool. Holding a strong drive to promote contraception and negative eugenics (that is, to prevent the birth of ‘weaker’ human elements), this woman believed that women should be allowed to have control over their own bodies.

Margaret Sanger founded Planned Parenthood in 1916, and has been dubbed the “Mother of the American abortion Holocaust.”

The following outlines Sanger’s philosophy of life ...

- a) Sanger was a militant radical who believed parents had the right to kill their children;
- b) In her book, Women and the New Race, Sanger said that it is “merciful” to kill infants; she said that, “The most merciful thing that the large family does to one of its infant members is to kill it”;
- c) Sanger was a socialist, feminist, occultist, and a believer in promiscuous sex;
- d) Sanger believed in controlled reproduction to purify the races (i.e., sterilization);
- e) Sanger founded and edited The Woman Rebel, the masthead read “No Gods, No Masters”;
- f) Sanger coined the term “birth control” in 1912, founded the Voluntary Parenthood League in 1914, and founded the first birth control clinic in 1916 in Brooklyn, NY;
- g) That Planned Parenthood was anti-Christianity from the beginning is without dispute. In her first newspaper, The Woman Rebel, Margaret Sanger admitted that, “Birth control appeals to the advanced radical, because it is calculated to undermine the authority of the Christian Churches. I look forward to seeing humanity free someday of the tyranny of Christianity no less than Capitalism”;
- h) Sanger was the president of the American Birth Control League in 1939 from which Planned Parenthood was formed, and she remained honorary chairman of Planned Parenthood until her death in 1966;
- i) Sanger called the marriage bed “the most degenerating influence in the social order” (i.e., she was a “free love” advocate); she believed all sexual conduct was normal as long as harm was not brought to others;
- j) Sanger was violently anti-family: “only individuals count, not families”;
- k) Sanger believed the poor should be sexually sterilized, and she endorsed euthanasia; she believed in selective breeding of the human race to produce “perfect” individuals (it was later that the Nazis adopted this philosophy). Her slogan was “more children from the fit, less from the unfit”;
- l) Sanger hoped for a motherhood that would refuse “to bring forth weaklings ...” She wrote of “woman’s upward struggle” and described the “lack of balance between the birth rate of the “unfit” and the “fit” as “the greatest present menace to civilization”;
- m) Sanger hoped to use birth control to exterminate the genetically inferior races, which to her meant most of the non-white world; she wrote an article in 1921 called “Birth Control to Create a Race of Thoroughbreds”;
- n) In 1922, Sanger declared that Jews, Hispanics, and blacks were “human weeds” that would by reproduction, “bring a dead weight of human waste into the world”; in April of 1932, Sanger outlined a “plan for peace” to eliminate these groups (in an article titled “Birth Control Review”). The article also advocated: (1) close doors to emigration to certain aliens; and (c) establishment of sterilization and/or segregation of issengenic groups, namely people considered to have bad genes;

- o) Sanger approved of Hitler's extermination of Jews in Europe, and had as a goal the extermination of the black race in the U.S. through sterilization and encouraging birth control via prominent black clergy (who would be "paid-off" if necessary);

Planned Parenthood in 2015 has a budget of about 1.5 Billion of which 500 Million is Federal funding. Congress is debating to defund using public financing of Planned Parenthood.

Five sting videos from an anti-abortion group, released throughout July, show Planned Parenthood executives and other workers discussing how the organization provides fetal organs and tissues to researchers. The videos led to a new, Congressional investigation of Planned Parenthood — a Senate vote to defund Planned Parenthood, which ultimately failed on Monday. The videos also open a debate that split bioethicists decades ago: Is it ethical to use the remains of aborted fetuses for medical research?The Center for Medical Progress, which opposes abortion, had actors pose as buyers for a company that procures fetal tissue for researchers. They secretly recorded lunches Planned Parenthood executives, as well as trips to clinics in Colorado and Texas.In the videos, officials discussed the types of body parts in demand and how doctors will slightly alter abortion procedures to deliver the type of organs customers might want. They also show footage of fetal remains in Planned Parenthood labs.The videos themselves raise two issues. The first is whether Planned Parenthood's actions are legal; selling fetal remains for profit is against the law. But Planned Parenthood says it only charges enough to cover its own costs for preserving and transporting the fetal tissues, and that's allowed under federal law. The larger issue raised by the video is harder to resolve, and it's about the medical ethics of using fetal tissue in research.

As Bill Gates faces a lawsuit for the illegal testing of tribal children in India, it appears that his crimes against humanity have finally caught up with him. A recent report published by Health Impact News has reported that the Gates Foundation has found itself facing a pending lawsuit, due to an investigation that is being carried out by the Supreme Courts of India. Health Impact News stated: “While fraud and corruption are revealed on almost a daily basis now in the vaccine industry, the U.S. mainstream media continues to largely ignore such stories. Outside the U.S., however, the vaccine empires are beginning to crumble, and English versions of the news in mainstream media outlets are available via the Internet. One such country is India, where the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation and their vaccine empire are under fire, including a pending lawsuit currently being investigated by the India Supreme Court.” [1]

Rep. Charlie Dent (R-Pa.) came out in support of gay marriage on Wednesday in an interview with The Washington Post. "Life is too short to have the force of government stand in the way of two adults whose pursuit of happiness includes marriage," Dent told the Post. "As a Republican, I value equality, personal freedom and a more limited role for government in our lives... I believe this philosophy should apply to the issue of marriage as well." U.S. District Judge John E. Jones III, an appointee of President George W. Bush, struck down Pennsylvania's gay marriage ban last Tuesday. Dent congratulated gay couples last week in light of the ruling. "U.S. District Judge John E. Jones's ruling on this issue appears to be the final legal say on this matter. To all the individuals who will now be able to marry as a result of today's ruling – Congratulations!" Dent told the Patriot-News. This is a clear departure from when Dent voted for the gay marriage ban as a state representative in 1996. Dent is a moderate within the Republican Party who previously bucked the GOP on the 2013 government shutdown.

PA 7th Con Pat Meehan Delaware - Part of Bucks GOP Power Base

- <http://meehan.house.gov/>
- <http://www.hsgac.senate.gov/subcommittees/investigations>
- <http://www.hsgac.senate.gov/about/majority-bio>

Prior to Meehan becoming a Congressman, he was the US Attorney for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania in charge both the FBI and the US Dept of Justice. On September 17, 2001, Patrick L. Meehan was sworn in as United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, which under Mr. Meehan's leadership, has grown to include 124 Assistant United States Attorneys, 50 Special Assistant U.S. Attorneys, and 112 support staff. In the aftermath of the events of September 11, and at the direction of Attorney General John Ashcroft, Mr. Meehan coordinated law enforcement and emergency response efforts and formed an Anti-Terrorism Task Force (ATTF). The ATTF in the Eastern District has since been recognized as a national model for its point-of-contact system with the elected District Attorneys in the nine county territory. In addition to his work with the ATTF, Mr. Meehan frequently visits with local enforcement and elected officials on a variety of issues in an ongoing, district-wide, outreach effort. In January 2003, during the Project Safe Neighborhoods National Conference in Philadelphia, Mark Baldwin, District Attorney of Berks County, Pennsylvania, was named the nation's outstanding local prosecutor for his work in implementing Project Safe Neighborhoods in partnership with the U.S. Attorney's Office. In July 2002, President Bush named Mr. Meehan to the Corporate Fraud Task Force. Meehan is one of only seven U.S. Attorneys to serve on the panel, which is designed to provide direction for the investigation and prosecution of everything from cases of securities and accounting fraud to related financial crimes committed by CEOs and employees. U.S. Attorney Meehan also sits on the Attorney General's Advisory Subcommittees on White Collar Crime, on Terrorism, and on Civil Rights. Mr. Meehan's Civil Division continues its nationally recognized work in healthcare fraud and has recently received a grant to further its efforts in fighting both predatory lending and elder care abuses. From January 1996 to September 2001, Mr. Meehan served as district attorney of Delaware County, Pennsylvania. His tenure was highlighted by a number of initiatives to address community-based problems. He created a Special Victims Unit for Domestic Violence, which insured that prosecutions could proceed without requiring the victim to testify, making it easier for victims to apply for protection from abuse orders. Mr. Meehan also partnered with the county's President Judge to reorganize the Juvenile Court process, expanding the number of Youth Aid Panels for first-time offenders, and establishing a truancy project to cut daytime crime and a "Communities that Care" intervention program for at-risk juveniles. Mr. Meehan also made the district attorney's office the host agency for the Department of Justice's Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force.

Note1: Prior to his election as district attorney, Mr. Meehan served as senior counsel and executive director for United States Senator Arlen Specter. He was also an associate at the law firm of Dilworth, Paxon, Kalish and Kauffman. Mr. Meehan grew up in Cheltenham, Pennsylvania. He graduated in 1978 from Bowdoin College and from Temple Law School in 1986. Dilworth is the legacy of the corrupt Dilworth Administration former Mayor of Philadelphia PA. From this corruption came the legacy of the Philadelphia DA office here:

- JFK Single Bullet Theory via Specter and Sprague
- Former DA/Mayor/Gov Ed Rendell
- Former Hate Crime DA Lynn Abraham.

Note2: Meehan worked for the state of Pennsylvania. He awarded himself several million in High Technology contracts while at the same was an employee for the state. He pled down the felonies to a misdemeanor and gave up his state pension. Hence via the support of Senator Specter, Meehan was able to become in charge of prosecution of White Collar Crime and Organized crime. At the same time two other Bucks GOP cronies Con Greenwood and Sen Specter were at the same time in charge of investigation of organized crime. Hence the US Senate, US House, FBI and US Dept of Justice were all corrupted at the same time via the Power structure with a direct nexus to the Capone Chicago Syndicate. This was also the timeframe during the investigation of the 9/11 issues.

Note3: One can see now the US Senate Committee on Permanent investigation is controlled by Senator Lieberman. Hence the legacy to the Mafia Republican Jewish Coalition and Lieberman nexus to Senators Specter and McCain remains.

38.17.7.1 Meehan and Cantor Touts benefits of Charter Schools. Public Debt Private Profit

http://www.philly.com/philly/education/20130924_House_Majority_Leader_slams_federal_school_policy_in_Phillly_visit.html

Sept 24, 2013, www.philly.com U.S. REP. Eric Cantor, the House majority leader, popped in on a 10th-grade geography lesson at Freire Charter School in Center City yesterday before delivering a speech that jumped all over the political map. Cantor, a Virginia Republican, came to Philadelphia to slam federal education-funding policy and to call out U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder for a lawsuit the Department of Justice filed last month against the state of Louisiana. The Justice Department wants to stop the state from using public-school money to pay for private tuition in nearly half of its school districts since they remain under a federal desegregation order. Cantor called "absurd" the department's claim that the program would impede desegregation in Louisiana. "The truth is an overwhelming majority of the students who receive the scholarships and benefits from this program are minority children from low-income families," Cantor told Freire students assembled for his speech. "If the attorney general does not withdraw this suit, then the United States House will act," Cantor said. "We will leave no stone unturned in holding him accountable for this decision." A Department of Justice spokeswoman responded by saying the agency is not trying to end Louisiana's school-voucher program and instead is seeking information for the "straightforward goal" of ensuring the program complies with "longstanding federal desegregation orders." Cantor did not take questions from the media after his speech, so it is unclear how any action the House takes would affect Holder, since the U.S. Senate is controlled by Democrats and President Obama appointed him. Protesters briefly caught Cantor's attention near the school's entrance as they chanted, "Hey hey, ho ho, Eric Cantor's got to go." American Federation of Teachers president Randi Weingarten noted in a statement released late yesterday that Cantor "did not spend one minute" in his speech discussing the Philadelphia School District's funding crisis. "Are political leaders so out of touch that they can use a school system in crisis as a backdrop to peddle a school privatization scheme?" Weingarten asked. Cantor's speech framed school choice as "the greatest civil-rights challenge of our time." He lamented the "hundreds of billions" the federal government has spent since the mid-1960s trying to improve education, saying it has had "little to no effect."

Cantor also predicted that school vouchers "will be a reality for every student in America" within the next 10 years.

Note: Meehan is tied to BucksGop.org responsible for the financial destruction of Philadelphia Public Schools via prior PA Gov Mark Schweiker. BucksGop powerbroker Deon co-owner of Bethlehem PA Sand Casino with Sheldon Adelson. Adelson is the power broker for Cantor.

38.17.9.1 Summary of PA Senator Greenleaf's Legacy.

- Ran for Congress in PA 13th Congressional District. After losing the PA 13th Congressional District was revamped with the Infamous Greenwood Strip. (Literally ripping the district in half).
- Head of the PA State Senate Judiciary (Pa Judge Ruled he will not have competition for PA state Senate primary in his last primary – Cronyism!)
- Actively Involved in Supporting Radical Feminist Legislation e.g. The PROTECTION FROM ABUSE LAW THAT HE WROTE DOES NOT HAVE CHECKS AND BALANCES FOR DEFENSE AGAINST FALSE CHARGES. HE SAYS HE "SEES NOTHNG WRONG WITH THIS LEGISLATION". THIS LAW IS NOW USED IN PA COURTS DESTROYING Thousands of PA's Father's Relationships with their children monthly!
- Convicted Upper Moreland Killer Dan Traub said in his trial "You (society) made me what I am!". Greenleaf's laws in family court helped create this situation! He has the blood of children on his hands from the consequences his legislation! Destroying a parent's legal parental rights is a form of child abuse!
- His laws are changing the roles of enforcement from public protectors to public predators!
- Greenleaf opposed legislation of a Bill for Doctors providing free medical care to protect them from lawsuits All of the democrats voted supported the legislation. They however needed support from republican side only two voted to kill the bill. Greenleaf was one of them! This shows his real agenda is to take care of special interests (“maximize revenue for the legal professional”) take precedence over the concerns of the public which he is supposed to represent! Now look at the Medical Malpractice Insurance issue causing Doctors to Pack up and go.

- Another PA Bill Greenleaf introduced along with former PA Sen Edwin Holl allowed liable lawsuits to protect the reputation of the deceased. Greenleaf supported attaching to this bill, liable lawsuits to disallow anyone making political speech against elected officials as illegal! (This is how much he cares about the 1st Amendment!)
- Greenleaf Was on the Payroll of the State Prison HMO Correctional Physicians Services Inc $2000/Week. This was then sold to Prison Health Services Inc He gets $175/Hr! The firms awarded the deal are Greenleaf's Largest contributors! (Are paybacks a form of kickbacks in cases like this? Conflict of interest costing PA Taxpayers money!!!)
- Greenleaf Supports Unlimited High Tech Professional Labor Immigration which destroys middle class jobs! (Wash Times)
- Greenleaf used Official Public Notices that keep his voters aware of his recent policies this apparent abuse of Public funds during an economic decline. Greenleaf shows his disregard for costs to taxpayers. He should be required to pay this back!
- When Greenleaf appeared at a local Nov 2001 Hatboro Parade, they Jeered at him for Destroying the 13th Congressional District!
- Greenleaf was Former Upper Moreland official was supposed to clean up the corruption and smut. Yet somehow the Massage Parlors Stayed open for years within a few blocks of his office and police station!. When this became an election issue, all of sudden they closed down for a few weeks prior to his election(s).
- Greenleaf's Power Brokers are the BucksGOP.org leaders Barness/Fawkes and Septa's Deon.
- Greenleaf works as a board director for SEPTA Right next to Pasquale Deon Chr Brd. Wonder how a Lower Bucks Beverage Vendor gains such this kind of influence? Perhaps he gave them an offer then could not refuse! Wonder why Greenleaf associates with folks like Fawkes and Deon? You can bet it is not for the common good PA citizens and has everything to do with steering contracting awards to the right folks! Note: Prior Septa Pres left due to Death Threats after she stepped down Deon became the leader.
- Under Greenleaf's family court laws for Protection from Abuse (PFA) one does not have any legal protection for false accusations! A local resident was falsely accused of PFA charges. Two judges stated to the resident “We believe you are innocent – However we will convict you anyhow”. The Upper Moreland Police told resident, they knew his spouse was mental unbalanced and that they were tied of her calling them. They said to the resident “We are going to destroy you marriage for you!”. Resident asked police for assistance to provide mental health treatment. Local then proceeded to show her how file for divorce and setup Resident with Protection from Abuse (PFA) charges to have resident forcefully removed from the which he owned. This resulted is a break down the resident's parental relationship with the children. Under PFA One is not even allowed to call the children without a court order! Next the Police came and told the resident that “You should not be parent to resident's own children!”. These resulted in the malicious destruction of a family by the state. They said to resident if you do not like this get the laws changed!. The author who wrote and implemented these laws is Pennsylvania Senator Greenleaf! Resident met Greenleaf. Greenleaf stated that he sees nothing wrong with his laws! This shows how much Greenleaf really cares about the common good of the people he is supposed to service. If he has to make laws to enrich the special interests this will supersede any actions for the benefit of the people he claims to represent.
- PA Senator Greenleaf stated to the Resident he wrote the family law legislation on behalf of his friend US Senator Arlene Specter. Specter has stated he was the proud author of the violence against women act. This was used by the Clinton Administration in the agenda – “It takes a village to raise a child”. In translation, the legal community is expanding by providing legislation in the area of family law, the destroy the family and the legal parental rights to the children via family court. For each dollar, awarded in family court, the Federal Government will reimburse the County Courts 2/3 of the amount (67%). Hence the Family courts via the divorce legislation of the Clinton Era via US Senator Specter and State Senator Greenleaf destroyed families at the while creating a very large income stream to the legal community.
- Greenleaf also supported the Gambling Legislation in Pennsylvania. Greenleaf, however only would agree to permit Slots in the Casinos. Greenleaf opposed allowing Casino's to have table games installed during the Administration of PA Gov Ed Rendell. Greenleaf was the key opposition to allowing Mafia Casinos to have table games. During this timeframe his house caught fire about three o'clock in the morning. Almost everyone in the home barely got out with their lives. During this time, Greenleaf was unavailable to attend to his duties in the Pennsylvania State Legislature. Just a few days after the fire, Pennsylvania Governor Ed Rendell signed the law to permit table games at the Casinos. Since PA Senator Greenleaf was the opposition, this sounds like a case of Jewish Lighting that benefits the interests of the Pennsylvania Casino Industry.

UPPER MORELAND, Pa. - January 3, 2010 -- Fire officials say a Pennsylvania state senator and his family escaped an early morning fire that destroyed their home in suburban Philadelphia. Sen. Stewart Greenleaf is a Montgomery County Republican who chairs the Senate Judiciary Committee. Officials say the blaze broke out at the two-story Upper Moreland Township home around 3:30 a.m. Sunday. Fire officials say Greenleaf, his wife and son escaped after they were awakened by smoke detectors and saw flames on the first floor. About 150 firefighters responded and officials say high winds and freezing temperatures made fighting the fire difficult. It was declared under control around 5 a.m. The Senator released the following statement on the loss of his home:

"My family and I have suffered the loss of our home to fire in Upper Moreland Township last night," said Senator Greenleaf. "At approximately 3:00 a.m. Sunday morning, I awoke to a sounding smoke alarm. I rushed my family outside to safety and thankfully no one was injured. The entire structure was fast consumed by the blaze. The cause of the fire is not yet known I would like to thank all of the fire companies and volunteers who responded immediately and fought the fire under extreme conditions. While we have lost all of our possessions, we are thankful for our lives. I ask that you keep my family in your thoughts and prayers as we go through this difficult time."
There's no word yet on what started the blaze. (Jewish Lighting?)

38.17.9.3 We Should Reform Child Support & Divorce Laws Protection from Legal Abuse

Note: Currently with Child support the local county get 66.67% of the funds collected in Matching Federal Funds. Hence this is setup to destroy families and parents while financially benefiting the local county governments. Hence they have no reason to solve the issues. Also about 35% of all revenue to the legal community is derived from family law. Former US Senator Specter was a major sponsor of the current Child Support Laws along Greenleaf with parties in the legal system. (VAWA – Violence against Women Act – Known of Protection from Abuse [PFA]). This follows one of the Communist planks to destroy the family.

- <http://www.eagleforum.org/publications/column/we-should-reform-child-support.html>

Phyllis Schlafly June 19, 2013 President Obama's Father's Day speech included one provocative yet very declarative sentence: "We should reform our child support laws to get more men working and engaged with their children." Obama didn't elaborate, but we can build on what he said because, yes indeed, child support laws urgently need "reform." Many fathers work long hours and make incredible sacrifices for their families. Child support formulas are based on the ridiculous notion that a father would make those same sacrifices for an ex-wife who is living with her new husband or boyfriend and for children he never or seldom sees. Many fathers would happily do more to support their children if they got to see their kids more and were more engaged in their lives. But current child support laws have reverse incentives: the more the mother prevents such contact, the more child support she receives. Child support is not even really child support because the mother has no obligation to spend the money on the kids, and faithful payment of child support does not buy the father time with his kids. The purpose of child support is to allow the mother to maintain a household and standard of living comparable to the father's. Because of perverse incentives, a so-called "no fault divorce" is often followed by a bitter child custody dispute with bogus allegations of domestic violence or child abuse, and the winner can get a huge child support windfall. Usually the family court judge cannot tell who is telling the truth. Reform should eliminate these bad incentives. No parent should collect money for denying kids the opportunity to see the other parent, and payments should not exceed reasonable documented child expenses. If both parents are willing and able to manage joint child custody, there should be no necessity for child support payments. As annoying as the IRS is, it follows accounting rules and taxes only actual income. But a family court judge can ignore current income (or lack thereof) and instead calculate child support on past income or on imputed future income. A California wife, under community property laws, is entitled to 50 percent of her husband's income and 50 percent of her own income. But if she divorces him and gets custody of their two kids, she then gets 40 percent of his income plus 100 percent of her own income. We can no longer ignore how taxpayers' money is incentivizing divorce and creating children who never or seldom "engage" (Obama's word) with their fathers. We can no longer ignore the government's complicity in the predictable social costs that result from more than 17 million children growing up without their fathers. Fatherless boys and girls are much more likely to run away, abuse drugs, get pregnant, drop out of school, commit suicide, or end up in jail. The root of the family court evil is the redefinition of a legal doctrine called the Best Interests of the Child. This phrase originally meant the presumption that courts should generally stay out of family decisions because, as the Supreme Court wrote in 1979, "natural bonds of affection lead parents to act in the best interests of their children." Some states say "best interests" and some say "best interest," but it means the same thing. That's just a buzzword to conceal the transfer of parental rights to judges. This phrase is now used as an affirmative grant of power to family court judges to overrule parents on all child-related issues. Three things are wrong with the current interpretation of Best Interests of the Child. First, it is contrary to the rule of law by giving judges extraordinary discretion to enforce their own prejudices and to micro-manage lives. They punish parents for things that were never written down as crimes or offenses. Second, the "best interests" standard undermines parental rights. Instead of saying that parents are the final authorities, as the family unit was understood for centuries, it allows judges to make routine child-rearing decisions. Third, courts have no competence to determine a child's best interests, so they rely on poorly trained evaluators who make unscientific recommendations about custody and visitation. There is rarely any evidence that a court-defined schedule is better than joint child custody. Reform should get family courts out of the practice of pitting parents against each other, entertaining criminal accusations without evidence, assessing onerous support payments, sending dads to debtors' prison, and appointing so-called "experts" to make parenting decisions. Instead, the courts should protect the rights of both parents. In past Father's Day messages, Obama has blamed fathers for abandoning their responsibilities, but this year's message had no such comment. Perhaps Obama has learned that many fathers are locked out of their rights and responsibilities by family courts.

Phyllis Schlafly September 11, 2013 -Political support for traditional marriage seemed to evaporate in the summer of 2013. The U.S. Supreme Court did not rule that there is a constitutional right to same-sex marriage, but the homosexuals are behaving as though it did and filing lawsuits in many states to expand the Court's decision, while the advocates of traditional marriage have retreated into silence. It wasn't just that the Supreme Court ruled that the Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA) is unconstitutional. It was the way that the 5-to-4 majority issued what Justice Scalia called a "jaw-dropping ... assertion of judicial supremacy over the people's Representatives." Republicans in the House of Representatives had hired top legal talent to defend DOMA in court. After the Supreme Court decision, they quietly canceled their legal support for defending marriage and have said nothing since. We hardly hear anyone standing up for the proposition that traditional civil marriage is essential. Marriage provides the legal construct that supports family autonomy for the benefit of the next generation and also for the kind of free America most of us want to live in. Village is the progressives' metaphor for the theory that the government, speaking through judges, psychologists, school personnel, and social workers, should supervise child rearing rather than parents. These government busybodies have co-opted the centuries-old concept of "the best interest of the child," changing its meaning to justify a judge (rather than parents) making all decisions about children. Millions of divorced dads have discovered that a judge on his own can decide that fathers have no right to see their kids, but must pay child support anyway. Many of our social ills are attributable to children being cut off from a relationship with their dads. You might think that the court intervenes only when there is a nasty divorce conflict, or when a parent has some serious fault such as being a drug addict, but that is not true. No family is safe from a judge's unilateral decisions. When the popularly elected San Francisco sheriff had an argument with his wife, the authorities decided to bust up his marriage. Neither husband nor wife complained, and both wondered why it was anybody's business. The city liberals all said that his family was everyone's business, so he was hit with a one-year restraining order preventing him from seeing his wife and child. He had to call on all his political friends to avoid losing his job. Even if you are a libertarian who believes in writing your own marriage contract, the law makes it impossible to make a binding agreement for the custody and support of your own children. Any such contract can be voided and replaced with the biased ruling of some judge. The nuclear family is the essential building block of a free society with limited government. The nuclear family is essential to have an economic structure of limited government because, without it, the government moves in to provide what the family would have done for itself. There are now 79 separate programs handing out taxpayers' cash and valuable benefits totaling nearly a trillion dollars annually. A combination of forces abolished the American family as we knew it. The many factors include changes in the law such as unilateral divorce, court decisions especially abuses by the family courts, the culture, curricula and customs from elementary grades through college, taxpayer financial incentives for illegitimacy, and pronouncements of self-appointed experts who think they know how to manage children better than parents. We must shame and cut off taxpayers' money from the groups that killed the American family, including feminists, judges, legislators, public school teachers and administrators, so-called child protection agencies, professors, psychologists, college courses, government handouts, and Democratic politicians who want big government spending in order to win votes. The problem cannot be remedied by prohibiting same-sex marriage (even by a constitutional amendment) or by telling men to "man up." Feminists demand that we abolish the patriarchy, and they argue that its worst offense is expecting mothers to care for their own children, so the taxpayers should pay for daycare for all children. Feminists are still whining on television in 2013 about President Nixon's veto of the comprehensive Mondale daycare bill back in 1971. All those who care about preserving religious and economic freedom that is the hallmark of America should realize that we cannot reassert constitutional rights, private enterprise, balanced budgets, reduction of government spending, and freedom from government management of our lives, without the traditional intact, self-supporting nuclear family functioning as the foundation of our society.

38.17.10 Prior PA State Sen Conti Doylestown PA-CEO of PA Liquor Control Board.

- http://www.philly.com/philly/news/politics/state/20130125_Departing_LCB_chief_Conti_will_return_to_his_post_on_emergency_basis.html

Gov. Corbett has made no secret of his desire to abolish the chief executive officer's post at the Liquor Control Board, the oft-maligned agency clearly doesn't agree. It is not only temporarily bringing back its departing CEO, but it will pay him $80 an hour. The taxpayers will, that is. Such is the arrangement between the LCB and Joseph Conti, who made it known a week ago that his last day as chief executive officer would be next Friday. Under the agreement, Conti is to return Feb. 19 for up to 95 days, at $80.16 an hour. He is being brought back under a provision in the state retirement code that permits former employees to return on an emergency basis while still collecting pensions. The move comes as the LCB continues to try to fend off the Corbett administration's push for privatization and contends with a state Ethics Commission probe into allegations that top officials at the agency, Conti among them, accepted gifts and favors from vendors. Conti, a onetime Republican legislator from Bucks County, declined to comment Thursday. LCB spokeswoman Stacy Kriedeman said in an e-mail that the agency was bringing Conti back to help with coming legislative hearings on the agency's budget as well as the search for someone to fill his shoes....

The circumstances surrounding Conti's departure were not entirely clear. For his part, he issued a statement Friday night saying his six years with the LCB had been "my greatest source of career satisfaction." According to the LCB, Conti submitted a letter to the board in December saying he would "retire" Feb. 15. Kriedeman, the agency spokeswoman, said Conti then asked the board to move up his last day on the job to Feb. 1. "Joe had a verbal conversation with the board at the last board meeting and . . . the board agreed," Kriedeman wrote in an e-mail. "That was a decision between Joe and the board." As for the ethics investigation, a source close to Conti speaking on condition of anonymity said it did not factor into his decision. The allegations that triggered the probe were contained in a confidential report completed in March 2012 by the state Inspector General's Office. That report, a copy of which The Inquirer obtained, described Conti, LCB member Patrick J. "P.J." Stapleton III, and marketing director James Short as having accepted gifts and favors in 2011, including wine and tickets to sports events and golf tournaments. Stapleton has since quit the board. The report also suggested Conti had lobbied a vendor and pressed others inside and outside the agency - including Philadelphia restaurateur Stephen Starr - for jobs for his brother and daughter. Conti has declined numerous requests for comment on the report and ethics investigation.

Note1: Joe Conti's Father owned the Conti Restaurant in Doylestown PA. Word on the Street during this time his father Don Conti and Herb Barness were the leaders controlling the interests of Chicago Boys in Bucks County PA via www.bucksgop.org. Conti rose to power via Harry Fawkes who helped him become both a State Representative and then PA State Senator for Doylestown PA. His legacy was followed by Charles McIlhinney the current PA State Senator for the community. In a public meeting as PA State Senator for PA-10th Senate District, Conti was asked the following question.

Q: Sen Conti you are the leader of the Pennsylvania State Senate Committee in Charge of the Pennsylvania State Police. What are you doing about the issue of Robert Asher involvement with Pennsylvania Politics?"

A: Conti States – "Asher is a Man of Honor the fifth most powerful person in the Republican Party in the United States. I will not touch him".

Note2: In that moment Conti knew exactly what he was saying about Robert Asher, in the context of his father being a Major Don in control of the Doylestown PA area. This statement was in the context of what former Mafia Boss Joe Bonanno states in his book...Man of Honor.

Former PA State Senator Conti for Doylestown was Head PA Senate High Tech & State Police Commissions. Conti was so thankful for Fawkes support to get the job, just like PA Senator Tomlinson. Are they representing the people or Family Gambling Interests via Fawkes Agenda! Conti supported the Pennsylvania Gambling Legislation. He stated that he did not see a need for a state Gaming Board. Subsequently the PA State Gaming board was overrun by massive corruption. Conti's lack of oversight permitted the environment for the corruption.

Conti supported the Pension legislation resulting in doubling the pension cost for state officials and teachers. Now under the Corbett administration the state is facing a massive $40 Billion debt to meet these pension liabilities.

Conti also received political support from the Pornography Industry. (PA Cabaret Club – A Strip Club).

Conti in a public meeting in Doylestown Township was talking about the development of Offices in Township. The land was home to a trailer park. One of the local citizens in the meeting said to Conti – “I am a retired disabled veteran. I have lived in my home here for over thirty years. What can you do to help me?”. Conti responded to the veteran. “You just have another place to live”. So much for him helping the community.

Like his predecessor Joe Conti, Charles McIlhinney was first a local State Representative and then became the State Senator for Doylestown, PA. His rise to power was via his support from his Mother Keren McIlhinney. Keren worked as a County Court Official. She worked closely with Harry Fawkes to steer Water Contracts to the private firm the Bucks County Water and Sewer Authority (www.bcwsa.net). Keren was involved with David Sanko another Court House Employee. They were caught by other Employees when they walked in on the two in the passion of an affair. The two were then required to resign and leave office. Subsequently Sanko placed signed in Lower Bucks County in the PA 8th Congressional Race of Peter Kostmayer against Fitzpatrick addressing his gay personality. Sanko has been married about five times. After he left Bucks County, Fawkes had him appointed under PA Gov Mark Schweiker to head the state Homeland security division. In the eighteen months that Schweiker and Sanko were in office, the finances of the state went from a two billion surplus to a two billion debt. During this period Sanko was to communication line between Fawkes and Gov Schweiker to suggest were to steer the Pork in a Pay to Play scam with state contracts. Afterwards Sanko came back to Bucks County appointed by the Commissioners as the Vice President involved with the Day to Day management of the county affairs on behalf of the county commissioners.

In a public meeting at the Doylestown Court House, the commissioners were challenged over their position to bring back Sanko. The response to the audience was “How dare you challenge my decision to hire David Sanko”. Sanko was subsequently let go for non-performance of duties. During his tenure however he did replace the voting machines with some cheap Chinese electronic devices without the ability to provide an audit trail of the voting. The voting machines cost about $6,000 each. The most likely actual cost was less then $2,000. Hence leaving $4,000 per machine in pork.

Senator McIlhinney is the Chair of the Law and Justice Committee which is playing a pivotal role in the privatization of the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board (PLCB). Chuck McIlhinney like Conti, supported the Mafia

State Gambling Legislation and takes campaign funds from the Smut industry dominated by the Jewish Mafia. McIlhinney was cited in local newspaper reports as being a no-show in important votes necessary to represent the local community legislative interests such as the schools. The reports indicated McIlhinney would be on trips to Europe with his family at important times that required him to represent the community with his vote.

38.17.11.1 Christian, Godshalk Say BucksGop Rigged Endorsement (Keren & Sanko)

- http://articles.mcall.com/1992-02-27/news/2839794_1_endorsement-31st-district-republican-committee-godshalk

February 27, 1992|by HAL MARCOVITZ, The Morning Call Two Republican candidates who lost out on their party's backing for the state's 31st Legislative District seat announced yesterday they intend to stay in the race because they think the GOP's endorsement was rigged to favor a rival. The candidates included author and veterans' activist David A. Christian and Lower Makefield Township Supervisor Grace M. Godshalk. A third candidate, Frank J. Fazzalore, also appeared with Christian and Godshalk and said he intends to stay in the race. Fazzalore said, though, that he has no evidence the endorsement process in the 31st District was rigged. The 31st District is the new legislative seat in the Newtown-Makefield area created this year through the reapportionment process. Seven Republican candidates screened before the GOP organization for the seat earlier this month, and Lower Makefield Supervisor David J. Steil emerged with the party's endorsement. But Christian and Godshalk charged that party leaders filled at least 10 vacancies on the 58-member 31st District Republican Committee at the last minute so they could vote for Steil in the endorsement process. Steil was endorsed on the fifth ballot with 37 votes from committee members. Godshalk received 17 votes while Christian polled four votes. On the first ballot, though, Steil received 17 votes while Godshalk received 16 and Christian received 13. The other four candidates shared the remaining votes. Christian and Godshalk contended that if those vacancies hadn't been filled at the last minute, Steil would have received no more than seven votes and would have soon dropped out of serious contention. *The two candidates charged that GOP Executive Director David Sanko and Republican Vice Chairwoman Keren McIlhinney engineered the endorsement for Steil. "I could not believe the political process is a done deal or a charade," said Christian, who twice ran for Congress during the 1980s and was briefly a candidate for the congressional seat this year. 38.17.11.2 Battle Looms to Unseat BucksGop VP Keren McIlhinney - Sen McIlhinney's Mom

- http://articles.mcall.com/1986-06-27/news/2518953_1_fawkes-bucks-county-republican-party-democratic-party

June 27, 1986|by HAL MARCOVITZ, The Morning Call A faction of the Bucks County Republican Party that has gained a reputation as a maverick group will take a step tomorrow toward taking over a leadership position in the organization. The group, which despite its independent character has racked up a string of election victories, is headed by Lower Makefield Township GOP leaders Daniel and Barbara Rattigan. Barbara Rattigan will be seeking the vice chairmanship of the party in the organization's biennial election meeting. She will be attempting to unseat 14-year incumbent Keren McIlhinney, a Doylestown Republican leader who has long been an ally of Chairman Harry W. Fawkes. The challenge by the Rattigans and their supporters marks the first time since Fawkes and McIlhinney came to power in the 1970s that anyone has questioned the guidance of the party in such an overt fashion. The challenge will also bring to a head an intraparty squabble that began about the time the GOP administration lost the courthouse to the Democratic Party in the 1983 election. In an interview, Barbara Rattigan said Fawkes and McIlhinney have grown out of touch with the rank-and-file membership of the party. "I've decided to run because I would like to generate some positive changes in the Republican Party," she said. "We've suffered some political losses." While some GOP insiders don't necessarily side with the Rattigans, they find it hard to argue with the degree of success the couple has achieved. Last year, for example, then-District Attorney Michael J. Kane lost his bid to obtain a party endorsement for judge in the May Republican primary. The Rattigans backed Kane and helped him defeat a party-endorsed candidate. The move by the Lower Makefield Republicans so incensed Fawkes that he fired Barbara Rattigan from her post as GOP coordinator of the 142nd Legislative District. Nevertheless, Kane is now referred to in the courthouse as "His Honor." The Rattigan-backed candidates this spring included state Rep. James C. Greenwood, R-143rd District, who won his party's nomination to run for state Senate, and Doylestown attorney David Heckler, who emerged from a field of four contenders to win nomination for Greenwood's seat. The support of the Rattigans for Heckler did not sit well with McIlhinney. She was a supporter of Michael Smerconish, who lost to Heckler in the 143rd District primary. Other political allies of the Rattigans include District Attorney Alan M. Rubenstein, state Sen. Edward L. Howard, R-10th District, and former Commissioner Denver Lindley Jr. McIlhinney says the challenge is being mounted because the Rattigans feel they are on their way to gaining enough power to take over. The run for vice chairman, McIlhinney says, is merely a dry run for a future challenge to Fawkes. "They want to dictate to the workers who the candidates will be," says McIlhinney. The vice chairman adds that the leadership in Doylestown has often bent over backward to accommodate the Rattigans. "That's caused problems with the rest of the party because they think Harry gives in to them," she says. According to David Sanko, executive director of the Bucks County GOP, all Republican committee members in the county will be eligible to vote in the election, which will be held at party headquarters in Doylestown. Most are not expected to attend, preferring instead to send in proxy votes. The winner will need a majority of the votes cast. There are 450 committee members. Republican leaders are expecting a genuine floor fight to erupt, with the two sides seeking votes right up to the moment the roll call vote begins. Barbara Rattigan denies the challenge is directed specifically at Fawkes, although she says the chairman ought to realize by now that for some time several committee members have not been satisfied with the direction of the party.

On Saturday January 3, 2105, Dr. David Duke appeared on CNN's Michal Smerconish show, discussing the media-created "uproar" over Rep. Steve Scalise. Dr. Duke took the opportunity to hammer home some plain truths about media bias, and the racism against European Americans in this interview.

In 2014, political blogger Lamar White, Jr. uncovered anonymous comments from 2002 on the white supremacist website Stormfront that referenced a speech Scalise had given, from which he concluded Scalise addressed the European-American Unity and Rights Organization (EURO), a group founded by David Duke. White posted his findings on his blog and soon after the media took note. Scalise said that he had spoken at the conference in 2002 and stated that he did not know of the "racist nature of the group".^[24] According to John Hayward at Human Events the story of Scalise's speaking engagement in 2002 was "either dubiously sourced, a mistake, or an outright hoax" and noted that the media attention lasted roughly one day. Louisiana governor Bobby Jindal (R) and congressman Cedric Richmond (D) defended Scalise's character. Speaker of the House John Boehner voiced his continued confidence in Scalise as Majority Whip. Several Democrat members of Congress, as well as Mo Elleithee, a spokesperson for the Democratic National Committee, criticized Scalise, and challenged his statement that he was not aware of the group's affiliation with racism and anti-Semitism.

Sanko's Legacy extends back to Day in which he paid for Billboard Ads against Congressman Kostmeyer about the morality of him being gay. Interesting approach for a man with 4 or 5 marriages plus affairs. One of the most famous was in the Bucks County Court House with another employee Keren McIlhenney in which other workers walked right into the situation. This was when they privatized the Sewage System to be privatized into the Bucks County Water and Sewer Authority with ownership interests by Harry Fawkes and Keren. After being a Bucks County Commissioner, Sanko was appointed under PA Gov Mark Schweiker to manage the PA Homeland Security Dept (FEMA). Fawkes and Sanko worked together to direct the management of the contracts awarded (Pay for Play?). Subsequently he was appointed as the Bucks County Manager working directly to manage the business affairs of entire County under the Commissioners. Sanko was pressured to leave. More recently we see Sanko oversees Pennsylvania Townships for the entire state. This shows the extent of control the BucksGOP.org has within the entire state. All is well the Pigs are still in the Trough.

Paul Clymer is a Pennsylvania State Representative of Perkasio PA District 145. Paul Clymer heads up both the Education and Gaming Oversight Committees for the state house. Paul Clymer's leadership here has been a major failure for the Citizens of Pennsylvania. The schools of the city of Philadelphia are over $600 Million in debt. The Pennsylvania Gaming Oversight has performed very poorly and has encountered many scandals. At least in New Jersey they restrict the locations where Casinos can be placed in Pennsylvania this has been a major failure with a Casino located next to Valley Forge another was to be placed next to Gettysburg. Paul Clymer is part of the Bucks County Republican Party (www.bucksgop.org) .

My job isn't to be loved. You don't become a judge because you want everybody to love you. You don't become a district attorney because you want everybody to love you. You do your job to try to protect people. As district attorney, it was my job to protect the public at large. As a judge, it is my job to protect these juveniles – Judge Dianne Gibbons.

Note1: (Rubenstein and Gibbons) A Cover up of the murder of Bensalem's Dianne Deller does not seem to be part of her Job Description. In the Deller case, she was found dead in her Bensalem PA apartment. The coroner's autopsy indicated death by a blunt force trauma to the head. The blood test indicated minor amounts of marijuana in her system. The Bucks County DA at the time Dianne Gibbon (now a Judge) rules death by drug accidental overdose. The primary suspect in the case was the boyfriend who was the building superintendent for the apartment complex where she lived. He father was a Bucks County Detective with very close ties to the political machine of www.BucksGop.org via Harry Fawkes. Fawkes was the power broker for both Judges Rubenstein and Gibbons who were involved with the case.

Note4: (Rubenstein) At lunch time, Judge Alan Rubenstein was at lunch. Several people were coming up to him congratulating on a child custody ruling that day. When he was asked what did he do? Judge Alan Rubenstein stated – He had a case that day in which a Mother of a young boy who was between the ages of two and three years old wanted to allow the boy to be adopted by a Lesbian couple and the father was in court that day asking the Judge to allow him to gain custody of the child he had with the unwed mother and raise his son himself rather than have the son be raised by a Homosexual couple. That day Judge Alan Rubenstein ruled that the Father would have no legal custodial rights to his son and awarded custody of the child to the Lesbian couple. (In effect, Alan Rubenstein destroyed the legal parental rights of the father that day).

1/23/13 - Pa. turnpike officials still getting free cars State auditors are criticizing the fact that Pennsylvania Turnpike commissioners are still driving free cars. The Philadelphia Inquirer reports Turnpike Commission Chairman William Lieberman got a $40,000 2013 Jeep Cherokee on Dec. 28. The newspaper reports he handed down the 2012 model he got a year earlier to fellow Commissioner Pasquale "Pat" Deon. The other two commissioners, Michael Pratt and William Lincoln, drive 2011 Ford Explorers that cost $33,945 each. Outgoing Auditor General Jack Wagner criticized the free cars, calling them an "overly generous" perk. Tolls went up Jan. 6. State auditors write that they don't believe part-time commissioners require permanently assigned vehicles. They say the commission should discontinue the practice. The same BucksGop Political Machine under the Rendell administration got PA Mafia Casinos and attempted to privatize the PA Turnpike. 38.17.17.1 PA Nabs Turnpike Officials in Play to Play Contracts

- <http://www.attorneygeneral.gov/press.aspx?id=6839>

March 13, 2013 Charges Filed against eight men in Turnpike 'Pay to Play' scheme

HARRISBURG - Pennsylvania Attorney General Kathleen G. Kane announced today that criminal charges have been filed against a former State Senator, five former Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission officials and employees, and two businessmen who had multi-million dollar contracts with the Turnpike. The former state officials are accused of using 'pay to play' schemes for financial and political gain. Their criminal acts resulted in the misdirection, misuse, and theft of millions of dollars of public money, according to Kane. Charges have been filed against former State Senator Robert Mellow, former Turnpike Commissioner Mitchell Rubin, former Turnpike Chief Executive Officer Joseph Brimmeier, former Turnpike Chief Operating Officer George Hatalowich, and former Turnpike employees Melvin Shelton and Raymond Zajicek. In addition, charges have been filed against Turnpike vendors Dennis Miller and Jeffrey Suzenski. They are charged with a variety of offenses, including conspiracy, commercial bribery, bid-rigging, theft, conflict of interest and corrupt organization violations. "The grand jury found that these men were using the Turnpike to line their pockets and to influence elections," said Kane. "That is stealing from the public, pure and simple." After a lengthy investigation, the 33rd Statewide Investigating Grand Jury found evidence that the Turnpike Commission has been corrupted by some of its very own officials and by some of the individuals who do business with it. The grand jury heard evidence of secret gifts of cash, travel, and entertainment, and the payment of substantial political contributions to public officials and political organizations, by private Turnpike vendors and their consultants. The charges show those who 'pay to play' have sought and been rewarded with multi-million dollar Turnpike contracts. As a result, the public has lost millions of dollars, according to Kane. "The findings of the grand jury are very troubling to me," said Kane. "These were blatant actions. It was almost as though they had no fear of being caught. That kind of behavior has to stop." "These presentments open the window to the operation of the Pennsylvania Turnpike commission and many of their associates in the private sector," said State Police Commissioner Frank Noonan. "It shows a culture of greed, corruption and political influence that is beyond imagination. The people of Pennsylvania deserve better." In particular, the grand jury found substantial evidence that former State Senator Mellow, during his tenure as Democratic Floor Leader, directed that his Chief of Staff secure Turnpike contracts for key contributors and supporters. Mellow also told his Chief of Staff to order individuals at the Turnpike to provide political support and raise campaign funds on his behalf, according to the grand jury. Kane thanked the Pennsylvania State Police for their assistance with the investigation. The case will be prosecuted in Dauphin County by Senior Deputy Attorney General Laurel Brandstetter of the Attorney General's Criminal Prosecution Section. Below is a complete list of the defendants and the charges against them.

- Robert Mellow, 70, 110 Oak Hill Drive, Archbald, PA, is charged with two counts corrupt organizations, two counts of restricted activities, one count of commercial bribery, one count of unlawful bid-rigging, one count of restricted activities, one count of criminal conspiracy, and one count of failure to file expense account.

- George Hatalowich, 47, 224 Tiverton Lane, Harrisburg, PA, is charged with seven counts of restricted activities, three counts of unlawful bid-rigging, two counts of corrupt organizations, one count of commercial bribery, one count of criminal attempt, and one count of criminal conspiracy.
- Dennis Miller, 51, 1626 Whitley Drive, Harrisburg, PA, is charged with one count of unlawful bid-rigging, one count of theft by unlawful taking, one count of theft by deception, one count of restricted activities, and one count of criminal conspiracy.

Former Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission Chairman Mitchell Rubin seemed contrite Thursday as he pleaded guilty to a corruption charge and was sentenced to 2 years of probation in the so-called "pay for play" scandal. "I just apologize for anything I've done wrong," the 62-year-old Philadelphian said as he stood before Dauphin County Judge Richard A. Lewis. "I followed the custom when I should have followed the law." Rubin's plea to a single count of commercial bribery narrows the number of defendants remaining in the corruption case to two. Rubin entered his plea under an agreement with the state attorney general's office, which recommended the probation sentence. Senior Deputy Attorney General

Susan L. DiGiacomo said Rubin's plea dealt with his acceptance of meals and contributions to "third-party political candidates" from Ciber Inc., a turnpike information technology contractor, from 2005 to 2009, "upon the understanding that these benefits would influence (his) conduct in relationship to the affairs of the (commission), and without the consent" of the turnpike board. As Rubin left the courtroom, his lawyer, Stephen LaCheen, declined to discuss details of the plea agreement, but did say his client won't be testifying against the remaining defendants, former turnpike CEO Joseph Brimmeier and ex-chief operating officer George Hatalowich. Brimmeier and Hatalowich had been scheduled for trial starting Monday, but their trial has been continued at the request of the defense and no new date has been set. In addition to imposing the probation sentence, Lewis fined Rubin $2,500 and ordered him to serve 100 hours of community service. In return for the guilty plea to the bribery count, the attorney general withdrew nine other criminal charges against Rubin. J.J. Abbott, a spokesman for the attorney general's office, called the outcome of Rubin's case "reasonable." "It's a serious charge," Abbott said. "He admitted guilt." The charge to which Rubin pleaded carries a maximum possible penalty of up to 2 years in prison. To date, no one charged in the turnpike corruption case has gone to jail. Lewis last month dismissed six of seven criminal charges against another turnpike scandal defendant, former state Sen. Robert Mellow, and prosecutors subsequently withdrew the remaining charge. In September, two former business executives accused in the case, Dennis Miller and Jeffrey Suzenski, received probation terms and were allowed into a county program that will enable them to avoid criminal records. Two former turnpike workers received probation sentences after entering guilty pleas earlier this year.

38.17.17.2 Chinese Investors Line Up to Fund PA Turnpike

Chinese investors have begun signing up to spend $500,000 each to help pay for a long-awaited connection between the Pennsylvania Turnpike and I-95. In exchange, the investors hope to get permanent residency in the United States for themselves and their families. Agents for the novel financing plan have been pitching the proposal in China since September, touting the project's financial stability and showcasing photos of Gov. Corbett and Turnpike Commission officials breaking ground for the construction in Bucks County. "Guaranteed by U.S. Government, Class A+ Repayment Credit!" proclaimed the Chinese-language website promoting the investment last month. "A key expressway-connecting hub project in U.S.A.!" (The website language has been toned down following inquiries by The Inquirer, to remove suggestions of government guarantees for investors. Now, the site says, "Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission enjoys an A+ rating," a reference to the Standard & Poor's rating on turnpike revenue bonds, which aren't involved in this financing plan.) More than 100 investors have applied so far to invest in the I-95/turnpike connection. The Turnpike Commission is counting on 400 wealthy foreign investors, mostly from China, to provide $200 million for the $420 million project. The rest of the money will come from federal and turnpike funds. The heavily indebted Turnpike Commission is borrowing the $200 million from foreign investors under the federal Immigrant Investor Program that grants "EB-5" immigration visas to foreigners who provide at least $500,000 to U.S. projects that create 10 or more American jobs. The deal offers something for everyone: The turnpike will get cheap money, saving about $35 million over traditional borrowing costs over five years. The turnpike will pay a 2 percent annual interest rate, about half the current rate for municipal-bond borrowing. The foreign investors and their families will get a quick path to legal residence in the United States, though they may lose money on their investment. The brokers and lawyers will collect millions in commissions and fees, with each of the 400 investors paying $50,000 to the dealmakers and $15,000 to the lawyers. The first $50 million installment from the foreign investors is due to be paid to the Turnpike Commission by April. The Berwyn company created to make the deal, the Delaware Valley Regional Center, expects to meet that deadline, said Joseph P. Manheim, its managing director. "It is going as we had planned," he said. "We are on track." The deal was suggested to turnpike officials by Turnpike Commissioner Pasquale T. "Pat" Deon Sr., a Bucks County restaurateur, beer distributor, and Republican power broker. Deon, who also is chairman of the board of SEPTA, saw SEPTA make a similar deal to borrow $175 million to pay for its smart-card fare-payment system in 2011. Similar EB-5 foreign-investor deals have provided funding for the Convention Center, the Temple University Health System, and the Comcast Center. The turnpike deal was created by Manheim and other officials of the Swarthmore Group, a

Philadelphia investment-management firm headed by James E. Nevels, a prominent Republican donor and fund-raiser. Nevels is chairman of the board of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia and was the first chairman of the Philadelphia School Reform Commission, appointed by Republican Gov. Mark Schweiker. Nevels is also a former president of the Pennsylvania Society, the organization best known for its annual Manhattan gathering of Pennsylvania politicians, lobbyists, and business people. The Swarthmore Group is not involved in the turnpike deal; the Delaware Valley Regional Center was created as a separate company, said Manheim, chief investment officer of the Swarthmore Group. "We've been doing it on our own time," he said. Young Min Ban, portfolio manager for the Swarthmore Group, is director of the Delaware Valley Regional Center. Pamela Mandle, chief executive officer of Swarthmore Group, is a minority investor in the regional center. The deal is structured so the Turnpike Commission can repay the foreign investors after five years with cash or with a municipal bond. The bond pricing will be set on the date the loan is made, which means the bond could be worth considerably less than $500,000 in five years if interest rates rise. The investors, in effect, are the turnpike's hedge against interest-rate increases. Manheim acknowledged the investors might not get all their money back. "There are a variety of risks associated with any kind of investment," he said. "That's a given." For many EB-5 investors, though, the prime attraction is a U.S. green card, not the full return of their investment. Construction began in October on the long-awaited direct connection between I-95 and the turnpike. PKF-Mark III Inc. of Newtown won the contract to build the first section of the $420 million Stage 1 of the new interchange, which will finally provide an unbroken I-95 between Maine and Florida. For decades, I-95 has been incomplete in New Jersey near Trenton. When Stage 1 is completed in 2018, I-95 will be rerouted onto the Pennsylvania Turnpike east of the connection and then onto the New Jersey Turnpike. The current I-95 north of the connection will be redesignated as I-395 or I-195. Since I-95 was built through Bucks County in 1969, crossing the turnpike, truckers and motorists have complained about the lack of a direct link between the two superhighways. Drivers must exit to local roads and then get on the adjoining highway. That was the result of a federal prohibition at the time on using federal highway money for toll roads, such as the turnpike.

Two leading figures in the Bucks Republican Party will now help oversee a county program of low-interest loans and tax-free financing for local businesses. SEPTA Board Chairman Pat Deon of Middletown and Lower Southampton tax collector Jennifer Yori were appointed Wednesday to sit on the Bucks County Industrial Development Authority. Yori was a Republican candidate for county commissioner in early 2011. Deon previously served as campaign manager for Congressman Mike Fitzpatrick. They will be two of five members on the industrial authority, which provides tax-free, low-interest loans to businesses in Bucks. One job must be retained or created for every $50,000 borrowed through the program, officials said. Commissioners Charley Martin and Robert Loughery said the appointments had nothing to do with politics. Diane Marseglia, the lone Democrat on the board of commissioners, said she was outraged and shocked. “We live in a county of over 600,000 residents — plenty of whom could serve on this board,” said Marseglia. “I was really hoping that this could stop being a political environment, but apparently that’s not going to happen,” she added. Loughery said Deon and Yori were great candidates for the authority. Yori was a former director of regulatory affairs at Bank One before her election to township collector more than 10 years ago. Deon’s experience as chairman of SEPTA could prove critical, Loughery suggested. “There are different aspects of economic development, not the least of which are rails and road,” Loughery said. Deon is also a managing partner in the Sands Casino in Bethlehem and owner of Deon Beverages in Bristol. During the meeting, Marseglia labeled Deon as “the financial chairman of the Republican Party for all intents and purposes.” Deon was not present for Wednesday’s commissioners meeting. Reached later in the day, he labeled Marseglia’s statements as “defamatory.” “I have not given any money to a local or state candidate in more than five years,” he said. As managing partner in a state casino, Deon said he was forbidden to take part in any local or state campaigns. “I’m offended and I will demand an apology,” he said.

Deon’s appointment to the industrial development authority comes after the resignation of Harry Fawkes. The chairman of the Bucks County GOP, Fawkes served on the industrial development authority for more than 25 years, Loughery said. The newspaper was unsuccessful in reaching Fawkes for comment on Wednesday. He submitted his letter of resignation early in March, Loughery said.

Note: We see how well Con Fitzpatrick creates jobs in India via his ties to IndiaPac. Deon’s Direct ties to Sands Casino ownership along with Sheldon Adelson show a direct business relationship to the Heir of the Lansky Crime Family.

38.17.17.4 Deon and Ally PA Sen McIlhinney May Abort Privatization of PA Liquor System

- http://m.phillyburbs.com/blogs/news_columnists/jd_mullane/bucks-gop-may-dash-pa-booze-reform/article_1c621371-ec9f-51c5-9aa3-181f9e0ec2a8.html?mode=jqm

Privatizing the despised state-controlled liquor system has made it through the House in Harrisburg, but it might not make it through the Bucks County Republicans. The Harrisburg Patriot-News reports that this has to do with state Sen. Chuck McIlhinney's friendship with Pasquale "Pat" Deon Jr. Deon is the Mr. Big of state Republican politics. He chairs SEPTA. He is a member of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission. He has gaming and construction interests. He is a GOP rainmaker. He also owns a beer distributorship in Fairless Hills, Deon's Beverages. His business would certainly face increased competition if the state unleashes free market forces by dissolving its overpriced, poorly run, crummy-selection, DMV-like booze business. But dissolution of the state store system happens only if the proposed booze reform law makes it out of the Senate Law and Justice Committee, which Sen. McIlhinney, R-10, chairs. He could kill reform, if he chooses. Patriot-News reporter Robert Vickers reports: "(Deon's) close relationship with McIlhinney and his widely perceived role as godfather of the Bucks County Republican Party are also the reason many involved in the liquor debate believe McIlhinney will be an automatic 'no' vote on -- as one Capitol insider put it -- 'anything (except the) modernization' of the state liquor system." The story also plows deep into weeds of county political backroom backstabbing, reporting on party dysfunction over re-electing county Prothonotary Patricia Bachtle, and bad blood between Bucks GOP Chairwoman Pat Poprik and McIlhinney, his mother and Deon. The Patriot-News story has a lot of dots, but not a lot of connecting lines to booze reform legislation. Reporter Vickers describes Bucks County backroom Republicanism as "Byzantine." That's too tidy. I've always thought county GOP politics looks more like a plate of spaghetti and red sauce dumped on the floor. I called Mr. Big, Pat Deon, but haven't heard from him. (All these years buying cases of brew at Deon Plaza in Fairless Hills and this is the thanks I get?) I also called Sen. McIlhinney, but have not heard back. Privatizing the booze biz in Pennsylvania is high-stakes politics for Gov. Tom Corbett, who is running for re-election next year. If he pulls it off, he almost certainly skates to a second term. Privatize state stores, and it would not matter if likely challenger Allyson Schwartz travels the highways of Pennsylvania tossing fistfuls of free birth control to the masses. Corbett wins. Gov. Corbett visited Bristol Township on Friday, so I asked him about the Patriot-News story about county GOP infighting. He turned steely and wouldn't let me finish my question as we walked through an industrial park on Hayes Boulevard. "I'm not gonna get involved in, you know, people speculating on who's doing what to who or anything like that. I don't get into that," the governor said, his shock of white hair unmoved by heavy winds. Infighting among Bucks Republicans will not sink his ambitious booze reform. "We've got a bill," Corbett said. "It went from the House to the Senate. I know the Senate's working on it. I feel comfortable that we'll get something out of the Senate. We'll get a bill resolved...Hopefully by the ...end of June we're done. We'll be out of the (liquor) business." Unless the dysfunctional Republicans in Doylestown kill it. If you are looking forward to a day when you can snag a six-pack of Bud at Wawa, purchase a good chilled white wine at Giant, or a fifth of Jameson's at a place where the clerk actually knows something about the stock, then you are among the 70 percent of Pennsylvanians who favor privatizing the state-owned liquor system. To Mr. Big and Sen. McIlhinney and Pat Poprik: Don't screw it up.

The Democratic National Committee's announcement Thursday that Philadelphia will host the party's 2016 presidential nominating convention - beating out Brooklyn, N.Y., and Columbus, Ohio - caps a yearlong campaign during which the city's marquee political names set aside their differences and pulled together as a team. The decision means Philadelphia will double down on national, even global, attention in the next 18 months, with Pope Francis visiting in September and the Democrats convening here in July 2016. It also means the nation's first African American president will get to deliver his political swan song in a city whose voters overwhelmingly supported his historic election and reelection "This was a rigorous, grueling, and appropriate process for the kind of decision the DNC had to make," Mayor Nutter said after the morning announcement. "This is a very serious matter. The world watches what happens in American politics." Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz, a Florida Democrat and chairwoman of the DNC, said Philadelphia won for three key reasons: logistics, security, and resources. "This was probably the most diligent process that we've been through in modern times to assure the best and most successful convention," she said. Ed Rendell, the former governor who is leading the local effort, praised Rep. Bob Brady, longtime chairman of the Philadelphia Democratic Party, for never giving up on the convention bid. "Truth be told, it was his idea," Rendell said. "He's an agitator." And a patient one: The push for the 2016 convention started before the 2012 convention. Brady urged Nutter in 2010 to apply to host the 2012 convention. Nutter, concerned about the city's finances at the time, ruled that out, but agreed to try for 2016. Rendell said Philadelphia 2016 - the nonprofit organization set up to coordinate the city's efforts - expects the convention to cost $84 million. Nearly $5 million has been raised, and the group has an additional $12 million in pledges, he said. David L. Cohen, executive vice president at Comcast and a nationally known campaign fund-raiser with close ties to Obama, will serve as senior adviser to Philadelphia 2016. Cohen knows the territory: He led the local group that raised the millions and hosted the 2000 Republican National Convention in Philadelphia. "We're confident we can raise" the $84 million, Rendell said. "In fact, we're going to try to get a little cushion in case there are contingencies." Nutter will leave office in early January but will remain involved in the convention effort as cochairman of Philadelphia 2016. Rendell is invested personally and professionally in this convention. He pledged $25,000 of his own money in November to help pay for it. And he is close with former Secretary of State

Hillary Rodham Clinton, the undisputed early front-runner for the Democratic nomination. Sen. Bob Casey, a Scranton Democrat, predicted that a Philadelphia convention could strengthen Clinton's chances. "If she's the nominee, and I think she will be, she's going to be very strong in that region and throughout the state regardless, but this can only help," Casey said. "And I think it will help all the way down the ballot." The intertwining of Philadelphia's political history with Obama's was not lost on national observers. David Plouffe, a longtime adviser to the president, recalled a pivotal 2008 speech then-candidate Obama delivered here at the National Constitution Center, on race relations. "8+ years after his 'race speech' in Philly, @Barack Obama will return to the City of Brotherly Love to pass the baton," Plouffe tweeted Thursday.

"What a journey." Josh Shapiro, a Democrat and chairman of the Montgomery County Commission, said the whole region came together to land the winning bid. "We showcased our infrastructure, fund-raising abilities and commitment to the Democratic Party," Shapiro said.

"Whether it was Bob Brady's hugs, Ed Rendell's calls, there was a total team effort." Rendell and Tom Ridge, a former Republican governor and the nation's first secretary of homeland security, wrote an Inquirer op-ed in late January to advocate for Philadelphia to host the event. The DNC decision drew praise from Sen. Pat Toomey. The Lehigh Valley Republican tweeted: "Great news. Philly will be a terrific host." Gov. Wolf, a Democrat, welcomed the decision and said, "We look forward to working with local leaders to ensure that Philadelphia will shine in the national spotlight."

38.17.18.4 PA Montgomery County Commissioner Shapiro Supports Gay and Moral Decay

Montgomery County intended to issue a marriage license to a same sex couple on Tuesday despite a state law barring such unions. However, just hours before the license was to be issued, the lesbian couple advised county officials that, on the advice of legal counsel, they would not seek such a license at this time. "While (Montgomery County Register of Wills D. Bruce Hanes) and his office were ready and willing to issue the first same sex marriage license in the history of Pennsylvania, my clients chose not to go forward because they were extremely concerned that the issuance of the marriage license would be challenged on procedural grounds without the courts ever addressing the actual issue of marriage equality," said Philadelphia lawyer Michael J. Diamondstein, who represents the couple whose names he declined to disclose. Hanes, a Democrat first elected to his post in 2008, said he was approached last week by the couple who indicated their intention of applying for a marriage license in the county. A lawyer by profession, Hanes, and his department solicitor, Michael Clarke, working with county solicitor Raymond McGarry, spent the next several days studying every aspect of the state's law barring same-sex marriages. This review included the recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling striking down the federal Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA) and state Attorney General Kathleen Kane's refusal to defend a similar DOMA law by Pennsylvania on the grounds that it, too, is unconstitutional. "Based upon the advice of Mr. Clarke, my own analysis of the law and mindful of the attorney general's belief that Pennsylvania's marriage laws are unconstitutional, I decided to come down on the right side of history and the law and was prepared to issue a license to the couple," said Hanes. "Had the couple sought the license today, I would have issued it and wished them all the freedom, independence, happiness and rights that our commonwealth's Constitution purports to grant them," said Hanes. The county had no intention of sneaking the license through the process. The communications office early Tuesday morning had issued a press advisory announcing a "major" press conference outside the county courthouse and advising media outlets to have a photographer present. In addition to the couple being present at the news event, Democratic county commissioners, Chairman Josh Shapiro and Vice Chairman Leslie Richards, would have flanked Hanes in support of marriage equality. "We should have marriage equality and Montgomery County should be in the forefront of that debate," said Shapiro. "Ultimately, that will have to be a debate that plays out in the Legislature and in the state courts." "I support marriage equality and would be proud to have Montgomery County have a part in this dialogue and move the issue in the right direction where all marriages are allowed and recognized by the commonwealth," said Richards. "This is a very important issue and I am proud that we could be stirring the momentum so that everyone who wished to be married can do so." One of those who would not have joined in the press conference is Republican Commissioner Bruce L. Castor Jr. Castor succinctly responded, "No," when asked whether he supports same-sex marriage

Note: Soon after the Supreme Court Decision to permit Gay Marriage but in direct defiance of the Existing Laws of the State of Pennsylvania. Montgomery County will issue Gay Marriage Licenses. This action shows the disregard of Commissioner Shapiro to uphold the laws that he swore to under oath. Commissioner Shapiro has shown he supports that agenda of the Jewish Mafia ADL to support Gay and Moral Decay over and above upholding the laws he was sworn to abide by.

The Anti-Defamation League has a longstanding commitment to protecting civil rights, particularly those that affect the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender (LGBT) community. These include addressing discrimination, hate crimes and marriage equality. The following highlights ADL's multifaceted work advocating for and educating about the LGBT community and the quest for equal rights. ADL's national commissioners have adopted several relevant national resolutions pledging a commitment to LGBT rights. In turn, the League has been a key partner in the fight to seek protections for gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender people in the workplace and beyond. Our advocacy reaches from federal and state courthouses to Congress and statehouses around the country. For nearly twenty years, ADL has ardently advocated in the courts on behalf of LGBT rights. ADL has filed amicus briefs and joined coalition briefs on issues that directly affect the LGBT community. This has included filings on the appellate levels in both state and federal courts....

New York, NY, May 10, 2012 ... The Anti-Defamation League (ADL) welcomed President Barack Obama's affirmation that same-sex couples should be able to marry, calling the president's statement "a significant and historic step forward" in the quest for equal rights and freedom from discrimination. Robert G. Sugarman, ADL National Chair, and Abraham H. Foxman, ADL National Director, issued the following statement: We strongly welcome the President's endorsement of same-sex marriage equality. It is a significant and historic step forward in the pursuit of equal opportunity, individual liberty and freedom from discrimination, and underscores the fact that no American should be denied access to the benefits of civil marriage because of his or her sexual orientation. All citizens should be entitled to the same rights, protections and benefits...

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court dramatically advanced gay rights Wednesday in rulings that direct the federal government to provide equal treatment to same-sex spouses and allow the resumption of gay marriages in California. In a pair of 5-4 rulings on the final day of the court's term, the justices struck down the 1996 Defense of Marriage Act, which denied federal benefits to gay couples married under state law, and let stand a ruling that found Proposition 8, a 2008 voter initiative that ended same-sex marriage in California, unconstitutional. In striking down DOMA, Justice Anthony Kennedy said Congress had no business undermining a state's decision to extend "the recognition, dignity and protection" of marriage to same-sex couples. By excluding such couples from the rights and responsibilities of marriage contained in more than 1,000 provisions of federal law, "DOMA writes inequality into the entire United States Code," Justice Kennedy wrote. The DOMA ruling had immediate effects. The Obama administration said it would move swiftly to ensure same-sex married couples get the same tax and other benefits as heterosexual couples, although the process for doing so is uncertain for same-sex couples who marry in one state, then move to a state that doesn't recognize gay marriage.

- <http://www.eagleforum.org/publications/column/judges-who-want-to-be-supremacists.html>

...Unfortunately, there are already too many judges who consider themselves “supremacists” with the power to resolve questions that should be resolved by the American people, either directly by ballot or through our elected representatives. The Supreme Court’s marriage decision in June proves that supremacy is really how the justices look upon their own vast power to rule us. The Supreme Court didn’t make same-sex marriage a constitutional right as the liberal media had hoped. But the Court did give the homosexuals what many believe is their number-one goal: the hammer to silence their critics. Justice Anthony Kennedy, writing for the majority in U.S. v. Windsor, which declared the Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA) unconstitutional, based the decision on what he claimed was in the minds of those who oppose same-sex marriage: their bigotry, their “animus” against gays. Kennedy tried to brand those who oppose same-sex marriage as a hate group, putting them in a category similar to those who irrationally discriminate against various minorities. Justice Scalia, joined in his dissent by Justice Clarence Thomas, made clear that the Supreme Court had “no power to decide this case,” that “this case is about the power of our people to govern themselves,” and that the Court’s errors come from “the same diseased root: an exalted conception of the role of this institution in America.” Scalia wrote that Kennedy’s marriage decision was a “jaw-dropping ... assertion of judicial supremacy over the people’s Representatives in Congress and the Executive. It envisions a Supreme Court standing (or rather enthroned) at the apex of government, empowered to decide all constitutional questions, always and everywhere ‘primary’ in its role.” Since Kennedy couldn’t show any authority for deciding this case, Justice Scalia wrote that Justice Kennedy resorted to “nonspecific hand-waving” and the accusations that the congressional authors of DOMA were motivated by a “bare ... desire to harm a politically unpopular group,” and that “only those with hateful hearts could have voted ‘aye’ on this Act.” Kennedy’s decision launched a torrent of accusations. According to Kennedy, the supporters of DOMA acted with malice — with the “purpose ... to disparage and to injure” same-sex couples, to “demean,” to “impose inequality,” “to impose ... a stigma,” to deny people “equal dignity,” to brand gay people as “unworthy,” which supposedly “humiliates” their children. Scalia and Thomas concluded in their dissent: “We might have let the People decide.” But the supremacist justices didn’t. “By formally declaring anyone opposed to same-sex marriage an enemy of human decency, the majority arms well every challenger to a state law restricting marriage to its traditional definition.” It is wrong, unprecedented, and insulting to the American people for Supreme Court Justices to accuse those who defend traditional marriage as being motivated by such hate. Americans certainly do not want to be ruled by a Supreme Court that Abraham Lincoln famously denounced as “that eminent tribunal.”

Note: The ruling by the Supreme Court Decision overrides the will of the People of the State of California which voted at the ballot box to not permit Gay Marriage. Yet the Courts decided to override the will of the people and effect becoming social engineers from the bench. This should be no surprise however, they have been social engineering families and children for years in the family courts. The result has been further economic destruction of families and children.

We can all help achieve this goal by doing our part to keep grass clippings, leaf litter and yard fertilizers out of the street where they can find their way to our local waterways and decompose into sediment. Excess nutrients in lawn fertilizers, especially when applied incorrectly, are carried off by stormwater runoff and enter our local streams leading to algae blooms that are not only unpleasant to look at but also degrade water quality and aquatic habitats. The Anti-Defamation League (ADL) has presented the Township with the first Barry Morrison Courageous Conversations Award. This newly created award honors ADL Regional Director Barry Morrison for his 30 years of commitment to the cause of the ADL. Beginning with Abington, it will be presented annually to a school or community that has demonstrated creativity and courage in engaging in dialogue about diversity. The Abington Board of Commissioners adopted the 'No Place for Hate' Proclamation in 2002, making Abington one of the first 'No Place for Hate' communities in Pennsylvania. The proclamation states that citizens will work to interrupt prejudice and stop those who would hurt, harass, or violate the civil rights of anyone. Abington's dedicated efforts over the years have won the community a special place. ADL Project Director Lisa Stewart points out that when the ADL wants to focus others on a model 'No Place for Hate' community, they hold up Abington as the ideal. Abington was one of the first communities to have all of its schools designated as 'No Place for Hate', including Penn State Abington (the first college campus). Many other organizations have signed, including the Abington Civic Club, Abington Community Taskforce, Abington YMCA, Glenside Kiwanis Club, Jenkintown Day Nursery, to name just a few. In the June 2012 Abington Board of Commissioners Meeting. Commissioner Steven Kline seconded the motion to provide below market lease office space in Alverthorpe Manor to Lubavitch of Abington PA at 515 Meeting House Road. Chad Lubavitch is a front for Organized Crime. Abington Watcher was voted out in the last election cycle over his sponsorship of the Anti-Defamation League's "No Place for Hate Program" for issues related to organized crime. Here again Lubavitch is a program that is a front for Organized Crime. In the Nov 2013 Re-Election for Commissioner Wachter, at Polls located in the Rydal Elementary Schools, Commissioner Kline stated in public "Meyer Lansky is my Hero" while supporting Re-Election of Wachter. Does Kline possess the integrity to be a leader in Abington's Board of Commissioner's? Kline also was the leader in the role to use eminent domain to attempt to take over the Patone Commercial Property in Abington PA (Roslyn), under the presumption that this would become a second library for Abington. Kline's Folly cost Abington several hundred thousand in legal fees. He was addressed in public at a Abington Board of Commissioner's meeting that he should be required to collect on his bond for the hundreds of thousands that he cost Abington Taxpayers. Kline declined to offer his bond an collateral in this case. One Interesting note is Kline is a local real estate investor eg. he is a Landlord for the rental property located 928 Washington Lane, Jenkintown PA. Kline's keen interest in local real estate investing while at the same time using his powers as an Abington Commissioner to use eminent domain against another person's property clearly presents a conflict of interest.

- http://www.larouchepub.com/other/2003/3003likud_usgangsta.html

....Sheldon Adelson bought out the Las Vegas Sands Hotel, pioneered by Lansky, Moe Dalitz and Bugsy Siegel. Adelson developed the massive Venetian Hotel/casino, its themes carefully modeled on the historical center of oligarchy, tyranny and corruption, Venice. He has fought a long, bitter battle against the workers and labor unions in Las Vegas, and is a central player in the casino domination of politics—ownership of politicians—in Nevada. Sheldon Adelson has poured huge sums into Israeli politics. He has sought approval to build casinos in Israel itself—as did Meyer Lansky—but has so far not succeeded. Adelson finances the Lubavitcher cult, which operates a right-wing political and dirty-money empire from Russia to New York's diamond district, to Israel. The Lubavitchers, who agitated against the Oslo peace accords, are emerging as the dominant force in the Jewish community in Las Vegas

—despite mainstream Jewish revulsion at their tactics and politics. Adelson was granted one of three gambling licenses (Steve Wynn also got one) in Macao, China, the former Portuguese colony near Hong Kong. Adelson says what Macao needs is a Vegas-style Strip, which he envisions building

- <http://www.chabad-mafia.com/>

The Jewish People have a big problem. This problem is an organization known as Chabad, Chabad-Lubavitch, or Lubavitch. This website describes this problem, and tries to prevent additional Jews from becoming "Victims of Chabad." This website was created by Jews for Jews. If you are not Jewish you may not understand what is being presented. If you are Jewish and you do not understand, then you should consult with your local Orthodox (non-Chabad) Rabbi, and do your own research about these issues. What is Chabad? Chabad is a religious cult and a criminal organization. Why is this a problem for the Jews? Chabad poses as an Orthodox Jewish group. They say they are more religious, more strict in their religion, than regular Orthodox Jews. In reality, Chabad's ideology is NOT Jewish. In Israel, Chabad is considered by the most important Rabbis as a religion different from Judaism. Chabad is a different religion. Chabadism is NOT Judaism. So, why is this bad for the Jews? Chabad is a criminal organization. Chabad is mostly involved in white collar criminal activities such as financial fraud, tax evasion, and money laundering. When these criminal activities are discovered and exposed to the public, and because Chabad poses as a Jewish organization, anti-Jewish hatred is created. That is, Chabad creates anti-semitism in the world. Also, many of Chabad victims are Jewish. Mostly, Jewish children. Chabad runs several schools around the world. The objective of these schools is NOT to provide a good Jewish education for their students. The objective of these schools is to MAKE A PROFIT at the expense of the Jewish children. In fact, everything and anything Chabad does, they do to MAKE A PROFIT. Chabad Rabbis are known to have millions of dollars in their offshore bank accounts resulting from, among other things, donations. This facts explain the advice that many important Rabbis have been giving us for the past few decades: DO NOT PUT YOUR CHILDREN IN A CHABAD SCHOOL, EVEN IF THEY OFFER YOU FREE TUITION. IF YOUR CHILDREN ARE NOW IN A CHABAD SCHOOL, REMOVE THEM IMMEDIATELY. NEVER GIVE ANY MONEY TO CHABAD, NEVER GIVE ANY DONATIONS TO CHABAD BOYCOTT ALL CHABAD PROJECTS, AND AVOID PRAYING IN A CHABAD TEMPLE Chabad-Lubavitch is a religious cult from Crown Heights, Brooklyn, New York. Chabad-Lubavitch thrives in areas with large numbers of assimilated Jews, who are ignorant about Judaism, so they can teach them their ideology. Chabad-Lubavitch is also an international organized crime syndicate that strangles free enterprise and raises the level of violence, fraud, and corruption in various cities in the USA, and across the world. What to do? First, DO NOT SEND YOUR CHILDREN TO A CHABAD SCHOOL. NEVER! If your children are now attending a Chabad-Lubavitch school, remove them IMMEDIATELY and send them to a regular Jewish school, a non-Chabad school. Also, NEVER GIVE ANY MONEY TO CHABAD. If you want to give charity, give to a Jewish organization, not to Chabad. Advice from the Rabbis for those living outside of Israel,

"A Jewish child should always be sent to a private Jewish school. A family living in a place where there are no Jewish schools, should move to a Jewish community with good Jewish schools. A family that has no money to send their children to a private Jewish school should move to Israel, where all schools are free, and send their children to a religious school there. A Jewish child should NEVER be sent to a Chabad school because a Chabad school is NOT Jewish. In the USA it's better to send a child to a public school rather than a Chabad school." CHABAD-LUBAVITCH IS NOT A JEWISH ORGANIZATION, KEEP YOURSELF, YOUR CHILDREN, AND YOUR MONEY, AWAY FROM IT! In this website we try to provide a simple explanation as to why Chabad is bad for the Jews. At the same time, we call on all Chabad Rabbis to abandon their Chabad ways and come back to the Jewish People. Make no mistake, Chabad is a religious cult and a criminal organization. Chabad is bad for the Jews.

38.17.19.5.2 Rabbi GDOLEI HADOR Message on Chabad-Lubavitch

WE CALL UPON EVERY RABBI IN EVERY JEWISH COMMUNITY IN THE WORLD TO EDUCATE AND TELL THEIR COMMUNITY THAT CHABAD IS NOT JEWISH. WE CALL UPON EVERY PRINCIPAL IN EVERY JEWISH SCHOOL IN THE WORLD TO EDUCATE AND TELL THEIR STUDENTS THAT CHABAD IS NOT JEWISH. WE CALL UPON EVERY JEWISH FATHER AND JEWISH MOTHER IN THE

The ADL's Walk against Hate is no different then that of the former Mafia Boss Joe Colombo's Italian American Civil Rights League. This group had over a Hundred Thousand Members.

In the spring of 1970, Colombo created the Italian-American Civil Rights League. On April 23, 1970, Joseph Colombo Jr. was arrested on extortion charges. In response, Joseph Colombo Sr. claimed FBI harassment and sent pickets to the east side offices of the agency. Colombo's actions generated a massive response from many Italian-Americans who felt demeaned by the federal government and the entertainment industry. Colombo then formed the League to serve as their action group.^[7] On June 29, 1970, 150,000 people showed up in Columbus Circle in New York City for an "Italian-American Unity Day" rally. The participants included five U.S. Congressmen and several prominent entertainers.

Under Colombo's guidance, the League grew quickly and achieved national attention. Unlike other mob leaders who shunned the spotlight, Colombo appeared on television interviews, fundraisers, and speaking engagements for the League. In 1971, Colombo aligned the League with Rabbi and political activist Meir Kahane's Jewish Defense League (JDL), claiming that both groups were being harassed by the federal government.^[8] At one point, Colombo posted bail for 11 jailed JDL members

This alliance between the Colombo Crime Family and the Jewish Defense League traces back to the Franconia Hotel Meeting in the early 1930's where Bugsy Siegel said the "Yids and the Dagos will no longer fight each other".

38.17.19.7 Abington Legacy - Destruction of Prayer in Public Schools via Judicial Tyranny

- <http://mobile.philly.com/news/?wss=/philly/news/homepage/&id=218449981>

A 16-year-old junior at Abington Senior High School, just making a statement, utterly unaware that he was about to make legal history. It was in 1956 that Ellery Schempp staged the classroom protest that yielded Abington v. Schempp, the landmark 1963 U.S. Supreme Court decision banning mandatory Bible readings in public schools. When Schempp's homeroom teacher read aloud 10 verses from the New Testament at the start of the day, as required by Pennsylvania law, Schempp brazenly paged through a Quran he had borrowed from a friend. When a student read the Lord's Prayer over the public address system, another daily requirement, Schempp refused to stand. Those actions earned him trips to the principal and guidance counselor, and triggered years of litigation over his belief that such readings were unconstitutional. At the time, Pennsylvania was among three dozen states that required such readings in public schools. "When I started this protest, I had no idea it would lead to court, let alone the Supreme Court," Schempp, 72, a retired physicist now living near Boston, said in a recent interview on the court's decision, handed down on June 17, 1963. He looked back at what his dissent achieved and the price his family paid. "I thought it was pretty clear that the morning devotions were a religious practice" and therefore prohibited by the establishment clause of the First Amendment, which says government should not give preference to any particular religion, Schempp said. "I thought if I simply pointed that out, the grown-ups, they would fix it." Instead, he incurred the wrath of school administrators. When they failed to act, Schempp, whose family practiced as Unitarian Universalists, sought legal representation by the American Civil Liberties Union of Pennsylvania. Along with his letter seeking the group's help, he enclosed a $10 donation. "Ten dollars at that time was probably $100 in today's money," Schempp said. (Actually, it would be $85.85.) "If a kid could save that from his grass-cutting and chores, then he really must be serious. It definitely played a role in getting their attention." The prominent civil-rights attorney Henry Sawyer, of the Drinker Biddle law firm, took the case and stayed with it for years. Like many key figures in the matter, including Abington school principal Eugene Stull, he has died. Schempp, an honors student, was accepted at every college to which he applied. He chose Tufts University in Medford, Mass. But Stull was furious about the lawsuit, Schempp said, and tried to sabotage his applications with letters of "dis-recommendation." Years later, Schempp said, he learned from the dean of admissions at Tufts that Stull also called to express his disapproval. "In 1958 [a long-distance call] was a very big deal. He said Tufts had made a terrible decision and that I was the rotten apple in the barrel," Schempp said. Schempp's dissent produced an avalanche of mail - about 5,000 letters to the family's house on Susquehanna Road in Roslyn. One-third were supportive, one-third politely argumentative, and one-third vile, including some smear with excrement. "After I graduated from high school and went on to college, the case was moot in terms of me," he said, so his siblings, Roger, 18 months younger, and Donna, five years younger, were added to the suit as plaintiffs. Schempp said Roger was occasionally bullied in school and Donna was ostracized. "Donna was particularly affected," Schempp said. "She was 12 or 13, a critical age, and wanted to just belong. Didn't want to be singled out. Some of her parents' friends told them not to play with Donna. Roger got shoved around a fair bit." Roger Schempp, a retired administrator with the nonprofit OIC of America, lives in Pennsauken. "I got a lot of the same treatment my sister got," he said in an interview. "But I quickly recognized that most of what I was getting was from the parents, passed through the kids. "The school-bus pickup was near our house. When it passed the house, the kids shouted, 'Commie Camp,' everything under the sun. So I started walking to school." When the Supreme Court finally ruled in 1963, Schempp's case was paired with another lawsuit brought by Madalyn Murray O'Hair, the founder of American Atheists, who objected to similar Bible readings in Maryland schools. Even if his is not a household name, Ellery Schempp is proud of his legacy. And he chuckles at the fact that, many years later, he was admitted to the Abington alumni hall of fame, not for his stand as a protester but for his contributions to science as a physicist. Of his choice to use the Quran in his dissent, he said, "It could have been the Bhagavad Gita. I didn't know a damn thing about Islam at the time, nor did anyone I knew. "My point was that the Holy Bible was not the only book of importance," he said. "There were other scriptures of equal importance."

Pennsylvania State Representative Madeline Dean PA 153rd District is the replacement in the Pennsylvania State Legislature of Montgomery county Commissioner Joshua Shapiro. Dean has publicly stated that as an elected she will continue to support the legislative initiatives of Shapiro. Dean stated “I can do nothing about the Casinos and will let them remain. I fully support the Abortion Rights”. Dean is also one of the sponsors of Pennsylvania state legislation to promote Gay Anti-Discrimination Laws and Hate Crime Laws.

The analysis of the situation in Abington PA clearly indicates the community government is being overrun by the influence of the Chicago Syndicate Organized Crime just like Cicero, IL during the Capone Era. In light of this situation, It becomes apparent that Dean’s Legislative Policies continue to support the on going Public Corruption Identified.

38.18 Legacy of Drug Traffic Distribution Centers within Bucks County

Within Bucks County is the Community of Bensalem Pennsylvania. The Mayor is Joseph Digirolamo who has been in office for multiple terms in direct violation of the City Charter. Bensalem has been a major Power Base for the Buck County Republican Committee www.bucksgop.org. This community has also been a major base for Drug Distribution and Trafficking within the Southeastern Pennsylvania and South New Jersey Communities. The major drug activities have been on going here since the 1960’s. In the early period 1965-1980. A major drug ring operated here. The group consisted of twelve major dealers that operated with the Northeastern Philadelphia Airport. In the early 1980’s. The FBI investigation found out about the operations and made the arrests. The group included Paul Greco who was caught in the 1970’s in Hatfield PA with a major supply of Narcotics and Joe Tornetta Some of a large Real Estate Agency in the Norristown Pennsylvania Area. Greco’s Sister Rosemarie Greco was a former Catholic Nun. She became an executive of Core States Bank which went under during her term. She also was involved with outsourcing Banking Technology to firms with issues integrity eg Judge Group. Later she was appointed by Pennsylvania Gov Ed Rendell as executive director of Health Care. Involved here also was former Speaker of the Pennsylvania House Felon John Perzel.

38.18.1 Bucks County PA reported as a Major Drug Distribution Center

- http://www.phillyburbs.com/my_town/bristol/million-crystal-meth-ring-had-extensive-bucks-county-ties-ag/article_e4680ca7-12e3-5f3c-b38c-daea5515b65c.html

$3.5 million crystal meth ring had extensive Bucks County ties, AG says

An undercover sting operation that began in Central Pennsylvania has exposed an alleged network of crystal meth dealers and distributors living throughout Bucks County. On Wednesday, Pennsylvania Attorney General Linda Kelly announced the arrest of 27 people, including 19 from Bucks, following a three-year investigation that was code-named “Operation Blowout.” Investigators said the network distributed more than $3.5 million worth of crystal meth over the course of four years. State agents and local police said they seized nearly 100 weapons and discovered a dismantled methamphetamine lab in a storage facility in Levittown. Crystal meth is the powder or crystalline form of methamphetamine, which is a powerful synthetic stimulant that is highly addictive. Initially, the case centered on the activities of two 53-year-old men — Robert H. Snyder of Pottstown and Wesley White of Tioga County. Soon, their drugs were traced to a distribution network with many foot soldiers residing in Bucks, according to officials.

Snyder’s meth was traced to a source in Mexico, officials said. White’s meth was, at first, traced to Bucks County and alleged dealer John S. Hodgson, 62, of Bristol Township, investigators said. As the undercover operation moved into Bucks, police said they identified a team of six people working with Hodgson to distribute drugs locally. A wiretap of Hodgson’s cellphone was ordered in May 2011, according to court documents. Hodgson’s team allegedly included his brother, Joseph R. Hodgson, 65, of Lower Makefield. Others in the alleged network were identified as Tina Erb, 51, of Bensalem; Nancy Diaz, 53, of Bristol Township; John McDonald, 61, of Morrisville; Elizabeth Naylor, 46, of Northampton; and Sherwood White, 63, of Bristol Township. The meth they got from John S. Hodgson was ultimately traced to Philadelphia, police said. Investigators said they identified two alleged meth distributors in the city — Sim Bradley, 72, and Francis Gulich, 62. The cellphones of Bradley and Gulich were tapped following a July 11 court order, according to court documents. With a tap on those phones, police said they soon discovered Bradley and Gulich were selling to other alleged distributors in Bucks, including Joseph Bogner, 47, of Bristol Township; Barbara and Mark Kasper of Middletown; Philip Tomasella, 40, of Falls; Alexander Schepelenko, 66, of Morrisville; James Simmers Sr. of Bristol Township; and Lee Wasser, 47, of Hilltown. Investigators also allege that Grady Dennis, 46, of Abington, sold meth provided to him by Bradley.

But the investigation didn’t stop there. Police then said they arrested five others from Bucks County who were alleged to be working with White and selling crystal meth. Among them were Marlene A. Albrecht, 46, of Dublin; Dean Bowers, 46, of Doylestown Township; Scott A. Hopkinson Sr., 42, of Bristol Township; Joseph M. Ragnoli, 44, of Buckingham; and John D. Taylor, 53, of Northampton. Because so many of the defendants are from Bucks County, the case will be prosecuted in Doylestown by Pennsylvania Chief Deputy Attorney General Andrew Rongaus, said Nils Frederiksen, spokesman for the attorney general’s office. While Wednesday’s arrests occurred primarily in Bucks County, crystal meth use has begun to “flare up” in many parts of the commonwealth, said Pennsylvania State Police Commissioner Frank Noonan. “It’s very interesting to watch how meth will come into a certain area and begin exploding,” said Noonan. “It will become the drug of choice for certain areas. “The advantage to meth is that you can produce it yourself in smaller amounts,” he continued. “It affects the brains of those who use it. But there is also lot of violence that is associated with methamphetamine.”

38.18.2 BucksGOP Mayor Son DiGirolamo 3rd Guilty of Robbing a Drug Dealer

- http://articles.philly.com/1996-08-20/news/25644960_1_drug-dealer-informant-police-officer
- <http://www.bensalempa.gov/mayor-joseph-digirolamo.html>

In April, when Joseph DiGirolamo 3rd started talking about his plan to pose as a police officer to rob a Philadelphia drug dealer, he cursed and told a friend the plan would go “smooth as pie.” It didn’t. DiGirolamo also assured that same person - an informant who wore a body wire to record their conversations for the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration - that his alleged coconspirator, Edward Krajewski was “on the level. . . I’d stake my life on it.” He did. Yesterday DiGirolamo, 38, the son of the mayor of Bensalem Township, pleaded guilty to 64 counts of criminal attempt, solicitation, conspiracy and tampering with records. His sentencing was deferred until completion of a pre-sentence investigation. Krajewski, 46, requested and was granted a continuance until Sept. 30 because he retained his lawyer only a few weeks ago. Police charge that DiGirolamo and Krajewski, a 17-year veteran of the Lower Southampton police force, planned to rob the drug dealer and burglarize several area businesses to get cash to go treasure hunting off the coast of Ecuador. Krajewski allegedly supplied DiGirolamo with police items to help with his identification and phony search and arrest warrants. DiGirolamo, who authorities say was arrested moments before he would have pulled off the drug dealer heist on April 18, cooperated with authorities later that day to nab Krajewski by wearing a wire and taping one of their conversations. While authorities listened, Krajewski asked DiGirolamo how much cash he got and why didn’t he grab any drugs. DiGirolamo has said that he will testify against his former partner, if called by the state. Bucks County District Attorney Alan Rubenstein said he had not decided whether he would call DiGirolamo. DiGirolamo and Krajewski could face a maximum of 15 to 30 years in prison. Both have been in custody, with bail set at $2 million each, since their arrest. For about three hours yesterday, DiGirolamo, unshaven and dressed in prison greens that revealed his bulky biceps and tattoos, calmly listened to his recorded words echoing in the courtroom. He politely answered questions with “Yes sirs” and “No sirs,” but said little else. The tapes were almost unintelligible and filled with profanity. During the last tape made before DiGirolamo’s arrest, he joked with the informant that they would get pulled over for impersonating a police officer before they even got there. A half hour later they were. Though Krajewski was not on trial yesterday, he was not spared from the spotlight. In the tapes, DiGirolamo and the DEA informant discussed how a cop named “Ed” would be working as a guard at a Horsham exercise machine distributor while they stole the equipment. Bucks County Detective William Kling testified that Krajewski ran the Bux-Mont security company hired to protect the distributor. Also on the tapes, DiGirolamo talked about a Pennsauken storage facility where, according to other confidential informants, a Colombian cocaine lord had stashed drugs and money. Police said that the two also planned to rob the storage facility and that Krajewski had checked it out while on duty. Rubenstein said that Krajewski and DiGirolamo planned the heist to get money to search for sunken silver treasure - supposedly once belonging to Sir Francis Drake. According to friends and coworkers, Krajewski had long been a scuba diver and the two had taken several trips to Caribbean locations. Among the evidence found by police were plane tickets for each man to Ecuador

Note: In Bensalem PA this has been a major drug trafficking center for decades. This is where BucksGOP org US Senator Specter had for decades cover up the activities here. The mayor's son Joey DiGirolamo surely III knows what is going on now (in 96 he was trying to rob a drug dealer was arrested by the DEA on 46 charges). The case was to be heard by BucksGOP org judge Alan Rubenstein nephew of Jack Ruby who shot Oswald in JFK era. In the 70's here in Bensalem was the narcotics distribution center eg. Paul Greco whose sister a prior nun was head of a PA Bank and understudy of Fast Eddie Rendell. Paul was caught in Hatfield as a Major Narcotics king pin. Joe Tornetta Realty son of the Norristown Real Estate firm was caught also as another drug kingpin. This was prosecuted by Montco DA/Judge Paul Tressler. He also went after the Conshohocken Mafia. These were the bootlegger who paid off corrupt Philadelphia officials with Real Estate near by the Inn of the Falls such as US Senator Arlene Specter, PA Gov Ed Rendell and City Mayor Dilworth (legacy continues in law firm Dilworth and Paxton with Ed Green as head of the SRC setup by BucksGOP org to privatize the City Public Schools for the interests of the Chicago Syndicate). In the 80's FBI found out about more of the 12 member of the Bensalem Drug Ring. Here they were flying out of Phila NE Airport to the area and using Bensalem at the distribution center. Here also in the 80's Drug dealer William Hogan was caught. He went to his Lawyer Charles Peruto Sr. He said "Good Thing You were caught dealing in Bensalem PA. You are protected by US Senator Arlene Specter". In the 90's the DiGirolamo clan took over here. This was the first PA Mafia Casino location. The mayor stayed in office more then two terms in violation of the Bensalem PA Charter rules. Here retired Bensalem cops would go down to Florida and continue to bring up the narcotics to Bensalem PA for regional distribution. Some how the BucksGOP org folks are untouchable. They were involved with LBJ, CIA Bush/Cord Meyer, Walter Annenberg in the JFK Warren commission. The narcotics distribution in the area. The cover up of Israel theft of US Atomic Weapons material in the Apollo Affair in the late 60's via US Senator Arlene Specter. Some would call this treason.

In a documentary soon to appear on Showtime, "The World According to Dick Cheney," [Cheney said] "I got on the telephone with the president, who was in Florida, and told him not to be at one location where we could both be taken out." Mr. Cheney kept W. flying aimlessly in the air on 9/11 while he and Lynn left on a helicopter for a secure undisclosed location, leaving Washington in a bleak, scared silence, with no one reassuring the nation in those first terrifying hours. "I gave the instructions that we'd authorize our pilots to take it out," he says, referring to the jet headed to Washington that crashed in a Pennsylvania field. He adds: "After I'd given the order, it was pretty quiet. Everybody had heard it, and it was obviously a significant moment."  When they testified together before the 9/11 Commission, W. and Mr. Cheney kept up a pretense that in a previous call, the president had authorized the vice president to give a shoot-down order if needed. But the commission found "no documentary evidence for this call." In other words, Cheney pretended that Bush had authorized a shoot-down order, but Cheney now admits that he never did. In fact, Cheney acted as if he was the president on 9/11. Cheney lied about numerous other facts related to 9/11 as well. For example, Cheney:

- Falsely linked Iraq with 9/11 (indeed, the entire torture program was aimed at establishing such a false linkage; and Cheney is the guy who pushed for torture, pressured the Justice Department lawyers to write memos saying torture was legal, and made the pitch to Congress justifying torture. the former director of the CIA said Cheney of overseeing American torture policies)
- Falsely claimed that spying on Americans, torture, the Patriot Act, the Afghanistan war, the Iraq war and the "war on terror" were all necessitated by 9/11 ... when all of them started or were planned before 9/11
- Falsely stated that an attack such as 9/11 was unforeseeable, when Al Qaeda flying planes into the World Trade Center and Pentagon was something which American military and intelligence services – and our allies – knew could happen
- Falsely pretended that he was out of the loop during the 9/11 attacks
- Falsely blamed others for 9/11, when Cheney was in charge of all of America's counter-terrorism exercises, activities and responses on 9/11. See this Department of State announcement and this CNN article ...
- ... And when Cheney was apparently responsible for letting the Pentagon get hit by an airplane (confirmed here and here) And was instrumental in squashing a real investigation into 9/11

Saturday, December 10, 2011 Dick Cheney now claims he ordered Flight 93 shot down over Pennsylvania, but is he lying? The plot thickens...and the noose tightens... Introduction by Chris Moore:In the following video, Dick Cheney says he ordered Flight 93 shot down. Flight 93 was the fourth airplane hijacked on 9/11, the one that crashed near Shanksville, PA. According to Wikipedia and official government reports, Flight 93 crashed after passengers, having learned of the attacks on The World Trade Center and the Pentagon from conversations on their cell phones, attempted to re-take the cockpit from the hijackers. Except according to Dick Cheney, that's not what happened at all. He says he ordered the flight, which he said had become a "weapon," shot down. Obviously, this means the investigation needs to be re-opened. But does this mean Dick Cheney wasn't a party to the terrorist attacks, as many "conspiracy theorists" allege he was? Not necessarily. Cheney may be lying about having given the order to shoot 93 down to cover his own ass and his legacy, or he may have other motives.*You see, it's become an open "secret" that Zionists were the instigating power behind the 9/11 attacks. Dick Cheney has to know this. And if Cheney was indeed a party to the attacks, and Flight 93 did indeed crash as a consequence of passengers attempting to re-take the cockpit, then Cheney's claims of having ordered the plane shot down are not only an ingenious means of getting himself and the Bush administration off of the hook for treason, but for scape-goating Jewry entirely or the 9/11 inside job.This can't be allowed to happen. The evil Jewish Zionists and their Globalist Goyim partners in crime must all be taken down together. Below the video is a likely scenario of how Flight 93 was headed for World Trade Center 7 before it indeed crashed as a result of passengers attacking the flight deck, all of which explains why WTC 7 had to be "pulled" anyway ("the smartest thing to do is pull it" as Jewish Zionist World Trade Center owner Larry Silverstein put it) -- lest the controlled demolition explosives that here to be activated after Flight 93 hit its target be discovered. The plot thickens...and the noose tightens...Isn't it funny how the Internet came along just in time to unearth what would have otherwise been a long-buried, successful conspiracy? Isn't it funny how the 9/11 conspiracy worked to a "T" except for WTC 7, which has become the smoking gun? Apparently God is a "truther." This murderous, lying, treasonous cabal doesn't stand a chance.--C.M.----

*UPDATE: Another possibility is that the plane was indeed shot down, only not on the orders of Cheney, but a lower down the chain of command who wasn't part of the plot, and Cheney, who is a well known pathological liar, is now taking credit as a red herring.-----

UPDATE #2: EXCERPT OF INTERVIEW WITH CHENEY: Interviewer [Chris Wallace, Fox News] to Dick Cheney: Now, you and the president had earlier discussed rules of engagement for taking down a hijacked airplane, but you were the one who gave the direct order to shoot down a plane that you were told -- as it turns out, incorrectly -- was headed for Washington. Cheney: Right. That's correct. Wallace: What was that moment like? Cheney: Well, um, it was necessary, and uh...it was, a uh...frankly, I didn't pause to think about it very much because once one of those aircraft became...was hijacked...it was a weapon. We'd seen already by that time three of them go in -- the Pentagon, the World Trade Center in New York. As a result, thousands died, and if we had been in a position to intercept one of those to keep it from striking its target, would we have done it? Absolutely. And what I did was pass on the president's approval of the basic proposition that we would in fact authorize our people to shoot down aircraft that had been hijacked, and refused to divert. So, I saw it as part of my responsibility, but I did it quickly, because we had a lot of other things we were doing at the same time.----
UPDATE #3, The Bush administration and the National Commission on Terrorist Attacks upon the United States are at odds, with Bush and Cheney (at least some of the time) claiming the airplane was shot down on their orders, and the 9/11 Commission implying it crashed as a result of "the passenger counterattack." FROM GLOBAL RESEARCH: "Well, I discussed it with the president. Are we prepared to order our aircraft to shoot down these airliners that have been hijacked? He said yes... I--it was my advice. It was his decision." (Vice President Dick Cheney, September 11, 2001, source CBS News Archives) "That's a sobering moment, to order your own combat aircraft to shoot down your own civilian aircraft. But it was an easy decision to make, given the--given the fact that we had learned that a commercial aircraft was being used as a weapon. I say easy decision. It was--I didn't hesitate; let me put it to you that way. I knew what had to be done." (President George W. Bush, September 11, 2001, source CBS News Archives) "The airplane rolled onto its back, and one of the hijackers began shouting, 'Allah is the Greatest'. With the sounds of the passenger counterattack continuing, the aircraft plowed into an empty field in Shanksville, Pennsylvania, at 580 miles per hour..." (National Commission on Terrorist Attacks upon the United States, July 2004, Chapter 1) Why hasn't such an important point on such an important issue been cleared up by federal authorities? Why didn't Bush and Cheney correct the Commission's report and set the record straight, particularly given the fact that the Executive Director of the 9/11 Commission, Philip Zelikow, was so close to the Bush administration? Is Jewish Zionist Zelikow doing psyops on Bush and Cheney? Is Cheney retaliating via Fox News by reiterating that the plane was shot down on his orders, and implying it was headed to New York (WTC 7), which is the smoking gun that implicates the Zionists? One thing is clear, the Zionists and Globalists are embraced together in a dirty dance that is getting increasingly nasty as their program has fallen to pieces, destroyed the economy, destroyed the military, and the truth closes in.

When WTC-7 was pulled as stated by Larry Silverstein, the evidence contained within was to be applied to the prosecution of the Enron fraud was lost in the demolition of the building. Who would benefit from that lost? The Bush Administration did Prosecute Enron's Key Lay and Jeff Skilling. However the other party identified with the Enron fraud was Wall Street Junk Bond Trader Felon Mike Milken. He was a major player in the Enron fraud. Milken as already being a convict felon in financial fraud would have seen a very long term prison sentence if he was successfully prosecuted. Perhaps WTC-7 demolition was a case of Jewish Lighting? Would a powerful Casino Operation like Sheldon Adelson contribute to this? Sheldon Adelson's control of Likud and AIPAC has Expertise to take down buildings like WTC-7 using controlled demolition.

... Owner of Sands Casino in Bethlehem PA ... Sheldon Adelson: casino mogul, one of four foreigners named by the Jerusalem Post as contributing over $100,000 to the Likud's 1996 election campaign (the other three were Ronald Lauder, Joseph Gutnick, and Irving Moscovitz). Sheldon and Mervyn Adelson are not related.

Sheldon Adelson bought out the Las Vegas Sands Hotel, pioneered by Lansky, Moe Dalitz and Bugsy Siegel. Adelson developed the massive Venetian Hotel/casino, its themes carefully modeled on the historical center of oligarchy, tyranny and corruption, Venice. He has fought a long, bitter battle against the workers and labor unions in Las Vegas, and is a central player in the casino domination of politics—ownership of politicians—in Nevada. Sheldon Adelson has poured huge sums into Israeli politics. He has sought approval to build casinos in Israel itself—as did Meyer Lansky—but has so far not succeeded. Adelson finances the Lubavitcher cult, which operates a right-wing political and dirty-money empire from Russia to New York's diamond district, to Israel. The Lubvitchers, who agitated against the Oslo peace accords, are emerging as the dominant force in the Jewish community in Las Vegas—despite mainstream Jewish revulsion at their tactics and politics.

Sheldon Adelson was granted one of three gambling licenses (Steve Wynn also got one) in Macao, China, the former Portuguese colony near Hong Kong. Adelson says what Macao needs is a Vegas-style Strip, which he envisions building.

...Steven Wynn: tough-guy casino owner and Likud backer. Steve Wynn started in Las Vegas in 1967, with a small interest in the Frontier Hotel casino, then controlled by the Detroit mob. He later took control of the Golden Nugget. In 1980, with financial backing from Drexel Burnham Lambert, Wynn built the Golden Nugget casino in Atlantic City, where Meyer Lansky's Resorts International had opened the first casino in 1978. Wynn sold the Atlantic City casino and took more from Milken's Drexel to build the massive Mirage in Las Vegas, which opened in 1989. Drexel also funded other casinos, pumping billions of hot dollars into Vegas as part of Dope, Inc.'s transformation of its money laundering center from a city run by the old-style Mob, into a resort center with the organized crime activities hidden behind slick corporate fronts. Wynn is a personal friend of Milken, his neighbor in Lake Tahoe.

The mid-1990s book, Running Scared: The Life and Treacherous Times of Las Vegas Casino King Steve Wynn, by the famous Las Vegas Review-Journal reporter John L. Smith, alleged that Wynn was a front for the New York Genovese organized crime family. Wynn sued the publisher for libel and won. Wynn is deeply feared in Las Vegas.

A biography of Steve Wynn on the Milken Institute website says "Wynn is widely credited with transforming Las Vegas into a world-renowned resort destination"; and he is on the Advisory Board (chaired by Paul Volcker) at the Center for Strategic and International Studies in Washington, a trustee of the University of Pennsylvania, and a member of the board of the George Bush Presidential Library

Mervyn Adelson: of Hollywood, Vegas and Tel Aviv, an investment partner of Dalitz and top donor and friend to Netanyahu. The former husband of TV journalist Barbara Walters and former chairman of Lorimar-Telepictures, Adelson is an investment manager in Los Angeles.

Cleveland mobster Moe Dalitz, who opened up Las Vegas with Lansky, teamed up with Mervyn Adelson to create the Rancho La Costa resort in California. Adelson and Dalitz spent a decade suing Penthouse magazine over an article claiming that this Adelson investment had become the favored hangout for American gangsters, where murders were planned in luxury and confidence. Jimmy "The Weasel" Frattiano testified that he met there to plan the murder of Desi Arnaz. The suit was dropped after Penthouse apologized to Adelson, but not to Dalitz.

Merv Adelson's former attorney, Yaakov Ne'eman, became Israel's Finance Minister under Prime Minister Netanyahu, and is one of Netanyahu's closest advisors on law, donations and investment subjects. As the scandal over Likud gangsterism has broken wide open, the governor of the Bank of Israel (central bank) has criticized Sharon's policies; Sharon has responded by threatening to make Adelson's man, Ne'eman, the Bank's governor instead.

Pat Buchanan 2007: If George W. Bush launches a pre-emptive war on Iran, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi will bear full moral responsibility for that war. For it was Pelosi who quietly agreed to strip out of the $100 billion funding bill for Iraq a provision that would have required President Bush to seek congressional approval before launching any new war on Iran. Pelosi's capitulation came in the Appropriations Committee.

What went down, and why?

"Conservative Democrats as well as lawmakers concerned about the possible impact on Israel had argued for the change in strategy," wrote The Associated Press' David Espo and Matthew Lead. "Rep. Shelley Berkley, D-Nev., said in an interview there is a widespread fear in Israel about Iran, which ... has expressed unrelenting hostility to the Jewish state. "It would take away perhaps the most important tool the U.S. has when it comes to Iran," she said of the now-abandoned provision. "I don't think it was a very wise idea to take things off the table if you're trying to get people to modify their behavior and normalize in a civilized way," said Gary Ackerman of New York." According to John Nichols of The Nation,

Pelosi's decision to strip the provision barring Bush from attacking Iran without Congress' approval "sends the worst possible signal to the White House." "The speaker has erred dangerously and dramatically," writes Nichols. Her "disastrous misstep could haunt her and the Congress for years to come." Nichols does not exaggerate. If Bush now launches war on Iran, he can credibly say Congress and the Democrats gave him a green light. For Pelosi, by removing a provision saying Bush does not have the authority, de facto concedes he does have the authority. Bush and Cheney need now not worry about Congress. They have been flashed the go sign for war on Iran. Pelosi & Co. thus aborted a bipartisan effort to ensure that if we do go to war again, we do it the constitutional way, and we do it together. Nothing in the provision would have prevented Bush, as commander in chief, from responding to an Iranian attack or engaging in hot pursuit of an enemy found in Iraq. Nor would the provision have prevented Bush from threatening Iran. It would simply have required him to come to Congress — before launching all-out war. Now Pelosi has, in effect, ceded Bush carte blanche to take out Iran's nuclear facilities. It's all up to him and Cheney. For this the nation elected a Democratic Congress? Why did Pelosi capitulate? Answer: She was "under pressure from some conservative members of her caucus, and from lobbyists associated with neoconservative groups that want war with Iran and the American Israel Public Affairs Committee (AIPAC)," writes Nichols. The Washington Times agrees as to who bullied Nancy into scuttling any requirement that Bush come to the Hill before unleashing the B-2s on Arak, Natanz and Bushehr: "Last week, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi received a smattering of boos when she bad-mouthed the war effort during a speech to the American Israel Public Affairs Committee, and the Democratic leadership, responding to concerns from pro-Israel lawmakers, was forced to strip from a military appropriations measure a provision meant to weaken President Bush's ability to respond to threats from Iran." This episode, wherein liberal Democrats scuttled a bipartisan effort to require Bush to abide by the Constitution before taking us into a third war in the Middle East, speaks volumes about who has the whip hand on Capitol Hill, when it comes to the Middle East. Pelosi gets booed by the Israeli lobby, then runs back to the Hill and gives Bush a blank check for war on Iran, because that is what the lobby demands. A real candidate for Profiles in Courage.

As for the presidential candidates, it is hard to find a single one willing to stand up and say: If Bush plans to take us into another war in the Mideast, he must first come to Congress for authorization. And if he goes to war without authorization, that will be impeachable. All retreat into the "all-options-are-on-the-table" mantra, which is another way of saying, "It's Bush's call." The corruption of both parties is astonishing. Republicans used to be the party of the Constitution: "No more undeclared wars! No more presidential wars!" Democrats used to be the party of the people. The people don't want this war. They don't want another. The Jewish community voted 88 percent for Democrats in November, and 77 percent oppose Iraq. So says Gallup. Yet, just because the Israeli lobby jerked her chain, the leader of the Peoples' House has decided she and her party will leave the next war up to Bush. Sam Rayburn must be turning over in his grave. GOP megadonor Sheldon Adelson and his wife, Miriam, poured $5 million into a super PAC backed by House Majority Leader Eric Cantor, according to reports released late Sunday. The cash influx marks a major boost for the YG Action Fund, which was started last year by former Cantor aides to assist House Republican candidates. The super PAC reported raising $5.3 million between April and June of this year, compared with the meager $55,000 it pulled in during the first quarter. The Adelsons — who have funneled millions of dollars into super PACs backing GOP presidential candidates — have helped to jump-start congressionally focused super PACs in recent months. In February, the couple gave a combined $5 million into the Congressional Leadership Fund, a separate group backed by Cantor, Speaker John Boehner and other top House Republicans. The YG Action Fund spent nearly $460,000 in the second quarter on ads to boost North Carolina congressional candidate Richard Hudson, who will face off in a primary next week against Club for Growth-backed candidate Scott Keadle, according to the campaign finance report. Thanks in large part to the Adelsons, the Cantor-backed group kicked off July with $4.7 million in the bank to buoy GOP candidates. The Congressional Leadership Fund landed another big donor last quarter when Texas real estate magnate Bob Perry gave \$1 million to the group.

39.3.7 House Majority Leader Eric Cantor and Con Meehan Touts Charter School Benefits

http://www.philly.com/philly/education/20130924_In_Philadelphia_Rep_Cantor_touts_school_choice_charters.html

Sept 24, 2013, www.philly.com It was AP English, not government, but House Majority Leader Eric Cantor was familiar with the topic of instruction Monday morning in the writing center at Freire Charter School. "We're studying point of view," a student told the congressional visitor, and Cantor chuckled. Through the window of the third-floor classroom, Cantor and the students could hear about a dozen protesters outside chanting, "Hey, hey, ho, ho, Eric Cantor's got to go." "You look out the window," Cantor told the class. "There's a lot of points of view." His own viewpoint, he said later in an address at the Center City school, is that a decade from now, charter schools and vouchers that give students alternatives to neighborhood public schools will be available across the country. Touting his attempts to pass federal school-choice legislation, Cantor (R., Va.) said, "Today, for the first time, I'm going to make a prediction. . . . Within 10 years, education opportunity and school choice will be a reality for every single student in America." He criticized a lawsuit that the Department of Justice has brought against Louisiana's school-voucher program. "Halting the Louisiana education opportunity program would trap low-income minority kids in failing schools. This is nothing but Washington standing in the schoolhouse door," he said, a line that drew applause from the audience of Freire students, teachers, board members, and parents. "If the attorney general does not withdraw this suit, then the U.S. House will act. We will leave no stone unturned in holding him accountable for this decision." Cantor toured the school with U.S. Rep. Patrick Meehan (R., Pa.). They walked past a science classroom where a teacher was demonstrating problems on a smart board, and posters advertising local information sessions about colleges including Yale, Brown, and Duke. The representatives asked students about their experience at the school, and most of them emphasized Freire's focus on college readiness. "In public school, the work was really easy. Here, they give you work on top of work and expect you to finish it like you're in college," one student said. Another added that at Freire, few students roam the hallways during the school day. "When I went to public school, there wasn't no structure." The students asked Cantor and Meehan why they decided to pursue careers in politics ("I wasn't great at math," Cantor's response began), and whether they had spoken to the president. The 500-student charter school, founded in 1998, accepts students through a lottery system. A flat-screen monitor in the lobby touts the students' high SAT and PSSA scores. Cantor and Meehan praised the school, but the small group of protesters outside had few kind words to say about charter schools or Cantor. "Our schools are being starved of resources. Charters this year have more resources than our community schools," said Alison McDowell, the mother of a seventh grader at Masterman. "They're actually taking away choice from families to have access to schools that are in their neighborhoods, that don't have barriers to access for admissions. . . . Really, what they are allowing us to choose are corporate franchises."

39.3.7.1 Cantor Slams Federal School Policy in Philadelphia, PA

- http://www.philly.com/philly/education/20130924_House_Majority_Leader_slams_federal_school_policy_in_Phillly_visit.html

Sept 24, 2013, www.philly.com U.S. REP. Eric Cantor, the House majority leader, popped in on a 10th-grade geography lesson at Freire Charter School in Center City yesterday before delivering a speech that jumped all over the political map. Cantor, a Virginia Republican, came to Philadelphia to slam federal education-funding policy and to call out U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder for a lawsuit the Department of Justice filed last month against the state of Louisiana. The Justice Department wants to stop the state from using public-school money to pay for private tuition in nearly half of its school districts since they remain under a federal desegregation order. Cantor called "absurd" the department's claim that the program would impede desegregation in Louisiana. "The truth is an overwhelming majority of the students who receive the scholarships and benefits from this program are minority children from low-income families," Cantor told Freire students assembled for his speech. "If the attorney general does not withdraw this suit, then the United States House will act," Cantor said. "We will leave no stone unturned in holding him accountable for this decision." A Department of Justice spokeswoman responded by saying the agency is not trying to end Louisiana's school-voucher program and instead is seeking information for the "straightforward goal" of ensuring the program complies with "longstanding federal desegregation orders." Cantor did not take questions from the media after his speech, so it is unclear how any action the House takes would affect Holder, since the U.S. Senate is controlled by Democrats and President Obama appointed him. Protesters briefly caught Cantor's attention near the school's entrance as they chanted, "Hey hey, ho ho, Eric Cantor's got to go." American Federation of Teachers president Randi Weingarten noted in a statement released late yesterday that Cantor "did not spend one minute" in his speech discussing the Philadelphia School District's funding crisis. "Are political leaders so out of touch that they can use a school system in crisis as a backdrop to peddle a school privatization scheme?" Weingarten asked. Cantor's speech framed school choice as "the greatest civil-rights challenge of our time." He lamented the "hundreds of billions" the federal government has spent since the mid-1960s trying to improve education, saying it has had "little to no effect." Cantor also predicted that school vouchers "will be a reality for every student in America" within the next 10 years.

39.3.7.2 Cantor Touts School Vouchers calls out US AG Holder at Philadelphia Charter School

Sept 24, 2013, www.philly.com U.S. Rep. Eric Cantor, the U.S. House majority leader, interrupted a 10th grade geography lesson during a tour of Freire Charter School in Center City this morning before delivering a speech that jumped all over the political map. Cantor, a Virginia Republican, came to Philadelphia to complain about federal education funding policy in Washington D.C. and to call out U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder for a lawsuit the U.S. Department of Justice filed last month against the state of Louisiana. The Justice Department wants to stop Louisiana from using public school money to pay for private school tuition in nearly half of that state's school districts since they remain under a federal desegregation order. Holder called "absurd" the Department of Justice claim that the school voucher program would impede desegregation in Louisiana. "The truth is an overwhelming majority of the students who receive the scholarships and benefits from this program are minority children from low-income families," Cantor told students assembled in Freire's gym for his speech. He called on Holder to withdraw the lawsuit for face the wrath of the U.S. House. "If the Attorney General does not withdraw this suit, then the United States House will act," Cantor said. "We will leave no stone unturned in holding him accountable for this decision." Cantor did not take questions from the media after his speech, so it was unclear how any action he takes in the House would impact Holder since the U.S. Senate is controlled by Democrats and President Obama appointed

Holder to the job. Cantor did not mention the Philadelphia School District funding crisis in his speech. Instead, he framed school choice as "the greatest civil rights challenge of our time." He lamented "hundreds of billions" the federal government has spent since the mid 1960s trying to improve education, saying it has had "little to no effect."

Con Eric Cantor predicted that school vouchers "will be a reality for every student in America" within the next 10 years.

39.3.8 New Orleans Public Schools put out of Business via Charter Schools

Charter Schools have completely replaced Public Schools in New Orleans....Thanks to Paul Vallas (Left Philadelphia to Run Schools of New Orleans) and Wallis Annenberg. The Philadelphia School Reform Commission located at 440 N. Broad Street Philadelphia is right next to the Philadelphia Inquirer Building setup By Capone Gangster Moses Annenberg. His Grand-Daughter Wallis Annenberg is the major force behind the Philadelphia School Reform Commission (SRC) via www.bucksgop.org Thru PA Gov Mark Schweiker who initially setup the SRC. The Annenberg School Reform Institute setup the "No Child Left Behind" and is a major proponent of the Movement to use Charter Schools to Replace Public Schools. Look at the comments of Gale Levin on Paul Vallas who left Philadelphia, PA to then run the New Orleans School System. We can now see the impact was to completely destroy the Public School System in the city of New Orleans on behalf of the Annenberg Institute controlled by Wallis Annenberg.

In New Orleans, major school district closes traditional public schools for good NEW ORLEANS

— The second-graders paraded to the Dumpster in the rear parking lot, where they chucked boxes of old worksheets, notebooks and other detritus into the trash, emptying their school for good. Benjamin Banneker Elementary closed Wednesday as New Orleans's Recovery School District permanently shuttered its last five traditional public schools this week. With the start of the next school year, the Recovery School District will be the first in the country made up completely of public charter schools, a milestone for New Orleans and a grand experiment in urban education for the nation. It has been two decades since the first public charter school opened in Minnesota, conceived as a laboratory where innovations could be tested before their introduction into public schools. Now, 42 states encourage charters as an alternative to conventional schools, and enrollment has been growing, particularly in cities. In the District of Columbia, 44 percent of the city's students attend charter schools. But in New Orleans, under the Recovery School District, the Louisiana state agency that seized control of almost all public schools after Hurricane Katrina ravaged the city in 2005, the traditional system has been swept away. The creation of the country's first all-charter school system has improved education for many children in New Orleans, but it also has severed ties to a community institution, the neighborhood school, and amplified concerns about racial equality and loss of parental control. An all-charter district signals the dismantling of the central school bureaucracy and a shift of power to dozens of independent school operators, who will assume all the corresponding functions: the authority to hire and fire teachers and administrators, maintain buildings, run buses and provide services to special-needs students. Of the Recovery School District's 600 employees, 510 will be out of a job by week's end. All 33,000 students in the district must apply for a seat at one of the 58 public charter schools, relying on a computerized lottery to determine placement. Critics of the all-charter New Orleans model say it is undemocratic, because leaders of charter schools are not accountable to voters. They also say the system is challenging for parents, who have to figure out logistics that were not an issue when their children walked to neighborhood schools. “They don’t answer to anyone,” said Sean Johnson, the dean of students at Banneker, whose father attended the school while growing up in the Black Pearl neighborhood. “The charters have money and want to make more money. They have their own boards, make their own rules, accept who they want and put out who they want to put out.” Advocates say the all-charter model empowers parents. “We’ve reinvented how schools run,” said Neerav Kingsland of New Schools for New Orleans, which promotes and supports charter schools. Kingsland is leaving the organization to try to export the model to other cities. “If I am unhappy with service I’m getting in a school, I can pull my kid out and go to another school tomorrow. I don’t have to wait four years for an election cycle so I can vote for one member of a seven-member board that historically has been corrupt.” By most indicators, school quality and academic progress have improved in Katrina’s aftermath, although it’s difficult to make direct comparisons because the student population changed drastically after the hurricane, with thousands of students not returning. Before the storm, the city’s high school graduation rate was 54.4 percent. In 2013, the rate for the Recovery School District was 77.6 percent. On average, 57 percent of students performed at grade level in math and reading in 2013, up from 23 percent in 2007, according to the state. Opinion surveys show support for charter schools but unease about the shuttering of all traditional schools, with just 41 percent of New Orleans residents backing the idea in a poll commissioned by the Cowen Institute for Public Education Initiatives at Tulane University in New Orleans. The changes also have been stirred racial tensions and claims of disenfranchisement. “This is a depressed community,” said Karran Harper Royal, an activist who has been trying to block the school closings. “People here don’t really feel like they can coalesce and fight this.” In affected neighborhoods, news that Banneker and the four other traditional schools were closing was greeted with shrugs from residents who have grown inured to upheaval since Katrina. “It’s bittersweet, but what are you going to do?” asked Myra Jenkins, 31, as she picked up her 5-year-old twin boys from kindergarten at A.P. Tureaud Elementary, a school encircled in barbed wire. Built in 1939, the building’s art deco features are scarred and shattered. Inside, a handmade sign peeling off a door welcomes visitors but misspells the school’s name. The school received a “D” from Louisiana’s A-to-F grading system in 2013. Some residents were disheartened to learn of its closing. “This don’t make no sense,” said Derrick Williams, 45, who walked his great-niece to kindergarten on a recent day. “Me and my sister, the whole family, the whole neighborhood went to that school.” A few miles away, 486 children attend the sparkling Akili Academy, a K-6 charter school. Akili, a “C” school, occupies the former William Franz Elementary School, in the Upper Ninth Ward, a building that underwent a $24 million restoration and expansion after Katrina. The school has a $250,000 grant from the Walton Family Foundation, established by the family that founded Wal-Mart. “This is the most exciting city in the country for education,” said Kate Mehok, the chief executive of Crescent City Schools, which operates Akili. She began her career with Teach for America and was a founding assistant principal at a KIPP charter school in Harlem. “Anytime you allow parents choice about where they can send their kids to school, it can only be good.” When Katrina struck in 2005, the public schools in New Orleans were considered among the worst in the country. Just before the storm, the elected Orleans Parish School District was bankrupt and couldn’t account for about $71 million in federal money. There were just a few charter schools. In the tumult after the hurricane, the state seized control of 102 of the city’s 117 schools — the worst performers — and created the appointed Recovery School District to oversee them, while letting the Orleans Parish School Board run the relatively few remaining. The Recovery School District closed failing traditional schools or turned them over to charter operators, never intending to reconstruct a traditional school system, said Patrick Dobard, the superintendent. “We’ve had a clear plan in place,” Dobard said. “We’re going to create a new legacy, a new memory. We don’t have to hold onto some of the things in the past that didn’t work.” The city is spending about $2 billion — much of it federal hurricane recovery money — to refurbish and build schools across the city, which are then leased to charter operators at no cost. “The difference between now and pre-Katrina is that we’re replacing schools that are not performing well,” Dobard said. “We don’t let children languish in chronically poor performing neighborhood schools. It was a system of haves and have nots. We passed those times in New Orleans, and I'm glad we left those behind us." After Katrina, the Orleans Parish School Board fired more than 7,000 employees — nearly all of them African American — while the charter schools hired scores of young teachers, many of them white recruits from Teach for America. The fired teachers sued for wrongful termination and won a judgment that could total more than $1 billion. White students disproportionately attend the best charter schools, while the worst are almost exclusively populated by African American students. Activists in New Orleans joined with others in Detroit and Newark last month to file a federal civil rights complaint, alleging that the city's best-performing schools have admissions policies that exclude African American children. Those schools are overseen by the separate Orleans Parish School Board, and they don't participate in OneApp, the city's centralized school enrollment lottery. John White, the state's superintendent of education, agreed that access to the best schools is not equal in New Orleans, but he said the state is prevented by law from interfering with the Orleans Parish School Board's operations. "The claim that there's an imbalance is right on the money," White said. "The idea that it's associated with privilege and high outcomes is right on the money." Stan Smith, acting superintendent of the Orleans Parish schools, said his district's charter schools have agreed to participate in the OneApp when their contracts are renewed, in two to 10 years from now. The city's conversion to charters promises the best outcome for the most students, White said. "These kinds of interventions are never easy things," he said. "When you look at overall outcomes, they've been positive. Does it have collateral negative effects? Of course. But does it work generally for the better? Yes." At Banneker Elementary, Sharell Washington was absorbing the school closing. "I'm sad. I like this school," said Sharell, a bright-eyed 8-year-old who does not know where she will attend school in the fall. "I've been here since kindergarten, and I know a lot about this school. I have friends here. They always have my back."

The foundation funded by philanthropist Eli Broad is working on a plan to rapidly expand charter schools in Los Angeles. A draft obtained by The Times put the goal at 50% of public school student enrollment. Backers outlined an ambitious strategy to place half of the students in the Los Angeles Unified School District into charter schools over the next eight years, a move they said would serve as a model for the rest of the nation, according to documents obtained by The Times. The 44-page report is dated June 2015 and outlines a campaign of fundraising and building political awareness aimed at reaching the goal, which the report said would require $490 million. The report cited numerous foundations and individuals who could be tapped to raise money, including the Bill and Melinda Gates, Bloomberg, Annenberg and Hewlett organizations. Among the individuals cited as potential targets for fundraising were Eli Broad, Irvine Co. head Donald Bren, former entertainment mogul David Geffen and Tesla's Elon Musk. It also suggested a strategy of grassroots organizing and civic engagement designed to generate more interest among parents in charter schools. L.A. Unified already has the largest charter school program in the country, representing about 16% of total enrollment. But getting to 50% would mean creating 260 charter schools that would provide 130,000 seats, the report said. "The opportunity is ripe for a significant expansion of high-quality charter schools in Los Angeles," the report states in its executive summary. "Thanks to the strength of its charter leaders and teachers, as well as its widespread civic and philanthropic support, Los Angeles is uniquely positioned to create the largest, highest-performing charter sector in the nation. Such an exemplar would serve as a model for all large cities to follow." Charters are independently run, publicly financed schools that are exempt from some rules that govern traditional schools; most are non-union. The Times broke news of the charter expansion plan in August, relying on confidential sources who cited the 50% figure. When contacted last month, the Eli and Edythe Broad Foundation said the charter plan is in an early, exploratory phase, but declined to provide specific information. The June draft talks of massive fundraising to affect three areas: facilities, talent and political climate. "Los Angeles schools are currently on a trajectory to create around 62,000 seats," the plan states. "With an added investment of $490 million, however, charter schools should be able to create an additional 68,000, reaching the goal of 130,000 seats by 2023." For years, the growth of charters has been a point of contention in Los Angeles and across the nation. Locally, the schools have proved popular with parents, contributing to their growth. Their increase in number also has been fueled by grant support from the Obama administration and philanthropy, including from the Broad Foundation, the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation and the Walton Family Foundation. Broad and his wife have invested $144 million in charters in L.A. and elsewhere, according to their foundation. The Broad Foundation has granted funds to the California Community Foundation and the United Way of Greater Los Angeles to support Education Matters, a new Times digital initiative devoted to more in-depth reporting on schools. A few hundred teachers on Sunday protested against rapid charter expansion at the new downtown Broad museum featuring the Broads' extensive modern art holdings. "Charter schools are destroying public education," retired kindergarten teacher Cheryl Ortega said at the demonstration. "Mr. Broad wants to own 50% of our schools.... That's untenable." In a response a spokeswoman for Broad said, "As families demand high-quality public school options -- and more students want to attend public charter schools, we want to support them in meeting that demand. Our only interest is in supporting the growth of high-quality public schools."

Milken was indicted for racketeering and securities fraud in 1989 in an insider trading investigation. As the result of a plea bargain, he pled guilty to securities and reporting violations but not to racketeering or insider trading. Milken was sentenced to ten years in prison, fined $600 million, and permanently barred from the securities industry by the Securities and Exchange Commission. His sentence was later reduced to two years for cooperating with testimony against his former colleagues and for good behavior.[3] His critics cited him as the epitome of Wall Street greed during the 1980s, and nicknamed him the "Junk Bond King". Supporters, like George Gilder in his book, Telecosm (2000), state that "Milken was a key source of the organizational changes that have impelled economic growth over the last twenty years. Most striking was the productivity surge in capital, as Milken...and others took the vast sums trapped in old-line businesses and put them back into the markets." [4] Since his release from prison, Milken has funded medical research.[5] He is co-founder of the Milken Family Foundation, chairman of the Milken Institute, and founder of medical philanthropies funding research into melanoma, cancer and other life-threatening diseases. A prostate cancer survivor, Milken has devoted significant resources to research on the disease.[6] In a November 2004 cover article, Fortune magazine called him "The Man Who Changed Medicine" for changes in approach to funding and results that he initiated.[5] Milken's compensation, while head of the high-yield bond department at Drexel Burnham Lambert in the late 1980s, exceeded $1 billion in a four-year period, a new record for U.S. income at that time.[7] With an estimated net worth of around $2 billion as of 2010, he is ranked by Forbes magazine as the 488th richest person in the world.[8] Much of that wealth comes from his success as a bond trader; he only had four losing months in 17 years of trading from 1973 to 1989.[9]

We hear plenty about the billionaire boys club that has taken control over much of the education reform debate, the unholy triumvirate of Bill Gates, Eli Broad and the Walton Family Foundation. The rogue's gallery of Ed Deformers who are buying up charter schools, capitalizing on NCLB, bashing teachers and generally destroying public education as we know it, includes numerous hedge fund managers, bankers, billionaires, millionaires and even a few convicted felons, like junk bond peddler Michael Milken.

Virtual Charter Schools Provide Virtually No Benefit to Children (But A Lot To Investors)

K12, the largest U.S. operator of taxpayer-funded online charter schools, has become a cash cow for Milken, according to a recent report in Bloomberg Business Week (cross posted in 4LAKids). K12 has 81,000 students enrolled full-time in its online programs and is expected to generate $500 million in revenue this year (it made $21.5 million in profits last year). Since the company went public in 2007, its stock has doubled in value. K12 online purchased Kaplan Virtual Education this year, a deal that should vastly increase K12's value and profits, as well as its share of the online learning market. Online charters make a lot of sense for entrepreneurs. Not only can they do away with teachers unions, but they can do away with teachers entirely (or at least significantly reduce their numbers). They do not need to pay for facilities, counselors, nurses, bus drivers, custodians, librarians, or cafeteria services, and they offer no athletics, band or theater. While most school districts do not pay them the same amount that physical charter schools receive, many argue that even their reduced funding is far too high. In Pennsylvania, for example, K12's schools receive 80% of what physical charter schools receive, according to the Bloomberg report, an awful lot when you consider how few of the services of traditional physical schools they actually offer. Furthermore, every penny they get from a school district is money taken away from physical schools. K12 was cofounded by Ron Packard, a former Goldman Sachs banker. K12 has 2,400 employees, including curriculum developers and former executives from PBS and the Smithsonian. Packard created K12 after serving as an executive for Milken's for-profit education company Knowledge Universe, back in 1999. Startup funds came from Milken and his brother Lowell, who together invested $90 million in the venture, and Larry Ellison, CEO of Oracle, who added another $10 million, according to Bloomberg. Milken and his brother retain a 19% interest in K12, a share that is worth $260 million.

Billionaire Crooks, Eugenicists and Reprobates Bilking Taxpayers and Killing Public Education

Milken is possibly the largest investor in private K12 education. Prior to Knowledge Universe, he also owned Knowledge Learning Inc., (with Rupert Murdoch on its board) and was a major share holder in LeapFrog (See Susan Ohanian). In 1996, Milken formed a partnership with his brother and with Ellison which invested $750 million in 50 ed tech companies. One example was Andy Rosenfield's internet university, UNext, which Milken and Ellison lavishly funded, according to a CNN report. Milken, as you may recall, was indicted on 98 counts of racketeering and securities fraud in 1989 as a result of his insider trading and junk bond scamming. As part of a plea deal, he admitted guilt to six securities violations, but was never convicted of any of the racketeering charges. Sentenced to 10 years in a tennis club prison for white collar crooks and permanently banned from Wall Street, he ultimately served only 22 months, paid a hefty $1.1 billion in fines, but bounced back in better shape than the vast majorities of Americans could ever dream of, with a net worth of over $2 billion in 2010, according to his Wikipedia biography. Larry Ellison, the richest man in California and the sixth richest in the world, is not typically considered part of the education deform network. Nevertheless, he has not only pumped millions into the private digital education sector, primarily in partnership with his criminal crony Milken, but he has made a nifty return on his investments. Furthermore, Ellison also managed to rob several Bay Area school districts of hundreds of thousands of dollars of revenues, each, doing what billionaires do best in their spare time: slashing their tax liabilities. In 2008, Ellison had his Woodside mansion reassessed, receiving a 60% tax cut on his home and a $3 million refund, according to the Almanac Online. The Portola Valley School District saw a revenue decline of between $250,000 and $300,000, as a result, while Sequoia, San Mateo Elementary and San Mateo Union High School Districts also saw big losses from Ellison's windfall. Ellison, like Milken, has had his own problems with the Securities and Exchange Commission for insider trading. In 2001 he sold off $900 million in Oracle shares at $30.76 per share just before the stock dropped to nearly half that value on news of low quarterly earnings (InfoWorld.com). Unlike Milken, though, he was able to buy his freedom with a paltry fine of $100 million, which he was able to pay in the form of a donation to his own philanthropic foundation. He may have been guilty of insider trading again, in September, 2010, when he sold off $217 million worth of Oracle shares, after hiring former HP exec. Mark Hurd, which boosted the value of Oracle shares. However, there doesn't seem to be any interest by the SEC to investigate this latest scam. Packard initially convinced the Bill Bennett, former secretary of education under Reagan, to partner with him on his K12 venture. Bennett eventually resigned after saying on his radio show "I do know that it's true that if you wanted to reduce crime, you could—if that were your sole purpose—you could abort every black baby in this country, and your crime rate would go down." While acknowledging that he found such a policy reprehensible (a Christian conservative certainly couldn't be promoting abortion, could he?), he did not back down from his presumption that black people are responsible for most crime or that making them all go away would be good for society. Profits trump ideology. So Packard had no choice but to let him go. After all, we don't want racists running a school (or in this case a virtual school system), do we? Yet, apparently it is quite alright to have a convicted criminal running a school, in the case of Milken, who still consults with Packard on a regular basis about their enterprise. Bennett, of course, is not simply a conservative racist who lacks the self-control to refrain from demonstrating his genocidal bigotry on national radio. (He also told Larry King that beheading drug dealers was morally plausible, ostensibly because they're all black). He has also demonstrated hostility toward teachers, children and public education through his support for merit pay, national testing, vouchers, slashing federal college scholarships, trying children as adults in criminal court, and promoting religion in school). Oh, and let's not forget that while he sends all the drug dealers to the guillotine, and preaches morality to our youth, he himself has lost as much as $8 million in high stakes gambling (see WSWS expose on Bennett's gambling addiction).

Virtual Schools and Educational Quality

Aside from the greed and corruption inherent in private virtual charter schools, there are some obvious problems with online learning in terms of the quality of education they provide. This is particularly true for K12's 81,000 full-time students, who do all of their schoolwork from their homes. They are not getting the socialization and live, in-person interactions that students receive in traditional public schools. They are not learning how to cooperate, resolve conflicts and work in teams the way they would with real live classmates and adults. Proponents argue that online education helps avoid the negative aspects of socialization, like drugs, bullying and sexual activity. However, this isn't true. Cyber bullying is well-known, as is the phenomenon of kids developing online relationships, including ones with sexual predators. Furthermore, kids can still learn about drugs and succumb to on-line peer pressure. They can still obtain drugs from neighborhood kids, at the park, or the other usual places where drugs can be found.

In fact, there is no reason to believe that a sheltered existence provides any protection at all. Rather, it could just make children more naïve and ignorant and thus more easily victimized.

Another problem is that virtual schools, like college online learning, presume that students will spend a certain amount of time in front of their computers, doing homework, reading, and generally maintaining a level of self-discipline and organization, something that does not even happen with all virtual college students. However, here we are talking about high school, middle school, and in some cases elementary school students, who are expected to do all this work at home, often unsupervised, as their parents may work outside the home. The Bloomberg article suggests that at least 15% of the students in Pennsylvania's Bangor District cyber schools were regular truants. Not surprisingly, 75% of K12 schools failed to show adequately yearly progress on their state exams. This is significantly higher than the 45% of physical schools that are currently failing to meet this federal benchmark. Packard blames the statistic on his students, who tend to be lower income. While he may be true (lower income students do tend to perform more poorly on standardized exams), he still needs to be held to the same standards (as stupid as they are) as traditional schools. Furthermore, in urban districts like Los Angeles, New York, Chicago, Washington, large percentages of the students are also low income. In San Bernardino, California, 85% of the students are on free or reduced lunch. In Fresno and Santa Ana it is 76% and 75%, respectively. In Los Angeles and Oakland, it is 74% and 73%, respectively. (Data from the California DOE website). Therefore, I find Packard's justification specious. Teachers, needless to say, are not thrilled with virtual classrooms like K12. The Chicago Teachers Union sued the Illinois State Board of Education in 2006 to challenge the state's decision to spend taxpayer dollars on the nonprofit Chicago Virtual Charter School (See David Randall's piece in Forbes). The school, like many virtual schools, does not provide sufficient certificated teachers, which the union said was tantamount to making taxpayers pay for homeschooling. Despite K12's lack of success in terms of improving student achievement, they have been so successful financially, that they have attracted others to their cause. In April, Technology Crossover Ventures invested $125 million to K12's accelerated expansion plan (see Gilfus Group).

De-classified Vietnam-era Transcripts Show Senators Knew Gulf Of Tonkin Was A Staged False Flag Event (Trigger for Vietnam War).In a March 1968 closed session of the Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Albert Gore Sr. of Tennessee, the father of former vice president Al Gore, noted:

“If this country has been misled, if this committee, this Congress, has been misled by pretext into a war in which thousands of young men have died, and many more thousands have been crippled for life, and out of which their country has lost prestige, moral position in the world, the consequences are very great,”

Senator Frank Church, Democrat of Idaho, said in an executive session in February 1968: “In a democracy you cannot expect the people, whose sons are being killed and who will be killed, to exercise their judgment if the truth is concealed from them.” Other senators were keen to withhold the truth about Tonkin in order not to inflame public opinion on the war:

39.6.1.4 Likud's Netanyahu States 9/11 Good for Israel Which Celebrates A Purim Holiday

The Israeli newspaper Ma'ariv on Wednesday reported that Likud leader Benjamin Netanyahu told an audience at Bar Ilan university that the September 11, 2001 terror attacks had been beneficial for Israel. "We are benefiting from one thing, and that is the attack on the Twin Towers and Pentagon, and the American struggle in Iraq," Ma'ariv quoted the former prime minister as saying. He reportedly added that these events "swung American public opinion in our favor."

March 02,2013 Israeli children dress up as the burning Twin Towers complete with impaled exploding airplanes to celebrate the Jewish holiday known as Purim. By Dr. Kevin Barrett

Another Israeli who visibly could not contain his joy at the success of 9/11's "Operation Esther" was Benjamin Netanyahu. When the once and future Israeli Prime Minister was asked about his reaction to 9/11, he said: "It's very good!" Then, catching himself, he added that while it wasn't exactly good, it was certainly good for Israel." For more than eleven years, Israel has been wildly celebrating the success of its 9/11 operation against the United States of America. The latest example: Israeli children recently dressed up as the burning Twin Towers, complete with impaled exploding airplanes, to celebrate the bizarre Jewish holiday known as Purim. Purim exalts and commemorates an ancient operation very much like 9/11. It glorifies the deceptions of Esther, who concealed her Jewish identity to seduce the King of Persia, then slyly tricked him into slaughtering 75,000 people deemed “enemies of the Jews.” In other words, Purim celebrates Jews lying, secretly penetrating the highest levels of government, and manipulating the leaders of an empire into mass-murdering perceived “enemies of the Jewish people.” That is exactly what the neoconservative Likudnik extremists - Wolfowitz, Perle, Libby, and the rest - did on September 11th, 2001. The only difference is that these modern, neocon Esthers would eventually kill millions of innocent people, not just 75,000. And if they succeed in tricking the US into attacking Iran on behalf of Israel, thereby launching World War III, today's neocon Esthers could kill tens or even hundreds of millions. The Israeli schoolchildren dressed up as the burning Twin Towers are not the first Zionists to wildly celebrate Israel's biggest-ever attack on America. That honor belongs to the “dancing Israelis,” five Mossad spies who set up their cameras in Liberty State Park, across the harbor from the World Trade Center, early in the morning of September 11th, 2001, and pointed those cameras at the as-yet-undamaged Twin Towers. (Their video of the first plane hitting the North Tower has never been publicly released.) When the planes hit the Towers, the “dancing Israelis” went wild. They began leaping, cavorting, and high-fiving each other. As the Towers burned, the “dancing Israelis” took pictures of each other holding up burning cigarette lighters in front of the burning Towers. And when the Towers were blasted to powder in explosive controlled demolitions, the “dancing Israelis” went crazy with joy. Their plan had succeeded. Unfortunately for them - and for Israel - their wild celebrations did not go unnoticed. An American woman called the police, who arrested the four Mossad operatives, confiscated the thousands of dollars in cash stuffed in their socks, and held them for weeks. During their incarceration, the Israeli spies repeatedly failed lie detector tests. Nonetheless, they were secretly sent back to Israel, at the request of the Israeli government, by Israeli dual citizen and US Homeland Security Chief Michael Chertoff. Later, back in Israel, the “dancing Israelis” went on television and admitted their complicity in 9/11, but denied having planted the explosives that destroyed the Twin Towers, saying: “We were only there to document the event.” (How did they know there would be an event to document?) Another Israeli who visibly could not contain his joy at the success of 9/11's “Operation Esther” was Benjamin Netanyahu. When the once and future Israeli Prime Minister was asked about his reaction to 9/11, he said: “It's very good!” Then, catching himself, he added that while it wasn't exactly good, it was certainly good for Israel. Netanyahu would never stop bragging about how wonderful 9/11 was. Seven years after the attack, he was still saying: “We are benefiting from one thing, and that is the attack on the Twin Towers and the Pentagon.” (Ha'aretz, Apr 16, 2008 - “Report: Netanyahu says 9/11 terror attacks good for Israel”.) Netanyahu wasn't the only high-level Israeli caught celebrating 9/11. Another culprit was the legendary Mossad spy chief, Mike Harari.

On September 11th 2001, as the dancing Israelis danced and Netanyahu chortled, “retired” Israeli Mossad Chief Mike Harari was in Bangkok, Thailand organizing a huge party to celebrate the success of his 9/11 operation. During the merry-making, Harari bragged to one of his associates, Dmitri Khalezov, that he, Harari, had been responsible for 9/11. (You can listen to my radio interview with Khalezov at <http://noliesradio.org/archives/29582>.) Khalezov's testimony is supported by documents showing the fake IDs Harari was using in Thailand.

All of the Israeli celebrations of 9/11 - so far - have been unofficial. But the Israeli government is on the record officially applauding another of its many attacks on the US: The 1954 Lavon Affair, otherwise known as Operation Susannah. In that covert operation, Israeli Mossad operatives, disguised as Egyptians, bombed American targets in Egypt. When the Israeli terrorists were caught by the Egyptian authorities and prosecuted, Israel denied any involvement and complained that the whole thing was an anti-Semitic smear. But later, as the Zionist website Wikipedia admits: “In March 2005, Israel publicly honored the surviving operatives, and President Moshe Katsav presented each with a certificate of appreciation for their efforts on behalf of the (Israeli) state, ending decades of official denial by Israel.” (Don't forget the murder of thirty four American Sailors when Israel attacked the U.S.S. Liberty on June 8, 1967). When will Israel officially award a Certificate of Appreciation to its Mossad operatives who blew up the Twin Towers and WTC-7 and killed almost 3,000 Americans in order to launch a series of US wars against Israel's enemies? Not for another few decades, we may safely surmise. When Israel finally does admit its responsibility for 9/11, and lavish honors on the Mossad terrorists responsible, will it be during Purim - the holiday honoring Jews who seduce gentile rulers and manipulate them into mass-murdering their enemies?

“Every time we do something you tell me America will do this and will do that . . . I want to tell you something very clear: Don’t worry about American pressure on Israel. We, the Jewish people, control America, and the Americans know it.”

Q: Who is the Power Control Group?

A: The evidence indicates part of the Power Control Group is AIPAC, the Likud and the Chicago Crime Bosses. Both of which are under control of Sheldon Adelson.

In 2008, Houston police pulled over CIA agent Roland Carnaby on what appeared to be a routine traffic stop. A few seconds later, Carnaby was dead. It is illegal to detain a CIA agent under any circumstances. They may carry any weapon, anywhere, anytime, and request assistance from any law enforcement official with more than certainty. Why then would this incident be part of a highly classified Russian intelligence report? Could it, perhaps, be that Carnaby, answering directly to former President and CIA Director, George H.W. Bush, was murdered to silence his participation in the theft and sale of American nuclear warheads? Carnaby was holding a trove of documents outlining the theft and transfer of hundreds of nuclear warheads from the Pantex Plant near Amarillo, Texas. Weapons sent there for disassembly were transshipped to Israel and, from there, refurbished, their cores remachined and then sold around the world or stored in Israeli embassies and consulates around the world. The Russian report outlines a very different view of the past 30 years, a “view” that “fits like a glove.”

DIMONA OUT OF ACTION The report not only confirms Israel’s nuclear weapon inventory but outlines the program of subterfuge and piracy required to keep Israel as a nuclear power after their facility at Dimona suffered a critical “event” in 1988.

“Dimona is a standard 75-megawatt thermal open top reactor as used in France for their plutonium weapons production program, their version of Stanford (Editor's note: Probably "Hanford"). Due to overuse as a fast breeder reactor by the Israelis, Dimona suffered a "steam explosion" IE a flash over indecent due to neutron criticality back in the late 1980's under Bush 1. This shut down its operation for many years until repairs could be made. It now only operates at very low power levels due to neutron absorption damage to the containment vessel. Now mainly use for isotope production. This forced the Israelis to turn to stolen nuclear stockpiles from the US for the continuation of their nuclear program.”

The highly classified Russian report, released, experts believe, to demonstrate American hypocrisy over recent events in the Ukraine, is a litany of horror stories. If this is a “first shot over the bow” by Russian intelligence, American officials can only dread what may be to come.

BACKGROUND 48 hours ago, the retired chief of Russia’s counter-intelligence effort for the Middle East released a highly classified report designed to embarrass the United States and demonstrate their servitude to Israel and complicity in broad acts of nuclear proliferation. The report, loaded with “shock value” intelligence and backed by reams of supporting documents including classified nuclear weapons plans demonstrated that Russia has been able to maintain a high level of penetration of not just American nuclear weapons labs but security agencies as well.

ROUND ONE, 9/11 The report, carefully structured for maximum shock value, begins with 9/11, the watershed event of our era: “The type of nuclear devices used on 9/11 were a modified version of the W-54 nuclear artillery shells that were covertly provided to the Israelis between 1988 and 1998 from US surplus stockpiles illegally exported during the Bush/Clinton era. Chemical analysis done by DOE Sandi was able to identify the chemical/radiation footprint or fingerprint of the warheads based on samples taken after 9/11 of the fallout at ground zero.” According to the report, 9/11 was an Israeli operation facilitated by blackmail of Bush 41 and 43, threatening them with “outing” for their personal financial involvement in the sale of 350 primarily W54 nuclear artillery rounds, sold through Israel but distributed to a number of nations. The Russian report further outlines that NATO partners, particularly Britain and France, were involved every step of the way. 911 was cover for stolen gold, stock fraud and the looting of the American economy. The “wars for profit” were the Bush boys cashing in on their own.

THE “HOW” OF 911 A number of theories have been introduced to explain the mysterious effects seen at ground zero on 9/11. In an article on the Press TV website, evidence of a widespread cover-up of an epidemic of radiation exposure-related cancers tied to 9/11, was presented. Not only has Russia confirmed the Press TV findings, they present evidence of nuclear weapons use, evidence from a suppressed report based on findings by the Department of Energy’s Sandia Laboratories. “Only a 2 kiloton device was needed to drop the buildings. A 2 kiloton device will produce a fireball of apx 150 to 200 feet in diameter at over 4000 degrees Centigrade. Just large enough to melt the I beams of the central core of the building and drop them in place. The light flash would last less than 1 second and primarily be in the UV light range. Overpressure would only be at 60PSI max and directed upwards with the blast. Fallout would be minimal and located to within ground zero range only. Radiation would drop to acceptable levels within 72 hrs. after the blast. Most fall out was trapped in the cement dust thus causing all of the recent cancer deaths that we are now seeing in NYC amongst first responders.” The report continues with details that close the door on speculation about 9/11, putting an end to conspiracy theories and, in particular, the wildest one of all, the pseudo-science fairy tale broadly rejected by the 9/11 Commission but allowed to stand as America descended into an Islamophobic frenzy.

“Fallout would be minimal and located to within ground zero range only. Radiation would drop to acceptable levels within 72 hrs. after the blast. Most fall out was trapped in the cement dust thus causing all of the recent cancer deaths that we are now seeing in NYC amongst first responders. Melted steel and iron oxide or “nano thermite” is a byproduct of the very high gamma ray / Neutron flux induced into the central steel core. The radiation dissolves the steel into iron oxide consuming the carbon and silicone in the steel.”

This explains the missing steel columns and the very important clue of the “vaporized” 20 ton antenna tower atop the south tower. The upward blast of radiation literally vaporized it. Video evidence proves this to be true. The total (redacted) data file from DOE Sandia on the 911 event is well over 72 MB. “P.S. Snowden didn’t have a Q clearance so he missed this one.” The scope of the Bush/Cheney/Israeli nuclear proliferation operation, according to the report, is well beyond anything imagined. Here, Russia places the blame, naming not only Vice President Dick Cheney and former White House Chief of Staff Ram Emanuel but Tom Countryman, tasked, according to Russian sources, with actually managing the program that spread nuclear weapons to Brazil, North and South Korea, Saudi Arabia and a number of other nations. “Illegal distribution of US nuclear material to foreign allies was not limited to Israel. Virtually all NATO allies were in on this scam too. Dick Cheney was the bad guy on this one. Bush2/Cheney traded nuclear pits to foreign country as IOU’s in order to get what they wanted. Tom Countryman a well-known Israeli operative is curiously now in charge of N.N.P. at the State Department under Obama. He was put there by Ram Emanuel.”

REACTIVATING “DEAD NUKES” Only nuclear weapons that had deteriorated but could be recommissioned were of use to Israel. The Russian report outlines the basis for selecting the W-54 warhead and exacting details on how weapons were created out of America’s “nuclear scrap heap.” “A total of over 350 pits were transferred to the Israelis over a 10 to 20 year period of time. The W-54 type of pit design were the most desirable due to the 2 point implosion pit design. This is the easiest to re manufacture and modify as compared to other circular pit designs. The pill shaped design of the W-54 type weapon contains over 1.5 times more plutonium than a standard pit. This would allow enough Plutonium to be recovered that was still of weapons grade use even after 32 plus years of age. Americium build up in the pit over time eventually makes the Pit unusable as a weapon so they have a limited shelf life based on how fast or slow the Plutonium was produce in the reactor at Stanford. Usually it was about 150 days max. Irradiation time in the reactor during production determines the shelf life of the pit as weapons grade material. All of the micro nukes used by the Israelis are re-manufactured W-54 type series devices.”

CONCLUSION According to the Russian report, Israel used remanufactured W-54 warheads, reconfigured as micro-nukes, for terror bombings in Bali, London and to destroy the Fukushima nuclear reaction site in Japan. With weapons around the world, stored in embassies and consulates, and their powerful friends in the American “right,” Israel has managed to maintain nuclear superpower status without a real production facility, using only pirates and traitors, something America, according to our Russian sources, seems to have no shortage of.

39.8 The Fort Lee NJ Mystery Played a Key Role in 9/11 Events

39.8.1 George Washington Bridge and NY Tunnels were to be Destroyed on 9/11

Figure 625 9/11 Plan Was to Destroy NY Tunnels and GW Bridge

All major roadways in and out of New York were to be destroyed on 9/11. It was these teams, brought in from Israel that included the Mohammed Atta group, confirmed as directly tied to both the CIA and Egyptian intelligence, that were under surveillance by a combined task force that coordinated with local law enforcement. So, when thousands of pounds of explosives were placed inside the cable anchorage, teams were dispatched to disable these devices as soon as the attack at the World Trade Center began. Simultaneous to the cutting of the cables, a massive truck bomb, as described in CBS and CNN news reports and police radio intercepts, was to explode (as heard, police reported this truck did explode), taking down the roadway supports, thus dropping the bridge “like a rock,” into the Hudson River. Both the Holland and Lincoln Tunnels were to be demolished. We have only one arrest confirmation from the Manhattan side. NYPD roadblocks at the Lincoln Tunnel chased down a van that did a quick turn-around to avoid arrest. Two suspects were arrested with weapons and a truck filled with explosives. Police commissioner Bernie Kerik, recently released from prison, was on the scene with his personal Counter Terrorism Squad to take custody. They were never seen since.

39.8.2 Fort Lee Staging Ground for 9/11 Attack

Fort Lee is the real staging ground for 9/11. It was chosen for a good reason. News reports from 9/11 have been eliminated from archives, lists of terrorists caught then released at the orders of New York City and White House officials and flown out of the country are gone. Police who made the arrests, recorded above, are under gag order. Moreover, a vast support network involved in the preparation, planning and support of the 9/11 attacks, including the many unsuccessful attacks, not only are enjoying their freedom, some are among the most powerful Americans. As stated, 9/11 begins in Fort Lee, New Jersey. The “condo and co-op” community there is the home of one of the largest and most politically powerful “Israeli first” groups in America including key members of the notorious organization, JINSA, the Jewish Institute for National Security Affairs, reputed to be more influential than PNAC (Project for a New American Century) and far more militant. An examination of JINSA shows it to be organized in cells like a terror group. Is it a surprise that the George Washington Bridge, Fort Lee’s primary landmark and the “view” sought by the residents of the highrises chosen for planting the radio jammers, was scheduled for a dramatic demolition on 9/11 with hundreds of commuter vehicles slated for the bottom of the Hudson River?

Since the 1930s, Fort Lee has been a “mob town,” with the beginnings of “Murder Inc” and the Albert Anastasia gang and Joe Adonis. It all began when New York Mayor LaGuardia threw the mob out of New York. The new George Washington Bridge provided a home for the mob in Fort Lee with gambling clubs lining the Palisades on both sides of the GW Bridge. The fall of communism saw Russian/Ukrainian organized crime come to New Jersey, settling in Fort Lee. The The Taiwanchik-Trincher group is an amalgamation of Israeli/Ukrainian/Cypriot gangs operating illegal gambling operations throughout the United States with ties to the Romney/Bain financial group. From an indictment in Manhattan federal court: “The Taiwanchik-Trincher Organization (the “Organization”) was a criminal enterprise with strong ties to Russia and Ukraine. The enterprise operated a high-stakes, illegal sports gambling business out of New York City that catered primarily to Russian oligarchs living in Ukraine and Russia. Between 2006 and April 2012, the enterprise laundered approximately $100 million in proceeds from their gambling operation in Russia and Ukraine through shell companies and bank accounts in Cyprus; and of this $100 million, approximately $50 million was subsequently sent from Cyprus into the United States. Once the money had been transferred to the United States, it was either laundered through additional shell companies or invested in legitimate investments, such as hedge funds and real estate. The Taiwanchik-Trincher Organization operated under the protection of Alimzhan Tokhtakhounov, who is known as a “Vor,” a term translated as “Thief-in-Law,” that refers to a member of a select group of high-level criminals from the former Soviet Union. Tokhtakhounov is also under indictment in the Southern District of New York for his alleged involvement in bribing officials at the 2002 Winter Olympics held in Salt Lake City, Utah. Tokhtakhounov is a fugitive and is still being sought.”

39.8.4.1 The Able Danger investigation – Israeli Art Students Roles in 9/11

Years later, staff gutted by Clinton blackmail cutbacks, tracked a major terror operation to Fort Lee, New Jersey. There they found the CIA, Mossad and Saudi Intelligence pulling together operational teams, moving vans, “art students” and even a few “dancing Israelis”....The “dancer/art student” groups had a variety of tasks on 9/11, among them:

- Planting jammers on buildings on exhibit one to block Port Authority dispatchers and first responder radios
- Plant explosives on the New Jersey side of the George Washington Bridge where the cables are anchored, in order to collapse the bridge
- Explode a truck in the Lincoln Tunnel
- Explode a truck in the Holland Tunnel
- Park trucks with demolition devices in specific parking areas of the twin towers
- Coordinate with Mohammed Atta and his group Of the 3 jammers locations shown below, two of those planted were recovered by the FCC and are held in evidence in Houston, Texas awaiting the “waiting until hell freezes over” Grand Jury to reconvene on Able Danger and 9/11.

NOTE: Many remember the stories about how fire department radios didn’t work and how new radios would have taken care of the problem. This is the real reason for the radio problems

The role of AIPAC in the nomination of Senator Charles Hagel is a disgrace. The behavior of the United States in this process sounds more like an appointment for the Secretary of Defense for the State of Israel rather than the United States. None Dare Call It Treason. Senators Wicker, Cruz, Graham, McCain, Liberman, Kyl etc. sound like shills for the state of Israel rather than the representatives of the people of the United States.

40.1 Hagel Address to School of Foreign Service

Professor Chuck Hagel Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service ICC 301 Georgetown University Washington D.C., 20057

“Most people prefer to believe their leaders are just and fair even in the face of evidence to the contrary, because once a citizen acknowledges that the government under which they live is lying and corrupt, the citizen has to choose what he or she will do about it. To take action in the face of a corrupt government entails risks of harm to life and loved ones. To choose to do nothing is to surrender one's self-image of standing for principles. Most people do not have the courage to face that choice. Hence, most propaganda is not designed to fool the critical thinker but only to give moral cowards an excuse not to think at all.” “Most people prefer to believe their leaders are just and fair even in the face of evidence to the contrary, because once a citizen acknowledges that the government under which they live is lying and corrupt, the citizen has to choose what he or she will do about it. In the position, McCain will drive defense policy on Capitol Hill, including the Senate's version of the National Defense Authorization Act dictating how the Pentagon spends money. He will also determine the foreign policy agenda of the United States. McCain and a clique of neocon Republicans have called for boots on the ground in Syria and Iraq. In addition to sending U.S. troops, McCain has called for arming the Kurds and intensive airstrikes against the Islamic State as the terrorist army consolidates recent military gains. He also wants to bolster support for the so-called Free Syrian Army (FSA) which is, as we noted on Sunday, an anachronism. Any distinction between the FSA, al-Nusra and the Islamic State is now rhetorical. The government and its corporate media have attempted to sell the FSA as the "moderate" wing of the U.S. and Gulf Emirate campaign to violate Syrian national sovereignty and oust president Bashar al-Assad. The U.S. maintains this fiction despite the fact Harakat Hazam and the Syrian Revolutionary Front (SRF) handed over bases and weapons to Jabhat al-Nusra in the Idlib province in Syria over the weekend. The SRF was an alliance formed in December 2013 by FSA brigades in response to a merger of the Islamist Islamic Front. McCain is as equally hawkish on Ukraine. In September he characterized the U.S. policy in Ukraine as "shameful" and demanded the Obama administration provide the government with weapons and intelligence to fight what he calls the "invasion" of eastern Ukraine by Russia. The effort to arm the Ukrainian government that assumed power after a U.S. State Department initiated coup in February is supported by the current Armed Services chairman, Democrat Robert Mendez. “We should provide the Ukrainians with the type of defensive weapons that will impose a cost upon Putin for further aggression,” he said in September. “I will be urging our administration to arrange that transfer as quickly as possible,” McCain said in March. “Time and again, they asked us for military help. They need it. I think they should have it. They have to have the wherewithal to defend themselves,” he said. John McCain traveled to Kiev in December to give his support to fascist elements attempting to remove Ukraine’s elected president from power. He met Ukrainian opposition leaders Arseniy Yatsenyuk and Oleh Tyahnybok. Yatsenyuk, a former banker with connections to the financial elite, became interim prime minister. Tyahnybok is a member of the Verkhovna Rada, the Ukrainian Parliament, and the leader of nationalist Svoboda political party. He has complained that Ukraine is controlled by a “Muscovite-Jewish mafia” and warns “Germans, kikes and other scum” want to “take away our Ukrainian state.”

Feb 2015, WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel resigned under pressure on Monday after President Obama determined that he had to shake up his national security team in the face of escalating conflicts overseas and hawkish Republicans reasserting themselves on Capitol Hill. It was a striking reversal for a president who chose Mr. Hagel two years ago in part to limit the power of Pentagon officials who had repeatedly pushed for more troops in Afghanistan and a slower drawdown of American forces from Iraq. But in the end, Mr. Hagel’s passivity and lack of support in Mr. Obama’s inner circle proved too much for an administration that found itself back on a war footing. Aides said Mr. Obama made the decision to remove his defense secretary on Friday after weeks of rising tension over a variety of issues, including what administration officials said were Mr. Hagel’s delays in transferring detainees from the military prison in Guantánamo Bay and a dispute with Susan E. Rice, the national security adviser, over Syria policy. The strains were evident in a stilted ceremony on Monday at the White House, where Mr. Obama called the defense secretary he had pushed out “exemplary” and lauded his status as the first enlisted combat veteran to hold the job, saying it had helped him to empathize with American soldiers. “He’s been in the dirt. He’s been in the mud,” Mr. Obama said. “He sees himself in them. They see themselves in him.” But as the president spoke of the “blood and treasure and sacrifices” of enlisted men and women like Mr. Hagel, turning several times to try to address his defense secretary directly, Mr. Hagel stared ahead fixedly, declining to make eye contact with Mr. Obama. When it was his turn to speak, Mr. Hagel described the president’s national security strategy as a “team effort,” and spoke of trying to “build teams and to work together to make things happen for the good of the country.” In reality, Mr. Hagel was never able to penetrate the president’s tight national security team of West Wing loyalists, officials at the White House and the Pentagon said. And faced with the calls for a shake-up of his national security staff to better deal with an onslaught of global crises, Mr. Obama balked at the idea of replacing Ms. Rice, Secretary of State John Kerry or the powerful White House chief of staff, Denis R. McDonough

Whitehouse Feb 2015 - This morning, President Obama announced his nomination of former Deputy Secretary of Defense Ashton Carter to be the next U.S. Secretary of Defense. Carter has been in public service for more than 30 years, and has served in various positions under 11 Secretaries of Defense. "Ash is rightly regarded as one of our nation's foremost national security leaders," the President said in today's remarks. "As a top member of our Pentagon team for the first five years of my presidency, including his two years as deputy secretary, he was at the table in the Situation Room; he was by my side navigating complex security challenges that we were confronting. I relied on his expertise, and I relied on his judgment." President Obama went on to detail Carter's "unique blend of strategic perspective and technical know-how," and the breadth of knowledge that he has about the Department of Defense:

DoD - Ashton B. Carter served as the Deputy Secretary of Defense from October 2011 to December 2013. Previously, Dr. Carter served as Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology and Logistics from April 2009 until October 2011. Over the course of his career in public service, Dr. Carter has four times been awarded the Department of Defense Distinguished Service Medal. For his contributions to intelligence, Dr. Carter was awarded the Defense Intelligence Medal. Dr. Carter earned bachelor's degrees in physics and in medieval history from Yale University, summa cum laude, Phi Beta Kappa, and received his doctorate in theoretical physics from Oxford University, where he was a Rhodes Scholar. Prior to his most recent government service, Dr. Carter was chair of the International and Global Affairs faculty at Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government and Co-Director of the Preventive Defense Project. Dr. Carter was also Senior Partner at Global Technology Partners, a member of the Aspen Strategy Group, a member of the Board of Trustees of the MITRE Corporation and the Advisory Boards of MIT's Lincoln Laboratories and the Draper Laboratory, and an advisor to Goldman Sachs. During the Clinton Administration, Dr. Carter was Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Policy. From 1990 until 1993, Dr. Carter was Director of the Center for Science and International Affairs at Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government, and Chairman of the Editorial Board of International Security. Previously, he held positions at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the Congressional Office of Technology Assessment, and Rockefeller University. Dr. Carter is a member of the President's Management Council and the National Council on Federal-Labor-Management Relations. Dr. Carter is a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the American Academy of Diplomacy and is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations and the American Physical Society. In addition to authoring articles, scientific publications, government studies, and Congressional testimonies, Dr. Carter has co-edited and co-authored eleven books. Dr. Carter is married to Stephanie Carter and has two grown children.

Early Life Ashton Baldwin Carter was born on September 24, 1954, in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. He is the son of Anne (Baldwin), an English teacher, and William S. Carter, Jr., a Navy neurologist and psychiatrist, and department chairman at Abington Memorial Hospital for 30 years. He was raised in Abington, Pennsylvania, on Wheatsheaf Lane.^[4] When he was 11 years old and working at his first job, at a Philadelphia car wash, he was fired for "wise-mouthing the owner."¹ Carter was educated at Highland Elementary School (class of 1966) and at Abington Senior High School (class of 1972) in Abington. In high school he was President of the Honor Society, and a wrestler, lacrosse player, and cross-country runner.¹ He was inducted into Abington Senior High School's Hall of Fame in 1989.

Senator McCain has adjourned the hearing, so we'll wrap our coverage of secretary of defense nominee Ashton Carter with the summary below.

- Carter said he supports giving lethal arms to the Ukrainian government for its war against Russia-backed rebels in the nation's east. He said he is "strongly inclined" to provide equipment, but not personnel, and that Europe must continue to inflict punitive sanctions to deal with "the big Putin lie".
- Senators John McCain and Lindsey Graham grilled Carter about US strategy in Syria, Iraq and Afghanistan. The senators demanded "conditions-based withdrawal" from Afghanistan and a plan to deal with Syrian leader Bashar al-Assad.
- "The United States' involvement is necessary, but not sufficient" to defeat Isis, Carter said, but he added that extremism will continue beyond a successful campaign. "We need to be thinking about terrorism more generally as a more enduring part of our national security mission," he said....

Reuters 4/17/2015 - The Kremlin said on Friday the arrival of about 300 U.S. paratroopers in Ukraine to train Kiev's National Guard could destabilize the situation in the east of the country, where pro-Russian separatists are fighting Ukrainian government forces. Ukraine has repeatedly asked for international help to boost its defensive capabilities. Western countries have so far declined its requests to supply weapons, while offering non-lethal military aid and training. "The participation of instructors or specialists from third countries on Ukrainian territory, where the domestic Ukrainian conflict is unresolved ... could destabilize the situation," Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov told reporters in Moscow during a conference call. He was referring to the arrival of the U.S. paratroopers in western Ukraine this week to begin a six-month training rotation with three battalions. Ukraine and the West have accused Russia of interfering in the year-old conflict by sending in troops and weapons. Moscow has denied those charges and warned against excessive Western influence in Ukraine. The training mission, which was first announced in August last year, had been due to start in March but was put on hold until further progress was made in implementing a ceasefire deal, agreed in February, to end a conflict in which more than 6,100 people have been killed. The truce remains technically in force, despite almost daily reports of casualties and ceasefire violations. Britain has already sent military personnel to train Ukrainian troops, while Canada and Poland have pledged to send 200 and 50 instructors respectively this year.

41.1 SENs McCAIN & LEVIN SEEK GEN DEMPSEY'S MIDEAST ASSESSMENT

July 19, 2013 Washington, D.C. – U.S. Senators John McCain (R-AZ) and Carl Levin (D-MI), Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, today asked General Martin Dempsey, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, for his assessment on a number of issues related to U.S. policy in Syria and Afghanistan. The Committee held a hearing yesterday, July 18, on General Dempsey's re-nomination to continue to serve as Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Senators McCain and Levin look forward to receiving the responses as soon as possible in order to move forward promptly with the confirmation proceedings.

The letter is below is attached:

July 19, 2013 General Martin Dempsey Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff 9999 Joint Staff, Pentagon
Washington, D.C. 20318-9999

Dear Chairman Dempsey: We would appreciate if you would respond promptly to the attached questions. Thank you for your assistance. Sincerely, Carl Levin John McCain

Syria - What is your assessment of the costs, benefits, and risks associated with training and arming vetted elements of the Syrian opposition? In your view, could such action alone be sufficient to adequately build the military capability of the moderate opposition in Syria and create the necessary conditions for the Administration's stated policy objective—Bashar al-Assad's departure and a negotiated solution to the conflict in Syria—to succeed? What limited kinetic military options exist, short of establishing a nation-wide No-Fly Zone in Syria, that might shift the military balance of power against the regime and create the necessary conditions for the Administration's stated policy objective—Bashar al-Assad's departure and a negotiated solution to the conflict in Syria—to succeed? Please provide your assessment of the costs, benefits, and risks associated with each of these options. Specifically, does the United States have the capacity, using stand-off weaponry that would not require destruction of Syria's air defenses, to significantly diminish or limit the Assad regime's ability to use air power, ballistic missiles and heavy artillery, particularly against areas of Syria under opposition control? Would diminishing or limiting the regime's capacity to use such weapons shift the balance of power in a way that advances the Administration's stated policy objective? What is your assessment of the costs, benefits, and risks associated with this approach? What countries might join us in support of such an effort and with what effect? Which of the options that you have identified, if any, do you believe would be sufficient to shift the military balance of power against the regime and create the necessary conditions for the Administration's stated policy objective—Bashar al-Assad's departure and a negotiated solution to the conflict in Syria—to succeed? What is your assessment of the costs and risks associated with taking such actions? You testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee on February 12, 2013* that you had advised the President to arm vetted units of the Syrian opposition. On April 17, 2013, you testified to this Committee that you no longer supported doing that. In your view, have the costs, benefits, and risks associated with this approach changed over time, and if so, how? What is your current view on whether the United States should arm such units and why? Considering only military factors, what is your professional military judgment as to whether the benefits of limited kinetic military action in Syria would outweigh the costs of such action? What other, non-military factors are you aware of that might be weighed by decision-makers in determining whether or not to take such an approach?

Afghanistan - Do you believe the military campaign in Afghanistan, especially the development of Afghan National Security Forces, is succeeding on the ground? Do you believe it is appropriate to accept the risk of drawing down half of our combat force in Afghanistan by February or March of next year, just a few weeks before the country's presidential election? Do you believe we have national security interests in Afghanistan that justify an enduring presence of U.S. forces beyond 2014? Do you believe it is in the U.S. national security interest that a reconciliation agreement be concluded with the Taliban by December 31, 2014? Do you believe that the incentives exist at this time for the Taliban to reach a reconciliation agreement that would serve U.S. national security interests in Afghanistan, including respect for the Afghan constitution?

Note: In the video on can see US Senator McCain pressures General Dempsey to engage in War with Syria. What has Syria done to the United States that requires the risk of the lives US Troops?

41.2 Sen McCain Vows to Stop Gen Dempsey's Appointment to Joint Chief of Staff

- <http://www.latimes.com/news/nationworld/world/middleeast/la-fg-syria-dempsey-20130719,0,6484629.story>

WASHINGTON — The debate over U.S. intervention in Syria threatened to derail the confirmation of America's top military officer Thursday when a senior Republican senator vowed to block Army Gen. Martin Dempsey's second-term appointment as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Sen. John McCain (R-Ariz.) will hold up the nomination "until he gets answers to the legitimate questions he asked of Gen. Dempsey on Syria," McCain spokesman Brian Rogers said after McCain and Dempsey clashed during a confirmation hearing before the Senate Armed Services Committee. McCain expressed frustration with the general's testimony regarding the possibility of launching airstrikes to bolster beleaguered rebel forces in the Syrian civil war. The general acknowledged that the Pentagon had drafted plans for "direct kinetic strikes" and that President Obama was weighing the military options. But he refused to offer his personal views, saying the president would make the final decision on use of force. McCain unsuccessfully pushed the general to give his opinion, asking, "Do you think we ought to see how we could stop the war by intervening and stopping the massacre?" In a heated exchange, Dempsey said he would "let this committee know what my recommendations are at the appropriate time, yes, sir." "The question whether to support it with direct kinetic strikes is ... a decision for our elected officials, not for the senior military leader of the nation," Dempsey said. "That issue is under deliberation inside of our agencies of government, and it would be inappropriate for me to try to influence the decision with me rendering an opinion in public about what kind of force we should use." McCain accused Dempsey of shifting his public position on intervention and performing "pirouettes" in his testimony to Congress, a characterization the general rejected. McCain has long urged the administration to deepen its military involvement in Syria, where more than two years of fighting between security forces and an array of rebel militias have left as many as 100,000 people dead. It is a view shared by many Syrians who have joined the opposition or fled the fighting. Secretary of State John F. Kerry got a taste of that anger from Syrian refugees when he visited the Zaatari refugee camp in Jordan on Thursday. He met with a group of camp residents who pleaded for the U.S. to use its air power to create a safe zone for refugees. They contrasted the strong military support that Iran and the Lebanese militant group Hezbollah are giving the Syrian government with what they say is a far weaker effort by the rebels' foreign supporters. "Where is the international community? What are you waiting for?" asked a woman, one of six refugees who met with Kerry for 40 minutes in a white trailer on the edge of the barbed-wire-wrapped encampment. "I think the U.S. as a superpower can change the situation in 30 minutes after you return to Washington." Kerry listened grimly and said he sympathized. But he said military solutions weren't as simple as they seemed, and recalled the costs in blood and money that the United States had borne in Iraq and Afghanistan over the last 12 years. "I wish it was very simple.... It's not as simple as it sounds," he said. But he promised, "You are not abandoned." The Obama administration said last month that it would provide weapons and ammunition to opposition forces, although the White House has refused to provide details on the precise nature and scope of its military support. Obama has explicitly ruled out sending ground troops, but administration officials have said that nearly all other military options remain under consideration. The president has also suggested that establishing a no-fly zone would be difficult and ineffective. In Syria, a Kurdish militia with links to an outlawed group in Turkey was reported Thursday to be in control of a key border crossing along the Turkish-Syrian border as battles raged between its fighters and Syrian Arab rebels. The renewed violence this week in Ras Ayn, on Syria's northeastern border with Turkey, has again highlighted the ethnic and sectarian divisions that have come to the forefront during the civil war. A fragile cease-fire between the two groups in the area fell apart this week, resulting in the fierce clashes, according to accounts from Turkish authorities and others. At least two dozen people were killed, according to the Syrian Observatory for Human Rights, a pro-opposition monitoring group based in Britain. The battles took place in northern Hasaka province, home to Syria's largest concentration of ethnic Kurds, who are distinct from Arabs, the majority in Syria. Nationwide, Kurds represent about 10% of the Syrian population, according to most estimates. Most Turkish factions in Syria are secular in nature and say they are opposed to Islamist rule, a fact that has long been a point of friction between Kurdish militiamen and some Syrian Arab rebel factions.

42.1.1 Kennedy, the Lobby and the Bomb by Laurent Guyenot

<http://www.voltairenet.org/article178401.html>

In May 1963, the U.S. Senate Committee on Foreign Relations opened an investigation into the covert activities of foreign agents on U.S. soil, focusing in particular on the American Zionist Council and the Jewish Agency for Israel. [1] The investigation was prompted by a report from the Chairman of that standing Committee, Senator J. William Fulbright, written in March 1961 (declassified in 2010), stating: "In recent years there has been an increasing number of incidents involving attempts by foreign governments, or their agents, to influence the conduct of American foreign policy by techniques outside normal diplomatic channels." By covert activities, including "within the United States and elsewhere," Fulbright was referring to the 1953 "Lavon Affair" [2], where a group of Egyptian Jews was recruited by Israel to carry out bomb attacks against British targets, which were to be blamed on the Muslim Brotherhood so as to discredit Nasser in the eyes of the British and Americans. The Senate investigation brought to light a money laundering racket through which the Jewish Agency (indivisible from the State of Israel and a precursor to the Israeli Government) was channelling tens of millions of dollars to the American Zionist Council, the main Israeli lobby in the United States. Following this investigation, the Department of Justice, under the authority of Attorney General Robert Kennedy, ordered the American Zionist Council to register as "agents of a foreign government," subject to the requirements of the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938, involving the close monitoring of its activities. This attempt to counter Israel's growing interference in U.S. politics undoubtedly enjoyed the support of the President. At the time when he was still a young journalist covering the United Nations inaugural conference, John Kennedy was troubled by Israel's ability to buy politicians, up to and including the President himself. By recognizing the State of Israel on May 15, 1948, (just ten minutes after its official proclamation) despite the unanimous disapproval of his government, President Harry Truman not only gained a place in biblical history ("Truman's historic act of recognition will remain forever inscribed in golden letters in the 4000-year history of the Jewish people", declared the Israeli ambassador), he also pocketed two million dollars to revitalize his re-election campaign. "That's why our recognition of Israel was rushed through so fast," Kennedy told his friend novelist and essayist Gore Vidal [3]....

42.14.2.1 ADL Comments on Edgar Steele.

Edgar J. Steele, 65, is an anti-Semitic lawyer based in Sandpoint, Idaho. He graduated from the University of Washington with a BA in 1967; then served four years in the Coast Guard during the Vietnam era. Steele earned an MBA in 1973 in accounting at the University of California at Berkeley; and obtained his law degree from the UCLA School of Law in 1982. He is admitted to the bar in Idaho, Oregon, Washington and California. In recent years, his trial law practice has included several cases featuring “politically incorrect” clients. He is perhaps best known for defending Richard Butler and Aryan Nations in a case brought against them in 2000 by the Southern Poverty Law Center on behalf of a woman and her son who were attacked by Aryan Nations guards. Steele lost the case, and Aryan Nations was forced to pay damages of $6.3 million. Despite the loss, Steele has acquired a certain cachet in the right-wing extremist community for having represented such controversial figures as Joann McGuckin, Lonnie Rae and Brian and Ruth Christine, in their dealings with the legal system and the media....

42.14.2.2 SPLC Comments in Edgar Steele

Attorney and author Edgar Steele was a little-known Idaho lawyer until 2000, when he represented the neo-Nazi Aryan Nations after the group, its leader and several followers were sued by the Southern Poverty Law Center. Since losing that case (and penning a 2002 coming-out essay entitled, "It's the Jews, Stupid!!!"), Steele has become a regular on the anti-Semitic and racist circuit. Steele envisions a future race war in the U.S., with white Americans forced to retreat to the Northwest.

In His Own Words - "To the Arabs, America and Israel are the same. In a very real sense, they are absolutely correct, of course. America is Jewish controlled now, at all levels. America IS the Jews. ... [The 9/11 attacks] happened because we have been taken over from within by people that see that the only way to remain in power is to conquer the rest of the world." — From a 2001 essay on www.ConspiracyPenPal.com

"Without a pressure release valve, as open racism once provided, an explosion of epic proportions at some time in the future is guaranteed. There will be a race war, the initial skirmishes of which already are being fought in America's streets, that will bring an altogether new meaning to the concepts of race war and genocide, courtesy of those who claim to abhor racism."— From Steele's 2004 book Defensive Racism

42.14.2.3 GOVERNMENT MURDERS EDGAR STEELE – CAN THEY GET AWAY WITH IT?

Today, September 4, 2014, early afternoon, a California mortuary notified Mrs. Cyndi Steele that her husband Edgar was dead. At this time, specific circumstances regarding Mr. Steele's death are being confirmed. The Free Edgar Steele web site and the Edgar Steele Defense Fund (ESDF) will release more information when available. Mrs. Steele contacted the ESDF Board, saying she was utterly devastated by this information, and is furious that no Victorville representative contacted her in the last few days regarding his failing health and did not even call her regarding the death of her husband. It was cruel to allow the mortuary to make the call. Based on the best knowledge at hand, the following are the most likely causes of death: drug overdoses, persistently delayed, insufficient, improper medical treatment and medical neglect. The federal government and Victorville Penitentiary bears responsibility for the lives of the inmates who reside there and has refused to be accountable for the decline in Edgar Steele's health. Some hours before Mrs. Steele was contacted by the mortuary, ESDF President Robert Magnuson received an email corroborating Ms. Steele's concern for her husband's health and safety that showed Mr. Steele's health has been in a sharp decline for the past month, which fact was obscured, if not hidden by the federal government. First, Mr. Steele was the victim of a false prosecution, then he was imprisoned in the most dangerous prison health in America. Then his wife was never allowed to visit him despite a court order allowing visitation. Then, his health was compromised because of neglect, and finally, the reports came in that he had been drugged out of his mind earlier this week, which was the final blow that killed him. Call it anything else you like, but it is murder. The facts of this tragic situation will be disclosed as the information is gathered.

42.14.2.3.1 The Ordeal of Edgar Steele and His Family

- <http://republicbroadcasting.org/no-protection-the-long-ordeal-of-cyndi-steele/>

Death threats received by the family of Edgar and Cyndi Steele during the 2000 civil trial of Aryan Nation leader Richard Butler "We are not going to be providing you with any protection," the federal marshal told Cyndi Steele after she and her son had been ushered into a room in the Kootenai County Courthouse in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho. This was not what Cyndi expected to be told. After all, she recently recalled in a telephone interview, "I had just learned that I had been driving around with a bomb on my car." That bomb, which had been discovered during an oil change, had been attached to her car by a local handyman named Larry Fairfax, whom Cyndi and her husband Edgar had employed to do some work on their ranch in Sagle, Idaho. Fairfax, the man who admitted to planting that bomb, served less than a year in federal prison for “possession of an unregistered firearm” and “manufacturing a firearm.” He was granted early release to a halfway house in Coeur d’Alene, a facility “that was nicer than most hotels I’ve visited,” Cyndi wryly observes. He is now living less than two miles away from his victim, who was not granted a restraining order “because I was not in a domestic relationship with him,” she reports. Edgar Steele, who was convicted – largely on the strength of Fairfax’s self-serving and self-contradictory testimony – of plotting to murder Cyndi, died last Thursday (September 4) in the federal prison in Victorville, California, where he was serving a 60-year sentence. The jury in the federal trial, which was held before Judge Lynn Winmill in Boise, consisted of eleven women and one man. The prosecution used voir dire to exclude from the panel any potential juror with specialized knowledge of acoustics or explosives, and to weed out anybody who evinced hostility or even skepticism toward the federal government. It is not an exaggeration to say that the jury was specially crafted to be receptive to the prosecution’s narrative, in which Edgar, a man in his 60s, supposedly hired someone to kill his middle-aged wife in order to allow him to take up with Tatyana Loginova, a nubile Ukrainian woman with whom he had been conversing online. Cyndi insists that those online chats were part of Edgar’s research into what he described as an extortion scam being run out of the former Soviet Union. However improbable that story might appear, it is more plausible than the idea that an embattled political dissident, facing constant scrutiny by the Feds death threats from politically connected enemies, would conspire to murder the wife who had nursed him through several cardiac-related health crises. That matter was rendered moot by the fact that the alleged victim didn’t believe for a peeled fraction of a split second that her husband had arranged to kill her, and never filed charges against him. In anticipation of Cyndi’s refusal to collaborate, FBI agent Michael Sotka, who orchestrated the operation, paid Fairfax $500 and sent him to Oregon to make a phone call to Steele’s home, thereby forging the “interstate nexus” used to justify prosecuting him in federal court. As both Cyndi and Edgar told the story, when Fairfax came to work for them he was upside-down on his mortgage and facing foreclosure. His prospects brightened considerably after he was able to make a substantial payment to the mortgage holder by cashing in a considerable amount of silver coins he had acquired from the Steeles. Cyndi and Edgar insisted that Fairfax, who had the run of their property, stole about $45,000 in silver from them. Fairfax claimed that he had been given the silver by Edgar as payment in a murder-for-hire plot targeting his wife and mother-in-law. Supposedly stricken by remorse – or, perhaps, to cover up his theft — Fairfax went to the FBI, who fitted him with a digital recorder and sent him back to the Steele family’s ranch to discuss the alleged plot. No original copy of exists of the digital recording from that June 10, 2010 conversation. Special Agent Michael Sotka violated Bureau procedures by purging it from his recorder after using a computer to upload the digital file to the FBI lab in Quantico, Virginia. He did this without a second agent being present, as regulations specify. Sotka and an Idaho State Trooper named Jess Spike visited Edgar Steele the following day – June 11, 2010 – to tell him that his wife and mother-in-law had been killed. They later admitted that this was a “ruse” intended to prompt Steele into saying or doing something that would incriminate himself in the crime. Steele, a self-described white nationalist, was an attorney involved in civil litigation on behalf of unsavory and disreputable clients, such as Richard Butler of the Aryan Nation white separatist group. (For reasons made obvious by the photograph accompanying this essay, I have no affinity for that ideology.) Steele had represented Butler ten years earlier after a lawsuit had been filed against his neo-Nazi clique by the equally reprehensible Southern Poverty Law Center. Since that time, he and his family had received numerous death threats, some of which alluded to possible lethal retaliation by the FBI. Understandably, his first reaction to the grim news on June 11, 2010 was to believe that his family was under siege, and that the federal agent in his living room might well be working in concert with his enemies. Although his wife and mother-in-law were unharmed any suspicions Steele harbored about the role played by the Feds were entirely vindicated. Despite the fact that Edgar did nothing to indicate guilty foreknowledge of the supposed bombing plot, Sotka arrested him anyway. At the time, Cyndi had traveled from Sagle to Oregon City, Oregon to visit her mother. Nobody told her about the pipe bomb that had been affixed to the undercarriage of her SUV, or a similar device that had been attached to Edgar's Cadillac. She discovered the bomb – which, it was later disclosed, was essentially a stage prop incapable of being detonated – shortly before going to the courthouse to attend Edgar's preliminary hearing. "They played the recording [of the supposed conversation with Fairfax] at the time, and my first reaction was that it didn't sound anything like Ed," Cyndi told me. "They played it to me on a couple of other occasions, and every time it changed. In the first version, it was possible at one point to hear the word 'bomb,' but when I heard it again that had been changed to 'car bomb.'" The recordings were analyzed by forensic scientist Dr. George Papcun, who has served as an expert witness and advisor on behalf of numerous law enforcement agencies, including the Department of Homeland Security. Dr. Papcun, who is among the most qualified and respected specialists in his field, detected roughly 300 "transients" and other anomalies in the recording, leading him to conclude that there was "a reasonable degree of scientific probability that they [the recordings] do not represent a true and valid representation of reality and they are unreliable." During Steele's May 2011 trial, the prosecution attempted to exclude both Dr. Papcun's report and his testimony. Judge Winmill initially ruled that Papcun, who was on vacation in Bora Bora, would be allowed to offer testimony via interactive video conference. The prosecution objected, claiming that this arrangement would not permit them to "confront" the witness – a right guaranteed to the defense, not the prosecution, by the Sixth Amendment. On May 3, Winmill reversed himself, ruling that Papcun would be permitted to testify only if he were physically present no later than 8:30 a.m. the following morning – which was a physical impossibility. Both Papcun and the defense were willing to pay the expense necessary for the witness to appear on May 5, but Winmill insisted that he simply couldn't spare another day in order to allow the defense to present its case. By way of contrast, Winmill permitted the prosecution to present a video-recorded deposition by Tatyana Loginova, the young Ukrainian woman and supposed object of Steele's extra-marital affection, who was deposed at a US consulate in Kiev with the help of a Russian language translator. The evidence against Steele (as I have documented in ample detail elsewhere) consisted of a doctored audio recording, the testimony of an admitted liar and attempted bomber, and a self-serving video deposition by a foreign national from a dubious background who was shielded from effective cross-examination. During jury selection, Assistant US Attorney Traci Whelan subjected potential jurors to invasive scrutiny regarding potential "hidden biases" against "the United States Government." "The judge actually instructed the defense on several occasions not to present anything [or] ask any questions, or make any objections that would make the government look bad," observed attorney Wesley Hoyt, who represented Edgar in his appeal. "We used to have something called the presumption of innocence.... Anybody who was accused of a crime was presumed innocent ... the government had to put on enough evidence to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the person was guilty. Now there's a presumption of governmental regularity and correctness. What that means is that the court presumes that everything that the government does is in the regular course of business, and that it's normal, and it's OK, and it's correct." Whatever the merits of the federal case against Edgar Steele, the prosecution did not convince the most important jury – the supposed victim. "From the very beginning they treated me with hostility," Cyndi related to me. "They did nothing to warn me about having a bomb on my vehicle, then after it was discovered I was explicitly told that I could expect no protection." Larry Fairfax, the man who admitted to placing that bomb on Cyndi's SUV, was ordered to pay her the sum of $900 in compensation. Her husband, who had no hands-on role in the matter, was sent to prison for life. The only "protection" Cyndi received was from a man she was convinced had done him no harm. "The last time I saw Ed was in November 2011, while he was in the county jail waiting to be transported to prison," Cyndi recalls. "Our kids were able to visit him in California, but I wasn't permitted to. We did speak on the phone often, and I was concerned about the fact that he was suffering from severe medical neglect." During the months leading up to his arrest, Edgar had experienced severe heart problems and suffered an aneurysm that was nearly fatal. In prison he contracted pneumonia that was left untreated for several weeks. When he tardily received treatment, he was diagnosed with a heart murmur. About three weeks before he died, Edgar stopped calling, which left Cyndi frantic. "We were talking about twenty times a month, so the absence of phone calls from Ed was alarming," she told me. "I couldn't find out how he was doing. Nobody at the prison would tell me anything. On the day before he died I got a forwarded email from an inmate who was watching Ed's back that made me very concerned about him. He had been taken from Victorville to testify at a trial in West Virginia, and when he got back Ed was unrecognizable to him." "I got back on the writ 6 days ago, and the next day, Friday, Edgar went to the hospital," wrote the inmate, Jake Laskey, on September 3. "He got back from hospital yesterday and didn't know who he was nor what unit he lives in, and ... he's back in a wheelchair. I saw Edgar today at lunch. He was being pushed back to Medical and barely recognized me, He was half naked in his wheelchair, skinny as a skeleton, unkempt, and his mind was gone." Cyndi hastily made arrangements to fly down to California to meet her children and visit with her husband on September 5. Those plans dissolved after Cyndi received a terse and unexpected phone call from a local mortuary asking what "arrangements" she wanted to make for the disposition of Edgar's remains. "The prison administration never contacted me," Cyndi told me, weary bitterness shading her voice. "We hadn't been told he was sick, let alone that he was near death. Even now, several days after he passed, the prison hasn't given me official notice."

Anti-Zionist Orthodox Jews Participate in Al-Quds Day Rallies in Many Major Cities

On August 17, 2012, rallies were held in many major cities worldwide to commemorate the International Al-Quds Day. This day is designated by many Muslim communities as a day of remembering Quds (Jerusalem), the entire Palestine, and the catastrophe and calamity that was brought upon them with the creation of the State of Israel. Rabbis of Neturei Karta International were invited as guest speakers in many locations, including New York City, Dallas TX, Seattle WA, Atlanta GA, Los Angeles CA, Chicago IL, Toronto Canada, London England and Berlin Germany. The Rabbis delivered a message of total solidarity with the suffering people of Palestine and condemnation against the crimes done to them. Rabbi Dovid Feldman in his speech in Los Angeles CA said: "We are embarrassed by these acts committed in our name, and humiliated that this was done in the name of our religion. We apologize for the injustice done to the Palestinian people, for the tragedy that has befallen Palestine and Quds, Jerusalem." Rabbi Yisroel Dovid Weiss in his speech in Seattle WA said: "The crimes committed against the Palestinian people by the State of Israel are in violation of Jewish law, which teaches compassion and mercy. But even if they were not to commit any crime against others, it would still be forbidden." Rabbi Weiss went on to explain: "According to Jewish belief, Jews are in a Divinely decreed exile and are forbidden to create a State of their own. In violating this, the Zionists are going against basic Judaism." It was also made clear that recent Zionist threats against Iran are to be condemned; such provocative talk does not represent the opinion of world Jewry. Rabbi Joel Glauber said in his speech in New York City: "The Torah requires of Jews to live in peace with all people and not to take any political actions against other nations." Rabbi Amrom Rosenberg in his speech in Dallas TX said: "As we speak, large numbers of Orthodox Jews in the Holy Land are being imprisoned for their refusal to serve in the Israeli army. Mass demonstrations against the Israeli army are being held on the streets of Jerusalem." The banners displayed by the Rabbis read: "The Torah demands freedom for Jerusalem and all Palestine", "Judaism rejects Zionism and the State of Israel" and "Judaism condemns Zionist provocation against Iran". NKI is a nonprofit religious organization committed to publicizing the viewpoint of masses of anti-Zionist Orthodox Jews worldwide, who strongly oppose the State of Israel and its actions. NKI travels around the world to attend rallies and conferences and to speak on many occasions on the topic of Zionism versus Judaism. Visit our web site www.nkusa.org

44 New World Order Legacy of Khazar Rothschild Illuminati

The Illuminati (plural of Latin illuminatus, "enlightened") is a name given to several groups, both real and fictitious. Historically, the name refers to the Bavarian Illuminati, an Enlightenment-era secret society founded on May 1, 1776...In subsequent use, "Illuminati" refers to various organisations which claim or are purported to have links to the original Bavarian Illuminati or similar secret societies, though these links are unsubstantiated. They are often alleged to conspire to control world affairs, by masterminding events and planting agents in government and corporations, in order to gain political power and influence and to establish a New World Order

The reverse side of the Great Seal of the United States (1776). The Latin phrase "novus ordo seclorum", appearing on the reverse side of the Great Seal since 1782 and on the back of the U.S. one-dollar bill since 1935, translates to "New Order of the Ages"^[1] and alludes to the beginning of an era where the United States of America is an independent nation-state; conspiracy theorists claim this is an allusion to the "New World Order"

44.1.1 Comments on Jack Otto's Legacy

Jack Otto was a well educated man, a college professor and martial arts instructor. He was a really nice guy. He gave me an autographed copy his book. I believe that he did such, because he liked my contributions to the broadcast. He and I even did a couple broadcasts together, twelve years ago. However, he refused to listen to my corrections. He does the standard misinterpretation of scriptures demanding on KJV's deliberate mistranslation. In his book talks about false Jews. The scripture states false Judaite. Jack equated that Jews and Judahites were synonymous, and they are not. Jews are AshkeNASIm, and are indeed JEWS, not Judahites. Judahites are descendants of Judah. Judeans were anyone, who lived in the nation Judah. Jews are not Hebrews, but then, Judahites are not Hebrews, either. Hebrews are the descends of Heber, who was a descendant of Canaan. Judah was a descendant of Abrashem (Abraham is another KJV mistranslation), who was a descendant of Eber. The Beast (Judaism) and the Image of the Beast (Catholicism) have played greatly with the translations in order to deliberately deceive; especially, the English and German translations. Translations into other languages are consistently more accurate. I am not sure why Jack refused to make the correction in his book, however, if you paid close attention to Jack as he gave his lecture, it is obvious that Jack was an Ashkenazi. Oops! From his book, it is also obvious that he was completely and totally, anti-Zionism. Not all Jews accept the Zionist swill, and Jack was one of them. I have reason to believe that Jack would not make the corrections, because he was afraid that the Zionist would kill him. He had already received numerous threats just because of what he had already put in writing. Jack refused to go to a hospital out of fear of lethal injection or death by doctor; and he had good cause to be afraid. I will not go to a hospital in the county in which I live, for the same reason. My friend Craig (Alex) made this film for Jack and it was recorded shortly before Jack died. Don Boettcher was one of Jack's martial art students. Don, used to be known as Yankee D, and he is Mark Koernke's sidekick on the Intelligence Report. – Sir David

44.2 History of the Rothschild Family – Timeline

- <http://www.veteranstoday.com/2015/04/29/historys-cruellest-hoax-semitic-khazars/>
- http://www.iamthewitness.com/DarylBradfordSmith_Rothschild.htm

The Rothschilds have been in control of the world for a very long time, their tentacles reaching into many aspects of our daily lives, as is documented in the following timeline. However, before you jump to the timeline, please read this invaluable introduction which will tell you who the Rothschilds are as oppose to who they claim to be. The Rothschilds claim that they are Jewish, when in fact they are Khazars (Turkish). They are from a country called Khazaria, which occupied the land locked between the Black Sea and the Caspian Sea which is now predominantly occupied by Georgia. The reason the Rothschilds claim to be Jewish is that the Khazars under the instruction of the King, converted to the Jewish faith in 740 A.D., but of course that did not include converting their Asiatic Mongolian genes to the genes of the Jewish people. You will find that approximately 90% of people in the world today who call themselves Jews are actually Khazars, or as they like to be known, Ashkenazi Jews. These people knowingly lie to the world with their claims that the land of Israel is theirs by birthright, when in actual fact their real homeland is over 800 miles away in Georgia. So, next time you hear an Israeli Prime Minister bleating about the so-called persecution of the Jews, consider this, every Prime Minister of Israel has been an Ashkenazi Jew. Therefore when all these Prime Ministers have curried favour with the West for their re-establishment of a Jewish homeland, they have knowingly and deliberately lied to you, as they were never from that region, and they well know it, because it is they who call themselves Ashkenazi Jews. The Book of Revelation, Chapter 2, Verse 9, states the following which would appear to be about these Ashkenazi Jews: "I know thy works, and tribulation and poverty, (but thou art rich) and I know the blasphemy of them which say they are Jews, and are not, but are the synagogue of Satan."The most wealthy bloodline in the world bar none and the leader of the Ashkenazi Jews in the world today is the Rothschild family. As you will see in the timeline, the Rothschilds have obtained this position through lies, manipulation and murder. Their bloodline also extends into the Royal Families of Europe, and the following family names: Astor; Bundy; Collins; duPont; Freeman; Kennedy; Morgan; Oppenheimer; Rockefeller; Sassoon; Schiff; Taft; and Van Duyn. However, these are not the only bloodlines to worry about. You are probably aware of the centuries old practice undertaken by many Ashkenazi Jews whereby they would change their name, in order for them to appear part of the dominant race of the country in which they lived, so as they could obtain influential positions in that country, which they would then exploit to serve their real masters elsewhere. There is plenty of evidence to prove the Rothschilds continue that deceptive tradition. Furthermore the Rothschilds are known to sire many children secretly that they can put into positions of power when required. This started with the very first man who took the name Rothschild, who had a secret sixth son. Finally, remember the world is a diverse place, I could if I wanted change my name to Rothschild, or any of the names listed above, and that would not make me part of this family anymore than converting to Judaism in 740 A.D. will make these Ashkenazis Jewish. Please, therefore, do not automatically assume someone you see with the name Rothschild or any of the names listed above are part of the Rothschild criminal network. Furthermore and most importantly, the majority of Ashkenazi Jews are innocent and not part of this network. Check the facts out for yourself first, this article is designed to inform people who the enemy is, not single out people of a particular race or people with a particular surname, who may have nothing to do with this Rothschild criminal network.

- 1743: Mayer Amschel Bauer, an Ashkenazi Jew, is born in Frankfurt, Germany, the son of Moses Amschel Bauer, a money lender and the proprietor of a counting house. Moses Amschel Bauer places a red sign above the entrance door to his counting house. This sign is a red hexagram (which geometrically and numerically translates into the number 666) which under Rothschild instruction will end up on the Israeli flag some two centuries later.
- 1753: Gutle Schnaper, an Ashkenazi Jew (future wife of Mayer Amschel Bauer), born to respected merchant, Wolf Salomon Schnaper.
- 1760: During this decade Mayer Amschel Bauer works for a bank owned by the Oppenheims' in Hanover, Germany. He is highly successful and becomes a junior partner. Whilst working at the bank he becomes acquainted with General von Estorff. Following his father's death, Bauer returns to Frankfurt to take over his father's business. Bauer recognises the significance of the red hexagram and changes his name from Bauer to Rothschild, after the red hexagram or sign signifying 666 hanging over the entrance door ("Rot," is German for, "Red," "Schild," is German for, "Sign"). Now Mayer Amschel Rothschild, he discovers that General von Estorff is now attached to the court of Prince William IX of Hesse-Hanau, one of the richest royal houses in Europe, which gained its' wealth by the hiring out of Hessian soldiers to foreign countries for vast profits (a practice that continues today in the form of exporting, "peacekeeping," troops throughout the world). He therefore makes the General's re-acquaintance on the pretext of selling him valuable coins and trinkets at discounted prices. As he plans, Rothschild is subsequently introduced to Prince William himself who is more than pleased with discounted prices he charges for his rare coins and trinkets, and Rothschild offers him a bonus for any other business the Prince can direct his way. Rothschild subsequently becomes close associates with Prince William, and ends up doing business with him and members of the court. He soon discovers that loaning money to governments and royalty is more profitable than loaning to individuals, as the loans are bigger and are secured by the nation's taxes.

- 1769: Mayer Amschel Rothschild is given permission by Prince William to hang a sign on the front of his business premises declaring that he is, "M. A. Rothschild, by appointment court factor to his serene highness, Prince William of Hanau."
- 1770: Mayer Amschel Rothschild draws up plans for the creation of the Illuminati and entrusts Ashkenazi Jew, Adam Weishaupt, a Crypto-Jew who was outwardly Roman Catholic, with its organization and development. The Illuminati is to be based upon the teachings of the Talmud, which is in turn, the teachings of Rabbinical Jews. It was to be called the Illuminati as this is a Luciferian term which means, keepers of the light. Mayer Amschel Rothschild marries Gutle Schnaper.
- 1773: Amschel Mayer Rothschild born, the first of Mayer Amschel Rothschild's sons. He like all his brothers who follow him, will enter the family business at the age of 12.
- 1774: Salomon Mayer Rothschild born.
- 1776: Adam Weishaupt officially completes his organisation of the Illuminati on May 1 of this year. The purpose of the Illuminati is to divide the goyim (all non-Jews) through political, economic, social, and religious means. The opposing sides were to be armed and incidents were to be provided in order for them to: fight amongst themselves; destroy national governments; destroy religious institutions; and eventually destroy each other. Weishaupt soon infiltrates the Continental Order of Freemasons with this Illuminati doctrine and establishes lodges of the Grand Orient to be their secret headquarters. This was all under the orders and finance of Mayer Amschel Rothschild and the concept has spread and is followed within Masonic Lodges worldwide to the present day.

Weishaupt also recruits 2,000 paid followers including the most intelligent men in the field of arts and letters, education, science, finance, and industry. They were instructed to follow the following methods in order to control people.

1. Use monetary and sex bribery to obtain control of men already in high places, in the various levels of all governments and other fields of endeavour. Once influential persons had fallen for the lies, deceits, and temptations of the Illuminati they were to be held in bondage by application of political and other forms of blackmail, threats of financial ruin, public exposure, and fiscal harm, even death to themselves and loved members of their families.
2. The faculties of colleges and universities were to cultivate students possessing exceptional mental ability belonging to well-bred families with international leanings, and recommend them for special training in internationalism, or rather the notion that only a one-world government can put an end to recurring wars and strife. Such training was to be provided by granting scholarships to those selected by the Illuminati.
3. All influential people trapped into coming under the control of the Illuminati, plus the students who had been specially educated and trained, were to be used as agents and placed behind the scenes of all governments as experts and specialists. This was so they would advise the top executives to adopt policies which would in the long-run serve the secret plans of the Illuminati one-world conspiracy and bring about the destruction of the governments and religions they were elected or appointed to serve.
4. To obtain absolute-control of the press, at that time the only mass-communications media which distributed information to the public, so that all news and information could be slanted in order to make the masses believe that a one-world government is the only solution to our many and varied problems.

- 1777: Nathan Mayer Rothschild born.
- 1784: Adam Weishaupt issues his order for the French Revolution to be started by Maximilien Robespierre in book form. This book was written by one of Weishaupt's associates, Xavier Zwack, and sent by courier from Frankfurt to Paris. However en route there, the courier is struck by lightning, the book detailing this plan discovered by the police, and handed over to the Bavarian authorities. As a consequence, the Bavarian government orders the police to raid Weishaupt's masonic lodges of the Grand Orient, and the homes of his most influential associates. Clearly, the Bavarian authorities were convinced that the book that was discovered was a very real threat by a private group of influential people, to use wars and revolutions to achieve their political ends.
- 1785: The Bavarian government outlaw the Illuminati and close all the Bavarian lodges of the Grand Orient. Mayer Amschel Rothschild moves his family home to a five storey house in Frankfurt which he shares with the Schiff family.
- 1786: The Bavarian government publish the details of the Illuminati plot in a document entitled, "The Original Writings of The Order and Sect of The Illuminati." They then send this document to all the heads of church and state throughout Europe, but sadly their warning is ignored.
- 1788: Kalmann (Carl) Mayer Rothschild Born.
- 1789: Due to the European ignorance of the Bavarian government's warning, the Illuminati's plan for a French Revolution succeeded from this year to 1793. This revolution was a bankers' dream, it established a new constitution and passed laws that forbade the Roman Church from levying tithes (taxes) and also removed its exemption from taxation.
- 1790: Mayer Amschel Rothschild states, "Let me issue and control a nation's money and I care not who writes the laws."
- 1791: The Rothschilds get, "control of a nation's money," through Alexander Hamilton (their agent in George Washington's cabinet) when they set up a central bank in the USA called the First Bank of the United States. This is established with a 20 year charter.
- 1792: Jacob (James) Mayer Rothschild born.
- 1796: Amschel Mayer Rothschild marries Eva Hanau.
- 1798: John Robison publishes a book entitled, "Proofs of a Conspiracy Against All the Religions and Governments of Europe Carried on in the Secret Meetings of Freemasons, Illuminati and Reading Societies." In this book, Professor Robison of the University of Edinburgh, one of the leading intellects of his time, who in 1783 was elected general secretary of the Royal Society of Edinburgh, gave details of the whole Rothschild Illuminati plot. He advised how he had been a high degree mason in the Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, and had been invited by Adam Weishaupt to Europe, where he had been given a revised copy of Weishaupt's conspiracy. However, although he pretended to go along with it, Professor Robison did not agree with it and therefore published his aforementioned book. The book included details of the Bavarian government's investigation into the Illuminati and the French Revolution. That same year on July 19th, David Pappen, President of Harvard University, lectured the graduating class on the influence illuminism was having on American politics and religion. At the age of 21, Nathan Mayer Rothschild leaves Frankfurt for England, where with a large sum of money given to him by his father, he sets up a banking house in London.
- 1800: Salomon Mayer Rothschild marries Caroline Stern.

- 1806: Napoleon states that it is his, "object to remove the house of Hess-Cassel from rulership and to strike it out of the list of powers." On hearing this, Prince William IX of Hesse-Hanau, flees Germany, goes to Denmark and entrusts his fortune valued at $3,000,000 at that time to Mayer Amschel Rothschild for safekeeping. Nathan Mayer Rothschild marries Hannah Barent Cohen the daughter of a wealthy London merchant.
- 1808: Nathan Mayer Rothschild has his first son born Lionel Nathan de Rothschild.
- 1810: Sir Francis Baring and Abraham Goldsmid die. This leaves Nathan Mayer Rothschild as the remaining major banker in England. Salomon Mayer Rothschild goes to Vienna, Austria and sets up the bank, M. von Rothschild und Söhne.
- 1811: The charter for the Rothschilds Bank of the United States runs out and Congress votes against its renewal. Nathan Mayer Rothschild is not amused and he states, "Either the application for renewal of the charter is granted, or the United States will find itself involved in a most disastrous war." However the United States stands firm and the Charter is not renewed, which causes Nathan Mayer Rothschild to issue another threat, "Teach those impudent Americans a lesson. Bring them back to colonial status."
- 1812: Backed by Rothschild money, and Nathan Mayer Rothschild's orders, the British declare war on the United States. The Rothschilds plan was to cause the United States to build up such a debt in fighting this war that they would have to surrender to the Rothschilds and allow the charter for the Rothschild owned First Bank of the United States to be renewed. Mayer Amschel Rothschild dies. In his will he lays out specific laws that the House of Rothschild were to follow: all key positions in the family business were only to be held by family members; only male members of the family were allowed to participate in the family business, this included a reported sixth secret bastard son (It is important to note that Mayer Amschel Rothschild also has five daughters, so today the spread of the Rothschild Zionist dynasty without the Rothschild name is far and wide, and Jews believe the mixed offspring of a Jewish mother is solely Jewish); the family was to intermarry with it's first and second cousins to preserve the family fortune (of the 18 marriages by Mayer Amschel Rothschild's grandchildren, 16 were between first cousins - a practice known today as inbreeding); no public inventory of his estate was to be published; no legal action was to be taken with regard to the value of the inheritance; the eldest son of the eldest son was to become the head of the family (this condition could only be overturned when the majority of the family agreed otherwise). This was straightaway the case and Nathan Mayer Rothschild was elected head of the family following his father, Mayer Amschel Rothschild's death. Jacob (James) Mayer Rothschild goes to Paris, France to set up the bank, de Rothschild Frères. Nathaniel de Rothschild, the son in law of Jacob (James) Mayer Rothschild, born.
- 1814: With regard to the $3,000,000 Prince William IX of Hesse-Hanau had entrusted to Mayer Amschel Rothschild for safekeeping, for an account of what happened next we turn to the Jewish Encyclopaedia, 1905 edition, Volume 10, page 494, which states, "According to legend this money was hidden away in wine casks, and, escaping the search of Napoleon's soldiers when they entered Frankfurt, was restored intact in the same casks in 1814, when the elector (Prince William IX of Hesse-Hanau) returned to the electorate (Germany). The facts are somewhat less romantic, and more businesslike." This last line indicates the money was never returned by Rothschild to Prince William IX of Hesse-Hanau. The encyclopaedia goes on to state, Nathan Mayer Rothschild invested this $3,000,000 in, gold from the East India Company knowing that it would be needed for Wellington's peninsula campaign." On the stolen money Nathan made, "no less than four profits:

- i) On the sale of Wellington's paper which he bought at 50 cents on the dollar and collected at par;
 - ii) on the sale of gold to Wellington;
 - iii) on its repurchase; and on forwarding it to Portugal."
- 1815: The five Rothschild brothers work to supply gold to both Wellington's army (through Nathan in England) and Napoleon's army (through Jacob in France), and begin their policy of funding both sides in wars. The Rothschilds love wars because they are massive generators of risk free debt. This is because they are guaranteed by the government of a country, and therefore the efforts of the population of that country, and it doesn't matter if that country loses the war because the loans are given on the guarantee that the victor will honour the debts of the vanquished. Whilst the Rothschilds are funding both sides in this war, they use the banks they have spread out across Europe to give them the opportunity to set up an unrivalled postal service network of secret routes and fast couriers. The post these couriers carried was to be opened up by these couriers and their details given to the Rothschilds so they always were one step ahead of current events. Furthermore, these Rothschild couriers were the only merchants allowed to pass through the English and French blockades. It was these couriers who also kept Nathan Mayer Rothschild up to date with how the war was going so he could use that intelligence to buy and sell from his position on the stock exchange in accordance with that intelligence. One of Rothschild's couriers was a man named Rothworth. When the outcome of the Battle of Waterloo was won by the British, Rothworth took off for the Channel and was able to deliver this news to Nathan Mayer Rothschild, a full 24 hours before Wellington's own courier. At that time British bonds were called consols and they were traded on the floor of the stock exchange. Nathan Mayer Rothschild instructed all his workers on the floor to start selling consols. This made all the other traders believe that the British had lost the war so they started selling frantically. Therefore the consols plummeted in value which was when Nathan Mayer Rothschild discreetly instructed his workers to purchase all the consols they could lay their hands on. When news came through that the British had actually won the war, the consols went up to a level even higher than before the war ended leaving Nathan Mayer Rothschild with a return of approximately 20 to 1 on his investment. This gave the Rothschild family complete control of the British economy, now the financial centre of the world following Napoleon's defeat, and forced England to set up a new Bank of England, which Nathan Mayer Rothschild controlled.

Interestingly 100 years later the New York Times would run a story stating that Nathan Mayer Rothschild's grandson had attempted to secure a court order to suppress publication of a book which had this insider trading story in it. The Rothschild family claimed the story was untrue and libellous, but the court denied the Rothschilds request and ordered the family to pay all court costs. Back to 1815, this is the year Nathan Mayer Rothschild makes his famous statement, "I care not what puppet is placed upon the throne of England to rule the Empire on which the sun never sets. The man who controls Britain's money supply controls the British Empire, and I control the British money supply."He would go onto brag that in the 17 years he had been in England he had increased the £20,000 stake given to him by his father, 2500 times to £50 million. The Rothschilds also use their control of the Bank of England to replace the method of shipping gold from country to country and instead used their five banks spread across Europe to set up a system of paper debits and credits, the banking system of today. By the end of this century, a period of time that was known as the, "Age of the Rothschilds," it is estimated that the Rothschild family controlled half the wealth of the world. However something that did not go well for the Rothschilds this year was the Congress of Vienna, which started in September, 1814 and concluded in June of this year. The reason for this Congress of Vienna, was for the Rothschilds to create a form of world government, to give them complete political control over much of the civilized world. Many of the European governments were in debt to the Rothschilds, so they figured they could use that as a bargaining tool. However the Tsar Alexander I of Russia, who had not succumbed to a Rothschild central bank, would not go along with the plan, so the Rothschild world government plan failed. Enraged by this, Nathan Mayer Rothschild swore that some day he or his descendants would destroy the Tsar Alexander I's entire family and descendants. Unfortunately he was true to his word and 102 years later Rothschild funded Bolsheviks would act upon that promise. Interestingly, world government fanatic and Ashkenazi Jew, Henry Kissinger, did his doctoral dissertation on the Congress of Vienna.

- 1816: The American Congress passes a bill permitting yet another Rothschild dominated central bank, which gives the Rothschilds control of the American money supply again. This is called the Second Bank of the United States and is given a twenty year charter. The British war against the America therefore ends with the deaths of thousands of British and American soldiers, but the Rothschilds get their bank.
- 1818: Following the French securing massive loans in 1817 in order to help rebuild after their disastrous defeat at Waterloo, Rothschild agents bought vast amounts of French government bonds causing their value to increase. On November 5th they dumped the lot on the open market causing their value to plummet and France to go into a financial panic. The Rothschilds then stepped in to take control of the French money supply. This was the same year the Rothschilds were able to loan £5,000,000 to the Prussian government.
- 1821: Kalmann (Carl) Mayer Rothschild was sent to Naples, Italy. He would end up doing a lot of business with the Vatican and Pope Gregory XVI subsequently conferred upon him the Order of St. George. Also, whenever the Pope received Kalmann, he would give him his hand rather than the customary toe to kiss, which showed the extent of Kalmann's power over the Vatican.
- 1822: The emperor of Austria made the five Rothschild brothers Barons. Nathan Mayer Rothschild chose not to take up the title.
- 1823: The Rothschilds take over the financial operations of the Catholic Church, worldwide.
- 1827: Sir Walter Scott publishes his nine volume set, The life of Napoleon and in volume two he states that the French Revolution was planned by the Illuminati (Adam Weishaupt) and was financed by the money changers of Europe (The Rothschilds).
- 1832: President Andrew Jackson (the 7th President of the United States from 1829 to 1837), runs the campaign for his second term in office under the slogan, "Jackson And No Bank!" This is in reference to his plan to take the control of the American money system to benefit the American people, not for the profiteering of the Rothschilds.
- 1833: President Andrew Jackson starts removing the government's deposits from the Rothschild controlled, Second Bank of the United States and instead deposits them into banks directed by democratic bankers. This causes the Rothschilds to panic and so they do what they do best, contract the money supply causing a depression. President Jackson knows what they are up to and later states, "You are a den of thieves vipers, and I intend to rout you out, and by the Eternal God, I will rout you out."

- 1834: The Italian revolutionary leader, Guiseppe Mazzini, is selected by the Illuminati to direct their revolutionary program throughout the world and would serve in that capacity until he died in 1872.
- 1835: On January 30, an assassin tries to shoot President Jackson, but miraculously both of the assassin's pistols misfired. President Jackson would later claim that he knew the Rothschilds were responsible for that attempted assassination. He is not the only one, the assassin, Richard Lawrence, who was found not guilty by reason of insanity, later bragged that powerful people in Europe had hired him and promised to protect him if he were caught. The Rothschilds acquire the rights in the Almadén quicksilver mines in Spain. This was at the time the biggest concession in the world and as quicksilver was a vital component in the refining of gold or silver this gave the Rothschilds a virtual world monopoly.
- 1836: Following his years of fighting against the Rothschilds and their central bank in America, President Andrew Jackson finally succeeds in throwing the Rothschilds central bank out of America, when the bank's charter is not renewed. It would not be until 1913 that the Rothschilds would be able to set up their third central bank in America, the Federal Reserve, and to ensure no mistakes are made, this time they will put one of their own bloodline, Jacob Schiff, in charge of the project. Nathan Mayer Rothschild dies and the control of his bank, N. M. Rothschild & Sons is passed on to his younger brother, James Mayer Rothschild.
- 1837: The Rothschilds send one of their own, August Belmont, an Ashkenazi Jew, to America to salvage their banking interests defeated by President Andrew Jackson.
- 1840: The Rothschilds become the Bank of England's bullion brokers. They set up agencies in California and Australia.
- 1841: President John Tyler (the 10th President of the United States From 1841 to 1845) vetoed the act to renew the charter for the Bank of the United States. He goes on to receive hundreds of letters threatening him with assassination.
- 1844: Salomon Mayer Rothschild purchases the United Coal Mines of Vítkovice and Austro-Hungarian Blast Furnace Company that would go on to be one of the top ten global industrial concerns. Benjamin Disraeli, an Ashkenazi Jew (who would go on to become British Prime Minister twice - the only admitted Ashkenazi Jew to do so) publishes Coningsby, in which he characterises Nathan Mayer Rothschild as, "the Lord and Master of the money markets of the world, and of course virtually Lord and Master of everything else. He literally held the revenues of Southern Italy in pawn, and Monarchs and Ministers of all countries courted his advice and were guided by his suggestions."
- 1845: The Great American Patriot, Andrew Jackson (7th President of the United States) dies. Before his death he is asked what he regarded his as greatest achievement. He replies without hesitation, "I Killed The Bank," This is in reference to the fact he banished the Rothschilds Second Bank of the United States in 1836. Jacob (James) Mayer Rothschild (who by now had married his niece, Betty, Salomon Mayer Rothschild's daughter), now known as Baron James de Rothschild, wins the contract to build the first major railway line across the country. This was called the Chemin De Fer Du Nord and ran initially from Paris to Valenciennes and then joined with the Austrian rail network built by his brother (and wife's father - all sounds a bit sordid doesn't it) Salomon Mayer Rothschild.
- 1847: Lionel De Rothschild now married to the daughter of his uncle, Kalmann (Carl) Mayer Rothschild, is elected to the parliamentary seat for the City of London. A requirement for entering parliament was to take an oath in the true faith of a Christian. Lionel De Rothschild refused to do this as he was Jewish and his seat in parliament remained empty for 11 years until new oaths were allowed. He must have been an invaluable representative for his constituency, bearing in mind he could never vote on any bill as he never entered parliament! I wonder how he managed to keep his parliamentary seat for 11 years?

- 1848: Karl Marx, an Ashkenazi Jew, publishes, "The Communist Manifesto." Interestingly at the same time as he is working on this, Karl Ritter of Frankfurt University was writing the antithesis which would form the basis for Friedrich Wilhelm Nietzsche's, "Nietzscheanism." This Nietzscheanism was later developed into Fascism and then into Nazism and was used to foment the first and second world wars. Marx, Ritter, and Nietzsche were all funded and under the instruction of the Rothschilds. The idea was that those who direct the overall conspiracy could use the differences in those two so-called ideologies to enable them to divide larger and larger factions of the human race into opposing camps so that they could be armed and then brainwashed into fighting and destroying each other, and particularly, to destroy all political and religious institutions. The same plan put forward by Weishaupt in 1776. Eva Hanau, Amschel Mayer Rothschild's wife dies.

- 1849: Gutle Schnaper, Mayer Amschel Rothschild's wife dies. Before her death she would nonchalantly state, "If my sons did not want wars, there would be none."
- 1850: Construction begins this decade on the manor houses of Mentmore in England and Ferrières in France, more Rothschilds Manors will follow throughout the world, all of them filled with works of art. Jacob (James) Rothschild in France is said to be worth 600 million francs, which at the time was 150 million francs more than all the other bankers in France put together.
- 1852: N.M. Rothschild & Sons begins refining gold and silver for the Royal Mint and the Bank of England and other international customers.
- 1853: Nathaniel de Rothschild, the son in law of Jacob (James) Mayer Rothschild, purchases Château Brane Mouton, the Bordeaux vineyard of Mouton, and renames it Château Mouton Rothschild.
- 1854: Caroline Stern, Salomon Mayer Rothschild's wife, dies.
- 1855: Amschel Mayer Rothschild dies. Salomon Mayer Rothschild dies. Kalmann (Carl) Mayer Rothschild dies.
- 1858: Lionel De Rothschild finally takes his seat in parliament when the requirement to take an oath in the true faith of a Christian is broadened to include other oaths. He becomes the first Jewish member of the British parliament.
- 1861: President Abraham Lincoln (16th President of the United States from 1860 till his assassination in 1865) approaches the big banks in New York to try to obtain loans to support the ongoing American civil war. As these large banks were heavily under the influence of the Rothschilds, they offer him a deal they know he cannot accept, 24% to 36% interest on all monies loaned. Lincoln is very angry about this high level of interest and so he prints his own debt free money and informs the public that this is now legal tender for both public and private debts.

- 1862: By April $449,338,902 worth of Lincoln's debt free money has been printed and distributed. He states of this, "We gave the people of this republic the greatest blessing they ever had, their own paper money to pay their own debts." That same year The Times of London publishes a story containing the following statement, "If that mischievous financial policy, which had its origin in the North American Republic, should become indurated down to a fixture, then that government will furnish its own money without cost. It will pay off debts and be without a debt. It will have all the money necessary to carry on its commerce. It will become prosperous beyond precedent in the history of civilized governments of the world. The brains and the wealth of all countries will go to North America. That government must be destroyed or it will destroy every monarchy on the globe."
- 1863: President Abraham Lincoln discovers the Tsar of Russia, Alexander II (1855 – 1881), was having problems with the Rothschilds as well as he was refusing their continual attempts to set up a central bank in Russia. The Tsar then gives President Lincoln some unexpected help. The Tsar issued orders that if either England or France actively intervened in the American Civil War, and help the South, Russia would consider such action a declaration of war, and take the side of President Lincoln. To show that he wasn't messing about, he sent part of his Pacific Fleet to port in San Francisco and another part to New York. The Rothschild banking house in Naples, Italy, C. M. de Rothschild e figli, closes following the unification of Italy. The Rothschilds use one of their own in America, John D. Rockefeller, to form an oil business called Standard Oil which eventually takes over all of its competition.
- 1864: Rothschild, August Belmont, who by now is the Democratic Party's National Chairman, supports General George McClellan as the Democratic nominee to run against President Abraham Lincoln in this year's election. Much to the anger of Belmont, President Lincoln wins the election.
- 1865: In a statement to Congress, President Abraham Lincoln states, "I have two great enemies, the Southern Army in front of me, and the financial institutions in the rear. Of the two, the one in my rear is my greatest foe." Later that year, on April 14, President Lincoln is assassinated, less than two months before the end of the American Civil War. Following a brief training period in the Rothschilds London Bank, Jacob Schiff, a Rothschild, born in their house in Frankfurt, arrives in America at the age of 18, with instructions and the finance necessary to buy into a banking house there. The purpose of this was to carry out the following tasks.
 1. Gain control of America's money system through the establishment of a central bank.
 2. Find desirable men, who for a price, would be willing to serve as stooges for the Illuminati and promote them into high places in the federal government, the Congress, Supreme Court, and all the federal agencies.
 3. Create minority group strife throughout the nations, particularly targeting the whites and blacks.
 4. Create a movement to destroy religion in the United States, with Christianity as the main target.

Nathaniel de Rothschild becomes Member of Parliament for Aylesbury in Buckinghamshire.

- 1868: Jacob (James) Mayer Rothschild dies, shortly after purchasing Château Lafite, one of the four great premier grand cru estates of France. He is the last of Mayer Amschel Rothschild's sons to die.
- 1870: Nathaniel de Rothschild dies.
- 1871: An American General named, Albert Pike, who had been enticed into the Illuminati by Guiseppe Mazzini, completes his military blueprint for three world wars and various revolutions throughout the world, culminating into moving this great conspiracy into its final stage. The first world war is to be fought for the purpose of destroying the Tsar in Russia, as promised by Nathan Mayer Rothschild in 1815. The Tsar is to be replaced with communism which is to be used to attack religions, predominantly Christianity. The differences between the British and German empires are to be used to foment this war. The second world war is to be used to foment the controversy between facism and political zionism with the slaughter of Jews in Germany a lynchpin in bringing hatred against the German people. This is designed to destroy fascism (which the Rothschilds created) and increase the power of political zionism. This war is also designed to increase the power of communism to the level that it equalled that of united Christendom. The third world war is to be played out by stirring up hatred of the Muslim world for the purposes of playing the Islamic world and the political zionists off against one another. Whilst this is going on, the remaining nations would be forced to fight themselves into a state of mental, physical, spiritual and economic exhaustion.

On August 15th of this year, Albert Pike writes a letter (now catalogued in the British Museum) to Guiseppe Mazzini in which he states the following, "We shall unleash the nihilists and the atheists and we shall provoke a great social cataclysm which in all its horror will show clearly to all nations the effect of absolute atheism; the origins of savagery and of most bloody turmoil. Then everywhere, the people will be forced to defend themselves against the world minority of the world revolutionaries and will exterminate those destroyers of civilization and the multitudes disillusioned with Christianity whose spirits will be from that moment without direction and leadership and anxious for an ideal, but without knowledge where to send its adoration, will receive the true light through the universal manifestation of the pure doctrine of Lucifer brought finally out into public view. A manifestation which will result from a general reactionary movement which will follow the destruction of Christianity and Atheism; both conquered and exterminated at the same time." Pike, who having been elected as Sovereign Grand Commander of the Scottish Rite of Freemasonry's Southern Jurisdiction in 1859, was the most powerful Freemason in America. He would retain that post for 32 years until his death in 1891. He also published a book on the subject in 1872 entitled, "Morals and Dogma of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry," in which he candidly states the following, "LUCIFER, the Light-bearer! Strange and mysterious name to give to the Spirit of Darkness! Lucifer, the Son of the Morning! Is it he who bears the Light, and with its splendors intolerable blinds feeble, sensual or selfish Souls? Doubt it not!"

- 1872: Prior to Guiseppe Mazzini's death this year, he makes another revolutionary leader named Adrian Lemmy his successor. Lemmy will be subsequently succeeded by Lenin and Trotsky, then by Stalin. The revolutionary activities of all these men are financed by the Rothschilds.
- 1873: The loss making Rio Tinto copper mines in Spain, are purchased by a group of foreign financiers including the Rothschilds. These mines represented Europe's largest source of copper.
- 1875: On January 1 of this year Jacob Schiff, now Solomon Loeb's son-in-law after marrying his daughter, Teresa, takes control of the banking house, Kuhn, Loeb & Co. He goes on to finance

John D. Rockefeller's Standard Oil Company, Edward R. Harriman's Railroad Empire, and Andrew Carnegie's Steel Empire. This is all with Rothschild money. He then identifies the other largest bankers in America at that time. They are, J.P. Morgan who controls Wall Street, and the Drexels and the Biddles of Philadelphia. All the other financiers, big and little, danced to the music of those three houses. Schiff then gets the European Rothschilds to set up European branches of these three large banks on the understanding that Schiff, and therefore Rothschild, is to be the boss of banking in New York and therefore America. N M Rothschild & Sons undertake a share issue to raise capital for the first channel tunnel project to link France to England, with half of its capital coming from the Rothschild owned Compagnie du Chemin de Fer du Nord. This year Lionel De Rothschild also loans Prime Minister Benjamin Disraeli the finance for the British government to purchase the shares in the Suez Canal, from Khedive Said of Egypt. This was done as the Rothschilds needed this access route to be held by a government they controlled, so they could use that government's military to protect their huge business interests in the Middle East.

- 1876: Otto von Bismarck states, "The division of the United States into two federations of equal force was decided long before the civil war by the high financial power of Europe. These bankers were afraid that the United States, if they remained in one block and as one nation, would attain economical and financial independence, which would upset their financial domination over the world. The voice of the Rothschilds predominated. They foresaw the tremendous booty if they could substitute two feeble democracies, indebted to the financiers, to the vigorous Republic, confident and self-providing. Therefore they started their emissaries in order to exploit the question of slavery and thus dig an abyss between the two parts of the Republic."
- 1879: Lionel de Rothschild dies.
- 1880: Rothschild agents begin formenting a series of pogroms predominantly in Russia, but also in Poland, Bulgaria and Romania. These pogroms resulted in the slaughter of thousands of innocent Jews, causing approximately 2 million to flee, mainly to New York, but also to Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and Los Angeles. The reason these pogroms were initiated, was to create a large Jewish base in America, who when they arrived, would be educated to register as Democrat voters. Some twenty years later, this would result in a massive Democratic power base in the United States and be used to elect Rothschild front men such as Woodrow Wilson, to the Presidency, to carry out the bidding of the Rothschilds.
- 1881: President James A. Garfield (The 20th President of the United States who lasted only 100 Days) states two weeks before he is assassinated, "Whoever controls the volume of money in our country is absolute master of all industry and commerce...and when you realize that the entire system is very easily controlled, one way or another, by a few powerful men at the top, you will not have to be told how periods of inflation and depression originate." Edmond James de Rothschild has a son Maurice de Rothschild.
- 1883: After 6,000 feet of tunnel in the channel tunnel project being excavated, the British government halt the project citing the fact that it would be a threat to Britain's security.
- 1885: Nathaniel Rothschild, son of Lionel De Rothschild, becomes the first Jewish peer and is takes the title of Lord Rothschild.
- 1886: The French Rothschild bank, de Rothschild Frères obtains substantial amounts of Russia's oil fields and forms the Caspian and Black Sea Petroleum Company, which quickly becomes the world's second largest oil producer.

- 1887: Opium trafficker in China, Edward Albert Sassoon, marries Aline Caroline de Rothschild, the grand-daughter of Jacob (James) Mayer Rothschild. Aline Caroline's father, Gustave, together with his brother, Alphonse, took over the Rothschild's French arm following their father Jacob's death. The Rothschilds finance the amalgamation of the Kimberley diamond mines in South Africa. They subsequently become the biggest shareholders of this company, De Beers, and mine precious stones in Africa and India.
- 1888: Noémie Halphen, future wife of Maurice de Rothschild born.
- 1891: The British Labour Leader makes the following statement on the subject of the Rothschilds, "This blood-sucking crew has been the cause of untold mischief and misery in Europe during the present century, and has piled up its prodigious wealth chiefly through fomenting wars between States which ought never to have quarrelled. Whenever there is trouble in Europe, wherever rumours of war circulate and men's minds are distraught with fear of change and calamity you may be sure that a hook-nosed Rothschild is at his games somewhere near the region of the disturbance." Comments like this worry the Rothschilds and towards the end of the 1800's they purchase Reuters news agency so they can have some control of the media.
- 1895: Edmond James de Rothschild the youngest son of Jacob (James) Mayer Rothschild visits Palestine and subsequently supplies the funds to found the first Jewish colonies there, this is to further their long term objective of creating a Rothschild owned country.
- 1897: The Rothschilds found the Zionist Congress to promote Zionism (a political movement with the sole aim of moving all Jews into a singularly Jewish nation state) and arrange its first meeting in Munich. However due to extreme opposition from local Jews, who are quite happy where they are, this meeting has to be moved to Basle, Switzerland and takes place on 29 August. The meeting is chaired by Ashkenazi Jew, Theodor Herzl, who would state in his diaries, "It is essential that the sufferings of Jews....become worse....this will assist in realization of our plans....I have an excellent idea....I shall induce anti-Semites to liquidate Jewish wealth....The anti-Semites will assist us thereby in that they will strengthen the persecution and oppression of Jews. The anti-Semites shall be our best friends." Herzl is subsequently elected President of the Zionist Organisation which adopts the, "Rothschild Red Hexagram or Sign," as the Zionist flag which 51 years later will end up as the flag of Israel. Edward Henry Harriman becomes a director of the Union Pacific Railroad and goes on to take control of the Southern Pacific Railroad. This is all financed by the Rothschilds.
- 1898: Ferdinand de Rothschild dies.
- 1901: The Jews from the colonies set up in Palestine by Edmond James de Rothschild, send a delegation to him which tell him, "If you wish to save the Yishuv (The Jewish settlement) first take your hands from it, and...for once permit the colonists to have the possibility of correcting for themselves what needs correcting." Edmond James de Rothschild is very angry about this and states, "I created the Yishuv, I alone. Therefore no men, neither colonists nor organisations have the right to interfere in my plans." The Rothschild banking house in Frankfurt, Germany, M. A. von Rothschild und Söhne, closes as there is no male Rothschild heir to take it on.
- 1902: Philippe de Rothschild born.
- 1905: A group of Rothschild backed Zionist Jews led by Georgi Apollonovich Gapon attempt to overthrow the Tsar in Russia in a Communist Coup. They fail and are forced to flee Russia only to be given refuge in Germany. The Jewish Encyclopaedia (Vol. 2, p.497) states, "It is a somewhat curious sequel to the attempt to set up a Catholic competitor to the Rothschilds that at the present time the latter are the guardians of the papal treasure."
- 1906: The Rothschilds claim that due to growing instability in the region and increasing competition from Rockefeller (the Rockefeller family are Rothschild descendants through a female bloodline) owned Standard Oil, this is why they sell their Caspian and Black Sea Petroleum Company to Royal Dutch and Shell. This is another example of the Rothschilds trying to hide their true wealth.

- 1907: Rothschild, Jacob Schiff, the head of Kuhn, Loeb and Co., in a speech to the New York Chamber of Commerce, warns that, "Unless we have a Central Bank with adequate control of credit resources, this country is going to undergo the most severe and far reaching money panic in its history." Suddenly America finds itself in the middle of another typical run of the mill Rothschild engineered financial crisis, which ruins as usual ruins the lives of millions of innocent people throughout America and makes billions for the Rothschilds.
- 1909: Jacob Schiff founds the National Advancement for the Association of the Coloured People (NAACP). This was done to incite black people into rioting, looting and other forms of disorder, in order to cause a rift between the black and white communities. Jewish historian, Howard Sachar, states the following in his book, "A History of the Jews in America,"

"In 1914, Professor Emeritus Joel Spingarn of Columbia University became chairman of the NAACP and recruited for its board such Jewish leaders as Jacob Schiff, Jacob Billikopf, and Rabbi Stephen Wise." Other Ashkenazi Jew co-founders included Julius Rosenthal, Lillian Wald and Rabbi Emil G. Hirsch. It was not until 1920 that the NAACP appointed its first black resident, James Weldon Johnson. Maurice de Rothschild marries Ashkenazi Jew, Noémie Halphen.

- 1911: Werner Sombart, in his book, "The Jews and Modern Capitalism," stated that from 1820 on, it was the, "Age of the Rothschild," and concluded that there was, "Only one power in Europe, and that is Rothschild."
- 1912: In the December issue of, "Truth," magazine, George R. Conroy states of banker Jacob Schiff, "Mr Schiff is head of the great private banking house of Kuhn, Loeb, and co, which represents the Rothschilds interests on this side of the Atlantic. He has been described as financial strategist and has been for years the financial minister of the great impersonal power known as Standard Oil. He was hand in glove with the Harrimans, the Goulds, and the Rockefellers in all their railroad enterprises and has become the dominant power in the railroad and financial power of America."
- 1913: On March 4, Woodrow Wilson is elected the 28th President of the United States. Shortly after he is inaugurated, he is visited in the White House by Ashkenazi Jew, Samuel Untermyer, of law firm, Guggenheim, Untermyer, and Marshall, who tries to blackmail him for the sum of $40,000 in relation to an affair Wilson had whilst he was a professor at Princeton University, with a fellow professor's wife. President Wilson does not have the money, so Untermyer volunteers to pay the $40,000 out of his own pocket to the woman Wilson had had the affair with, on the condition that Wilson promise to appoint to the first vacancy on the United States Supreme Court a nominee to be recommended to President Wilson by Untermyer. Wilson agrees to this. Jacob Schiff sets up the Anti Defamation League (ADL) in the United States. This organisation is formed to slander anyone who questions or challenges the Rothschild global conspiracy as, "anti-semitic." Strangely enough, the same year that they do this they also set up their last and current central bank in America, the Federal Reserve. Congressman Charles Lindbergh stated following the passing of the Federal Reserve Act on December 23, "The Act establishes the most gigantic trust on earth. When the President signs this Bill, the invisible government of the monetary power will be legalized.....The greatest crime of the ages is perpetrated by this banking and currency bill." It is important to note that the Federal Reserve is a private company, it is neither Federal nor does it have any Reserve. It is conservatively estimated that profits exceed $150 billion per year and the Federal Reserve has never once in its history published accounts.
- 1914: The start of World War I. In this war, the German Rothschilds loan money to the Germans, the British Rothschilds loan money to the British, and the French Rothschilds loan money to the French. Furthermore, the Rothschilds have control of the three European news agencies, Wolff (est. 1849) in Germany, Reuters (est. 1851) in England, and Havas (est. 1835) in France. The Rothschilds use Wolff to manipulate the German people into a fervour for war. From around this time, the Rothschilds are rarely reported in the media, because they own the media.

- 1916: On June 4, Ashkenazi Jew, Louis Dembitz Brandeis is appointed to the Supreme Court of the United States by President Wilson as per his agreed blackmail payment to Samuel Untermyer some three years earlier. Justice Brandeis is also the elected leader of the Executive Committee for Zionist Affairs, a position he has held since 1914. The middle of World War II. Germany were winning the war as they were being financed by the Rothschilds to a greater extent than France, Italy and England, because Rothschilds, did not want to support the Tsar in Russia, and of course Russia was on the same side as France, Italy and England. Then a significant event occurred. Germany, although they were winning the war and not one foreign soldier had set foot on their soil, offered armistice to Britain with no requirement of reparations. The Rothschilds were anxious to make sure this didn't happen as they were expecting to make far more money off this war, so they played another card they had up their sleeve. Whilst the British were considering Germany's offer, Rothschild agent Louis Brandeis sends a Zionist delegation from America to Britain to promise to bring America into the war on the side of the British, provided the British agree to give the land of Palestine to the Rothschilds. The Rothschilds wanted Palestine for the following reason. They had great business interests in the far east and desired their own state in that area along with their own military which they could use as an aggressor to any state that threatened those interests. The British subsequently agree to the deal for Palestine and the Zionists in London contact their counterparts in America and inform them of this fact. Suddenly all the major newspapers in America that up to that point had been pro-German turned on Germany running propaganda pieces such as: German soldiers were killing Red Cross Nurses; German soldiers were cutting off babies hands, etc, in order to manipulate the American public against the Germans. This same year, President Woodrow Wilson, ran a re-election campaign under the slogan, "Re-Elect The Man Who Will Keep Your Sons Out Of The War." On December 12, Germany and her allies offer peace terms to end the war.
- 1917: As a result of Germany's offer of peace the Rothschild war machine goes into overdrive in America, spreading propaganda which leads to President Wilson under the instructions of American Zionist leader and Supreme Court Justice, Louis Dembitz Brandeis, reneging on his promise to the electorate and taking America into the first world war on April 6. As per the Rothschild Zionist promise to the British, to take America into the war, they decide they want something in writing from the British to prove that they will uphold their side of the bargain. The British Foreign Secretary, Arthur James Balfour therefore drafts a letter which is commonly known as the, "Balfour Declaration," which is reprinted below.

Foreign Office November 2nd, 1917 Dear Lord Rothschild, I have much pleasure in conveying to you, on behalf of His Majesty's Government, the following declaration of sympathy with Jewish Zionist aspirations which has been submitted to, and approved by, the Cabinet. His Majesty's Government view with favour the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavours to facilitate the achievement of this object, it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country. I should be grateful if you would bring this declaration to the knowledge of the Zionist Federation. Yours sincerely, Arthur James Balfour

The Rothschilds order the execution by the Bolsheviks they control, of Tsar Nicholas II and his entire family in Russia, even though the Tsar had already abdicated on March 2. This is both to get control of the country and an act of revenge for Tsar Alexander I blocking their world government plan in 1815 at the Congress Of Vienna, and Tsar Alexander II siding with President Abraham Lincoln in 1864. It is extremely important for them to slaughter the entire family including women and children in order to make good on the promise to do so made by Nathan Mayer Rothschild in 1815. It is designed to show the world what happens if you ever attempt to cross the Rothschilds. U.S. Congressman Oscar Callaway informs Congress that J. P. Morgan is a Rothschild front and has taken control of the American media industry. He states, "In March, 1915, the J.P. Morgan interests, the steel, shipbuilding, and powder interest, and their subsidiary organizations, got together 12 men high up in the newspaper world and employed them to select the most influential newspapers in the United States and sufficient number of them to control generally the policy of the daily press... ..They found it was only necessary to purchase the control of 25 of the greatest papers...An agreement was reached. The policy of the papers was bought, to be paid for by the month, an editor was furnished for each paper to properly supervise and edit information regarding the questions of preparedness, militarism, financial policies, and other things of national and international nature considered vital to the interests of the purchasers."

- 1919: In January, Ashkenazi Jews, Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg, are killed as they attempt to lead another Rothschild funded Communist coup, this time in Berlin, Germany. The Versailles peace conference is held to decide reparations that the Germans need to pay to the victors following the end of the first world war. A delegation of 117 Zionists headed up by Ashkenazi Jew, Bernard Baruch, bring up the subject of the promise of Palestine for them. At this point the Germans realised why America had turned on them and under whose influence, the Rothschilds. The Germans, naturally, felt they had been betrayed by the Zionists. This is because, at the time the Rothschilds made their deal with Britain for Palestine, in exchange for bringing America into the war, Germany was the most friendly country in the world towards the Jews, indeed the German Emancipation Edict of 1822 guaranteed Jews in Germany all civil rights enjoyed by Germans. Also, Germany was the only country in Europe which did not place restrictions on Jews, even giving them refuge when they had to flee from Russia after their first attempted Communist coup failed there in 1905. Nevertheless, the Rothschilds had held up their side of the bargain to spill the blood of millions of innocents and as a result, Palestine is confirmed as a Jewish homeland, and whilst its handover to the Rothschilds takes place it is to remain under the control of Britain as the Rothschilds control Britain. At that time less than one percent of the population of Palestine was Jewish. Interestingly, the host of the Versailles peace conference is its boss, Baron Edmond de Rothschild. The Versailles peace conference is also used as an attempt by the Rothschilds to set up a world government under the pretext of ending all wars (which they create). This was called the, "League of Nations." Fortunately not enough countries accepted it and so it soon died. On March 29th The Times of London reports on the Bolsheviks in Russia, "One of the curious features of the Bolshevik movement is the high percentage of non Russian elements among its leaders. Of the twenty or thirty commissaries, or leaders, who provide the central machinery of the Bolshevik movement, not less than 75% were Jews."It is reported that the Rothschilds were angry with the Russians because they were not prepared to allow them to form a central bank within their nation. They therefore gathered groups of Jewish spies and sent them into Russia to drum up a revolution for the benefit of the common man, which was actually a takeover of Russia by a Rothschild controlled satanic elite. These Jewish spies were, in age old deceptive Ashkenazi tradition, given Russian names, for example Trotsky was a member of the first group and his original name was Bronstein. These groups were sent to areas throughout Russia to incite riots and rebellion. The Jewish Post International Edition, week ending January 24th 1991, confirms Vladimir Lenin was Jewish. Lenin is also on record as having stated, "The establishment of a central bank is 90% of communizing a nation." These Jewish, Rothschild funded Bolsheviks would go on in the course of history to slaughter 60 million Christians and Non-Jews in Soviet controlled territory. Indeed the author Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn in his work, "Gulag Archipelago, Vol 2," affirms that Zionist Jews created and administered the organized Soviet concentration camp system in which these tens of millions of Christians and Non-Jews died. On page 79 of this book he even names the administrators of this the greatest killing machine in the history of the world. They are Aron Solts, Yakov Rappoport, Lazar Kogan, Matvei Berman, Genrikh Yagoda, and Naftaly Frenkel. All six are Zionist Jews. In 1970 Solzhenitsyn would be awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for literature. N. M. Rothschild & Sons' are given a permanent role to fix the world's daily gold price. This takes place in the City of London offices, daily at 1100 hours, in the same room until 2004.

- 1920: Winston Churchill (whose mother, Jenny (Jacobson) Jerome, was Jewish – meaning he is Jewish under Ashkenazi law as he was born of a Jewish mother) writes in an article in the Illustrated Sunday Herald, dated February 8th, "From the days of Illuminati leader Weishaupt, to those of Karl Marx, to those of Trotsky, this worldwide conspiracy has been steadily growing. And now at last this band of extraordinary personalities from the underworld of the great cities of Europe and America, have gripped the Russian people by the hair of their heads and become the undisputed masters of that enormous empire."
- 1921: Under the orders of Jacob Schiff the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) is founded by Ashkenazi Jews, Bernard Baruch and Colonel Edward Mandell House. Schiff gave his orders prior to his death in 1920, as he knew an organisation in America needed to be set up to select politicians to carry on the Rothschild conspiracy, and the formation of the CFR was actually agreed in a meeting on May 30, 1919 at the Hotel Majestic in Paris, France. The CFR membership at the start was approximately 1000 people in the United States. This membership included the heads of virtually every industrial empire in America, all the American based international bankers, and the heads of all their tax free foundations. In essence all those people who would provide the capital required for anyone who wished to run for Congress, the Senate or the Presidency. The first job of the CFR was to gain control of the press. This task was given to John D. Rockefeller who set up a number of national news magazines such as Life, and Time. He financed Samuel Newhouse to buy up and establish a chain of newspapers all across the country, and Eugene Meyer also who would go on to buy up many publications such as the Washington Post, Newsweek, and The Weekly Magazine. The CFR also needed to gate control of radio, television and the motion picture industry. This task was split amongst the international bankers from, Kuhn Loeb, Goldman Sachs, the Warburgs, and the Lehmanns.
- 1925: This year's Jewish Encyclopaedia, states of the existence of Ashkenazi Jews (who represent approximately 90% of so-called world Jewry), with the startling admission that the so called enemy of the Jews, Esau (also known as Edom, see Genesis 36:1), now actually represents the Jewish race, when on page 42 of Volume V it is stated, "Edom is in modern Jewry." So what they're basically saying is that these Ashkenazi Jews, who represent 90% of the so-called Jewish population, are actually gentiles or goyim themselves.

- 1926: N. M. Rothschild & Sons refinance the Underground Electric Railways Company of London Ltd which has a controlling interest in the entire London Underground transport system. Maurice de Rothschild has a son, Edmond de Rothschild.
- 1929: The Rothschilds crash the United States economy by contracting the money supply.
- 1930: The first Rothschild world bank, the, "Bank for International Settlements (BIS)," is established in Basle, Switzerland. The same place as where 33 years earlier the first ever World Zionist Congress was held.
- 1933: On January 30, Adolf Hitler becomes Chancellor of Germany. He drives Jews, many of which were Communist out of Governmental positions within Germany. As a result of this, in July, the Jews hold a World Conference in Amsterdam during which they demand that Hitler reinstate every Jew back to his former position. Hitler refuses and as a result of this, Samuel Untermyer, the Ashkenazi Jew who blackmailed President Wilson, and is now the head of the American delegation and the president of the whole conference, returns to the United States, and makes a speech on radio which was transcribed in the From the New York Times, Monday, August 7, 1933. In the speech he made the following statements, "...the Jews are the aristocrats of the world...Our campaign is...the economic boycott against all German goods, shipping and services...What we are proposing...is to prosecute a purely defensive economic boycott that will undermine the Hitler regime and bring the German people to their senses by destroying their export trade on which their very existence depends... ..Each of you, Jew and Gentile alike...must refuse to deal with any merchant or shopkeeper who sells any German-made goods or who patronizes German ships or shipping." As two thirds of Germany's food supply had to be imported, and could only be imported with the proceeds of what they exported, if Germany could not export, two thirds of Germany's population would starve, as there would be not enough food for more than one third of the population. As a result of this boycott, Jews throughout America, would protest outside and damage any stores in which they found any products with, "Made in Germany," printed on them, causing stores to have to dump these products or risk bankruptcy. Once the effects of this boycott began to be felt in Germany, the Germans, who had demonstrated no violence towards the Jews up to this point, simply began boycotting Jewish stores in the same way the Jews had done to stores selling German products in America. Rothschild financed IBM, supply machines to the Nazis which produce punch cards to help organize and manage the initial identification and social expulsion of Jews, the confiscation of their property and their extermination. On November 16, President Roosevelt recognizes the Zionist regime of Stalin in Russia without consultation with Congress even as 8,000 Ukrainians march in protest in New York. Also this year, President Roosevelt, born of a Jewish mother, therefore satisfying Ashkenazi rules of being Jewish, orders the all-seeing eye to be placed upon all new dollar bills along with the motto, "Novus Ordo Seclorum." This is latin for, "A New Order of the Ages."
- 1934: Swiss banking secrecy laws are reformed and it becomes an offence resulting in imprisonment for any bank employee to violate bank secrecy. This is all in preparation for the Rothschild engineered Second World War in which as usual they will fund both sides. Edmond de Rothschild dies.
- 1936: With regard to the increase in anti-semitism in Germany, Samuel Landman (at the time, secretary to the World Zionist Organisation), in his 1936 book, Great Britain, The Jews, and Palestine states the following of the United States entry into World War 1, "The fact that it was Jewish help that brought USA into the War on the side of the Allies has rankled ever since in German – especially Nazi – minds, and has contributed in no small measure to the prominence which anti-Semitism occupies in the Nazi programme."

- 1938: On 7th November, a Jew, Herschel Grynszpan, assassinated Ernst vom Rath, a minor official at the German Embassy in Paris. As a result of this German hostility towards Jews in Germany started to turn violent. The Rothschilds Austrian banking house in Vienna, S. M. von Rothschild und Söhne, closes following the Nazi occupation of Austria.
- 1939: I.G. Farben the leading producer of chemicals in the world and largest German producer of steel dramatically increases its production. This increased production is almost exclusively used to arm Germany for the Second World War. This company was controlled by the Rothschilds and would go on to use Jews and other disaffected peoples as slave labour in the concentration camps. I.G. Farben also created the lethal Zyklon B gas that was used to exterminate the Jews. On 1 September, the Second world war starts when Germany invades Poland. This was because the German leadership were a Christian leadership, who understood that Soviet Russia was led by Rothschild funded Communists, and they feared that as the Soviet Union grew in strength, these Jewish Communists would invade and wipe all the Christians off the map.
- 1940: Hansjurgen Koehler in his book, "Inside The Gestapo," states the following, of Maria Anna Schicklgruber, Adolf Hitler's grandmother, "A little servant girl.....came to Vienna and became a domestic servant.....at the Rothschild mansion.....and Hitler's unknown grandfather must be probably looked for in this magnificent house."This is backed up by Walter Langer in his book, "The Mind Of Hitler," in which he states, "Adolf's father, Alois Hitler, was the illegitimate son of Maria Anna Schicklgruber.....Maria Anna Schicklgruber was living in Vienna at the time she conceived. At that time she was employed as a servant in the home of Baron Rothschild. As soon as the family discovered her pregnancy she was sent back home.....where Alois was born."On the surface, it would appear Hitler was unlikely to be a Rothschild, but then again, when you discover the benefits that the Rothschilds got out of this war, both financially and politically, a Rothschild connection does not appear as outlandish as it may initially seem.
- 1941: President Roosevelt takes America into the second world war by refusing to sell Japan any more steel scrap or oil. Japan was in the midst of a war against China and without that scrap steel and oil, Japan would be unable to continue that war. Japan was totally dependent upon the United States for both steel scrap and oil. Roosevelt knew this action would provoke the Japanese to attack America, which they subsequently did at Pearl Harbor.
- 1942: Prescott Bush, father of future American Presidents' George Herbert Walker and George W, has his company seized under the, "Trading With The Enemy," Act. He was funding Hitler from America, whilst American soldiers were being killed by German soldiers. Jews are also being slaughtered by these same soldiers. Interestingly the ADL never criticizes any of the Bushes for this.
- 1943: February 18th, Zionist, Izaak Greenbaum, head of the Jewish Agency Rescue Committee, in a speech to the Zionist Executive Council states, "If I am asked, could you give from the UJA (United Jewish Appeal) monies to rescue Jews, I say, no and I say again no!"He would go onto state, "One cow in Palestine is worth more than all the Jews in Poland!"This is not a surprise, the whole idea of Zionist support for the slaughter of innocent Jews was to scare the survivors into believing that their only place of safety was Israel. How else do you think the Zionists could ensure Jews leave the beautiful European cities in which they live, in order to settle in a desert!

- 1944: On 6 November Lord Moyne, British Minister Resident in the Middle East was assassinated in Cairo by two members of the Jewish terrorist group, the Stern Gang, led by future Prime Minister of Israel, Yitzhak Shamir. He is also responsible for an assassination attempt against Harold MacMichael, the High Commissioner of the British Mandate of Palestine, this same year. Interestingly he also masterminds another successful assassination this year against the United Nations representative in the Middle East, Count Folke Bernadotte who, although he had secured the release of 21,000 prisoners from German camps during World War II, was seen by Yitzhak Shamir and his terrorist collaborators as an anti-Zionist. In Bretton Woods, New Hampshire, two further Rothschild world banks are created. The International Monetary Fund (IMF), and the World Bank.
- 1945: The end of the Second World War. It is reported that I.G. Farben plants were specifically not targeted in the bombing raids on Germany. Interestingly at the end of the war, they were found to have only sustained 15% damage. The tribunals held at the end of the Second World War, to investigate Nazi War Crimes, censored any materials recording Western assistance to Hitler. The Rothschilds take a giant step towards their goal of world domination when the second, "League of Nations," called the, "United Nations," was approved this year.
- 1946: On July 22 the future Prime Minister of Israel, Ashkenazi Jew, David Ben-Gurion, orders another future Prime Minister of Israel, Ashkenazi Jew, Menachem Begin, to carry out a terrorist attack on the King David Hotel in Palestine, to try and drive out the British. As a result of this 91 people were killed, most of them civilians: 28 British, 41 Arabs, 17 Jews, and 5 others. Around 45 people are injured. Menachem Begin went on to proudly proclaimed himself as, "the father of modern terrorism." Just to put the gravity of the attack on the King David Hotel into perspective, it was at the time the biggest death toll as a result of single terrorist action ever and was only surpassed over forty years later by the Bombing of Pan Am flight 103 over Lockerbie.
- 1947: The British who prior to World War 2 declared that there would be no more immigration of Jews to Palestine in order to protect the Palestinians from their acts of terror against both them and British soldiers, transfer control of Palestine to the United Nations. The United Nations resolve to have Palestine partitioned into two states, one Zionist and one Arab, with Jerusalem to remain as an international zone to be enjoyed by all religious faiths. This transfer was scheduled to take place on May 15, 1948. The United Nations had no right to give Arab property to anyone, as indeed even though the Jews owned 6% of Palestine at that time, resolution 181 granted the Jews 57% of the land leaving the Arabs who at that time had 94% with only 43%. Information collected by the ADL in its spy operations on US citizens is used by the House Select Committee on Un-American Activities. Subcommittee Chair Clare Hoffman dismisses the ADL's reports on suspected communists as "hearsay."
- 1948: In the Spring of this year, the Rothschilds bribe President Harry S. Truman (33rd President of the United States 1945 – 1953) to recognise Israel (Rothschild owned Zionist not Jewish territory) as a sovereign state with $2,000,000 which they give to him on his campaign train. They then declare Israel to be a sovereign Jewish state in Palestine and within half an hour President Truman declared the United States to be the first foreign nation to recognise it. The Flag of Israel is unveiled. Despite tremendous opposition the emblem on the flag is a blue coloured version of the Rothschild, "Red Hexagram or Sign." This angers many Jews who realise this Hexagram was used in the ancient mystery religions as the symbol of, "Moloch," (described as a demon of unwilling sacrifice and is also interestingly the name of the stone owl the elite worship at Bohemian Grove), and, "Astaroth," (described as the Lord Treasurer of Hell). The Hexagram was also used to represent Saturn, which has been identified as the esoteric name for, "Satan." This indicates that anyone killed in the name of Israel is actually a sacrifice to Satan. These dissenting Jews believe the, "Menorah," the oldest Jewish symbol should be used and pointed out that the Hexagram is not even a Jewish symbol, but of course as the Rothschild Zionists use it that is what ends up on the Rothschild, I mean Zionist, I mean Israeli flag. In the early hours of April 19, 132 Jewish terrorists from the Irgun gang, led by future Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, and the Stern gang, led by future Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, brutally massacre 200 men, women and children as they are sleeping peacefully in the Arab village of Deir Yassin. Following the United Nations transfer of Palestine to an independent Jewish state and an independent Arab state on May 15, the Israelis launched a military assault on the Arabs with blaring loudspeakers on their trucks informing the Arabs that if they did not flee immediately, they would be slaughtered. 800,000 Arabs with the recent memory of the Deir Yassin massacre at the forefront of their minds, fled in panic. They asked for help from neighbouring Arab states, but those states did not get involved as they were no match for the Israelis whose up to date military hardware had been supplied by the Jewish Stalinist regime in Russia. Following this assault, the Jews now controlled 78% of the former Palestine as oppose to the 57% that had been given to them illegally by the United Nations. The Palestinians, many of them Christians, were never paid compensation for their homes, property and businesses stolen from them during this illegal Jewish assault, and these people ended up in slum refugee cities of tents. Furthermore at least half of the Palestinians in their hurry to flee, left their birth certificates behind. The State of Israel then passed a law that only those who could prove citizenship were allowed to return to Israel, thus meaning these 400,000 Palestinians could not return and lost all their property they had left there. Ashkenazi Jew, David Ben-Gurion, one of the father founders of Israel and its first Prime Minister, candidly describes Zionist aims in his diary (21 May 1948) as follows, "The Achilles heel of the Arab coalition is the Lebanon. Muslim supremacy in this country is artificial and can easily be overthrown. A Christian State ought to be set up there, with its southern frontier on the river Litani. We would sign a treaty of alliance with this State. Thus when we have broken the strength of the Arab Legion and bombed Amman, we could wipe out Trans-Jordan, after that Syria would fall. And if Egypt still dared to make war on us, we would bomb Port Said, Alexandria and Cairo. We should thus end the war and would have but paid to Egypt, Assyria and Chaldea on behalf of our ancestors."

- 1949: On October 1, Mao Tse Tsung declares the founding of the People's Republic Of China in Tiananmen Square, Beijing. He is funded by Rothschild created Communism in Russia and also the following Rothschild agents: Solomon Adler, a former United States Treasury official who was a Soviet Spy; Israel Epstein, the son of a Jewish Bolshevik imprisoned by the Tsar in Russia for trying to forment a revolution there; and Frank Coe, a leading official of the Rothschild owned IMF.
- 1950: Israel passes their law of return, guaranteeing every Jew worldwide the right to dwell in the state of Israel, however the Palestinians even though they had lived there for 1300 years, were denied that right. John Davitt, former chief of the Justice Department's internal security section notes that the Israeli intelligence service is the second most active in the United States after the Soviets and of course both Israel and the Soviet Union are run by an Ashkenazi Jewish leadership.

- 1951: On 1 April the Israeli Secret Intelligence Agency the Mossad, which will go on to terrorize the world, is formed. The motto of the Mossad is probably the most disgusting secret service motto in the world, it is, "By Way Of Deception, Thou Shalt Do War."
- 1953: N. M. Rothschild & Sons found the British Newfoundland Corporation Limited to develop 60,000 square miles of land in Newfoundland, Canada, which comprised a power station to harness the power of the Hamilton (later renamed Churchill) Falls. At the time this was the largest construction project ever to be undertaken by a private company.
- 1954: "The Lavon Affair." Israeli agents recruit Egyptian citizens of Jewish descent to bomb Western targets in Egypt, and plant evidence to frame Arabs, in an apparent attempt to upset American/Egyptian relations. Israeli defense minister, Ashkenazi Jew, Pinhas Lavon is eventually removed from office, though many think real responsibility lay with David Ben-Gurion. A hidden microphone planted by the Israelis is discovered in the Office of the US Ambassador in Tel Aviv.
- 1955: Edmond de Rothschild founds Compagnie Financiere, Paris.
- 1956: Telephone taps are found connected to two telephones in the residence of the US military attaché in Tel Aviv.
- 1957: James de Rothschild dies and it is reported (by the Rothschild owned media) that he bequeaths a large sum of money to the state of Israel to pay for the construction of their parliament building, the Knesset. He states that the Knesset should be, "a symbol, in the eyes of all men, of the permanence of the State of Israel." On page 219 of his book, "Tales of the British Aristocracy," L.G. Pine, the Editor of Burke's Peerage, states that the Jews, "have made themselves so closely connected with the British peerage that the two classes are unlikely to suffer loss which is not mutual. So closely linked are the Jews and the lords that a blow against the Jews in this country would not be possible without injuring the aristocracy also." Maurice de Rothschild dies in Paris.
- 1962: de Rothschild Frères establishes Imétal as an umbrella company for all their mineral mining interests. Frederic Morton publishes his book, The Rothschilds, in which he states, "Though they control scores of industrial, commercial, mining and tourist corporations, not one bears the name Rothschild. Being private partnerships, the family houses never need to, and never do, publish a single public balance sheet, or any other report of their financial condition." This attitude reveals the true aim of the Rothschilds, to eliminate all competition and create their own worldwide monopoly.
- 1963: On June 4th President John F. Kennedy (the 35th President of the United States 1961 – 1963) signs Executive Order 11110 which returned to the U.S. government the power to issue currency, without going through the Rothschilds owned Federal Reserve. Less than 6 months later on November 22nd, president Kennedy is assassinated by the Rothschilds for the same reason as they assassinated President Abraham Lincoln in 1865, he wanted to print American money for the American people, as oppose to for the benefit of a money grabbing war mongering foreign elite. This Executive Order 11110, is rescinded by President Lyndon Baines Johnson (the 36th President of the United States 1963 to 1969) on Air Force One from Dallas to Washington, the same day as President Kennedy was assassinated. Another, and probably the primary, reason for Kennedy's assassination is however, the fact that he made it quite clear to Israeli Prime Minister, David Ben-Gurion, that under no circumstances would he agree to Israel becoming a nuclear state. The Israeli newspaper Ha'aretz on February 5, 1999, in a review of, Avner Cohen's book, "Israel and the Bomb," states the following, "The murder of American President John F.

Kennedy brought to an abrupt end the massive pressure being applied by the U.S. administration on the government of Israel to discontinue the nuclear program...The book implied that, had Kennedy remained alive, it is doubtful whether Israel would today have a nuclear option."Edmond de Rothschild establishes La Compagnie Financière Edmond de Rothschild (LCF), in Switzerland as a venture capital house. This later develops into an investment bank and asset management company with many affiliates. He also marries his wife Nadine and they have a son, Benjamin de Rothschild.

- 1965: Israel illegally obtains enriched uranium from NUMEC (Nuclear Materials and Equipment Corporation).
- 1967: The treatment of the Palestinians by the Zionist Jews, finally ignites enough anger in the Arab world for Egypt, Jordan and Syria to mobilise on Israel's borders. All of these three countries are suddenly attacked by Israel and as a result the Sinai which included Gaza was stolen from Egypt, and the West Bank and the Jordan River stolen from Jordan. As a result of this, on June 8, the Israelis launch an attack on the USS Liberty with Israeli aircraft and motor torpedo boats, in an effort to blame it on Egypt, to bring America into the war on their side, and of course follow to the letter, their Mossad motto, "By Way Of Deception, Thou Shalt Do War."As a result of their attack, 34 American servicemen were killed and 174 wounded. Israel lies as usual, claiming it mistook this warship that was flying a large United States flag, for an ancient out-of-service Egyptian horse carrier El Quseir, that was 180 feet shorter. They also claim the ship was in the war zone, when it was actually in international waters, far from any fighting. The Israeli's attack on this warship lasts for 75 minutes during which time they shoot up one of the United States flags, resulting in the sailors desperately raising another one. In the aftermath of this attack, the American sailors who survived are warned by the United States military not to discuss the matter with anyone due to, "national security." This story gets no prominence in the Rothschild controlled mainstream media and as usual Israel is in no way even rebuked for their crimes by their subservient country of America. The following day, June 9th, Israel illegally occupies the Golan Heights which it seizes from Syria. This area goes on to provide Israel with one third of its fresh water. Israeli General Matityahu Peled, is quoted in Ha'aretz (19 March 1972) with the following statement, "The thesis that the danger of genocide was hanging over us in June 1967 and that Israel was fighting for its physical existence is only bluff, which was born and developed after the war." Another sickening and deceptive statement but again at least he's consistent with the Mossad motto, "By Way Of Deception, Thou Shalt Do War."de Rothschild Frères is renamed Banque Rothschild.
- 1968: Noémie Halphen, wife of Maurice de Rothschild dies.
- 1970: While working for Senator Henry "Scoop" Jackson, Ashkenazi Jew, Richard Perle is caught by the FBI giving classified information to Israel. Nothing is done. British Prime Minister Edward Heath makes Lord Victor Rothschild the head of his policy unit. Whilst he is in that role Britain enters the European Community.
- 1973: In his book, None Dare Call It Conspiracy, Gary Allen states, "One major reason for the historical blackout on the role of the international bankers in political history is the Rothschilds were Jewish...The Jewish members of the conspiracy have used an organisation called The Anti-Defamation League (ADL) as an instrument to try and convince everyone that any mention of the Rothschilds and their allies is an attack on all Jews. In this way they have stifled almost all honest scholarship on international bankers and made the subject taboo within universities. Any individual or book exploring this subject is immediately attacked by hundreds of ADL communities all over the country. The ADL has never let the truth or logic interfere with its highly professional smear jobs...Actually, nobody has a right to be more angry at the Rothschild clique than their fellow Jews...The Rothschild empire helped finance Adolf Hitler." "George J. Laurer an employee of the Rothschilds controlled IBM, invents the UPC (Universal Product Code) barcode which will eventually be placed upon every item traded worldwide and bear the number, 666. The Book of Revelation, Chapter 13, Verse 17 through 18, states the following in relation to this number, "And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name. Here is wisdom. Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast: for it is the number of a man; and his number is Six hundred threescore and six." The whole Satanic aims of the Rothschilds are now in full view of the world, everything bought or sold carries the mark of the beast, 666. N. M. Rothschild & Sons British Newfoundland Corporation, Churchill Falls project in Newfoundland, Canada, is completed. N. M. Rothschild & Sons also create a new asset management part of the company which traded worldwide. This eventually became, Rothschild Private Management Limited. Edmond de Rothschild, a great-grandson of Jacob (James) Mayer Rothschild, bought the cru bourgeois estate of Château Clarke in Bordeaux.

- 1976: Ashkenazi Jew, Harold Rosenthal, aide to Ashkenazi Jew, Senator Jacob Javits, states, "Most Jews do not like to admit it, but our god is Lucifer."
- 1978: Ashkenazi Jew, Stephen Bryen, then a Senate Foreign Relations Committee staffer, is overheard in a Washington D.C. hotel offering confidential documents to top Israeli military officials. Bryen obtains a lawyer, Nathan Lewin, and the case heads for the grand jury, but is mysteriously dropped. Bryen later goes to work for Richard Perle.
- 1979: The Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty in 1979 was underwritten by United States aid which pledged $3 billion annually to Israel from the United States taxpayer (not even a drop in the ocean when you consider the amount they make off the Federal Reserve). Shin Bet (the Israeli internal security agency) tries to penetrate the US Consulate General in Jerusalem through a "Honey Trap", using a clerical employee who was having an affair with a Jerusalem girl. Baron and Baroness Phillipi de Rothschild in a joint venture with Robert Mondavi, begin the construction of a pyramid in Napa Valley, California, where the leader/founder of the Church Of Satan, Ashkenazi Jew, Anton LaVey, was based. This is known as Opus 1 (which means, the first work), and the front for this temple is that it is a winery.
- 1980: The global phenomenon of privatisation starts. The Rothschilds are behind this from the very beginning in order to seize control of all publicly owned assets worldwide.
- 1981: Banque Rothschild is nationalised by the French government. The new bank is called, Compagnie Européenne de Banque. The Rothschilds subsequently set up a successor to this French bank, Rothschild & Cie Banque (RCB), which goes on to become a leading French investment house.
- 1982: From September 16 to 18, future Prime Minister of Israel and then Defence Minister, Ashkenazi Jew, Ariel Sharon, orchestrates Israel's invasion of Lebanon, which provided ariel lighting in order to facilitate the killing of between 1000 and 2000 men, women and children in the Sabra and Shatila massacres.
- 1985: Eustace Mullins publishes, "Who Owns The TV Networks," in which he reveals the Rothschilds have control of all three major U.S. Networks, which are: NBC; CBS; and ABC. The

New York Times reports the FBI is aware of at least a dozen incidents in which American officials transferred classified information to the Israelis, quoting (former Assistant Director of the F.B.I.) Raymond Wannal. The Justice Department does not prosecute. Richard Smyth, the owner of MILCO, is indicted on charges of smuggling nuclear timing devices to Israel. N. M. Rothschild & Sons advise the British government on the privatisation of British Gas. They subsequently advise the British government on virtually all of their other privatisations of state owned assets including: British Steel; British Coal; all the British regional electricity boards; and all the British regional water boards. A British MP heavily involved in these privatisations is future Chancellor of the Exchequer, Norman Lamont, a former Rothschild banker.

- 1986: Mordechai Vanunu a technician at Dimona, Israel's nuclear installation, from 1976 to 1985, discovers that the plant was secretly producing nuclear weapons. His conscience made him speak out and in 1986 he provided the London Sunday Times with the facts and photos they used to tell the world about Israel's nuclear weapons programme. His evidence showed that Israel had stockpiled up to 200 nuclear warheads, with no debate or authorisation from its own citizens. On 30th September 1986, Vanunu was lured from London to Rome. There he was kidnapped, drugged and shipped to Israel. After a secret trial he was sentenced to 18 years for, "treason," and, "espionage," (something Israel are very familiar with) though he had received no payment and had communicated with no foreign power. He goes on to be held in complete isolation for 11 years, only allowed occasional visits from his family, lawyer and a priest, conducted through a metal screen. Although he completes his sentence, the Israeli government continues to hold him against his will.
- 1987: Edmond de Rothschild creates the World Conservation Bank which is designed to transfer debts from third world countries to this bank and in return those countries would give land to this bank. This is designed so the Rothschilds can gain control of the third world which represents 30% of the land surface of the Earth. On April 24 the Wall Street Journal reveals the, "Role of Israel in Iran-Contra Scandal Won't be Explored in Detail by Panels."
- 1988: The ADL initiate a nationwide competition for law students to draft anti-hate legislation for minority groups. That competition is won by a man named, Joseph Ribakoff, whose thesis proposes that not only must hate motivated violence be banned, but also any words which stimulate: suspicion; friction; hate; and possible violence, these must also be criminalised. This ADL prize-winning paper suggests that not only should state-agencies monitor and restrict free speech in general, but they should also censor all films that criticize identifiable groups. Furthermore, even if the person making the statement can justify it, for example Christians criticizing homosexuality because the bible expressly forbids it, Ribakoff asserts that the truth is to be no defence in court. The only proof a court will need in order to secure a conviction of hate speech is that something has been said, and a minority group or member of such group has felt emotionally damaged as a result of such criticism. Therefore, under these proposals which the ADL will have forced into law all over the world less than 15 years later, Jesus Christ would have been arrested as a hate criminal. This law is designed to protect the Rothschild conspiracy from being revealed in that if you criticize the Rothschilds criminal cabal, you will be targeted as anti-semitic, and thus risk imprisonment. Philippe de Rothschild dies.
- 1989: Many of the satellite states in Eastern Europe, through the influence of Glasnost, become more open in their demands of freedom from Communist governance in their Republics. Many revolutions happen in 1989, most of them involving the overthrow of their respective Communist governments and the replacement of them with Republics. Thus, the hold the Communists had over Eastern Europe (the Iron Curtain) becomes very weak. Eventually, as a result of Perestroika and Glasnost, Communism collapses, not only in the Soviet Union but also in Eastern Europe. In Russia, Boris Yeltsin (whose wife is the daughter of Joseph Stalin's marriage to Rosa Kaganovich) and the Republican government takes steps to end the power of the Communist party by suspending and banning the party and seizing all their property. This symbolised the fall of Communism in Russia, and resulted in the start of a mass exodus of 700,000 Jews from the former Soviet Union to Israel. In the Israeli Journal, Hotam (24 November 1989), there is a report of a speech that then Israeli Deputy Foreign Minister, Ashkenazi Jew, Binyamin Netanyahu, gave to students at Bar Ilan University in which he states, "Israel should have exploited the repression of the demonstrations in China, when world attention focused on that country, to carry out mass expulsions among the Arabs of the territories." The London and Paris Rothschilds announce the launch of a new subsidiary, Rothschild GmbH, in Frankfurt, Germany.

- 1991: Following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait on August 2, 1990, on January 16 of this year the United States and Britain began an aerial bombing campaign of targets within Iraq. On 24 February the ground campaign commenced which was to last 100 hours until on February 28 when a horrendous war crime occurred. This crime was the slaughter of 150,000 Iraqi troops with fuel air bombs. These Iraqis were fleeing on a crowded highway from Kuwait to Basra. President George Herbert Walker Bush ordered United States military aircraft and ground units to kill these surrendering troops, they were then bulldozed into mass unmarked graves in the desert, some still alive. President Bush then ordered a cessation of hostilities. What was the significance of this slaughter and President Bush declaring the war over on this day? Well it was the day the, "Day of Purim," fell on this year. This the day the Jews celebrate their victory over Ancient Babylon, now based within the borders of Iraq and a day when the Jews are encouraged to get bloody revenge against their perceived enemies. At the Bilderberg Conference on June 6 to 9 of this year, in Baden-Baden, Germany, David Rockefeller (a Rothschild) made the following statement, "We are grateful to the Washington Post, the New York Times, Time Magazine, and other great publications whose directors have attended our meetings and respected their promises of discretion for almost 40 years. It would have been impossible for us to develop our plan for the world, if we had been subjected to the lights of publicity during those years. But the world is now more sophisticated and prepared to march towards a world government. The super-national sovereignty of an intellectual elite and world bankers is surely preferable to the national auto-determination practised in past centuries."
- 1992: In March, former Federal Reserve Board Chairman, Paul A. Volker became Chairman of the European banking firm, J. Rothschild, Wolfensohn and Co. Stephen Bryen, caught offering confidential documents to Israel in 1978, is serving on board of the pro-Israeli Jewish Institute for National Security Affairs while continuing as a paid consultant, with security clearance, on exports of sensitive US technology. "The Samson Option," by Seymour M. Hersh reports,

"Illicitly obtained intelligence was flying so voluminously from LAKAM (a secret Israeli intelligence unit, a Hebrew acronym for Scientific Liaison Bureau) into Israeli intelligence that a special code name, JUMBO, was added to the security markings already on the documents. There were strict orders, Ari Ben-Menashe recalled, "Anything marked JUMBO was not supposed to be discussed with your American counterparts." The Wall Street Journal reports that Israeli agents apparently tried to steal Recon Optical Inc's top-secret airborne spy-camera system. On September 16th Britain's pound collapses when currency speculators led by Rothschild agent, Ashkenazi Jew, George Soros, borrow pounds and sell them for Deutsche Marks, in the expectation of being able to repay the loan in devalued currency and to pocket the difference. This results in the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, Norman Lamont, announcing a rise in interest rates of 5% in one day and as a result drives Britain into a recession which lasts many years as large numbers of businesses fail and the housing market crashes. This is right on cue for the Rothschilds, after they had privatised Britain's state owned assets during the 1980's, driven the share price up, and then collapsed the markets so they could buy them up for pennies on the pound, a carbon copy of what Nathan Mayer Rothschild did to the British economy 180 years before, in 1812. It cannot be overstated that the Chancellor of the Exchequer at that time, Norman Lamont, prior to becoming a MP, was a Merchant Banker with N. M. Rothschild and Sons, who he joined after reading Economics at Cambridge.

- 1993: Norman Lamont leaves the British government to return to N. M. Rothschild and Sons as a director, after his mission to collapse the British economy to profit the Rothschilds is accomplished. Former Congressman, Paul Findley publishes his seminal book, Deliberate Deceptions: Facing the Facts About the U.S. Israeli Relationship. In this book he lists the 65 United Nations Member Resolutions against Israel from the period 1955 to 1992, and the 30 United States vetoes on Israel's behalf which if not made would have seen Israel have 95 resolutions against them at this point. No matter, even with Israel's puppet the United States helping them terrorise others, the 65 Resolutions passed against Israel are more than all the Resolutions passed against all other countries combined. Not that Israel care too much about the views of the United Nations when you consider that less than two weeks after Israel's attack on the USS Liberty (an attack designed to sink the Liberty and blame it on Egypt prompting the USA into a war with Egypt on behalf of Israeli Lies, remember the Mossad motto, "By Way Of Deception, Thou Shalt Do War"), the Israeli Foreign Minister, Aba Eban, stated of the United Nations, "If the General Assembly were to vote by 121 votes to 1 in favor of, "Israel," returning to the armistice lines (pre June 1967 borders), "Israel," would refuse to comply with the decision," New York Times – 19 June 1967. The ADL is caught operating a massive spying operation on critics of Israel, Arab-Americans, the San Francisco Labor Council, ILWU Local 10, Oakland Educational Association, NAACP, Irish Northern Aid, International Indian Treaty Council, the Asian Law Caucus and the San Francisco Police. Data collected was sent to Israel and in some cases to South Africa. Pressure from Jewish organizations forces the city to drop the criminal case, but the ADL settles a civil lawsuit for an undisclosed sum of cash.
- 1995: Former atomic energy scientist, Dr Kitty Little claims the Rothschilds now control 80% of the world's uranium supplies giving them a monopoly over nuclear power. The Defense Investigative Service circulates a memo warning US military contractors that, "Israel aggressively collects (US) military and industrial technology." The report stated that Israel obtains information using, "ethnic targeting, financial aggrandizement, and identification and exploitation of individual frailties," of US citizens.
- 1996: A General Accounting Office report, "Defense Industrial Security: Weaknesses in US Security Arrangements With Foreign-Owned Defense Contractors," found that according to intelligence sources, "Country A," (identified by intelligence sources as Israel, Washington Times, 22 February 1996), "conducts the most aggressive espionage operation against the United tates of any US ally." A pdf file of the report is here: www.gao.gov/archive/1996/ns96064.pdf An unformatted text version is here: <http://fas.org/man/gao/gao9664.htm> The Jerusalem Post (30 August 1996) quoted the report, "'Classified military information and sensitive military technologies are high-priority targets for the intelligence agencies of this country.'"The report described, "An espionage operation run by the intelligence organization responsible for collecting scientific and technologic information for (Israel) paid a US government employee to obtain US classified military intelligence documents." The Washington Report on Middle East Affairs (Shawn L. Twing, April 1996) noted that this was, "a reference to the 1985 arrest of Jonathan Pollard, a civilian US naval intelligence analyst who provided Israel's LAKAM espionage agency an estimated 800,000 pages of classified US intelligence information." www.washington-report.org/backissues/0496/9604014.htm The GAO report also noted that, "Several citizens of (Israel) were caught in the United States stealing sensitive technology used in manufacturing artillery gun tubes." An Office of Naval Intelligence document, "Worldwide Challenges to Naval Strike Warfare" reported that, "US technology has been acquired (by China) through Israel in the form of the Lavi fighter and possibly SAM (surface-to-air) missile technology."Jane's Defense Weekly (28 February 1996) noted that, "until now, the intelligence community has not openly confirmed the transfer of US technology (via Israel) to China." The report noted that this, "represents a dramatic step forward for Chinese military aviation." (Flight International, 13 March 1996). Amschel Rothschild, 41, is strangled with the heavy cord of his own towel robe in his hotel room in Paris. French Prime Minister orders the French Police to close their investigation, and, Rupert Murdoch, born of a Jewish mother and so a Jew by Ashkenazi standards, instructs his editors and news managers around the world to report it as a heart attack, if they need to report it at all. On 12 May United Nations Ambassador and Ashkenazi Jew, Madeleine Albright, when appearing on 60 Minutes, was asked the following by correspondent Lesley Stahl, in reference to the years of United States led economic sanctions against Iraq, "We have heard that half a million children have died. I mean, that is more children than died in Hiroshima. And, you know, is the price worth it?"To which Ambassador Albright replied, "I think that is a very hard choice, but the price, we think, the price is worth it."Her comments cause no public outcry. In fact, the holocaust of half a million Iraqi children is positively admired by the United States government when you consider less than 8 months later, President Clinton appointed Albright as secretary of state. Whilst appearing before the Senate Committee, who were considering her appointment, Albright is literally chomping at the bit for the blood of more Iraqi children and she states, "We will insist on maintaining tough UN sanctions against Iraq unless and until that regime complies with relevant Security Council resolutions."

- 1997: An Army mechanical engineer, Ashkenazi Jew, David A. Tenenbaum, "inadvertently," gives classified military information on missile systems and armored vehicles to Israeli officials (New York Times, 20 February 1997). The Washington Post reports US intelligence has intercepted a conversation in which two Israeli officials had discussed the possibility of getting a confidential letter that then-Secretary of State Warren Christopher had written to Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat. One of the Israelis, identified only as, "Dov," had commented that they may get the letter from, "Mega," the code name for Israel's top agent inside the United States. US ambassador to Israel, Martin Indyk, complains privately to the Israeli government about heavy-handed surveillance by Israeli intelligence agents. Israeli agents place a tap on Ashkenazi Jew and daughter of a Rabbi, Monica Lewinsky's, phone at the Watergate and record phone sex sessions between her and President Bill Clinton. The Ken Starr report confirms that Clinton warned Lewinsky their conversations were being taped and ended the affair. Interestingly, at the same time, the FBI's hunt for, "Mega," is called off. On 29 October Edmond de Rothschild dies in Geneva. Interestingly on the exact same day Anton Szandor LaVey, the founder of the Church of Satan also dies, who in his book, "Satan Speaks," he states in relation to The Protocols Of The Elders Of Zion, "The first time I read the Protocols of the Elders of Zion, my instinctive reaction was, So what's wrong with THAT? Isn't that the way any master plan should work? Doesn't the public deserve - nay, demand - such despotism?" Kofi Annan becomes Secretary General to the United Nations. He is married to Nane Lagergren, a Rothschild, who he wed in 1984.

- 1998: The European Central Bank is set up in Frankfurt, the city from which the Rothschilds originate.
- 2000: George W. Bush is elected (so they tell me) President of the United States. Bush and his family claim to be descendants of the House of Plantagenet which is descended from the Royal House of Judah.
- 2001: On September 11th the attack on the World Trade Center is orchestrated by Israel with the complicity of Britain and America, under the orders of the Rothschilds as a pretext for removing the liberty of people worldwide in exchange for security, just as happened with the Reichstag fire in Germany where the citizens were lied to in order to give up liberty for security. They also will use the attacks to gain control of the few nations in the world who don't allow Rothschild central banks and so less than one month after these attacks, US forces attack Afghanistan, one of only 7 nations in the world who don't have a Rothschild controlled central bank. Less than a week before the 9-11 attack on 5 September, the so-called lead hijacker Mohamed Atta and several other hijackers made a still-unexplained visit onboard one of Pro Israeli lobbyist, Ashkenazi Jew, Jack Abramoff's casino boats. No investigation is undertaken as to what they were doing there. It is discovered that US drug agents' communications have been penetrated. Suspicion falls on two companies, AMDOCS and Comverse Infosys, both owned by Israelis. AMDOCS generates billing data for most US phone companies and is able to provide detailed logs of who is talking to whom. Comverse Infosys builds the tapping equipment used by law enforcement to eavesdrop on all American telephone calls, but suspicion forms that Comverse Infosys, which gets half of its research and development budget from the Israeli government, has built a back door into the system that is being exploited by Israeli intelligence and that the information gleaned on US drug interdiction efforts is finding its way to drug smugglers. The investigation by the FBI leads to the exposure of the largest foreign spy ring ever uncovered inside the United States, operated by Israel. Half of the suspected spies have been arrested when 9-11 happens. On 9-11, 5 Israelis are arrested for dancing and cheering while the World Trade Towers collapse. Supposedly employed by Urban Moving Systems, the Israelis are caught with multiple passports and a lot of cash. Two of them are later revealed to be Mossad. As witness reports track the activity of the Israelis, it emerges that they were seen at Liberty Park at the time of the first impact, suggesting a foreknowledge of what was to come. The Israelis are interrogated, and then eventually sent back to Israel. The owner of the moving company used as a cover by the Mossad agents abandons his business and flees to Israel. The United States Government then classifies all of the evidence related to the Israeli agents and their connections to 9-11. All of this is reported to the public via a four part story on Fox News by Carl Cameron. Pressure from Jewish groups, primarily AIPAC, forces Fox News to remove the story from their website. Two hours prior to the 9-11 attacks, Odigo, an Israeli company with offices just a few blocks from the World Trade Towers, receives an advance warning via the internet. The manager of the New York Office provides the FBI with the IP address of the sender of the message, but the FBI does not follow this up. The FBI is investigating 5 Israeli moving companies as possible fronts for Israeli intelligence. It is revealed that prior to the attack millions of dollars of put options on both American Airlines and United Airlines, were traded. The FBI have promised to followed the purchasers up, but have never revealed their findings. That is because this would lead directly to Israel, the state behind the 911 attacks. Following the World Trade Center attack, anonymous letters containing anthrax are sent to various politicians and media executives. Like the 9-11 attack this is immediately blamed on Al-Qaeda , until it is discovered that the anthrax contained within those letters is a specific type of weaponized anthrax made by a United States military laboratory. The FBI then discover that the main suspect for these anthrax letters is a Ashkenazi Jew, Dr. Philip Zack, who had been reprimanded several times by his employers due to offensive remarks he made about Arabs. Dr. Philip Zack, was caught on camera entering the storage area where he worked at Fort Detrick which is where the Anthrax was kept. At this point, both the FBI and the mainstream media stopped making any public comments on the case. Jewish Defence League Chairman since 1985, Ashkenazi Jew, Irv Rubin is jailed for allegedly plotting to bomb a mosque and the offices of a Arab-American congressman. He dies shortly after slitting his throat in a suicide attempt, before he can be brought to trial. One week prior to the WTC attack, the Zim Shipping Company moves out of its offices in the WTC, breaking its lease and costing the company $50,000. No reason has ever been given, but Zim Shipping Company is half owned by the State of Israel (The Rothschilds). On October 3, Israeli Prime Minister, Ariel Sharon, makes the following statement to Ashkenazi Jew, Shimon Peres, as reported on Kol Yisrael radio. "Every time we do something you tell me America will do this and will do that....I want to tell you something very clear, don't worry about American pressure on Israel. We, the Jewish people, control America, and the Americans know it."

- 2002: Webster's Third New International Dictionary (Unabridged), re-printed in 2002, provides a new definition of Anti Semitism which has not been updated since 1956. It reads, "Anti-Semitism: (1) hostility toward Jews as a religious or racial minority group, often accompanied by social, political or economic discrimination (2) opposition to Zionism (3) sympathy for the opponents of Israel."It was definition (2) and (3) that were added in the 2002 edition, just before the USA decide to invade Iraq under orders from the State of Rothschild, I mean Israel. Also this year, the Prime Minister of Israel, war criminal, Ariel Sharon, orders the massacre in the Jenin refugee camp in the West Bank. Best get that definition updated to protect these criminals. The DEA issues a report that Israeli spies, posing as art students, have been trying to penetrate US Government offices. Police near the Whidbey Island Naval Air Station in southern Washington State stop a suspicious truck and detain two Israelis, one of whom is illegally in the United States. The two men were driving at high speed in a Ryder rental truck, which they claimed had been used to, "deliver furniture." The next day, police discovered traces of TNT and RDX military-grade plastic explosives inside the passenger cabin and on the steering wheel of the vehicle. The FBI then announces that the tests that showed explosives were, "false positived," by cigarette smoke, a claim test experts say is ridiculous. Based on an alibi provided by a woman, the case is closed and the Israelis are handed over to INS to be sent back to Israel. One week later, the woman who provided the alibi vanishes.

- 2003: The United States invade Iraq on 19 March, which this year is the holy, "Day of Purim," in the Jewish calendar. This, "Day of Purim," is a day the Jews celebrate their victory over Ancient Babylon, now based within the borders of Iraq, how interesting. What is also significant is that the previous U.S. led invasion of Iraq ended on the Day of Purim ten years earlier with the slaughter of 150,000 fleeing Iraqis under the current President's father, George Herbert Walker Bush. Purim is also the time when the Jews are encouraged to get bloody revenge against their perceived enemies. Ancient Babylon, I mean Iraq, is now one of six nations left in the world who don't have a Rothschild controlled central bank. This war is mainly about stealing Iraq's water supply for Israel and is being fought with the blood of the American military which the State of Rothschild, I mean Israel control. Israel has always struggled for water, it had to steal the Golan Heights from Syria which provided Israel with one third of its fresh water 36 years before, yet still in Israel water extraction has surpassed replacement by 2.5 billion metres in the last 25 years. This means the water is far more precious to them than the oil reserves which are the second largest reserves of oil on the planet. Malaysian Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamed states in a speech, "Jews rule the world by proxy. They get others to fight and die for them." The Police Chief of Cloudcroft stops a truck speeding through a school zone. The drivers turn out to be Israelis with expired passports. Claiming to be movers, the truck contains junk furniture and several boxes. The Israelis are handed over to immigration. The contents of the boxers are not revealed to the public. Israel deploys assassination squads into other countries, including the United States. The US Government does not protest.
- 2004: Two years into an investigation of AIPAC's (The American Israel Public Affairs Committee – the largest political lobbying group in the USA with over 65,000 members whose only purpose is to use the USA for the purposes of Israel) possible role as a spy front for Israel, Ashkenazi Jew, Larry Franklin, a mid-level Pentagon Analyst is observed by the FBI giving classified information to two officials of AIPAC suspected of being Israeli spies. AIPAC hires lawyer Nathan Lewin to handle their legal defense, the same lawyer who defended suspected Israeli spy Stephen Bryen in 1978. Larry Franklin worked in the Pentagon Office of Special Plans, run by Richard Perle, at the time Perle (who was caught giving classified information to Israel back in 1970) was insisting that Iraq was crawling with weapons of mass destruction requiring the United States to invade and conquer Iraq. There were no WMDs, of course, and Perle has dumped the blame for the, "bad intelligence," on George Tenet. But what is known is that the Pentagon Office of Special Plans was coordinating with a similar group in Israel, in Ariel Sharon's office. With two suspected Israeli spies (at least) inside the office from which the lies that launched the war in Iraq originated, it appears that the people of the United States are the victims of a deadly hoax, a hoax that started a war using the blood and money of American citizens for the purposes of Israeli oppression. The leaking of the investigation of AIPAC to the media on August 28th, 2004 gave advance warning to other spies working with Franklin. The damage to the FBI's investigation was completed when United States Attorney General John Ashcroft ordered the FBI to stop all arrests in the case. Like the Stephen Bryen case and the hunt for, "Mega," this latest spy scandal seems destined by officials who have their own secret allegiances to protect, barring a massive public outcry. Police near the Nuclear Fuel Services plant in Tennessee stop a truck after a three mile chase, during which the driver throws a bottle containing a strange liquid from the cab. The drivers turn out to be Israelis using fake identifications. The FBI refuses to investigate and the Israelis are released. Two Israelis try to enter Kings Bay Naval Submarine Base, home to eight Trident submarines. The truck tests positive for explosives. The National Director of the ADL, Abraham H. Foxman, publishes a book entitled, "Never Again? The Threat Of The New Anti-Semitism," in which he states that the New Testament's "lie," that the ancient Pharisees were responsible for the death of Christ, has been responsible for anti-semitism throughout the millennia and thus the New Testament of the bible is, "hate speech," and should be censored or banned.

- 2005: On January 20, President Bush makes the following statement as part of his second inaugural address, "When our Founders declared a new order of the ages." This is not true. The founders did not declare a, "new order of the ages," President Roosevelt did when in 1933, he put it's latin translation, "Novus Ordo Seclorum," on the dollar bill. On 7 July the London Underground Network is bombed. Israel's Finance Minister, Binyamin Netanyahu is in London on the morning of the attacks in order to attend an economic conference in a hotel over the underground station where one of the blasts occurred, but stayed in his hotel room instead after he had been informed by Israeli intelligence officials attacks were expected. There are now only 5 nations on the world left without a Rothschild controlled central bank: Iran; North Korea; Sudan; Cuba; and Libya. Physics Professor, Stephen E. Jones of Brigham Young University publishes a paper in which he proves the World Trade Center buildings could have only been brought down in the manner they were by explosives. He receives no coverage in the mainstream media for his scientific and provable claims.
- 2006: The Edmond De Rothschild Banque, a subsidiary of Europe's Edmond De Rothschild family bank group in France, becomes the first foreign family bank that has obtained approval of the China Banking Regulatory Commission and entered China's financial market. The ADL ruthlessly leans on governments throughout the world to pass hate crimes legislation, as they are scared that the criminal cabal that is Israel and the Rothschilds is being exposed more and more on a daily basis, predominantly on the internet. Their job is to protect this criminal network and what better way to do it than by passing laws in which anyone who exposes a Jewish criminal becomes a criminal. David Irving is sentenced to three years in jail in Austria, for denying the holocaust. It is important to note that the only historical event you can be arrested for questioning is the holocaust. This is because this has been the Rothschilds greatest weapon in brainwashing YOU, THE STUPID GOY! is that the Jews are so poor and persecuted when in actual fact they control the vast majority of international finance and international corporations throughout the world.

Veteranstoday.com James Preston May 8th,2015 A Plan to Declare War on the Rothschild Khazarian Mafia & eradicate its espionage and penetration of America

Before America can embark on a national mission to eradicate the influence of the Rothschild Khazarian Mafia (RKM) in America, it is important to understand its incredibly evil hidden history. All Americans need to know that the Rothschild Khazarian Mafia (RKM) is based on a secret death cult, ancient Babylonian Talmudism (aka Kabbalism, Luciferianism, Satanism, Sabbateanism, Frankism). Only by knowing the sinister origin and core belief system of the RKM can we understand why the RKM is hell-bent on systematically infiltrating and destroying each and every society and nation on Earth. We know for certain that the RKM is planning on mass-murdering 90% of all humans, unless they are stopped and this intention has been admitted by RKM officials in public documents. Even more than this the RKM has actually carved their sinister death cult intentions in stone on an expensive granite monument, the Georgia Guidestones. All Americans need to understand that the Rothschild Khazarian Mafia (RKM) is by far the World's biggest parasitical invading organism in history that sucks the lifeblood out of any host country until mass-death of the Citizenry and the nation itself is attained. Left unabated the RKM parasite will destroy each host country it has infested and, if unabated, will eventually destroy the whole world. As the truth about the RKM diffuses to the world by the Internet and word of mouth, soon the whole world and all nations and people will understand that a major global war against the RKM must be declared and waged. As the truth about this World Largest Parasite of mankind spreads to every nation, folks everywhere will come to understand that mankind's biggest enemy is the Rothschild Khazarian Mafia (RKM) which intentionally destroys every culture, nation and society that it comes to infest. As the people of the world come to understand this RKM evil, all people even from different cultures and nations will be motivated to come together with this one, single objective, to eradicate the RKM's infiltration, hijacking and control over almost every nation of the world. To eradicate the RKM chieftain's grip on America and most of the World, we must decapitate the RKM from its elastic, endless Fiat counterfeit supply of "funny money" debt-notes! We know for certain that in order to do this effectively and in the shortest time possible, the RKM will have to be decapitated from its counterfeit and endless self-produced money supply and in order to do this, the RKM's unconstitutional Federal Reserve System will have to be eliminated by the USG and a new American Bank set up in the US Department of the Treasury. This cannot be done until Americans take back Congress and drive out those who have taken the required AIPAC loyalty oath to Israel. All AIPAC Israeli influence peddling of Congress must be stopped cold and all Members of Congress who signed these Treasonous, Seditious AIPAC Loyalty Oaths to Israel must be voted out and fully prosecuted for espionage against America. Former Congresswoman Cynthia McKinney has reported to several sources that all newly elected members of Congress are given an AIPAC loyalty oath to Israel to sign. If they refused, a well-financed opponent would run against them, in most cases preventing re-election. She refused to sign it and lost her re-election campaign. If We the People can successfully decapitate the RKM from its endless, elastic money supply manufactured by their private Federal Reserve System Banksters, this means these banksters will no longer be allowed to lend citizens RKM debt-notes at pernicious interest. This will remove the main source of money and power for the RKM and will immediately stop any more accumulation of fraudulent public USG debt. If we eliminate the Illegal, Unconstitutional private RKM Fiat debt-note based "funny money" and the illegal, Unconstitutional Federal Income Tax, we can increase our purchasing power by approximately 40%. When the completely, illegal Federal Income Tax is eliminated and a new real and honest American money system owned by We the People is activated, this will immediately increase American purchasing power by approximately 40% because that is the approximate amount of the American consumers prices are inflated by because of this two part theft, phony Fiat debt-notes loaned at pernicious usury and illegal, unconstitutional Federal income taxes. Let's face it, no sane person would pay a foreign Bankster pernicious interest to use what is fraudulently presented as their own money and turns out to be counterfeit banknote loans backed by nothing real by "sleight of hand" money-fraud like Bernie Madoff, the man who made-off with billions, but only got caught because he didn't foresee the speed of the recession coming upon America in 2007.

How do like having retail prices inflated by 40% for nothing by the private RKM Banksters' charging pernicious usury to you for using their money? Once you understand that approximately 40% of all retail prices at the grocery store and other stores is based on paying these RKM foreign banksters pernicious usury for using what should have been your own money in the first place, it is easy to become enraged at how you and all Americans have been ripped off and financially defrauded by the RKM banksters since 1913. In order to stop the RKM cold the best way to do so is to bring every nation of the World into an international Global War against the RKM, which we know for certain is the World's most powerful Death Cult and life-sucking anti-human parasite that ever existed. In order to be truly successful, this must be an international war against the Khazarian Mafia, with all nations of the world ganged up against the RKM. Why is this? Because the RKM is the most sinister organized crime syndicate that has ever existed; and it has infiltrated almost every nation and has tentacles that reach into almost every government. Many leaders are bribed, human-compromised or blackmailed by the RKM. Those who don't acquiesce are secretly murdered. And we know that the RKM has planted stolen nukes in twenty-five American cities and in every large capital of Europe, and has been threatening to set them off as a part of their Samson Option. This has certainly helped keep the leaders they control in line, and is described as Israel's "nuclear blackmail".

It is important to understand how RKM Chieftains differ from normal human beings. RKM chieftains either were born without human souls or lost them along the way. Normal humans unless they are hard core complete sociopaths tends to have a conscience and will feel shame when they do wrong against others. These RKM chieftains never feel any shame for harming others, rather this makes them feel pleasure. They capitalize on others' ability to feel shame and orient much of their engineering of governmental policies to create as much shame in those peoples they are oppressing and asset stripping. They learned long ago that, if they can provoke folks to do things wrong using Hollywoodism and the controlled major mass media (CMMM), this will help destroy character and moral strength in a people and make it far easier to corrupt them and control them. Thus, you find the RKM chieftains, kingpins and cutouts inevitably involved in proliferating extreme forms of perversion and pornography few would feel comfortable running, and they do this for big profits. These folks are running a culture war against all Americans, strip their character and manipulate them to lose their integrity. Before we can discuss an effective strategy to arrest, convict and jail the RKM, we must discuss how the RKM proceeded to infiltrate and hijack America beginning in 1913.

It is indisputable fact that the United States of America was first infiltrated by the RKM beginning in 1913 when the illegal, Unconstitutional Federal Reserve System established a Beachhead in America. Once the monetary production and distribution beachhead was established in America in 1913, the RKM proceeded to progressively infiltrate and hijack every single American institution bit by bit, usually one at a time, but sometimes simultaneously in groups. The illegal and unconstitutional Federal Reserve Act was passed in 1913 by bribing weak members of the US Congress to betray their country and manipulating an illegal vote on Christmas Eve — even with no proper quorum present. This fraudulent bill was signed into law by a compromised, corrupt President, who was willing to betray his country for banksters' money. Once the RKM succeeded in setting up their fraudulent money production and distribution machine — the world biggest counterfeiting scheme — then these criminal banksters proceeded to buy, bribe and own almost every congressperson, most USG Officials, and almost the entire Judiciary, as well as most Military High Command. And while the RKM used their massive elastic checkbook of phony Counterfeit money to infiltrate and hijack all American Politics, they also charged dumbed-down Americans illegal, pernicious interest (actually illegal usury) for using what should have been their own money in the first place. Making money from nothing and backing it with nothing but the enforced taxes of its captive customers is nothing less than modern day secret slavery and has been the greatest financial fraud in history and is major RICO crime. Of course these RKM foreign-based banksters created their own money from nothing and lent it to Americans, charging pernicious usury. This is course was a very devilish and crafty trick and must be considered the greatest financial crime in history and provided the great money power to then infiltrate, consolidate and hijack all the Major Mass Media in America forming their own illegal, Unconstitutional news cartel, a secret illegal news and media monopoly best referred to as the CMMM. Obviously, the CMMM should have been broken up long ago under anti-trust laws, but when the US Congress, the Administration, the US Department of Justice and the Courts are owned by the RKM lock stock and barrel, this has been an impossibility. Once the RKM gained control over the American Money Production and Distribution, gained control over almost every member of Congress, all Presidential Candidates who would be elected, and even the Major Mass Media, they were able to seize control over almost every aspect of American life, including the educational curricula at every level of education. The RKM succeeded in hijacking the Major Mass Media in America, then consolidated it, and then converted it into their main propaganda machine deployed against the American people to mind-control them to support whatever policies their top RKM Chieftains desired. Once the RKM was able to effectively consolidate and thereby control CMMM and their main propaganda machine, similar to what existed in the former Soviet Union, which is owned and controlled by only six RKM kingpins. Technically this control over the six Major Mass Media News Corporations has transformed this RKM CMMM into an illegal monopoly, best described as an illegal news cartel designed and operated to mind-kontrol the American People and feed them a continuing stream of USG lies, false-narratives and USG propaganda needed to support the RKM's sinister agenda for America. The RKM has worked hard to remove its history from libraries and history books because, once known by the public, they would become targeted for destruction for all the millions of rapes, tortures and mass-murders of invasion and war they have perpetrated. The RKM has thus restricted the access of ordinary Americans to what the real truth about the RKM is, where they came from, and their deadly agenda is which is to asset strip, oppress, tyrannize and disarm America, and then transform America into GAZA II, the world's largest open air prison camp where Americans can be mass-murdered at will, like the Palestinians. The RKM's secret goal is to create a RKM Apartheid in America against We the People. What the RKM did to the people of Russia during the "Bolshevik Revolution" was not so much a revolution, but an act of torture, mass-murder, and asset-stripping of Russian wealth. This is best described as International Piracy and Parasitism, and Mike Harris was the first to discuss this realistically for what it is — RKM vengeful mass-murder against the Russians for having driven the Khazarian Rulers out of Khazaria around 1200 AD. We know that the RKM was behind the horrific mass, rape and genociding of one and one-half million Armenians in 1915-1917. Revenge by annihilation, no matter how long it takes is always the number one motive for the RKM. It is important to understand that the main motives that drive the RKM are hate and revenge, best exemplified in their Bolshevik Red Terror and Cheka rape, torture and mass-murder of 22 million innocent Russians between 1917-1919, followed by approximately another 80 million murders of innocents until, the Iron Curtain fell. This was also exemplified by the Hellstorm and mass rapes, tortures and mass-murders of innocent Germans by Russians at the end of WW2.

The RKM greatly fears retaliation by the whole world, if the public finds out who they are and how they operate. This is why the RKM's number one goal is secrecy, followed by bribery of officials, human compromise, human child sacrifice and pedophilia, while always projecting blame for all they are actually doing by accusing innocent others of their own major sins, and then pro-actively attacking others as an effective defense. Because ordinary mainstream Americans and the world public have had truth denied them by the RKM's CMMM, they will only learn the truth about the RKM and its sinister Death Cult Agenda by either word of mouth or the Internet's Alternative Media. Until recently the Alternative media was looked on as fringe or conspiracy nutcase information. Now thanks to the Worldwide Internet, the New Gutenberg Press, truth is being published and broadcast to almost every nation of the World and is diffusing to mainstream. This of course alarms the RKM, which is in a panic. To counter this diffusion of the truth about what they are, where they came from, the RKM has set up numerous shill websites. But, in order to get any readers, they have had to use a "limited hangout" approach, hoping to rope readers in using 60-80% of the truth, followed by a bad payload to mislead folks away from the truth. RKM "Stooge" misinformation websites, who use the popular "limited-hangouts, with occasional misleading payloads" approach, are failing because web users have become so sophisticated that they select out the truth nuggets from many websites and connect the dots themselves, and ignore the bad payloads. These increasingly astute readers are then able to connect all the truth nugget dots into fairly sound conclusions. As truth is disseminated across the world and to many Americans for the first time, there appears to a serious accelerating in the rate of information transmission and absorption, much to the dismay of the RKM Chieftains and crime bosses. Once the crimes of the RKM in America have been explained in detail so that they can be easily understood, then a plan to officially declare War on this enemy of America can be formulated. What follows is a detailed description of the actual crimes of the RKM against America the Republic and all Americans and what can be done about it by We the People. This listing will then be used as part of a recommended "Declaration of War" for the USG against the RKM using the US Military. In this way, all American military might be brought to bear against the

RKM, the true enemy within the Gates of America. Declaration of War Against The Rothschild Khazarian Mafia (RKM) by We The People and the Constitutional Republic of The United States of America:

44.4.1 Declaration of War Against Rothschild Mafia

After over 100 years of abuse, including Treason, Sedition and the ordered murder of numerous Americans with effective and patriotic leadership and leadership potential; and after a full range of financial fraud and debt and tax slavery-type crimes against We the People; and because of all the numerous organized crime abuses enacted against We the People by the world's largest organized criminal cabal, the RKM — we the people can no longer endure the multifaceted abuse and secret crimes of the RKM.

Therefore, because these abuses against We the People can no longer be tolerated, We the People who constitute the United States of America, hereby Declare War against the world's largest Organized Crime Cabal, the RKM, which has infiltrated America, hijacked our American institutions of government and is now waging a secret asymmetrical war against We the People and the Republic of the United States of America.

Note the following list of offenses of the Rothschild Khazarian Mafia (RKM) against We the People and the Republic of the United States of America, which clearly violates our United States Constitution and Bill of Rights, numerous Federal Laws and current RICO criminal and Civil Law, and the appropriate remedies to defeat this Enemy within our Gates that has been waging a secret war against We The People and the United States of America since 1913:

1. This Criminal Cabal, the Rothschild Khazarian Mafia (RKM) that has deeply infiltrated America has done so by illegally and Unconstitutionally hijacking our Monetary production and Distribution System, has charged us pernicious interest (usury) to use our own money and deflated its value to steal our freedoms, property, our assets and the fruits of our labors.
2. This RKM Crime Cabal has hijacked most of the United States Government by bribing, blackmailing, intimidating and human compromising many Members of Congress, numerous USG Officials, all Administrations since JFK, and deeply infiltrated American Law Enforcement, American Intel and the US Judicial system.
3. This RKM Organized Crime Cabal has induced and/or recruited these Traitorous Individuals and officials of the US Government to violate their Oaths of Office to the US Constitution in which they swore to Defend The United States of America The Republic against all Enemies, both Foreign and Domestic. The RKM bribes and manipulates new Members of Congress to sign an AIPAC loyalty Oath to Israeli or AIPAC will provide big funding to an opponent preventing their re-election, thus a complete subversion of the American Political process.
4. Those in the US Government that comply with the RKM's manipulations and coercions get highly rewarded for their crimes, Treason and Sedition against We The People and the United States of America the Republic. If they refuse they face engineered ruin, un-election, oppressions, trashing in the media for secret sins, or even assassination.
5. These RKM owned USG Traitors to their Oaths of Office have become part of an RKM/Israeli run Foreign Espionage Force that has covertly invaded the Republic and has been waging a covert, asymmetrical war against We the People with the intent to asset stripping We The People of all our wealth, property and the fruits of our labor. These traitorous elements within the USA who have essentially "sold out" to the RKM or its Cutouts have become the domestic enemies of We the People, our Constitutional Republic and the State they have sworn to defend and thus must be removed from office and fully prosecuted for the crimes of espionage against We The People and the United States of America.

6. The RKM has accrued vast financial assets and power by using illegal Unconstitutional Taxation and manipulation of the value of their fraudulent FIAT Debt notes they present as real Constitutional Money when it is clearly not. This RKM Criminal Cabal has hijacked American Intel and frequently uses it to impose a false cloak of secrecy by illegally invoking “National Security” as cover for such serious crimes defined as Major RICO crimes under Federal Law and a whole bevy of felony federal and state crimes. Drug trafficking is one good example of how National Security is used to cover crimes against the American People.
7. In the process of betraying their Oaths of Office, these Traitorous and Seditious US Government Officials have become Enemies of the State within the Gates of America and part of a Foreign Controlled Espionage System run by the City of London Rothschild World Zionist Bankers and certain World Zionist leaders of Israel. These Enemies inside the Gates of America include most Members of Congress and many Bankers who have used laundered drug money and other money defrauded from the American People to provide illegal support for Israeli, BCC/CI and Saudi synthetic Terror groups which are waging war against American Soldiers and other soldiers of Mideast nations. This is done to concoct synthetic engineered wars by creating an enemy so that the RKM banks and RKM associated Defense Contractors can make huge profits.
8. This RKM aka “Rothschild World Zionist” banking Cartel has used their money power to create an associated Criminal Cabal through the Scherf Crime Family in America later to become the Bush Crime Family or Bush Crime Cabal (BCC). In the early 1960’s this Crime Cabal fully infiltrated and seized control over the Central Intelligence Agency using Rothschild bankers Money Power and went on to mastermind and run the Assassination of President John F. Kennedy on behalf of the World Zionist Bankers and their associates World Zionist leaders of Israel. This Crime Cabal has come to be labeled the RKM, the largest, wealthiest most powerful Criminal Syndicate in the World.
9. After the Bush Crime Cabal (BCC) successfully Assassinated President John F. Kennedy, they combined forces with the RKM. There can no longer be any reasonable doubt that this RKM has been waging a serious asymmetrical war against We the people and the United States of America the Republic since its 1913 invasion. The intensity of the RKM’s attacks and tyranny have waxed and waned but have greatly intensified since 2001 when the RKM used Israel and Traitors within the US Defense Establishment and the Administration to attack America on 9-11-01. The RKM used its Israeli Cutouts to place stolen Nuclear devices in the NYC Twin Trade Towers and also flew a cruise missile into the Pentagon to destroy the Able Danger secret Investigation of nukes stolen and trafficked by Israeli operatives, thus murdering most of the Able Danger Investigators who were called in by Donald Rumsfeld for an emergency meeting at the Pentagon in the area targeted for destruction.
10. It is known beyond any reasonable doubt that the RKM’s Israeli Cutouts took the leading role in the attack on America on 9-11-01 with the Bush Crime Cabal taking a supportive cover-up role. It is known beyond any reasonable doubt that the RKM has used Israeli Cutouts to blackmail the Bush2 Administration into allowing them to consolidate American Alphabets, Intel and law Enforcement into one large Stasi Type Police State Security Force (Secret Police Occupation Army) under direct control of the RKM through these Israeli Cutouts.
11. After over 100 years of abuses of which include Treason, Sedition, Murder and numerous organized crime abuses of a major Organized Crime Cabal the RKM that can no longer be endured, We the People who constitute the United States of America hereby Declare War against this very large Organized Crime Cabal and those RKM chieftains, kingpins and cutouts who operate on their behalf.
12. In the process of betraying their Oaths of Office, numerous Traitorous and Seditious US Government Officials have become Enemies of the State within the Gates of America and part of a Foreign Controlled RKM/Israeli Espionage System run by the City of London Rothschild World Zionist Bankers and certain World Zionist leaders of Israel. This RKM World Zionist Rothschild Banking Cartel has used their money power to create an associated Criminal Cabal through the Scherf Crime Family, identified as the Bush Crime Cabal. In the early 1960’s this Crime Cabal fully infiltrated and seized control over the Central Intelligence - Agency using Rothschild Bankers Money Power and went on to use Bush1 to run the Assassination of President John F. Kennedy on behalf of the World Zionist Bankers and their associated RKM Israeli Cutouts. This RKM is the largest, wealthiest and most powerful criminal syndicate in the world.

13. This Consolidated Israeli Police State Security Force called Homeland Security (DHS) is actually the Foreign Occupation Army of Israel that has been created inside the United States of America the Republic and has been deployed to asset strip, tyrannize, terrorize, intern and systematically mass-murder 90% of all Americans by their own internal documents. Homeland Security was set up and is run by Israeli-American “Israeli-first” Dual Citizens whose first loyalty is to Israel and the RKM. Israeli Nuclear Blackmail (Samson Option) was used to coerce the Administration and Congress to cooperate with the creation of Homeland Security, which involved the consolidation of all American law Enforcement and Alphabets into one central command structure run by Israel. This is best described as a Secret Police Israeli Occupation army inside America. Israeli leaders hired former East German Stasi head Marcus Wolfe to set up Homeland Security to be as much like the Stasi as possible.
 14. It is for these reason and many more, the many offenses and abuses of the RKM against We the people and many years of their violation of the US Constitution and Bill of Rights and purposeful destruction of our Rule Of Law at every level of American Society, We the People and the United States of America the Constitutional Republic Hereby declare full scale War against all elements of the RKM and its subordinate the Bush Crime Cabal. We the People will deploy every means of war against the RKM and all its elements and members. One this war commences using the American Military which has a clear Constitutional Right to wage war against the RKM, a period of 72 hours will be given for RKM Chieftains, Kingpins and Cutouts to surrender to designated US Magistrates who have been appointed to serve under Emergency Constitutional Rule.
 15. Those who do not surrender will be arrested. If they resist they will be subdued by any means. Indictments and arrest warrants will be issued listing probable cause and witnesses and these Perps will be hunted down to the ends of the earth and brought back unless they immediately surrender. Those who can be taken into custody alive will be brought before an appointed Military Tribunal and tried for RICO crimes and espionage against America, including Treason and Sedition and anything else seized Intel records show.
 16. The NSA and CIA are acknowledged as foreign entities that have been hijacked by the RKM and will be given 72 hours to surrender. Their facilities will be surrounded by the US First and Fifth Armies and, if necessary, attacked by the US Army, the USAF and Special Operatives. Hundreds of heroic Special Ops have been abused, lied to, jailed on trumped fake charges to discredit them and prevent them from testifying against the RKM. Many of these will desire to go to war against the RKM if given the opportunity by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, as many will be willing to volunteer to do so under this Declaration of War. These men will be offered re-enlistment to join this war effort against the RKM.
 17. All NSA and CIA documents will be seized and compared to those which Russia has offered to provide from their Intel operations against the RKM and Israeli Likudists, which hijacked the NSA and receive direct satellite downloads of all Raw NSA intercepts and digital data. All foreign aid to Israel will be immediately stopped due to the illegality to give aid to nations having a secret nuclear arsenal — especially one based on theft of American nukes. Israel has deployed them secretly in acts of criminal terrorism and mass-murder all over the World. All contracts with Israeli Intel-run DOD and communications providers operating inside the United States of America will be immediately and permanently canceled.
 18. This seized NSA evidence will be used to go all the way back to Viet Nam and try anyone still alive who participated in Illegal Narcotics Trafficking then and up until and including the present, as well as all Joint cabal Assassinations and Bank Bust-out Operations like the Saving and Loan Fraud and Theft, the Enron Fraud and Theft debacle, and the MERS Home Mortgage fraud and Theft.
 19. Those members of the RKM or those receiving or who have received such or other forms of bribes who surrender may be given immunity if they come clean 100% and give up all their illegally gained assets freely. Those who do not will be tried by a military tribunal and dealt with very seriously as a spy according to existing espionage laws which in most cases requires Capital Punishment as the Rosenbergs received.

- Only this time a firing squad or hanging on wooden gallows will be used for execution, with the choice being made by the Provost Marshal's Office in consultation with the Chief Officer of the Military Tribunal trying the arrestee upon conviction. Trials will be conducted within 30 days unless mitigating circumstances are recognized by the Provost Marshal's Office and the Chief Officer of the Military tribunal.
20. The Federal Reserve System will be immediately seized and put out of business by the US Military and all principals that do not surrender will be arrested and imprisoned with trials before a Military Tribunal according to the US Constitution and the Laws governing Treason and Sedition as well as RICO. All national debt related to the Federal Reserve System's charging We The People to use their own money will be immediately declared null and void. All assets will be immediately seized and transferred back to the US Department of the treasury which will be immediately reconstituted and will create a true and honest central bank owned by We The People with no interest charged for using our own currency which will be backed by Gold, Silver and hard assets. This new, real US Central bank will be set up to incorporate as many local community banks and bank chains and credit unions will be preserved, but they will have to comply with the new rules and policies set up. Any interest charged for car loans and home loans or any other kind of loans will be limited to 4% or less and must be non-usury.
 21. Absolutely no Dual or Triple or multiple Citizenships will be allowed anymore under any circumstances, or can any of these individual or their progeny ever be allowed to hold public office. All such multiple citizens who wish to stay must be proved clear of Espionage, Treason, Sedition, or RICO crimes and will be forever barred from any State, Local or Federal Government positions. Those who are clean of such offenses will be allowed to take a Loyalty Oath to the United States of America The Constitutional Republic, or otherwise will be deported but in no way will they or any of their progeny ever be allowed to hold public office of any type.
 22. English will be the designated language for all government entities and all public schools and no special public school programs for other languages such as special "immersion programs" which are wasteful and harm the Society. All borders will be cut off and patrolled 100% with an automatic reset back to the immigration laws present at the time President John F. Kennedy was murdered until suitable new ones can be considered and passed.
 23. All Free Trade treaties will be immediately declared null and void, illegal and Unconstitutional. And Fair trade will be restored with adequate tariffs set on imports to favor American manufacturers. Any Corporation who has moved abroad but conducts a lot of sales inside America will be barred from operating inside The United States of America, and all their assets will be seized and held by the Military Tribunal for use to benefit We The People. Corporations will lose all rights of person-hood and any law in any court of the land that is judged obviously Unconstitutional by the Regional, designated Military Tribunal will be immediately declared null and void. Corporations will no longer be treated legally as persons and all these usurped rights will be immediately removed and any corporate conglomerates which Intel shows to have used unfair restraint of trade practices or conspiring against the American consumer will be broken up under existing anti-trust laws. Corporate violations of law will be charged against the CEO/CFO or principal responsible and anyone else who actually violated the law.
 24. All those imprisoned for non-violent drug crimes will be immediately released, and their records expunged, some placed under short term probation as deemed necessary. Those who have served their sentences and/or are probation for these minor offenses will have their records purged. Special MD Physician Boards of ten in each State of the Union will be set up each with at least one addiction specialist, one Psychiatrist, one Ph.D. level Psychologist and one MSW Social Worker (each non-affiliated with any Pharmaceutical manufacturer) to suggest Federal drug policy which will be generally recognized as an independent States Rights issue. The Federal Government will make most drugs legal, but each State of the Union will have to decide which specific drugs will be allowed to be sold or MD prescribed, and each State will be encouraged to set up controlled drug sales supervised by medical Authorities for addicting/habituating substances and opiate type drugs, and such addicting/habituating drugs will be handled with prescribed medical treatment.

25. Any foreign or domestic drug Cartels including those run or which operate in association with the RKM, the Mossad or the BCC/CIA will be given 72 hours to completely disband and discontinue all trafficking into the USA or any of its Territories and if as indicated by NRO Satellites a major aerial and ground attack will be instituted against these Cartels wherever they are located until they are eradicated and all stateside controllers, members and assets are arrested and tried for these capital crimes.
26. The Department of Homeland Security (DHS) will be immediately disbanded and all employees who did not violate their Oath to the US Constitution and who did not commit any crimes, Treason, Sedition or RICO offenses in association with any component of the RKM will be reassigned to their own prior Agency which will be made independent once again. The TSA will be immediately disbanded and all Airports and Airlines will be responsible for their own Security Systems.
27. All assets of the RKM and their Federal Reserve System will be seized and inside America this is comprised of many Trillions of dollars' worth of Commercial real estate bought with the massive illegal narcotics and arms trafficking and illegal Bust-outs and frauds against the US Government will be clawed back and distributed evenly to We The People.
28. All secret bases such as Areas 51, 52 (Papoose lake) and deep underground military bases will be given 72 hours to surrender or will be attacked by every single US Military Asset and seized, including the seizure and exposure of all secrets and secret records and technology. No more secret Underground Bases will be allowed to be built and all existing ones will be evaluated for allowed continued existence, but if so will be made open to all of We The People.
29. Anyone involved in any false-flag attacks or illegal Unconstitutional, inhuman, crimes against humanity biomedical or MK-Ultra type Mind-Control experiments, including ultra-high-tech Psychotronics deployed against We the People will be arrested if they do not surrender within the 72 hour period. No more Wi-Fi will be allowed in any public facility due to the Mind-Control brain entrainment risks, cancer risks, and risk of harming developing children and adults too.
30. We the People may petition the various State Governors to deploy their National guards and specially appointed Militia groups which have been assembled to wage Total War against the Khazarian Mafia at all levels of Society within each state after the surrender period expires for those who have not surrendered.
31. The Khazarian Mafia kingpins, chieftains, crime bosses, major cutouts and their families, will be hunted down inside America at every level and to the ends of the Earth and all their assets will be seized from every member, associate or beneficiary who received bribes or payoffs.
32. Upon this day, _____, 2015, It is hereby declared that no longer will We the People and the legitimate United States of America the Constitutional Republic allow the RKM to exist in America or anywhere in the World or any of its associated drug Cartels or their paid off, bribed politicians in Mexico, Central or South America or any other nation anywhere in the World. American Military assets will be deployed to attack and destroy these entities if they do not surrender during the surrender period. White flags must be displayed, otherwise aerial attacks and special op ground attacks should be expected and destruction and annihilation to follow.
33. Let it be declared by the power of the Constitutional Republic that NO Longer will any corruption or Special Legislation associated with the corruption and crimes of the RKM or any of its components, members, or associates be allowed to continue or exist in any form.
34. Because Ronald Reagan was the Last Duly Elected President, and all others were fraudulent, and all US Laws passed after are Null and Void, all laws will be reset back to what was on the books at that time, and this will be done by a Military tribunal set up to do so.
35. This same Military tribunal will set special elections for Congress and this will include most positions, since most are members, associates or beneficiaries of the Khazarian Mafia and will be removed from office one way or another, either by voluntary surrender or arrest by the Provost Marshal's Office.
36. It is recognized beyond any reasonable doubt that most US National, State and Local elections have been plagued by vote-fraud, especially manipulation of electronic vote totals. All future voting will be by paper ballot only and will be hand-counted and hand tabulated with public observation allowed behind glass and

- all counting completely and fully video recorded to protect from fraud. All electronic voting machines will be declared illegal and taken out of service.
37. All Senators will be elected by each State legislature as was originally prescribed by the US Constitution.
 38. The Department of Education and HEW will be immediately phased out, with functions to be handled by individual States according to their own Laws. Every single US Department will be carefully examined. Those unnecessary or Unconstitutional will be eliminated and many streamlined and culled of all unnecessary functions. Many responsibilities will be transferred back to the individual States according to the principals defined in the US Constitution according to the Tenth Amendment.
 39. The fraudulent amendments, the Sixteenth and Seventeenth, which were never ratified, will be immediately canceled. The Federal Reserve Acts will be immediately cancelled, since it was never passed with a proper quorum. The Internal Revenue Service will be declared null and void because the Federal Reserve is recognized as a fraud perpetrated upon the We The People. A special Board of Taxation will be set up to consider Constitutionally allowed, proportioned taxes, excise taxes on imports with New Fair Trade Agreements and Tariffs and will coordinate efforts with the Government Accounting Office. The so-called national debt owed to the Federal Reserve System will be declared fraudulent, and null and void.
 40. Notice to Rothschild Khazarian Mafia kingpins: We the People know who you are by name; we know what you have done — all the espionage, and felonious and RICO crimes against We the People. We know about your sophisticated pedophile operations against American politicians, along with your massive illegal narcotics and weapons trafficking for illegal and massive profits. We The People have enough hard corroborated evidence against you to convict you beyond any reasonable doubt in any honest Federal Court of the land. But because there are none, as you have corrupted them all, We The People are setting up our own using Constitutional Law as our guide.
 41. You, the RKM, have fought a secret, asymmetrical war against We The People and all normal humanity that has existed in American Society with the intent to asset strip us of all our wealth, property and fruits of our labor, rob and murder, us of our God given freedoms, and reduce us to your chattel and slaves. We know about all your pedophile operations and murders of many children and massive human sex trafficking.
 42. For your crimes against this country and its people, you, the RKM will be made to pay a price and will find no sanctuary anywhere the World because We The People are going to expose you by name along with your specific Pedophile and Human Trafficking crimes and murders. For these crimes against We The People and humanity in general, You will be hunted down and captured so that you can no longer use your FIAT money power and pernicious usury to enslave us.
 43. You, the RKM, its chieftains, kingpins, cutouts and assets have hijacked and debased the major mass media at every level and placed many top newscasters and reporters on your payroll or the payroll of your cutouts. All six major mass media conglomerates have been judged to be illegal cartels/monopolies and will be completely broken up forever. Because of the importance of honest investigative reporting and news to We the People and the health of our American Society, false, paid-for reporting and cover-up or accessory to crimes against We the People will be considered a major crime henceforth.
 44. You, the RKM chieftains, kingpins, cutouts and assets have used secrecy, bribery, coercion and blackmail to stay in power. All your deeds and crimes and who you are will be fully exposed. Your reign of terror and imposed slavery is over, you will be extracted from power at every level, and all your takings and holding will be confiscated and clawed back from anywhere in the world they exist. You have worked hard to deny us our constitutional rights, and this can no longer be tolerated. The United States of America contained natural and human resources and wealth beyond measure which you have worked hard to extract from We The People and this will no longer be tolerated by you or anyone else.
 45. There will be no more secrecy in America or for you, the RKM and your organized crime syndicate. No more illegitimate criminal power in America or anywhere else in the World will be allowed even where you may attempt to escape to.
 46. We will route you, the RKM, its chieftains, kingpins, cutouts and assets out, and forever remove any and all of your influence from We the People and the United States of America, our Constitutional Republic.

47. You, the RKM, have used secrecy, bribery, coercion and blackmail to stay in power. All your deeds and who you are will be shouted from the rooftops of every American city and all your crimes will be fully exposed. Your reign of terror and imposed slavery is over and you will be extracted from power at every level and all your takings and holding will be confiscated and clawed back from anywhere in the world they exist. You have worked hard to deny us our constitutional right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness and this can no longer be tolerated. The United States of America contained natural and human resources and wealth beyond measure which you have worked hard to extract from We The People and this will no longer be tolerated by you or anyone else.
48. Should the President of the United States fail to sign this as an emergency Executive Order, the US High Military Command will be justified in seizing power and implementing this Declaration of War under their emergency powers provided by the US Constitution because infiltration and hijacking of America clearly constitutes foreign espionage against America, which triggers an actual national security emergency and the powers provided by the US Constitution to deal with it using the US Military. This espionage transfers full authority to the US Military High Command if the President of the United States fails to act, or if he is corrupted by the RKM or its partner the BCC/CIA to act, as required by Rule of Law and his Oath to uphold the US Constitution and Bill of Rights.

Agenda 21 is a non-binding, voluntarily implemented action plan of the United Nations with regard to sustainable development.^[1] It is a product of the Earth Summit (UN Conference on Environment and Development) held in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, in 1992. It is an action agenda for the UN, other multilateral organizations, and individual governments around the world that can be executed at local, national, and global levels. The "21" in Agenda 21 refers to the 21st Century. It has been affirmed and modified at subsequent UN conferences. The national focal point in the United States is the Division Chief for Sustainable Development and Multilateral Affairs, Office of Environmental Policy, Bureau of Oceans and International Environmental and Scientific Affairs, U.S. Department of State.^[12] A June 2012 poll of 1,300 United States voters by the American Planning Association found that 9% supported Agenda 21, 6% opposed it, and 85% thought they didn't have enough information to form an opinion. The United States is a signatory country to Agenda 21, but because Agenda 21 is a legally non-binding statement of intent and not a treaty, the United States Senate was not required to hold a formal debate or vote on it. It is therefore not considered to be law under Article Six of the United States Constitution. President George H. W. Bush was one of the 178 heads of government who signed the final text of the agreement at the Earth Summit in 1992,^{[14][15]} and in the same year Representatives Nancy Pelosi, Eliot Engel and William Broomfield spoke in support of United States House of Representatives Concurrent Resolution 353, supporting implementation of Agenda 21 in the United States.^[13] During the last decade, opposition to Agenda 21 has increased within the United States at the local, state, and federal levels.^[18] The Republican National Committee has adopted a resolution opposing Agenda 21, and the Republican Party platform stated that "We strongly reject the U.N. Agenda 21 as erosive of American sovereignty."^{[19][20]} Several state and local governments have considered or passed motions and legislation opposing Agenda 21.^{[4][13][21][22][23][24]} Alabama became the first state to prohibit government participation in Agenda 21.^[5] Many other states, including Arizona, are drafting, and close to passing legislation to ban Agenda 21.^[25] In the United States, over 528 cities are members of ICLEI, an international sustainability organization that helps to implement the Agenda 21 and Local Agenda 21 concepts across the world. The United States has nearly half of the ICLEI's global membership of 1,200 cities promoting sustainable development at a local level.^[9] The United States also has one of the most comprehensively documented Agenda 21 status reports.^[17] In response to the opposition, Don Knapp, U.S. spokesman for the ICLEI, has said "Sustainable development is not a top-down conspiracy from the U.N., but a bottom-up push from local governments".^[13] The Arizona Chamber of Commerce and Industry successfully lobbied against an anti-sustainable development bill in 2012, arguing "It would be bad for business" as it could drive away corporations that have embraced sustainable development

45.1 Agenda 21 In One Easy Lesson

- <http://americanpolicy.org/agenda21/>

Awareness of Agenda 21 and Sustainable Development is racing across the nation as citizens in community after community are learning what their city planners are actually up to. As awareness grows, I am receiving more and more calls for tools to help activists fight back. Many complain that elected officials just won't read detailed reports or watch long videos. "Can you give us something that is quick, and easy to read that we can hand out," I'm asked. So here it is. A one page, quick description of Agenda 21 that fits on one page. I've also included for the back side of your hand out a list of quotes for the perpetrators of Agenda 21 that should back up my brief descriptions. A word of caution, use this as a starter kit, but do not allow it to be your only knowledge of this very complex subject. To kill it you have to know the facts. Research, know your details; discover the NGO players in your community; identify who is victimized by the policies and recruit them to your fight; and then kill Agenda 21. That's how it must be done. The information below is only your first step. Happy hunting.

45.1.1 Sustainable Development?

According to its authors, the objective of sustainable development is to integrate economic, social and environmental policies in order to achieve reduced consumption, social equity, and the preservation and restoration of biodiversity. Sustainablits insist that every societal decision be based on environmental impact, focusing on three components; global land use, global education, and global population control and reduction.

45.1.2 Social Equity (Social injustice)

Social justice is described as the right and opportunity of all people "to benefit equally from the resources afforded us by society and the environment." Redistribution of wealth. Private property is a social injustice since not everyone can build wealth from it. National sovereignty is a social injustice. Universal health care is a social injustice. All part of Agenda 21 policy.

45.1.3 Economic Prosperity

Public Private Partnerships (PPP). Special dealings between government and certain, chosen corporations which get tax breaks, grants and the government's power of Eminent Domain to implement sustainable policy. Government-sanctioned monopolies.

45.1.4 Local Sustainable Development policies

Smart Growth, Wildlands Project, Resilient Cities, Regional Visioning Projects, STAR Sustainable Communities, Green jobs, Green Building Codes, "Going Green," Alternative Energy, Local Visioning, facilitators, regional planning, historic preservation, conservation easements, development rights, sustainable farming, comprehensive planning, growth management, consensus.

45.1.5 Who is behind it?

ICLEI – Local Governments for Sustainability (formally, International Council for Local Environmental Initiatives). Communities pay ICLEI dues to provide "local" community plans, software, training, etc. Addition groups include American Planning Association, The Renaissance Planning Group, International City/ County Management Group, aided by US Mayors Conference, National Governors Association, National League of Cities, National Association of County Administrators and many more private organizations and official government agencies. Foundation and government grants drive the process.

45.1.6 Where did it originate?

The term Sustainable Development was first introduced to the world in the pages a 1987 report (Our Common Future) produced by the United Nations World Commission on Environmental and Development, authored by Gro Harlem Brundtland, VP of the World Socialist Party. The term was first offered as official UN policy in 1992, in a document called UN Sustainable Development Agenda 21, issued at the UN's Earth Summit, today referred to simply as Agenda 21.

45.1.7 What gives Agenda 21 Ruling Authority?

More than 178 nations adopted Agenda 21 as official policy during a signing ceremony at the Earth Summit. US president George H.W. Bush signed the document for the US. In signing, each nation pledge to adopt the goals of Agenda 21. In 1993, President Bill Clinton, in compliance with Agenda 21, signed Executive Order #12852 to create the President's Council on Sustainable Development in order to "harmonize" US environmental policy with UN directives as outlined in Agenda 21. The EO directed all agencies of the Federal Government to work with state and local community governments in a joint effort "reinvent" government using the guidelines outlined in Agenda 21. As a result, with the assistance of groups like ICLEI, Sustainable Development is now emerging as government policy in every town, county and state in the nation.

45.1.8 Revealing Quotes From the Planners

"Agenda 21 proposes an array of actions which are intended to be implemented by EVERY person on Earth...it calls for specific changes in the activities of ALL people... Effective execution of Agenda 21 will REQUIRE a profound reorientation of ALL humans, unlike anything the world has ever experienced..." Agenda 21: The Earth Summit Strategy to Save Our Planet (Earthpress, 1993). Emphases – DR Urgent to implement – but we don't know what it is! "The realities of life on our planet dictate that continued economic development as we know it cannot be sustained...Sustainable development, therefore is a program of action for local and global economic reform – a program that has yet to be fully defined." The Local Agenda 21 Planning Guide, published by ICLEI, 1996. "No one fully understands how or even, if, sustainable development can be achieved; however, there is growing consensus that it must be accomplished at the local level if it is ever to be achieved on a global basis." The Local Agenda 21 Planning Guide, published by ICLEI, 1996.

45.1.9 Agenda 21 and Private Property

"Land...cannot be treated as an ordinary asset, controlled by individuals and subject to the pressures and inefficiencies of the market. Private land ownership is also a principal instrument of accumulation and concentration of wealth, therefore contributes to social injustice." From the report from the 1976 UN's Habitat I Conference. "Private land use decisions are often driven by strong economic incentives that result in several ecological and aesthetic consequences...The key to overcoming it is through public policy..." Report from the President's Council on Sustainable Development, page 112. "Current lifestyles and consumption patterns of the affluent middle class – involving high meat intake, use of fossil fuels, appliances, home and work air conditioning, and suburban housing are not sustainable." Maurice Strong, Secretary General of the UN's Earth Summit, 1992.

45.1.10 Reinvention of Government

"We need a new collaborative decision process that leads to better decisions, more rapid change, and more sensible use of human, natural and financial resources in achieving our goals." Report from the President's Council on Sustainable Development. "Individual rights will have to take a back seat to the collective." Harvey Ruvin, Vice Chairman, ICLEI. The Wildlands Project. "We must make this place an insecure and inhospitable place for Capitalists and their projects – we must reclaim the roads and plowed lands, halt dam construction, tear down existing dams, free shackled rivers and return to wilderness millions of tens of millions of acres or presently settled land.” Dave Foreman, Earth First.

45.1.11 What is not sustainable?

Ski runs, grazing of livestock, plowing of soil, building fences, industry, single family homes, paves and tarred roads, logging activities, dams and reservoirs, power line construction, and economic systems that fail to set proper value on the environment.” UN’s Biodiversity Assessment Report.

45.1.12 Hide Agenda 21’s UN roots from the people

“Participating in a UN advocated planning process would very likely bring out many of the conspiracy-fixated groups and individuals in our society... This segment of our society who fear ‘one-world government’ and a UN invasion of the United States through which our individual freedom would be stripped away would actively work to defeat any elected official who joined ‘the conspiracy’ by undertaking LA21. So we call our process something else, such as comprehensive planning, growth management or smart growth.” J. Gary Lawrence, advisor to President Clinton’s Council on Sustainable Development.

Mar 2012 - Pennsylvania Legislature recently adopted Act 13 of 2012 (House Bill 1950) to accelerate the extraction of natural gas from the Marcellus Shale deposit underlying much of Pennsylvania. Act 13 is but one of many efforts by the State to preempt people and their communities from making critical decisions for themselves – including decisions on fracking – and it’s why communities across Pennsylvania are now joining forces to fundamentally change how, and perhaps more importantly, for whom, our structures of law and government work. The legislature’s latest action to aid the gas corporations should come as no surprise. It’s part of a pattern that’s emerged over the years in which the legislature and State government work hand in hand to place the interests of corporations over and above our communities. We shouldn’t be surprised either that the new bill uses state preemptive powers to strip people – and their local governments – of the authority to ban or regulate natural gas extraction. Or further, that it empowers the state Public Utilities Commission (PUC) to override local ordinances that run counter to state laws that facilitate gas extraction. Act 13 also creates so-called “impact fees” – a cynical attempt to equate the health, safety, and welfare of our communities with the resurfacing of roads.

Act 13 punctuates the State’s priority to remove as much power as possible from those who are most impacted by gas extraction. Prior to its passage, the State had already all but eviscerated local control – allowing municipalities to use their zoning powers only to regulate the placement of surface well pads. Given that horizontal gas drilling enables corporations to reach gas deposits under protected zones in the municipality, describing well-pad zoning as a form of “local control” was a bad joke. Even “legal” zoning measures didn’t stop gas corporations from suing municipalities – such as South Fayette and Cecil Townships – when the corporations felt that even minimal zoning restrictions would interfere with their bottom line. This is nothing new. Time and again, the State government has stepped in to prevent our municipalities from protecting the health, safety, and welfare of their residents in the face of unrelenting corporate assaults. In the past decade alone, the State has eliminated local control over corporate water withdrawals, corporate use of genetically modified seeds, corporate factory farms, and corporate dumping of sewage sludge on our farmland.

Granting power to a state agency – in this case, the PUC – to overrule local ordinances isn’t new either. When Pennsylvania municipalities began enacting local bans to stop corporate factory farms and corporate sludging of farmland, the State legislature stepped in on behalf of the agribusiness industry – much as it has now stepped in on behalf of the gas industry. Then as now, the legislature empowered a state agency to override local decision making by communities – decision making aimed at protecting the community’s health, safety, and welfare. That legislation – Act 38, better known as “ACRE” – was adopted in 2005. ACRE empowers the State Attorney General to represent agribusiness corporations against municipalities that dare enact local laws challenging corporate farming. The Attorney General (Tom Corbett) has already sued nearly a dozen municipalities under ACRE, including rural Packer Township in Carbon County. In that case, the Attorney General is defending the “right” of corporations to override the community’s right to protect itself from sewage sludge being dumped on its farmland. The bitter irony – and the proof that Pennsylvania’s government has been further privatized – is that the Attorney General, an elected official, is turning around and suing the very folks who elected him, on behalf of corporations.

- http://articles.philly.com/2013-01-16/news/36355296_1_corbett-administration-marcellus-shale-pennfuture

JAN. 18, 2011 - just a day before Gov. Corbett took the oath of office - when, without warning, trucks started rolling one after another into a once-abandoned industrial site in the Susquehanna River town of Sunbury, Pa. At the end of that day, stunned and angry neighbors counted 27 large dump trucks on their small residential street, filled with the debris from gas-drilling rigs in the Marcellus Shale. Some of the trucks were leaking liquids, said the neighbors, including Cora Campbell, who recalled that "it smelled like a combination of diesel fuel and dirt." For months, Campbell and others in the history-rich town of 10,000, an hour north of Harrisburg, and environmental activists pressed the new owner of the site, the logistics firm Moran Industries, and regulators from the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), to find out what was happening at the property and how it could handle so much fracking waste without environmental permits. But there was something else that Sunbury residents didn't find out until long after DEP sided with Moran Industries: Its subsidiary's contract with an interstate railroad, signed three months after the waste-transfer station opened, now meant that it was exempt from Pennsylvania permitting laws. It turned out that the company's owner, John Moran Jr., wasn't just a major political donor who'd given more than $100,000 to Corbett's gubernatorial campaign, but he also had gifted more than $2,400 for Corbett's personal travel, including hosting the governor and his wife on a yacht off Rhode Island in July 2011. The trips weren't revealed until last fall, in an amendment to an earlier Corbett ethics-disclosure form. Corbett and his aides have strongly denied that his friendship and his personal gifts from the head of Moran Industries had any impact on his policies, or on any actions by regulators in the Corbett administration. Indeed, the GOP governor has made reducing regulations on business a cornerstone of his policies, and he famously urged lawmakers in March 2011: "Let's make Pennsylvania the Texas of the natural-gas boom." Still, Sunbury residents and environmental activists are troubled by the appearances in a tangle of money, politics, friendship and environmental risk in a central Pennsylvania region that Hollywood now might call a "promised land" - pitting fracking jobs and profits against the faded dignity of a small, scenic Rust Belt town. "The broader issue is that during the period when Moran was traveling with the governor, his company had much to gain from favorable interpretation from the DEP of this facility," said Mark Szybist, a Wilkes-Barre-based lawyer for the environmental group PennFuture who has been following the saga from the start. 'A gift from God' John Moran Jr., the head of logistics, warehousing and trucking company Moran Industries, is something of an evangelist for fracking, calling gas drilling in Pennsylvania "a gift from God" and traveling on a state-sponsored trade mission to Germany and France touting the Marcellus Shale. On Sept. 30, 2010, a vice president for Moran Industries, Jeffrey Stroehmann, wrote to John Hanger, outgoing DEP commissioner in the Democratic administration of then-Gov. Ed Rendell, that the accumulation of drill cuttings - solid waste created by fracking deep into the Marcellus Shale - was becoming a crisis for large gas companies. He urged that their proposed waste site - loading trucked-in waste onto trains in Sunbury for shipment to an Ohio dump - be allowed to operate without a state permit under a loophole exemption that Congress granted to railroads in 2008.

- http://articles.philly.com/2011-02-26/news/28632503_1_pollution-corbett-administration-public-comment-period

Feb 26, 2011 HARRISBURG - The Corbett administration has for the second time in two weeks rescinded a Rendell-era environmental rule that imposed tougher restrictions on natural-gas drilling. The administration's latest action applies to air pollution from machinery at Marcellus Shale drilling sites. Under the criteria Gov. Ed Rendell set out in December, smaller sources of air pollution, such as exhaust from compressor engines, were to be considered as "one large source of air pollution." As such, drillers would be required to install pollution controls for that equipment. Environmentalists say allowing smaller sources of pollution to be considered individually would likely exempt them from regulation. "By rescinding the policy, DEP gives up a valuable tool for evaluating and reducing air pollution," said Jan Jarrett, president of PennFuture (Run by Felon Robert Asher), a statewide environmental advocacy group. Last week, the Corbett administration rescinded a policy enacted in October that required the state Department of Conservation and Natural Resources to perform an environmental-impact analysis before any drilling in state forests and parkland where the state does not own the mineral rights under the land. Jarrett accused the Corbett administration of "bending over backward" to accommodate the gas-drilling industry's "wish list."

- <https://stateimpact.npr.org/pennsylvania/2014/05/23/corbett-lifts-moratorium-on-gas-leasing-of-state-park-and-forest-land/>

Governor Corbett issued an executive order today overturning a 2010 state moratorium on new oil and gas leasing of public park and forest land. The administration calls the executive order a restrictive approach to expanding drilling. It allows companies to extract gas horizontally from wells located on adjacent private land or in areas of state forests where leases already exist. Former Governor Ed Rendell, a Democrat, leased about 130,000 acres of state forest land to gas companies, before he instituted a moratorium on future leasing during his last year in office. "With this executive order, I am directing that the commonwealth maintain a moratorium on any additional gas leasing of [Department of Conservation and Natural Resources] lands that involves long-term surface disturbance, such as placing well pads, roads or pipelines in the newly-leased areas," Corbett said in a statement.

45.2.1 Impact of PA Act 13 Gas Fracking

- <http://www.marcellusoutreachbutler.org/the-impact-of-act-13-hb-1950.html>

The following is a direct quote from PA Supreme Court Chief Justice Ronald Castille in his opinion overturning major parts of Act 13. "By any responsible account, the exploitation of the Marcellus Shale Formation will produce a detrimental effect on the environment, on the people, their children, and the future generations, and potentially on the public purse, perhaps rivaling the environmental effects of coal extraction." - PA Supreme Court Chief Justice Ronald Castille

45.2.1.1 The Impact of Act 13 (HB 1950) on Pennsylvania's People and Communities

Although most mainstream media attention has focused on the revenue from 'impact fees', the law's other provisions will more profoundly influence fracking's impact.

45.2.1.1.1 Loss of Local Control

- Act 13 does unprecedented harm to the ability of local governments to protect their citizens and communities, undermining traditional and court-upheld zoning powers to manage where and when drilling will occur.
- It allows the state to prevent localities from attempting to regulate natural gas drilling. Section 3302
- It also strikes down any locality's previously adopted ordinance to regulate or ban natural gas drilling. Section 3303
- Local governments will now be powerless to keep large Marcellus wells and wastewater impoundments more than 300 feet from homes, schools, churches, hospitals, and businesses.
- The Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission (PUC), which has little expertise in zoning matters, will be given the authority to invalidate any local ordinance that conflicts with oil and gas operations.
- It takes away the legal right for any municipality to challenge a permit decision by the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) that the local government believes is not in the best interest of its community.
- Finally, this law forces all localities to allow natural gas operations in all zoning districts, including residential areas. Section 3304

45.2.1.1.2 Lack of Full Disclosure of Chemicals and Medical Silence

- The industry can still claim multiple harmful fracking fluids as a "trade secret" and not disclose what the chemicals are or how much is pumped into the ground. Section 3222(b.2)
- A provision does allow health providers access to these "trade secrets" to treat a patient, but prevents the healthcare worker from ever sharing knowledge of the harmful fracking fluids. The physician may not reveal industry's 'secret' information in order to treat another suffering patient, or to raise public health concerns, or to counsel asymptomatic patients about their own ongoing exposures. Section 3222.1(b)(11)

45.2.1.1.3 Less Than Impressive Impact Fees

- Impact fees are only on wells, not pipelines, compressor stations, processing plants, etc. — tying the amount of those fees to the market price of natural gas. Each county must take its own legislative action before the defined 'impact fees' would be levied upon operations in that county; counties may use ‘impact fee’ revenue only for designated ‘purposes associated with natural gas production and must report on those expenditures to the Public Utility Commission (PUC).

- A municipality found to have passed an ordinance that violates the terms of Act 13 will be ineligible to receive money from the impact fee until the ordinance is rescinded.
- Part of the ‘impact fees’ will be used to fund state-level initiatives, including infrastructure improvements and hazardous site cleanup, but also programs to encourage conversion of vehicles to natural gas and to subsidize new projects such as refineries and chemical plants using gas.
- The impact fee is optional for counties. Drilling companies could easily pressure the counties not to adopt the fee. It would take the quick approval of municipalities totaling a majority of a county’s population to override a county that does not adopt the fee

45.2.1.1.4 Weak Setbacks

- A driller can put a fracking well pad just 300 feet from a house. That’s a football field away. Section 3304(b)(5.1)
- Drillers can also frack a well only 300 feet from streams, wetlands, and other bodies of water. Section 3215(b)
- An oil and gas impoundment (“frack pond”) can be placed in any residential district, just 300 feet from a house. Section 3304(b)(6)

45.2.1.1.5 Placement of Compressor Stations, Gas Processing Plants and Pipelines

- The industry must place loud compressor stations near pipelines to pump the gas across the country.
- A compressor station can now be placed just 200 feet from a property line, and 750 feet from a house — and can operate at 60 decibels 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Section 3304(b)(7)
- Compression stations can be located anywhere, even in residential districts. Section 3304(b)(7)
- Municipalities must authorize gas processing plants for use in agricultural districts. Section 3304(b)(8)
- The bill allows pipeline construction in all areas, including residential zones.

45.2.1.1.6 Missing in Act 13 – Protections for Our Water and Air

- This law requires drillers only to replace, not clean up, private and public water supplies they contaminate. So if the gas drillers pollute a water supply, they only need to bring in the water buffalo or other replacement water, not clean up the mess.
- It makes it impossible for either DEP or citizens to track the generation, transportation, treatment, and disposal of frack water and other wastewater.
- The bill is silent on the growing problem of air pollution from Marcellus Shale drilling operations except for requiring gas companies to report their air pollution emissions to DEP.

45.2.2 Marcellus Shale Primer

- <http://www.marcellusshaleformation.com/>

The Marcellus Shale Formation is the largest source of domestic natural gas yet discovered in the United States. Here are some facts, maps and figures about this incredible resource beneath U.S. soil. Named for the town of Marcellus New York, where the shale reaches the surface, it is a Devonian age (roughly 390 million years old) member of a geological structure known as the Hamilton group. It formed when Devonian age seas, covered much of North America. It is mildly radioactive since it contains a small amount of uranium and produces gamma radiation from decaying organic matter. No significant amount of this radioactivity is released in the natural gas produced from the shale. Natural gas is the reason for all of the excitement surrounding the Marcellus shale. Over millions of years the mud that eventually became the Marcellus shale was deposited on the deep, oxygen deprived seafloor. It contained marine organic matter including algae, and other organisms in great abundance. Due to the lack of oxygen this organic matter was slow to decompose. Eventually more sediment covered it and this rich muck became covered yet again by layers of more sediment that was rich in the exoskeletons of marine organisms (calcium carbonate) which later became limestone. The Marcellus formation, over much of it's extent, is trapped between the Onondoga limestone underneath the shale, and capped by the Tully limestone on top. These impervious layers of limestone have trapped a great quantity of natural gas inside the shale. The natural gas is a result of thermal (thermogenic) and biological (biogenic) origin. It is trapped in the fissures, cracks and pores of the shale in great abundance. The problem up until recently was been how to get this natural gas out of the tight, non porous shale so that it can be used. The geological formation known as the Marcellus shale was known about for decades but only recently was the technology available to extract natural gas from shale. While the geological aspect of the formation is fascinating, the primary focus of this site will be to explore the natural gas producing potential of this vast shale formation and the impact of this discovery on the region in which it is located and the U.S economy. Shale thickness runs from 900 feet beneath New Jersey to around 40 feet across the border in Canada. In West Virginia, where much new drilling activity is located the thickness is in the 200 foot range. There may be as much as 4,359 trillion cubic feet of natural gas trapped in the formation according to University of Pennsylvania geologist Terry Engelder. Of that approximately thirty percent may be recoverable. This alone could supply the natural gas needs of the United States for twenty years or more.

Up until about fifteen years ago most oil and gas wells were drilled as vertical holes down through rock formations like the Marcellus. This technology worked fine for highly porous reservoirs made up of sandstone or fractured limestone. A vertical gas or oil well could drain an area of about ten to forty acres, on average, over a period of time. Shale however is a dense rock which does not give up much fluid or gas from a vertical hole drilled through it. The Marcellus shale can be over 900 feet thick in some areas but even this is not enough profile of the shale to release a significant amount of gas. What horizontal drilling accomplishes is a hole drilled up to several thousand feet horizontally across the shale. After horizontal drilling has been done a hydraulic fracturing job or frac job is done on the newly drilled well. Because the technology is new and non typical, gas from shale formations is referred to as "unconventional natural gas". In the Barnett shale, near Fort Worth Texas, oil and gas companies began to perfect the technology of horizontal or directional drilling in the late 1980's. As the technology evolved tools such as directional mud motors and LWD or "logging while drilling" equipment which allows for the navigation of directional drilling assemblies, became more reliable and affordable. Now horizontal drilling is being used in shale formations across the United States. This unconventional gas revolution has made natural gas one of the most affordable forms of energy and will no doubt be a part of the solution to reducing foreign oil imports. The second key to the development of the Marcellus shale formation is a technology called hydraulic fracturing. After casing or heavy pipe has been run into the newly drilled hole to line it, extremely high pressure pumps are hooked up and fluids (mostly water and sand) are forced down into the shale to open cracks and fissures so more natural gas can flow out of the formation. Hydraulic fracturing is the primary completion process used in the Marcellus. It has been the subject of controversy lately, with environmental groups protesting the drilling of new wells in the environmentally sensitive Chesapeake Bay watershed among other areas. Wells in the Marcellus formation are as deep as 9000 ft and the productive zone is far below any water aquifers. A properly cased gas well, lined with thick steel pipe and cemented into place, will ensure a safe frac job. State and federal agencies monitor the process of casing and testing new wells and hydraulic fracturing. The source of contention among environmental groups is the number of chemicals pumped into the formation along with frac water and sand. Up to fifty percent of this fluid may remain in the ground however it may take millions of years for any of it to migrate upward to water bearing zones. If proper safety measures are undertaken hydraulic fracturing can be a safe means of producing Marcellus shale gas wells. For a video of a Marcellus shale frac job

Currently most of the horizontal drilling activity is located in West Virginia, Pennsylvania north east toward New York. The "fairway" as it has been described by Penn State geoscientist Dr. Terry Engelder, runs roughly through the center of Pennsylvania and into southeastern New York. The thickest parts of the Marcellus Shale are of the highest interest to oil and gas companies because there is a higher quantity of shale and also because there is a higher amount of Total Organic Carbon (TOC) in the shale. Higher total organic carbon can translate to more gas trapped in the shale. Former Pennsylvania governor Ed Rendell planned to receive over 37 million dollars from leases on state forest lands.

45.3 Agenda 21 SmartMeter Technology

45.3.1 Smart Meters Agenda 21 In Your PA Home via Exelon-PECO PA Act-129

- <http://gulagbound.com/17534/agenda-21-outsmarting-america/>

Coming soon to your home unless you stop them – and you may never even get a choice – the insidious Smart Meter and the end of privacy as we know it. People don't want these Big Brother devices installed and watching/recording their every move. Things are about to get 'real' between the government/Agenda 21 pushers and We The People. And if a fight comes, my money is on the Tea Party – they are a scrappy bunch and freedom lovers to boot. The dance has already begun in certain places around the nation. In Marin, California, residents are slugging it out with PG&E and the FCC, UCLA's epidemiology department and the California Public Utilities Commission. Looks like the Nanny State spared no expense in the fight to control Americans and I do mean 'control.' From Marin Magazine: "Smart" gas and electricity meters, so called because they use wireless signals to transmit up-to-the-minute usage data rather than requiring visits from meter readers, have been a source of controversy in California since PG&E began installing them in late 2009. Concerns about privacy and accuracy have created an upswell of opposition from Bakersfield to Santa Cruz, but perhaps none as forceful as that in Marin. Here, educated and experienced activists—many of whom have been fighting against cell phone towers and other sources of electromagnetic radiation for a decade or more—have made smart meters the latest cause célèbre. And their message, which hinges on both health and individual autonomy, is catching on. Cotati, Bolinas and Novato have joined Fairfax in opposing the meters, as have the Marin Association of Realtors and the county Board of Supervisors.

Yet PG&E doesn't need permission from communities to install the meters. In fact, 100,000 of the 216,000 smart meters slated for Marin are already in place. Statewide, PG&E has installed nearly 8 million of 10 million meters planned and expects to wrap up the project by early 2012. Similar rollouts are happening nationwide, with PG&E leading the way. So much for getting your permission. They are going to cram Agenda 21 and Smart Meters right down America's throat whether they want it or not. But before you think these were conservatives objecting, look again. It was primarily liberals. I do believe that we have found a meeting place in the middle – both sides hate big, controlling government. Notice I did not use the word Progressive, as the very definition of Progressivism is a love for big government. And while the liberal residents in California are concerned for their bodily health, conservatives are concerned for their Constitutional health, rights and freedoms. Both want their privacy. Agenda 21 and Smart Meters are bad for either cause. Here is a great video that explains more about Smart Meters:

- They individually identify electrical devices inside the home and record when they are operated causing invasion of privacy.
- They monitor household activity and occupancy in violation of rights and domestic security.
- They transmit wireless signals which may be intercepted by unauthorized and unknown parties. Those signals can be used to monitor behavior and occupancy and they can be used by criminals to aid criminal activity against the occupants.
- Data about occupant's daily habits and activities are collected, recorded and stored in permanent databases which are accessed by parties not authorized or invited to know and share that private data.
- Those with access to the smart meter databases can review a permanent history of household activities complete with calendar and time-of-day metrics to gain a highly invasive and detailed view of the lives of the occupants.
- Those databases may be shared with, or fall into the hands of criminals, blackmailers, law enforcement, private hackers of wireless transmissions, power company employees, and other unidentified parties who may act against the interests of the occupants under metered surveillance.
- “Smart Meters” are, by definition, surveillance devices which violate Federal and State wiretapping laws by recording and storing databases of private and personal activities and behaviors without the consent or knowledge of those people who are monitored.
- It is possible for example, with analysis of certain “Smart Meter” data, for unauthorized and distant parties to determine medical conditions, sexual activities, physical locations of persons within the home, vacancy patterns and personal information and habits of the occupants.

In the name of reducing energy costs, the government wants to replace all meters with these creepy Smart Meters. The meters will cause energy bills to ‘necessarily skyrocket’ (wait, where have I heard that before?) and have a whole set of nifty nasty side effects such as failing systems and the opening of your personal information to hackers. The Feds are spending a ton of money on this conversion process and ask yourself, why is that? It's obviously not to save money as the costs are astronomical. It's also not to save the environment as it virtually does nothing to help it. But it does give government control over you – when and for how long to shut down your power, how much you have to pay for said power, usage monitoring, etc. This is all being done in part to catch the smallest of entrepreneurs who work from home to force them to get business licenses and submit to oversight by the government, with the added bennie of forcing many of them out of business. This is the Progressive groundwork to drastically raise the cost of energy, raise taxes and fees and to box Americans in, corralling them with judgments over their income, credit ratings, habits, etc. It's a Marxist's dream come true and the ultimate nightmare for freedom-loving Americans. How do you like Obama now America? Time for a do-over in 2012 – if we get that far.

Many people believe that Pennsylvania's best days are behind us and that the business climate in Pennsylvania cannot and will not improve. I know that this isn't the case because every day I talk with business leaders, elected officials and candidates that are dedicated to improving Pennsylvania. Since 2007, Pennsylvania has lost 217,000 private sector jobs but has added 13,500 government jobs. Our commonwealth has fallen to a bottom five rating for job growth and overall business environment. The time to watch and wait is over and the time to act is now. The Pennsylvania Future Fund is dedicated to restoring Pennsylvania's economy by supporting elected officials and candidates that understand that the strength of our economy lies within the economic spirit of the Commonwealth's entrepreneurs. In addition to candidates, the Pennsylvania Future Fund supports local grassroots organizations and candidate development programs like the Anne Annstine program. No matter the political environment, the Pennsylvania Future Fund will continue to support the election of candidates who share its member's vision for Pennsylvania's Future – A future in which Pennsylvania's business and commerce will grow strong. I hope that you will continue to view the PA Future Fund website and consider joining as a member if you are not already. Thank you again for your support, -Sincerely, Bob Asher Chairman (Convicted Felon in Budd Dwyer Case).

45.3.2.1 Penn Future Comments on House Bill 2200 Act-129

Overview House Bill 2200 is landmark energy conservation legislation that will save families and businesses money and create jobs. It will move Pennsylvania to the national forefront of the clean energy economy, protect our environment, and reduce the need to build new power plants and transmission lines. The bill creates new electricity conservation programs in each utility service territory that would give business and residential consumers the tools to save about 20 percent on their electric bills. Without such programs, demand for electricity will increase at the current rate, about 1.5 percent each year.

House Bill 2200

- Creates conservation programs in all parts of Pennsylvania to reduce electricity use by 2.5 percent of the projected 2012 total demand. This goal is to be met by 2013.
- Requires a minimum reduction in peak demand of 4 percent of current levels by May 31, 2012. Peak demand drives the need for more power lines and power plants.
- Ensures that every electricity customer will receive a smart meter within ten years. Smart meters are a vital tool that empowers families and businesses to manage their energy use. Users not only save money for themselves, but also for all customers by reducing peak demand.
- Gives all customers the choice of three pricing plans: their current plan based on an average rate; a rate that differentiates between peak and off-peak periods; and an hourly rate. Customers could stay with their traditional bill with the average price or select a pricing option that would enable them to save money by moving consumption to cheaper times of the day.

How will the legislation help consumers and businesses save money?

The legislation creates programs in all parts of Pennsylvania that save energy and lower electric bills such as:

- Replacement of inefficient lighting and HVAC equipment in the commercial sector;

- Incentives to families for the purchase of high efficiency appliances, air conditioning, lighting, furnaces and boilers;
- New ENERGY STAR homes that use 30 percent less energy than traditional homes. Experience nationwide has shown that such energy efficiency programs can help electricity consumers reduce energy bills by 20 to 30 percent. In other states, some businesses have realized 60 percent reductions. Such savings are vital during a time of sharply rising energy prices.

45.3.2.2 How will the legislation help our economy?

Energy efficiency programs reduce the cost of living and the cost of doing business in Pennsylvania by helping all classes of consumers save electricity. Conserving a kilowatt-hour of electricity costs less than 3 cents. Building new power plants and power lines or buying a kilowatt-hour of electricity in the wholesale market costs about 7 to 10 cents per kilowatt-hour. Conservation, therefore, saves money. The savings achieved from lower electric bills and avoided new generation will be injected into the economy. If Pennsylvania went beyond the goals of House Bill 2200 to offset all electric demand growth with energy conservation, the state could achieve a net-savings between $9 and $12 billion dollars by avoiding the need to build more power plants and transmission lines as shown in a recently released report, Building Pennsylvania's Energy Future: Efficiency Means Real Gains for Security, the Economy, and the Environment

- <http://www.pennfuture.org/UserFiles/PDFs/BuildingPennsylvaniasEnergyFutureFinalReport.pdf>

A strong commitment to energy efficiency can also attract a whole new sector of companies and jobs. Thousands of jobs will be created in energy conservation companies. Without any Commitment to energy efficiency in the state, jobs in the region are flowing to neighboring states.

45.3.2.3 What will happen to electric rates and our electric reliability if this bill is not passed?

If Pennsylvania does nothing to reduce its electricity consumption, our state will have to make room for at least 12 new 300 megawatt power plants – complete with high costs of construction, human health costs and increased global warming pollution. Hundreds of miles of new towers and transmission lines will have to be built, and we will be subject to volatile fuel prices. All told, business as usual — with electricity demand growing by 1.5 percent annually and no statewide conservation program— will cost $17 billion in capital, fuel, and other costs associated with meeting increases in electricity demand. How will the program work? The Public Utility Commission (PUC) would be required to conduct a competitive bidding process to select an independent program administrator. The program administrator will enter into a performance-based contract with the PUC and develop energy efficiency and demand side programs that vendors will compete to provide. The programs must achieve the required savings set forth in House Bill 2200, be deemed cost-effective and must target each customer class (residential, commercial, industrial) across every electric service territory in Pennsylvania. The programs will open up an entirely new set of jobs for Pennsylvanians across the state, part of the new clean energy economy. The independent program administrator model is currently used in several states, including Maine, New Jersey, Oregon and Vermont. Vermont's administrator, Efficiency Vermont, has been highly successful, cutting Vermont's electric energy demand growth by 0.9 percent annually over the past three years.

45.3.2.4 What are the benefits of smart meters?

Smart meters allow customers to know the cost of electricity at the time they are using it. Customers who shift a portion of their demand to non-peak periods such as evenings not only save themselves money and energy, but also reduce prices for everyone. Providing electricity at peak demand periods is extremely expensive. A one percent reduction in peak demand during the highest peak demand times can cut the market price by ten percent. Reducing peak demand reduces the chances of blackouts and keeps wholesale prices down. Smart meters provide many benefits for utilities. For example, PPL, Inc. installed smart meters in every business and residence in its service territory at a time when rates were capped because the devices were cost effective. Smart meters save utilities money by immediately identifying service outages and allowing fast restoration, identifying theft of service, and reducing billing costs and disputes.

45.3.3 EXELON-PECO PA ACT-129 Activities

Exelon-Peco has a requirement to be compliant with ACT-129 with the Installation of Smart Meters within the Service Area in Southeastern Pennsylvania. The internal PECO Smart Meter product evaluation concluded to utilize three Smart Meters within the Southeastern PA Service Area. In this evaluation, PECO presented to the PUC three Smart Meters to be installed here (Sensus, Flexall and Landis+Gyr). All of these meters have caused fires, extensive property damage and loss of life to properties on which these products have been installed. The Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission (PUC) has the authority to allow PA utility companies to terminate customer power services for refusing to permit Exelon-Peco to install Smart Meters onto homes.

- (PA PUC Ignores Concerns for Public Safety) The PA PUC Ruling ignored all concerns for Product Safety and hence these products are not ACT-129 Compliant.
- (PA PUC disallows Customer Representation at the Hearing) The PA PUC Ruling denies customers option to be present at hearings to present concerns for the safety of property and life. They are ruling against PA Citizens to be compliant with Act-129 giving the customers the choice to install the Smart Meter or Permit PECO-Exelon to terminate customer power services.
- (Exelon-PECO Fails to Disclose to Customers Risks) PECO's Legal Counsel misinforms customers as to the safety of the Landis+Gyr SmartMeter. Exelon-Peco assures customers the Landis+Gyr meter is safe and has no issues. However, PECO installed the Landis+Gyr Smartmeter into an apartment complex in Bensalem PA in Feb 2014. The Apartment Complex sustained extensive damage from the fire. The Fire Marshall in his report attributed the fire due to a defective Landis+Gyr Smart meter. He said the product itself was the cause of the fire not the installation. Hence PECO misinformed me as to the safety of the Landis+Gyr Smart Meter. This resulted in Neglect on the Part of PECO to properly inform me and many other Exelon/PECO customers the risks involved.

- (PECO's Legal Counsel Improperly represented Company Customer Reimbursement Process) PECO's Legal counsel lies to customers providing false assurances to customers that PECO will properly assist with Financial losses that may occur due to installation of their SmartMeters.
- (Exelon PECO's Smart Meter is not compliant with ACT-129) PECO must be ACT-129 Compliant. However ACT-129 cites that for PECO customers who wish to install Solar Power into their properties, they are required to provide Smart Meters that a single bi-directional meter for interfacing to alternate power sources such as Solar Energy. (See Enclosed Article "Smart Meters finally available in PECO Territory"). PECO have failed to understand and/or properly disclose that PECO's Smart Meters are not even compliant with ACT-129).
- (Issues of Public Corruption and Integrity with respect to ACT-129) This issue is within two areas Internal to Exelon/PECO and Governmental Corruption within Pennsylvania's Legislature and PUC Leadership. The issues here concern the integrity and motivations for the demand to be ACT-129 compliant by all PA Citizens. These issues result in PA Citizens property and safety being put at risk for the financial benefit of special interests. I ask the PUC to realize these issues of public corruption extend all the way into the leadership within the PUC itself. I ask that the PUC understand the tremendous financial benefits that will be provided to these parties to force all PA Citizens to have no opt-out available to customers. Part of the role of the PUC is to represent the interests of Pennsylvania Citizens with respect of those of major Multi-Billion Firms whose primary motive is private profit over public concerns.

PECO was merged into Exelon. This was due primarily to the efforts of Felon PA Sencor Vince Fumo. In a pay to place situation. Hence a Chicago Based Business obtained control of Power Services in Southeastern PA. Note Also Felon Fumo worked closely with the Bucks County Republican Party PA Senator Tomlinson (Bensalem PA-BuckGOP.org) and his understudy was prior Lt. Gov Cawley who was the leader of the PA PUC. As I understand at the Present time he is still a PUC Commissioner. My concern here is his bias against my appeal due to Cawley's potential alignment with the special interests. This was exhibited again by Cawley (BucksGOP.org) during the attempt to privatize the Philadelphia Gas Works (PGW). The concern here is the pay to play situations with respect to ACT-129/Exelon-PECO activities. Exelon purchased the interests of Vivendi from Felon Edgar Bronfman Jr. Bronfman family is directly tied to the Chicago Syndicate since the Capone Era. Vivendi was directly owned by the interests of the Chicago Outfit and now a Chicago Based Business owns the firm.

Pennsylvania's former Governor Tom Ridge is on the Board of Directors of Exelon-PECO (Ridge Global www.ridgeglobal.com). Ridge rose to Power in Pennsylvania due to support via the BucksGOP.org. Ridge's Power Brokers were Herb Barnes and Convicted Felon Robert Asher, (Budd Dwyer Case), who is now PA's GOP National Committeeman (BucksGOP.org). Felon Asher made a fortune (PA Future Fund) with the Natural Gas deals in PA. Here again, the PA Legislature ruled against PA's local government to have proper representation with respect to Natural Gas Drilling concerns.

- http://www.puc.state.pa.us/filing_resources/issues_laws_regulations/act_129_information.aspx

The PA PUC Commission is actively involved in the implementation process for Act 129 of 2008. On Oct. 15, 2008, Governor Rendell signed HB 2200 into law as Act 129 of 2008, with an effective date of Nov. 14, 2008. The Act expands the Commission's oversight responsibilities and imposes new requirements on electric distribution companies (EDCs), with the overall goal of reducing energy consumption and demand.

The Act adds several new sections to, and amends several existing sections of the Public Utility Code. The Commission will implement the Act in phases. The first phase will deal with the Commission's obligation to adopt an energy efficiency and conservation (EE&C) program by Jan. 15, 2009. Subsequent phases of the Commission's Act 129 implementation process will address EDC and default service provider responsibilities; conservation service providers; smart meter technology; time-of-use rates; real-time pricing plans; default service procurement; market misconduct; alternative energy sources; and cost recovery.

45.3.6 Hazards of Exelon-Peco Smart Meters Installations.

Here is a case analysis of the issues with PECO Smart Meters

I would like to thank Representative Dave Reed and Kerry Benninghoff for giving me this opportunity to present information on an extremely important issue, smart meter fires. Smart meters continue to cause fires, home explosions and power surges, causing major destruction to homes, businesses and lives. This is an example of what happened to a home in Yardley, PA. Mary was initially given a Sensus smart meter in January despite the fact that this smart meter had been recalled two weeks earlier. A few minutes after the smart meter was installed, the homeowner heard an explosion. The lights in her house exploded, her computer exploded, her refrigerator and all other appliances exploded, and the computer surge protector melted onto the floor. As a result of this explosion, her walls and floors needed to be replaced, as well as all the wiring. Her heater needed to be replaced. The microwave and double oven also needed to be replaced. In February, while Mary's house was being repaired, she was given a Flexall Smart Meter. This smart meter also exploded. As a consequence of this smart meter explosion, she had no electricity to her home, which resulted in basement flooding due to frozen pipes. Tragically, her house sustained major structural damage because of the installation of these smart meters. And this is just one case. There are thirty additional cases. Electrically initiated fires can be caused by old wiring as well as new wiring. This and other smart meter fires could have been prevented if the roll-out of smart meters had been discontinued. If the smart meter roll-out continues, more homes and lives will be destroyed, as was the case in California and Canada, where deaths occurred as a result of smart meter fires. You might think that homeowner's insurance would cover smart meter damage, but that is not the case. Insurance companies consider smart meter technology advanced and therefore will not cover damages if they feel homes are not smart meter-compliant. For a home to be smart complaint, the home needs to be completely rewired so that it is compliant with the demands of the smart grid. It is prohibitively expensive for the hard-working public to make their homes smart compliant. Houses that are currently up-to-code are no longer considered to be up-to-code by the PUC, electric companies, grid subcontractors and insurance companies once a smart meter is placed in the home because smart meters are built with future technologies in mind and are not built to communicate with existing home technology. Given that the grid modernization technology sphere is dynamic and rapidly evolving, our homes will never be smart meter compliant. It is an unreasonable expectation placed on consumers by the utility companies, PUC, insurance companies and the government to require our homes to be smart compliant. In addition, when PA adopted the smart grid program, Underwriters Laboratories stated that "the meters are owned by the electric companies, while the consumers own and are responsible for the meter box and consumers are responsible for any damage that results from fires, short circuits and power surges." This means that all the responsibility is placed on the homeowner. Unfortunately, the government, PUC and electric companies never discussed this responsibility with homeowners. And through HB 2200 and Act 129, citizens are forced to comply with the demands of the grid by accepting a smart meter, without being aware that these smart meters may cause home fires. The electric companies know that they can continue to roll- out smart meters because they will not be responsible for the fires due to smart grid program policies. And the insurances companies know they will not have to pay for fire damages because the smart meter grid program puts all the responsibility on the homeowner. So who is responsible? The responsibility lies with every person who does nothing to stop the roll-out of these smart meters. The responsibility for the fires and the devastation caused by smart meters is in your hands. Unfortunately, the individuals who lack an understanding of smart meters and the smart grid are the same individuals who have the most to lose - the citizens of Pennsylvania.

Well, homeowners do not want to be responsible for the horrific consequences of a smart meter fire, either. We did not ask for these meters and we were not made aware of the consequences of installing these meters. I guarantee that no one would want a smart meter if they knew that they can cause fires and deaths. Also, as stated earlier, homes are not adapted for smart meter technology. Smart meters are not UL-Certified. The Underwriters Laboratories has indicated that only consumer products need to be UL-Certified. A smart meter is considered a “utility product,” sold only to utility companies, so they are not required to have testing done by Underwriters Laboratories. Therefore, meters have not passed an important safety test by an independent safety expert such as Underwriters Laboratories. Tests of smart meter construction specifications in Canada have verified accuracy, but have not guaranteed safe operation over the lifespan of the meter. We can reasonably assume that this is also true for smart meters used in the United States, since Canada uses some of the same meters as the United States. Electric companies and subcontractors are willfully negligent, reckless and careless for ignoring the requests of citizens to stop putting smart meters in their homes, even though they are well aware that smart meters are continuing to cause fires. Fires have occurred in the following states and provinces: Michigan, California (a case of one death from a smart meter fire was settled out of court), Florida, Tennessee, Texas, Illinois, Georgia, Vermont, Maine, Nevada, Oregon, District of Columbia, British Columbia, Quebec (where there were 3 deaths before Christmas), and Australia. Electric companies and subcontractors have clearly been engaging in unfair and deceptive practices. We believe that electric companies and their subcontractors violated the Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law, 73 P.S. 201-1 et seq., for the following reasons:

1. Failure to notify customers of the fires and hazards caused by smart meters.
2. Engaging in fraudulent and deceptive practices which created consumer confusion and caused citizens to believe that smart meters are safe.
3. In addition, the PUC and electric companies have failed to comply with HB 2200, amending Title 66 (Public Utilities of Pa Consolidation Statutes). Specifically, they have failed to “insure the health, safety and prosperity of all citizens of this commonwealth” by coercing citizens to accept a smart meter or have their electricity shut off. In addition, the PUC and electric companies are well aware that smart meters cause fires and other physical ailments.
4. Wal-Mart and Sam’s Club, recently stated that they “simply cannot participate in programs requiring any type of direct load control by the utility for safety reasons”, per Docket No. M-2009-2092655 – Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission, Smart Meter Technology Procurement and Installation Plans.
5. If it is not safe for a major corporation, then how can it be safe for us? Pennsylvania citizens simply cannot participate in the smart meter roll- out due to safety concerns!
6. Support to stop smart meter roll- outs includes the following: Hawaii State Representative Kaniela Ing introduced bill HR 146 “Expressing support for an immediate moratorium on the installation and promotion of smart meters until they are proven safe to public health and the environment, economy, and security of the state.”
7. The Governor of Illinois vetoed the smart grid. The Fairfield, Iowa Water Department proposed to halt implementation of smart water meters and to reimburse citizens for opt- out fees for smart water meters. Ventura County developed an “opt out” program.

8. Palo Alto has been installing smart meters since 2009 but recently stopped the installation of smart meters since they had complaints of health problems and increased electric costs. They concluded that it makes no economic or functional sense to install smart meters now. They found that savings were only 1% for residential and ½% for commercial structures.
9. Solutions to this extremely important problem include:
 - Remove the smart meter mandate. Stop the roll- out.
 - Remove smart meter charges from our monthly electric bill. We are being forced to pay, through Act 129, to have the electric company roll-out smart meters, which is a serious fire hazard. It is disgraceful that people are being forced to pay for a service that may kill them.
 - Manufacturers, subcontractors and the PUC must be held accountable with a mandatory fine of up to $10,000 per day for a smart meter that is not removed from a home or business after a 3 day recall notification is given to the public.
 - The public should be educated about the dangers of smart meter fires.
 - There should be no charge for smart meter removal or re- installation of an analog meter.
 - A bill should be introduced which establishes the responsibility of electric providers, manufacturers and fire companies to report all smart meter fires. This information should be easily accessible to the public.

In conclusion, we believe that we should not be required to install or pay for a smart meter because the meters represent a serious and potentially deadly fire hazard. Ensuring the safety of the public should be of paramount

45.3.6.2 PECO Smart Meter Landis+Gyr Puts Public Safety at Risk

- <http://www.greentechmedia.com/articles/read/peco-resumes-deployment-without-sensus-meters>

Oct 2012 - PECO is restarting its smart meter deployment after halting it in August due to a small percentage of overheating issues, some of which resulted in fire. The Pennsylvania utility will continue its rollout of smart meters, but without Sensus meters. PECO had installed about 186,000 Sensus meters as part of its AMI plan (29 of which overheated). It also had a deal with Landis+Gyr and Elster to provide meters as part of the full deployment. Landis+Gyr meters have replaced about half of the Sensus meters in the field as part of an independent investigation into meter performance issues. PECO was careful not to speak out against Sensus but said, “In general, the firms found that Landis+Gyr performed better in the field,” according to Cathy Engel Menendez, manager of communications at PECO. She would not elaborate on what “performed better” meant in terms of the report. Sensus was unable to comment on the report because PECO has not shared it with the company. “While they have decided to suspend use of our meters at this time, be assured that there are no safety issues with Sensus electric meters that support this decision,” Sensus said in a statement. “The results of investigations have confirmed the meters are not the problem and our patent-pending technology actually helps to mitigate issues that occur outside the meter.” PECO said that the upgrades Sensus provided where the meter automatically shuts off if it approaches overheating “did make some improvements,” although Menendez again declined to elaborate. Sensus is not out of the picture for PECO. The company will continue to be the communications network provider for metering and distribution automation. Also, since PECO is mandated to use a variety of meters for its smart meter deployment in each customer class, Sensus could throw its hat back into the ring when PECO evaluates additional meter technologies for the rest of the 1.6-million-meter project.

Elster has been chosen as one of the technologies for the commercial customers, although Menendez said there will be additional brands chosen in that group too. Moving forward, PECO and other utilities in the Exelon (NYSE: EXC) family -- which includes Baltimore Gas & Electric and Commonwealth Edison -- will submit any meter for independent analysis. When asked why the utility had not submitted meters to independent testing in the first place, Menendez said that they trusted the testing results provided by the vendors and consulted with other utilities about safety and performance issues, which is standard in the industry. Sensus has 10 million meters deployed in North America, of which it noted “2 million of the exact same model used in the PECO installation continue to operate safely and reliably in communities across the U.S.” In the future, Exelon likely will not be the only one to call on independent experts. With public utility commissions demanding more from utilities in their smart grid business cases, ensuring that each technology has undergone rigorous independent testing could become the new norm.

45.3.6.3 Feb 2014 - Smart Meter “Malfunction” Causes PA Apartment Building Fire

- <http://smartgridawareness.org/2014/02/14/meter-blamed-for-pennsylvania-fire/>
- <http://www.landisgyr.com/>

A fast-moving apartment building fire occurred on Thursday, February 6, 2014, in Bensalem, Pennsylvania when at least one smart meter exploded and caught fire. Thirty (30) residents were displaced by the ensuing blaze at Bensalem's Thunder Hollow apartments. Sixteen (16) apartments were affected. One firefighter was injured. According to the Bucks County Courier Times, the Bensalem Battalion Chief Robert Sponheimer said the fire started in a utility meter in an outside shed that housed electrical meters. He also said "residents reported hearing a loud bang, then losing power Thursday evening. Within minutes they saw smoke pouring out of the shed. The fire then spread to the building and its roof." Dramatic camera footage exists taken soon after the fire started, during the fire fighting activities, and during the recovery efforts, making you feel as if you are "on-the-scene" as it happens. In the first video where you see the dramatic flames about 25 to 30 seconds into the video, they are emanating from an outdoor shed containing smart meters. Reporting from most news sources indicated that the cause of the fire remains under investigation. However, on scene reports indicate the fire was electrical in nature and was started by a fire in "a utility electric meter." These apartments are known to be equipped with smart meters. ... SkyVision Solutions finds it curious that the term "smart meter" was not used in original reporting of the fire since that would be a natural question to have asked and have reported to the public. Updated Information: One resident lives just a few feet from two sheds where individual smart meters are housed. "I heard this boom and it sounded like a shotgun going off," said the resident. In the figure shown to the right, an officer as part of an investigation is shining a flashlight toward the two upper smart meters located on the right side of the outdoor shed. The upper most smart meter looks completely deformed (despite the somewhat poor resolution of this photo). There appears to be melted plastic drooping down from what would be the normal meter location. There is also blackened area at the top, where smoke, sparks, and fire previously billowed outward and upward. Clicking on the photo will provide a somewhat better view. From a curiosity perspective, it would nice to have a close-up photo view of the affected smart meter to better examine how bad it really looks, but there is little doubt on what actually happened at this point. Based upon a report in the Bucks County Courier Times, Battalion Chief Robert Sponheimer plans to meet with PECO Energy and township code officials to continue an investigation into a "meter malfunction." The fire has also reportedly been ruled an "accident." This determination is actually important in that it means the fire has been determined not to be the work of arson or meter tampering. SkyVision Solutions has sufficiently reviewed the details surrounding the fire to confidently conclude and report that the cause of the fire was indeed a "smart meter." It would appear that officials just don't want to advertise this important detail concerning the fire.

Bensalem Battalion Chief Robert Sponheimer is no stranger to the topic of smart meter fires. He seems to have been trying to do the right thing. Look at what he said back in September 2012. At one point he says, "we were lucky so far," based upon the limited damage resulting from the smart meter-related fires.

- http://www.buckscountycouriertimes.com/news/local/electric-meter-blamed-for-bensalem-apartment-fire/article_93cf65bb-a298-5978-a88e-464c2f4451e1.html

The fire displaced 30 residents at Bensalem's Thunder Hollow apartments, was electrical and began in a utility shed, a fire investigator said. The fire affected 16 units in the Bristol Road complex's "Y" Building, Bensalem Battalion Chief Robert Sponheimer said. No residents were injured, but a Feasterville firefighter was treated at a local hospital for dizziness and then released

45.3.6.4 Case of Ms. VanBaak of Yardley Disaster

I'm writing this story today because the truth needs to be told about what myself and my children have been through because of PECO, Grid One and State Farm Insurance. I've stayed quiet like my attorneys have told me to but as the latest series of events have unfolded – I'm not even sure that I can trust them. My story starts here...on January 4, 2013. January 4th started off as a typical day for me. Woke up, made some coffee, filed some applications for jobs, started laundry, cleaned the kitchen and began preparing for an interview I had later in the day. I had gone upstairs to move laundry from the washer to the dryer and fold the clothes from the dryer and all the sudden the power went out. I figured no big deal...we have this happen all the time, it will come back on. Sure enough it came back on and then immediately went back off. I waited. It didn't come back on. So, I decided to go downstairs. I got to the bottom of the stairs and I could hear this noise...it sounded like feedback in stereo speakers that had a pulse to it. I stood there at the bottom of the steps trying to determine where the noise was coming from..but it sounded like it was all around me. What happened next...it happened so fast...was a flash, like lightening inside my house. I literally cradled my head and dropped to the floor and my dogs started going crazy. I waited for the popping to stop and I opened my eyes. With this flash every lightbulb in my house had exploded! The old lightbulbs merely popped and shattered. Those new lightbulbs were on fire! I could see smoke, smell burning plastic. I had no idea what happened! My first reaction was to get my dogs and myself outside. My dogs were furiously barking at the front door so I ran up to them. I look outside and I see a white pick up truck with the driver door open in my driveway. I quick put the dogs outside in the back yard and ran back to the front door and outside. Ran outside just in time to see a man with yellow rubber gloves up to his shoulders and carrying a yellow bag walking to his truck! I yelled at him and said, "what did you just do?!!!" He made eye contact with me, never answered and then ran to his truck, threw his bag in, closed the door, started the truck and left. When he had closed the door I saw a company logo... it was Grid One. I stood in my front yard dumfounded and shaken. As I walked back to my front door I noticed something hanging on my doorknob. It was a doorhanger that said ... "PECO...we have successfully installed your new meter." I walked back inside my house...my chandelier that was on fire was no longer on fire. I couldn't see fire. The smoke had dissipated. I couldn't see anything still burning...thank goodness. I looked at my computer, it was off and so was my printer and monitor. Walked into my kitchen...no lights...appliances were dead....even the clock on my oven. I walked down into my basement...the light didn't work. I grabbed a light and went back down to the electrical panel. No breakers were tripped. I put a new lightbulb in but the fixture didn't work. I tried turn my computer on...nothing. Everything I looked at seemed to not be working. I was beginning to think I had no power at all...until my well pump and heater kicked on. I grabbed the doorhanger and called the number on it. The number that said if you have any questions please feel free to call. I had a ton of questions and I wanted answers! The woman I first spoke to acted like what I was reporting was no big deal. They would send somebody out. Now when you call this number...you think you're calling PECO...but you're not. You're calling GRID ONE and they claim they are PECO. So, the woman tells me someone will be out shortly. Within a few hours this man named Nelson showed up at my door. I let him in. Asked him what had happened. He said he didn't know. I said well let's ask the guy who ran from my house. His immediate response was he has been terminated. This was a matter of hours after the incident!!! I said terminated as in fired or terminated as in quit? He smiled and he said..he's been terminated. I decided to drop that issue and show this gentleman everything I had found that was not working. Lights, my computer, monitor, printer, scanner, router, wireless adapters, melted surge protectors, under cabinet lighting, my stove. My new keurig was dead too. We had only been in three rooms and my basement and he stopped me. He said "this is much more damage then what I usually see so we will have to file a claim for someone else to handle." I said usually see? He says...oh yes this happens but not this bad. He had a camera...with no batteries...I gave him batteries since I had them out because my thermostat batteries had to be replaced after the incident. He left saying I'd hear from someone shortly. This was Friday...early afternoon. In all this chaos...I missed my interview!! I had completely forgotten about it. And I couldn't even call them...because the number was on my dead computer. Nelson said I would hear from someone that day. I never did. By Monday Janaury 7th I still had not heard from anyone from PECO or Grid One. Over the weekend I had breakers tripping right and left. My heater breaker would trip...then my well pump, then my computer room, living room and right on down the line. The heater was running...it never stopped running....but it was not heating the house. The only ones who returned my calls were my electrician and my heater repair guy....because they get paid. My heater guy was at a loss. There was air in my system and would reset itself then shut off. He was reluctant to do anything because he was afraid he was going to get electrocuted. My electrician arrives to what I was now referring to as my electrical nightmare. He was talking about possibly thousands of dollars in repairs and that was only what he could see. I couldn't afford that. I called Grid One to follow up on what Nelson had told me only to be told they were not filing a claim that I needed to contact PECO. I contacted PECO only to be told I could file a claim but they expected me to make repairs and send receipts. This woman was NOT understanding the magnitude of damage or she assumed that I had a ton of money laying around. Not sure which. Then she started to tell me that statistically this doesn't happen often but it does happen but that I was responsible to make repairs and then they would review the claim. That call got me nowhere. So, I decided to call the PUC and file a complaint. I really thought after that call...things would take a different turn and my house would get fixed. I was wrong. The PUC did absolutely nothing. All that happened is PECO showed up at my house and told me the damage was my responsibility and to turn in receipts and they would review the claim. All the while I was experiencing more electrical issues and finding more damage. The craziest thing that occurred was I was literally shocked getting into the shower! I went to grab the nozzle to direct the water down and when I grabbed it I literally got a jolt of electricity..my hand stuck..my knees buckled and down I went. I didn't get a shower after that needless to say. When I came downstairs I heard water and could hear popping and here the main water line from my well had exploded and electricity was sparking from it. I dashed through the water to the main electrical panel and shut off the main breaker. I immediately called my electrician back and a plumber....who neither of them had ever seen anything like this. I paid for the plumbing repair and then my electrician told me I needed to file a homeowner's insurance claim because the damage was escalating. And that's why we have homeowners insurance, right? I thought State Farm was my answer...they were going to save me. I called the claims office and began telling the very nice rep what had occurred and what was still occurring and explained that this happened when they installed my new meter. This rep knew about problems with meters. She had me go outside to my meter and tell her what type, numbers, etc. Grid One had installed a Sensus meter on my home. This was the first time I had heard the term smart meter and she told me to Google information and it would corroborate all the horrors she had told me about on the phone. The first news story I saw said that PECO had investigated the meters and while they found no issues they wouldn't be installing Sensus meters. That story was from October...they installed the meter they said they weren't installing anymore...in January! The State Farm rep told me I was being assigned a claim rep immediately and I would hear from someone shortly. I heard from Mike from state Farm...the next day and we spoke at length about all the damage and scheduled a time to meet the following day. The day he was supposed to arrive...Mike called to say he was no longer my adjuster that my claim was being forwarded to comprehensive claim status and I would hear from my new adjuster. I asked what was the reasoning and what exactly was a comprehensive claim. Mike explained that they estimate claim values and a comprehensive claim is typically in excess of $50,000 and involves 3rd party subrogation. My new adjuster...Edgar Traylor called and set up a time to meet me and my electrician at my home. Edgar..."Spot" Traylor. Don't refer to him as Edgar...call him Spot. Darren, my electrician and I weren't quite sure what to make of him...other than completely unprofessional and unprepared. Spot only referred to me as honey and sweetheart for the first half hour or so of the walk through until...I just broke down and told him to please not call me that. I found it very condescending and creepy...especially after his at length story about root cellars, dungeons, and torture and sex slaves. I'm completely serious. In fact, in his official reports to State Farm and his damage estimate...he refers to my basement as a "dungeon." Mr. Traylor's first visit to my home....he was here at least three hours and he didn't take a SINGLE NOTE! When we pointed out he wasn't taking notes..he tapped the side of his head and said," it's all in here." He left saying the damage wasn't too bad and he'd have a check for me shortly. He told Darren to start making necessary repairs and for me to gather receipts. Mr. Traylor then proceeded a few days later to say the claim value was $3600.00. Darren told me his repairs were going to be more than that and that I needed to hire a private adjuster. Then I ultimately needed to hire an attorney. On a $200,000 damage claim...state farm wanted to settle for $52,000. Why don't they want to settle? Well...because they are losing their court battles for reimbursement from these utility companies over smart meter damage. Look into it...you'll see I'm telling the truth. A few days after Mr. Traylor's visit..he did provide a check for $3600.00. This was for damages of what he felt were covered by my policy. It seemed as though he was picking and choosing what to pay for and what not to pay for at random. At this point..keep in mind...we had no consistent source of water, no electric for refrigeration or food preparation, no heat and were flushing toilets carrying water from our pool outside. I went and purchased kerosene heaters, a propane camp stove, candles and more candles. We showered at relatives houses, did laundry at families houses or a laundramat. You do what you need to do to survive. Darren finally rerouted one breaker in my house...so we had the ability to use extension cords in order to get some amenities back and try to get back to living in normal, humane conditions. During this time I was reminded how people lost their minds when they lost power for 3-7 days after Hurricane Sandy. 7 days was nothing to us at that point. It was the middle of January when myself and my electrician confronted Mr. Traylor about the condition of the house and how $3600 wasn't sufficient and that our living conditions were not acceptable. The confrontation occurred after reading my homeowners policy...I had one of the best policies that money could buy from State Farm! I had coverage's that I didn't even know I had...like temporary housing! He let us suffer in this house...never mentioning what coverage's I was entitled to. Once I mentioned alternate housing and Darren kept pushing on costs of electrical repair and how unsafe this house was...then he agreed to put us up in a hotel. That was conditional on my allowing State Farm to bring in an electrical engineer. I agreed to let them bring in an engineer..if it meant running water, hot showers and heat somewhere. Darren truly felt the electrical was unsafe and wanted the entire electrical system shut down and Mr. Traylor said all electrical must stay on for the engineer to do his job. We checked into the Marriott Residence Inn...me, my children and my two dogs. Just to be able to take a shower was heaven. Just to turn on a light, watch tv, not having to worry about where we were going to charge my phone or to worry about yet another electrical issue or a fire in the house. A few days after we started staying at the hotel I met the engineer at my house. Mr. Traylor who was supposed to be there...never showed. I went through the entire house with the engineer, explained everything, showed him everything. He even called and spoke to my electrician. When the engineer finished he verbally told me he was in agreement with my electrician, the house was not safe and that indeed all my wiring and light fixtures need to be replaced as the damage he could see to wires was significant...he believed the wires in the wall would yield further evidence. He told me his report would be given to state farm in a day or two and I would hear back from Mr. Traylor. That this was a pretty straight forward evaluation and not to worry my house would be getting fixed in no time. I didn't hear back from State Farm. Instead I heard back from the engineer who told me that state farm questioned his initial report and that he would need to come back for another inspection and bring a certified electrician. He said...he was just doing what he was told to do. When I questioned him...since he was contradicting himself...he said... "I'm doing what I'm told to do. I need my job." When I spoke to Mr. Traylor about this...he said this was customary so I allowed the 2nd inspection. I asked Darren to be present and also Mr. Traylor. Darren was there. Mr. Traylor said he didn't need to be there. This 2nd interaction was completely different than the first. The engineer had gone from helpful and concerned to evasive and nervous and unable to look me in the eye. He was only there for the certified electrician to complete an entire electrical inspection. It was during that inspection that Darren said...Colleen...they aren't focusing on damage...they are focusing on looking at what isn't current electrical code. He then said...you need to hire an adjuster and fast. They weren't looking for damage...they were looking for reasons to not pay for damage. Either the next day or next Mr. Traylor called me and told me that the only damage to my electrical system they could contribute to the surge was minimal and that he would figure the repair cost. He said temporary housing was no longer going to be provided as the engineer said my home was safe and habitable. That all my breakers for but a few could be put back on, were put back on and we needed to vacate the hotel immediately. When I told him I didn't feel safe going back to the house he then told me then I didn't have to return but I would be financially responsible for the hotel bill from this point on. The sign on the door said the suite we were staying in was almost $400.00 a night. I couldn't afford the hotel stay. We had no option other than to pack up and leave. I'll never forget the day we were forced to leave the hotel...neither will my son...it was the day before his 16th birthday and his birthday was ruined. Mr. Traylor knew it was Adam's birthday...I had explained about switching party plans to the hotel and then those plans were undone with one phone call. Adam was so upset and ultimately we had no party other than cake, presents and dinner out the next day. You see Adam suffers from PTSD and an anxiety disorder. Any change in his surroundings, plans...is a huge adjustment for him. Mr. Traylor knew this too...he didn't care. That's the impression I was getting from the beginning and continuously from State Farm...they didn't care. All the while...everywhere I turned...I'd see the State Farm commercial or jingle... "like a good neighbor...state farm is there." I asked Mr. Traylor to provide me with a statement that my home was indeed safe for us to return. He literally laughed at me and said they couldn't do that. I asked for the copy of the 2nd engineer report...he said he hadn't received it yet. He had concluded the damage of my home and the safety of my home after having a phone conversation with the engineer. That weekend...I finally listened to Darren and contacted a private adjuster. The adjuster got involved immediately and coordinated a meeting with the state farm adjuster after surveying the damage to my home. I believe the first estimate from my private adjuster was around $75,000..State Farm argued back and forth for weeks. My adjuster was making no headway whatsoever. While they're arguing...we're suffering living in a house in the middle of winter with no heat, bursting pipes, frozen pipes, etc. It was torture. If you want to torture someone...take away their heat in the dead of winter. Have you ever been so cold that you can't sleep or are afraid to sleep because you fear you might freeze to death or your kids will freeze to death? I have. I did. Then further take away refrigeration, their ability to cook food. I cooked many meals outside in below freezing temperatures on a camp stove and grill. I cried through many meals and many nights. It was during this time living back in my home that I almost stopped sleeping all together. I was afraid to go to sleep while my children slept. I was afraid of a fire...even though we had talking smoke detectors....I will still be fearful. My kids would leave for school...I'd catch a cat nap of an hour or two...maybe three. I couldn't seem to sleep past three hours...honestly... 2 ½ years later I still can't sleep for more than 2-3 hours at a time. It was during this time back in the house Darren had rerouted a circuit for us. I had four working outlets in my house!! Woohoo!! I went out and bought four 100 foot extension cords. I had a refrigerator again...such excitement...you don't learn to appreciate someone until you don't have it. We had an extension cord to the family room...we could watch TV! Well that was the plan until the tv wasn't working and we realized the DVR was damaged. Then I soon was able to check and see that every TV and piece of directv equipment wasn't functioning. More to add to the list. The ever growing list of things that stopped working after the meter incident. Then finally I was able to set up a make shift kitchen...in my living room. I wouldn't have to cook outside in freezing temperatures, rain and snow. I bought a hot plate, crockpot, toaster oven, new microwave. A somewhat normal kitchen...under the circumstances...I was glad to have it. We still didn't have lights...but it was more than we had before. We were surviving by heating small areas of my house with kerosene and then we'd sleep in the family room. Our bedrooms became places we just went to get clothes...either to wear or to pack up to go do laundry somewhere. Things by no means were great but it was better than it had been. Better until the night of, I believe February 22nd. I was up in my room packing up clothes and trying to decide what to throw out...so many of my clothes smelled musty and smelled of chemicals or burnt plastic. My daughter was doing the same in her room. All the sudden she comes running into my room to tell me she sees lights flashing outside by the front of the house...blue lights...white lights...like lightening. We ran downstairs and through my basement door I see my electrical panel sparking and popping and then what little power we had...went off. I watched electricity shoot out of a copper pipe...the same well pump pipe I had already repaired. I immediately called PECO to report an electrical emergency...got everyone outside and waited for PECO to arrive. I frantically and carefully shut down the main power switch in the electrical panel. It's a miracle I wasn't electrocuted. Why did I shut it down? Because the lady on the phone told me I was responsible to secure the house. Really? This is happening and this lady is giving me a canned speech on liability?? Yes. Really. And waited for PECO. And waited. Called PECO again...and was told they were busy. I went back into the basement to check it again and could still hear electricity.....yet we had no power in the house. Once again...water all over my basement...flooding from the water supply and also the heating system. I walked out from and you could hear electricity in the power line coming to my house. It was at this point...I realized that the incident back in January...that noise that I couldn't determine what it was before the flash of light...the noise was electricity. Electricity makes a sound. Who knew? So when did PECO finally show up....a day later. My electrician and adjuster were and left before they ever got here and PECO refused to meet with either of them. The PECO technician first looked outside and said he saw nothing wrong. He then came into my house and told me my panel had arced out and kept telling me the problem wasn't PECO it was my house. He kept shining his light on my panel and said...see all those blue sparkles...that's what's left behind after an electrical arcing incident. He asked me who shut my panel off...I told him I did because I feared a fire. He asked me what all the water was from...I told him electricity came out of the pipes...saw it with my own eyes. He said...well problems in the house weren't PECO's problem. I argued that PECO created this problem. I told him what had happened back in January. He knew of the problems with smart meters, fires and surges during installation. And he flat out told me PECO would deny any responsibility. He was the first honest PECO person I had spoken to. He told me to file a homeowners insurance claim...I told him I did. He said..that's the only way you'll get things fixed and he left...although not before denying we ever had the conversation we had about his employer. His words..."I have bills to pay and I need my job and people who rock the boat end up thrown overboard if you know what I mean." He told me about the whistleblower about smart meters who was an installer. He said...that guy will never work again in the industry. While I can understand that...how many other PECO employees remain silenced out of fear? I'd bet there are many. If you Google whistleblower over smart meters....you'll find a few. You'll even find unlawful termination lawsuits. This is when I realized this smart meter issue was WAY bigger than just me. Way bigger than just PECO. Surges and fires...they're occurring worldwide. It's not just the Sensus meters....it's all the manufacturers. Spend a few hours...and you'll see what I mean.

So here we were again...back to no water, no heat, no electrical again. All out survival mode. Day in day out. Everything had to be planned..down to where and when we could shower. Trips to buy ice. Trips to buy kerosene, bottled water, more candles. Our lives turned upside down again. Homework by candlelight. Where to charge cell phones and laptops for the kids to do homework. You either adapt or you go crazy...or both. We borrowed a generator but that was just too costly. You'd be surprised how quickly money is spent under these circumstances. Any savings I had was now gone. Looking for a job is impossible...there's no time for that. Not to mention no computer access. No television. Can't talk on the phone because you need it for emergency. Buy more blankets, learn to layer clothes. Wear gloves, scarfs and hats to go to sleep. After that incident in February....it was March 1st before my private adjuster and my new attorney...hired at the urging of my adjuster...finally got State Farm back to my house to review the new damage and finally agree to provide temporary housing. My new attorney asked for a statement of habitability and safety from State Farm. That was how we were provided housing. Housing that is completely covered in my policy! Housing that should have been provided from day one! We checked back into the Marriott only to find out that ALE, the company who works for State Farm paid for a hotel for us since January. Crazy? (Feel free to contact the Marriott for those records) I didn't understand how such an outrageous error could be made. I was furious too! Thousands of dollars paid for a hotel we were told to leave YET State Farm was refusing to reimburse me for food, appliances, meals, laundry, etc. Then all of the sudden Mr. Traylor is suddenly changing his story that he never told us to leave. WHAT? Yes...that was now his NEW story. Unbelievable. But... I finally thought things were getting on track for my house to get fixed. I honestly did. While the hotel wasn't ideal it was the Taj Mahal compared to my house now because it was warm, had electric and water. While I finally felt safe at the hotel...the lack of sleep and nightmares was still occurring. For the first time State Farm asked for receipts to start reimbursing my personal expenses from this ordeal... Around $15,000 at that point. Progress? No...an excuse to formally deny paying them. State Farm was insisting to restore electrical to the house because they could not determine damage without it. Mr. Traylor told Darren to start repairs and told him not to worry he would be paid. To this day....Darren has never been paid. The majority of repairs made...State Farm said they could not determine were caused by the original electrical event in January. They refused to bring another engineer back in. I brought more contractors in to access damage and got estimates only for State Farm to deny them and refuse payment for work to begin. You'd be amazed how many contractors don't want to work when they don't know if they are getting paid. (Sarcasm) Darren though, he tried to help. He paid for many things out of pocket and I would gladly furnish his contact information so you can speak to him. So, now we're living in a hotel. We're crammed into a small hotel suite. Me, two teenagers and 2 dogs in 800 sq. ft. I'm in financial shambles. I'm mentally broken but still trying to get through each day that seemed to bring more drama. It was the beginning of April and while still arguing back and forth with State Farm...I had an attorney to handle that. Then my mother got ill. Very ill. She was rushed to the hospital from her nursing facility and even though she had many other ailments...what she now had was C-Diff. With all her other health issues she just never recovered and she passed away a little shy of two weeks later. My mother is literally dying in the hospital and Mr. Traylor...who constantly says he can't be contacting me because I have an attorney is contacting me. Why? Because he wanted access to my house again and because if I didn't give him access..he was closing the claim. I'm going to say this...this man has a real problem with women. It started from day one and continued. I'd even go so far to say...that if I was a man...my house would have been fixed. He told some bizarre story on one visit...about Eve the temptress and how women were the downfall of men and ultimately the world. THAT was the mentality I was dealing with. The man certainly wasn't a Christian by the previous relaying of his intrigue over ancient cultures and fascinations with sex slaves and dungeons. Darren was privy to those stories. So anyway...I meet my attorney, Darren and Mr. Traylor at the house...again. My time would have been better spent with my mother. That meeting was a waste of time. I go back to the hospital and now I'm dealing with my Mother who has now thinking she is dying and doesn't want to die in the hospital and is begging me to bring her home with me to die. And I have to explain to her, as she's convinced she's dying, what's happened to the house. She's decided she's dying and now devastated the house is damaged. She's upset we're in a hotel. She's worried about her things in the house. Her health deteriorated after that and she did die. The doctors and nurses were hopeful until she took a turn for the worse. It was like she gave up. My mother was a fighter. She almost died several times ..but like I said..this time was different. She passed away, arrangements were being made and then Mr. Traylor wants to meet at the house again. He always picked the date. I asked my attorney to schedule it for another day since Mr. Traylor wanted to meet the day of the funeral. Even after he knew it was my Mother's funeral. I ended up meeting him the day after the funeral. My attorney advised me to provide State Farm with a death certificate since my mother was listed on the deed. I did. Also provided him that same day with more receipts...since per State Farm...I needed to start removing property from my house. I had to rent a POD and start packing up my house and belongings myself so that walls and floors could be removed in order to look for damage. State Farm refused to pay for help to pack, packing supplies, etc. Par for the course. Their MO is you need to do this...you pay for it...and then we'll determine if we're going to pay for it at a later date. If you don't comply with what you're told to do...they threaten canceling the claim. So Darren is completing some electrical work per State Farm and State Farm is refusing to review ANY other damage estimates from contractors and my private adjuster. My private adjuster decided that State Farm wasn't going to pay and if they did I wouldn't have enough money to fix my house having to pay them and an attorney too. They turned over everything to my attorney. My attorney tried to negotiate the estimate with State Farm...they weren't interested in negotiating. State Farm wanted to bring in a certified State Farm contractor. A company named ServPro. So, my attorney, myself, Mr. traylor and about 7 contractors with ServPro meet at my home to survey the damage and come up with an agreed upon estimate of cost for repair. It was through this meeting that I met David and Sean. They were subcontractors for ServPro. David is an electrical engineer and a certified electrician...AND a previous employee of...PECO! Sean is a General contractor who has fixed his fair share of damaged properties or knew of several properties in the area that were damaged by..you guessed it...smart meters! So, they give me their cards in case I need them for the future. Within days they turn over their portion of the estimates to ServPro so ServPro can prepare a final estimate for me. That's key here...for ME! Mr. Traylor made it quite clear he could have NO interaction with them....ServPro was here on my behalf. Well, weeks go by...I'm being told by David at ServPro that they are still waiting on an estimates from their subcontractors. And now there are problems with the insurance policy and meeting code enforcement issues. You see it's May and at this point, I have no patience left with this entire process and my daughter is graduating from high school...and I have a scheduled graduation party happening in my backyard in June! Ordered those invitations back in December before all this happened. And I have ServPro telling me not to worry...my house will be fixed by then...if they have to work every day. Finally I get a phone call from David who wanted to follow up on if I had decided to have ServPro do the work. I told him I was told they were still waiting on estimates. He tells me...he turned his engineering report and his electrical estimate over within days and he had talked to Sean before he called me and Sean turned his in as well. So..what was I waiting for then? So, David sends me his estimate and Sean sends me his estimates...which total at this point around $140,000. I send them to my attorney. You know what ServPro was waiting for? They were waiting for Mr. Traylor to review the estimate ServPro prepared for me that Mr. Traylor was not even supposed to see until he got it from me. When I finally received the estimate from ServPro it was for around $53,000. Far cry from the estimates turned over by David and Sean. Interesting. So my attorney advises...let State Farm cut the check....more money can always be negotiated at a later date. So, finally State Farm issues the check and my attorney receives it and he calls to say he received it...BUT...we can't cash the check. Why can't we cash the check? Because State Farm has put my deceased mother's name on the check and dead people can't sign checks. So, my attorney points out their error...State Farm says...not an error..That's their process. My attorney returns the check and tells them they are wrong and to resend a check. WE asked to have Mr. Traylor removed from my claim for his blatant errors and behavior. Then State Farm denies ANY knowledge of her death and a receipt of a death certificate. I'm going to assume they blamed Mr. Traylor. We have to give them another death certificate..and then they will redo the check and they would assign another claim rep. We furnish the death certificate, they assign a new adjuster, Kyle, who needs to go over the ENTIRE claim...AGAIN. They finally agree to cut another check. By the time they finally DO that...I held a graduation party at my house...with porta-potties because my attorney and State Farm said if anyone was injured inside the house State Farm wouldn't be liable. So my attorney gets the check from State Farm and calls me...with more bad news. Now they've removed my mother's name...but now it's made payable to my mortgage company, my attorney, me and the Estate of my Mother. Which State Farm now says is their policy and now I'll have to raise an estate in order to obtain the funds. I believe we got the check August 28th....and they allowed 60 days for repairs and said they would stop paying for the hotel on October 28th. They kept their word..they stopped paying EXACTLY on the 28th...the check hadn't even been cashed. Ultimately I was able to show that State Farm was wrong and I didn't need to establish an estate. By that time we were back in the house, had another fire in November and were now living with family members and friends. Shuffling from house to house and having to leave the dogs in an uninhabitable house. Now I must digress for now another back story. In May, my mortgage company returned my mortgage payment. They claimed that I was in violation of my unemployment forbearance program because why? Because I was not residing in the house! They said I was not truthful to them, that State Farm told them I was residing elsewhere and I never should have been put on the program starting February 1st. So, in June they declared me in default, removed my forbearance and filed for foreclosure. I kid you not. So remember how furious I was and couldn't make sense WHY state Farm would continue to pay for a hotel after we're kicked out? Suddenly made sense...the mortgage company's criteria was if I resided outside of the property for more than 90 days I was in default. Coincidence.. I think not. Since I was not at the house when the papers were served...I actually never received the papers. I did receive in the mail the county conciliation paperwork and signed up to begin that program. The mediator for this program was appalled and stayed the foreclosure. I can provide you with that documentation. He urged my mortgage company to negotiate SOMETHING...ANYTHING under the circumstances. They refused. In fact...THEY wanted ANY and ALL insurance monies. Now you see why the mortgage company was put on those checks that were finally dispersed? Now let me digress again...on another piece of this story. Back to the PUC. The PUC who took almost a year to do nothing about my original informal complaint. The PUC who said they sent documents...who never did. I never got them. Neither did my attorney. I'm contacting the PUC again to follow up on my complaint to find out...it's been closed. I have to file a new complaint. Why? Because all of the months there was no electric service or minimal electric, all the months we didn't live in the house, the electric bills were outrageously high! So now a high bill complaint gets filed...PECO comes out to investigate in August, I believe. That technician agreed I was not using the power my meter was saying I was using ...it was impossible. This was before the fire. The fire was the Tuesday before Thanksgiving. PECO agrees to credit me $1600....then I believe ultimately reversed that credit. After the fire...there once again was no electric service in my house...but I still showed electric usage. The service panel was finally put in the end of February. That was 2014. The PUC did nothing with that complaint...again. I complain again to the PUC about high bills and high usage for what I have in the house. It was almost an entire year later that I received anything from the PUC. PECO came out I believe this past March or April and determined that my usage was correct for what they saw at the property. They listed every appliance that they saw including my hot tub. Even though I told them...they are broken...not even plugged in...they were included. You see...according to them...if they are here...they have a potential for use. So, my dishwasher that's been disconnected ..because it's still sitting there...according to their formula...gets added in. My hot tub...that hasn't worked since the initial incident on January 4th....there isn't even a breaker in my panel for it...it still counts. My heating system...even though it doesn't work...there is no breaker in my panel...it counts in their usage formula AND COUNTS against me. They compare previous years billing and they're consistent with previous years. They don't take into account in previous years I had a washer and dryer, dishwasher, double oven, cooktop, 5 air conditioners in the summer, a pool, a hot tub, a working heating system. Every electronic and device of comfort you'd have in a typical 3800 sq ft. house in Yardley, PA and then some. You get my point? Now I have a cooktop, an oven, microwave, 10 working outlets, a hot water heater(my hot water was my oil boiler before), I have 1 tv...instead of 5. I have the wired electric of a small apartment! A formal complaint...has been awaiting a hearing date....for what seems like forever. This is my current situation now. I finally just got a working kitchen sink...that was my excitement for this month. Prior to that...I had to use a 5 gallon bucket under the pipe in the kitchen and then dump it in my ONLY functioning toilet. I don't have people over my home...I'm a hermit now. My house is in shambles and I'm too embarrassed to have anyone over here. One or two close friends only. Ok, so back to State Farm and their check payment... My attorney at this point...his head was spinning trying to keep up with the mess of this situation. He said our only alternative at this point was to file a lawsuit and what a mess it was going to be. He started preparing the end of November 2013...I believe it was officially recorded and filed in January of 2014. While he did that he explained that litigation is a long drawn out process and I needed to file complaint with the insurance commission in the interim...maybe we could get some quick resolve there with State Farm. Get some things fixed in my house...otherwise I was going to be homeless until we got to court. There's a complaint listed there...if you want to look that up. That complaint also includes the fact that State Farm illegally canceled my auto insurance without my knowledge. Seriously....I'm not kidding. The insurance commission was of no help at all. Once they saw a formal lawsuit...they wanted no involvement whatsoever. If you check the Philadelphia civil court docket...you will see a civil suit filed against PECO, GRID ONE and State Farm. You can read a lot more of the story in that filing...it's public information. It's too large of a file to attach to email. Myself and my children did not live in the house from February 2013 through November 2013. We moved back in November 7th...had another fire as I mentioned previously the Tuesday before Thanksgiving. We moved back in permanently in March of 2014. My home is still not repaired. We have gone winters without heat. The house is overrun with mold. I have numerous contractors who are willing to speak to you on my behalf. Two and a half years later. This has been a nightmare and emotionally crippling for me and my children. I need help. I need someone to listen to my story. There is much more to the story as well...but I feel like

I have already written a book. I'd like you to come to my house...see the conditions for yourself and hear myself and my kids. Please....

- <http://stopsmartmeters.org/2013/06/21/when-smart-meters-kill-the-story-of-larry-nikkel-details-emerge-of-vacaville-ca-smart-meter-fire-death/>

July 2010 - Details have come to light of a man killed by a Pacific Gas and Electric (PG&E) Smart Meter that caught fire in Vacaville, CA on July 9th, 2010. Larry Nikkel of 230 Arbor St. died from a suspicious electrical fire that consumed his home the day after Wellington Energy, contractors for PG&E, installed a Landis & Gyr “smart” electric meter. A wrongful death suit lawsuit filed by the family against the utility, subcontractor, and meter manufacturer has now been settled for an undisclosed sum. The circumstances surrounding Mr. Nikkel’s death add a grave and tragic chapter to the growing human cost of the ‘smart grid.’ The following account is based on interviews with his brother Walter, as well as details obtained by the fire incident report, investigation, and coroner’s report. Larry Nikkel worked for more than 30 years as the groundskeeper at Solano Community College, and was well liked in Vacaville by those who knew him. He was in a rock band in the Seventies called The Panties who played gigs all over the East Bay. Larry loved his rock music and he loved his 1958 Gretsch guitar (the same kind as Chuck Berry played). The guitar- worth thousands- was given to Larry by a co-worker at the College, underscoring how much he was loved and admired by those who knew him. Larry was diagnosed with throat cancer in early 2010 and had just finished his chemotherapy treatment at the time of his death. The day before he was killed, he had submitted the paperwork to retire from his job at the Community College. On July 8th, 2010, according to neighbors, Wellington Energy came through and deployed electric smart meters all along the street, including on Larry’s house. Less than 48 hours later, Larry was dead- killed by smoke inhalation and burns from an unexplained electrical fire that consumed his home. According to his brother Walter, who had spent time with Larry at his house the morning before the fire (and only hours after the smart meter was installed), there were serious electrical problems in the house that day. Larry had tried to boot up his laptop to watch a DVD that evening, but the computer would not function. The cable box did not work either. Walter and Larry both heard a very loud, high pitched “snap” coming from the wall. Later that night, after Walter had returned home, he received a call from Larry, who said that the ‘house was humming.’ He regrets to this day not coming over immediately to investigate what was wrong. At about 10:30pm on July 9th, a man walking down Arbor St. saw flames coming out of Larry’s house. The man opened the garage door to see if anyone was inside but this caused the fire to “flash” and so he was forced to retreat and call the fire department. By 10:40, fire fighters were on the scene. After battling the fire, crews entered the house and found Larry’s body in the hallway bathroom, under a dresser (which Walt speculates he may have pulled on top of himself to shield against the heat). He had shoved towels under the door, and the water was running in the sink. He was on the floor, having succumbed to smoke inhalation and burns. Larry had placed his beloved guitar in the bathtub, where perhaps he hoped it would survive the flames (it did).

On June 10th, 2012, the Nikkel family filed a lawsuit against Pacific Gas and Electric, Wellington Energy, and Landis & Gyr meter manufacturers, alleging negligence and wrongful death. The case was settled out of court earlier this year, showing that the utilities and meter manufacturers were alarmed about the potential to lose the case, as well as more terrible publicity related to their meter program. The settlement- though not ideal as it avoids a verdict that might force the utilities to compensate others who have suffered smart meter fires or even recall the meters- has nonetheless provided a sense of closure to the family, who would have had to live through the pain of Larry's loss once again during a trial....

Meanwhile, the number of smart meter fires has continued to grow. Last year, a Stamford CT woman lost five members of her family after a fire likely started by their 'smart' meter. Twenty-four hours later, her home was bulldozed, eliminating any evidence that could have been collected showing why the deadly fire started (and preventing future fires) In August 2012, Peco Energy of Pennsylvania was forced to suspend its deployment after at least 26 separate incidents where newly installed smart meters had caught fire or exploded.

Bloomberg Aug 15, 2000 PHILADELPHIA - Peco Energy Co., owner of Philadelphia's electric utility, agreed yesterday to buy 49.9 percent of Vivendi SA's North American power-plant unit for $680 million, giving it more electricity to sell in the northeastern United States. Vivendi's Sithe Energies Inc. owns generators in New York, New Jersey, Maine and Massachusetts, where it's more profitable to sell electricity to utilities than in most parts of the United States. Its 27 plants produce about 3,800 megawatts of electricity, enough to light 3.8 million homes. Peco, which is merging with Chicago's Unicom Corp., is expanding to offset revenue lost after regulators ended its monopoly in eastern Pennsylvania. Through a joint venture with British Energy Plc, it has bought nuclear plants in the Northeast. The Sithe purchase will give it natural gas and oil-fired generators in the region as well. "It makes sense that Peco's continuing to buy plants," said Mark Luftig, a portfolio manager at W.H. Reaves & Co., which owned 35,394 Peco shares in June. "They're doing it for a reasonable price." Vivendi, which agreed to buy Seagram Co. and Canal Plus SA to expand in music, film and television, is selling the stake to focus its utility business on supplying water and hauling trash. In February, Reliant Energy Inc. agreed to buy 21 of Sithe's power plants in the Northeast for $2.1 billion. Peco has 1.5 million power and 400,000 natural-gas customers in the Philadelphia area. The merger with Unicom, owner of Chicago's Commonwealth Edison Co. utility, will make it one of the three biggest utilities in the nation, based on number of customers. The Sithe acquisition is expected to be completed by October, Peco said, and will make it one of the leading power generators in the Northeast. Through its AmerGen Energy Co. venture with British Energy, Peco also owns stakes in the Vermont Yankee nuclear plant in Vermont, the Oyster Creek nuclear plant in New Jersey and the working reactor in Pennsylvania's Three Mile Island plant, scene of the nation's worst nuclear accident.

45.3.7.3 Edgar Bronfman Jr Convicted of Insider Trading in Vivendi Case

- <http://www.theglobeandmail.com/report-on-business/edgar-bronfman-jr-convicted-of-insider-trading/article563004/>

The Warner Music Group chairman, Edgar Bronfman Jr, was convicted today of insider trading and fined €5m (£4.2m) over his conduct as vice-chairman of French company Vivendi nearly a decade ago. Jean-Marie Messier, the former Vivendi chief executive, was convicted on charges of misleading investors by the same Paris court. Bronfman Jr, who was vice-chairman of Vivendi until 2003, received a 15-month suspended sentence and a €5m fine. Messier, the former high-flying chief executive who from the mid-1990s to 2002 built Vivendi from a French water utility company into a global media giant, received a three-year suspended sentence and a €150,000 fine. The convictions relate to the period from 2000 to 2002, at the tail end of a $77bn (£48bn) acquisition spree masterminded by Messier, which turned Vivendi into a multimedia giant spanning music, film, video games and TV. Vivendi acquired Seagram, which owned companies including Universal Studios and Canal Plus, in 2000 in a deal that made the Bronfman family Vivendi's largest shareholder, with Bronfman Jr becoming a vice-chairman of the French company. The purchase of more than 20 businesses saddled Vivendi with massive debt and brought the company close to bankruptcy, forcing an asset sell-off following Messier's departure. Both men said they would appeal against the decision. Former Vivendi chief financial officer Guillaume Hannezo, also a defendant, was fined €850,000 and received a 15-month suspended sentence. Bronfman Jr said he was "disappointed" with the decision, pointing out that the Paris public prosecutor last year recommended that the criminal charges be dropped for a lack of evidence that investors were misled. "I will appeal today's decision to the Paris court of appeal and continue to vigorously defend myself against this charge," he said in a statement. "As I have consistently stated, my trades were proper." Warner Music Group said that it had been "thoroughly briefed on the underlying facts" and continued to back Bronfman Jr. "The board of directors is disappointed with the decision in this matter, and fully supports Mr Bronfman as he appeals this verdict," said Scott Sperling, chair of the music company's executive governance and nominating committee.

- a) Those who would give up essential liberty to purchase a little temporary safety deserve neither liberty nor safety.
- b) "I fully agree with General Washington, that we must protect this young nation from an insidious influence and impenetration. The menace, gentlemen, is the Jews. In whatever country Jews have settled in any great numbers, they have lowered its moral tone; depreciated its commercial integrity; have segregated themselves and have not been assimilated; have sneered at and tried to undermine the Christian religion upon which that nation is founded by objecting to its restrictions; have built up a state within a state; and when opposed have tried to strangle that country to death financially, as in the case of Spain and Portugal.
- c) IN WHATEVER COUNTRY JEWS HAVE SETTLED IN ANY GREAT NUMBERS, THEY HAVE LOWERED ITS MORAL TONE; depreciated its commercial integrity; have segregated themselves and have not been assimilated; HAVE SNEERED AT AND TRIED TO UNDERMINE THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION UPON WHICH THAT NATION IS FOUNDED by objecting to its restrictions; have built up a state within a state; and when opposed have tried to strangle that country to death financially, as in the case of Spain and Portugal. For over 1700 years the Jews have been bewailing their sad fate in that they have been exiled from their homeland, they call Palestine. But, Gentlemen, SHOULD THE WORLD TODAY GIVE IT TO THEM IN FEE SIMPLE, THEY WOULD AT ONCE FIND SOME COGENT REASON FOR NOT RETURNING. Why? BECAUSE THEY ARE VAMPIRES, AND VAMPIRES DO NOT LIVE ON VAMPIRES. THEY CANNOT LIVE ONLY AMONG THEMSELVES. THEY MUST SUBSIST ON CHRISTIANS AND OTHER PEOPLE NOT OF THEIR RACE. If you do not exclude them from these United States, in this Constitution in less than 200 years THEY WILL HAVE SWARMED IN SUCH GREAT NUMBERS THAT THEY WILL DOMINATE AND DEVOUR THE LAND, AND CHANGE OUR FORM OF GOVERNMENT [which they have done they have changed it from a Republic to a Democracy], for which we Americans have shed our blood, given our lives, our substance and jeopardized our liberty. If you do not exclude them, in less than 200 years OUR DESCENDANTS WILL BE WORKING IN THE FIELDS TO FURNISH THEM SUSTENANCE, WHILE THEY WILL BE IN THE COUNTING HOUSES RUBBING THEIR HANDS. I warn you, Gentlemen, if you do not exclude the Jews for all time, your children will curse you in your graves. Jews, Gentlemen, are Asiatics; let them be born where they will, or how many generations they are away from Asia, they will never be otherwise. THEIR IDEAS DO NOT CONFORM TO AN AMERICAN'S, AND WILL NOT EVEN THOUGH THEY LIVE AMONG US TEN GENERATIONS. A LEOPARD CANNOT CHANGE ITS SPOTS. JEWS ARE ASIATICS, THEY ARE A MENACE TO THIS COUNTRY IF PERMITTED ENTRANCE and should be excluded by this Constitution." (by Benjamin Franklin, who was one of the six founding fathers designated to draw up The Declaration of Independence. He spoke before the Constitutional Congress in May 1787, and asked that Jews be barred from immigrating to America. The above are his exact words as quoted from the diary of General Charles Pickney of Charleston, S.C.).

In 1887 Alexander Tyler, a Scottish history professor at the University of Edinburgh, had this to say about the fall of the Athenian Republic some 2,000 years prior: "A democracy is always temporary in nature; it simply cannot exist as a permanent form of government. A democracy will continue to exist up until the time that voters discover that they can vote themselves generous gifts from the public treasury. From that moment on, the majority always votes for the candidates who promise the most benefits from the public treasury, with the result that every democracy will finally collapse over loose fiscal policy, (which is) always followed by a dictatorship." "The average age of the world's greatest civilizations from the beginning of history, has been about 200 years. During those 200 years, these nations always progressed through the following sequence:

www.noplaceforcorruption.com Copyright © All Rights Reserved, April 29, 2012

- From bondage to spiritual faith;
- From spiritual faith to great courage;
- From courage to liberty;
- From liberty to abundance;
- From abundance to complacency;
- From complacency to apathy;
- From apathy to dependence;
- From dependence back into bondage."

The United States is now somewhere between the "complacency and apathy" phase of Professor Tyler's definition of democracy, with some forty percent of the nation's population already having reached the "governmental dependency" phase.

46.3 Famous Quotes of Thomas Jefferson

- When the people fear the government, there is tyranny. When the government fears the people, there is liberty.
- The tree of liberty must be refreshed from time to time with the blood of patriots and tyrants.
- No freeman shall be debarred the use of arms.
- The constitutions of most of our States assert that all power is inherent in the people; that...it is their right and duty to be at all times armed.
- For a people who are free and who mean to remain so, a well-organized and armed militia is their best security.
- Every citizen should be a soldier. This was the case with the Greeks and Romans, and must be that of every free state.
- I have sworn upon the altar of God, eternal hostility against every form of tyranny over the mind of man.
- Every government degenerates when trusted to the rulers of the people alone. The people themselves are its only safe depositories
- I believe that banking institutions are more dangerous to our liberties than standing armies.
- It is incumbent on every generation to pay its own debts as it goes. A principle which if acted on would save one-half of the wars of the world.
- Never spend your money before you have earned it.

- Commerce with all nations, alliance with none should be our motto.
- Our country is now taking so steady a course as to show by what road it will pass to destruction, to wit: by consolidation of power first, and then corruption its necessary consequence.
- If a nation expects to be ignorant and free, in a state of civilization, it expects what never was and never will be.
- The man who reads nothing at all is better educated than the man who reads nothing but newspapers.
- Merchants have no country. The mere spot they stand on does not constitute so strong an attachment as that from which they draw their gains.
- When a man assumes a public trust he should consider himself a public property
- Whenever a man has cast a longing eye on offices (public), a rottenness begins in his conduct.

46.4 Patrick Henry Tells How to Keep the American Form of Government

- <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Km-r6YI7SZI>

St. John's Church, Richmond, Virginia March 23, 1775.- MR. PRESIDENT: No man thinks more highly than I do of the patriotism, as well as abilities, of the very worthy gentlemen who have just addressed the House. But different men often see the same subject in different lights; and, therefore, I hope it will not be thought disrespectful to those gentlemen if, entertaining as I do, opinions of a character very opposite to theirs, I shall speak forth my sentiments freely, and without reserve. This is no time for ceremony. The question before the House is one of awful moment to this country. For my own part, I consider it as nothing less than a question of freedom or slavery; and in proportion to the magnitude of the subject ought to be the freedom of the debate. It is only in this way that we can hope to arrive at truth, and fulfill the great responsibility which we hold to God and our country. Should I keep back my opinions at such a time, through fear of giving offence, I should consider myself as guilty of treason towards my country, and of an act of disloyalty toward the majesty of heaven, which I revere above all earthly kings.

Mr. President, it is natural to man to indulge in the illusions of hope. We are apt to shut our eyes against a painful truth, and listen to the song of that siren till she transforms us into beasts. Is this the part of wise men, engaged in a great and arduous struggle for liberty? Are we disposed to be of the number of those who, having eyes, see not, and, having ears, hear not, the things which so nearly concern their temporal salvation? For my part, whatever anguish of spirit it may cost, I am willing to know the whole truth; to know the worst, and to provide for it.

I have but one lamp by which my feet are guided; and that is the lamp of experience. I know of no way of judging of the future but by the past. And judging by the past, I wish to know what there has been in the conduct of the British ministry for the last ten years, to justify those hopes with which gentlemen have been pleased to solace themselves, and the House? Is it that insidious smile with which our petition has been lately received? Trust it not, sir; it will prove a snare to your feet. Suffer not yourselves to be betrayed with a kiss. Ask yourselves how this gracious reception of our petition comports with these war-like preparations which cover our waters and darken our land. Are fleets and armies necessary to a work of love and reconciliation? Have we shown ourselves so unwilling to be reconciled, that force must be called in to win back our love? Let us not deceive ourselves, sir. These are the implements of war and subjugation; the last arguments to which kings resort. I ask, gentlemen, sir, what means this martial array, if its purpose be not to force us to submission? Can gentlemen assign any other possible motive for it? Has Great Britain any enemy, in this quarter of the world, to call for all this accumulation of navies and armies? No, sir, she has none. They are meant for us; they can be meant for no other. They are sent over to bind and rivet upon us those chains which the British ministry have been so long forging. And what have we to oppose to them? Shall we try argument? Sir, we have been trying that for the last ten years. Have we anything new to offer upon the subject? Nothing. We have held the subject up in every light of which it is capable; but it has been all in vain. Shall we resort to entreaty and humble supplication? What terms shall we find which have not been already exhausted? Let us not, I beseech you, sir, deceive ourselves. Sir, we have done everything that could be done, to avert the storm which is now coming on. We have petitioned; we have remonstrated; we have supplicated; we have prostrated ourselves before the throne, and have implored its interposition to arrest the tyrannical hands of the ministry and Parliament. Our petitions have been slighted; our remonstrance's have produced additional violence and insult; our supplications have been disregarded; and we have been spurned, with contempt, from the foot of the throne. In vain, after these things, may we indulge the fond hope of peace and reconciliation. There is no longer any room for hope. If we wish to be free² if we mean to preserve inviolate those inestimable privileges for which we have been so long contending² if we mean not basely to abandon the noble struggle in which we have been so long engaged, and which we have pledged ourselves never to abandon until the glorious object of our contest shall be obtained, we must fight! I repeat it, sir, we must fight! An appeal to arms and to the God of Hosts is all that is left us!

They tell us, sir, that we are weak; unable to cope with so formidable an adversary. But when shall we be stronger? Will it be the next week, or the next year? Will it be when we are totally disarmed, and when a British guard shall be stationed in every house? Shall we gather strength by irresolution and inaction? Shall we acquire the means of effectual resistance, by lying supinely on our backs, and hugging the delusive phantom of hope, until our enemies shall have bound us hand and foot? Sir, we are not weak if we make a proper use of those means which the God of nature hath placed in our power. Three millions of people, armed in the holy cause of liberty, and in such a country as that which we possess, are invincible by any force which our enemy can send against us. Besides, sir, we shall not fight our battles alone. There is a just God who presides over the destinies of nations; and who will raise up friends to fight our battles for us. The battle, sir, is not to the strong alone; it is to the vigilant, the active, the brave. Besides, sir, we have no election. If we were base enough to desire it, it is now too late to retire from the contest. There is no retreat but in submission and slavery! Our chains are forged! Their clanking may be heard on the plains of Boston! The war is inevitable² and let it come! I repeat it, sir, let it come.

It is in vain, sir, to extenuate the matter. Gentlemen may cry, Peace, Peace² but there is no peace. The war is actually begun! The next gale that sweeps from the north will bring to our ears the clash of resounding arms! Our brethren are already in the field! Why stand we here idle? What is it that gentlemen wish?

What would they have? Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take; but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!

46.4.1 A Prophecy Against Edom (Bible Ezekiel)

¹²“This is what the Sovereign LORD says: ‘Because Edom took revenge on Judah and became very guilty by doing so, ¹³ therefore this is what the Sovereign LORD says: I will stretch out my hand against Edom and kill both man and beast. I will lay it waste, and from Teman to Dedan they will fall by the sword. ¹⁴ I will take vengeance on Edom by the hand of my people Israel, and they will deal with Edom in accordance with my anger and my wrath; they will know my vengeance, declares the Sovereign LORD.’”
